Scanned from the collections of
The Library of Congress

Packard Campus for Audio Visual Conservation www.loc.gov/avconservation

Motion Picture and Television Reading Room
www.loc.gov/rr/mopic

Recorded Sound Reference Center
www.loc.gov/rr/record

JANUARY 5, 1918

Motion Picture News

Reg. in U. S. Patent Office.

HAS THE QUALITY CIRCULATION OF THE TRADE

Leading always in quality productions

Paramount and Artcraft Pictures

add new ideas to attract new patrons

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
NEW YORK

485 5th Ave., New York City

VOL. XVII-NO. 1 Entered as Second Class Matter, October 15, 1913, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3rd, 1879. PRICE 10 CENTS

BLUEBIRD Photo Plays (INC)

present

PN1993
.M6

Bewitching

CARMEL MYERS

in "My Unmarried Wife"

An American Play with French Dressing from the recipe by Frank R. Adams

A piquant morsel for jaded appetites

"If it's a Bluebird—it's got to be good"

Paramount-Mack Sennett Comedies

5410
1044

"Are Waitresses Safe?"

always—

at picture houses where they show PARAMOUNT--MACK SENNETT COMEDIES—

—of course they might laugh themselves to death

—and what good would a dead waitress be—

—there are times—however—when as Pope says—

—Oh death! where is thy sting—

Don't You be stung—

book this wonderful "joy producer"

Paramount Pictures

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
NEW YORK

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

Paramount-Mack Sennett Comedies

"ARE WAITRESSES SAFE?"

with

Louise Fazenda
Ben Turpin
and Slim Summerville

produced under the personal supervision of

MACK SENNETT

"the man who put satire in overalls"

REASONS WHY

the series of photoplays with Benjamin Chapin entitled The Son of Democracy" will be one of the greatest business stimulators the motion picture industry has ever known.

FIRST—it is a twenty-reel picture, bigger than any feature that has even been released.

SECOND—Benjamin Chapin is a star attraction, big enough to play 28 consecutive performances at the Strand, and follow with 245 performances at the Globe Theatre.

Benjamin Chapin

in

"The Son of Democracy"

a series of dramatic film stories of America in the making—written and directed and produced by Benjamin Chapin—has an appeal so wide, a scope so broad, that it will stock up with the best drawing cards you ever booked.

FOURTH—As an emotional drama, literally teeming with human interest and big thrilling situations that made the leading figure stand out among the greatest, not only of the world, but of all time.

FIFTH—This tremendous series of attractions is backed by one of the most comprehensive special National Advertising Campaigns and a big direct-by-mail campaign, and the general publicity pressure of the Vast Paramount Organization.

SIXTH—Back of all the other "reasons why" is the association of Benjamin Chapin and Paramount Pictures, backed by the prestige of Paramount Pictures, and the tremendous National Advertising Campaign—Benjamin Chapin will be able to attract infinitely more business than with any other association.

is distributed by

Paramount Pictures Corporation

Joseph M. Schenck presents

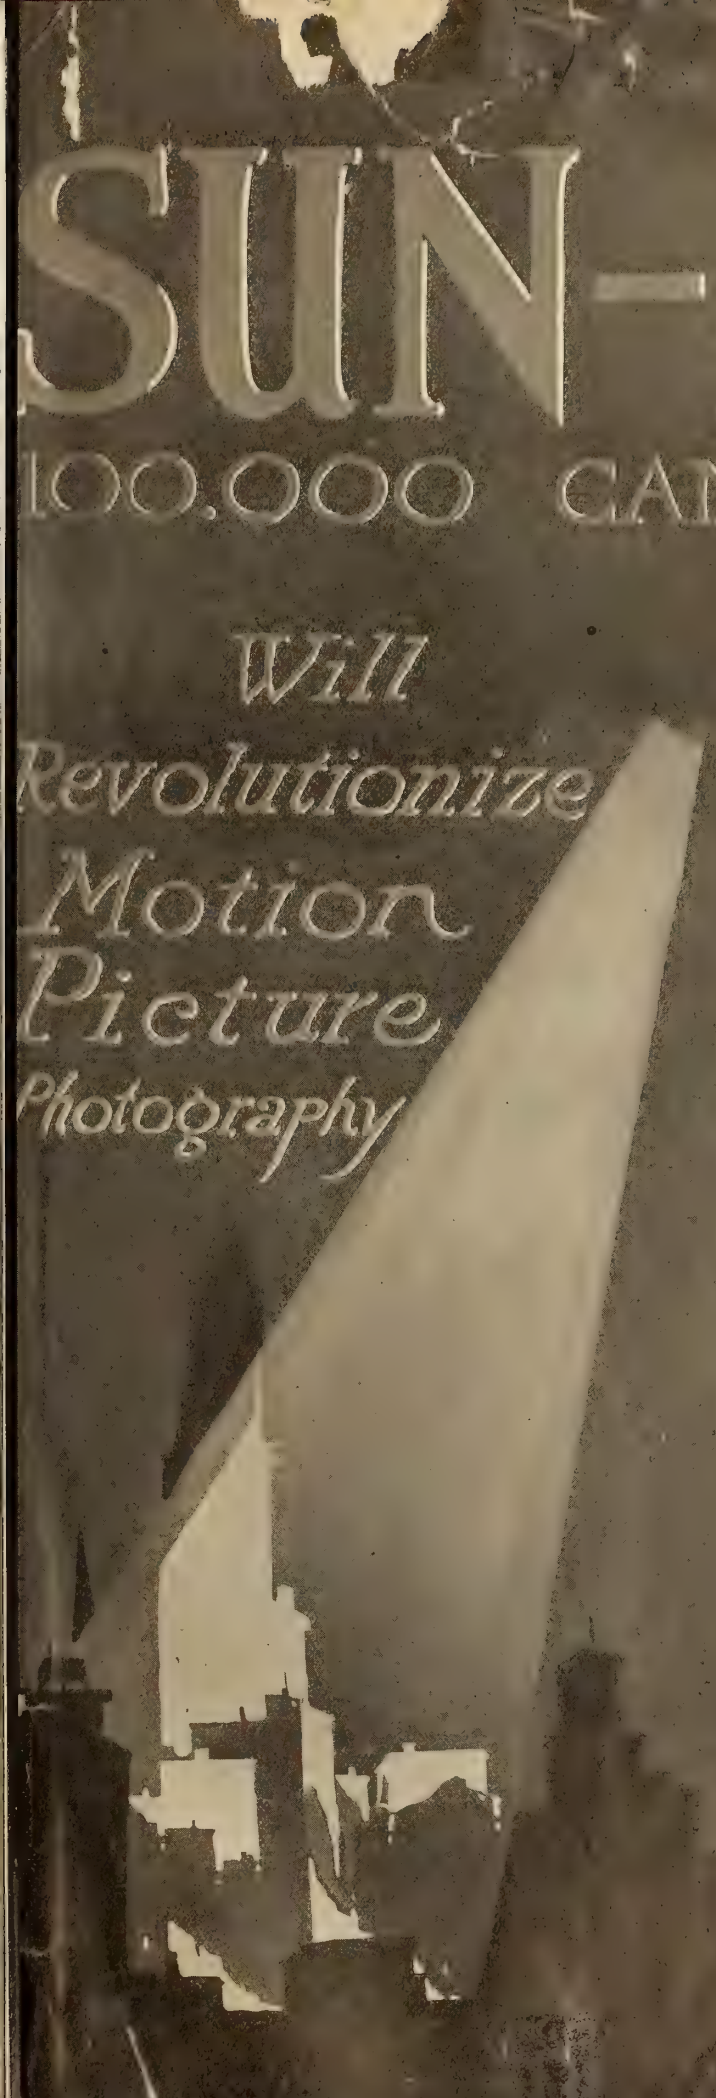
ROSCOE "FATTY" ARBUCKLE in "A Country Hero"

Watch for the new gags

FOR speed, real downright fun and hilarity, there never was a better laugh-provoker than the latest Paramount-Arbuckle comedy.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION



Paramount Pictures

Paramount Pictures

SUN-LIGHT

100,000 CANDLE POWER

Will Revolutionize Motion Picture Photography

Perfect Definition of Color!

Interior photography has the soft, clear, sharp effects, as in exterior.

"THE SEVEN SWANS"

directed by J. Searle Dawley, and starring

MARGUERITE CLARK

Set occupying the entire "Famous Players" New York Studio -- effects without parallel -- Photographed under the Sun-Light Arc.

Our Sun-Light can illuminate Madison Square Garden as bright as day.

This light and equipment is automatic in construction.

Moonbeams, floodlight, sunrays, spot-lighting or any desired effects can be obtained.

SUN-LIGHT ARC CO., INC.,
218 West 48th St., New York

WALTER HAYS, PRES. — MITCHEL H. MARK, TREAS.
LEWIS J. SELZNICK, V. PRES. — J. JUSTICE HARMER, SEC. & GEN. MGR.

In several periodicals recently published this light was mentioned as the new Harmer-Mark Photo-Light.

VITAGRAPH

ALBERT E. SMITH Presents
VITAGRAPH'S NEW MELODRAMATIC OUTDOOR SERIAL

"VENGEANCE—AND THE WOMAN"

Featuring

WILLIAM DUNCAN with CAROL HOLLOWAY

Written by ALBERT E. SMITH and CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Directed by WILLIAM DUNCAN

THE RECORD-BREAKING ADVANCE BOOKINGS FULFILL THE PREDICTION THAT THIS IS A GREATER SERIAL, EVEN, THAN "THE FIGHTING TRAIL."

BACKED BY A NATIONAL ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN THAT MEANS FIFTEEN WEEKS OF CAPACITY BUSINESS.

VITAGRAPH

ALBERT E. SMITH Presents

HARRY MOREY

with

GLADYS LESLIE

in

"HIS OWN PEOPLE"

A FIVE PART BLUE RIBBON FEATURE

Written by
WILLIAM ADDISON LATHROP

Directed by
WILLIAM P. S. EARLE

A PICTURE WITH A 100 PER CENT APPEAL

An Unusual Love Drama of Irish Life in which the Screen's Most Virile Star and "The Girl with the Million Dollar Smile" are Ideally Cast.

SELECT SP PICTURES

A honeymoon is meant for two, and Susan was lonely, very lonely!

LEWIS J. SELZNICK

presents

CONSTANCE TALMADGE

in

"THE HONEYMOON"

By E. LLOYD SHELDON

Directed by Charles Giblyn

Distributed by

SELECT PICTURES CORPORATION

729 Seventh Avenue, New York City

SELECT SP PICTURES

Warned by the lawyer, La Fleur waited; Marston was declaring his love for her in a passionate outbur

JOSEPH M. SCHENCK
presents

NORMA TALMADGE

in

"GHOSTS OF YESTERDAY"

Adapted by Mildred Considine from the Play
"Two Women"

BY RUPERT HUGHES
Directed by Charles Miller

Distributed by
SELECT PICTURES CORPORATION
729 Seventh Avenue, New York City

Goldwyn Pictures

THE SUPREME ACHIEVEMENT of GOLDWYN

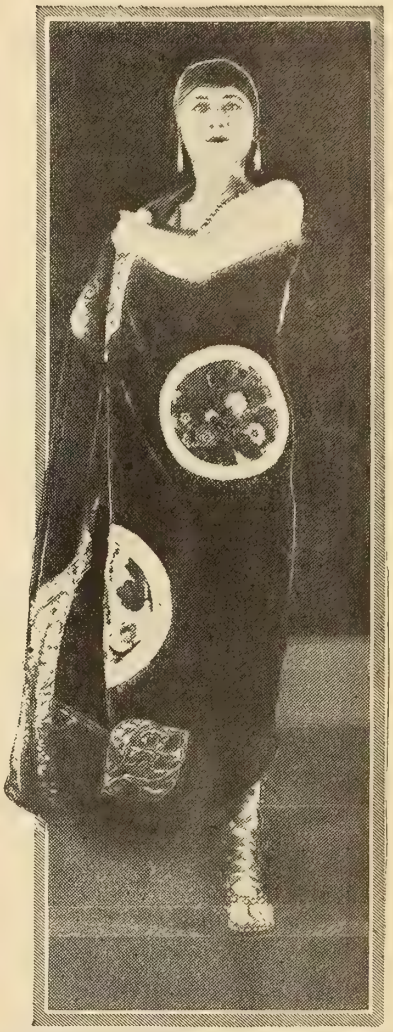
MITCHEL H. MARK, president, and Harold Edel, managing director of the Strand Theatre, who have as their New Year's week attraction at one of the world's greatest amusement institutions, Goldwyn's remarkable presentation of MARY GARDEN in "THAIS," make this unusual announcement:

"We know of no picture with which Mary Garden in 'Thais' can be compared and we expect to break every attendance record of The Strand with this unrivalled production."

And Still More:

ASCHER BROS., Chicago, telegraph: Mary Garden in "Thais" will prove the greatest attraction ever offered patrons of the screen. It is the most remarkable production of the year and we offer our congratulations.

STANLEY V. MASTBAUM, of Philadelphia, one of America's greatest exhibitors, writes: "Thais" is perfect to the smallest detail. Mary Garden and the production are both wonderful. "Thais" is an artistic knock-out.



Goldwyn Pictures

MARY GARDEN
IN THAIS
by Anatole France

Directed by Frank H. Crane

GOLDWYN has the unusual honor of introducing for the first time to the millions of devotees of the photo-drama this exceptional dramatic artist in a production from a story by one of the foremost figures in the literature of the world. In "Thais" Mary Garden is the thrilling, electric, vital personality of flesh and blood—the daring, sensational, unusual woman who constantly challenges the attention of the world.

A Prediction.

MARY GARDEN is receiving more publicity, more attention from the critics, more attention from all classes of the public, than any star who has ever been presented in your theatre.

"THAIS" is the one production of recent years that is so certain in its box-office appeal as to justify you in playing it for double the time you give any other picture.

GOLDWYN PICTURES CORPORATION

SAMUEL GOLDFISH, President — EDGAR SELWYN, Vice President — MARGARET MAYO, Editorial Director

16 East 42d Street — New York City

REX BEACH PICTURES

"The Auction Block" A Huge Hit

ATTENDANCE records for the entire year 1917 have been broken throughout North America by Rex Beach's greatest story, "The Auction Block." This sensational success proves the Goldwyn statement that "good pictures cure bad times in the theatres." Read these reports of exhibitors and powerful daily newspapers:

NORTH

Boston Post: "The Auction Block is the biggest attraction of the year. Long lines waited in the cold for admission. Throngs turned away." Boston Traveler: "An endless line at the box office." Boston Herald: "It made hundreds wait on the street to gain admission." Boston Transcript: "Vividly remarkable."

EAST

Joseph Grossman, Standard Theatre, Cleveland: "Broke all records for the year." Cleveland Leader: "A tremendous picture that has packed the Standard." Cleveland Press: "One of the few pictures worthy of particular recommendation." Edward A. Zorn, Temple Theatre, Toledo: "Drawing bigger crowds than any of Rex Beach's other great pictures."

WEST

Chicago Examiner: "The Auction Block is the 'honey' that will draw the people in swarms to box offices." Chicago Post: "It thrills one even more when seen a second time than it does the first time." Aaron J. Jones, Chicago: "It is a tremendous hit." Chicago American: "The Auction Block has the heaviest booking ever recorded in the Chicago territory."

SOUTH

Atlanta American: "Tremendous in its appeal, The Auction Block instantly drew the crowds. It is what motion picture showmen call 'a clean-up picture.'"

Exhibitors' Box Office Reports Motion Picture News

AUCTION BLOCK, THE (Rex Beach Production—Gold.)—Extra—Extra—Extra—Extra—"Splendid production." "From a box-office standpoint best we have ever played." "Record business; big in spite of zero weather; week run."

Directed by

Larry Trimble

Assisted by Philip Hubbard

Adapted by

Gil-Spear

CARLE E. CARLTON
PRESENTS

LILLIAN WALKER

BY ARRANGEMENT WITH LESTER PARK

IN DAVID GRAHAM PHILLIPS GREATEST STORY

THE GRAIN of DUST

DIRECTED by HARRY REVIER
PRODUCED by OGDEN PICTURES

ALL RIGHTS CONTROLLED by

CREST PICTURES

FACILE PRINCEPS
A CREST PICTURE

TIMES BLDG. NEW YORK

STATE RIGHTS

THE MAGIC VALUE OF THIS PICTURE WILL CAUSE ALL LIVE EXHIBITORS TO DEMAND IMMEDIATE BOOKING— ACT QUICK

EXHIBITORS

TO MAKE MONEY UNDER PRESENT CONDITIONS YOU MUST DEMAND AN ATTRACTION WITH A MAGIC BOX OFFICE VALUE—

JACK SPURLOCK-PRODIGAL

FOX SPECIAL FEATURES 1 A WEEK 52 A YEAR

SENSATION

EXHIBITORS ~ take notice

SATURDAY EVENING POST

An I Founded

eekly
. Franklin

5cts. THE COP

DECEMBER 15, 19

William Fox has secured

AT GREAT EXPENSE

A STORY THAT HAS HAD FIVE MILLION READERS

in the

SATURDAY EVENING POST

WRITTEN BY GEORGE HORACE LORIMER AND PUBLISHED AS A SERIAL IN THAT PAPER OF WHICH HE IS THE EDITOR

JACK SPURLOCK-PRODIGAL

A HAPPY, EXCITING STORY OF THE EXPERIENCES OF A WIDEAWAKE YOUNG MAN—

with

GEORGE WALSH

Staged by
CARL HARBAUGH

THE POINT FOR EXHIBITORS

THIS SENSATIONAL PICTURE WILL BE RELEASED ONLY TO THOSE WHO HAVE CONTRACTED FOR FOX SPECIAL FEATURES

AS SURE AS FATE-HERE IS THE GREATEST PATRONAGE BUILDER EVER OFFERED IN A SERVICE

MORE THAN TWO MILLION A WEE

CONTRACT NOW AT NEAREST

STANDARD PICTURES

READ THESE TELEGRAMS

From exhibitors who have played

A DAUGHTER OF THE GODS

Form 1201

WESTERN UNION TELEGRAM

NEWCOMB CARLTON, PRESIDENT — GEORGE W. E. ATKINS, FIRST VICE-PRESIDENT

CLASS OF SERVICE	SYMBOL
Day Message
Day Letter	Blue
Night Message	NTs
Night Letter	N L

If none of these three symbols appears after the check (number of words) this is a day message. Otherwise its character is indicated by the symbol appearing after the check.

RECEIVED AT

B109NY AGF 134 COUNT QU 1 WD

BC PHILA PENNA 215P DEC 8 1917

WILLIAM FOX

CARE FOX FILM CORPN NEW YORK

"DAUGHTER OF THE GODS" PACKED THE VICTORIA THEATRE ALL LAST WEEK AND PLAYED TO THE BIGGEST WEEKS BUSINESS OF THE YEAR YOUR WONDERFUL NATIONAL ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN ON THIS ANNETTE KELLERMANN PICTURE GAVE US AN INCENTIVE TO ADVERTISE HEAVILY OURSELVES WHICH RESULTED IN BUSINESS INCREASING EACH DAY THE ATTRACTION PLEASED THE PATRONS IMMENSELY YOU CERTAINLY DESERVE GREAT CREDIT FOR GIVING THE MOTION PICTURE THEATRES A PHOTO PLAY OF THIS CALIBRE IT IS UNNECESSARY FOR ME TO RECOMMEND THIS PRODUCTION TO THE EXHIBITORS IN THIS DISTRICT AS THEY ALL HAVE HEARD OF THE WONDERFUL BUSINESS THAT IT DREW ACCEPT MY HEARTY CONGRATULATIONS FOR YOUR GREAT EFFORT IN GIVING US THIS PICTURE AND I KNOW I AM EXPRESSING THE SENTIMENTS OF THE EXHIBITORS AND MYSELF WHEN I SAY THAT WE CANNOT HAVE SUCH PRODUCTIONS TOO OFTEN

STANLEY V MASTBAUM

410P

WESTERN UNION TELEGRAM

NEWCOMB CARLTON, PRESIDENT — GEORGE W. E. ATKINS, FIRST VICE-PRESIDENT

RECEIVED AT 16 BROAD ST./STOCK EXCHANGE BLDG./ N. Y. ALWAYS OPEN

B44SF CDI 95 NL COUNT QNS 4 EX

SAN FRANCISCO CALIF DEC 10 1917

WILLIAM FOX

FOX FILM CORPN 120 WEST 46 ST NEWYORK

THE RIALTO ENJOYED A HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL BUSINESS LAST WEEK WITH YOUR MASSIVE SPECTACLE A DAUGHTER OF THE GODS IT IS A PRODUCTION THAT WILL NOT FAIL TO PLEASE YOUNG AND OLD ALIKE AND THE MAGNITUDE OF PRODUCTION AND BEAUTY OF SCENES IS THE TALK OF SANFRANCISCO YOU ARE INDEED TO BE CONGRATULATED IN PUTTING A SUPERPRODUCTION OF THIS ENORMOUS COST IN YOUR EXCHANGE WHERE IT IS WITHIN THE REACH OF ALL HOUSES BIG AND SMALL EVERY LIVE WIRE EXHIBITOR SHOULD AVAIL HIMSELF OF THE OPPORTUNITY TO MAKE A "CLEAN UP"

RIALTO THEATRE MAT HOLT RESIDENT MANAGER

535AMLTH

WESTERN UNION TELEGRAM

NEWCOMB CARLTON, PRESIDENT — GEORGE W. E. ATKINS, FIRST VICE-PRESIDENT

Form 1201

RECEIVED AT

6 M XHI 9Z NL

BIRMINGHAM ALA DEC 10

MR WILLIAM FOX

FOX FILM CORPN. 130 WEST 46TH ST

NEW YORK CITY

I WANT YOU TO KNOW ABOUT THE WONDERFUL ENGAGEMENT AT MY THEATRE THIS WEEK WHEN I PLAYED A DAUGHTER OF THE GODS AND HOW GRATEFUL I AM TO HAVE HAD THIS DELUXE PICTURE FOR MY PATRONS I FOLLOWED YOUR EXAMPLE IN UNUSUAL ADVERTISING AND MY BUSINESS GREW FROM DAY TO DAY THIS PICTURE IS SURELY A BOX OFFICE MAGNET AND IT DOES WONDERS AT PRICES OF TWENTY FIVE AND FIFTY CENTS WITH SUCH ADVERTISING AS WE DID WITH IT

A W E JOHNSON 250 AM

FOX FILM CORPORATION

IN UNION THERE IS STRENGTH

The Stanley COMPANY

PALACE THEATRE BUILDING
1214 MARKET STREET

Philadelphia.

December
Twelfth,
Nineteen-seventeen.

Mr. Robert Lynch, Manager,
Metro Film Exchange,
1321 Vine Street,
Philadelphia, Pa.

Dear Sir:-

"Draft 258" is the best and most interesting patriotic picture I have ever seen so far. It will more than please any audience and bring forth rounds of applause wherever it is shown.

Yours very truly,
Harley Boucaster

Dictated by Stanley V. Mastbaum.
F.

PENNSYLVANIA

PHILADELPHIA:

STANLEY	GLOBE
PALACE	GREAT NORTHERN
ALHAMBRA	IRIS
ARCADIA	JEFFERSON
REGENT	KNICKERBOCKER
RUBY	LAFAYETTE
RIALTO	LEADER
VICTORIA	LIBERTY
MARKET ST.	LOCUST
SAVOY	LOGAN AUDITORIUM
PRINCESS	LOGAN
AUDITORIUM	NEW BROADWAY
APOLLO	NEW SOMERSET
BELLEVUE	ORIENT
BELMONT	ORPHEUM
BLUEBIRD	PARK
CEDAR	ROXBOROUGH
FAIRMOUNT	SHERWOOD
56TH STREET	TIOGA
FRANKFORD	WILLIAM PENN
GERMANTOWN	WISSAHICKON
GIRARD AVENUE

BETHLEHEM: BROAD, LEHIGH ORPHEUM, LORENZE

CARLISLE: ORPHEUM

CHESTER: GRAND

EASTON: THIRD STREET

HARRISBURG: REGENT, VICTORIA

LANCASTER: GRAND

MT. GRETNA: KAUFMAN

NORRISTOWN: GARRICK

PARKESBURG: NEW OPERA HOUSE

POTTSVILLE: VICTOR

READING: EMPIRE, PALACE, PRINCESS, VICTOR

WAYNE: WAYNE OPERA HOUSE

WILLOW GROVE: TOURS OF WORLD, WILLOWGRAPH

NEW JERSEY

ATLANTIC CITY: B. F. KEITH'S, BIJOU, COLONIAL, CRITERION, STEEL PIER, VIRGINIA

CAMDEN: GRAND, PRINCESS

CAPE MAY: CASINO

OCEAN CITY: DOUGHTY'S PIER

WILDWOOD: COMIQUE, HUNT'S, REGENT

To the Manager of the Park Theatre, Boston

As a first run exhibitor who finds METRO productions continuously successful, you realize that Francis X Bushman and Beverly Bayne in "Their Compact" "The Adopted Son" and "The Voice of Conscience" rose higher and higher as box office attractions. You, of course, believed that "The Voice of Conscience" was high water mark, and so did we, but now we recommend to you "RED, WHITE and BLUE BLOOD," their newest triumph, which surpasses even their greatest successes. We recommend that you advertise it in a big way because you can assure your patrons absolute satisfaction.

METRO Pictures Corporation
by the President

P.S. We also wish to advise you that we have a wonderful production in "DAYBREAK" for release in January.

Directed by Charles Brabin.
Scenario by June Mathis from Shannon Fife's great story.

Maxwell Karger
Manager of Production

The "NEWS" advertisers believe YOU worth while; justify them.

At the Review at Wurlitzer Hall the critics from all the trade papers were unanimous in the opinion that becomes the greatest box office attraction in motion pictures.

VIOLA DANA in BLUE JEANS

Every theatre showing BLUE JEANS will use the S.R.O. sign

Scenario by June Mathis and Charles A. Taylor from Joseph Arthur's original success. Directed by John H. Collins and presented by B. A. ROLFE.

M E T R O

AN · ANNOUNCEMENT
BY
W · W · HODKINSON

PRESENTING

THE · MOTION · PICTURE · PLUS

I offer the Motion Picture PLUS as a process which, presented as a means of guaranteeing genuine quality to the public, will give the theater which shows it THE EQUIVALENT OF THE HIGHEST CLASS OF STAR, with all a star's advantages and none of the disadvantages.

Look out of the window as you read this. Imagine how much finer would be the view if the entire side of the wall were taken away.

THE MOTION PICTURE PLUS IS TO THE OLD PICTURE AS AN OPEN WALL IS TO A WINDOW.

It is a motion picture higher, wider, finer photographically, more unlimited in stage action—a process years ahead of the old method upon which we have built this tremendous industry.

THE MOTION PICTURE PLUS is a picture twice as wide as the present height of the screen, and as high as the present width of the screen.

In other words, the film runs sideways instead of up-and-down, and two standard "frames" are used for each picture.

THE STEREOSCOPIC EFFECT HAS AT LAST BEEN ACHIEVED IN THE MOTION PICTURE PLUS, giving a depth and clarity of focus heretofore unknown.

In projection, the new picture allows more actors, more action, with FIGURES THE SAME SIZE OR LARGER than they now appear.

Read the details in the following pages, and as you read realize what a tremendous force this new picture will be for you, restricted as it will be to products of surpassing quality—a visible guarantee to the public of Quality, QUALITY, QUALITY.

Wm. W. Hodkinson.

THIS · IS · THE · OLD · PICTURE

Scene from "A Man's Man," a PARALTA PLAY, featuring J. Warren Kerrigan.

This Style of Picture has been Standard for Ten Years for These Reasons

1.—The film size, ¾ x 1 inch, could be cheaply produced, for cheap theatres.

2.—The standard celluloid film would tear and "buckle" more easily if it were wider, and would break more easily if it were narrower. This size has the greatest "tensile strength."

3.—The lenses of ten years ago would not photograph a picture on a larger film in the 1-16 of a second allowed, except with "fuzzy" edges and a background out of focus.

4.—The small stage allowed of cheap settings and did not require much of the unskilful actors of that day.

There has been No Change in the Shape or Size of Pictures for These Reasons

1.—Nobody ever thought it possible. Their eyes were glued to immediate advantage, no matter what the cost in effort wasted on a medium that could not do the effort justice.

2.—"Standardization," in screen size and in projecting machines, was considered more important than the need of a more worthy medium for the great productions.

3.—The mechanical difficulties were considered too great to overcome.

MEANWHILE we built our Strands, spent hundreds of thousands on productions, stars and distribution efficiency—while presentation methods lagged in the old narrow channels of the nickleodeon days.

AND·THIS·IS·THE·NEW

The same scene as it would be presented in the Motion Picture PLUS

This Size and Shape of Film Is Perfectly Practical in Any Theatre, for These Reasons:

1.—Although double the amount of film is used, the new process, absolutely protected by many patents, will give such effects and WILL BE USED AS A GUARANTEE OF SUCH QUALITY, as will put the picture beyond all question of competition in stars, spectacles, etc.

2.—The standard film is used, in all its tensile strength and with all the value of standardization in laboratory work, shipping, handling, etc.

3.—Modern special lenses give not only as good but far better photographic results in the Motion Picture PLUS than anything yet achieved. The stereoscopic effect, so long sought for, has been secured, insuring a photographic quality unique in any motion picture theatre.

4.—For figures of equal size upon the screen, the actors move on a stage nearly twice as wide. This has all the effect of the stage of a legitimate theatre. It gives full advantage to the costly sets of modern productions. It allows the director to bring actors into the scene from "off stage" instead of jumping them into the action or using confusing "cut backs."

Compared to this larger field, the old screen seems like looking at a part of the stage of a theatre through a square hole.

The Hodkinson Plan for Distributing The Motion Picture PLUS

The first production under the new process is a PARALTA PLAY, with Bessie Barriscale as the star. It will be ready for issue in February, 1918.

In the beginning, not more than fifty theaters will receive franchises for exhibiting the Motion Picture PLUS. These exhibitors will be tied in with the Hodkinson organization.

This will give them assurance of control of the new process, with all its prestige of quality, in their locations.

As a bi-product of the Motion Picture PLUS, productions utilizing the same stories, stars and sets, will be made in the narrow, standard form, giving smaller exhibitors the advantage of the national advertising, publicity and discussion of the Greater Motion Picture until we can offer the number of productions needed to supply smaller theaters.

The projecting machines for the Motion Picture PLUS will be leased to theaters, so that THE ONLY ACTUAL INVESTMENT REQUIRED WILL BE A LARGER SCREEN.

Basic patents protect all the manufacturing and projecting processes of the Motion Picture PLUS, and all rights are vested in the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation.

WE SHALL THEREFORE BE ABLE TO CONTROL THE STANDARD OF QUALITY OF EVERY PICTURE MADE IN THIS SIZE AND SHAPE.

This control we regard as a sacred trust, which we shall use only to give to the theaters and the public that VISIBLE GUARANTEE OF QUALITY which alone can dispel from the public mind the confusion which hinders its search for pictures worthy of public patronage.

W. W. HODKINSON CORPORATION
527 Fifth Avenue
New York

GENERAL FILM COMPANY.

A DAUGHTER of UNCLE SAM

with

Jane Vance & William Sorelle

THE THRILL SENSATION OF 1918.

FIRST EPISODE READY JANUARY 19

THE SENSIBLE SERIAL

TWELVE ONE-REEL EPISODES

GERMAN SPY PLOTS EXPOSED

A GREAT DRAMA of the WAR at HOME

•MAKE THAT ENGAGEMENT with PROSPERITY NOW•

Produced by the Jaxon Film Corporation Commercial Trust Co. Bldg. 41st St. and Broadway, N. Y. City

Distributed Exclusively by General Film Company

General Film Company does not exact the 15c charge upon any of its releases

Many a packed house is directly traceable to an advertisement in the "News."

PARALTA PLAYS

PICK OF THE PICTURES

The Second Paralta Play

Bessie Barriscale in

Directed by REGINALD BARKER

"Madam Who?"

Written by HAROLD MacGRATH

ROBERT BRUNTON, Manager of Productions

Words may sell a picture, but they'll never make one!

To say that Paralta Plays are the greatest pictures in the world, would be stale and trite. And if we used up all the highflown words in the dictionary, it would amount to no more than the usual flapdoodle you've been handed so long that you don't pay the slightest attention to it.
And you shouldn't.
Nowadays, only those who see can believe.
Well, there are those who have seen Paralta Plays.
And having seen, they believe,
What's more, they have backed their belief by actions which make the loudest words seem like a hoarse whisper.
Here are the men and their actions:
W. W. Hodkinson — who decided on Paralta Plays as his feature product for distribution.
Paul H. Cromelin — Inter Ocean Film Corporation — who obtained the foreign rights for Paralta Plays.
Arthur Cohen — Globe Films, Ltd.,— distributor of Paralta Plays in Canada.
Have you confidence in the judgment of these men?
Now, you see Paralta Plays and be convinced.

PARALTA PLAYS, Inc.

729 SEVENTH AVENUE
NEW YORK CITY

CARL ANDERSON, President — ROBERT T. KANE, Vice.-Pres.
JOHN E. DeWOLF, Chairman Directors — HERMAN KATZ, Treas.
NAT. I. BROWN, Secretary and Gen'l Manager

DISTRIBUTED BY
W.W. HODKINSON CORPORATION

PARALTA PLAYS

PICK OF THE PICTURES

The First Paralta Play

J. Warren Kerrigan in

Directed by
OSCAR APFEL

"A Man's Man"

Written by
PETER B. KYNE

"Greater love hath no man than this,
that a man lay down his life for his friends."
St. John xv: 13

John Webster's creed is, "live and let live." That's why he hates kings and such, and despises the holier-than-thou kind.
The world is his play ground. He has many play fellows.
But only one friend.
For that friend, John Webster is ready to go the limit.
There's nothing John Webster refuses to try once — and once more, if it doesn't take the first time.
He tries mining, and makes his pile. He tries to save a fellow's head.
The fellow is still wearing a hat.
He tries to start a revolution and goes through with it all the way.
He tries to deliver a nation from the yoke of a despot. (Mr. Despot is now cursing John Webster's memory — in a place where the heat is never turned off.)
After he has tried a whole lot more things, he tries love.
And his friend, too, tries love.
And it's the same girl.
John Webster knows it — his friend doesn't.
There's the rub.
There's where friendship enters by the front door.
There's where John Webster is ready to sacrifice his soul on the altar of friendship.
Because he is a man's man.
Then — providence deals him the ace of hearts!

PARALTA PLAYS, Inc.

729 SEVENTH AVENUE
NEW YORK CITY

CARL ANDERSON, President
JOHN E. DeWOLF, Chairman Directors
ROBERT T. KANE, Vice.-Pres.
HERMAN KATZ, Treas.
NAT. I. BROWN, Secretary and Gen'l Manager

DISTRIBUTED BY
W.W. HODKINSON CORPORATION

Mr. Foreign Buyer

"WE OPERATE EVERYWHERE"

START OFF THE
NEW YEAR RIGHT
SEE US NOW SECURE FOR YOUR PARTICULAR TERRITORY

"WE OPERATE EVERYWHERE"

PARALTA PLAYS
PICK OF THE PICTURES
WORLD PICTURES
BRADY-MADE
BINGO COMEDIES
VIM COMEDIES
BLACK DIAMOND COMEDIES
AND
1,001 OTHER SUBJECTS TO CHOOSE FROM

EXCLUSIVE EXPORTERS OF SPEER CARBONS

INTER-OCEAN FILM CORPORATION

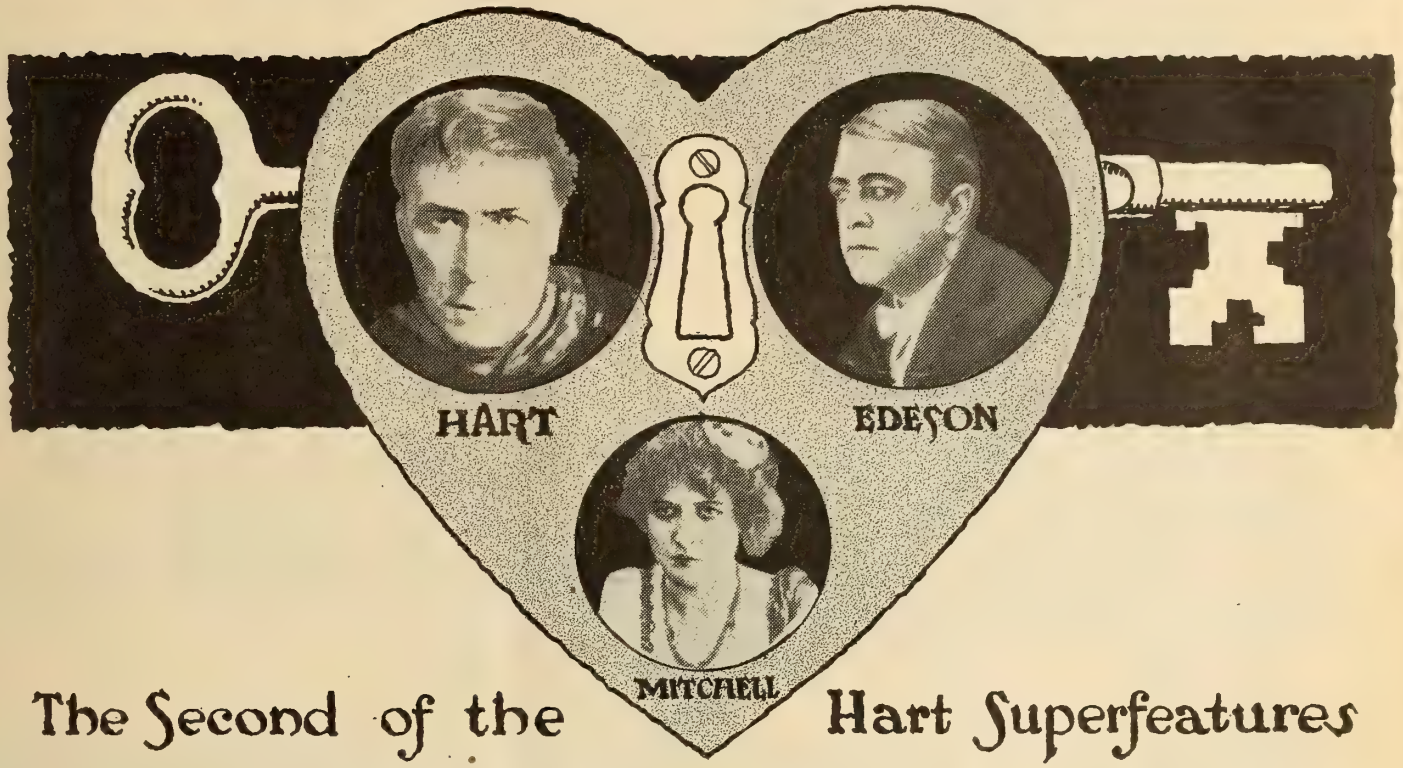
PAUL H. CROMELIN
PRES. & GEN'L. MGR.



220 W. 42nd ST.
NEW YORK CITY

LARGEST DISTRIBUTORS OF FILM IN FOREIGN FIELDS

SCHLES

Who holds the Key to her heart?

THE BANDIT or THE PREACHER

The Second of the Hart Superfeatures

"The BANDIT and the PREACHER"

Written by C Gardiner Sullivan Produced by THOS·H·INCE

5 REELS

With WILLIAM S·HART as the BANDIT

Supported by an all star Cast

Robert Edeson—the Preacher
Rhea Mitchell — the Girl
Herschel Mayall – the Heavy
Gladys Brockwell – the Vamp

A NUMBER OF TERRITORIES ALREADY SOLD. APPLICATIONS CONSIDERED IN ORDER OF THEIR RECEIPT.

W·H·PRODUCTIONS CO

71 WEST 23rd ST. PHONE GRAM·3027 NEW YORK CITY

IN PREPARATION

"The HELL-HOUND of ALASKA"

Many a packed house is directly traceable to an advertisement in the "News."

Add PATHOS
And HEART-To DRAMA
SENSATION
AND YOU
MABEL
NORMAND
"THE LITTLE GIRL YOU WILL NEVER FORGET"
WORLD RIGHTS CONTROLLED BY WESTERN
1010 BROKAW BLDG.

to HUMOR INTEREST~
—— THEN~ to MYSTRY HAVE ~

IN "MICKEY"

7 REELS

AT LAST~
THE LONG WAITED FOR MACK SENNETT
$300,000
PRODUCTION

TO BE RELEASED SOON

IMPORT CO

NEW YORK CITY

TRIANGLE

What Is Service in the Film Business?

NEVER was a word more abused—and misused.

Every quack who has had anything to sell, from thumb tacks to automobiles, has employed that word " SERVICE " in some form or other.

In the film business service means a whole lot. It means first—picture quality, measured by the power of a production to fill a theater, second—it means the proper delivery of film, and third—it means cooperation in connection with exhibitor's aids, publicity and especially systematic, fair and square methods of doing business.

The Triangle code defines service as " SATISFACTION "—pure and simple.

If the above is true, let's apply it to Triangle and see where we come out.

Triangle is buying the best stories that are available, realizing that a good story is the foundation of a good picture. This is the one element of a successful picture that cannot be eliminated.

Triangle is producing its pictures at the best equipped studios in the world where every facility is available to insure high quality production. These studios are efficient manufacturing establishments, where waste is eliminated and every possible economy is practised. The entire cost of a production always appears on the screen.

Here is what S. L. Rothapfel of the Rialto Theater, New York, has to say about Triangle productions: " It gives me much pleasure to inform you that we have selected for the week of December

(Continued on opposite page)

TRIANGLE

Be sure to mention " MOTION PICTURE NEWS " when writing to advertisers

TRIANGLE

TRIANGLE TRIANGLE TRIANGLE TRIANGLE

(Continued from preceding page)

second ' Until They Get Me.' My staff also reports that they have looked at five other Triangle pictures (' Fanatics,' ' Learnin' of Jim Benton,' ' Because of the Woman,' ' The Maternal Spark ' and ' Without Honor ') and find them very satisfactory. I can assure you you will have our every support. Keep up the good work."

Triangle has recently established a Traffic Department, whose sole duty it is to see that every Triangle exhibitor secures his film regularly and promptly and that it is shipped to him over the shortest route and at the least expense. This is just another little evidence of our desire to give service plus.

Triangle exchanges are operated by men who know picture quality, who can advise exhibitors as to the best methods of promoting pictures, and who fully realize that every exhibitor with whom they do business must receive fair, square and courteous treatment. This is the unalterable policy of Triangle.

There is nothing revolutionary about Triangle. We have no wonderful red fire announcements to make to exhibitors. We are simply doing business in the most business-like way, with all of our cards on the table.

Does this method of doing business interest you?

TRIANGLE DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

1457 Broadway, New York

S. A. LYNCH	R. W. LYNCH	FRED KENT	Y. F. FREEMAN
President	Vice President	Treasurer	General Manager

TRIANGLE

Many a packed house is directly traceable to an advertisement in the "News."

EXTRA ATTRACTIONS — LIVE

HOW TO ADVERTISE

THOSE

HOW TO ADVERTISE

The

HOW TO ADVERTISE

The ZEPPELIN'S

U·S·EXHIBITORS' BOOKING CORPORATION

FRANK G. HALL—PRES.

TOP O'THE TIMES BLDG. NEW YORK

ADVERTISING — BIG BUSINESS

WHO PAY

LET YOUR patrons know this is a special Thos. H. Ince production in seven reels—planned by its famous producer as an extraordinary feature for special presentation. Also acquaint them with the fact it is the most powerful vehicle in which Bessie Barriscale has ever been seen. The New York Review said: "THOSE WHO PAY is, in our opinion, the best screen exposition of the eternal triangle that has been presented in recent years." Advertise it as such. After your opening show, the women will advertise it so effectively that capacity houses will continue throughout the engagement.

Belgian

Martyred Belgium is the most appealing subject in the public mind. The title of Frederic Arnold Kummer's timely drama therefore attracts immediate attention. Drive home the fact that this elaborate offering represents the supreme effort of the great director, Sidney Olcott, to stage a masterpiece (in seven reels) worthy of the importance of the subject. Take advantage of the two eminent stars, Walker Whiteside and Valentine Grant, to prove the very special nature of the production. The many calls for "THE BELGIAN" by monster benefits (It was a prominent feature of Hero Land) is proof positive of its tremendous exploitation possibilities. You should do a wonderful business with this valuable attraction.

LAST RAID

EMPHASIZE THE FACT THAT THIS IS THOS. H. INCE'S NEWEST AND GREATEST spectacle and bring out the spectacular features—The Zeppelin in Action—The inner workings of the mighty air monster—The bombing and burning of towns and villages— Mutiny in the gondolas of a dirigible—A huge "terror of the skies" destroyed by fire in mid air—Multitudes of enslaved people sounding the battle cry of freedom. These sensational features are making this high class thriller do a tremendous box-office business. You can get YOUR SHARE of this money—It's a live showman's proposition—go after it!

HOFFMAN-FOURSQUARE

NEW YORK.....729 Seventh Avenue
BUFFALO.....47 W. Swan Street
DETROIT.....304 Jos. Mack Building
CHICAGO.....207 So. Wabash Avenue
DENVER.....1735 Welton Street
SEATTLE.....2014 Third Avenue
PITTSBURGH.....127 Fourth Avenue
LOS ANGELES.....514 W. Eighth Street
PHILADELPHIA.....1325 Vine Street
CINCINNATI..301 Strand Theatre Building
ST. LOUIS....301 Empress Theatre Building
CLEVELAND.....310 Sloan Building
WASHINGTON.....8 E Street, N. W.
KANSAS CITY.....1120 Walnut Street
SAN FRANCISCO..191 Golden Gate Avenue
MINNEAPOLIS...206 Film Exchange Bldg.

SOUTHERN STATES FILM CO.
ATLANTA.....114 Walton Street
DALLAS.....1900 Commerce Street

GLOBE FEATURE FILM CO.
NEW ENGLAND..20 Winchester St., Boston

FRANK GERSTEN, INC.
NEW JERSEY...220 W. 42d St., New York

FOREIGN RIGHTS: Robertson-Cole Co., 23d Floor, Times Bldg., N. Y.

You are wasting your opportunities if YOU ignore advertising.

THE PUBLIC SPEAKS

ABOUT THE BOX OFFICE VALUE OF

HARRY RAVER'S POWERFUL PRODUCTION

THE PUBLIC DEFENDER

WITH THE GREATEST TRIOLOGY OF STARS EVER ASSEMBLED

FRANK KEENAN

ALMA HANLON

ROBERT EDESON

READ THE NEXT PAGE

THESE OPINIONS POINT TO THE BOX OFFI

THEY REPRESENT THE PUBLIC MIND—
THE SPECTATOR WHO KEEPS THE MIGHTY
PICTURE INDUSTRY ALIVE AND GOING.
TO THE SHOWMAN WHO CATERS TO HIS PUBLIC THESE OPINIONS ARE VALUABLE.

Concerning "The Public Defender"

HON. EDWARD J. LAUER
Justice of the Municipal Court, New York
"It is certainly a novel and singularly effective production."

HON. EDWARD J. DUNPHY
Ex-Congressman and prominent attorney
"I enjoyed the picture immensely. It entertained and thrilled me."

THOS. W. CHURCHILL
Famous Educator and former Pres. of N. Y. Board of Education
"I was interested from start to finish. It is a graphic presentation with a strong melodramatic plot of peculiar but plausible development."

REV. JOHN E. ZEITER
Pastor First Methodist-Episcopal Church, N. Y.
"'THE PUBLIC DEFENDER' is simply great—whether read as a book or seen as a picture."

REV. SAMUEL GREENFIELD
Rabbi Isaiah Temple, New York
"Artistically, the production ranked high. The story is carried out with startling truthfulness and vivid forcefulness."

REV. RODOLPH GROSSMAN
Rabbi Congregation Rodoph Sholom
"The picture is intense in its story, heart moving in its appeal and very convincing in its presentation."

DR. WM. J. O'SULLIVAN
Celebrated Medico-Legal Expert
"The cast is worthy of high praise for conscientious and artistic rendering of their respective parts. The picture is both informative and convincing."

FRANKLIN S. TOMLIN
Well-known Labor Leader
"From the standpoint of an interesting entertainment, I consider it greatly superior to a majority of the motion pictures that have been presented."

MYRON SULZBERGER
Successful New York Lawyer
"Representing, as I do, certain motion picture industries, I can appreciate the wonderful selling qualities that 'THE PUBLIC DEFENDER' possesses. The public will clamor for it and thereby stimulate such demand."

SAMUEL J. SIEGEL
Prominent Criminal Lawyer
"'THE PUBLIC DEFENDER' unfolds an intensely gripping story, sending its lesson to heart and mind in a manner to create thought."

ALL THE ELEMENTS

POWERFUL STORY, GREAT STARS, IMPRESSIVE SCENES, UNUSUAL THEME, FINE DIRECTION ARE FOUND IN

THE PUBLIC DEFENDER

FOR TERRITORIAL RIGHTS ADDRESS

RENOWNED PICTURES CORP.

1600 BROADWAY, N.Y.

ADE

Exhibitors

ı renewed thanks for your support ore and now, and appreciation of uture patronage, we extend the n's Compliments, and our sincere hat 1918 will give you full measure fit, prosperity and success.

NOW, it shall be our aim so to your interests and our own that of us will gain added strength from partnership and mutual esteem.—
We recognize the responsibility you placed upon us by your confidence and support.
We shall continue to deserve it.

It's YOUR business to see that OUR business prospers. OUR business to help YOUR'S.

World policies have at last waked up most distributors and producers to the real mutuality of interests of exhibitor and distributor. Both must fail unless both SURVIVE.

World Film Corporation

This production will go before the public with the greatest advance interest ever existing in any attraction, either picture or play. It is founded on actual facts

THE WHARTONS PRESENT

AMERICA'S SERIAL SUPREME

"THE EAGLE'S EYE"

By WILLIAM J. FLYNN
Chief of the United States Secret Service

The Imperial German Government's Spies, Plots and Propaganda Exposed in a Powerful Patriotic Appeal

Produced in 20 Thrilling Dramatic Episodes With

KING BAGGOT and MARGUERITE SNOW

SCENARIO BY COURTNEY RYLEY COOPER

WHY EVERY EXHIBITOR SHOULD SHOW THIS ATTRACTION

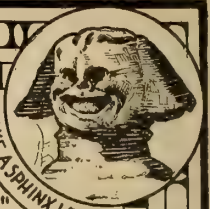
WHILE active military operations are being carried on in France and Italy, the Imperial German Government's spy army is warring on the people of America in their very midst. This country has been practically invaded during the past three years by the most dangerous and insidious spy system ever conceived in the history of nations. Everybody has read of this menace and everybody should have the opportunity to learn the true facts.

Send for Advance Descriptive Literature

U.S.A. WHARTON T.W. L.D. ITHACA, N.Y.

DISTRIBUTED BY

FOURSQUARE EXCHANGES



Principal Office
729 Seventh Avenue, New York

Booking Offices in All Principal Cities

4 SQUARE PICTURES

PYRAMID COMEDIES

NOW READY

IN AND OUT" "LOVE AND LUNCH" "BEACH BIRDS" "BEAUTIES AND BOMBS"

FOUR

PYRAMID COMEDIES

24 A YEAR — 2 REELS EVERY TWO WEEKS

NOVEL - UNUSUAL - ORIGINAL

Featuring

RAY HUGHES

NOW SELLING TERRITORIAL FRANCHISE

PYRAMID COMEDIES INC.
220 W. 42ND ST., N.Y.

DIRECTION WILLIAM A. SEITER

PHONE BRYANT 2798

There is splendid value at the motion picture box office in the name and fame of

EDNA GOODRICH

whose forth coming appearance on the screen will be in—

HER SECOND HUSBAND

Which portrays the struggles against reconciliation of a proud husband and wife to whom newly acquired wealth had brought marital discord — the peril of hurried divorce — the final triumph of love over pride —

Available December 31 at all exchanges of the
Mutual Film Corporation

THE Mutual Film Corporation is extending its fullest co-operation to the committee of the motion picture industry collecting funds for "Jewish Welfare Work among Soldiers and Sailors."

The heroic Jews in our military service and three millions of Jews in the war zones abroad need our sympathy and support in substantial terms.

Contributions may be made by check (endorsed for Jewish Fund) or other remittance to —

MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION
220 South State Street
Chicago, Illinois.

Pathé

"GENTLEMEN!
I AM HERE!"

TOTO

is announced in the two reel riot of hilarity

THE MOVIE DUMMY

Released January 13th

Produced by ROLIN
Direction of HAL E. ROACH

PATHÉ PLAYS

A GREAT STAR IN THE BEST PLAY SHE HAS YET APPEARED IN .....

IRENE CASTLE

is announced in

CONVICT 993

A FIVE PART PATHÉ PLAY

Written by W.C. CLIFTON.... Directed by Wm. Parke.... Produced by ASTRA

This is the best Castle picture yet. It will keep audiences breathless wondering how it's all going to come out..... RELEASED JAN. 6th .....

Announcement

As leaders in the educational field of Motion Pictures, we are ready to make another big announcement.

We have acquired America's best known Travel Pictures—

"NEWMAN TRAVELTALKS"

the finest and highest class travel pictures in the world.

They have played for years in the best houses to the most critical audiences at Two Dollar Prices. The prestige and reputation of the Newman Pictures; their tremendous national advertising is now offered exhibitors through our independent exchanges.

"Newman Traveltalks" were secured by us in the face of competition with the largest programs, because we were considered the organization most fitted to distribute them to you.

This combination of Robt. C. Bruce Scenics, Raymond L. Ditmars animal pictures and the Newman Travel Pictures offers the exhibitor the greatest program of entertaining and money making pictures ever offered the industry.

Newman Pictures make a wonderful attraction and will far exceed any dramatic feature. Their drawing power is beyond conception.

Never before has anything so large ever been offered the public. Consider the prestige of Newman Pictures, lead them on your program and take pride in the fact that you are showing them—You will reap the benefit of a packed house.

EDUCATIONAL FILMS CORPORATION

OF AMERICA

729 7th AVENUE NEW YORK, N.Y.

What the genius of exhibitors—the man who has built the RIALTO and dreamed the RIVOLI—says of GEORGE LOANE TUCKER'S masterpiece:—

"Mother"

THE RIALTO
TIMES SQUARE

NEW YORK

THE RIVOLI
BROADWAY AT 49TH STREET

OFFICE OF THE MANAGING DIRECTOR

December 19. 1917.

Mr. Frederick L. Collins,
The McClures' Publications,
New York City.

My dear Mr. Collins:

I have just seen "Mother"by George Loane Tucker and, to say the least, it is a picture that will linger with me for a long, long time. Miss Risden, who plays the character part of "Mother" gives one of the finest character performances I have ever witnessed on the screen. The refinement, the intelligence and the good taste displayed by her make her, in my opinion, one of the greatest artistes on the screen. The whole picture has an atmosphere of good taste about it and drama is so big that I don't see how in the world it can go wrong. The musical possibilities in this picture are also great and I can assure you that if it is properly played and handled it will touch a responsive cord in everyone's heart and is bound to be talked about.

I will let you know in the near future just what date I can give you in either The Rialto or The Rivoli and you can rest assured that I shall be glad indeed to play it.

Very sincerely yours,

Managing Director.

STATE RIGHTS

WRITE OR WIRE FOR OPEN TERRITORY TO-

GENERAL ENTERPRISES, INC.

1476 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY

The Prize Baby of 1917

taking all medals for LAUGHTER

— Watch him Grow in 1918

IT'S BOUND TO BE A HAPPY NEW YEAR – IF YOU BOOK

BILLY WEST

KING-BEE COMEDIES

KING BEE FILMS CORPORATION

LOUIS BURSTEIN
PRES & GENERAL MGR
L.L. HILLER
TREASURER

NAT H. SPITZER
SALES MANAGER
LONGACRE BLDG NEW YORK

SOLE FOREIGN REPRESENTATIVE
J. FRANK BROCKLISS
729 SEVENTH AVE., NEW YORK

E.R. Jr

DIRECTION OF ARVID E. GILLSTROM

! Bobby Vernon
Another winner
Coming in CHRISTIE
COMEDIES known and admired by millions
He will soon be seen in BEST THEATRES
EVERYWHERE
CHRISTIE
FILM CO.
LOS ANGELES

STATE RIGHTS BUYERS:—

YOU ARE NOT BUYING A LAW-SUIT when you secure the franchise for OUR two-reel KEYSTONE COMEDIES—

OUR CONTRACT PROTECTS every buyer.

JUST THINK OF IT!!!!

TWENTY-EIGHT of them—The first selection from the entire KEYSTONE Output of their Biggest Stars in their Best Comedies—

Including THREE of the funniest

CHARLIE CHAPLINS

and they are COPYRIGHTED

What Are You Going to Do About It?

$80.00 PER REEL

AND

We Pay the War Tax

AND GUARANTEE all prints are taken from ORIGINAL NEGATIVES, which we own and control.

Wonderful lobby display of photographs, and one, three and six sheet posters on each subject.

COMMUNICATE IMMEDIATELY for quota for your territory

W. H. PRODUCTIONS COMPANY

71 West 23d Street - 'Phone Gramercy 3027 - NEW YORK

George K. Spoor presents

I. MARY MAC LANE

IN

Men Who Have Made Love To Me

AT FIRST CLASS PICTURE THEATRES—ASK WHEN!

COMING SOON!

THE WORLD FAMOUS AUTHOR

(Herself)

in the

Great Ultra Feature

(By Herself)

It Will Be the Sensation of the Film World

Backed by a National Billboard Advertising Campaign

Arrange Your Booking Dates

A T ONCE!

Essanay

Perfection Pictures

Distributed by the George Kleine System throughout the United States

Motion Picture News

Vol. 17 No. 1. Jan. 5, 1918

The Week in the Film World at a Glance

THE PUBLIC BE ENTERTAINED (WM. A. JOHNSTON) 55
EDITORIALS 56
INDUSTRY NEEDS OPERATION AT ONCE 59
WHAT HAPPENED WHEN I RAISED MY PRICES.. 60
ABRAMS AND SHULBERG LEAVE PARAMOUNT... 63
RIVOLI OPENING SETS NEW MARK..... 65
THE READER HAS HIS SAY..... 72
HODKINSON MAKES KNOWN NEW PROCESS..... 89
GOLDWYN PASSES FIRST MILE STONE..... 91
PICTURE ART WILL ADVANCE IN 1918..... 93
TRIANGLE FORGES FURTHER AHEAD..... 95
Paramount Plans New Advance..... 88
Blue Ribbon New Release Named..... 88
Blackton Starts "Wild Youth"..... 90
Wilfred Lucas Joins Bluebird..... 90
Berst Closes New Bookings..... 92
La Tosca Secured for Screen..... 94
Vitagraph Sends Williams West..... 94
Educational Gets Newman Film..... 96
Lorimer Story Enthuses Fox..... 96
Bluebird Adds to Its Program..... 97
Mutual Announces Schedule..... 98
Author Value Backs Goldwyn..... 99
Select Secures "The Knife"..... 99
Starts "Cleopatra" on Road..... 102
Four Artcraft Productions Finished..... 102
New Year Goldwyns Are Ready..... 103
Big V. Comedies Promise Big Laughs..... 104
Stern Announces L-Kos Due in January..... 104
"Modern Musketeer" Finished..... 105
"Empty Pockets" Goes to Distributors..... 105
Pathe Announces List of Gold Roosters..... 106
Vitagraph Starts "Vengeance and the Woman"..... 107
Jaxon-General Serial Held Up for Scenes..... 107
Laemmle Gets Deluge of Xmas Messages..... 108
National Gets Lewis Production..... 110
"The Slave" Released Without Sub-Titles..... 110
Hoffman Speaks on Efficiency..... 113
Great Possibilities, says Raver..... 113
Big Sales for "Public Defender"..... 115
Hall Promises Big Expansion..... 115
Carlton to Make Optional Sales..... 116
Box Office Reports..... 73
Exhibitors Service Bureau..... 76
Rothapfel's Answers to Exhibitors..... 83
Ready-Made Ad-Talks 86
Live News from the Producers..... 88
Advance Offerings of the Programs..... 103
Film Specialties 108
In the Independent Field..... 110
The Foreign Problem Discussed..... 114
News Notes from Canada..... 122
In and Out of West Coast Studios..... 123
"Betty Takes a Hand" (Triangle)..... 128
"Brown of Harvard" (Essanay-Perfection)..... 129
"Convict 993" (Pathe)..... 128
"Diamonds and Pearls" (World Film)..... 127
"Gown of Destiny, The" (Triangle)..... 126
"Her Sister" (Mutual-Empire)..... 127
"Hidden Hand, The" (Pathe)..... 129
"Just a Woman" (Julius Steger)..... 133
"Love Letters" (Ince-Paramount)..... 127
"Mother" (McClure-General)..... 126
"Sins of Ambition" (Ivan)..... 133
"Struggle Everlasting, The" (Harry Rapf)..... 126
"Taming Target Center" (Paramount-Mack Sennett)..... 126
"When Men Are Tempted" .....
Releases 134-35-36-37
Accessory 139

Newsy Announcements of the Week Found in the Ad-Pages

Carmel Myers, Current Bluebird Star..... 2
Variety Noteworthy in Sennett's Paramount Comedies.....3-4
Paramount Offers the Benjamin Chapin Pictures Under Title, "The Son of Democracy"..... 5
"A Country Hero," Fatty Arbuckle's Latest, Full of New Gags..... 6
Sunlight Arc Company..... 7
"Vengeance and the Woman" Is New Vitagraph Serial... with Same Stars as "Fighting Trail"..... 8
"His Own People," An Alfred Henry Lewis Vitagraph.... 9
Interesting Hint on Contents of "The Honeymoon"..... 10
"Ghosts of Yesterday" Promises to Be Yet Another Triumph for Norma Talmadge..... 11
"Thais" with Mary Garden Heralded as Goldwyn's Greatest Triumph 12-13
Dailies From All Sections and Box-Office Reports Show Tremendous Value of "The Auction Block"..... 14
Lillian Walker Again in "The Grain of Dust"..... 15
William Fox's Weekly Announcements.....16-17
Mastbaum Has Words of Praise for Metro's "Draft 258". 18
Metro Recommends "Red, White and Blue Blood" as Greatest Effort of Bushman and Bayne..... 19
S. R. O. Expected on Showings of "Blue Jeans"..... 20
W. W. Hodkinson's Message to Trade.....21-22-23-24
General Film's Late Serial Is "Daughter of the U. S. A.".. 25
"Madam Who?" and "A Man's Man," Paralta First Under New Distribution Plan.....26-27
Inter-Ocean Has Foreign Rights of Paralta Plays..... 28
"The Bandit and the Preacher" Is Second Hart Reissue Offered by W. H. Productions..... 29
"Micky" with Mabel Normand Combination of Popular Picture Elements 30-31
Triangle Giving Big Service to Exhibitor.....32-33
Features Offered by U. S. Exhibitors and List of Exchanges 34-35
Prominent Men Praise Raver's "Public Defender".....36-37
Season's Compliments and Business Outlook from World Film 38
"Eagle's Eye" Released by Foursquare Exchanges..... 39
Four Pyramid Comedies Ready for Territorial Sales..... 40
Mutual Pictures 41-42
Pathe's Offerings of Sterling Quality.....43-44-45-46
Educational Makes Important Announcement..... 47
"Mother" Recommended by S. L. Rothapfel..... 48
Billy West Comedies Have Been Released for Seven Months 49
Bobby Vernon New Christie Lead..... 50
W. H. Productions Offer Charlie Chaplin Copyrights Films.. 51
Big Successes Offered Through Perfection Pictures..... 52
"Uneasy Money," Taylor Holmes' Biggest Hit..... 54
"Price of a Good Time," Jewel's Best Effort.....117
Fair Play from Jewel Exchanges.....118-119
Contest Conducted in Connection with Universal's "Mystery Ship".....120-121

WM. A. JOHNSTON, Pres. and Editor. HENRY F. SEWALL, Vice-Pres. E. KENDALL GILLETT, Sec. and Treas.

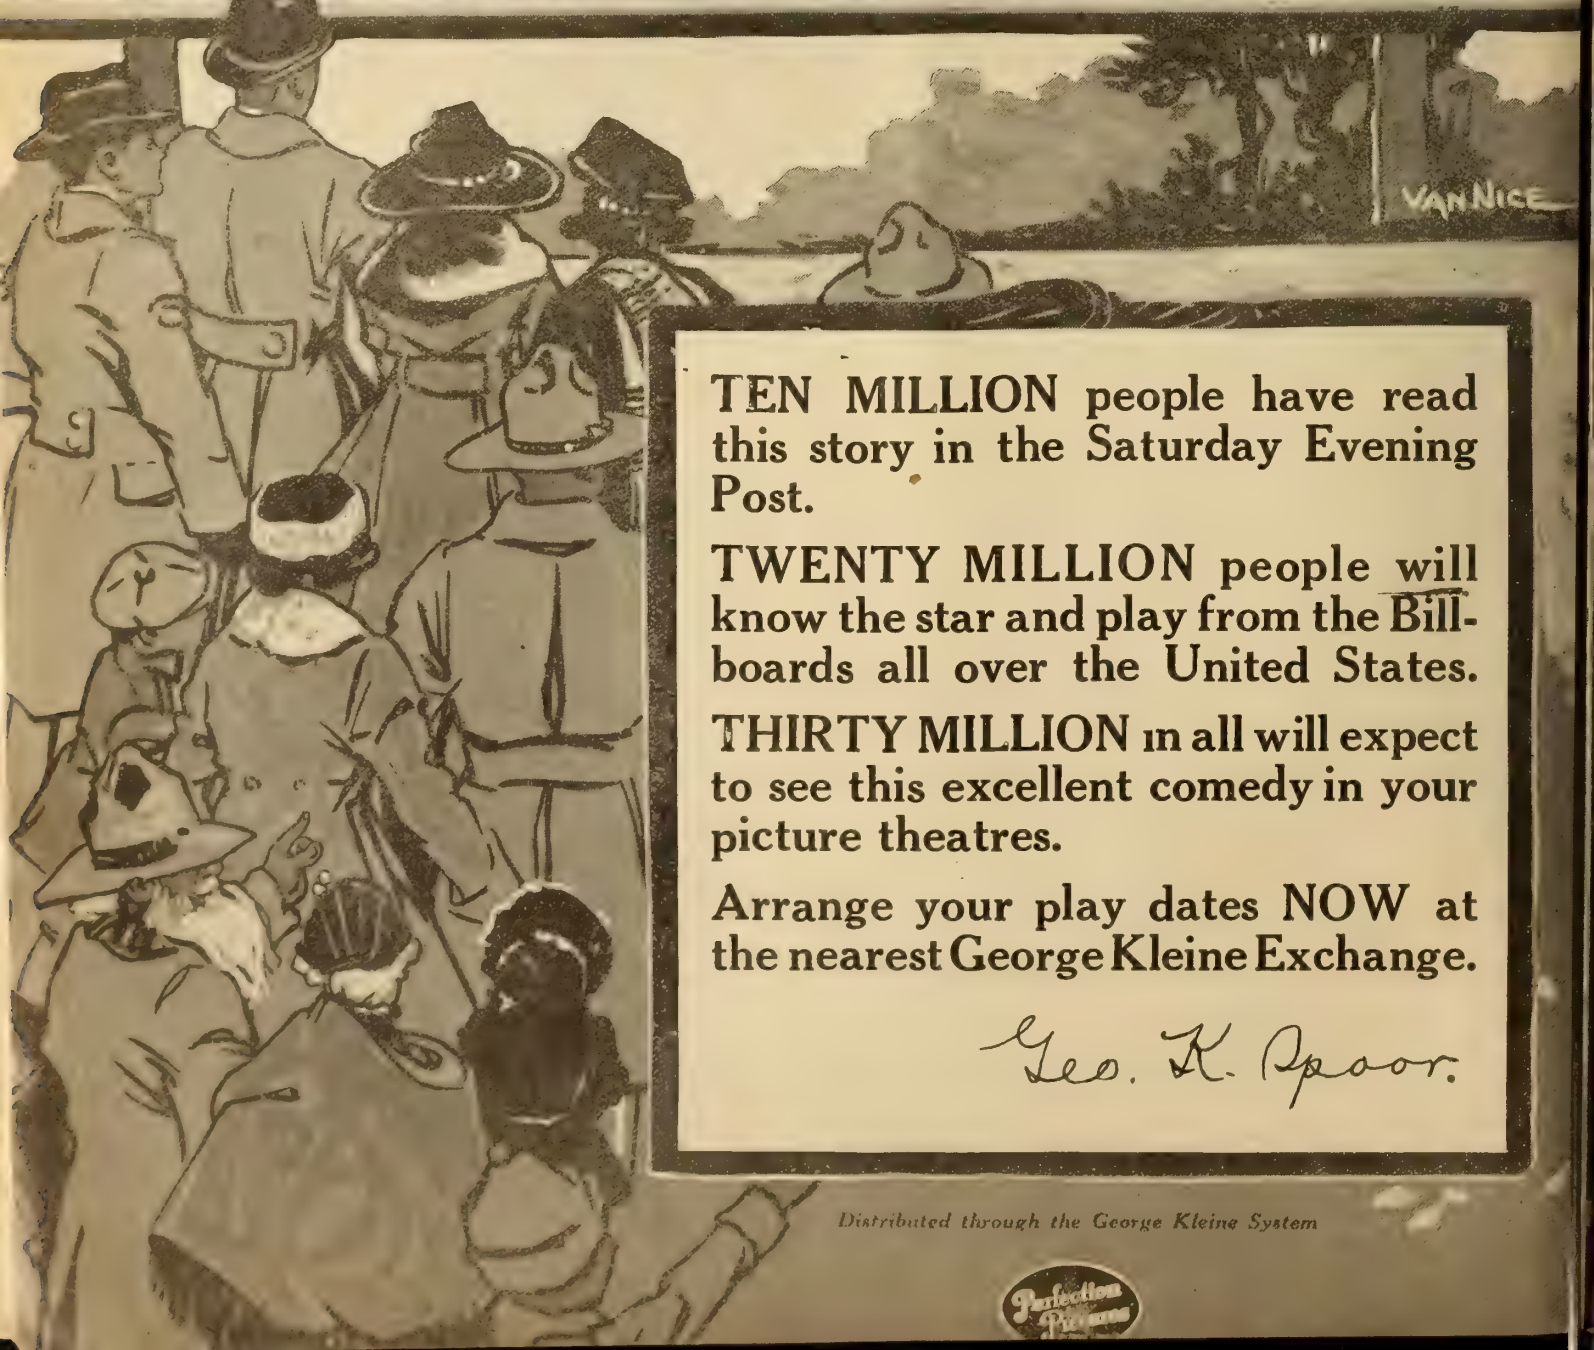
Published on Tuesday every week by MOTION PICTURE NEWS, Inc., 729 Seventh Ave., New York, N. Y. 'Phone 9360 Bryant. Chicago Offices, Mgr. Wm. J. McGrath, 110 So. Dearborn St.; 'Phone 755 Randolph. Los Angeles Offices, Mgr. J. C. Jessen, 429 South Figueroa St.; 'Phones 7140 Main, F-4661. Subscription $2 a year, postpaid, in United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands. Canada, $3. N. B.—No agent is authorized to take subscriptions for Motion Picture News at less than these rates. Have the agent who takes your subscription show his credentials and coupon book.

Copyright, 1917, by Motion Picture News, Inc.

GEORGE K. SPOOR
presents



-IN-

TAYLOR HOLMES

Uneasy Money

BY P. G. WODEHOUSE

AT ALL FIRST CLASS PICTURE THEATRES—Ask When!

TEN MILLION people have read this story in the Saturday Evening Post.

TWENTY MILLION people will know the star and play from the Billboards all over the United States.

THIRTY MILLION in all will expect to see this excellent comedy in your picture theatres.

Arrange your play dates NOW at the nearest George Kleine Exchange.

Geo. K. Spoor.

Distributed through the George Kleine System

Perfection Pictures

DEC 27 1917 ©CLB400235

"When you see it in 'The News' It's News"

Motion Picture News

HAS THE QUALITY CIRCULATION OF THE TRADE

"The Exhibitors' Medium of Communication"

Volume 17. No. 1 January 5, 1918

The Public be Entertained

WHAT will you give the public for their money—this year?

We are putting this question to the exhibitor right at the beginning of the new year in the hope that he will paste the phrase in his memory and refer to it every time he opens his show, every day.

This is going to be a test year for the exhibitor. Don't mistake that.

In the first place prices have been, and must be, generally raised; and good goods go with good prices—if good prices are to be had; a simple truth that every business man is clearly aware of.

In the second place people are going to buy carefully this year. As the war increases so will the value of a dollar. People will shop cautiously and closely examine the goods within the pacakge.

And lastly, people today are screenwise. The mystery and novelty that once packaged the picture are gone. The goods are bare to the public gaze.

What will you give the public for its money?

It must be entertained—never forget that.

Barnum Showed the Way

YOU needn't be afraid of war conditions, or of any conditions, if you can give entertainment. People will cut into their bread and butter for a good show as Barnum well knew and as every other big and little showman since has proven.

A good show!

Don't say it's up to the producer to furnish good pictures—better than ever. It is—right up to him; and this year he'll realize it as never before. His packages will be examined. You will examine them. And we intend to preach this fact right along. There's no chance for the tyro producer this year, nor the careless producer nor the "fake 'em" producer.

But your cue is not to rely upon the producer for good negatives nor upon the exchange for good prints—not a bit more than you are absolutely compelled to, not until your own legs and brains have gone their limit in the matter.

We spoke a short time ago of an exhibitor who received a rotten print of a great photoplay—which he had generously advertised and paid heavily for. He's a fine man with a fine house and when we heard the story of his disgruntled audience we felt that such an exchange ought to be wiped out of existence. We still feel so.

Be One Who "Gets What He Wants"

BUT we got something of a shock when we told the story to another exhibitor, a showman who makes so much money out of his house that the whole industry would gasp at the truth. This exhibitor said:

"It's his own fault. He should have gone to the exchange and examined the print. Never rely upon anything or anybody in this business. I've walked to an exchange miles and knee-deep through the snow to get what I wanted. Rely upon yourself!"

Just yesterday we heard the experience of an exhibitor who owns several houses. One was losing money. And the owner finally decided that the fault was his own; he was too busy attending to other matters. He sailed in, fired the manager, attended, himself, to the booking, advertising and music—even to playing a clarinet in the orchestra. Now the house is clearing over a hundred dollars a week.

Down to Hard Pan This Year

YOU'VE got to concentrate this year. You've got to be a showman, a real showman and no other kind of a man. And you've got to rely upon yourself and your house.

Don't forget your house.

And in this connection consider a practical point. You cannot expect a large return upon a small investment. Time was when this was possible but that time is 'way gone by—and naturally. If you have only a few thousand invested you cannot expect to make as many thousand a year—not very long. Few businesses today—only in accidental cases—are making a one hundred or fifty or twenty-five per cent return. If they are, a lot of fellows are quite ready to step in with double or treble or quadruple the investment and take one-half or one-third or one-quarter the return.

Money makes money in the picture theatre business—as in every other—provided it is backed by ability and undivided attention and energy. That's why many big houses are big successes. Right here we might hazard a guess that within the next three years there will be few 600 seat houses left in the large cities.

The picture theatre business has passed from a period of quick, easy money into an era of larger investment with lower but surer returns.

Good houses—and it takes capital to make them good—are inevitable.

There's a Live Wire Coming—If You Are Not

IF you are losing money in a town or district where there is no other or one other theatre; or if you are making money without a good house or good showmanship—then the handwriting for you is on the wall. Some day—some showman with enough capital is going to come in. That town or that district is not going to get along without a good motion picture show. That's certain!

We concede that the task isn't easy. There are abuses within the industry—arbitrary and unfair rentals, selling waste, bad exchanges, fly-by-night-competition and war taxes. But the task can be done. If you can't or won't do it some showman will—despite the odds.

(Continued on page 56)

Speaking Editorially:

Rehashing the Reel Tax

AN adjustment of the reel tax seems certain. It is known that producers' committees are seeking an equitable and more satisfactory plan. That it will resolve into a percentage scheme seems also possible.

What would be the proper percentage of rentals to be collected?

The question puzzles. Some percentages we have heard suggested, while possibly satisfying the small theatre, may be reasonably certain to evoke a loud howl from the first run manager. Others satisfying all exhibitors would not meet the producers' necessities.

A new York exhibitor who has done some figuring offers the following conclusions:

"Assuming that the tax which must be paid at present amounts to ¾ cent per foot, or $37.50 per five-reel feature, and estimating the revenue to be derived from each print at $1,000, this tax would represent a total of 3¾ per cent of the revenue obtainable. Were the tax assessed on the basis of 3¾ per cent of the rental charge, the burden would be equitably distributed to all exhibitors. The man paying $7.50 per day for service would only have to pay a tax of 28 cents, while the man paying $100 per day would pay $3.75."

* * * *

A Showman and His Method

AS a footnote to the editorial on the preceding page and its demand for showmanship in the coming year, we are able to present in this issue one example of a showman and his method.

Manager Hyman, of Buffalo, was faced with the necessity of raising his prices. Did he overnight announce a raise in prices? Did he declare a "new war tax scale"? Did he find it necessary to gnash his teeth at the poor business that followed his raise?

None of these things. He approached the step carefully and calling into play all the tricks of showmanship at his command. He now wears a deserved smile.

Manager Hyman's own story of his method makes a fitting start for our new series of features, "What Happened When I Raised My Prices." It's on page 61.

* * * *

The Birth of an Organization

NO amalgamation of the existing exhibitor associations was formed at the recent Washington conference, as so many would seem to believe.

No amalgamation is possible or desirable.

But out of the conference there was evolved an agreement to work together towards the seeking of a plan or basis for the founding of a permanent national exhibitor organization. The aim is a merging on the common ground of a representative constitution and by-laws under officers removed from the factional quarrels of the past and worthy the confidence of all exhibitors.

The possibilities for a real national exhibitor organization seem ripe. A continuance of the praiseworthy spirit of conciliation shown by the leaders of both present organizations at Washington should assure this result.

There can be no amalgamation; there may be a creation.

Our best wishes go to the workers in such an effort.

A Sane Program in which You Can Help

A GENERAL committee, including representatives of the National Association and the co-operating exhibitor organizations, is at work preparing a definite program for the film industry in its attempt to secure a readjustment of the war tax schedules.

The committee, despite its really representative character, does not seek to dictate a course of action. This was not the object of its creation, nor is it the purpose of its members.

It does seek information. Holding its own opinions in leash, this General Committee is seeking by a calculated and careful plan to secure the facts, figures, experiences and opinions of every exhibitor in the country.

You can help; you must help. In this issue of Motion Picture News we are reprinting the committee's advertisement stating its desires and containing a coupon which you can fill out in a few moments' time. You are asked to supply a few fundamental facts regarding the effects of the tax on your business; you are not called on to divulge any business secrets.

The committee is working in a commendably sane and studied manner; it needs and deserves your co-operation. Take a few minutes now and fill out the coupon; if possible, take a few more and write a letter giving more detailed information and any suggestions you have to offer.

Turn to page 140; the advertisement and your opportunity are there.

* * * *

The Public be Entertained

(Continued from preceding page)

This year is the test year.

You have got to get up on your toes—and work.

* * * *

We'll Help!—Give Us the Chance

FOR one thing read your trade paper. We are going to try mighty hard to help you. We are going to make this paper more and more a service publication, every page of it, if possible. We are going to serve you with showmanship ideas and information. Turn now to our Exhibitors Service Bureau—if you haven't already done so. Study the other showman's ways and ideas. Take a tip from Rothapfel. He didn't rely upon pictures or stars altogether. He relys on himself. He sells entertainment, every day, every week. He never lets down. No matter what kind of a picture Rothapfel has on, you can't help but enjoy the show.

We are going to make Motion Picture News stand right back of you this year—with service for success.

Study your advertising. It's fifty per cent of your day's duty. Spend some money but don't waste it. Give it lots of thought and you'll be astonished what results you can get with very little outlay. Be original. Think it out!

Study your patronage—their tastes, their weaknesses—their psychology in other words. And keep everlastingly at it. Entertain them!

Be a showman, or—the answer is plain.

This is to be a showmanship year!

C. S. Johnston

Serving It with Speed and Ginger

HERE'S the idea: We spend seven days a week, twenty-four hours a day—more or less—getting out a trade paper for you. You spend two hours a week—more or less—reading it.

You can't get it all; you should get it all. You are a busy man; so are we. You don't want to miss anything good; we don't want you to. So this busy man's department was created.

In one page the news of the week. In one page the high lights on the feature articles of the week. Fifteen minutes for assurance that you are always up to the minute on important happenings.

Ready? On your mark—get set—go!

* * * *

WHEW! Those staccato, biff-bang sentences may create the atmosphere of a busy-man's department, but they sure do take the breath away. We'll rest up before going on.

Also—we must insert a warning that the page is not going to be written with a machine gun—as the above would indicate. Rather, it will be as though you asked us over the lunch table on Tuesday:

"What happened this week? What's in to-day's NEWS, anyway?"

* * * *

IN an apparently indifferent, chatty manner—but really trying to sell ourselves—we'd shoot all the information we could at you in the next few minutes. For instance—inserting our personal opinions, for an editor must editorialize—we'd say:

Carl Laemmle left for the Coast last week—and left in his wake an interview that will start something. Carl comes out flat-footed and admits that Universal hasn't made a cent since the robins left us last. And, while he doesn't say so, he infers that none of the other producers are able to do any crowing, either.

It's pretty certain that Mr. Laemmle speaks the truth as to the lack of profits for producers during the past year. It's also certain that he deserves commendation for laying his cards on the table before the exhibitors.

The interview is going to become a "Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk" later. By the way, aren't those "Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talks" one of the real institutions of the game? Remember "Use the Brains God Gave You?" Weren't there some peppery instalments in those good old days?

Maybe Carl has opened a new pepper pot.

* * * *

"ABRAMS and Schulberg Withdraw from Active Control of Paramount Affairs" is the tenor of another head in this week's NEWS. "What does it mean?" everybody asked us last week. "What does it mean?" we asked everybody.

No one knew, so we gave it up and decided that it meant just what it said. So we read the story over again, not missing a word.

We advise you to do the same. Then keep a weather eye peeled constantly on that wise duo—Abrams and Schulberg. Abrams, film distributor, from A to Izzard; Schulberg, film man, from the ground up.

Some day we are going to write a regular Saturday Evening Post story of Filmland. It's going to tell about a one-time newspaper office boy, later a scenario editor, still later a general manager, and next——?

THIS is the second week of Rothapfel's "Answers to Exhibitors" department. Do you, Mr. Reader, ever stop to think what a boy this man Rothapfel is? Two theatres to run now—and run as Rothapfel runs a house—yet he is willing to take three or four out of his precious twenty-four working hours to sweat over the problems of NEWS readers from Hickville to Bigtown.

* * * *

HARRY RAVER comes to bat this week with an interview that spells optimism with a capital "O"—and then tells why. Harry is the most rampant optimist Times Square has just now. He met us one day last week:

"I know you preach optimism in the NEWS," he said, "but why do you open your columns to these blithering, bellowing, bangety-bang, growling, groveling, grouchy, pecking, pestiferous pessimists? Throw 'em out. This is the day of optimism."

Harry ought to know. He's been a showman since he was in swaddling clothes, and a film man since knickbockers.

* * * *

WHAT do you think of this idea? Eastman—and indirectly the Government—is warning manufacturers against a film shortage because of ammunition needs. Why not, therefore, have the Government confiscate all the positives on the market more than a year old?

It would help the Government—and help the film game still more by ridding the shelves and the poor more-than-ninety day exhibitor of a terrible mess of junk.

This is a suggestion from an exhibitor; it's in our department, "The Reader Has His Say."

* * * *

THE state rights field has two interesting items. For one, "Tarzan of the Apes" has been completed and Bill Parsons is on the way East to handle the exploitation. To some busy film men "Tarzan" may not sound as big as it does to us, but to our mind if the picture only approximates in quality the publicity that the millions of copies of the book have gained and the many more millions of readers who followed the syndicated serial, we foresee some lively bidding among the state rights gentry.

The other item is in the sale to First National of one of Edgar Lewis' recently completed negatives. Which is interesting to us because every time we hear the name of Edgar Lewis, George Loane Tucker, Herbert Brenon and several other independents we think of our hidden determination that if we ever quit publishing to take up producing we'll just subsidize one of the five or six sure-fire directors and go off to Bermuda to wait for the coin to roll in.

It seems perfectly simple to us.

* * * *

GOSH, the fifteen minutes are almost up and we haven't told you of the real big bit of news of the week. W. W. Hodkinson lifts the cover this week and shows his bag of tricks—no, only one of them. It's all about that new kind of film.

With the aid of rotogravure the ad pages tell the story much better than we could here or later in the news pages.

Sounds big—so you better read the first announcements closely. Then when you hear film men talking and arguing about it considerably during the next few weeks you'll be on solid ground.

Open Market Used on Coast

Los Angeles Exhibitors Begin in January to Practise New Plan—One House Sticks to Programs

THE Los Angeles exhibiting field will present a new phase about the first of the year, when all but one of the theatres go on to an open market basis with respect to the rental of subjects. At this time ten of the houses have contracts for other than one or two weeks, and statements of the managers is to the effect that in the future their houses will be conducted solely on the basis of renting each picture separately. The only house to continue with the program policy is the Superba, where Bluebird photoplays are shown. There is a probability the Alhambra theatre on Hill street, owned by Miller Theatre Company, may continue with the Fox program.

Exchangemen, in discussing the prospects for the coming year, believe the new condition will be beneficial to all concerned. It will give every exchange manager the opportunity to get his films in first-run downtown theatres, and probably at an increase in rental prices, due to the open competition for subjects.

The Symphony theatre, managed by Charles Gates, will use but two Metro pictures monthly, the other portion of the time the management will book independent plays. Manager Frederick Miller of Miller's theatre has made a statement that he will hereafter adhere to the open market booking policy. T. L. Tally, of Tally's Broadway, who is a member of the First National Exhibitors' Association, will of course show the subjects purchased by this organization, but in addition will rent on the open market proposition. The first of the year the present contract of the Sennett theatre, which heretofore has used Triangle pictures exclusively with Mack Sennett Paramount comedies, will follow the policy of the other downtown houses, which include Quinn's Rialto, Caulfield's Garrick, Clune's Broadway and Auditorium, and the new Grauman theatre, which will be opened about January 15. Manager Emil Kehrline of the New Kinema theatre, which was opened on December 15, states he will be glad to look at all the subjects, with the view of booking them in the open market. At the present time a number of Artcraft and Paramount subjects have been booked in the new house.

Legislative Plan Is Adapted

Exhibitors' Committee Meets One from National Association—Publicity Committee Is Also Appointed

AS the result of meetings which were held in New York during the past week between the Allied Exhibitors' Legislative committee and a similar committee from the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, it is reported that harmony and unity was established and the two bodies agreed on a definite plan of campaign to be pursued in obtaining the necessary remedial legislation from Congress during this session.

This combined committee is to be known as the Legislative Committee of the Motion Picture Industry. It is made up as follows: Walter W. Irwin, P. A. Powers, Gabriel L. Hess, Ricord Gradwell, Arthur S. Friend, Frank Rembusch, H. B. Varner, John J. O'Donnell, Ernest H. Horstmann and Lee A. Ochs. The following committee on publicity was also appointed: Walter W. Irwin P. A. Powers, Frank Rembusch and Lee A. Ochs.

The plan of activities as laid out by this permanent legislative committee has not been announced. The important fact, however, is that the two committees were enabled to comprehend that success could only be achieved by means of a united industry and after some discussion it was determined that the two committees could concentrate their efforts along the same lines, and the plan of campaign as finally decided upon was eminently satisfactory. The convention of exhibitors at Washington not only succeeded in bringing about harmony and unity of action among the exhibitors but will undoubtedly bring about harmony between the exhibitors and distributors.

The duties of the publicity committee that was appointed will be largely that of collecting and collating information of a statistical nature for the benefit of the legislative committee. In order to bring this to the attention of the exhibitors of the country the committee has been given full pages of advertising in all of the trade papers calling upon exhibitors to supply the detailed and accurate information as to how the war taxes have affected the business of their individual theatres.

Select General Manager Takes Trip

General Manager Arthur S. Kane, of the Select Pictures organization, left town Monday of last week for a trip to Cleveland, Detroit and Buffalo, which points

TYPOGRAPHICAL ERROR

Jewell Advertisement, page 118

IN the two-page advertisement of Jewel Productions, Inc., page 118, the word "big" was omitted by us in error from the statement "without a deposit" appearing in the first paragraph. This should read "without a big deposit."

Manhattan Exhibitors Meet This Week

At a special meeting of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, Manhattan Local No. 1, held December 19, a motion was carried to the effect that a special meeting be held December 27 for the purpose of electing officers for the coming year.

It is expected all exhibitors of Greater New York will be in attendance.

Ochs Makes Statement About Convention

Lee A. Ochs last week made the following announcement, or statement, in regard to the recent Washington convention: "The resolution adopted at the Convention of Exhibitors held in Washington, in which reference is made to the 'action of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry in filing criminal charges against the Motion Picture Exhibitors in Brooklyn,' etc., is in error, as the National Association has taken no such action whatsoever. What the introducer evidently intended to infer was the action which was taken by the Distributors' Branch and which was not a concerted action taken by the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, representing four other branches of the trade."

Maryland Plans Drive on Censorship

In an effort to abolish censorship in Maryland at the coming legislature at Annapolis in January, Frank A. Hornig, president of the Maryland Branch, Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, started out last Monday to canvass the State. Mr. Hornig took with him several speakers who will endeavor to influence the exhibitors of Maryland as well as motion picture followers to secure the aid of their representatives of the State in fighting the Maryland Censorship Bill.

Eric Campbell Killed in Auto Accident

Eric Campbell, heavy comedian in the Chaplin pictures and widely known in the film colony on the west coast, was killed instantly in an automobile accident on Thursday, December 20. Mr. Campbell, who registered at 300 pounds on the scales, appeared in practically all the Mutual-Chaplin comedies.

Mr. Campbell was driving his car along Wiltshire Boulevard, Los Angeles, at a rapid gait. The accident occurred at Wiltshire and Vermont avenues, one of the most dangerous crossings in the city. Campbell was instantly killed. Gene Crosby, another occupant of the car, was taken to a hospital suffering from internal injuries. It is thought that she will recover.

At the time of his death Mr. Campbell had been engaged in work in a Mary Pickford picture, being loaned to the Artcraft company by the Chaplin management. His second wife, Pearl Gilman Campbell, and a daughter, Lauro Austen, an actress, by his first wife, survive him.

Industry Needs Operation at Once

Carl Laemmle Asserts it Is Time to Quit Bluffing and Either Kill or Cure—Makes Startling Statements Concerning Finances

DECLARING that the big distributors and producers, including the Universal Company, have all concealed their failures and losses while at the same time making a great noise about their successes, until the people have soured against the organizations they believe to be wallowing in wealth, Carl Laemmle, president of Universal, in an interview with a representative of MOTION PICTURE NEWS last week, brought to light some startling revelations that indicate the industry needs an operation of the kill or cure kind immediately.

Mr. Laemmle, ever a disciple of truth, in his statements stripped the facts of all garnishments best known to the press agent, and presented them unclothed, standing forth in all their sincerity and simple strength.

Conditions Unveiled

In his interview, Mr. Laemmle said: "Much of the misunderstanding that exists between various branches of the picture industry at the present time is due to the fact that some of us have been afraid to tell the truth about ourselves and our conditions. For the same reason there is a misunderstanding between the general public and the people in the picture business.

"Every business concern, including picture companies, has a deadly fear of being considered anything but the richest company in its line of business. All of us are guilty of letting the public (including the exhibitors, too) think that we have the fattest bank-roll imaginable and that nothing short of an earthquake can shake our foundations. On the theory that "nothing succeeds like success," we have deliberately let the public think that the moving picture business is a gold mine.

"We have all concealed our failures and our losses, but have made a great noise about our successes. Our press men are allowed to tell about the big pictures that net a profit of $100,000 or $1,000,000, but they are never allowed to print a word about the many pictures that net us as great a loss, or a greater one.

"But after the people have been fed up on this success stuff, after they have contracted mental indigestion eating up stories about the making of millions, they finally turn against those whom they believe to be wallowing in wealth. They sour. And finally they build up an envious hatred of the supposed plutocrats.

Stockholders Not Paid

"By foolishly letting the people think what they like to think, we have completely got out of touch with them and have lost their sympathetic interest.

"I will now confine my remarks to Universal and give you a few doses of plain, brutal truth, in the hope that it may help a very bad condition. The stockholders of the Universal company have not been paid a dividend, either on the preferred or common stock, for a year. The officers of the Universal company, in order to play fair with the stockholders, have purposely paid themselves much smaller salaries than the usual run of salaries paid to producing company executives. The element of waste is lower in the Universal, we believe, than in any company in the business. It took us years to cut out waste, but we finally succeeded. While the people are appalled at the $5,000 to $10,000, per week salaries that are paid to certain stars and while this practice has made the whole world believe that picture producers are making wicked fortunes, the Universal has never indulged in it. The highest salary we ever paid to any actor or actress was $1,500 per week—and that only for a short time. In spite of the elimination of waste and extravagance, our expenses have constantly advanced so close to our gross income that we have not paid a cent of dividends in a year.

Lost on Short Reels

"We have been asked why we discontinue our one, two and three-reel program pictures.

"The answer is interesting: An audit of our books shows that in a recent six-months period we lost $3.08 on every positive reel of short stuff shipped from our plant—not on every negative but on every positive. And in that period we shipped 24,810 such reels!

"This has been going on for eighteen months, but every time we even hinted that we might discontinue the short stuff, we received pleading letters from exhibitors, urging us to stand by the little exhibitor who needed the short stuff in his business. So we stuck to it and took our loss, thinking that we could turn the loss into a profit by getting the exhibitors to pay us a little more money for the short pictures.

"But instead of paying more they paid less and less and less, hammering the price down and down until we finally had to quit releasing short stuff altogether, with the exception of serials, weeklies and two comedies.

"We now have on our shelves 371,000 feet of perfectly good negatives, one, two and three reels in length. These are comedies and dramas. They cost us close to a million dollars, but we cannot release them because we would lose money on every positive reel made from them.

Increase Admissions

"I seriously and solemnly venture the prediction that all of us—the producers, the distributors and the exhibitors—will become ripe for the receiver unless all of us get more money from the only source it is possible to get it from—the public. The fate of the moving picture business has been in the hands of the producers in past years. But today it is in the hands of the exhibitors. If they get more money so they can pay more money for their goods, we can all pull through. If they don't arouse themselves to this imperative necessity, we can all get ready for the damndest crash that ever resounded in any industry in the land.

"I am not squealing. I am not misrepresenting. I am quoting some plain truths which should have been published long ago. I have always been an optimist in this business. And the picture of conditions which I have painted is not a pessimistic one. On the contrary, conditions are, if anything, a whole lot worse than I have said.

"Today the moving picture industry is closer to disaster and death than it has been in the past ten years. It needs and must have an operation that will either kill or cure completely. Raising all admission prices is the operation that will either kill something that is already very sick, or else put it on its feet. We've got practically nothing to lose and everything to gain."

FLY-BY-HOURS

Ode of the Suitcase Packers!

DID you ever try to keep acquainted with the manager of a motion picture exchange?

That's the opening sentence in one of the funniest and most truthful of the contributions which have come to this office from the typewriters of busy picture men in moons.

We're going to publish it next week under the title: "The Changeable Exchange Man."

Why do exchange managers keep their suitcases all ready, packed, under their desks?

Next week—you'll know!

Spanuth Makes Tour of the East

C. W. Spanuth, brother of H. A. Spanuth, president of Commonwealth Pictures Corporation, is making a tour of the East in the interests of "The Frozen Warning," featuring Charlotte, the skater. Mr. Spanuth plans to stop off at Cleveland, Toronto, Pittsburgh, and Philadelphia.

The Victoria theatre, Buffalo, New York, which underwent a readjustment of prices recently. On the right, C. Floyd Hopkins, manager of the Colonial theatre, Harrisburg, Pa., who tells his interesting experience

What Happened When I Raised My Prices

The first article of a series written by men in the field. This tells of exhibitors' experiences in Buffalo and Harrisburg.

[A few weeks ago we published "Downhearted," telling in the words of the men themselves the struggles encountered by the small town picture exhibitor. The widespread approval that met this feature assures us that our readers will welcome the announcement that this type of "feature from the field" will be a regular offering of Motion Picture News during 1918.

"What Happened When I Raised My Prices" is the first of a series that will cover the interesting and important topic embraced in the title. These features are not "dream stuff" nor "Times Square theory"—they are the real facts and experiences, words and views, of real exhibitors. This is but one of the big things planned for News readers in 1918. — Editor's Note.]

How It Was Done in Buffalo

SAID Edward L. Hyman, manager of the Victoria theatre, Buffalo, N. Y.: "The logical time, tact, the temper of the patrons—are all big factors in the inauguration of a price raise at a time when economic conditions are in a flurry.

"In other words raising prices in a motion picture theatre neighborhood section where the residents are far from being in the income-tax paying class, is not a trifling matter of 'getting away with it.'

"One slip-up and the entire fabric of your carefully laid-out plan will leave you with empty seats, an antagonistic patronage and a well conceived idea that you will have to restore your old schedule of prices."

Mr. Hyman will testify that price raising isn't by any matter of means "getting away with it."

Mr. Hyman practically engineered two price raises in as many months. He felt that his company was entitled to a higher admission, gauged the temper of his community, struck at the right minute—and found that his people realized the justice of the demand.

This is what happened: The general admission of 10 cents was raised to 15 cents. Loges which formerly were sold at 15c were raised to 20, and boxes were boosted to a quarter. So that his 10-cent patronage, those unable to pay more, would not be driven away, 500 seats in the upper portion of the house were kept at that price.

A campaign of tactful preliminary education for the public began a month before the price was put into effect or the announcement even made public. But not for a moment were the hold-out crowds allowed to forget certain things. Now remember they had no inkling of a raise to come.

They were told in the program, on slides and in every possible way that they were getting the biggest stars and the best plays, the most cheerful atmosphere, most alluring music and novelties that were unobtainable elsewhere. It was not done in a complaining way, either. But the very best stars and pictures were shown, in fact a program was given that they knew well would cost them almost double downtown.

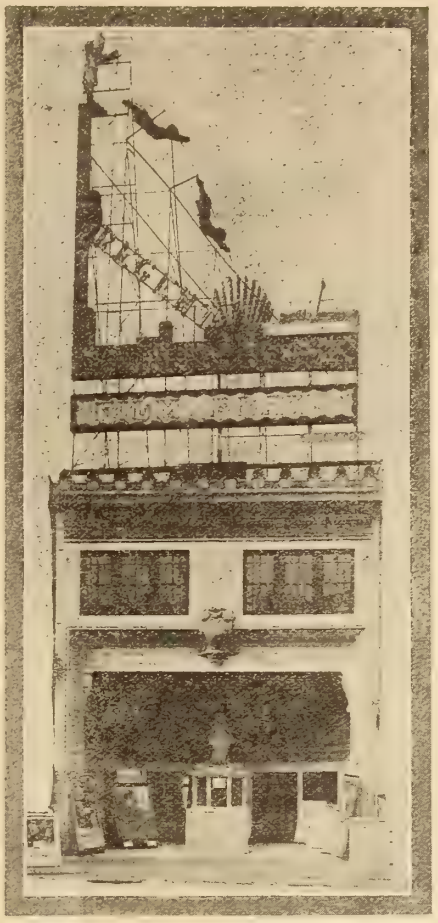
Then the tact stuff came in stronger than ever.

"Our preliminary campaign of education had the right psychological effect, I believe," Mr. Hyman says. "But during the campaign I wasted no time getting the best stuff on the markets for the first two weeks of raised prices. For the first three days I had Mary Pickford and for the next three days Douglas Fairbanks. And these stars were featured in their latest success. The next week had similar headliners.

"About ten days before putting the price raise in effect, we announced it briefly and to the point in our program and on the screen. We told them that the rising cost of everything connected with the administration of a theatre necessitated a slight rearrangement of prices. The ominous word 'Increase' or 'raise' was not used at all.

"Our announcements said that a certain number of ten-cent seats would be retained, that prices would be readjusted on a small number of seats in the lower portion of the house, only sufficient to meeting the increased cost of operation. In other words, we told them that we wanted only enough more to pay for increased costs. In this way the burden fell on those who bought the higher priced seats, the young fellows with girls who don't mind an extra nickel or dime as much as family men.



"The announcements caused no great riffle of talk. The community knew they had been getting the best, had been wondering how we were doing it and were not adverse to paying a few cents more.

"Of course they flocked in the first week to see Fairbanks and Pickford and before the two weeks were over they were used to the rearrangement. The shows were so unusually good, I thought, that it kept them from raising any kick. After the first two weeks we noticed that certain persons came earlier to get the dime seats while those who were willing to pay more took their time and got around later. In other words they liked the arrangement because they were more assured of a good seat.

"Right on top of that came the war tax. This did cause some kicking but we did our best and at times felt a small slump in our attendance at first, but for no length of time. But let me say patronage did not fall off.

"I did not advertise the raise of prices in the newspapers. I made as little fuss as possible, believing the more it was kept in front of the public the more opportunity they would have to make it a topic of conversation. But we did advertise in the newspapers heavier a few days before and for several weeks after. I had been running small ads daily in the daily papers' amusement columns, but I doubled up practically, but not mentioning the price raises. I believe this helped to tide us over for we get a motor-car trade from various sections of the city when we have the big stars. Yes, I think extra advertising, of a diplomatic sort, is necessary.

"The week we raised prices we broke all attendance records for the house,

The Regent theatre, Harrisburg, Pa., has long been an advocate for higher admissions, long been an example of the success to be had by higher admissions. Peter Magaro is the manager although it almost seems impossible in the face of the fact that a manager who tried to raise prices at the Victoria two years before had been forced to return to the old scale. But of course everything was being increased in price, so that may have helped us. In fact I know it did.

"If I went at the same job again, I would do it practically the same way, getting the patronage good-natured and using tact while the process was going on. For heavens sake don't try to 'bull' them.

"Did I learn any lessons from the adventure? Yes sir! I learned that patrons would not stand for putting anything over on them. They know when a thing is merited. If you haven't any right to boost prices and are a profiteer, you are going to get stung. We didn't because we had a right to raise. I also learned that the truth told tactfully often pulls a fellow out of a darn provoking situation.

"I also learned that folks like their neighborhood house because they don't have to dress up and take a long ride downtown. It is worth an extra nickel to them not to hurry their supper and anyway they save carfare. That also helps a neighborhood man to raise his prices. But take this warning—don't raise unless you really have the right. You can't bunk the public."

It Happened in Harrisburg

SAID R. Floyd Hopkins, manager of the Colonial theatre, Harrisburg, Pa.:

"Undoubtedly all the motion picture theatres of Harrisburg that advanced their admission prices from ten to fifteen cents about November 1, coincidentally with the war tax going into effect, have increased their net revenues thereby. This includes all the houses in the central business section, the houses in the outlying or residence sections having merely added the one cent war tax to their prevailing price of ten cents.

"I do not mean to say that the downtown houses have not noted a slight falling off in the number of patrons since they adopted the fifteen-cent rate, but the advanced price, even with fewer patrons, still gives them a considerable margin of increased profit over what they had when they charged the inadequate price of ten cents.

"I have tried what I call the 'Breakneck plan' of conducting both a motion picture theatre and a vaudeville house. The 'Breakneck plan' is to charge a very low rate of admission, which crowds, and very often overcrowds, the house. There are no great profits in such a plan, however. You may have every seat occupied and a string of patrons extending through the lobby and into the street, but to accommodate such crowds you are having constant difficulties with dissatisfied patrons and controversies with the police authorities for blocking the sidewalks. Moreover, the manager and all the theatre employees are working at 'Breakneck' tension from the moment the house opens for the day until the last show is over.

"The wear and tear on the theatre property is great and on the nerves of the management it is greater, and when you come to count up your net earnings you find that you have made very little.

"It is far more profitable and far more satisfactory, all around, to get away from the 'breakneck' game by charging a reasonably higher admission—high enough to yield a greater net profit even at the loss of some patrons. That, I have found, has been the experience of the Colonial since the boost from ten to fifteen cents a couple of months ago. I haven't had to spend a cent more for advertising, and none of my competitors could take any advantage of the raise, because all the theatres in the downtown section went to fifteen cents at the same time and those in the residence sections, I am informed, have not gained in patronage even though they did not make any advance in admission price.

"The only mistake that was made by the Harrisburg theatres that did make the advance is that they should have made the war tax of two cents an additional charge instead of having included the tax in the five-cent advance. This easily could have been done and ought to have been done, for you must remember that the Harrisburg downtown theatres were considering an advance long before they knew anything about the war tax—an advance that was justified by the higher film rentals that have to be paid now and by other greatly increased costs of operation. The

(Continued on page 66)

Can Two Live on Four Dollars a Month?

California Theatre Manager Finds Living Conditions Difficult Under that Profit Margin—Laemmle Answers with Some Advice

CAN a man and his wife live nowadays on four dollars a month? W. W. Sandy, manager of the Liberty theatre, Azusa, Cal., raises the question in the following highly illuminating report on his business. Copies of the report were mailed to Congressmen, to Motion Picture News and to Carl Laemmle:

Liberty theatre, 235 seats.

Azusa, Cal., population, 1,800.

W W. Sandy—owner, manager, operator, janitor, bill poster and general utility man.

Mrs. Sandy—cashier, doorkeeper and usher.

One Boy—Player piano at 15 cents a night.

Paid admissions, July 1 to November 30, 1917, were $502.84 less than for same period of 1916.

Cause—War, war taxes, Liberty loans, Red Cross and other donations, the draft, enlistments, high cost of living, general business depression due to the war, etc.

After paying the regular expenses of the business and war taxes on films, admissions and theatre—allowing nothing for self or wife, and nothing for depreciation or interest on investment—there is a balance of $4.34 profit for the three weeks of November 4 to 24.

How does the Government expect the small town theatres to pay three separate and distinct war taxes on a business that the war has ruined?

It's unfair, unjust, and confiscatory.

(Signed) W. W. Sandy,
Azusa, Cal.

Dec. 11, 1917.

Respectfully referred to:

Senator Simons, Chirman, Senate Finance Committee.

Senator Hiram W. Johnson, of California.

Representative Chas. H. Randall, of California.

Universal Manufacturing Company, 1600 Broadway, New York.

Motion Picture News, 729 Seventh Avenue, New York.

Carl Laemmle wrote Mr. Sandy the following in reply:

Dear Sir: Your remarkably interesting letter of December 11, addressed jointly to two United States Senators, the California representative, the Motion Picture News and the Universal Film Manufacturing Company points out a condition that is serious, not merely because it applies to your own theatre, but because in essence it applies to the whole industry to-day—to the majority of exhibitors, the majority of distributors, and the majority of producers.

It is a lesson that every one of us should study with great care.

In my opinion there is only one answer to the problem you present; and that answer does not consist of blaming the Government for present conditions. It may be true that the war taxes are unjust, unfair and confiscatory, as you charge, but I do not believe we will accomplish anything by fighting along that line. All public sympathy would be against the moving picture industry if it opposed the Government, even for the sake of relieving itself of such a terrific burden.

Therefore, in my opinion, the only real, practical answer for the problem that confronts every one in the moving picture business is this: We MUST get more money from the public or—quit.

Your own condition is one of thousands of proofs. In three weeks you show a gross profit of only $4.34. From this you must still deduct depreciation and interest charges, to say nothing of allowances for your work and that of your wife in running the theatre.

You can't possibly live on this. Yet I suppose that, like thousands of other exhibitors, you hesitate to increase your admission price, because you feel that the population of Azusa could not stand it. You can't make enough money to show a profit at your present admission price, yet you fear you will be even worse off if you ask your customers for more.

If this is the case—if it is true that you are headed for sure failure under your present plan—then you are not risking much if you TRY to get a higher admission fee. You are, in fact, not risking anything that you won't lose anyhow.

The worst of it is that the condition which stares you in the face, stares practically the whole industry in the face; for all branches are up against it in just about the same proportion that you are. We must all get more money. We must get enough to cover our costs, our depreciation and interest charges, our taxes and other expenses—to say nothing of profit. We can all live without profit during the war, but we can't all stand a steady loss.

It seems to me that we must take the public right into our confidence, and give them the inside story of our affairs just as you have done. We must show them that we are not trying to be profiteers, but that we need enough to keep the wheels going 'round. If the people fail to answer a frank appeal of this sort, then I see no chance of correcting the evils that now exist.

If all exhibitors will follow your example and start a steady education of the public, convincing their customers that a higher admission fee is absolutely essential to the life of a great business, we may win out. And the exhibitors are the only ones who can do it, because they come in close touch with the people.

It is easier to say these things than to do them; but that is no argument against TRYING, is it?

Sincerely yours,
UNIVERSAL FILM MFG. CO.
Carl Laemmle, President.

Censorship Oversight Causes Misunderstandings

Sometime ago the Saskatchewan Government passed a law that any reels shown in their province not bearing the censor stamp would be confiscated by that Government.

However, it appears that the Saskatchewan Government failed to notify the exchanges of this new law and this omission on their part has caused some difficulties in that territory.

Although the exchange holds permits from the censors, the reels must bear the censor stamp. In some cases, after the film has been used for a considerable length of time, the film inspectors when making repairs omit to see that the stamp is on the reel cutting same out with the broken footage.

Last week the Government seized some reels being shown in Saskatchewan and it took quite a little persuasion before the exchange was able to secure them again. However, they were successful in getting them without paying any charges.

men's Association to meet in Regina in order that they may take up the matter of censor stamped reels with the Saskatchewan Government, in a body. Other matters of importance will also be taken up at this meeting.

A meeting of the Winnipeg Exchangemen's Association has been arranged to amalgamate with the Alberta Exchange-

Ascough Appointed to Defense Council

William D. Ascough, manager of Poli's Palace theatre at Hartford, Conn., has been made director of the State Council of Defense, Division of Films, and in his capacity as president of the Theatrical Managers' Association of Connecticut will bring to the work very valuable aid. Associated with Mr. Ascough as assistant director is Charles B. Beach, and as treasurer, H. Trowbridge Allen.

The new division of the State Council will have exclusive distribution of Government films in the State, Connecticut's share of the cost being met by benefit entertainments at which the war films will be shown.

Berst on Coast; New Pathe Director Signed

J. A. Berst, vice-president and general manager of the Pathe, was expected in Los Angeles on Monday. While no statement has been issued as to the purpose of the visit, it is understood that the Pathe head plans to get under way the work on Pathe's coming star productions, with particular reference to the Bryant Washburn pictures, which will be staged on the Coast.

Previous to his arrival, the news comes that William Worthington, recently directing Mae Marsh, has been signed to a contract as producer of the coming Bryant

"Little Mary" Has a "P. A."

Al Cohn, in recent months Pacific Coast editor of Photoplay Magazine, of Chicago, has resigned that post to take up the duties of acting as press representative for Mary Pickford. No successor to the Photoplay assignment has been announced.

Biograph Studios Win Praise

The following letter received from Mark M. Dintenfass is considered a tribute to the service offered to all producers at the Biograph Studios: "It is a pleasure to offer these lines of appreciation for the treatment afforded by yourselves and the Biograph Studios and Laboratories to Director Nigh and my producing company during the production of 'My Four Years in Germany,' from the book by the Hon. James E. Gerard, former Ambassador to Germany. In no other studio could I have succeeded to such a great advantage as at yours.

"The treatment and help tendered me by you was of great value and greatly appreciated, and only in your studios could I have given this production the magnificent staging that it calls for. 'My Four Years in Germany' is a great production, in which I have had more earnest interest than in any other production I have ever made or was interested in during the past twelve years.

"I want to sincerely thank you for the courtesy extended, and appreciate the great assistance that the Biograph Studios and Laboratories offered me."

Paramount Plans a New Advance

Abrams and Schulberg Relinquish Active Charge in Order to Bring Closer Co-operation Between Exhibitors and the Producing Organizations

THE surrender of the executive supervision of the Paramount Pictures Corporation by Hiram Abrams and B. P. Schulberg, respectively president and general manager of the distributing company, was announced last week.

The transference of this authority to others was accomplished in order that the former Paramount executives may devote their efforts and time to the formulation and fulfilment of a plan which it has long been the desire of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation to put into existence and active practice. This plan consists of a closer relationship between exhibitors, producers and distributors, and a larger bond of common interest between these factors.

Result of Tour

The reason for the extended national tour undertaken some time ago by Messrs. Abrams and Schulberg, and but recently terminated, is now clearly apparent. The intercourse with exhibitors in all parts of the country for which this trip created the opportunity, and the knowledge of exhibiting conditions which the tour disclosed, were obviously intended as the foundations for the future efforts of Mr. Abrams and Mr. Schulberg in this direction.

It may also be recalled that on several separate occasions within the past few months, Famous Players-Lasky executives have emphasized the need and the desirability for a closer communion between producers and exhibitors. It is clearly indicated that through the instrumentality of these two, the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation purposes to plant and nurture a deeper and more genuine association with the exhibitor-body of America than has ever before existed between the theatre owners and managers, and the producers and distributors.

In commenting upon his new identity as the connecting link between the exhibitors and his organization, Mr. Abrams said: "The time has come when all the talk relating to the common interests of exhibitor and producer must assume a greater substance than mere words and must become an actuality instead of a desire. The national crisis in the industry has hastened the inevitable day when exhibitors and producers must look upon their business as a single one, and create such a mutual bond between themselves as will make that realization a permanent factor in their relationship.

WISCONSIN EXHIBITORS

Welcome Central States

"WESTERN Wisconsin exhibitors welcomed the Central States Edition of the Motion Picture News upon its initial appearance with great enthusiasm. They feel now, it was indicated in their statements, that their affairs, no matter of how little import they may be to the country in general, are now being recognized; that their troubles and their problems are being made the problems of the News—in short, they feel that the Central States Edition has placed the exhibitor in every corner of the U. S. A. in touch with them, and that they are now in touch with their back-door neighbor twenty-five, fifty, a hundred miles away, which wasn't as easy as it might seem."—N. D. Tevis, Photoplay Editor, La Crosse Tribune-Leader Press.

Brockwell Goes Back to Paramount

Important changes occurred in Chicago film circles last week that ought to be of interest to the trade generally. F. M. Brockell, manager of the Chicago Goldwyn branch, announces that he is going back to Paramount to take charge of the local offices under the direction of District Manager Max Goldstine.

Succeeding Mr. Brockell as the Goldwyn head in the Windy City a comparatively new man in the picture business steps up to the helm in the person of S. J. Goldman. Two years ago he arrived in Chicago from San Francisco and applied to Aaron Jones, head of Jones, Linick & Schaefer, for a job. Mr. Jones looked the young fellow over and put him to work at $15 a week for the Central Film Company. He showed ability as a salesman and in a short time was promoted to that position. Then, by leaps and bounds, he piled up business so rapidly that his salary jumped out of all proportion.

Metro Star Revives Stage Success

Mabel Taliaferro, whose latest screen subject is the patriotic production, "Draft 258," presented my Metro Pictures Corporation, is "doing her bit" by preparing a holiday presentation of her characterization of Pippa in Browning's poem-drama, "Pippa Passes." She is at present selecting her cast for this special performance, which will be given at the Cort theatre, January 11, for the benefit of Italian war relief.

Philadelphia Exhibitors Organize

At a meeting held December 21 at the Astor Hotel, in New York, and which was attended by thirty-six representative exhibitors of Philadelphia, eastern Pennsylvania and southern New Jersey, including also some from Maryland, a new exhibitors' association was formed.

The new organization, which announced as its reason for forming a desire for social and mutual protection, is to be known as the United Exhibitors' Association, Inc., and already extends throughout Philadelphia, eastern Pennsylvania, Maryland and southern New Jersey.

It is understood the association has well over one hundred houses on its membership list to begin with, representing 156 days. These include, it is said, the Nixon-Nirdlinger and Freihafer chains of theatres.

The officers are: Robert W. Kinkade, president; Edward J. O'Keefe, vice-president; Joseph McCready, secretary; Jay Emanuel, recording secretary, and William J. Freihafer, treasurer. The Board of Directors will include fifteen members.

The new United Exhibitors' Association, it is said, will operate in conjunction with the United Exhibitors of America, also of Philadelphia.

As representative in New York, where headquarters will be maintained, the association has appointed William Alexander, who opened exchanges for William Fox in England and South America, and who is well known throughout the trade.

Samuel Cummins Sues King Bee

Samuel Cummins last week, through his attorney, A. A. Mayper, brought suit against the King Bee Comedy Corporation and its heads for an injunction restraining the company from disposing of any of its stock pending the outcome of a suit which he filed, at the same time asking that 10 per cent of the stock of the company be turned over to him as his rightful due. Cummins estimates the stock of the organization worth $300,000, and he asks for $10,000.

In the complaint it is set forth that Cummins was instrumental in organizing the King Bee company abou eight months ago, and that he permitted Billy West, the company's star comedian, to terminate his contract with the Caws Comedy Corporation in order to sign a new contract with King Bee. For this Cummins claims he was to receive 10 per cent of the stock of the new company. While he was out of the city, Cummins asserts, the stock was divided and he was left out, with the explanation that another man was holding the stock for him. He insists that when he asked this party for the stock, a plain case of "passing the buck" developed, and that he has not yet received his stock nor any ac-

Omaha Man Dislikes Reel Tax

Exchange Manager Loses Sleep Thinking of What He Terms Injustice of Charge on Small-Town Exhibitor

IN Omaha, Neb., there is a manager for one of the exchanges demanding—and getting—the 15-cents-a-day-per-reel tax, who insists he cannot sleep nights for thinking what an injustice is being worked upon the small-town exhibitor.

"Fifteen cents a day is not much, but when a small-town exhibitor shows five reels it means 75 cents, and that is a whole lot for him. It is a whole lot more than $1.25 would be for the manager of the big city house, were he charged 25 cents instead of 15 cents a reel. I cannot see how this unjust plan can be let stand the way it is now. The tax is exorbitant in the extreme upon the small-town man—and in our territory a whole lot more than 80 per cent. of the exhibitors are small-town men.

"I would suggest that the little houses of the smaller towns, and houses of possibly less than 400 seats, be given a tax in proportion to their profits, or at least in proportion to their share of the tax demanded by the Government upon each reel. I believe the fair rate would be 5 cents for such houses and 25 cents for the large city houses, with huge seating capacity and much higher admission prices. I hear many exhibitors complaining, while none that I know of has closed for this reason particularly, still it is cutting such a slice from their net profits that the business is looking less attractive to them each day. The big-town men don't care, for what is a paltry dollar to them? From a false sense of modesty some of the small-town men who do care, and who are suffering because of the tax, will not complain because they fear they would be looked upon as 'cheap.' They cannot quit our pictures, because their patrons demand them. Their patrons will quit if they begin showing pictures from exchanges that do not charge this tax. They also have reason to believe the other exchanges will get, in one way or another, a sum equivalent to the tax, anyway.

"I am saying nothing about whether 15 cents a rell pays the distributor more than what the Government asks of him. I am not saying he reaps a war profit. The individual exhibitor can figure that as well as I can. But what I do object to, and what I know is making the film business hard for the small-town exhibitors, is the unjust proportion of the war tax they are called upon to pay."

The exchange manager says his stand on the subject is so decided because most of his patrons are small-town exhibitors.

The big theatre men in the Middle West will not readily agree to this plan, if the attitude of Wilfrid Ledoux, head of the Empress, Omaha, is to be taken as an indication. "This tax is a Government measure, and is not for our choice," said he. "Uncle Sam charges just as much for a stamp in a small town as he charges in the city. He requires the motion picture patron in the small town to pay his 10 per cent., the same as he requires the patron of the city theatre. The plan of reducing the reel tax to small-town theatres and adding it to the city exhibitors would be an unfair hardship and without excuse of justice.

"When the exhibitor in a big city theatre loses, he loses heavily. His business is no more certain than is the business of the small-town theatre, and he has to watch his pennies just as closely. I would oppose such a suggestion, and I believe all fair-minded exhibitors would do the same."

Prizma Shows New Color Process

The results produced by a modification of the Prizma system of color cinematography were shown at the Forty-fourth Street theatre, New York city, on Sunday evening, December 23, and will run there for several weeks. The new method represents a great amount of experimental work by the technical staff of Prizma, Inc., but it is said that the modified process is of extreme simplicity, enabling the color pictures to be used by any theatre.

The feature of the showing is the subject, "Our Navy" which exhibits in the attractive manner which is the province of color photography, the life of the U. S. "jackie," and the tremendous activities which have resulted in bringing the navy up to fighting trim within the last year.

These scenes were filmed under the direction of Dr. G. A. Dorsey and show noteworthy attention to color harmonies as well as to editing and arrangement.

William Parsons Arrives in New York

William Parsons, president of the National Film Corporation of America, of Los Angeles, arrived in New York this week from the west coast in behalf of National's coming production, "Tarzan of the Apes," a feature in eight reels.

Before leaving Los Angeles, Mr. Parsons selected Isadore Bernstein as assistant, to assume active charge of activities at the Hollywood Studios, where it is understood the finishing touches are being put on "Tarzan of the Apes."

It is predicted on all sides that the feature will be exceptionally popular, not alone through the perfection promised in its screen form, but through the additional asset the story claims in having been read by millions either in book form or in the newspapers.

The cast is exceptional, including Elmo Lincoln, as Tarzan; Enid Markey, True Boardman, Colin Kenny, Thomas Jefferson, George French, Bessie Toner, Kathleen Kirkham and Gordon Griffith. Scott Sidney supervised the production, photographed by Harry M. Fowler. The picture is said to be the most unique and fascinating story of the sensational type ever filmed, due mainly to the remarkable cast and the excellence of the story and direction. The cost of production is placed at a half million dollars.

New Corporations

A LIST of new motion picture corporations in the States of Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey and New York for the week ending December 22 as furnished from the records of the Corporation Trust Company, 15 Exchange Place, Jersey City, N. J., is as follows:

DELAWARE

SHASTA PICTURES CORPORATION.—To make and dispose of motion pictures, dealing in dramas, etc., incorporated for $500,000, at Dover. Melvin W. Chatterton, Blanche E. La Badie and John S. Stevens, all of Chicago, are the incorporators.

MARYLAND

THE ABERDEEN AMUSEMENT COMPANY.—Incorporated for the purpose of exhibiting moving pictures, vaudeville, etc., for $50,000, at Aberdeen. Lee I. Hecht, Havre de Grace, Md.; Oliver H. Reeside, Jr., 1818 Ruxton avenue, Baltimore, Md., and Marie C. Gauer, Aberdeen, Md., are the incorporators.

NEW JERSEY

FOREST HILL THEATRE, INC.—Incorporated to operate theatres, amusement enterprises, etc., for $125,000, at Newark. Arthur W. Moore, Agnes Thomason, Charles M. Thomason and Edith M. White, all of 675 Mount Prospect avenue, Newark, N. J., are the incorporators.

NEW YORK

FIAT FILM CORPORATION.—Motion picture business, incorporated for $100,000, at Manhattan. John Schneider, Jr., 2649 Decatur avenue, Bronx; G. S. Gullette, 518 Wall street, and Samuel Kushner, 148 East 125th street, New York City, are the incorporators.

PROSPECT MOTION PICTURE CORPORATION.—Motion picture business, vaudeville, etc., incorporated for $10,000 at Brooklyn. Reuben Peckham, 265 West 23d street; William Farrell, and Emily Farrell, of 169 Amsterdam avenue, New York City, are the incorporators.

Chicago Club Enjoys Ladies' Night

The Chicago Motion Picture Club held its first "ladies night" meeting Tuesday evening, December 18, in the "Savage Club" rooms of the Kuntz-Remmler Cafe. And, as usual, where members of the fair sex are present, there were no slow nor lagging moments during the proceedings.

George Periolat, well known character actor of the screen, who has been with the American Film Company during the last five years, was present from the West coast and was the guest of honor.

Among those present were Richard Nehls, vice-president of the American Film Company; Edward W. Stoddard of Mutual; "Printer" Ross, Mr. Belford of the Lea-Bell Company, Miss Flossie Jones, successful woman exhibitor from Waukesha, Wis.; W. J. Brandon of the Interocean Film Company and others.

Dame Rumor at Work with Selig Name on Tongue

The calling of Colin Campbell, chief Selig producer, to Chicago for an important conference has started Dame Rumor at work on Pacific Coast.

One report has it that shortly after the new year, there will be five Selig companies at work on the Pacific Coast under the general supervision of Producer Campbell. This would bring the Selig organization, the first to journey to California in search of picture locale, back to something approaching its former importance in the Coast colony.

Director Campbell produced "The Garden of Allah," "The Ne'er Do Well," and "The Spoilers," in addition to numerous other Selig successes.

Rivoli Opening Sets New Mark

Rothapfel Promises to Amaze the Motion Picture Industry with New House Which Cost More Than Half a Million to Build

THURSDAY, December 27, marks a new era in motion picture exhibition—the opening of the Rivoli theatre, the creation of Samuel L. Rothapfel, director of the Rivoli and the foremost exponent of the silent drama in the world.

When Mr. Rothapfel first came to New York he lent a new meaning to the word "innovation" as applied to the motion picture. He brought out novelties at the various houses he conducted that astounded the world, and in many cases left the impression that he had gone off on a tangent. But he proved his theories.

Startling Things Promised

And then came the Rialto, where many of his ideas were incorporated in the physical arrangement of his house—a theatre where he has shown new and startling things in the employment of music and the use of lighting effects. Not only have all these features been developed in the Rivoli, but other advanced ideas have been employed, many of which will not be revealed in advance of the opening of the house.

The Rivoli stands on Broadway, near Forty-ninth street, and runs through to Seventh avenue. It will seat 2,500, and cost more than $500,000 to build. The appearance of the front of the house at once suggests an art museum or public library. Its Grecian purity of line and the marble-like exterior lend dignity and charm. At night the facade will be flooded with light by the indirect system. There will be no sign of any sort on the front of the house, except those below the marquise announcing the current attraction.

One of the most striking features of the facade is supplied by the row of eight towering Doric columns which extend from a point about the level of the marquee entirely up to the entablature with nothing to relieve the severity of outline except the leaded glass windows set into the wall behind them. Crowning the entire facade is a broad triangular pediment adorned with sculptured figures in bas relief suggestive of the world-famous Parthenon. These figures are symbolic of music and the arts in general.

One of the important features of the interior is the number of exits, a series of superimposed passage ways on either side of the orchestra, running through from Broadway to Seventh avenue. Patrons can turn from any part of the house and make their way to either street without interference from the incoming crowds. The whole structure is built with similar ideas of spaciousness. The lobby will hold 300 comfortably and the foyer is wide enough to give easy access to the orchestra seats. There is an extensive promenade on the mezzanine floor, flanked by lounging, retiring and smoking rooms.

Italian Rennaissance

The general scheme of decoration for the interior is Italian renaissance. The dominant colors are dull gold, ivory and black, with the carpets in gray and the seats upholstered in tapestry. The color lighting system has been developed far beyond that of the Rialto where the lighting plant was, in a measure experimental. In building the Rivoli Mr. Rothapfel had the advantage of the proven popularity of the "color symphonies" and the result has been the equipment of the new house from floor to dome with all the wiring, masked lamps and other ingeniously concealed sources of light so that the whole auditorium can be flooded with any color or combination of color desired. For instance, if the orchestra should be playing "The Moonlight Sonata" the entire audience may be bathed in moonlight, without anyone knowing the source of it.

But added to seeing and hearing, Mr. Rothapfel appeals to another sense in the new house—that of smell. Thousands of dollars have been spent on a newly devised compressor plant which operates in connection with an intricate system of atomizers by means of which any delicate odor can be wafted to any part of the house, such as incense for oriental scenes, clover and new mown hay when the setting reveals a country landscape at dusk, or any of the myriads of other combinations that may be suggested by the pictures being shown. Tentative experiments with perfume at the Rialto led to the installation of this fine new plant which promises a permanent innovation in pictures.

Another Huge Orchestra

Naturally music will be one of the big features of the Rivoli. There will be another fifty-piece orchestra, under the direction of Dr. Hugo Reisenfeld, of the Rialto, which will be one of the chief features of the new house. On certain occasions the two orchestras will be united, giving the services of 100 musicians. The grand pipe organ, built by the Austin company, is the largest and finest in any theatre in the world. The musical staff from the Rialto will be doubled and will care for the music at the two theatres.

In this connection it is well to note the fact that the entire staff of the two houses will be interchangeable, the heads of the various departments for the Rivoli being taken from the Rialto, and these will be alternated every few weeks to give familiarity with both houses.

"Conservatory of Jewels"

In the way of stage settings and scenic effects Mr. Rothapfel has greater scope than ever before. For the opening of the theatre the stage setting will be known as "The Conservatory of Jewels," a master creation consisting of dome within dome, each studded with a huge crystal gem after the manner of the Tower of Jewels at the Panama-Pacific exposition. The entertainment will be an elaborate variation of the combined program of music and motion pictures which Mr. Rothapfel has made so popular. For the opening week the introductory will be a modified pageant which has been styled "The Victory of Democracy." It will enlist the services of Forrest Robertson, the actor, and Mary Lawton, dramatic reader, together with a chorus of thirty voices and a boy soprano. The verses and musical score have been specially written for this offering, which traces the progress of

(Continued on page 66)

RIVOLI REPLIES

You Have the Advice of Its Creator Without Any Cost to You

ON this page you read the announcement of the opening of the Rivoli theatre, the creation of Samuel L. Rothapfel who made the Rialto the wonder of the world. The Rivoli is promised to create the biggest sensation in the history of the silent drama.

Rothapfel's record has been the story of one success after another, of amazing things accomplishing, of far-reaching, daring steps toward better things. He has led the march to progress. He stands out today as the unquestioned leader in the exposition of the picture.

On another page of this issue you will find the second of the series of replies of Mr. Rothapfel to the questions of exhibitors. Out of his interest in the industry and his fellow showmen, he has agreed to devote so much of his time as necessary to helping others solve their problems.

This is the sort of advice that you could not buy. It is available in only one way and that is through the MOTION PICTURE NEWS. There is no condition to this except that the questions must not deal with the merits of particular pictures or services and that the questions must come through the NEWS. Questions through other channels will be ignored.

Send in your inquiry now. Get the new ideas, the greatest of export advice for the new year. Address your inquiry

ROTHAPFEL ADVICE,
EXHIBITORS' SERVICE BUREAU,
MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

When I Raised My Prices

(Continued from page 61)

public should have been educated to the fact that fifteen cents is not too much to pay for the class of shows that are being given in the average theatre now, and the war tax, when it came along, should have been more an additional charge against the public who, I believe, the Government intended should pay it."

James George, proprietor of the Victoria theatre, Harrisburg, observed:

"Though it is my conviction that ten-cent admission prices for the general run of shows, with special prices of say twenty-five cents for films of extraordinary merit, constitute the best plan for Harrisburg, I will concede that since all the downtown houses agreed to an advance to fifteen cents the revenues of the Victoria have increased in net rather than fallen off. Notwithstanding this I still incline to the view that, in the long run, ten-cent fees, with the higher prices on special occasions, will be shown to be the most profitable scheme for Harrisburg."

Peter Magaro, of the Regent theatre, Harrisburg, and the Orpheum theatre, Carlisle, said:

"As the pioneer in the movement for higher prices for motion picture shows in Harrisburg, I feel that my own experiences and those of the other Harrisburg managers who went to fifteen cents about the time the war tax was imposed, fully justified my contentions for the increased admissions. What slight falling off in patronage has taken place in the last two months may or may not be attributable to the higher price. It is quite likely that at least in part it is due to general war conditions—departure of the soldiers for the camps and the exercise of general war-time economies—but whatever the cause the reduction of the number of theatre attendants is more than offset, from the viewpoint of box-office receipts, by the additional revenue yielded by the fifteen-cent charge as compared with the old ten-cent rate—this, too, without any additional financial outlay for advertising in newspapers or by other mediums.

"Owing to the fact that all the downtown theatres have gone to fifteen cents no one theatre gains any financial advantage over another through the move. I would have been glad to have entered into an agreement with the others to go to twenty or twenty-five cents and I believe we could have gotten away with it. Certainly such prices are justified when one considers the high-class shows that are being offered in Harrisburg and the fact that operating expenses of the theatres have advanced so greatly in the last year or two."

New England Exhibitors Meet

Fifty Members from Massachusetts and Rhode Island Convene in Boston—Supports Approaching Exposition

THE annual meeting of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, Massachusetts and Rhode Island Branch, was held at the Quincy House in Boston on December 19, in the afternoon, and was attended by about fifty members. President Ernest H. Horstmann presided and received the reports of the various officers.

The four delegates to the recent convention in Washington—Messrs. Horstmann, Black, Lydon and Conn—made detailed and comprehensive reports of the happenings and of the work accomplished in Washington and New York along get-together lines. The reports were enthusiastically received and a vote of thanks was tendered to the committee.

S. Grant, assistant manager of the National Motion Picture Exposition, which is to be held at the Grand Central Palace, New York, February 2 to 10, made a report of the successful outlook for this exposition, and it was voted unanimously to indorse and support the exposition in every way, and to send a delegation of at least 100 Boston Boosters to the New York exposition.

This committee was appointed for hotel arrangements and special features, Gregory, J. Laurie, Kincaide, Wasserman and Howard.

It is planned now to have the party leave Boston on the Knickerbocker Limited at 1 P. M. of Tuesday, February 5, and spend Tuesday night, Wednesday and Thursday at the exposition. Judging by the enthusiasm and interest displayed and by those present the party of New England invaders will number at least 200, including the Boosters, their wives and friends.

It was also voted to appeal to the film manufacturers and distributors, and the supply and accessory men, to give this, the first joint National Exposition, their fullest support and co-operation. Owing to the fact that it was reported that a number of the members had failed to secure their notices of the meeting in time to attend, it was decided to postpone the election of officers until Tuesday afternoon, January 22, at 2 P. M. at the Quincy House.

Ben Grimm Aviates in Ithaca

News reached New York last week that Ben Grimm, well known in trade circles for his reviewing and other proclivities, has arrived in Ithaca, N. Y., where he is undergoing a thorough course in training for the aviation corps of the United States Army.

You are not going to war. The men who are need all the comforts you can give them. Help them get cigarettes. That is your patriotic duty. If you aren't helping in the "smokes" campaign, get busy—now. Don't be a slacker!

Opening of the Rivoli

(Continued from page 65)

democracy from the time of the Pilgrim Fathers to today.

Aside from the fact that the opening bill will be Douglas Fairbanks in "A Modern Musketeer," and that there will be the latest in film novelties of every sort, orchestral numbers and a miniature ballet, the other details of the opening bill are carefully guarded.

An emergency hospital and the arrangements for the comfort of the immense staff are other features of the house which will not come to the attention of the ordinary patron. The musicians have a large lounging room to themselves, with shower baths adjoining and dressing rooms and showers are provided for the soloists, while the ushers and stage crews are cared for in similar manner, so that no member of the staff will have any excuse for being in a part of the house where he does not belong. Service is to be carried even further at the Rivoli than at the Rialto.

A few statistics besides those already given: The theatre is 100 feet wide with an average depth of 138 feet. The work on the building was completed in six months from the start.

Loge seats in the new house will be sold for one dollar, thus emphasizing the character of the presentations planned. Gallery admissions will be as low as thirty cents. Open bookings will be the policy of the Rivoli, as has prevailed at the Rialto.

Scott Stays Four Years with Mutual

Ward E. Scott, Mutual manager in Denver, rounded out four years service with that corporation on December 1. In 1913 Mr. Scott began his exchange career under Walter S. Rand, then local manager, and has served in every department. Two years ago he succeeded Harry Lustig as manager, when the latter resigned to take charge of a large territory for Metro.

There is nothing unusual in this story, except that Mr. Scott holds the local record for the longest continuous exchange service. He has lived in Denver for 25 years and knows personally every customer in this territory.

Milwaukee Strand Raises Prices

In keeping with the present tendency of increasing price in Milwaukee theatres, the Strand Theatre which has recently been placed under the management of Chas. C. Perry, formerly at the New Garrack Theatre, St. Paul, and who has been identified for the last twelve years with the motion picture world of Minneapolis and St. Paul, will go to 15 cents on December 23. It will be closed the 16th to be completely redecorated at a cost of $10,000. A new policy is going to be inaugurated under Mr. Perry's direction and the best of everything will be presented. Twelve hundred dollar's worth of electrical fixtures are to be installed to give the pictures proper setting. New stage settings are now being made by the Twin City Scenic Studio.

What Kind of a Fellow Is — Smith?

Being a Glance at the Real Human Side of the Big Men of the Picture Game—Caught in Action!

By William A. Johnston

"HIRAM ABRAMS, shake hands with Albert E. Smith. Mr. Smith, Mr. Abrams!

"What! You've never met before? Well, that simply goes to prove our point.

"Gentlemen, we've brought you face to face to let each of you see a film man who avoids publicity, who is really retiring in disposition.

"We thought we had made a live discovery in Mr. Abrams; Mr. Smith we now take pleasure in adding your name to the Fameless Hall of Film."

Business of smiles and admiration all around.

Mr. Abrams, ironically: "I suppose you'll stage Mr. Smith now as the hermit of Flatbush just as you pulled that Portland stuff on me. Of course," added Mr. Abrams, hastily, "I'm not comparing Portland with Flatbush."

(Mr. Smith's secretary, sotto voce: "One place is as dead as the other").

"Mr. Smith," we went on hastily. "You'll excuse us if we indulge in a little admiration of you. We can't help it."

We find some singular and admirable facts about you.

"You avoid publicity, as we say.

"You don't resent criticism of your own pictures and you give full credit to the other fellow's successes.

"You're a good listener.

"You've never played up to the exhibitor.

"You don't pose.

"You don't gossip. You attend strictly to your work and have never been seen in a Times Square restaurant.

"Frankly, Mr. Smith, we don't understand what brought you into the motion picture business. We recognize you as a pioneer; that, indeed, it is twenty-one years since you started out—and we believe went broke—with a picture show.

"Think hard, Mr. Smith, and tell us what your trend really is?"

"Well," confessed Mr. Smith, "when I was a boy I built an automobile."

"That's it. You're really an automobile man."

"Wait a minute," interposed Mr. Abrams. "Don't make Mr. Smith out to be an automobile man. Say something about Vitagraph and pictures. My interview was nothing but Portland and baseball. Not that I care, but I'm trying to protect Mr. Smith."

"As a matter of fact," objected Mr. Smith, "I'd rather be a farmer."

"Because farming is more lucrative than filming?"

"No," said Mr. Smith, "I was born on a farm. I like the life."

"Still you must like filming to spend so much time in Flatbush?"

"I do," said Mr. Smith, seriously, "but I thought we couldn't talk about films in these interviews."

"No, that's not true. Now what shall we say of the film business, its future——"

"Just a moment," warned Mr. Abrams. "If you keep on with this foolishness you won't have room for those nice things that 'others say.' They were crowded out of my interview. And I gave you a box of cigars," he concluded thoughtfully.

"By the way," said Mr. Smith, hastily, "here's another box."

WHAT OTHERS SAY

"Even his lawyer speaks well of him."

"His word is as good as his bond—something said of many men, but here an outstanding characteristic."

"Never took advantage of friend or foe."

"Pugnacious: but never goes out of his way for a fight. Wants his rights but does not step on the other fellow's toes."

"Listens to the other fellow's argument and gives way if the other fellow is right."

"A self-made man."

"Has a mechanical trend. Orderly in business."

"Eminently fair. Hates a liar."

"His take-up invention was vital to pictures. Yet few think of him as an inventor."

"A good man to work for—if you know your business."

"Loves to talk of 'the good old days'—but just as ready to talk up-to-the-minute film progress."

Exhibitor Meeting Pleases All

Referred to as Delightful Surprise to Everyone, with Perfect Harmony Prevailing — Good Results Were Obtained

THE meeting at Washington on December 11 and 12 of the two national motion picture exhibitors' organizations, the M. P. E. L. of A. and the A. E. A., will no doubt go down into history as the most splendid gathering in the industry, because the results obtained will without doubt, be for the betterment and permanent good of all who are connected with the motion picture business.

In the words of Frank Rembusch: "The meeting was a delightful surprise to everyone, and when it is considered that men came from Maine and all the New England states down to Florida, from Seattle to Texas, practically every state and every principal city in the United States being represented in numbers of about 150 exhibitors, each and all from various parts of the country and unanimously came to the conclusion and passed a set of resolutions without one dissenting voice, after two days of deliberation, everyone must acknowledge that a step forward has been taken in the motion picture business.

"A continuous and formal discussion was held for five hours without a single motion or resolution being presented. The big exhibitor, the small exhibitor, everybody from every section discussed everything from the scarcity of pennies to million dollar stars, and everyone listened patiently, respectfully, to everyone. There were good ideas and bad ideas, numerous ideas and no ideas, presented. All were weighed and listened to. It was evident, however, that there was strong and unanimous opinions along the same line on important questions which could be concentrated into single plans for action. The next step was to have every exhibitor bring his ideas into a concrete form by presenting it to a resolution committee which worked for the balance of the evening and long into the night.

"The two committees that were appointed have a great responsibility to shoulder, especially the allied committee on legislative matters. This committee is charged with the duty of gathering full statistics from every exhibitor in the United States on how the admission and film tax has affected his theatre, which data will be gathered for the purpose of presentation to Congress in order to insure just and equitable division of the present conditions. It is planned to keep a man in Washington, and H. B. Varner, of North Carolina, has been selected for this purpose. A legislative fund will be necessary and this committee is charged further with the duty of raising funds for the expenses necessary to carry on the work. Great credit may be given to those who attended the meeting, not only because of their coming but also for the splendid manner in which the meeting was conducted and the constructive plans that were outlined. All that remains now is for every exhibitor in the United States to give his whole-hearted support to the legislative committee so that the proper relief may be forthcoming through united action.

"The committee on amalgamation has the duty of finding some means of combining the two great organizations into one whole. It is understood that the two organizations are to work together harmoniously on all questions affecting the industry as a whole. It has been suggested to the committee that a new organization be formed with more progressive constitution and by-laws. Now is the time for some big exxhibitor to single out a new man satisfactory to both organizations who can lead both organizations in one body to a reunited and undivided unit working for the best interest of everyone in the industry."

Clergymen Would Censor New Jersey

A small number of clergymen, representing the Catholic, Episcopal, Baptist and Presbyterian churches of New Jersey, met in the Senate Chamber of the State House at Trenton on Wednesday afternoon, December 19, to discuss the question of preparing a bill for introduction at the Legislature providing for State censorship. Some opposition to the proposition developed. H. F. Sherwood, assistant secretary of the National Board of Review, attended the conference and pointed out that State censorship did not accomplish anything of value and was destructive, not constructive. He showed that the average of the quality of motion pictures is constantly rising, and wherever there may be a demand for finer pictures constructive methods are better than destructive for securing them. He indicated that the industry was constantly striving to improve its product and that the United States Government was recognizing the tremendous value of the motion picture as a means of distributing information.

Netter Likes Hart Reissues

Leon D. Netter, head of the Masterpiece Film Attractions of Cleveland, Ohio, is said to be enthusiastic about the three William S. Hart pictures which he has added to the constantly growing list of features he is distributing in Ohio.

The purchase of "The Bargain," "The Hellhound of Alaska" and "The Bandit and the Preacher" from the W. H. Productions Co., is in line with Mr. Netter's policy to exploit only such attractions as exhibitors in Ohio have grown to reconcile with the name "Masterpiece."

Albion Exhibitor Sees Way to Make Money

"It was easy. I am going to do it again," said Exhibitor Gay L. Williamson, of the Rex, Albion, Neb., who charged 25 cents admission the night he showed "The Tanks."

"I made a bunch of money. My only regret is I haven't tried higher prices before. The exhibitor who wants to make something at his business, and get away from the puny profits we generally content ourselves with, has only to increase his admission prices."

Laemmle Appoints Woman Broadway Manager

Carl Laemmle, who has a number of innovations to his credit, launched a brand new one on Sunday afternoon, December 23, when he installed into his Broadway theatre, New York, the only woman photoplay manager on Broadway. She is Katherine Russell Bleecker, who some years ago deserted society to enter the picture field. She achieved success in writing and producing "society and children" movies, and in Cleveland she staged "The Perils of Society," which scored, as did her productions introducing exclusive society to themselves on the screen.

Katherine Russell Bleecker

She will introduce into Managing Director Carl Laemmle's Broadway house some decided innovations, it is said. The first of these sees a "Woman's Week" for the holiday season, when a number of attractive features will be in order for feminine fans.

Buffalo Producing Company Gets Under Way

Established in its spacious new suite of offices on the third floor of the Ellicott Square, Buffalo, the Buffalo Motion Picture Corporation is ready to begin the business of picture producing. The company is capitalized at $125,000. With the opening of the new offices, President Frank L. Talbot has issued an invitation to the public to inspect them.

It is expected that work on the first photoplay will begin in a few weeks.

Woman Appointed Censor

Mrs. W. F. Osborne has been appointed to the board of Manitoba (Canada) censors to fill the vacancy caused by the death of W. J. Horne.

Directors Initiated in Association

At the meeting held on December 18 in New York, of the Motion Picture Directors' Association, the following directors were initiated: George Irving, Keenan Buel, Hobart Henley and Charles Seay.

In an announcement last week the association called attention of company managers to the fact that only directors who are capable are admitted to membership. The association, it is understood, submits lists of available directors to companies in need of this service.

Strand Introduces Another Novelty

The Strand theatre, New York, will introduce a new novelty in the entertainments after the holidays, and Manager Edel is busily engaged selecting material and singers for the rather pretentious addition, which will consist of a weekly presentation of condensed versions of grand opera.

The first opera to be presented is "Carmen." Not only has Mr. Edel engaged a cast of opera stars to sing the various roles, but special sets of scenery are being painted for the various operatic productions.

The cast for "Carmen" includes Anita Tegelli, who will sing the title role, Rosa Lind as Michaela, Carlo Mari as Don Jose and Auguste Bouillez as Escamillo. Oscar Spirescu will conduct.

Posters Win Praise from Renowned

When the Renowned Pictures Corporation acquired the rights to Harry Raver's new production, "The Public Defender," they were said to have been impressed with the beauty and character of the paper. It has been considered unusually alluring and attractive by all who have seen it. The makers, the Riverside Press of New York, claim they went to extra pains in manufacturing, but believe that the admiration aroused by their lithographs for "The Public Defender" more than justifies the unusual care.

Animated Weekly Signs with Red Cross

Jack Cohn, manager of the Universal Animated Weekly, announced this week that his firm has signed an important contract with the Red Cross whereby every week two hundred feet of film taken under their auspices showing their work among American troops on the battlefield of Europe will be shown on the screen.

Mr. Cohn said: "At last the public can see duly authenticated films of what fine work the Red Cross is doing at the front. There are so many phases of Red Cross work besides nursing that the films will prove a revelation."

Kiltz Resigns from Mutual in Missouri

F. L. Kiltz, for the past four years manager of the Mutual office at Kansas City, Mo., has resigned his position, it was announced from the Missouri city last week.

Washington Reports Pleasing

Ohio Delegates Tell Results and Hopes in Cleveland, and Philadelphia Exhibitors Also Express Satisfaction

THAT a great deal of actual good, although not apparent this early, will come of the recent Washington convention of the exhibitors represented by the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League and the American Exhibitors' Association, is the sum total of reports made by various local organizations since December 12.

On December 18 the Ohio delegates to the Washington meeting gathered in Cleveland and reports were submitted. Sam Bullock explained that although nothing was actually accomplished toward an immediate lowering or abolishing of the footage tax, the members had elected a committee that would remain in Washington until something definite had been done.

Great disgust was expressed by Mr. Bullock over the fact that no producers attended the Washington convention, and it is believed his sentiments spoke for all the exhibitors present. "Nevertheless," said Mr. Bullock, "we managed very well without them."

A set of resolutions concerning the attitude, which was referred to as unfriendly, of the producers was presented.

On the same day, December 18, the Philadelphia exhibitors held an open meeting to hear the results of the Washington convention. President John O'Donnell presided, and spoke of much good accomplished.

The Motion Picture Exhibitors' Corporation of the Northwest, with general offices in Minneapolis, last week prepared a set of resolutions to present to Congress at the next session, with the hope of modifying the present tax on motion picture theatres.

This brief sets forth, over the signatures of President James Gilosky and Secretary Clyde H. Hitchcock, that the "Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association of the Northwest goes on record as being in favor of paying the United States Government an amount equal to 10 per cent of our gross receipts, and recommend to our Representatives in Washington that the present special war revenue seat tax and that the footage tax on motion picture film be abolished."

National Association Solid

Enters New Year Confident of Outdoing Its Accomplishments of Past Year—Now Eighteen Months Old

THE National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, now a year and a half old, will enter the new year confident of outdoing the work it has accomplished during 1917. The year now rapidly drawing to a close will always be regarded as the most critical in the history of the industry. Besieged on all sides by enemies, manufacturers, exchangemen and exhibitors—in fact, every branch of the business—has fought shoulder to shoulder under the banner of the N. A. M. P. I. and the good that has been accomplished is unbounded.

Censorship, taxation and all inimical legislation, was defeated through the work of the members of the Censorship Committee. The heavy impost placed on films by Congress was placed over the objections and good work of the organization, but it is quite possible that before 1918 is very old changes will be made in the measure which will considerably lighten the war burden which the motion picture industry now carries and totters under.

Even while engaged in its most strenuous fights against a common enemy, all branches of the industry found time to rally to the support of the Government in carrying out its war aims. At this very minute exhibitors, manufacturers, exchanges, directors and photoplayers are engaged in furthering the war interests of the United States through the medium of the film and the screen. It was largely through the efforts of motion picture men that both the Liberty Loans proved successes. The screen has been of incalculable value to Herbert S. Hoover in his food conservation campaign. In fact, Government propaganda of all kinds are being thrown on the screen largely through the efforts of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry in co-operation with the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America. While it is true that the combined efforts of the biggest men in the industry failed to prevent the great split of the exhibitors at the Chicago convention, nevertheless, right now the National Association has brought the rival factions together and it is not beyond hope that the Exhibitors' League and the American Association will be merged.

"Birth of a Nation" Booked on New Plan

Elaborate announcements being prepared for next week's trade publications will bring the news that the Epoch Picture Corporation is about to place "The Birth of a Nation" on the market on a new plan. This will involve the booking of the feature into the larger photoplay theatres as a special attraction, complete companies on the style of a theatrical road organization being furnished by the Epoch organization.

Following its spectacular success as a $2 attraction, it is computed that there are millions of photoplay fans who have not seen "The Birth of a Nation." The new plan is intended to bring it within reach of the popular priced houses. Full details of the booking plan will be found in next week's Motion Picture News.

In and Out of Town

A. S. Aronson, Regal Films, Ltd., Toronto, Canada, was in town last week looking at the current offering on the independent market. Mr. Aronson stopped at the Claridge. He returned to Toronto, Sunday. During his stay he closed a deal with W. H. Productions, through their representative, H. J. Sheppard, for the Canadian rights to several Hart features and twenty-eight of the Sennett produced comedies which this company is offering.

Eduardo Gainsborg, appointed recently, exchange manager of the Hoffman-Foursquare branch at San Francisco, left New York last week for his post.

M. C. Hughes, district manager of the Metro Film Service, Ltd., with headquarters in Montreal, was in New York last week, for a conference with officials of the home office of Foursquare pictures, whose Canadian exchange is operated in conjunction with that of the Metro Film Service.

Harry Grossman, president of Oro Pictures, Inc., returned to New York last week, after an extended visit to the Oro studios on the Coast. Mr. Grossman reports everything fine at the West Coast studio.

Paul A. Platz, manager of advertising department, and news correspondent of the Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis Ry. Co., Cleveland, was in New York last week, shaking hands with old friends in the picture industry. Mr. Platz returned to Cleveland last Saturday.

Arthur J. Lang, export manager, Nicholas Powers Company, returned to New York, last week, after a two weeks' absence in Mexico City and adjoining territory. Mr. Lang made the trip in the interest of the Nicholas Power Company.

W. S. Wessling, branch manager for Pathe, with offices at Cincinnati, visited the home office in New York, last week. Mr. Wessling made some interesting reports on conditions in the picture business in the mining district included in his territory.

Harry Caufield, Los Angeles, arrived in New York last week from the Coast. Mr. Caufield reports good business in Los Angeles and looks for a prosperous new year.

Wallace Reid, Artcraft-Paramount star, and Kenneth McGaffey, press representative for Lasky studios and Paramount interests on the Coast, arrived in New York, last Friday. Mr. Reid will be featured in two Paramount productions to be made at the Eastern studio. Mr. McGaffey returned to Los Angeles, Sunday night. Mr. Reid is stopping at Hotel Astor.
(1)—Decmeber 24

Omaha Manager Deals Out Sage Advice

"Book twenty-five pictures and save $18," Manager Jules Rachman of the Standard Exchange in Omaha, Neb., tells his patrons.

"That sounds like more than if I told them they would save 75 cents apiece by booking twenty-five pictures in a bunch," said Mr. Ranchman.

President Carl Laemmle of the Universal Film Company Reading the Exclusive Cables and Telegrams Sent Him by General Pershing, Lloyd George, Wilson's Cabinet and Nearly Every United States Senator, Representative, Governor and Ambassador, Together with Other Noted Men, an Unparalleled Achievement, Emphasizing the Commanding Position the Screen Now Occupies in Heralding Opinions of the World's Leaders

DOWN MIT KULTUR!

Contributions from Patriotic Exhibitors Are Pouring In!

Previously acknowledged		$1,058.78
Emporium Opera House, Emporium, Pa., Andrews & Vail, Managers	$18.57
Moving Picture Theatre, Shelburne Falls, Mass., William Mills, Prop.	5.00
Colonial Theatre, Richmond, Va., Henry Bernstein, for Jake Wells	39.68
Josiah Pearce & Sons, New Orleans, La.	51.42
Strand Theatre, New Orleans, La.	102.26
Colonial Theatre, Norwich, N. Y.	11.10
Olympic Theatre, Finleyville, Pa., John Hands ..	15.25
Gem Theatre, Silverton, Colo. ..	5.00
Lyric Theatre, Arkansas City, Ark.	18.25
Colville Theatre, Colville, Wash.	10.00
Como Theatre, St. Paul, Minn.	1.70
Playhouse Theatre, Staunton, Ill., Otto Blume	1.05
		279.28
		$1,338.06

If you want to help smoke the Kaiser out, write Motion Picture News for particulars regarding the Tobacco Fund.

Tom Wilson Loses Eye in Accident

Tom Wilson, who played in many Fine Art subjects and served as co-director with D. W. Griffith and recently has been with the Lehrman Sunshine Comedies, met with an accident while hunting with friends last week, in which a shot penetrated his eyeball and made necessary an operation in which the eye was removed.

Wilson has had an experience of a lifetime on the stage and screen and now that he will in all probability find it necessary to give up acting it is believed by friends that he will give all his attention to the study of directing, in which work he has had a great deal of experience. Wilson was recently loaned by the Lehrman company to go with the Mary Pickford company to appear in one subject, and it was while working at the Pickford film that he was injured.

Harlem House Must Change Its Name

A decision was handed down by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court last week, granting an injunction to Mitchel H. Mark, president of the Mitchel H. Mark Realty Corporation, owners of the Strand theatre at Broadway and Forty-seventh Street, restraining the use of that name by another theatre on 125th Street, known as the "Harlem Strand."

The suit was brought some time ago, and when the matter first came before the courts the injunction was denied. Thereupon the proprietors of the Strand theatre, through their attorney, Mortimer Fischel, filed an appeal with the Appellate Division. The latter court in reversing the opinion of the lower court went very deeply into the history of the law, as regards the protection of trade names and the grounds upon which such relief was obtainable.

Lightless Night Suggested for Theatres

The Celebrated Players Film Company, of Chicago, of which J. L. Friedman is vice-president and general manager, last week sent the following telegram to James A. Garfield, fuel administrator, in reference to lightless nights for theatres:

"The motion picture theatres of the entire United States are assisting the Government in every way, both financially and through the medium of their screens. Lightless Sunday nights would be an extreme detriment to every motion picture house open that day in the United States, as this day is their most profitable one. On behalf of the motion picture theatres permit me to suggest that either Monday or Friday nights be substituted for Sunday.

"The courtesy of an answer will be appreciated."

Baltimore Houses Face Xmas Closing

Word reached Baltimore last week to the effect that the United States Fuel Administrator has granted permission to Doctor Garfield of this city, in order to help the present famine in coal, that he has full authority to close all theatres and motion picture houses in the city over the Christmas holidays. Doctor Garfield is considering the proposition, but as yet nothing has been taken up with the Maryland Branch, Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America.

Louis A DeHoff, secretary of the League, said that he believed that there will be nothing to it. The theatres and motion picture houses are only open from four to eight hours each day and that Doctor Garfield believes that little would be saved here in Baltimore by such an act. However, no definite action has been taken yet and the theatres are going ahead with their arrangements for the holidays. If Doctor Garfield should desire to exercise his authority, the question will first be put before the Maryland League.

This will not only affect the theatres, but all halls and other places of amusement are to be closed should the order be given.

National Association Grows

Nine Members Added at Meeting of Directors in New York December 14—Board Members Chosen

AT the quarterly meeting of the Board of Directors of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, which was held at the headquarters in the Times Building, on December 14, the following companies and individuals were chosen to membership: Biograph Company, Craftsman Film Laboratories, Eclipse Film Laboratories, A. H. Jacobs Photoplays, Inc.; Paragon Films, Inc.; Greater N. Y. Slide Company, Carl Anderson, H. O. Segel and Albert Cormier.

The meeting, which was presided over by President William A. Brady, was attended by Arthur S. Friend, William L. Sherrill, Louis F. Blumenthal, Lee A. Ochs, Ernest Horstmann, Alfred S. Black, Louis L. Levine, F. S. Eager, P. A. Powers, Walter W. Irwin, Paul Gulick, Thomas Wiley, Gabriel L. Hess, Joseph F. Coufal and C. C. Burr.

The exhibitor directors from out of town came to New York to attend the meeting at the close of the convention of exhibitors held in Washington the preceding day. Various reports of committees were presented and acted upon, and many routine matters were considered, several of which were referred to special committees for attention.

Ricord Gradwell, vice-president and general manager of World Film Corporation, and Winfield R. Sheehan, general manager of Fox Film Corporation, were elected members of the Board, representing the Distributors' Division, which had presented their nominations to fill vacancies. C. C. Burr, Jr., was elected as a director from the General Division, upon nomination of that branch, to fill a vacancy.

A new branch of the Producers' Division, comprising Class C Producers, as reported as recently organized, with Joseph A. Golden, of the Crystal Film Company, chairman, and L. Abrams, of Craftsmen Film Laboratories, as secretary. The following companies are represented in this division: Biograph Company, Craftsmen Film Loboratories, Crystal Film Laboratories, Erbograph Company, Kalem Company, Evans Film Manufacturing Company, Eclipse Film Laboratories and Paragon Films, Inc.

The report of the Motion Picture Exposition, which is to be held under the joint auspices of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America and the National Association, showed that splendid progress has been made in securing contracts, although solicitations had only been under way for a few weeks. Two floors of the Grand Central Palace have been leased and practically two-thirds of the main floor has been disposed of. President Brady urged upon the officials of every company the importance of supporting this exposition, which was the first to be conducted with a united industry behind it, and set forth many advantages to be derived by making the event a great success from every point of view.

Paralta Issues Press Book

Is Expected to Help Bessie Barriscale's Feature Along Greatly—Cover Is Done in Three Colors

PARALTA PLAYS, INC., has issued an especially attractive press book for the exploitation of "Madam Who?" in which Bessie Barriscale will make her debut as a star in Paralta Plays in the immediate future. The cover, which is done in three colors, bears the well-known Paralta border, together with a most attractive picture of the star in process work.

Realizing the fact that practically all exhibitors throughout the country prefer to make up their own advertising copy, the stock advertisements have been omitted and in their place is a page devoted to catch-lines to be used as an assistance in laying out display advertising copy. On the next pages are cuts of the billing paper and stock cuts to be used in newspapers and programs. Then follows a series of press stories arranged for the requirements of the theatres showing the production. In preparing these pages the fact has been taken into consideration that most of the newspapers throughout the country have a regular schedule for the handling of motion picture copy. In practically all of the towns today the papers run an advance notice of a coming production, then an extensive Sunday notice, which appears the Sunday before the attraction is booked, followed by a mid-week reader usually printed on Wednesday or Thursday. In some of the smaller towns, where the run of a picture is but for one or two days, the papers devote a certain section of the Sunday edition to photoplay news, and then run each day a column announcing the attractions showing on that day.

The Paralta press book is so arranged as to supply the exhibitor with advance notices, Sunday notices, mid-week readers and special stories for the exploitation of 'Madam Who?" written in such a manner as to save the exhibitor the time and effort to repair them to suit his local needs.

Walter McGrail Answers Battle Call

A typical O. Henry surprise greeted members of the cast appearing in "The Clarion Call," the current release in General Film Company's Broadway Star Feature Series. The camera had scarcely ceased grinding before Walter McGrail, who plays the leading part in the two-reel feature, announced that henceforth he was to be known as Seaman Walter McGrail. By the time the picture is released the O. Henry actor will be aboard one of Uncle Sam's ships of war serving his country.

The Reader Has His Say

A Word to the Wise Producer Anent Sex Plays by a Big Manager

Editor Motion Picture News.

Dear Sir: I believe that the box office reports which you have recently added to your very valuable paper are a splendid way for the exhibitor to express himself, and I assure you that we are more than glad to have an opportunity to co-operate with other exhibitors in giving an expression of our opinion.

This is perhaps an opportune moment to call attention to the so-called sex play. At this theatre, on account of its being the largest in the city, we have the choice and pick of practically every first-class picture produced, and, even with the big supply that we draw from, we cannot, it appears, help but book some pictures that, to my mind, are likely to eventually prove a detriment to the motion picture industry.

To illustrate just what I mean: We played Dorothy Dalton in "The Price Mark," a picture with very strong sex situations, and which, to the unsophisticated mind, might justify immoral relationship. In this picture our heroine lives with a man, not as his wife, and yet in the long run, as a reward for her conduct, "she is happily married ever after."

Our next picture was Elsie Ferguson in "The Rise of Jennie Cushing," with a similar situation and with the same reward.

The producer will argue that both stories were taken from successful novels and that the legitimate theatres produce plays of this character which give no offense. True! However, novels are not publicly read, and the legitimate theatre does not play to the vast family patronage that is accorded the motion picture theatre, and it is doubtful whether the average man having a young daughter is pleased at the prospect of having sex problems publicly displayed, no matter how artistic the production nor how popular the star may be.

It perhaps might be a good idea for the producer to look on the other side of the fence and try to analyze just how his productions are received away from 42nd street and Broadway.

Very truly yours,
HAROLD B. FRANKLIN,
Manager Shea Hippodrome Co., Inc.
Buffalo, N. Y.

"At the Wrong End"—In Three Reels Mr. Kaufman Calls This Letter

Motion Picture News, New York City.

Gentlemen: Columns are being devoted to the common question of "How to Save the Picture Industry"—yet everyone wants to commence "house-cleaning" at the wrong end, and my suggestion is:

First—Let's start at the very beginning and slash those fabulous salaries of the players and even the directors. The manufacturers have allowed themselves to play "auction-bridge" against each other until weekly salaries have reached staggering—in fact, almost unbelievable—proportions.

Second — The overproduction of film is a known evil, but it cannot continue to exist, as the demand is not great enough. The manufacturers and producers (many are of the fly-by-night kind) will cut down when these facts arrive home, or perhaps due to shortage of the necessary funds.

Third—Nearly every organization has too many branch exchanges, and the overhead expenses on these, together with the extra prints bought for them, help make the cost of films EXORBITANT.

For illustration: In Memphis there are now three other exchanges besides mine, and was four until this week, when the Mutual closed. At an additional expense of $150 weekly to my present one, I could handle the entire business and thereby save at least $750 each week, more than $900 being spent for overhead expenses alone by them.

In New Orleans, Atlanta, Dallas and every other exchange center in the United States practically the same conditions exist. Six or eight exchanges in each city, excepting New York and Chicago, could handle all the business for which twenty or twenty-five exchanges are now operated at a tremendous weekly sum.

Exhibitors in even the small towns tell me with a smile of the great number of salesmen that call on them each week, nearly everyone of whom must be turned down, as they can only use a certain number of films weekly. This and 101 other leaks could be stopped, if there were more action and less talk.

Hoping to see these few lines in your valued paper at an early date, as I feel sure that if you start "the ball a-rolling" and everyone puts their shoulder to the wheel that this great evil will be quickly remedied.

With very best wishes, I am,
Yours truly
KAUFMAN SPECIALS,
(Signed) Abe H. Kaufman, Pres.

How the Reel Tax Hits the Small Town Theatre

Editor Motion Picture News.

Dear Sir: No person gets more interested in the News than I do, and I am going to try and tell you how a little country exhibitor feels on this reel tax question. On page 4367, December 22 issue, I see by the man who has a slogan of "Use the Brains God Gave You" that we figured as nearly as we could what the war tax would cost us and then passed it along to our customers. This is all O. K. We figured as nearly as we could what the war tax would cost us and then passed it along to our customers. This is all O. K., but is it passed along in the correct way? Why was the revenue tax on motion picture shows in towns of 5,000 population or less reduced one-half? Simply because the little fellow did not fill his theatre as often in a day as in the larger towns, but you did not hear of the big fellows in the city kick about this tax on seating capacity. It never hurt him much, because he filled them often, but at that time they said Uncle Sam needed the money quick and did not think of the little fellow.

But here we have a tax put on by the people who make the pictures and release them and who ought to know the different conditions in city and country.

Say I pay $5 for a five-reel program with the tax of 15 cents per reel makes my program cost me $5.75, or an increase of 15 per cent for one day's rental.

Say the city man pays $50 for a five-reel program with a tax of 15 cents per reel makes his bill $50.75, an increase of 1 1-2 per cent for one day's service.

And still this man says we made sure we were doing the right thing and then went ahead.

And on page 4325 I see Mr. Edel of the Strand is in favor of the tax, saying it is up to the exhibitor to pay the extra war tax, but if it was an increase of 15 per cent of his film bill he might think different, but I suppose it is not 1 per cent.

And on page 4315 I read: "It is folly to assume that the reel tax is sending 80 per cent to the wall." I say it makes no difference what forces the 80 per cent to the wall, but let them go in a fair and square way. Tonight I am trying to "use the brains God gave me" to make up this letter, and I don't think this extra tax is passed along in a fair and square way, for it hurts the little fellow more than the big one.

If you have a little space on your "The-Reader-Has-His-Say" page, I would appreciate seeing how this looks in print, but should it sound strange to you, remember it is just how a little country exhibitor feels.

I am, yours respectfully,
JULIUS W. SCHMIDT.
Grand Theatre, Breese, Illinois.

Exhibitor Byar Believes He Has the Solution

Editor Motion Picture News.

Dear Sir: Judging from yours editorially, Mr. Mastbaum certainly did explode a bomb in the manufacturers' and distributors' camp, and evidently few have realized the "cause" of this bomb being exploded. Those small manufacturers and large impossible ones are the ones who are to suffer from this shake up. The highest price service on the market stands no chance to suffer, because they have long since seen the error of the ever star-changing producers, and have profited by his error and their own experience.

All the producers now in the game have occasion to fear the infant that has just been born. The old saying, "Necessity is the mother of invention," is as true as gospel, and the first to realize the burden was becoming intolerable was the exhibitor; he pleaded with the producer for better productions until he saw his pleadings were in vain; out of the chaos or ruin came the infant: the exhibitors' salvation, the producers' only hope. In all the journals of the issue of December 15 only one producer actually mentioned the infant, but all refer to him in a round-about way.

Some of the larger producers have held a stiff upper lip and mentioned the big future they see for the 1918 prospectus, but, Mr. Johnston, they don't see it the way they mention; their belief for big business is only a stall. But the big business is here, and here as it has never been here before. The motion picture business will become as stable as any other legitimate enterprise, and only through the efforts of the exhibitor himself. Inferior pictures have run the gamut of criticism and have been condemned eternally. The advertisements of the manufacturers have ruined them for one and all times.

The star is the thing, Mr. Johnston; not only in Texas, but the world over. But they must come to the exhibitor at a price he can afford to pay. The value of a picture is based principally on the star. This because the general public don't read; we have educated them to follow the stars, and it would be nearly an impossible task to divert them and make them believe the play is the thing, because, generally speaking, it is "not." Once in a great while a producer will strike some theme that is timely, then his picture will go over big with an unknown star. But the ordinary fails 99 out of 100 times. But with a popular star, "of which there are not over a dozen," their names coupled with a production of an unknown quality will pack any house, whether a swell place or ordinary.

The exhibitor has long known that this is true, but has never had an opportunity to express his thoughts, even through the trade journals, which call themselves the exhibitors' medium.

Mr. Mastbaum realizes, as many others, that in the organization of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit that dreams of continued inflated profits were a thing of the past.

I am a franchise holder with the First National Exhibitors' Circuit, and just here in connection I wish to state that by January 1, 1919, more than 98 per cent of the towns that have picture shows will be franchise holders (partners) with the First National, and for three simple reasons, thus: First, superior service, in which the exhibitor will participate in the accrued earnings; second, that his service will be selected by men who have had experience as an exhibitor and would use the same discretion in selection that we ourselves use; third, that through the First National Circuit the load has been completely lifted from our shoulders. The big saving which Mr. Mastbaum suggests is this minute in operation. The extravagant wastefulness will be born by the producer, and not as in the past, by the exhibitor. No, Mr. Johnston, the producer, both large and small, have seen and interpreted the handwriting that is now on the wall, and it means just what it says: First National Exhibitors' Circuit—with the exphasis on Exhibitor.

Trusting they may all rest easy in the new and divers occupations they disclose, I'm yours,
A continual subscriber,
E. L. BYAR.
Terrell, Texas.

Shea's Hippodrome Weathers the Tax

Harold B. Franklin, manager of Shea's Hippodrome, Buffalo, one of the largest theatres in the country, stated last week that the war tax has not yet had any detrimental effect on the patronage of his theatre. Mr. Franklin feels, however, that shrewd showmanship and the very best efforts of the exhibitor is required to maintain continuous good business.

"It is to be expected that business will be somewhat affected at this time of the year, principally on account of the holidays, and probably many exhibitors will find it convenient to blame the war tax. The people have become acclimated with the motion picture as a daily need, and as long as the exhibitor caters to their wishes and gives them what they want it is doubtful whether business will fall off. It is, of course, possible that the smaller theatre may suffer. We felt that every effort should be made to make the theatre and entertainment even more attractive, if such a thing is possible.

Exhibitors Box Office Reports

TITLE, STAR, AND BRAND	E.	N.	S.	W.	EXHIBITORS' OWN REPORTS OF BOX-OFFICE VALUE
ADOPTED SON, THE (Bushman-Bayne—Met.)	Big	Big	Big	Ave.	"Good picture, no drawing card." "Fair picture, too much Bushman." (For other comments, see issue of Dec. 29.)
ADVENTURES OF CAROL (Madge Evans—World)	Ave.	Poor	Ave.	Ave.	"Fair show; did not draw." "Star good, everyone liked it" (E.). "Don't care for child stars."
ALL FOR A HUSBAND (Virginia Pearson—Fox)					"Not up to Virginia Pearson's standard." "Poorest picture on Fox program in months" (W.). "Rotten picture" (E.). "Good picture." "A very poor grade of picture" (N.). "People did not care for this" (W.). "Good business, but patrons not pleased" (N.).
ANGEL FACTORY (Antonio Moreno—Pathe)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Excellent role for Moreno."
ANTICS OF ANN (Ann Pennington—Para.)	Big	Big	Ave.	Ave.	"Very clever picture" (W.). "Fair picture." "Great—a knockout." (For other comments, see issue of December 29.)
ANYTHING ONCE (Franklyn Farnum—Blue.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Full of action" (N.). "Very good, much like Doug. Fairbanks" (W.).
APPLETREE GIRL, THE (Shirley Mason—K.E.S.E.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Photography good, pleasing picture."
ARMS AND THE GIRL (Billie Burke—Para.)	Ave.	Big	Big	Big	"Very good picture—one that pleased everybody." "Very good—improvement over others." "Good picture but only fair drawing card." "Better than first picture." "Good, pleased all, second day even with first." "Good picture, only fair drawing card." "Very good—improvement over others." "Very good." "Very fine—pleased everybody." "Billie Burke very popular—picture pleased." "Pretty good picture." "Supporting cast not strong enough and war film not popular" (Week run.).
ASHES OF HOPE (Belle Bennett—Tri.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Extra fine." "Jack Livingstone very good." "Very fine—played capacity—pleased all." "Above average—ran two days—business good." "Excellent picture." "Everybody highly pleased." "As good as W. S. Hart."
AUCTION BLOCK, THE (Rex Beach Production—Gold.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Splendid production." "From a box-office standpoint best we have ever played." "Record business—big in spite of zero weather—week run" (N.). "Played in worst weather in years to good business, therefore I consider excellent production" (N.). "Exceptionally good, typical Rex Beach, liked by everybody" (S.). "Great picture, poor photography."
AWAKENING, THE (Montagu Love, Dor. Kelly—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"A good interest-sustaining picture."
BAB'S BURGLAR (Marguerite Clark—Para.)	Big	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"Not as strong as first 'Bab' picture." "Very pleasing star, clever actress, fine comedy." "Good picture, went well first day, not so well second." "Fine comedy, exceptional photography." "Not as good as Bab's Diary." "Stories of the Bab series are not big enough—something lacking." "Very good." "Not as good as most Clark pictures, but appealed particularly to young folks." "Last of series should go over big." "Very, very good."
BABES IN THE WOOD (Fox Kiddies—Fox St.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Fairy tales do not draw." (N.).
BAB'S MATINEE IDOL (Marguerite Clark—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"Tired of these stories" (S.). "Her poorest picture of the Deb series" (S.). "Big hit with old ladies and flappers, brought many new faces" (W.). "Tired of these stories" (S.). "Her poorest picture of the Bab series." "If Clark is to draw, she must quit the baby stuff" (S.).
BABBLING TONGUES (Ivan Production—St. R.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"One of best acted dramas ever produced, good surprise finish" (S.). "Fine picture." "A very good picture" (S.). "People seemed to like it" (N.).
BABY MINE (Madge Kennedy—Gold.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Business better after the first day." "Great cast and direction." "Very ordinary production, drawn out and too long." "Rain hurt business, but picture great." "Business fair, production excellent; star unknown, but watch her grow." (For other comments, see issue of Dec. 15, 1917.)
BLIND MAN'S LUCK (Mollie King—Pathe)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"As good, if not best, 5-reel feature this house has shown" (N.). "Fine production."
BONDAGE (Dorothy Phillips—Blue.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"This star is getting more popular." "Very fine production." "Bluebird improving remarkably."
BOTTOM OF THE WELL, THE (Evart Overton—Vita.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"A good interest holding picture."
BRANDED SOUL, A (Gladys Brockwell—Fox)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Melo—pleased; elaborate production."
BURGLAR, THE (Carlyle Blackwell—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Splendid picture; stars lack draft." "Good picture, very sad, not kind that will draw." "Stars popular, good story" (N.). "Neglected wife, forget-me-not story, big business" (N.). "Great." "Excellent, but bad ending."
CALENDAR GIRL, THE (Juliette Day—Mut.)	Ave.	Poor	Ave.	Ave.	"Not up to Mutual standard." "A pleasing picture."
CALL OF THE EAST, THE (Sessue Hayakawa—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"Good play, well liked by all." "Very slow, but holds the audience." "A fair picture." (For other comments, see issue of Dec. 29.)
CAMILLE (Theda Bara—Fox)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Seven reel production made it difficult to handle crowds." "The story has been done to death." "Bara's followers liked the picture." "Well liked star." "Big—Bara is great, but story has small appeal" (N.). "Not a good picture for Bara, women like it, though" (W.). "An excellent production, got me money two nights" (N.).
CASSIDY (Dick Rosson—Tri.)	Poor	Poor	Poor	Poor	"Good picture—no name—no star—no business." "Most morbid production—a business killer." "Leading role very well done—fine storm scenes—holds interest—title only chance for improvement." "No attraction." "Just plain rot" (S.). "Good picture, but morbid" (W.). "Rosson's acting overdone, good story" (N.).
CLEVER MRS. CARFAX (Julian Eltinge—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Clever female impersonator; not so good in this one, though they seem to like it" (S.). "Deserved better biz" (W.). "Just a picture, that's all" (E.).
COLD DECK, THE (William S. Hart—Lynch)	Big	Extra	Big	Extra	"A picture that pleased." "He is a good drawing card." "Dandy Hart picture." "Best Hart has done—we think." "Wonderful picture—big money-getter."
COME THROUGH (Herbert Rawlinson—Jewel)	Ave.	Big	Ave.	Big	"Rattling good picture." "Four big days on this." "Did greater business on this than Hart two weeks before" (W.). "Patrons well pleased." "Photography splendid." "Too much footage." "Good picture, pleased all."
CONSCIENCE (Gladys Brockwell—Fox)	Ave.	Big	Ave.	Ave.	"Did not entirely please—too allegorical" (Middle). "Interesting story, and the production end ranks well among the program class—average business" (South). "Fair only." "A very fine picture—only like others before, failed, too allegorical" (W.). "A picture that is hard to take up, unless seen from the beginning." "A good picture of its kind, but allegorical subjects not wanted." "Fine, S. R. O." "Small appeal, but great" (N.). "Excellent picture, poor business."
CORNER GROCER, THE (Madge Evans, Lew Fields—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Star is not a drawing card." "Much too long to please." "A very pleasing picture." "Very good."
DEAD SHOT BAKER (William Duncan—Vita.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Too much blood and thunder." "We're getting too much Westerns." "Excellent Western subject." "A good picture, pleased patrons."
DESIRE OF THE MOTH, THE (Ruth Clifford—Blue.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good Western, title misleads fans." "Title not appropriate. Good Monroe Salisbury a comer."
DEVIL DODGER, THE (Roy Stewart—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave	Ave.	"Type of play that takes well in Arizona." "An extra strong pictur "Not good" (W.). "Good drama, Stewart a second Hart if properly di
DORMANT POWER, THE (Ethel Clayton—World)	Ave	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good picture" (S.). "Star popular, story fair." "Good subject, and star, Clayton a great favorite" (N.). "Good." (For other comments, see issue of Dec. 29.)
DRAFT 258 (Mabel Talliaferro—Met.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Very nice picture for this time" (E.). "A great patriotic picture (N.). "A strong patriotic picture, not quite up to our expectations as a business getter."
EASY MONEY (Ethel Clayton—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"A pleasing picture; this star is improving" (W.).
ETERNAL MOTHER, THE (Ethel Barrymore—Met.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture, not much drawing power" (N.). "These kind of pictures don't dra "

TITLE, STAR, AND BRAND	E.	N.	S.	W.	EXHIBITORS' OWN REPORTS OF BOX-OFFICE VALUE
FETTERED WOMAN, THE (Alice Joyce—Vita.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Star not popular." "Ordinary picture."
FIBBERS, THE (Bryant Washburn—K.E.S.E.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Not up to Skinner." "Star well liked. A few more good pictures will make him a big drawing card." (For other comment, see issue of Dec. 29.)
FIGHTING BACK (William Desmond—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good Western." "Only fair." "Fair picture."
FIGHTING ODDS (Maxine Elliott—Gold.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Poor	"Interesting picture" (N.). "Did not please" (W.). "Fair picture, did not draw." "Goldwyn's poorest thus far." "Picture good, photography kills it." (For other comment, see issue of Dec. 29).
FIREFLY OF TOUGH LUCK (Alma Reubens—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Splendid, will repeat this." "Good Western." "Good Western stuff—what they want." "Routine Western."
FLIRTING WITH DEATH (Herbert Rawlinson—Blue.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture."
FOOLS FOR LUCK (Taylor Holmes—K.E.S.E.)	Ave.	Ave.	Poor	Ave.	"Fair picture." "Patrons clamor for this type" (S.). "Patrons seemed to enjoy themselves with this" (N.).
GAME OF WITS, A (Gail Kane—Mutual)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Best Mutual we have ever played" (S.). "Patrons all satisfied" (N.).
GHOST HOUSE, THE (Pickford-Huff—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Above average in production; Jack Pickford fair in this." "Not up to standard." "Poor business-getter." "Fair picture." "Very good." "Good, patrons pleased." "Good Pickford-Huff picture." "Fair picture." (For previous comments, see issue of Dec. 22, 1719.)
GOOD FOR NOTHING, THE (Blackwell-Greeley—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Average picture" (W.). "Good picture" (S.).
GRELL MYSTERY, THE (Earl Williams—Vita.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Excellent picture." "Best Williams picture in some time—held the interest."
HEART OF EZRA GREER (Frederick Warde—Pathe)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave	"Good picture and cast." "Good."
HER COUNTRY'S CALL (Mary Miles Minter—Mut.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Fair patriotic feature, nothing out of the ordinary." "Very pretty picture—star becoming a favorite." "Fair picture—she always draws well" (Middle). "Good photography—direction poor in spots, some settings not elaborate enough." "Well liked." "Title killed this one" (West). "Patrons tired of war plots." "Poor story, star not popular here." "An appeal to patriotism."
HER HOUR (Kitty Gordon—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good picture."
HONOR SYSTEM, THE (Milton Sills—Fox St.)	Big	Big	Bgi	Big	"Truly wonderful drama of today." "Lots of action and thrills, plenty of comedy." "Wonderful—too long." "Wonderful." "Good, but too long in 10 reels." "Some picture!" "Big production." "Can't go wrong playing this great show, greatly pleases." (For other comments, see issue of Dec. 29.)
HUNGRY HEART, THE (Pauline Frederick—Para.)	Big	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good." "Picture did not please—climax melodrama of the 10-20-30 type." "Good picture, appealed mostly to women." "Interesting problem play with weak finish." "Very good, average business." "Good picture" (E.). "Average business" (S.). "Pleased fairly well; picture took an awful slump at finish" (W.).
INDISCREET CORINNE (Olive Thomas—Triangle)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Olive Thomas is a comer." "Good, very pleasing picture, star rapidly growing in favor."
JACK AND JILL (Pickford-Huff—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Pickford a young Douglas Fairbanks. Huff also clever. Good picture with plenty of action."
JOHN ERMINE OF YELLOWSTONE (Francis Ford—Butterfly)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good Indian picture." "O. K."
JUDGMENT HOUSE (Stuart Blackton Production—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Only a fair production." "Good high class picture, but it didn't get the business."
KILL-JOY, THE (Mary McAlister—K.E.S.E.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Pleasing, no drawing power; McAlister clever, but the story is absolutely unreasonable, and director on location bad" (W.). "Fair picture" (N.).
LIFE'S WHIRLPOOL (Ethel Barrymore—Metro.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Best Barrymore ever appeared in, but did not draw." "Very ordinary." "A good picture—star just fair here." "Photography good, settings good, star good." "Too much misery."
LITTLE PRINCESS, THE (Mary Pickford—Art.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Interests children only; will hurt star unless given a play to interest grown-ups; substituted another picture to finish the week" (E.). "A good picture, but did not draw as most Pickfords do" (W.). "Not up to standard of last two pictures—good entertainment, but lacked the drawing and pleasing qualities of Rebecca of Sunnybrook" (S.). "Did not draw like Rebecca of Sunnybrook, or other late Pickford" (N.). "Poorest Pickford business ever in our history." "Too much of a kid picture, does not draw grown people" (N.). "Star had to carry the whole load—less than average business." "Too much fairy tale story, not a comparison with Sunnybrook Farm or Little American."
LONE WOLF, THE (Brenon Production—Sel.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Excellent." "Return business to capacity." "Going big on second week" (W.). "Extra big entire week." "Swell picture" (N.). "A great picture, and a good drawing card, with plenty of exciting situations." "Could recommend this subject for any theatre."
LOVE DOCTOR, THE (Earl Williams, Vita.)	Big	Big	Ave.	Ave.	"A winner." "Story 'impossible'—star going back as drawing card." "Star draws, picture not up to standard." "Good stuff." "Not up to standard but went big."
MAGDA (Clara Kimball Young—Sel.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave	Ave.	"Started good, but did not hold up." "Business poor in comparison to what she has done" (West). "Splendid" (Middle). "Very poor" (West). "Did not please audience" (W.). "American people want to laugh." "Good picture, but did not get the money" (E.). "Didn't draw—picture fair" (N.) "Very pleasing, but did not draw" (E.). "Picture poor, not a proper vehicle for the star" (N.). "Very good picture."
MAID OF BELGIUM (Alice Brady—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good." "This star always does average business." "Good picture and very pleasing." "Fine, good photography."
MAN TRAP, THE (Herbert Rawlinson—Blue.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Not especially well liked, about 50-50." "Interesting, entertaining, big business." "High class picture."
MANX MAN, THE (Geo. Loane Tucker Production—Gold.)	Ave.	Big	Ave.	Big	"Turned hundreds away first night" (N.). "Very good picture, not so much pulling power" (W.). "Wonderful picture—a little too long" (N.). "Fine picture."
MAN WITHOUT A COUNTRY (Jewel Production)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Great, if publicity is properly handled." "Fine patriotic production that any American audience will like."
MARKED MAN, A (Harry Carey—Blue.)	Ave.	Big	Ave.	Ave	"Good business, fine, pleased."
MARK OF CAIN (Mrs. Castle-A. Moreno—Pathe)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture, exc ellent photography, beautiful settings, no pulling power" (W).
MISS U. S. A. (June Caprice—Fox)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Well received" (S.). "Military N. G." (N.).
MOLLY ENTANGLED (Vivian Martin—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very nice picture, star well liked" (E.). "Good picture" (W.).
MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY (Petrova—Met.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Petrova's best picture." "Same old stuff." "Nothing extra." "Best Petrova yet." "Splendid picture, did not draw especially." "Went only fair." "Good photography, good settings, good story. Petrova does not draw here" (W.).
MOTH, THE (Norma Talmadge—Sel.)	Ave.	Big	Ave.	Big	"Only fair—fine photography, but draggy." "Excellent picture." "Extra big business." "Star growing in popularity." "Excellent photoplay—star well liked here." "Don't come up to her previous releases." "People well pleased with star and picture. A coming big favorite."
NARROW TRAIL, THE (William S. Hart—Art.)	Extra	Big	Big	Extra	"Excellent picture" (East). "Only fair" (South). "Best Hart up to date." "Pinto pony excellent; caused as much comment as Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" (East). "Star well liked. Remarkable horse" (South). "House record—best Hart to date—big hit here" (West). "Best of its kind" (Middle). "Same old Hart—best drawing star in the business—cannot handle the crowds." "Wonderful Hart picture." "Hundred percent picture." "Hart draws them out."
NEARLY MARRIED (Madge Kennedy—Gold.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Splendid picture, star good, but does not draw." "Splendid high class comedy" (N.). "Not a big drawing card" (S.). "Fine picture, fair business, star not known." "Good picture, but very light" (E.). "Good picture, star doesn't draw."
NORTH OF FIFTY THREE (Dustin Farnum—Fox)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Cave man stuff." "This star draws well." "This type of play very popular here" (North). "Great picture." "Well liked." "Good picture, star well liked, and book very popular."
ONE SHOT ROSS (Roy Stewart—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good; lots of my patrons like him better than Hart." "Routine Western." "Picture fair; photography extra." "Good picture, but star not well enough known to have much pulling power." "Fine Western, good business" (S.). "Drew good crowds." "Fair Western."
ON THE SQUARE GIRL, THE (Mollie King—Pathe)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Clever little feature" (W.). "Popularity in serial carried over to feature—remarkable" (S.). "Good picture" (W.).

TITLE, STAR, AND BRAND	E.	N.	S.	W.	EXHIBITORS' OWN REPORTS OF BOX-OFFICE VALUE
OUTSIDER, THE (Emmy Wehlen—Met.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Beautiful picture." "Poor title—fair picture." "Star always dr ws." "Good picture."
OUTWITTED (Emily Stevens—Metro.)	Big	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"Story unusual—pleased" (E.). "Wonderful picture" (N.). "Exceptionally good feature" (W.). Fine picture, didn't draw" (S.).
OVER THERE (Charles Richman, Alice Q. Nielson—Sel.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good war picture—drew good business at advanced prices."
PAINTED MADONNA, THE (Sonia Markova—Fox)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave	"Good picture, star not known" (N.). "New star—did not draw" (W.).
PARADISE GARDEN (Harold Lockwood—Met.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Good picture, but long." "Star popular, photography fair, fair business." "Star very popular." "Subject excellent, photography delightful, star always draws." "Good story, but peculiar; beautiful scenery." "Very nice picture, Lockwood pretty good individual card." "Some picture—Lockwood gets me as much as Marguerite Clark." "Very good picture, little slow." "Patrons liked this best of all Lockwoods." (For previous comments, see issue of Dec. 22, 1917.)
PEGGY LEADS THE WAY (Mary Miles Minter— (Mut.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very popular star—appealing" (N.). "Fair picture." "Cute star, cute picture—pleased" (W.).
PLEASE HELP EMILY (Ann Murdock—Mut.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Light entertainment." "Not as good as other Empires." "Pleasing comedy drama."
PRICE MARK, THE (Dorothy Dalton—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture of its kind. Too suggestive" (Middle). "Picture more for the H.B. (high-brow) than the average. Bad start for this program here" (South). "Good picture, but did not draw." "Very good." "From moral view a little strong." "Entirely too suggestive."
PRINCESS OF PARK ROW (Mildred Manning—Vita.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture." "Good, but stars not known." "Good, Miss Manning excellent."
PRINCESS VIRTUE (Mae Murray—Blue.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very artistic picture." "Liked by some, not by others."
QUEEN X (Edna Goodrich—Mut.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very fair subject, star popular here." "Good picture." "Nothing to waste 5000 feet on" (E.). "Fair picture, star didn't show to advantage."
RASPUTIN, THE BLACK MONK (Montagu Love—World)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Extra big for program picture." "Great film, best World ever made." "Great—went over big." (For other comments, see issue of Dec. 29.)
REACHING FOR THE MOON (Douglas Fairbanks—(Art.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Good picture." "Kind of picture people like to see Fairbanks in, dressed in real clothes." "Decidedly divided opinion among patrons on merits of this—ranging from 'his best' to 'his worst.'"
REDEMPTION (Evelyn Nesbit Thaw—State R.)	Big	Extra	Big	Big	"An exceptionally good picture, well acted, good attendance at raised prices." (For other comment, see issue of Dec. 29.)
RISE OF JENNIE CUSHING (Elsie Ferguson—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good picture; as yet this star does not draw" (N.). "Too suggestive." "Good picture but only fair business."
SCANDAL (Constance Talmadge—Sel.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Splendid subject, beautiful settings, the kind of story the great majority of the fans want" (S.). "Splendid picture and star" (E.). "Fair picture—star is a real light and a comer" (N.). "Clever picture" (N.).
SCARLET PIMPERNEL (Dustin Farnum—Fox)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"No drawing power in title or costumes." "Costume play—N. G." (For other comment, see issue of Dec. 29.)
SEA MASTER, THE (William Russell—Mut.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"He is capable of better work." "Star a general favorite." "Not a children's picture." "Good fight picture." "Good—pleased generally" (W.).
SECRET GAME, THE (Sessue Hayakawa—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Great—one of the Jap's best yet" (W.).
SECRET OF THE STORM COUNTRY (Norma Talmadge—Sel.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Good picture; star always draws; best she has done." "Fairly good picture—star deserves better vehicle than this. In my opinion star in 6 months will be biggest box-office attraction in the business" (S.)
SHALL WE FORGIVE HER? (June Elvidge—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Only an average production."
SILENT MAN, THE (Wm. S. Hart—Art.)	Big	Big	Ave.	Big	"History repeats—they are killing off the Westerns" (W.). "Not up to Hart standard" (N.). "Hart pictures seem to all look alike, guns, cowboys, cards, saloons, gambling." "Give Hart a change, like 'Between Men'—dress him up, if only for a reel or two; my patrons say, 'The same old Hart with the same old gun.'"
SIRENS OF THE SEA (Jewel Production)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Patrons liked this" (N.).
SLEEPING MEMORY, A (Emily Stevens—Met.)	Ave.	Ave.	Poor	Ave.	"Very good picture, though too deep and too long" (W.). "Had some walkouts on this; only a fair play" (N.). (For other comment, see issue of Dec. 29.)
SNAP JUDGMENT (William Russell—Mut.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"One of Russell's best."
SOCIETY'S DRIFTWOOD (Grace Cunard—Butterfly)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good" (South).
SON OF HIS FATHER, THE (Charles Ray—Para.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Very good." "Average program picture." "Only average." "Good picture and the kind that pleases." "Kind that pleases all." "Ray more popular each picture" (W.). (For other comment, see issue of Dec. 29.).
SPREADING DAWN (Jane Cowl—Gold.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good picture, business poor." "Good star and story" (W.). "Went very well" (E.). "A very good picture." "Pleasing picture." "Picture well liked by those who saw it—Jane Cowl has no drawing power" (W.). (For other comment, see issue of Dec. 29.)
STAINLESS BARRIER, THE (Triangle Players—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture without a star." "Ordinary." "N. G." "Good title, poor story." "Not a picture to rave over."
SUNSET TRAIL, THE (Vivian Martin—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good show—fair star." "Good entertainment, fair business." "'A very big drawing card." "One of her best pictures." "Very pleasing." "This is a gem.' "A fine picture."
SUNSHINE ALLEY (Mae Marsh—Gold.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Fair picture, business bad." "Star never favorite here, production below Goldwyn standard." "Poor story, photography and star weak." "Patrons seemed pleased with this." "Good picture." "Story light, but entertaining, star is great, well liked." "Nothing to picture." "Just a moving picture, that's all." "Star too good for such a poor story." "Some picture." "Good picture." "Pleased, that's all."
THIS IS THE LIFE (George Walsh—Fox)	Ave.	Big	Big	Ave.	"Good comedy drama, star great." "Far superior to Fairbanks." "Star great." "Good picture, practically as good as Fairbanks." (For other comments, see issue of Dec. 29.)
THOU SHALT NOT STEAL (Virginia Pearson—Fox)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Too much of a detective drama." "Average feature—director-actor steals show from star." "Fair picture." "Poor picture." "Pleased nine tenths of patrons." "Pleased my audience, a good many said it was Miss Pearson's best." "Excellent picture, but V. P. does not draw here."
TROUBLE BUSTER, THE (Vivian Martin—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Well liked by patrons." "This picture nothing more than 2-reeler; poorest of hers yet, I think." "Good, clean picture, very entertaining." "Only fair." "Extra good."
UNFORESEEN, THE (Olive Tell—Mut.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Star unknown and a fair release." "Story no good."
UP OR DOWN (Geo. Hernandez—Tri.)					"Very poor picture" (N.). "Fair, that's all" (N.). "Fair production" (W.). "Rotten" (W.).
VOICE OF CONSCIENCE, THE (Bushman-Bayne—Met.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"An excellent picture." "This picture is good, I think star is getting better." "Fair picture." "One of the best pictures we have run this season—too much Bushman" (W.).
WAR AND THE WOMAN (Florence Labadie—Pathe)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good photography. Some striking effects." "As a whole too dry for a war picture." "Fair—too imaginary."
WHEN A MAN SEES RED (William Farnum—Fox St.)	Ave.	Big	Ave.	Big	"A very fine picture." "Good picture." "A good picture but it will take a little time to bring back this star." "One great show—star ditto."
WHIP, THE (All star cast—Paragon)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Return engagement almost equalled first showing" (E.). "Sort of picture you can count on almost anyone liking" (S.). "Very big on return" (W.). (For other comment, see issue of Dec. 29.).
WHO GOES THERE? (Harry Morey-Corinne Griffith—Vita.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Not up to standard" (S.). "Star popular, picture fine" (N.). "Stars appear lost—no acting—no punch; always expecting one and don't come" (W.).
WITHIN THE LAW (Joyce-Morey—Vita.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Very big, each day better." "Too long—great show, very interesting." "Picture good, but business slacking." "Alice Joyce is particularly well cast as Mary Turner. The subtitles make a fat part of Aggie Lynch." "A good picture with apparently no drawing power" (local). "Best picture I have seen in a long time." "A box-office record-smasher, everybody highly pleased."
WOMAN GOD FORGOT, THE (Geraldine Farrar—Art.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Most wonderful" (S.). "Remarkable production." "Story slight, costume plays not desirable." "All records broken." "No story, as usual with DeMille production" (W.). "Very fine." "Wonderful production but did not please—costume plays do not get the money." "Elegant, beautiful." "A great picture, well acted and directed, but our public will not stand for a costume picture." (For other comment, see issue of Dec. 22.).

Exhibitor Service Bureau

Beginning at the Very Beginning

Basic Talks About Type for Display Advertising with Specimens to Be Found in Smaller Offices

ONE thing which stands out at the opening of the new year is that exhibiting conditions must be improved, or that many of the theatres are going out of business. This is not a reflection on the industry, but on conditions for which the individual sufferers themselves are largely responsible. And probably the greatest improvement is needed in the department of exploitation.

Increased business, or rather a wider appeal, is necessary. Many managers of motion picture theatres complain that a percentage of their best patrons have been taken away with the call to arms—that scores of the young men who flocked to the pictures are no longer possible patrons. It is apparent, then, that there should be a greater effort made to appeal to those who rarely or never visit a theatre. The answer to that is advertising.

Writing to the Motion Picture News, one of the most notable men in the industry praised the advertising suggestions made in these columns, but added that he doubted their value because of the fact that the greater portion of the exhibitors either believe that they already knew all about advertising, or care nothing about it. This is probably true to an extent, but it is equally true that the exhibitors must become alive to the value of advertising and become trained as good advertisers if they are to get the most out of their possibilities.

It may strike some of the readers as peculiar that the highest praise for this department has come from theatres that are leaders among advertisers, for they say that they have been able to get great benefits from it. On the other hand the smaller exhibitors have asked how they might accomplish these results. Last week we laid the basis for talks on displays in towns and cities where the facilities of the newspapers are limited and discussed some specimen advertising taken from small city dailies. But the exhibitors where there are only weeklies need help—and there are scores of others who are not educated in the fundamental principle of display writing. And so let us get right down to the ground floor.

On the opposite page we are illustrating some of the standard "faces" of type, some that should be found in the smallest newspaper office. These are basic types of the business for real display purposes. You will note that we have not selected types with the so-called fancy faces, because they should be avoided so far as possible in newspaper displays. Nor have we pictured the latest and some of the most desirable faces because they will not be found in the smaller offices, as a rule. In other words, we are going to start to work with the material that every newspaper office ought to have on hand. But we can at least show a great many of you how to improve on what you are doing, and with this simple material.

In the first place, in writing an advertisement, avoid the use of too many different kinds of type. It takes a real expert to use several different faces and get anything but a confusing effect. It is a good rule not to try to use more than two or three different styles in the same display. Last week we recommended to you to get a name plate, a design for your theatre—one that would be distinctive. That recommendation is repeated here. Besides the name of the theatre there are two main things that you want to bring out in the ordinary advertisement, the name of the star and the title of the picture. As a general rule it is advisable to use the same style of type for both. These should be large and commanding enough to hit one squarely in the face. As an ordinary rule the name of the star should be in capital letters; the title may be in lower case or caps.

Now the various standard faces of type and their modifications are known by names, but at the same time there are various forms of different types. For instance, in the case of Gothic there is the straight Gothic face, then extended Gothic, condensed Gothic and light Gothic. In cases of many of the types there is also an Italic face, as Cheltenham Italic, etc. (For the information of those who know nothing about type, the Italic is the "slanting letter type." The word Italic is not itself the name of any type, but of the peculiar modification of a type.

As soon as we start this discussion scores of the exhibitors will say to themselves: "What's the use of my trying to learn about type? That's the printer's business. I write out my advertising and send it to him and let him do the rest." And they do, and that is the reason that the average display of a theatre looks like it was slapped together in the quickest manner possible. It is human nature to take advantage of the ignorant, no matter whether any fraud is intended or not. If you leave the impression with the printer that you know nothing and that any old thing will get by you, you are pretty apt to get "any old thing."

Several times before we have advised you, no matter the size of your theatre, to get into close touch with the man on your paper who has charge of setting up the advertising. That stands as good advice, but it's a whole lot better to add the knowledge of knowing what you want and being able to direct the printer along the right lines. It is the same argument that the printer knows more about his business than you do. But certainly you ought to know more about motion pictures than he and know what you want emphasized. You put the idea to him; if necessary leave it to him to accomplish the more mechanical results.

Now to get back to the preparation of advertisement. Here is the proper method of design. Take a piece of white paper and draw off the exact space that is to be filled. That will enable you to get your sense of proportion. Preferably at the top of the display indicate the place and space for the name design of your theatre. Then indicate the border around your advertisement. Then take up the matter that you have to say. First, the star and the title. Among the common faces that ought to be available everywhere are Gothic, especially Gothic Condensed, Caslon (which is a very wide type and admits few letters), DeVinne Condensed, Cheltenham Bold, Caslon Old Style and Century.

Jensen is a lighter type than any of these others mentioned, and especially in both lower case and in Italic it forms an excellent type for use in descriptive matter about pictures or stars—where you want to say something about the picture that is not dominant, but still will add to the display.

Now just a word of comment about Gothic. This is the commonest form of type. In the Condensed form it is the printer's delight because he is able to get so many more words in a line. While a heavy type, it is plain and attractive. At the same time it is more often used than any other type, and you will find that your advertisement in this type does not get away from those of the various merchants. Another temptation about this type is for the printer to use it all the way through the display because it saves time—all the sizes being in the same case—and because there is probably a larger amount of this on hand than any other.

There isn't anything that could look worse than an entire advertisement set in Gothic, for the whole effect will be black, and probably smudged.

Cheltenham is an attractive type and DeVinne is of similar style except considerably heavier. There is a type not to be confused with DeVinne, one of similar face except much more condensed, and that is Howland, a type that will be found in most offices. It is too thin a type to be used in any except very large sizes and leaves a "fancy" effect.

Let us repeat a good general rule: avoid the frills in type. Use those faces that are easily read, that stand out and smash you in the face.

(Continued on page 82)

Some Specimens of Type Found in Every Newspaper Office

Here are illustrated the faces, in various sizes, of the "stand-bys" in type. These are shown as a basis for articles on the preparation of advertising copies in small cities and in towns where the facilities are very limited. The article on the opposite page discusses the first steps that should be taken by the small exhibitor and what he will probably be able to find in his newspaper office.

GOT
48 pt. Gothic Caps

GOT
42 pt. Gothic Caps

GOTHI
36 pt. Gothic Caps

GOTHIC
30 pt. Gothic Caps

GOTHIC
48 pt. Gothic Condensed Caps

GOTHIC C
36 pt. Gothic Condensed Caps

GOTHIC CA
30 pt. Gothic Condensed Caps

CHELT
48 pt. Cheltenham Bold Caps

CHELTE
36 pt. Cheltenham Bold Caps

CHELTENH
30 pt. Cheltenham Bold Caps

CHELTENHA
24 pt. Cheltenham Bold Caps

CHEL
48 pt. Cheltenham Italic Caps

Chelten
48 pt. Cheltenham Italic Lower Case

CHELTE
36 pt. Cheltenham Italic Caps

Cheltenham
36 pt. Cheltenham Italic Lower Case

CHELTEN
30 pt. Cheltenham Italic Caps

Cheltenham
30 pt. Cheltenham Italic Lower Case

CHELTENHA
24 pt. Cheltenham Italic Caps

Cheltenham
24 pt. Cheltenham Italic Lower Case

CHELTENHAM
18 pt. Cheltenham Italic Caps

Cheltenham
18 pt. Cheltenham Italic Lower Case

DEVIN
48 pt. DeVinne Condensed Caps

DEVINNE
36 pt. DeVinne Condensed Caps

DeVinne
36 pt. DeVinne Condensed Lower Case

JENSE
48 pt. Jensen Caps

JENSEN
36 pt. Jensen Caps

Jensen
36 pt. Jensen Lower Case

JENSEN
24 pt. Jensen Caps

Jensen
24 pt. Jensen Lower Case

JENSEN
18 pt. Jensen Caps

Jensen
18 pt. Jensen Lower Case

CASL
48 pt. Caslon Caps

CASLO
36 pt. Caslon Caps

CASLON
18 pt. Lining Caslon Caps

Caslon
18 pt. Lining Caslon Lower Case

Seeing the Rialto with Rothapfel

WHEN we left Mr. Rothapfel early Sunday evening he was going home to get his first sleep in three days. He hadn't had his clothes off in that time. In the first place he was kept mighty busy getting ready for the opening of the Rivoli, Thursday, and then he had to build up this week's show for the Rialto. Under such circumstances most exhibitors would have allowed the Rialto to get along the best way it could this week, but that's not Rothapfel's way. He never lets down. He's ever on the job, no matter the personal sacrifice. And remember that Mr. Exhibitor the next time you say that you will let your show get along by itself for a few days. Never let down.

There is a remarkable Christmassy bill at the Rialto this week, and most of the things recorded here any exhibitor could do on a lesser scale. It's a mighty good thing to plan for the special weeks like this. All over the country the exhibitor says "bad business" at this holiday week, but the answer was shown Sunday when there was a never disappearing line before the Rialto. Why? Because the public knew that Rothapfel would give them something worth while for the holidays—and the public was not disappointed.

It is a remarkable bill in that every number was heavily applauded. Miss Ball got less than any of the others, but this was because her bow was badly timed. She was immediately called into the manager's office and at the next performance she got her full "hand." The Christmas spirit prevails through the bill. And this reminds us of a statement made to us after the performance by another exhibitor. He said: "I was surprised that Rothapfel put that Petrova picture on 'cold.' Especially since he is a member of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit (which releases it), I thought that he would do all sorts of novelties with it." Mr. Exhibitor may read the answer here. The Petrova picture, "A Daughter of Destiny," is a remarkable film with great patriotic appeal—so much that it often awoke the audience to frantic applause—but it was not a Chrismassy picture. Rothapfel wanted to leave the Christmas spirit in every one, wanted them to go home in love with the world—and every one did. Had he made the feature stand out above everything else he would have achieved an opposite effect And yet some people say that there is no psychology in motion picture exhibition.

Even in the lightings there was the Christmas spirit, the red and green, the Christmas colors prevailing except when some other effect was needed. "Merry Wives of Windsor," the overture, had the gladsome spirit all the way through it, and rarely has an overture received such applause. When they first started out Mr. Rothapfel said to us: "The orchestra looks like it felt mighty fit today." And the applause showed how right he was.

At the end of the overture every light in the house was out and on either side of the screen tiny lights gleamed up in a couple of large Christmas trees. More applause? And then came a little act, "Santa Claus Workship," arranged by Helen Moller. It introduced three little tots and Santa and scored an immense hit. Almost any theatre could put a thing like this on and have itself talked about for months. "Dolly Dancers" was played during this selection.

Then came "Water Powers of Western Canada." This Essanay scenic was magnificent, and some magnificent music had to accompany it, and Mr. Rothapfel selected "Orgy of the Spirits," weird, majestic, uncanny music.

Then came the Rialto quartet, singing "The First Nowell," an old French Christmas song. At the end of this the lights again dimmed and "Silent Holy Night" was sung, with the lights gradually coming into the two Christmas trees toward the end. The effect was most convincing. At the same time the chimes added a touch. During all of these two selections the curtains over the panels at the sides were parted showing water scenes.

The Animated Magazine is "different" this week and the happy spirit prevails through it. It starts with "Janitor de Luke," a travesty on the coal situation here, showing a tenant telephoning his janitor for heat—and getting it. To this was played "Come Across," which added the suggestion that the janitor was looking for Christmas tips. Pictures of American ambulances in France and especially the scenes showing Gen. Pershing, got tremendous applause. "Here They Come" was the music. Following this was a scene showing the President's granddaughter putting a Red Cross flag in the White House window, to the strains of "Onward, Christian Soldiers." Then came the fire chief's warning against candles with the Red Cross flags. Next was laying the keel of a submarine destroyer in Newark, which was shown to a march with imitations or the hammer blows and the whistles. French artillerymen warming up was shown with "My Dough Boy" and some little effects of the "Marseillaise." This continued through a clever cartoon showing two little French children asking a soldier whether he was the American Santa Claus. Ice boatitng on the Shrewsbury River, N. J., was presented with "Petersburg Sleigh Ride," bringing in all the sleigh bell effects. With the 'cello effect this continued through pictures of Central Park's animals in winter, and then artists making snow figures of celebrities. This was followed quickly by a cartoon of the favorite snowman this year, bringing out the Kaiser and every one attacking him with snowballs. Show to Hebert's "Wooden Shoe Dance." A Katzenjammer cartoon ended the weekly and left them all laughing.

After Miss Mary Ball had sung "Hail, Ye Tyme of Holidayes," the feature was shown and this was followed by the orchestra playing Bizet's "Carillon." The chimes figures runs through the selection, continuing the Christmas effect.

Then came the Metro-Drew comedy, "The Spirit of Merry Christmas," which was based on the spirit of giving "useful gifts" this year. It got all sorts of laughs as it was being shown and a big applause at the end.

Everybody was in a good humor then. "Just watch the audience going out," said Mr. Rothapfel. "They're all singing or laughing or whistling." They were, for the Christmas spirit was fully aroused in them.

This Week at the Strand

WITH the feature picture, Marguerite Clark in the fairy story, "The Seven Swans," there is a Christmas bill at the Strand this week and there are several interesting things done to add to the spirit. It may be said that this program has been specially arranged for its appeal to the children.

A striking effect is achieved at the start of the performance when the curtain comes up for the overture with the lights out, and as the orchestra begins to play "Christmas Morning" one gets the effect of moonlight on the water, the arrival of Santa, and with all of this the falling snow, and then the clouds passing away in the morning.

Under the heading of "Our Christmas Wishes" there followed another novelty, a cartoon showing the Allies hanging up their stockings and Santa bringing them a box containing the legend, "Peace on Earth and Good Will to Men."

program was "Children's Pets," a picture specially made for Educational Films to be shown at this time. The animals, especially the ourang-atang, who had trouble getting his things out of the stocking, kept the audience in a gale of laughter throughout.

The topical this week starts with the fire warning and then includes sailors and soldiers at football, in San Diego, the "cut-a-cord-of-wood" movement in Massachusetts; the Weehawken trolley wreck, a snow battleship at Union Hill, N. J.; American sculptors in the snow making figures of Uncle Sam and Wilson; a scenic of Belle Isle, off the coast of France; the return of Col. House, and then the American ambulance in France. It ends with a clever Bobby Bumps animated cartoon.

Another big hit was scored by the first of the Flagg series, "Girls You Know." It was "The Screen Fan" and riotously funny.

How the St. Denis theatre, Montreal, used a limousine in advertising "Nearly Married." This machine is often employed in exploiting pictures at the St. Denis.

Cleveland Theatre Offers Auto Expert's Services for All of Its Patrons Free

KNICKERBOCKER theatre, a splendid residential house at Euclid Avenue and Eighty-third Street, Cleveland, Ohio, is making an unusual appeal to patrons owning automobiles and so successful has it been that there is a large auto patronage, many of whom come from the Euclid Heights and Shaker Lakes sections of the city.

One who is not familiar with the policies of the Knickerbocker would probably be startled when one saw the following slide appear on the screen:

AUTO SERVICE

The management wishes you to call on them if you experience any motor trouble after attending the Knickerbocker.

Every evening many of the girls drive their big brothers' or parents' cars to the theatre, and so this service was inaugurated to take care of the patrons who were ignorant of the mechanics of a car. But the experience of the thinking manager, Emery Newell Downs, has been that many men come with the complaint that their machines are in trouble and call for the services of the expert.

Mr. Downs himself is the expert in question. He looks over the cars and sees what is the matter and then his negro manager does the rough work. In addition the Knickerbocker has arrangements with a progressive garage which employs a big red trouble car with a steamboat whistle, and when some particularly complicated case confronts him he calls the "wagon" at the expense of the house.

This is the sort of service most every manager could build up. He probably has some one in his employ who knows enough about an auto to attend to minor troubles and he can make arrangements with a garage for the r[illegible]bus matters. It is not [illegible] but it assures when they visit this theatre and that they auto patrons that they are perfectly "safe" are sure to get home again. It would do wonders in building up new trade.

Emery Newell Downs

Not only does Mr. Downs look after his auto patrons, but all the others as well.

Mr. Downs is a Brooklyn product and started in the business reafing and revising travel lectures in Keith and Proctor houses in New York. Then he was promoted to manager for F. F. Proctor in Plainfield, N. J., and later went to Perth Amboy. He was the first man to make money at the old Criterion theatre, on the Board Walk, Atlantic City. After that he took a theatre and then went to Cleveland, where he has [illegible] of the Knickerbocker [illegible]

Montreal Manager Uses Auto in Successful Exploitations

ST. DENIS THEATRE, Montr[illegible] which is under the able managemer of Roland Roberts, is an example of or of the houses that is constantly usir something new.

During the presentation of "Near Married," the Goldwyn picture in wh Madge Kennedy is starred, a limous was employed to excellent advantages. the back and sides of the machine houette figures of bride and groom w pasted to the windows, giving the pearance of being seen through the dr curtains. The word "Nearly Marr appeared on the front windows, bu remained for the back of the machin tell the whole story.

Mr. Roberts is a great believer in automobile as a method of adverti This same machine was used during recent Victory Loan Parade in Mon On the back of the machine there advertised the fact that the entire receipts of the house that day wou invested in Victory Bonds. The was one of the biggest attendances history of the house.

Mr. Roberts is careful not to ov the use of such stunts. He finc effective only when they are use pectedly.

The first theatre managed Roberts was the Regent in Toro probably one of the most succe the country. It is one of the few tha gets 35 cents for the orchestra seats every evening performance. This hou has a seating capacity of 1,800, an o chestra of eighteen and an immense pi organ. The company operating the Rege then took over the St. Denis and M Roberts was placed in charge. This hou seats 3,000 and is able to play the bigg

Your Idea---and Ours

( ) UEEN theatre, Galveston, Texas, is making its advertising stand out s ikingly by the use of distinctive borders. I re is one that illustrates the point. By u ng the tile or checkerboard effect the re ult is achieved of making the sides of e advertisement appear like the walls of heatre and the display matter somewhat resent the screen. The eye is immedi- ly focused on the type matter. This ertisement would have been more effec- e in large space had there been more ite space left between the border and the nouncement.

Many other specimens of advertising lm the Queen show the fullest appreciа- of the worth of border effects. There nothing in the world like making r advertising stand out as distinctive. ether they realize it or not, hundreds ewspaper readers will be keeping their enen to "see what the Queen is going awthis week."

ed

ting it over on the public" is easy but you'll find that it doesn't pay he public, all in a bunch, puts it over

SND theatre, New Orleans, devotes ll page in the Christmas issues of the papers to talking about itself. Tuse takes up a discussion from something of a war angle. It makes its appeal to the busy men and women who are devoting all of their energies through the day to work, either in business or in war work. And then it appeals to the human side, the need of rest and recreation. It recites the things that the Strand is doing to make the tired business man forget. It talks about the orchestra, the lighting, the topical review, the scenic, the entire program at the theatre. It's good reading matter and we wish that we could reprint it in big enough type for you to read it all.

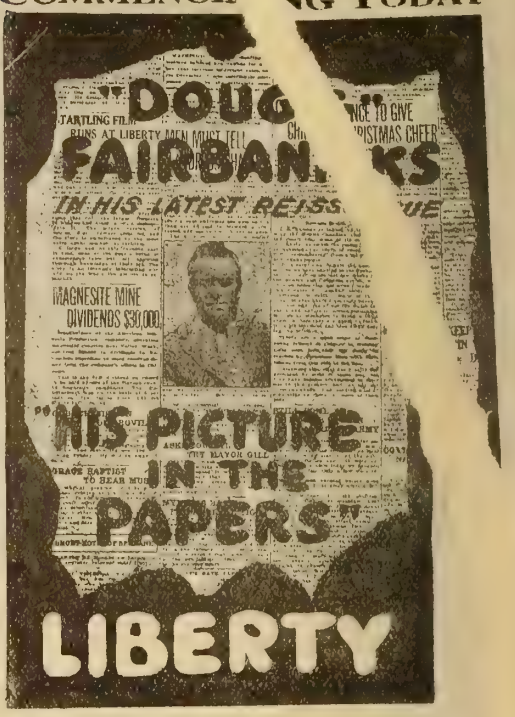
A great many of you exhibitors will ask why the Strand "wasted" a whole page of newspaper space to talk about generalities. This is the best sort of seasonal publicity. It is a talk with the patrons without being a direct appeal for business. It is the discussion of the "reasons why" of the picture theatre. It is the sort of advertising that will cause people who never visit a motion picture theatre to wonder if they are not really worth while.

The best "trust" you can form is with enterprise, ideas and ambition.



MANAGER CHARLES ENGLEBRECHT of the Regent theatre, Arlington, N. J., negotiated an excellent lobby display when he showed the Metro production of "Draft 258." The entire lobby was decorated with American flags and everywhere there were many stills from the picture used. An absence of a bunch of three sheets and a display in keeping with the dignity of any theatre was one of the features of the exploitation.

At one side of the lobby the floor was covered with sand and a regulation army tent set up. In front of this was placed a bench, stacked guns and a tripod hanging over a pile of wood. Under this was a red electric light to give the fire effect. As a matter of fact, this was a very sim-

COMMENCI NG TODAY

HERE is a most original advertisement of the Liberty theatre, Spokane, Wash. We have already called your attention to the fact that the theatres of the extreme Northwest seem to be the most enterprising in their use of space. They are not afraid to get out into the open, spend some money and take their chances of getting the business. The result is that there is probably a greater degree of prosperity in the motion picture exhibition business there than in any other entire section of the nation.

Liberty theatre was playing a re-issue of one of the Douglas Fairbanks pictures and the manager wanted to do something out of the ordinary. So he simply took a portion of a page of a Spokane newspaper and had the artist letter over it and at the same time pasted into the page a proof of a cut of Fairbanks in such a manner that it gave the impression of being a part of the paper itself. It said "his picture in the paper." The irregular black border made the display stand out against the solid "text" of the news columns of the paper.

"Don't start anything that you can't stop" used to be a slang expression. Nowadays it should be start things that won't stop, things that will keep going along of their own momentum.

OUT of all the striking advertising that has been called to our attention recently, here is the most striking use of half-tones that we have yet seen. Note that the picture of the girl dominates. It attracts immediate attention to the small amount of reading matter. Neither the names of the stars or the title of the picture are used in large type. They don't have to be, for this display has done the one thing of arousing the curiosity of everyone and there probably is not a person out of all the readers of the Cleveland newspapers that will pass over this advertisement of the [illegible] theatre.

When [illegible]

What Live Wires Are Doing

put in it something that the public cannot miss. The manager of the Standard had plenty of room to use "box car" letters—big type for the name of the players and the title and a chance to say all sorts of sensational things about the film, but instead of that he used a picture of the girl as she appears in the picture—and he made the public go to the theatre to find out what it was all about.

Something to say in your advertisement? Then say it and quit. These are too busy times for echoes.

EDISON is creating something new in poster advertising in connection with the "Girls You Know," which are being produced under the personal direction of James Montgomery Flagg, the noted artist. There will be twelve of these single reels of "social satires" which will be released through the George Kleine system, the first being "The Screen Bride."

Single sheets in colors made by Mr. Flagg to represent the types that are pictured in the particular story are being used in place of the ordinary poster. These are bound to attract attention and if these are carefully framed by the exhibitors they will give an artistic touch to the lobby and get away from the lurid sort of paper that has caused so much complaint from exhibitors.

Make TOMORROW come in your theatre TODAY. And your opposition will be with YESTERDAY.

HERE is another excellent specimen of color posters, which is being used by Goldwyn in exploiting the first of the Mary Garden pictures. While the black and white reproduction fails to do anything like justice to the work, all of these posters bear large pictures of the star and a minimum of reading matter.

The point which is to be brought out by the exhibitor is the great popularity of Miss Garden, who is known the world over. For that reason the figure of the star has been used strikingly in all of the poster work. There is one lithograph one-sheet for lobby or window purposes, two three-sheets especially designed for smaller locations and then the two twenty-four sheets and a six-sheet that is unusually striking. Exhibitors are being urged by Goldwyn to make special displays in store windows in connection with merchants who sell perfumes, candies, etc., bearing the name of the singer.

COLISEUM theatre, Seattle, Wash., has been commended here many times for its excellence in advertising. Here is one of the most effective that has ever been used anywhere, and with a minimum of reading matter. Note that this display, which used a full four columns of the newspaper is occupied largely by cuts and that the only printed matter besides the name of the theatre is the announcement of the star, the title and a reference to Thomas Meigham.

We had a letter a few days ago that asked us why we kept printing reproductions of good advertising. For the same reason that the allies keep on hurling big shells into the trenches of the Germans—to wear them down and make them get the point of view of world democracy. There are a few essentials in learning to write advertising copy and one of the first of these is to persuade the manager that it is worth while to use newspaper space—just about five times as much as the average manager thinks is "necessary." We wish that we had the space here to reproduce these displays in their full size.

Ten dollars invested is worth a hundred "spent." Put thought behind your dollars when you use them.

The manager who argues with a patron about the merits of a picture the latter has seen is unwittingly inviting that patron to look for the worst in other pictures.

Lobby Display at Eighty-first Street Theatre, New York, on "The Painted Doll"

Beginning at the Very Beginning in Preparation of Your Newspaper Ads

(Continued from page 76)

Two of the types most commonly found in small newspaper offices are Rubens and Script in its various forms. Let these carefully alone. Some printers may think they are "artistic," but in our opinion they are about as messy as they can be. Rubens is one of the old time types, and you will generally find it around country paper offices. It tries to give the "fancy" effect and fails, and added to this it is hard to read. Script type is supposed to be in imitation of engraving, but no one looks for engraving in a newspaper and the type carries no punch.

Now, before we go any further: Look over the types illustrated here, get familiar with the names, and familiar with the various sizes—how they will look in your advertisement. Then go to your newspaper and see which of these he has—he probably has them all, and what other plain, striking types he may offer.

In cases where exhibitors learn of types that are in his newspaper office and which are not illustrated here, we will be very glad to tell the showman in a personal letter the uses of these various types. All that is necessary is to send the name of the type; reproduction is unnecessary.

Now let us continue the writing of this imaginary advertisement. Select the type that you like the best and that is available. Draw these letters into the advertisement as near the exact size as possible and then draw a line out to the margin and indicate the type and size type you want used for these letters, as: "48 Pt. Cheltenham Bold." You have the name of the star and the title cared for. Now take the descriptive matter and govern the size of the type by the amount of matter that you must use—always remembering that the less the better—and set this either in Italic or one of the lighter faces, also indicating this in the margin. Naturally this subsidiary matter should not be in type sufficiently large to muddle the main display. It should get the effect of the eye dropping to it; of matter that does not have to be read unless the reader is interested.

There may be other pictures. These should be advertised in caps, and may be in the same type as that of the feature, but it is better to use a somewhat different face.

Now just using the types that we have illustrated here, and adding the cuts that we have always advised to use, take a specimen of one of the advertisements you yourself have planned to the printer, ask his best assistance and see the improvement that you have already made.

At first this basic study of advertising is going to be very dry reading for you, but we will be very much surprised if every exhibitor who devotes a few hours this week to a careful digest of this article, and to a close survey of the types reproduced, will find himself becoming fascinated with the study of display writing. And the interest will grow by leaps and bounds as his own advertisements begin to appear and as the results begin to show in the box office this work is likely to become something of a passion with the theatre manager.

But like other things, nothing can be done for you unless you show the interest in the first place. The Motion Picture News is devoting its talent and space to help you make a more successful exhibitor. Your co-operation is your interest.

Kashin Shows Broadway Can Have Effective Lobby Displays

FOR the first time in the history of Broadway, Kashin put out a lobby display for one of the street's theatres. The occasion was the presentation at the Eighty-first street theatre, of "The Painted Doll," one of the products of the Russian Art Films distributed through Pathe Exchange, Inc.

Mr. Kashin's services were secured by the producers, this being a new departure in the film world, for, unlike other forms of commerce, the producer has never gone to the trouble of dressing up the retailer's window, that is, the exhibitor's lobby.

Another very interesting fact connected with Mr. Kashin's display at the Eighty-first street theatre is that business was exceptionally good, despite the fact that the Eighty-first street house caters little to transients. It has been indisputably proven that Mr. Kashin's style of lobby display is effective even in districts devoid of transients. These displays are evidently subjects for discussion at the dinner table. We might also add that this display was out during the week before Christmas, which is certainly a very bad time for business.

Mr. Kashin's display for "The Painted Doll" was effective through its simplicity. It boosted two things: the theme of the story, and—Russian Art Films. Russian literature and drama, it must be admitted, need a little introduction to the class of patronage in the Eighty-first street theatre. The display was built in the first lobby or vestibule. One one side were two marble columns, supporting an arch, and between the columns was a marble bust of Pushkin, the author of the story from which the film was adapted. The same kind of columns were on the other side of the vestibule, with a statue of Mozukin, the star of the play. Suitable legends were displayed. The ceiling of the vestibule is vaulted, thus leaving an arch above the entrance doors. The ceiling was given a sky effect, and on the arch above the doors was hung a drop, showing the skyline of Petrograd. From the lower tip of a moon, a huge gilded cage was suspended. In this gilded cage a woman knelt imprisoned.

The effect produced upon the onlooker was as though he stood in a museum, viewing an allegorical stage setting. The colors and light effects cannot be recorded on paper, but they gave the whole display an atmosphere of exclusiveness, of refinement,—such as one naturally connects with the classics. The allusions to literature interested the lover of the classics, while his less serious-minded companion had his fancy tickled by the hint of the story, which has to do with an absorbing domestic question. A woman, wife of a toiler, is dissatisfied with her lot, and enjoys the companionship of her husband's wealthy employer, but she finds out that the life she longed for, is a gilded cage, keeping the souls of its partakers in shackles of ennui. No better idea of expressing the idea could have been used, other than the gilded cage.

Rothapfel's Answers to Exhibitors

Mr. Rothapfel Will Answer Here Any Questions Regarding Problems in Exhibition. The Only Conditions Are That the Questions Must Not Bear on the Merits of Particular Pictures or Services and That They Must Come Through the NEWS. Address Your Inquiries "ROTHAPFEL ADVICE, EXHIBITORS' SERVICE BUREAU, MOTION PICTURE NEWS."

V—I have an orchestra of six pieces and tried at first to give overtures. However, I found that the audiences were impatient through these selections. Don't you think that it is more advisable to center the efforts of the musicians and omit the overture? People in this section are accustomed to long shows and expect nine or ten reels of pictures.—1,000 SEAT HOUSE.

IT appears to me that you have made the serious mistake of trying to go into deep water when you were not even able to swim.

It is rather difficult to play overtures and big numbers with an orchestra of six pieces unless special arrangements are made and special instrumentations written which, of course, would have to be done by a very clever arranger. You would also have to have exceptionally good instrumentals to be played to do justice to it. Have a little entree act; give your little prelude—some pretty little motives that relate to the pictures and have them devoted to their subject, making them interpret the picture better instead of trying to play a big number with six men.

I wish to here give my opinion on something: It is not the number of pieces that count so much in the interpretation of pictures—although, of course, big orchestras help. It is the way you handle it and a great many times, in a dramatic moment, one violin or a piano alone, is much more effective than an orchestra of fifty pieces. Just see if you can't do some little tricks. Try one or two during a performance and see how the audience will grasp it.

You also probably make the serious mistake of overdoing the thing and make it too long. This is a terrible fault and makes your audience become restless. Rather too short than too long. Remember that and never, if possible, have an encore. Start "snappy"; light down once in a while for a little shade and then bring up again for lighting. Use light and shade but don't stop. Have every unit thoroughly connected.

People in your section may be accustomed to long shows and expect nine or ten reels, but the fellow who is really successful in his business does not always give them what they expect and if you can gradually force down from nine to eight or about eight thousand feet of real stuff—never mind the fillers, disregard them—everyone will have enough entertainment. Don't advertise how many reels you are going to run. That is a thing of the past. The SUBJECT counts now, whether it be two hundred feet or ten thousand feet.

VI—Noted your answer last week to the inquiry about vaudeville. I am running a neighborhood house and vaudeville is hurting my business, but at the same time it is hurting the other fellows just as bad. It had come to be the fad to play a musical comedy or dramatic sketch once or twice a week. If I do not play these my opposition gets the business, but at the same time I know that the opposition cannot make money for I know what he has to pay the performers, unless he fills the rest of the program with the cheapest sort of old pictures. I appeal to a medium class neighborhood and really high class music is over the heads ot my patrons.—NEIGHBOR.

I THINK I can answer your question best by referring you to my answer in last week's NEWS to the question concerning vaudeville. The only thing I might add is that you appear to know just as much about your competitor's business as you do about your own.

Frankly, I think you can surely improve your performance. Your statement that high-class music goes over the heads of your patrons is rather vague to me. What do you call "high-class music?" All music—even rag time—can be high-class if properly interpreted. There is a little story about one of Irving Berlin's compositions going over to Vienna and being given to one of the great composers of music in the conservatory there. After he had sat down and adjusted his glasses he slowly interpreted the syncopated time that made Berlin famous and, as he gradually got the rhythm, he became excited and called in all the other professors and held a consultation over it and declared it to be a marvel in construction. The piece became the rage in Vienna and was played in all the coffee houses and gardens and yet, in our own country, if you would ask a big concert conductor to play Irving Berlin he would look at you in astonishment and believe you to be a fit subject for the "daffy house." We have a big orchestra here, yet we delight in playing a good syncopated number if it is well constructed and not maudlin.

All good music is high-class, just the same as is everything else. It is either good or bad. What I think you mean is that if you endeavor to give your patrons Beethoven, Schubert, or Chopin—works of composers of that calibre—they will probably tire because, first, the audience does not understand and, second, because your musicians probably don't know how to interpret it. Nevertheless, go right straight down to the things that they understand and start with simplicity, then develop and unconsciously you will advance and get a better standard and you will wonder why you didn't do it long ago. Don't make your selections too long. Don't make the serious mistake of making noise rather than giving quality and tone production and good taste.

Finally, mind your own business. Concentrate on your own theatre and use that energy for yourself that you have given someone else and which did you very little, if any, good.

VII—How can I produce some of the lighting effects which I read about in "Seeing the Rialto with Rothapfel" without a very expensive installation? Electric power is comparatively cheap here, but I would like to get an idea what can be done in a 600 seat house without practically rebuilding it.—TENNESSEE.

WHEN I first started in my little theatre in Forrest City with 250 undertaker's chairs, a second hand piano, a second hand projection machine and an improvised screen, I used lighting effects—not, of course, as elaborately as I am doing today, but I used them. Of course I can't tell you here how to do it, but I can say that you can create these effects by spot lights; you can create them by reflectors; you can do a lot of things if you will only try to get some effect. Sit down now and concentrate. Study your theatre. Look it over carefully and see if you cannot evolve some scheme as nature does. Remember the sun rises from the East and goes from a blue sky, early in the morning, to a bright red, then to yellow and white—at noon. Then it goes down the other way, from white to yellow and from yellow to red, then to purple, blue and finally green and it is night again. There is the whole secret of lighting. It is up to you to evolve something. If you can't get a dimmer in your house go to an electrician; he will make one for you and, with four lamps, properly controlled, you can create some very beautiful effects. This is merely an idea. If you will get one idea, all by yourself, and tell me what it is, I will give you another. If you get two ideas, I will send you two more. I promise to do this for you if you will tell me exactly what your house is like and what kind of a show you give. I am willing to give you my time against yours. For each effect you send me, I will send you one; for each two I will send you two. I can't be any fairer, can I?

VIII—My principal opposition has inaugurated smoking in some theatres. I find that this is popular with certain elements, yet it seems to me that it drives women and children away. It is suggested to me that I should make my theatre more strongly appeal to this non-smoking element. I have a pipe organ but no orchestra and it would be impossible to rebuild my house to afford retiring rooms because the ground plot is too small and part of the building is rented for business purposes—over which I have no control.—ALAMO.

BECAUSE your principal competitor has inaugurated smoking in his theatres, don't you do this in your theatre unless you feel it is going to help you in your business in such a way that it will pay you for dirtying up your theatre, for beclouding your atmosphere with various kinds of smoke, for, as you say, keeping women and children away, for lowering the environment and atmosphere of your house, developing an odor which is very hard to eliminate and, because of the smoke, beclouds the air thus hindering greatly your projection. If you can make smoking pay enough to overbalance all these things and it is a case of life or death with you as to whether or not your theatre keeps open, I would then, and then only, advise you to let them smoke because your competitor lets them smoke.

WAR TIME PRESCRIPTION

℞
— Talk cheerfully
— Avoid Arguments
— Stop fretting
— Smile
— Get out of yourself
— Go to the Movies
at least twice a Week

Maurice Rosenberg
M. D.

FLEMING & REAVELY Inc., NEW YORK

N. Y. Doctor Prescribes "Go-to-the-Movies" for Holidays

"TALK cheerfully. Avoid arguments. Stop fretting. Smile. Get out of yourself. Go to the movies at least twice a week."

This is the "prescription" that Dr. Maurice Rosenberg, a prominent New York physician, has prepared to advance the "Go-to-the-Movie-Week" among the exhibitors of the country.

Dr. Rosenberg is sincere in his belief that the state of public mind, as the Nation goes deeper into war, will be spiritually uplifted if citizens will take these precepts to heart and be governed accordingly.

Exhibitors who are advancing the movement to have, in their town, a "Go-to-the-Movie-Week," just as other firms have "grand openings," special sales and bargain weeks in various lines of business, will find the "Doctor's Orders" a helpful boost to the idea Universal is energetically promoting.

Rothapfel Answers Exhibitors of Country About Their Problems

(Continued from page 83)

There is a great deal of "bunk" about rest rooms and retiring rooms and all that stuff and a great many theatres make so much of their rest rooms and retiring rooms that you would think they were running a lounging house instead of a theatre. The primary function of a theatre is to entertain and if you can entertain the people from the moment they enter your theatre until they leave you are succeeding. The psychology of the theatre-going public is to get to the seats as soon as possible so as to not miss anything and a very small percentage look for a retiring room. Of course it is good policy to have conveniences for your public that are absolutely necessary and those that are most simple and most effective. Simplicity is always in good taste and I know patrons would rather have a clean wooden bench —clean, understand me—than a doubtful upholstered divan that has been used by many and looks entirely fagged out. Make your auditorium comfortably restful. See that there are no lights shining in people's faces. If possible have everything reflected and refracted; by that I mean almost an indirect system. Go out and get a few evergreens and stick them around your theatre so it will look more "homey." Have everything simple and good. Add a piano or a violin to your pipe organ and make a three-piece orchestra. If you can't afford this have either the piano or the violin and you will then have the great human element. I know. I started with a piano and added a violin, then a 'cello and a drum. I use the drum only very mildly on certain effects like marching and things of that kind.

To sum up: I have never yet heard of a theatre that won its success through retiring rooms and luxurious equipment. Of course, these are very nice things if you can afford them, and if it is handled all right it will be appreciated by your clientele, or at least a part of it. The one thing I want to impress on your mind is this: Your SHOW is the thing; your service, the handling of your patrons, your courtesy. The fact that you are making your patrons feel at home and feel that they are your guests while in the theatre will do more than all the retiring rooms in the world to bring you success.

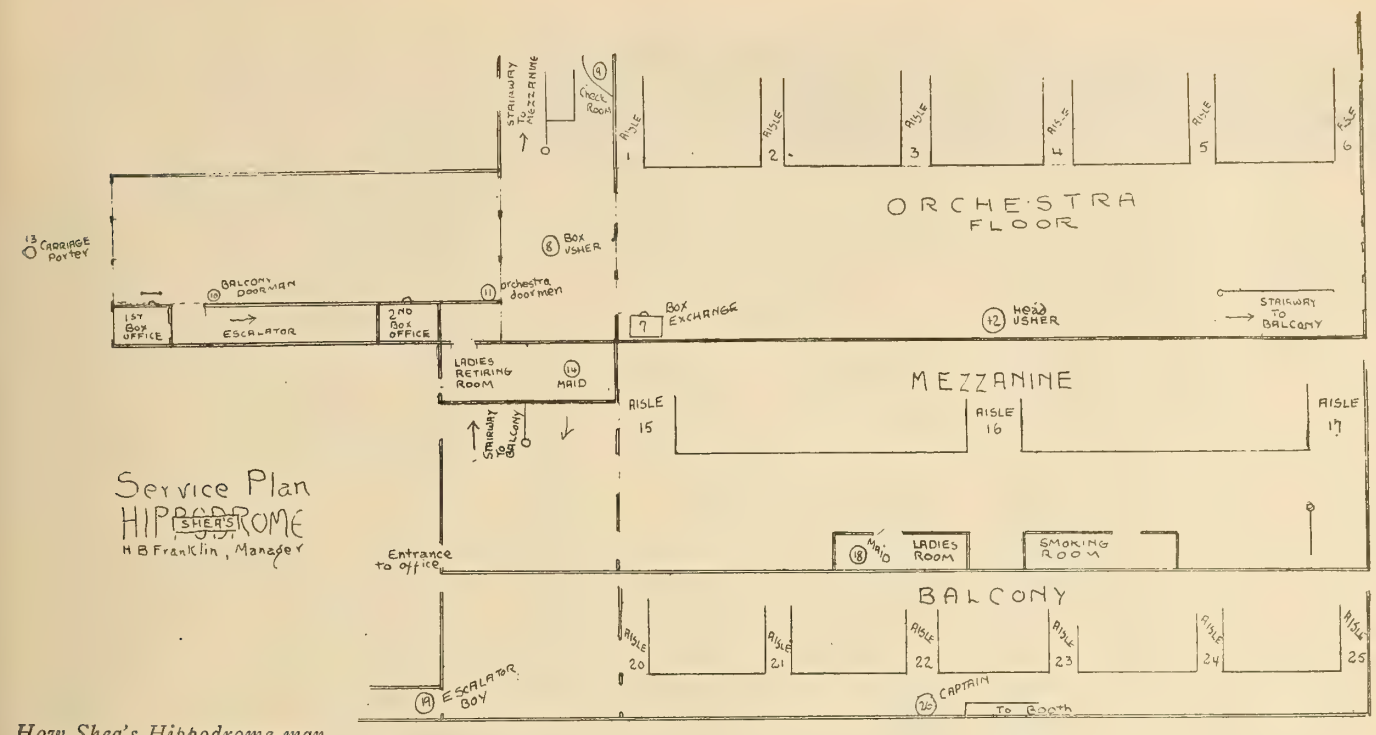
Stanley Theatre Posts Creed in Lobby

There is a large brass frame in front of the Stanley theatre and its contents is changed each week. In it at present is the following, written by the man who has charge of the exihibitors' welfare department:

"I AM THE STANLEY"

By George R. Meeker

I am the Stanley Theatre,
I am the favorite child of my father—the Motion Picture. I am his son—his harshest critic, therefore his sincerest friend.
I was of the first to recognize his greatness and my faith has never wavered. On this belief I staked my all.
I introduced him to my friends—the rich, the poor, the old, the young, the great and the lowly, and bespoke their loyalty and support for him. I brought music to him and witnessed the two within my walls swear a never-dying friendship.
I taught my servants to honor and respect him. I taught them to treat his friends with courtesy and consideration, so that their minds, through pleased senses, might ever feel kindly toward him.
I have surrounded him with every result of man's ingenuity, so that his beauty might be enhanced, his welfare promoted.
I am never content. I am ever searching for new ideas, new thoughts to help him reach his ideals. The smiles he brings, the tears he causes, the knowledge he imparts—all are only possible through my existence.
I feel that without me the full measure of his worth might never be known. He appreciates what I have done for him. He gives me nothing but his best.
I am proud of my father. He is proud of his son.
I am all that my father would have me be.
I am the STANLEY THEATRE.



DON'T DO IT

You Owe It to Your Public to Devote Your Screen to Pictures

ONE of the service magazines, and one of the most intelligently edited of all those conducted by manufacturers of pictures, under the heading "If I Were You" says:

"I would secure the agency for all of the leading 'fan' publications—Photoplay Magazine, The Photoplay Journal, Motion Picture Magazine, Motion Picture Classic, Film Fun, etc. I would figure that all of these magazines were doing missionary work for me and my house and I would display these publications attractively in my lobby or ticket booth and arrange the display so that the doorman or cashier could make the sales. Whenever a new issue was received I would run a house slide saying: 'December Issue Now on Sale in the Lobby (or at Box Office).'"

Our advice to you is DON'T DO IT. You are running a motion picture house. You are not in the magazine business. While we are free to admit that the greater circulation of the motion picture magazines would probably help your business, you have no right to devote your screen to selling magazines or to selling anything else but pure amusement.

How Shea's Hippodrome manager can tell in an instant what is going on in any part of the big theatre.

AFTERNOONS
Orchestra floor 1-2-3-4-5-6-10-11-14-13
MEZZANINE " 15-16-18
Balcony " 19-20-22-24 1ST BOX OFFICE
ON SATURDAY & HOLIDAYS - additional Mezzanine floor 17
Balcony 21-23 X on SUNDAY also 25
2ND BOX OFFICE AND NO 7
Check Room 9

EVENINGS
Orchestra floor 1-2-3-4-5-6-7-8-9-10-11-12-13-14
Mezzanine " 15-16-17-18
Balcony " 19-20-21-22-23-24-25-26
Both Box offices
ON SUNDAY NIGHTS & HOLIDAYS
2 EXTRA USHERS on AISLES 2-3-4-5
2 EXTRA Doormen

Family Friday Night Shows Score Big Hit with Omaha Theatre Patrons

WHILE the Woman's Club of Omaha has chosen several motion picture theatres for which they select special pictures to be shown at Family Friday night shows, other exhibitors throughout the city are taking up the idea. Exchange managers say they are swamped every week with exhibitors asking for Friday night pictures that will appeal to the family.

On this night the vampire and other unfamily pictures go a-begging, as far as the city theatres are concerned. "Were it not for the small-town exhibitors, we would be up against it to dispose of such releases," said an exchange manager.

"I find that by merely being careful on Fridays and getting out special advertisements to attract whole families, it is easy to build up trade of that nature," said Jules Rachman of the Grand theatre. "And families come back. If you please them this week they will come again. Don't get all educational pictures, or the children will object every time your theatre is mentioned. Don't get too racy films, or the mother will object. Get comedy, light dramas, short Westerns and pictures telling a moral of clean, wholesome living, and your family Friday nights will make you money. But I have talked with exhibitors who have found this special night plan a loss. The reason was generally one of the 'don'ts' I mentioned.

"For advertising such special nights I use house-to-house heralds, printed specially for my theatre, and appealing particularly to the family. Stand near the school and hand them to the children as they come from the building, asking them to invite their parents to bring them to the show. Friday night is the best because the next day is not a school day and studies are not pressing. Saturday night is still 'tub night,' the same as it was when you and I were boys."

Spoor Stars Billboard Campaign on Ultras

George K. Spoor announces that hereafter there will be a campaign of billboarding for the whole country used in advertising the Ultra features. Twenty-four sheets in six colors will be employed exclusively in this exploitation. The first, advertising "Uneasy Money," went on the boards December 15, showing Taylor Holmes, the star, in a typical comedy scene.

A similar campaign will be used with the Mary MacLean picture, "Men Who Have Made Love to Me," and then this will be followed by Taylor Holmes in "Ruggles of Red Gap." All these pictures will be distributed through the George Kleine system.

You are not going to war. The men who are need all the comforts you can give them. Help them get cigarettes. That is your patriotic duty. If you aren't helping in the "smokes" campaign, get busy—now. Don't be a slacker!

Franklin Devises Chart for Systematizing Theatre Work

MANAGER HAROLD B. FRANKLIN, of Shea's Hippodrome, Buffalo, and one of the advanced thinkers among the showmen of the country, has devised a number of efficiency helps in the management of his theatre, some of which have already been reproduced in the NEWS.

This plan of the house, which is reproduced above, shows the location of all the employes in the front part of the house. A copy of this is placed in all the dressing rooms and the head of each department is thoroughly familiar with it.

Each location in the house is numbered and there is a corresponding number for each employe who at once knows the work that he is assigned to and who can take over those duties without confusion or without going to the department head to ask questions which are already answered for him by this system. Another assistance is in tracing any complaints from patrons. When the person reports the number of the employe, the manager or his representative can immediately go to the post designated and find the employe against whom the complaint has been made.

It is to be noted that the posts themselves are given the numbers and therefore the employes are automatically assigned to their various duties and shifts can be shifted according to the posts which are the busiest.

Ready Made Ad-Talks

Vivian Martin in "The Fair Barbarian"—American Girl's Adventures in England

(Paramount Five-Reel Production)

Jesse L. Lasky presents Vivian Martin in Frances Hodgson Burnett's "The Fair Barbarian." Frances Burnett will be remembered as the author of Mary Pickford's last success, "The Little Princess." No introduction is necessary for the fascinating little star, Miss Martin. The production was made under the direction of Robert T. Thornby for the Paramount program. The scenario was done by Edith Kennedy. In the cast with Miss Martin are G. H. Geldert, Douglas McLean, Jane Wolff, Josephine Crowell, Mae Buch, William Hutchinson, Al Paget, Ruth Hanford, Eleanor Hancock, Charles Gerrard and John Burton. Miss Martin's last successes were "Molly Entangled" and "Little Miss Optimist," in both of which she scored will all you saw her in both of which she scored well. In her latest she presents the role of Octavia Bassett, a little English girl whose father has made his fortune in America and decides to return to England. Octavia has never seen her Aunt Belinda. Aboard ship Octavia's father receives a wireless recalling him to America. Octavia continues her trip to England. Slowbridge is a sluggish little village. Here Octavia's aunt lives. Lady Theobold is the leader of the social set. Octavia's breezy, unconventional mannerisms shock the community and especially Lady Theobold. Gradually Octavia becomes a favorite. Captain Barold, nephew of Lady Theobold, pays her a visit, meets Octavia and falls in love with her. Lady Theobold has received her worst blow. Octavia refuses to marry the Captain. When Slowbridge is pretty well in arms over the affair Octavia's father arrives. With him comes Jack Belasys, an energetic American youth, a type as foreign to Slowbridge as Octavia. Octavia and he are married.

Vivian Martin in "The Fair Barbarian" will be seen on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week.

Irene Castle in Baffling Detective Story "Convict 993"—Woman Detective

(Pathe—Five Reels)

Irene Castle, who has been seen in some of the cleverest mystery stories on the screen, and whose work before the camera has been highly praised by critics and public, is to be seen on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week in a baffling detective story titled "Convict 993." Warner Oland, who was seen in one of the principal male roles opposite Pearl White in "The Fatal Ring," has an important part in this production. Others in the cast are Harry Benham, J. H. Gilmore, Helen Chadwick, who is one of the prettiest and most talented leading woman on the screen; Paul Everton, Bert Starkey, known for his characterizations of "ruff-guys," and Ethyle Cooke. The story was written by Wallace Clifton, produced by Astra Film Corporation and released on the Pathe program. William Parke directed the production. "Convict 993" entered the lonely prison and took her place with the hundreds of others. She did not look the part but presented more the appearance of an innocent girl, than a criminal. Occupying the adjoining cell was Neva Stokes (Helen Chadwick), who is a plain girl crook. Neva accepted Roslyn Ayre's, who is convict 993, the part presented by Miss Castle, as the ordinary innocent story told by all who are detected in crime. One morning the cell bars to the cell occupied by convict 993 were found cut and the bird had flown. Later when Neva's term had expired, she searches for the escaped girl, with jealousy as the motive. She learns that Roslyn is living in luxury and with unlimited means. Neva seeks her out, demands that she aid her in a big robbery that is planned, under pain of exposure. The objective of the gang which Neva represents, is a priceless string of jewels to be worn at a certain reception. Roslyn assists them in obtaining the jewels and when they are in the hands of the leader, she calls in the waiting policeman and has the notorious gang arrested. Roslyn is a private woman detective.

At the ——— theatre ——— week, Irene Castle in "Convict 993."

"The Gown of Destiny"—Unusual Story with Alma Reubens in Featured Role

(Triangle Five-Reel Production)

The particular design of a gown has been known to add much to the attractiveness of a woman, but until Earl Derr Biggers wrote "The Gown of Destiny" and it was produced for screen presentation by Lynn F. Reynolds, with Alma Reubens and a strong cast of Triangle screen artists interpreting the character roles, such a gown has never been known to sway the destiny of battle. Andre Leriche, head designer for Mme. Felice, a fashionable modiste of Fifth avenue, is a well-known designer of women's gowns. He is not content with being a designer nor with the popularity that he has attained—he desires to fight for his native land of France. He is rejected, however, and goes to his apartment in sadness. He dreams that night of a wonderful design for a gown and getting up from bed, he makes a drawing of it and presents the plan to Mme. Felice and she proclaims it a masterpiece. The gown is sold to a society woman who is fast losing the love of her husband. She wears the gown and her husband is so impressed with the change that his wife is again the subject of his deepest affections. Soon afterwards Andre designs another which is bought by Natalie Drew, who is loved by an Englishman who is a slacker and refuses to join the colors. She has persuaded him to join the colors but he refuses. When he sees her in the gown, he is so impressed that he consents to enlist. He leads his company to victory and re-takes the French village in which Andre's father is mayor. He has been condemned to death by the Germans. Andre did not go to the front, but he did his bit through the medium of his wonderful designs. In the supporting cast are Herrera Tejedde, Alan Sears, Lillian West, J. Barney Sherry, Pietro Buzzi, Frederick Vroom, Dorothy Marshall, Kathleen Emerson and Bliss Chevelier.

At the ——— theatre ——— of ——— week, "The Gown of Destiny."

"Diamonds and Pearls," Social Drama, with Kitty Gordon in Featured Role

(World Five-Reel Production)

Kitty Gordon, who is to be seen on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week in the World production, "Diamonds and Pearls," created for screen presentation by George Archainbaud, first made her appearance on the speaking stage twelve years ago, when she appeared in a musical play, titled "Veronique." Before her appearance on the American stage, Miss Gordon was popular in London as a music hall singer and prima donna in light opera. It is only recently that Miss Gordon has been seen on the screen. "Diamonds and Pearls" is her latest work. She presents the role of Violetta D'Arcy, of an old Virginia family. Violetta dreamed of wealth and social possession and her dreams come true. Violetta is confronted with the situation of marrying for money or for love. She decides to marry for money. In doing so she has turned her back on the man she really loves because he is poor. Immediately after her marriage to Van Ellstrom she commences a career of extravagance and social conquest. She takes the social centre of New York by storm, but the time comes when even the vast fortunes of her husband are unable to withstand her extravagance. Young Herrington, whom Violetta has rejected as a husband, had been turned out by his father, who is wealthy. The father comes to New York and seeks the aid of Violetta to place his wife in the social whirl. He does not know that Violetta is the woman his son loves. Jack saves Van Ellstrom's sister from serious injury in an accident and is presented to Violetta. The complications which set in at this stage give rise to strong dramatic moments. Milton Sills, who has been seen as leading man opposite many of the stars, has the principal male role in this production. The other members of the cast are Curtis Cooksey, George MacQuarrie, Henrietta Simpson, Kitty Johnson, Edward Burns, C. W. Dungun and Frances Miller.

Kitty Gordon wil be seen on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week in "Diamonds and Pearls,' a World production.

READY-MADE AD-TALKS PUBLISHED IN LAST WEEK'S ISSUE

December 29, 1917.

FEATURES

TITLE OF PLAY	PRODUCERS.
"Thais"	Goldwyn	5 reels
"My Little Boy"	Bluebird	5 reels
"Those Who Pay"	U. S. Exhibitors Book'g Corp.	7 reels
"Without Honor"	Triangle	5 reels
"Blue Jeans"	Metro	7 reels
"Red, White and Blue"	Metro	5 reels
"Runaway Romany"	Pathe	5 reels
"Alias Mrs. Jessop"	Metro	5 reels
"The Land of Promise"	Paramount	5 reels
"Salt of the Earth"	Perfection	5 reels
"The Cinderella Man"	Goldwyn	6 reels
"The Last Leaf"	General	2 reels
"Raffles, The Amateur Cracksman"	Hiller & Wilk (Agents)	7 reels
"The Scarlet Car"	Bluebird	5 reels

Ethel Clayton in "Stolen Hours"—Story of Girl's Loyalty—Romance in London

(World Five-Reel Production)

Ethel Clayton, one of the brightest stars seen in World pictures, is coming to the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week in "Stolen Hours," written by Olive Wadsley, and produced for the World program under the direction of Travers Vale. Miss Clayton is ranked with the cleverest and most beautiful artists acting before the camera. She has been appearing in World productions for more than a year and has won thousands of admirers. In "Stolen Hours" she is given a strong, convincing role and one in which she can display to every advantage her many talents as an actress. In the supporting cast are John Bowers, Joseph Herbert, Louise De Rigney, Jack Drumier, Victor Kennard, Frank Mayo, Richard Clarke and Lila Chester. The story from which "Stolen Hours" is adapted has appeared in one of the most popular magazines. The scenes are laid in modern London. Miss Clayton presents the role of Diana Lester, the daughter of a professional gambler. Despite Diana's father's profession, she has been kept free from all evil influences and has been reared in good surroundings. Her mother had died when Diana was young and the father had married the wealthy proprietress of a fashionable gambling resort. This breaks up the fond companionship which had existed between herself and father, and Diana becomes lonely and despondent until she meets Hugh Carton, a member of the British Parliament and a candidate for the Cabinet. It is not until she has learned to love him as she had never loved that she learns that he is married. He does not live with his wife nor is he able to get a divorce from her. Learning of his love for Diana, his wife does everything possible to make his life miserable and Diana braves it all with true courage. Miss Clayton is given opportunity for strong, convincing dramatic work in this production and you will see her at her best.

Ethel Clayton in "Stolen Hours" at the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week.

"In the Balance," with Earle Williams Featured—E. Phillips Oppenheim Story

(Vitagraph Five-Reel Production)

"In the Balance," the feature to be seen on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week, is a Vitagraph Blue Ribbon production under the direction of Paul Scardon, with Earle Williams and Grace Darmond in the featured roles. The screen version is an adaptation from E. Phillips Oppenheim's novel, "The Hillman," and is one of this author's best works. It is different from anything else he has ever done. It is not mystery. In the supporting cast are Miriam Miles, Denton Vane, who has been seen in character parts in some of Vitagraph's best; Robert Gaillard and Templar Saxe. Director Scardon has made possible some beautiful backgrounds for this production by selecting one of the most beautiful estates on Long Island as the scene for the action which takes place in the open. Mr. Williams presents the role of John Strangeway, who with his brother Stephen lives on the outskits of the city on the estate left them by their father. Their father had been disappointed in love, and it has been his request that no woman should cross his threshold. And there hadn't until one day John, the elder of the two brothers and the more susceptible to the charms of the women than his younger brother, came upon a motor car stalled on the road. In it a beautiful girl and her maid were nervously wondering what was to be done. John suggested that she come to his home and accept the hospitality of him and his brother for the night. She did so. The next day she returned to the city. John was greatly attracted to her and it was not long before he took a trip to the city to find her. He found her rehearsing for a musical comedy part and also learned that the Prince of Seyre was attentive to her. The Prince arranged a party and introduced John to a notorious dancer. She attempted to win John's affections but he would have nothing to do with her. The Prince failing in this, tells John that he is engaged to Louise, the girl whom John had come to the city to see, and infers that she has been his. John learns this and returns to the hills. Later the girl arrives and tells John that the Prince had told an untruth. The tradition of the Strangeway household was broken and John and Louise become man and wife.

Victor Hugo's Immortal Work, with William Farnum Featured—"Les Miserables"

(Fox Nine-Reel Production)

Victor Hugo's masterpiece, "Les Miserables," has been produced by William Fox under the direction of Frank Lloyd. William Farnum is in the featured role, Jean Valiean. In the supporting cast are George Moss, Hardee Kirkland, Sonia Markova, Kittens Reichert, Jewel Carmen, Harry Spingler, Dorothy Bernard, Anthony Phillips, Edward Ellis and Mina Ross. Billy Foster was at the camera. The musical score has been written by George M. Rubinstein. This is without an exception the greatest creation for screen presentation since "The Birth of a Nation." The work of this great French writer of fiction and historical fact has been adapted faithfully by Director Lloyd.

The character of Jean Valjean is known throughout the length and breadth of the land. William Farnum presents this character with all the terrible significance which the author intended should emanate from his creation. The production is in nine reels and the management of the ——— theatre offers the assertion that at no time since the motion picture has become a medium for entertainment and amusement and thought has there been seen such a presentation offered in the guise of the silent drama. You all know the theme of Victor Hugo's great work. It has gone the rounds of the earth, been translated in all languages and has served as an example of classical literature in English. Strong, virile action, tense moments, wonderfully realistic characterizations of the people whom the author has created in our minds, a hellish example of misery, ignorance—all portrayed in this Fox production. Some of the best talent of Fox stock are seen in this picture, with Wiliam Farnum carrying the honors. There is every reason why you all should see this picture. There is a powerful, meaning lesson taught that none will soon forget and that all will be the better for having seen.

Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables," his greatest work, will be seen on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week. William Farnum is the feature supported by a strong cast.

Olive Thomas Supported by Strong Cast Seen in "Betty Takes a Hand"

(Triangle Five-Reel Production)

.."Betty Takes a Hand" is the latest Olive Thomas picture, the story for which was written by Katherine Kavanaugh, scenarioized by Jack Cunningham, photographed by A. Nagy and produced for Triangle under the direction of Jack Dillon. In the supporting cast are: Frederick Vroom, Bliss Chevelier, Mary Warren, George Hernandez, Charles Gunn, Margaret Cullington, Graham Pette, June de Lisle and Anna Dodge. "Betty Takes a Hand" is something different from anything Miss Thomas has yet done. It offers her in a role that gives her more opportunities to display artistry in the screen drama. Miss Thomas has the role of Betty Marshall, whose father during his young days had been induced to consent to a fraudulent deal and thereby lost his interest in a valuable mine. Betty learns of this and goes to Los Angeles to visit her aunt. Her uncle is one of the men who was responsible for her father's loss of the mine. James Barlett was her father's business partner. His son Tom was the idol of Betty's cousin, Ida. Tom quarrels with his father and leaves. Hamilton Haines, Betty's uncle, and her aunt leave on a yachting cruise. Tom passes the Haines house and sees Betty and a sign over the door which reads "Room and Board." The strange girl attracts Tom and he engages a room and becomes her first boarder. Tom's father engages detectives to locate his son, but to no avail. Tom's father meets Betty accidentally and is captivated. He offers her a large amount of money if she will marry his son, Tom, not knowing that Tom is her star boarder. The fathers on both sides find out the real conditions and a reconciliation is affected and Tom and Betty are united.

Olive Thomas will be seen on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week, in "Betty Takes a Hand."

Virginia Pearson in "Without Honor"—Story of Official Washington

(Fox Five-Reel Production)

Official Washington is the seat of action for William Fox's latest production featuring Virginia Pearson's "Stolen Honor." The action turns about the disappearance of a famous Italian painting, which found its way into the Corcoran Art Gallery, Washington. Miss Pearson presents the part of Virginia Lake, an artist and Washington society girl, who has made a copy of the painting and is accused of substituting the copy for the original. The painting was the property of an art gallery in Florence, Italy. It was stolen by an international crook. Theodore Macklin, State Department agent, is in love with Virginia, and believing in her innocence, sets out to prove her innocent of any wrong. Countess Colonna, widow of a Roman banker, is infatuated with Macklin but her love is not returned. She seeks revenge through compromising Virginia by inferring that Virginia is the one who substituted the copy for the original of the painting. The services of Signor Conte, an unscrupulous Italian, are elicited. The plans of the conspirators seem certain to cast guilt on Virginia. They place in the gallery certain trinkets belonging to Virginia to make for evidence pointing to her guilt. Betty Belfield, wife of the assistant secretary of state, is a close friend of Virginia. She becomes infatuated with a man of questionable character, and is about to marry him when prevented by Virginia. The accusation has set official Washington to talking, and a sensation is created when a band of swindlers is rounded up and it is learned that they are responsible for the disappearance of the painting. Action, tense dramatic moments and clever acting, are the strong points of this production. "Stolen Honor" offers sixty-odd minutes of sound entertainment, and the management of the ——— theatre cordially invites all to see Miss Pearson in her latest work before the camera.

NEW YEAR PLEDGE

Resolve to Advertise Your House More Intelligently

A MIGHTY good resolve to make for the New Year is to advertise your house more intelligently—to get the most out of your exploitation.

And advertising doesn't alone include the display matter in newspapers. It includes the reading-matter stories, the matter in your program and word-of-mouth advertising.

You cannot employ any of these means unless you first know what the picture is about—unless you are familiar with its "talking points." These Ad Talks are designed to give you this information in the least possible space.

Index these in your notebook by cutting out each week the little box which tells you the films covered in these talks on the preceding week. Soon you'll have a ready reference list and you can find the "Talk" that you want when you are ready to exploit any picture.

Edna Goodrich, Stage Star in Strong Drama, "Her Second Husband"

(Mutual Five-Reel Production)

"Her Second Husband," the latest five reel production featuring Edna Goodrich, will be seen at the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week. In the supporting cast are William B. Davidson, Richard R. Neill, Miriam Folger, Bert Busby and Grace Meehan. Miss Goodrich has been seen in several recent Mutual productions and in all she has pleased. Within the past year Miss Goodrich has forsaken the speaking stage for work before the camera. She is known to the millions for her successes on the stage. In "Her Second Husband," Miss Goodrich presents the role of Helen Kirby, wife of a Wall Street broker, whose business is placed above his love for her. To further his plans, he insists that his wife entertain men whom she dislikes and who are beneath her socially. Richard Stone, presented by Richard Neill, brings a woman of questionable character to the Kirby home and Mrs. Kirby rebels. A quarrel, husband and wife agree to separate. A divorce is granted and Helen is thrown on her own resources. She is forced to accept a position in the office of Stone, whom she has reason to despise. Stone makes advances, and in self-defense Helen strikes him with a vase and Stone is rendered unconscious. The affair is hushed and Helen secures a position as cloak model. Her former husband repents his actions and determines to find Helen and effect a reconciliation. A masked ball is given, and Kirby is requested by a friend to take Helen, whose identity he does not know. Helen knows that her escort is Kirby and refuses to unmask. Later Kirby learns that the woman he accompanied to the ball is Helen and arranges a motor trip. He acts as chauffeur. On the outskirts of the city he pleads a broken machine and he and Helen go to the justice of the peace and are married.

Late Episode of "Who Is Number One" Mystery and Action, Side by Side

(Paramount Serial—Two Reels)

"Hearts in Torment" is the Seventh Episode of Paramount's baffling mystery serial, "Who Is Number One?" It will be shown on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week, and the management of the ——— theatre promises his patrons one of the most exciting chapters of any serial ever projected on the screen of a motion picture theatre. Anna Katherine Green's story makes excellent material for an exciting serial. Kathleen Clifford, in the featured role, has proven to be one of the best "thrillers" on the screen. In this episode the "woman in the case" comes to America to further direct the activities of "Number One." Mystery and action fly side by side. "Number One" is active.

At the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week, the Seventh Episode of "Who Is Number One."

"Alimony," Hayden Talbot's Powerful Drama Telling of the Divorce Evil

(First National Exhibitors—Six Reels)

Hayden Talbot has written a story titled "Alimony," which has been created for screen presentation under the direction of Emmett J. Flynn, photographed by L. Guy Wilky and released by the First National Exhibitors' Circuit. Lois Wilson is cast in the featured role and is supported by Josephine Whittell, George Fisher, Joseph J. Dowling, Wallace Worsley, Ida Lewis, Arthur Alart and Marguerite Livingston. The evils of the divorce game are laid bare and the unscrupulousness of the ones behind the game is exposed in all its unfairness. Miss Wilson, who has the ingenue lead in this production, that promises something entirely new in the themes which have been developed in the silent drama, is recognized as one of the cleverest of actresses working before the motion picture camera. Hayden Talbot is one of the best known playwrights of the younger generation and has to his credit a number of successful stage productions. "Alimony" is a strong, powerful, convincing argument for the elimination of the evils which surround the divorce courts, and the unscruplous methods resorted to by men who prey on the wealthy class in blackmail. Josephine Whittell, who presents the role of Mrs. Bernice Bristol Flint, wife of a millionaire importer, is a favorite on the musical comedy stage and will make her screen debut in this production. The eternal triangle is represented by Miss Whittell, Lois Wilson and George Wilson, and these three present the respective roles with an appreciation for the finer shades of the drama that has never been excelled in the screen or in the drama.

"Alimony" is in six reels and tells a gripping, true-to-life story of the divorce traffic of blackmailing lawyers among the rich. It will be seen at the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week, and the management urges all to see this production.

"Beloved Jim," with Priscilla Dean and Strong Cast—Christmas Story with Punch

(Universal Five-Reel Production)

A Christmas story that takes you into the realms of the Yuletide and which conveys al the pleasant sentiment of this season. The story is "Beloved Jim," written by Joseph Gerard, produced for Universal under the directon of Stuart Payton, who was responsible for the production of "The Gray Ghost" serial, and presenting in the principal roles Priscilla Dean, Harry Carter and Joseph Gerard. Others in the supporting cast are Charles Hill Mailes, Frank Deshon, Sydney Dean, Ed. Brown and Mrs. A. E. Witting. If you want to really enter into the spirit of the Christmas time, spend an hour or more at the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week and witness the screen performance of "Beloved Jim." You all will go back to your homes with better resolves. The management of the theatre urgently requests his patrons to see this screen production. It is something that does more than entertain—it teaches a lesson—one that we all might well learn, and especialy so during the Christmas season. Jim Brocton, presented by Harry Carter, is a power in financial circles. He is unmarried. His only close friends are his nephew, Donald, a wild youth, and his dog. The night before Christmas he is passing a cafe, and hearing sounds of hilarity enters and sees his nephew under the influence of liquor, taunting an unfortunate derelict who has entered for a bite to eat. Jim takes the unfortunate home with him and the two spend Christmas together. The next Christmas finds Jim happily married to an orphan girl, presented by Priscilla Dean. His nephew comes to spend the holidays with him and recognizes in Jim's wife an old friend. The derelict has been kept by Jim and acts as his secretary. The ingratitude shown by the nephew and the happy ending when the truth is known, form the strong points in this production.

At the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week, "Beloved Jim," with Priscilla Dean, Harry Carter and Joseph Gerard in the leading roles.

Vitagraph's New Serial a Thriller—"Vengeance and the Woman"—First Chapter

(Vitagraph Serial—Two Reels)

"Vengeance and the Woman" is the new Vitagraph serial following "The Fighting Trail." For thrilling moments, daring deeds and sensationalism, this Vitagraph serial has never been surpassed on the screen or stage. It is in fifteen episodes of two reels each. The first episode is punctuated with one of the most daring prison escapes ever conceived by man. William Duncan and Carol Holloway, who were the featured players in "The Fighting Trail," are the featured players in "Vengeance and the Woman." Other members of the supporting cast who enact the first episode are George Holt, Tex Allen, Vincente Howard, Fred Burns, S. E. Jennings, and Natalie Warfield. Mr. Duncan has the role of Henry Blake, railway builder and capitalist. He with his young wife, Bessie (presented by Carol Holloway), are instrumental in having Black Jack Haines, an outlaw, sentenced to fifteen years in prison. He swears vengeance. Three months later he escapes. Blake is on his way to the State Capitol when he receives word that Black Jack has escaped. He huries back to find his home in flames and his wife gone.

Live News from the Producers

Triangle Practises Diversity

Olive Thomas, Alma Rubens and Jack Richardson Included in New-Year Features—Japanese Production Rounds Out Month

TRIANGLE plans to open the new year with a program of merit that is expected to substantiate in every degree the policy of diversified features announced by General Manager H. O. Davis. A comedy-drama with Olive Thomas, a big drama of the Navajo Indian country with Jack Richardson, a production of beauty featuring Alma Rubens, with scenes laid in Italy and France, and a tense drama of professional life with J. Barney Sherry are among the features to be released in January.

For the first week in January, Olive Thomas with Charles Gunn, is scheduled to appear in "Betty Takes a Hand," a pleasantly humorous, fast-moving story written by Katherine Kavanaugh. This picture was directed by Jack Dillon.

For the second release of the week, Jack Richardson will appear in "Man Above the Law," with Claire McDowell and Josie Sedgwick supporting. This is a story of a man who leaves the civilized world in disgust because of an unlucky love affair and an even more unlucky brush with religion and law.

For the second part of the week's program "Law's Outlaw," featuring Roy Stewart, will be released. The story was written by Ethel and James Dorrance.

For the week of January 20, "Evidence," a drama dealing with professional life and with J. Barney Sherry in the leading role, will be released. Jack Cunningham of the Triangle scenario staff, wrote this play, which has for its principal characters a highly successful criminal lawyer and his closest friend, a physician.

For the last week in January the first release will be "The Gunwoman," a Western story. Texas Guinan has the title role and appears as a woman who relies on herself in every crisis and settles all grievances with a deadly automatic. Miss Guinan's supporting cast includes Francis McDonald and Edward Brady, the former appearing as the gunwoman's sweetheart and the latter as a character juvenile lead. Frank Borzage, who produced "Until They Get Me," directed "The Gunwoman."

To round out the month's program, Triangle has a Japanese production, "Her American Husband." The play is a reversal of the characters and situations in John Luther Long's famous "Madame Butterfly." Teddy Sampson appears in the leading feminine role as a Japanese girl and Darrell Foss has the leading male part.

Blue Ribbon New Release Named

"His Own People," Featuring Harry Morey with Gladys Leslie, Comes December 31 — Closes Year for Vitagraph

"HIS OWN PEOPLE," featuring Harry Morey with Gladys Leslie, is announced by Albert E. Smith, president of Vitagraph, as the Blue Ribbon feature release for the week beginning December 31. The picture was produced under the direction of William P. S. Earle.

This, the last feature of the year for the Vitagraph program, is declared by President Smith to be one of the finest pictures ever made by his company. The action is laid in an Irish village, a town in Connemara on Lough Corrib, and Harry Morey as the village blacksmith is said to have done one of the finest pieces of work he has done in his entire screen career. The entire production, Mr. Smith declares, is extraordinary. The story is strong and unusual, the cast one of the best balanced seen in Vitagraph pictures and the picture is mechanically perfect.

"His Own People" serves to introduce Gladys Leslie as a Vitagraph star and her work, the Vitagraph announcement states, places her among the front rank of screen artists. Others prominent in the cast are William Dunn, Arthur Donaldson, and Betty Blythe.

Director Earle, who made "Within the Law" and other Vitagraph productions, has given to this, it is said, the finest work he has ever put on a feature and has introduced into it a number of very fine touches, particularly animal stuff. For one thing, he has used a fuzzy-faced little Irish terrier in a prominent role, and in addition, he used pigs, chickens, ducks, donkeys parrots and other animals to give the picture a touch of local color.

The story, written by William Addison Lathrop, is a melodrama with a fine vein of native Irish humor running all through.

Tom Gibson Writes for Fay Tincher

Tom Gibson, who recently severed his connection with the Universal, with over sixty-five reels of produced material in eleven months to his credit, has been secured by the Screen Art Films to write exclusively for Fay Tincher.

Under the direction of Al Santell, Miss Tincher is to be presented in two-reel comedy-dramas.

Ann Pennington Starts New Picture

Ann Pennington began work last week on her new Paramount picture, "Calvary Alley," at the Famous Players studio in Fifty-sixth Street. This new picture is an adaptation of Alice Hegan Rice's book of the same name, one of Mrs. Rice's best sellers, along with "Lovey Mary," "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," "Mr. Opp," "Sandy" and a number of others.

Charles Giblyn will direct Miss Pennington in the new picture, concerning which Hugh Ford, Paramount general director in the East, said: "We have got a piece here that is better suited to Miss Pennington than any in which she has appeared. It takes considerable search to get something with just the proper angle for Miss Pennington's elusive and magnetic personality, and we feel rewarded in the fact that "Calvary Alley" is just the story that suits. I predict a remarkably entertaining picture from it."

Adolfi Resigns from Fox Corporation

John G. Adolfi, director of the new William Fox-Annette Kellermann sub-sea fantasy, has resigned from the Fox Company after a two years' engagement, which ended December 15, during which time he took June Caprice and developed her into a box-office attraction.

A desire for a rest is said to be Mr. Adolfi's chief reason for tendering his resignation to Mr. Fox, as he has continually been in harness for more than three years. It is understood that he is contemplating an engagement with another big producing concern.

Paramount Names Vivian Martin Feature

"Mary 'Gusta" is the title of the next picture, starring Vivian Martin, to be produced for Paramount, following Miss Martin's current release, "The Fair Barbarian."

"Mary 'Gusta" is an adaptation of the novel of the same name by Joseph C. Lincoln, and containing a character in the heroine that seems peculiarly adapted to Miss Martin's personality. The photoplay was written by Gardner Hunting.

For this newest Vivian Martin production, Roland Sturgeon has been especially engaged as director. Theodore Roberts, known far and wide as the "truck-horse character man" of the Lasky studio, will be prominent in the cast of "Mary 'Gusta." Harrison Ford will play opposite Miss Martin. Another character actor, James Neill, will also have a prominent part.

Hodkinson Makes Known New Process

Motion Picture Plus Expected to Give Theatre Equivalent of Stars with All Advantages and No Disadvantages— Film Runs Sideways

W. W. HODKINSON this week announced in detail, through the medium of a four-page advertising supplement in MOTION PICTURE NEWS, the new process which was first mentioned by Mr. Hodkinson a few weeks ago as being a means of greatly benefiting the exhibitor.

That this new era in the industry will be received with great interest is already assured, and that exhibitors will lose no time in taking advantage of the process, which promises all the advantages of stars with none of the disadvantages, is predicted.

Motion Picture Plus

To begin with, the name which Mr. Hodkinson has given his new idea in manufacture is "The Motion Picture Plus."

He describes this as a process of manufacture which uses the standard film, and makes a picture which is as high as the present width and twice as wide as the present height of the screen. In other words, the film run sideways through the projector instead of up-and-down, and two frames are used for each picture. The new process is fully described in a four-page advertising supplement in MOTION PICTURE NEWS this week. The Hodkinson Corporation is also distributing folders to the trade on request.

The new process is claimed to give, with the assistance of the national advertising and publicity which will support it, a guarantee to the public which, as Mr. Hodkinson has announced, "Will give the theatre which shows the pictures the equivalent of the highest class of stars with all the stars' advantages and none of the disadvantages."

Guarantee of Quality

The whole idea back of this new process, which controls basic patents on the use of standard film stock for larger pictures, is said to be the guarantee of quality. Mr. Hodkinson has been pointing out that present systems have so confused the public that it has no way of distinguishing good pictures from bad, and therefore some revolutionary change in method was required to give the public something which it could tie to as a guarantee that it would see something worth while when it paid its money.

The first picture under the new process is now being made at the Paralta Studios at Hollywood, Cal. Bessie Barriscale is the star, and the picture will be ready for trade showing next month, and for regular release in February, it is expected. The new process will give, it is claimed, the stereoscopic effect to the figures which has been sought for so long.

Action Wider

In addition, not only is the field of action nearly twice as wide with the consequent advantages of actors entering from off-stage, but owing to the lens arrangement of the camera, the wide pictures will have the same depth and clarity of focus as is now characteristic of the narrow films in the very finest productions. The new shape will, therefore, not be confused with the pictures now used by some directors in which the top and bottom of the screen are masked off and a full room scene is shown. In these pictures the depth of focus is entirely lost, and the actors seem to move like paper figures against a painted background. The new process absolutely gives the same depth as is now obtained in normal picture scenes from the standard film, the Hodkinson Company claims.

Enlarged samples of film from two cameras "shooting" at the same scene in Paralta's "A Man's Man." The lower is the standard film coverage. The upper picture shows the remarkably wide angle of the Hodkinson method.

Years of Work

The process is said to be the result of the investment of a fortune and years of work by the inventors, the Photo Motion Company of Kansas City, Mo. The patents not only control the use of the standard film in this sort of picture, but also patents to a simpler and better movement of the film in the projector, which allows for the movement required by this longer strip of stock.

The announcement of the "Motion Picture Plus" also includes a suggestion of the Hodkinson distribution plan, a subject on which the full announcement is yet to come. It is stated that in the beginning, not more than fifty theatres, which will be "tied in with the Hodkinson organization" will show the new pictures.

As a by-product, productions with the same star, story and sets, will be made on the small, standard film, for smaller theatres, until a full supply of the large pictures will justify the increase in the number of theatres holding operating franchises.

It is stated that the first regular releases of the "Motion Picture Plus" will be one a week and that in addition to the productions of the producing companies affiliated with the Hodkinson organization, producing franchises will be granted to individual productions of other companies when the story, star and production measure up to the quality standard set. These

Blackton Starts "Wild Youth"

Theodore Roberts, Louise Huff and Jack Mulhall Cast in Main Roles —George Melford Does the Directing

AFTER a week of preparation, J. Stuart Blackton was ready to commence the production of his second subject for the Paramount Program early during this week, when he began work at the Lasky Studio, with Theodore Roberts, Louise Huff and Jack Mulhall as his principals for "Wild Youth," the second Sir Gilbert Parker story. George Melford has been selected as the director for the filming of Mr. Blackton's second contribution to Paramount.

Mr. Blackton, accompanied by his assistant, Manager Bert Dorris, arrived in Los Angeles December 10, and since that time he has met so many former lieutenants and players who served him at the Vitagraph plant in former years, that he has found the Los Angeles film colony a genuine home. Among the first Blackton met was J. Barney Sherry, who appeared in the first one-reel Vitagraph play ever filmed, Sherry taking the part of Raffles in the single-reeler of that name. "Raffles" at that time was being played in one of the New York theatres, and George Tyler, of Leibler and Company, gave Mr. Blackton the right to film it without any charges, believing it would be good advertising for the play. Mr. Blackton has met R. S. Sturgeon, who is now directing at the Lasky Studio. He was formerly manager of the Western Hollywood Studio during the years Mr. Blackton was interested in the Vitagraph.

Meeting former Vitagraph players has recalled to Mr. Blackton many interesting incidents of his early picture career. Hector Dion is the first leading man of Vitagraph subjects, and is now on the Coast. He played with Florence Turner and William Shay, and helped to stretch canvas and put up sets between the making of scenes. James Young, the first member of the Lambs Club to enter the picture industry as an actor or director, has entertained Mr. Blackton on several occasions since his arrival in the West. Other former Vitagraph people to be found here are Edith Storey, Kate Price, Hughie Mack, and a score of others.

Mr. Blackton has found Southern California ideal for the production of motion pictures, and made the statement that had he visited Los Angeles prior to building the Vitagraph plant in Brooklyn, it would have been located in Hollywood or near Los Angeles, as it could have been operated far more satisfactorily in this locality than in the East.

Wilfred Lucas Joins Bluebird

Will Direct Ruth Clifford and Monroe Salisbury in Feature — Edgar Jones Directs Louise Lovely in 1918

WILFRED LUCAS, actor-director, has joined the directing staff of the Bluebird studios at Universal City, and will start shortly upon his first Bluebird photoplay, which will feature Ruth Clifford and Monroe Salisbury. Mr. Lucas, as is well known, is something of a pioneer in the cinema world, having the distinction of being the first dramatic leading man to desert the stage for the motion picture screen.

Mr. Lucas began his engagement with Bluebird at the Leonia, N. J., studios of that organization, where his last work was just completed—directing Violet Mersereau in "Morgan's Raiders, the Bluebird set for general circulation February 4. He expects to enhance his reputation as a producer to a material degree through his advantage in having Miss Clifford and Mr. Salisbury under his direction.

Louise Lovely, star of Universal features, starts the new year with a new director, Edgar Jones, who lately joined the directorial staff at Universal City for the purpose of assuming Miss Lovely's screen management. At the same time Philo McCullough becomes leading man of the Jones-Lovely organization, coming with Mr. Jones from the organization where they were both recently employed.

Mr. Jones for many years served the old Lubin company in the dual capacity of actor and director, having been most prominently engaged with Louise Huff in turning out features.

"The Quest of Joan," scenarioized by Doris Schroeder from James Oliver Curwell's story of the same title, will be Miss Lovely's first offering under Mr. Jones' direction. The story deals with dramatic incidents in the Banff mining district of Canada, and is said to be particularly suited to Miss Lovely's style, with a supporting role of intrinsic worth to introduce Philo McCullough as her new leading man.

William Fox Takes Over Victor Studio

WILLIAM FOX has taken over the former Victor studio at 638 West Forty-third street, New York, and already has a company working there. The acquisition was necessitated, according to the Fox management, by crowded conditions existing at the five studios in New Jersey which have been operated during the past year.

The matter of studio expansion has been under consideration for some time, it is announced, but decision has been put off from time to time because by changing companies from studio work to work on exteriors it has been possible to temporarily overcome congestion. Bad weather, hwever, prevented this arrangement from being continued and recently the problem arose as to what was to be done with the June Caprice company which was to make a new production under the direction of Harry Millarde.

Wyndham Standing Joins Petrova Company

Announcement was made this week by the Petrova Picture Company that Wyndham Standing, the English actor, has been added to the cast of the third Petrova production, now being picturized under the direction of Frank Crane. He is a brother of the late Guy Standing.

Thomas Holding, who has played opposite Madame Petrova in the first two pictures bearing the mark of her own organization, will continue as leading man and is cast for a most appropriate role in "The Life Mask," it is said.

The supporting cast, which will appear with Madame Petrova in her second production, includes Lumsden Hare as Clinton Durand; Thomas Holding, Petrova's leading man, as Doctor Leslie; Clarence Heritage, as George Raines; Evelyn Dumo, Fred C. Jones, Frank McDonald, and the child screen player, Freddie Verdi, who enacts the leading juvenile role in the second Petrova picture.

The film was directed by Larry Trimble, photographed by Philip E. Rosen, and scenarioized by Mrs. L. Case Russell from her original story, "Laurel." In it Madame Petrova depicts the unusual role of a young woman surgeon.

"Blue Jeans" Has Premiere in Indiana

Metro's special production of "Blue Jeans," Joseph Arthur's melodrama, with Viola Dana as the star, will, at her request, have its first public showing in the little town of Rising Sun in Ohio county, Ind.

Miss Dana wired Metro from the West Coast studios in California, requesting that "Blue Jeans" have its initial public showing in the town where the author of the play was born. Arrangements were immediately made with Harry Clarke to give a presentation of this picture at his theatre in Rising Sun. This premiere public presentation will be an auspicious occasion, as the town officials and leading citizens will attent in a body. It will, in a way, be an historic event as the production pictures some of the social and political peculiarities of the region about forty years ago, when the ancestors of many of the present citizens lived there. The characters are quaint, but they are typical of the period in which the story is laid, it is said.

Carmel Myers, Bluebird Star, and Her Collie

Goldwyn Passes First Mile Stone

Claims More Business on Its Books Than Any Organization Ever Had at Its Age—Executives Predict Another Period of Growth

GOLDWYN PICTURES CORPORATION, according to an announcement last week from the company's editorial offices, roudned out the first year of its existence a few days ago with more business on its books than had ever been attained in the industry by an organization of its age.

Entering now upon its second twelve months of what it terms constructive enlargement, the owners of Goldwyn predict a further period of growth and prosperity. With the start already attained by this organization, whose initial productions have been well received, it is apparent the affairs of Goldwyn will not go backward.

Goldfish Foresaw Changes

Samuel Goldfish, president of Goldwyn, more than a year ago foresaw, it is said, what he believed would be significant and revolutionary changes in the motion picture industry. He came in contact with exhibitors from all parts of America who are said to have complained lustily over the quality of productions then available and of the prevailing tendency to sacrifice everything to the existing "star system." Mr. Goldfish persuaded Edgar Selwyn, Margaret Mayo, Archibald Selwyn and their associates to join him; and the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation not only represents their combined talents and abilities, but a trade combination of their names in Gold-wyn.

Although slightly more than twelve months old, Goldwyn is but one third that old in a releasing sense, with eight Goldwyn Pictures thus far presented for public patronage. The first eight months of the company's history were devoted to organization and production. This time spent in advance preparation enabled Goldwyn to spring full-fledged into existence, with a number of completed productions on its shelves and completely eliminated rush work on productions to enable the makers to release well-rounded instead of hurriedly completed pictures.

"Thais" Stars Mary Garden

Coincident with the attainment of its first birthday Goldwyn is releasing on December 30 throughout North America what it considers its greatest production and its most celebrated star—Mary Garden in "Thais," by Anatole France. This marks Mary Garden's first appearance on any screen and is the highest achievement technically and dramatically of the new company.

"Thais" is said to represent a new note in production and Miss Garden on the screen is expected to be as successful as she has been on the operatic stages of two continents. The production represents the directorial work of Frank H. Crane and the art direction of Hugo Ballin and has called into play all of the resources of the Goldwyn studio organization in Fort Lee, headed by Aubrey M. Kennedy. The titling and assembling of this production also shows the skill of Margaret Mayo, editorial director of Goldwyn.

In addition to the Goldwyn features already released, the company has completed and shipped to its branches the following: Madge Kennedy in "Oh, Mary Be Careful," Mabel Normand in "Dodging A Million," and Mae Marsh in "Fields of Honor."

Edgar Selwyn (Goldwyn)

Kennedy Subject Complete

Madge Kennedy has completed her work in "Our Little Wife," by Avery Hopwood; Mae Marsh has still another production in reserve, "The Beloved Traitor," by Frank L. Packard; Mabel Normand's production, "Joan of Plattsburg," is now being revised to eliminate from it certain military material to which the government objected, and will soon be completed.

In addition to these Goldwyn has completed still another picture with a star, about which no announcement has been made to date; and beginning with the current week again plunged into production on a greatly enlarged scale—Mabel Normand, Madge Kennedy and Mae Marsh each starting work on new pictures.

Goldwyn in its first year established close relations with a score or more of America's most popular and successful authors and playwrights, who did not stop when they had sold their novels or manuscripts to the organization, but followed their stories into actual production to help impart to them the solicitous care and many refinements which have been apparent in all of the pictures thus far released under the Goldwyn imprint.

Support Never Lacking

From the outset the Goldwyn organization received the hearty encouragement, both verbal and financial, of America's exhibitors and the whole-hearted support of the daily newspapers of the nation, as well as the trade press. To the motion picture critics of the United States, the Dominion of Canada, Great Britain and the Commonwealth of Australia Goldwyn owes its appreciation for the support they have given to this new organization for the production of "still better pictures."

Long before the completion of "Polly of the Circus" and its release in September, Goldwyn had organized the Goldwyn Distributing Corporation and dotted North America with its offices, through which are now handled not only the Goldwyn productions but special productions of other individuals or companies wishing to avail themselves of the selling capacities thus afforded.

In every sense Goldwyn is said to be satisfied with its first year's achievements and with the business return therefrom. It foresees in the coming year a great improvement in business conditions and public patronage which will mean enlarged returns for exhibitors and itself.

Jewel Plans for Kansas City Event

Jewel Productions, Inc., is making preparations to flood Kansas City with living and lively samples of its wares during the week of January 27, 1918, when the Western metropolis will open its doors to the stars of screenland, as a feature of the motion picture revival week.

Many of the houses have already played some of the earlier Jewels and have rebooked "The Co-Respondent," "The Man Without a Country," "Pay Me" and "Sirens of the Sea" for the week of the festival.

Mildred Harris, Louise Lovely, Dorothy Phillips and William Stowell will in all probability represent living examples of the Jewel exhibit and the Kansas City committee is making a special attempt to have Lois Weber and Phillips Smalley present for the big ball, which will take place on the 29th.

Goldwyn Experiments with Studio Roof

The Goldwyn Pictures Corporation is trying an experiment in its studio at Fort Lee, N. J., which may bring an important change in methods of motion picture photography where the weather does not permit of sunlight work the year around. The glass roof of the Goldwyn studio has been painted black and all daylight excluded, making it unnecessary to cover the sets in which companies are working. Natural light, the cameramen say, only interferes with proper artificial lighting, and since they cannot have proper natural lighting at all times they prefer to have it wholly shut out.

Examples of the Elaborate Care with Which "The Naulahka" Was Staged for Pathe

Berst Closes New Bookings

Tom Moore, of Washington, Takes Pathe Plays for Eighteen Theatres—General Manager of Pathe Goes to Coast

J. A. BERST, vice-president and general manager of Pathe, arrived in Los Angeles last week in connection with the expansion of releasing plans for 1918, and it is stated that the greater program of Pathe plays will occupy Mr. Berst's principal attention. Stars and studios, it is reported, are both scheduled for consideration and many important developments are expected as a result of Mr. Berst's visit.

On the way to the Coast, Mr. Berst, accompanied by his assistant, G. A. Smith, stopped off long enough in Washington to conclude with Tom Moore, one of the biggest deals in film history of the Capitol. This calls for the showing of Pathe plays in all of the eighteen theatres under Mr. Moore's control, a new $2,000,000 company to be known as Moore's Theatres Corporation, having been incorporated, through which he will conduct the business of his houses. Preliminary negotiations with Mr. Moore were conducted by D. F. O'Donnell, manager of Pathe's Washington branch.

"I was surprised," stated Mr. Berst upon his arrival in Los Angeles, "to learn the extent of the feeling of unrest among the exhibitors from coast to coast.

"I do not think I exaggerate when I state that the situation is so serious, as to assume the proportions of a revolt. Everywhere I go I find the same situation. The exhibitors with whom I discussed conditions unanimously agreed that the greatest evil in the industry today is the high film rental being charged by certain companies for unproductive pictures.

"Tom Moore, whom I consider one of the greatest exhibitors in the country, offers a good illustration. Mr. Moore told me that he submitted to extravagant prices for certain stars as long as he saw a possible profit. But when an attempt was made to force him, through a contract, to show all of the pictures of one company, to the exclusion of all of the other companies, he stated he cancelled in all ninety contracts for eighteen theatres."

Tom Moore, Progressive Washington Exhibitor

You are not going to war. The men who are need all the comforts you can give them. Help them get cigarettes. That is your patriotic duty. If you aren't helping in the "smokes" campaign, get busy—now. Don't be a slacker!

Blackton Gets Busy in California

J. Stuart Blackton, director and producer for Paramount, has arrived in Hollywood, where he went to especially supervise the production of his third Sir Gilbert Parker picture adaptation from the book "Wild Youth."

The second Blackton production for Paramount, entitled "The World for Sale," is to be released January 21. It is said to be even more of a pretentious photodrama than "The Judgment House," which has achieved success. Ferdinand Pinney Earle, the author, has had charge of the title work for Mr. Blackton's second Paramount picture. His titles in "The Judgment House" were widely commented on by critics.

Director Edwards Begins New Keystone

Director Harry Edwards has completed his dumb-waiter story, titled "Ruined by a Dumb-waiter," and has started production on a new Triangle-Keystone comedy which will give Ray Griffith the camouflage role of a hard-working father. This comedy has not been titled as yet. The supporting cast will include Claire Anderson, Dorothy Hagar, Alice Davenport, Jack Henderson, Chris Richards and Fred Mack.

This is Ray Griffith's first comedy since his return from Camp Lewis.

Bradley Barker Returns to Fox Forces

Bradley Barker, who is well remembered for his character portrayals in "The Little Gypsy." and "A Woman's Honor," has returned to the William Fox forces for an important role in a production now in work at the Fort Lee, N. J., studios. Mr. Barker will be seen as Dr. Wu Ching, a crafty Oriental, in "A Heart's Revenge," starring Sonia Markova. William Fox has tentatively scheduled the picture for January release.

Picture Art Will Advance in 1918

William Fox Predicts Spectacular Achievements for Silent Drama During Coming Year, and Insists Stories Will be Greater—Lavish Height Is Reached

WILLIAM FOX, in discussing things in store for the motion picture during 1918, last week asserted that spectacular achievement and advancement will mark the motion picture art in the new year, and that there will be a spirit of persistent betterment, as well as a striving for the attainment of higher ideals.

Mr. Fox also gave as his opinion that greater stories than ever before will be told on the screen; the themes will be closer to the heart of the American public and the action of the photoplays will be more human. Productions, while not more lavish, will depict actual occurrences in a more convincing way than ever before.

National Cause Assisted

"America will learn from the motion picture camera," said Mr. Fox, "the progressive story of the world war. I believe, too, that our National cause will be greatly assisted by the motion picture, due to the fact that the American branch of the industry is united behind President Wilson.

"During the next twelve months I propose to take the motion picture patrons through the library of classical literature, as well as the popular writings, including farce and melodrama. Producers should not decry the lack of material when there remains the work of Victor Hugo, Dumas, Dickens, Scott, Thackeray, Balzac, Maupasant, Daudet, Bulwer Lytton and all the renowned American writers to draw upon.

"I hope to develop playwrights by giving the young American brain of both men and women the oportunity to write original stories for my scenarios. The photoplaywright will be paid double the previous prices for original scenarios during 1918.

Glad News for Writers

"During the next twelve months the writer for the screen will receive a well-earned recognition. The creation of his brain will be exploited under his name, instead of giving all the credit to a star actor or actress in the picture. The only way to develop big brains and imagination is to give them public recognition in addition to liberal payment.

"Cheerfulness is contagious and a large percentage of the plays during the next year will be light comedies, farces, etc., as a relief from the daily news from the war-torn countries.

"The great film play of the future will not necessarily be the spectacular. It will be a straightforward story, naturally acted, staged with newly invented lighting effects and directed without exaggeration. That character of story will appeal to every clean human mind.

"Censorship by a single-handed controller of thought and intellectuality will die in the coming year.

Censorship Is Doomed

"No person on earth is qualified to pass first and final judgment on any subject, whether it be in law courts or in the legislation of the Government. And, much less should motion picture censorship be intrusted to one man for first and final decision, whether that man be intellectual and broad-minded or whether that man be stupid, arrogant and narrow-minded.

Gladys Brockwell's Newest Picture Is "For Liberty," a Wiliam Fox Production

"Russia rebelled against censorship and the Czar. So, too, will the American people rebel against the Censor Czar, whether it be of the press or the motion picture.

"I feel that my 1917 pictures, 'A Daughter of the Gods,' 'The Honor System,' 'A Tale of Two Cities' and 'Romeo and Juliet,' have evidenced the advance in the motion picture art. Children's pictures, such as 'Jack and the Beanstalk,' 'Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp' and 'Treasure Island,' have been exceedingly well received by school teachers, women's clubs, the press and others interested in the better class of pictures.

Companies to Brazil

"During 1918 I shall send producing companies to Brazil and Argentina. This will serve to show the glorious scenery and the development of the Pan-American countries.

"Arrangements have been made by which we shall film 52 extraordinary productions, known as Standard Pictures; 52 feature plays, running on the screen from one hour to 75 minutes, and 26 comedies. In addition to these, we shall make a few films, which will show the occasion for the entry of America into the present world war.

"Under my management, during the year 1918, will be such stars as Theda Bara, William Farnum, Annette Kellermann, George Walsh, Jewel Carmen, Virginia Pearson, Tom Mix, June Caprice, Sonia Markova, Jane and Katherine Lee, Francis Carpenter and Virginia Corbin, Gertrude Messinger and Georgie Stone and Gladys Brockwell.

"Fox distribution encircles the globe. Exchanges and branch offices are to be found in every civilized country in the world. The Fox organization was the first to lead the way into foreign fields."

"Donna Perfecta" Started by Universal

Elsie Jane Wilson, who is directing Ella Hall's screen activities at Universal City, has begun production of "Donna Perfecta," scenario made from B. Perez Galdos' book of the same title, by Elliott J. Clawson. The work was first intended for production with Ruth Clifford as the star, but a change in plan gives Ella Hall the role of a Spanish girl to play for the first time in her career. Miss Hall has played many parts, mostly juveniles, but this will be her first impersonation of a fashionable daughter of Sunny Spain.

Emory Johnson, who lately made Miss Hall his wife, will be featured as leader of the supporting company. Another prominent player will be Ruby Lafayette. Still another role of special prominence and interest will be played by Gretchen Lederer. Others appearing in the support are Maxfield Stanley, Harry Holden and Winter Hall.

"Out West" Arbuckle's Next Comedy

Fatty Arbuckle's next Paramount-Arbuckle comedy has received the title "Out West." The release date has not ben set. In his new comedy Fatty plays the role of reformer. Thrown off a freight train into the heart of the Western desert, Fatty lands eventually in the village of "Mad Dog," described by the fervid scenario writer as "the toughest, wildest and wooliest town in the West." Here the intrepid hero mixes up with more bad men than Nick Carter ever imagined in his wildest flights of fancy, and after finally cleaning them out, sets out to reform the whole "Mad Dog" village, with the help of a Salvation Army girl, several hundred feet of film and a barrel-full of comedy situations.

Fay Tincher Makes Up for Lost Time

Fay Tincher has nearly finished one comedy on the West Coast under the direction of Al Santell, and Technical Director John Deuel has all her sets ready for her second one. A big indoor studio is nearly completed so that work may progress during the daily-expected rainy season, and the young actress has five stories all ready for her.

"La Tosca" Secured for Screen

Famous Players-Lasky Will Present Pauline Frederick as the Star—Will Be Released by Paramount

AFTER much time spent in negotiations and preparations for the production, the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation has announced that it has secured "La Tosca" for the screen and that Pauline Frederick will appear in the role of Floria Tosca. It will be a Paramount Picture and will be done, it is said, on a most elaborate scale of excellence.

It would be difficult to find, according to Paramount, in the whole range of drama and opera, a piece that has won more signal renown than "La Tosca." Written by the French master of dramatic art, Victorien Sardou, upwards of thirty years ago, for Sarah Bernhardt, it was in this play that she made one of the successes of her career.

The plot of "La Tosca" is almost too well known to need repetition. Briefly, however, it tells of the attempt of Floria Tosca, one of those strange, beautiful and wilful women, to save her lover from the clutches of Scarpia, the minister of police. Faced by the fearful alternative of yielding herself to Scarpia or seeing her lover shot beneath her eyes, she pretends to surrender and then kills the official. Later her lover is indeed killed by mistake of the soldiers who failed to remove the bullets from their guns as instructed. Then Tosca ends her life.

Pauline Frederick Has Been Chosen by Paramount for Its Screen Version of "La Tosca"

Just whether the original idea will be altered to any extent for the screen is of course as yet unknown. The interesting thing, from a motion picture point of view, is that it will be presented under the Paramount banner with a degree of splendor that should prove startling, it is asserted, even in these days of superior films.

Petrova Album Highly Praised

Following the presentation last week of the Petrova Pictorial Album to the members of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit by Frederick L. Collins, president of the picture star's organization, the Petrova executive has been deluged by congratulatory communications from various recipients of the novel gift, it is said.

All of the members of the circuit who will distribute the eight starring vehicles of Madame Petrova during the forthcoming year are said to be warm in their praise of the artistic and business-getting qualities of the pictorial brochure.

The novelty, which contains a complete review of the various scenes from the first Petrova production, "Daughter of Destiny," has aroused strong interest among the many exhibitors dealing with the circuit, and in response to universal requests for additional copies of the album, the Petrova Picture Company has arranged to supply each distribution office with five of the booklets.

"Yosemite" Rights Sold to Metro

Motion picture rights to Charles A. Taylor's Western melodrama, "Yosemite," have been acquired by Metro as a starring vehicle for Edith Storey. The author himself will adapt the play for the screen, and therefore all the characteristic Western action and incidents which made this melodrama a success on the stage will be transplanted to the screen just as the author originally wrote them.

This is the second stage play that Metro has secured recently for Edith Storey, the first being "The Claims," by Charles Kenyon and Frank Dare, which was picturized yon and Frank Dare.

Vitagraph Sends Williams West

Star Expects to Remain in California for Several Months—Grace Darmond Will Be His Leading Woman

EARLE WILLIAMS, Vitagraph star, started for California, his native state, last Thursday and will be engaged in making pictures there for some months to come. Mr. Williams headed a party of six which included Grace Darmond, who will be featured opposite him in Blue Ribbon features; Tom Mills, director, and his assistant, Frank Heath, and Fred Held, their cameraman. Miss Darmond's mother was also in the party.

The party left Grand Central Terminal at 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon, and expected to arrive in Los Angeles Christmas morning, having their Christmas dinner with members of the Vitagraph Company now working at the company's plant in Hollywood. The trip was made via Chicago and Omaha.

This is the first time Mr. Williams has been to his home state in more than five years. He was born in Sacramento and spent his boyhood there, but has only been back home at infrequent intervals. However, his mother, brother and other relatives are now living in Oakland and his family has never become alienated from his native state.

Mr. Williams and Miss Darmond will remain in California for an indefinite period of time and will be seen in a number of important features. They first worked together in "In the Balance," recently put out by Vitagraph, and made such an attractive pair that Albert E. Smith, the Vitagraph president, decided to make a starring combination of them.

The transfer of Earle Williams and the other Vitagraphers to the company's Western studio will no doubt make that spot more active than it has been in a long time. There will be at work there three Blue Ribbon feature companies, three Big V comedy companies, one O. Henry company and one serial company, the latter headed by William Duncan, who also directs the serials, with Carol Holloway as the featured woman.

Dorothy Dalton Feature This Week

Dorothy Dalton will star in "'Flare-Up' Sal" following her appearance in "Love Letters," released December 24.

Miss Dalton has the role of Sally Jo, a young girl whose foster-parents take her to the California mining town of Jimtown, where she becomes one of the dancers in the Looloo Bird, a noted resort of the early 'fifties.

R. William Neill directed "'Flare-Up' Sal" under the personal supervision of Mr. Ince.

Enid Bennett, Thomas H. Ince Star

Triangle Forges Further Ahead

Considers Achievements of Past Year as Distinguishing Mark of Merit and Ability—Thinks New Year Offers Chance for Great Improvement

AS one of the storm centers in the controversy over the reel tax, and by reason of its career as one of the integral parts of the industry, the Triangle Distributing Corporation might naturally be expected, thorugh its officials, to make some statement at this time of the year savoring of the prophetic or the oft-endured campaign promise. But no such statement is forthcoming, in spite of the acute cisis which is felt to exist in film circles as a result of trade conditions more generally laid at the door of the war. The Triangle officials seem to be too busy doing things to spend muh time talking about what they are going to do.

What has been done in the past year, under conditions which, if Dame Rumor may be believed, rival the stupendous task of Atlas, is another story.

Goal Is "Satisfaction"

Concerning its plans for the future, a Triangle official said: "The great goal of the motion picture business to-day might be summed up in the single word, 'satisfaction.' It is like working in a fertile field which, in the rapidity of its crop rotation, has yielded such prolific returns that the harvesters have neglected everything except their harvesting. Rank weeds have grown up; the fertility has been reduced; and intensive cultivation has become an immediate necessity. Of course, there is a market for the product of this commercial soil. There always will be. But—and this is the point of the whole analogy—the consumer has set his own maximum price and his standards of quality. He knows what he wants, and he knows, by stern economic experience, just what he can afford to pay for it. Strangely enough, producers and distributors in general still cling to the theory that the motion picture industry is exempt from the operation of economic laws. When their best laid plans 'gang aft aglay,' they blame the stupidity of the exhibitor, or Government, or the ignorance of the public, instead of stripping themselves of conceit and examining the actual dollars and cents strength of their respective propositions. It is like the man who wanted an increase in salary before he did any increased work.

"It is not admitting a human weakness to say that 'satisfaction' almost invariably has some relation to money and profits. It is a known fact in and out of business. There is no profit to us unless the exhibitor profits by dealing with us, no matter what rental he may pay us at the time of any current transaction. If he doesn't come back, and keep on coming back, we lose. Our problem is, how to keep the exhibitor satisfied. What does he want? Is he reasonable in his expectations? Can we afford to give him more for his money?

Paying Reel Tax

"What are we doing to back up this analysis of trade conditions? Well, we can not tell you everything that we are doing, but here are a few instances of actual accomplishments. We are paying the reel tax instead of passing it on to the already burdened exhibitor. 'How can you afford to pay this enormous assessment, when others are uniting to avoid it?' is a question put up to us daily. The answer is simple, and is best given by another question, 'How can the people of the United States afford to buy Liberty Bonds, pay increased prices for their necessities, and send their wage-earning sons to the battlefields?' The country is at war, and it is no time for dodging individual or corporate responsibilities.' We believe that the reel tax is meant for producers, manufacturers, and importers, and, with that conviction, we can't honestly say to the exhibitor, 'This is going to cut into my profits; you pay it.' It is our 'bit,' and we are glad to make any sacrifices necessary in order to meet the needs of the hour.

"It follows that we must be doing something to economize if we are taking this so-called philanthropic stand. We are. For five months we have had in operation a Traffic Department charged solely with the duty of cutting out transportation waste. It is part of the new Triangle service, not only to find the shortest distance between two points, but the cheapest way to cover that distance. We do not pocket all the savings which have been effected by this intelligent sort of business methods. Service to exhibitors has been improved both in prompter deliveries and smaller shipping costs.

Territories Organized

"Territories are now organized on a geographical and economic basis, not a personal one. The branch managers serve only the counties they can serve best, and no others, regardless of the temporary loss in receipts because of the readjustment of territorial lines. And every time an exhibitor kicks about the service he is not getting, something happens in the New York office of our Traffic Manager which doesn't stop until the complainant is satisfied. The result is greater co-ordination of effort and reduced overhead.

"Through the trade papers we are trying to tell exhibitors of the things we are doing in a quiet way to stabilize the industry. There has been no blowing of trumpets, because every betterment we make is as much for our own good as for the exhibitor. We both profit, and let the public in on the bargain, too. Take the seven-reel feature recently announced as a regular item on the monthly program. It goes out at no advance in prices, and is sure to increase box-office receipts. 'Because of a Woman,' the first multiple reel release on this plan, has been so favorably received that we expect the January special, 'I Love You,' to be a big success. Renewals of old contracts and a number of new first-run accounts in the larger cities attest the appreciation of showmen.

Alma Ruebens, It Is Predicted, Will Corral New Triangle Triumphs in "The Gown of Destiny"

Educational Gets Newman Film

Aims to Release Thirty Pictures During the Coming Year—Subjects Now Include Those of Ditmars and Bruce

ADDITIONAL evidence of the remarkable growth, in size and quality, of the Educational Films Corporation of America was brought to the attention of the motion picture industry last week when it was announced that E. W. Hammons, vice-president and general manager of the progressive corporation, has signed a contract whereby E. M. Newman, of the Newman Travel-talks, will add his picture output to the already strong array of subjects released by Educational.

According to the announcement, it is the aim of Educational Films Corporation to release in the coming year thirty pictures embodying the Newman activities in the latter's travels around the world. That these subjects will in every way equal in quality the pictures which Educational has already given the exhibitors is confidently expected and predicted. Among these new releases are "The Forbidden Isle," "The Egypt of the Southwest," "Tid-Bits of Travel" and "Through the Nation's Parks." It is understood these will be the first four of the Newman subjects to be released by Educational, all of which are both scenic and educational.

The Educational Films Corporation of America already is releasing subjects made by Raymond L. Ditmars, who furnishes animal pictures called "The Living Book of Nature," with the New York Zoo supplying the live stock, and a wonderful line of scenics made by Robert C. Bruce, whose remarkable aptitude for getting what the public wants has placed him in the front rank of scenic producers.

Lorimer Story Enthuses Fox

Producer Was Satisfied He Had Star and Producer to "Put It Over"—Excellent Combination Assured

WHEN William Fox decided to picturize "Jack Spurlock-Prodigal," written by George Horace Lorimer, editor of Saturday Evening Post, he knew he had in his employ a star and a director who could and would "put it over" right, according to the publicity department's announcement this week. George Walsh is the star and Carl Harbaugh, the director. This selection apparently assures an unbeatable combination and the film production of "Jack Spurlock-Prodigal" will undoubtedly justify Mr. Fox's expectations.

George Walsh, the Fox star, has many personal characteristics of just such a person as Mr. Lorimer pictures his Jack Spurlock. He has the spirit and dash for even so virile a person as Jack Spurlock, and his ability to act before the camera has been proved.

Mr. Walsh grew enthusiastic over Mr. Lorimer's story and declared it provided him with the best vehicle he had ever had to show what he could do in motion pictures.

"Young Spurlock, as pictured by Mr. Lorimer, is a peach," said the Fox star, "and the incentive actuating him is so inspiring that it makes my blood flow a bit faster when I think I'm to portray him in film for Mr. Fox. It certainly requires 'pep,' but I believe I have it and will turn it loose in this picture. Director Harbaugh and I have discussed the story from all angles, and the way he plans to direct it assures me that it will be a 'corker.' Subconsciously, Harbaugh is a Jack Spurlock himself, and takes keen delight in transferring to film the multitudinous humorous incidents of that young chap's exciting experiences from the day he is dropped from Harvard, simply because he brought a bear home with him one night, and bruin insists upon interviewing some of the faculty, until he finds riches and power in onions."

Davis Completes Plans for Production

TWICE crossing the continent in less than a month, Vice-President and General Manager H. O. Davis, of the Triangle Film Corporation, has departed for New York from Culver City, Cal., studio to complete plans for production activity in the Western plant unparalleled in the history of the company.

While in the East, Mr. Davis will arrange for the purchase and production by a recently formed syndicate of a series of plays which will be screened in multiple reel features. The first of these plays upon which work will soon be started is "The Servant in the House," by Charles Rand Kennedy. Further announcement of the detailed plans of the syndicate will be made later. Mr. Davis expects to return to Los Angeles within a few weeks.

At the Triangle studio, during the past week, three new plays were started and the production department is working a day and night shift to keep pace with the nine directors at work. Under the supervision of Production Manager O. L. Sellers, the planing mill, technical art department, paper hangers, painters, property and wardrobe forces are working two full shifts ever day in an earnest endeavor to keep up the schedule.

In addition to the three new plays just begun, three directors are in various stages of completion on their pictures, while two five-reel dramas and a comedy drama have been made ready for the editors. Directors Frank Borzage, Raymond Wells and E. Mason Hopper will be supplied with new stories immediately. Each has just completed a five-reel subject.

Tom Mix Completes First Starring Picture

Tom Mix, who is working at the William Fox Western studios, has completed "Cupid's Round Up," his first picture as a star in Western dramas. The story deals with the result of the betrothing of a girl and a boy because of the desire of their parents, who are old friends, to unite the two families.

Most of the scenes are laid on a ranch where the young woman, posing as a maid, meets the young man a few weeks prior to the date set for their marriage.

Mr. Mix is supported in the production by Wanda Petit and the production was made under the direction of Edward J. Le Saint, this being the latter's first picture for Wiliam Fox. "Cupid's Round Up" is tentatively scheduled for release January 13 as a Fox Special Feature.

Brockwell-Pearson Pictures Switched

"Stolen Honor," the Virginia Pearson picture which William Fox had announced as his Special Features release for December 30, will not be available for exhibitors on that date. The illness of Miss Pearson delayed work on the production with the result that "For Liberty," a war picture featuring Gladys Brockwell, has been substituted for it. As the schedule now stands, "Stolen Honor" will be released January 6, and "For Liberty" December 30.

The January Special Features have been announced only for the first three weeks. "Cupid's Round Up," in which Tom Mix will make his debut as a star of Western dramas, is set tentatively for January 13, and "A Heart's Revenge," Sonia Markova's second production, is down for January 20.

Good Players Appear in Beban Feature

The cream of many of the best players in the Paramount roll has been assembled for the supporting cast of George Beban's starring vehicle, "Jules of the Strong Heart," which is to be released by Paramount January 14.

The list includes: Raymond Hatton, Charles Ogle, Guy Oliver, Ernest Joy, Horace B. Carpenter, Edward Martin Factor and James Neill.

Following "Jules of the Strong Heart," Mr. Beban will be seen in a new picture, "One More American," to be released by Paramount in February.

Carl Lothrop Joins W. H. Productions

Carl P. Lothrop is a new addition to the staff of W. H. Productions Company, and while he has had very little experience in the film industry he is becoming an asset.

Mr. Lothrop was born in Braintree, Mass., was educated in the public schools of Braintree, in Thayer Academy, College of Liberal Arts of Boston University, Boston University Law School of which he graduated with a degree of LL.B. of 1910.

Psychology Subject for Rawlinson

What is said to be a subject that has been touched upon but slightly by photoplay producers forms the basis of Herbert Rawlinson's latest production, "More Power to Him," the filming of which was recently started at Universal City under the direction of Elmer Cliftin. It also should prove highly interesting, it is said, as a study in psychology. Director Clifton is the author; the peculiar nature of the story would make it almost impossible for anyone other than the writer himself to film the production in a comprehensive manner.

Mr. Rawlinson plays the role of a college man whose parents represent diametrically opposite natures. The father is a man of exceptional strength of character, while the mother possesses less than the average portion of moral courage.

The screen arrangement of "More Power to Him" was prepared by Waldemar Young and the cast includes Claire Du Brey, who plays opposite Rawlinson; Alfred Allen, Blanche Gray, Neal Hart and Sam De Grasse.

General Releases First Brown Story

"Bud's Recruit," said to be a timely patriotic story in which "Bud" wins a recruit for his country in the person of his older brother, a slacker, is the first and current release in the series of "Judge Brown Stories," to be released by General Film Company. The novel manner in which the young patriot serves his country is said to make this two-reel subject a timely feature for the average exhibitor's program, and sets a fast pace for the succeeding subjects in the series.

"The Preacher's Son," "The Accusing Toe" and "Two Boys and Two Lies" are other subjects which have been completed and will be released shortly.

A strong cast, composed of juvenile and older actors, will appear in the nineteen subjects promised for the season.

Frances Marion Has Contributed the Scenarios for Mary Pickford's Three Newest Productions, Released by Artcraft

Bluebird Adds to Its Program

Laemmle Adjusts Coming Bills to Include Four Additional Stars— "Broadway Love" Starts Company's Second Year

MANAGING DIRECTOR CARL LAEMMLE has adjusted the Bluebird program until the week of February 11, by adding features that will employ as stars Dorothy Phillips, Franklyn Farnum, Violet Mersereau and Carmel Myers. This list of added features starts the second year of the Bluebird program with the release of "Broadway Love," starring Dorothy Phillips.

W. Carey Wonderly's story, first appearing in a popular magazine, furnished the basis of Ida May Park's production of "Broadway Love," in which Miss Phillips will reappear among Bluebirds after a considerable lapse of time, January 21, Lon Chaney and William Stowell to play the leading male roles, while Juanita Hansen will head the female contingent.

Franklyn Farnum's regular appearance will be made January 28 in "The Fighting Grin," a comedy in which he has Edith Johnson as his leading lady. Joseph De Grasse directed the production from Charles Kenyon's scenario. In the company supporting Mr. Farnum and Miss Johnson will be J. Morris Foster, Charles H. Mailes and Fred Montague heading a numerous organization.

"Morgan's Raiders" will have Violet Mersereau as the star of the February 4 release in a melodrama reflecting incidents in the Civil War.

"The Wife He Bought" brings Carmel Myers to star among Bluebirds for the third time, February 11, when she appears in a screen version of a story by Larry Evans that appeared in a popular magazine under the title of "One Clear Call." Harvey Gates made the scenario and Harry Solter directed the production with Kenneth Harlan in the leading male role. The others in the cast are Howard Crampton, Fred Schilling, Allen Sears and Sidney Dean.

Violet Mersereau Is Bluebird's Winsome Star in "Morgan's Raiders"

There are said to be Bluebirds enough completed at Universal City to run the program until the middle of March, but the formality of scheduling them remains to be accomplished. Among the subjects, all complete and ready for release, are mentioned "The Eternal Columbine," in which Mae Murray will star; "The Girl Who Dared," presenting Dorothy Phillips, and "The Highest Card," a Bluebird for Ruth Clifford and Monroe Salisbury.

"Sadie Goes to Heaven" Reaches Screen

DIRECTOR W. S. VANDYKE was forced to work his players night and day at the climax of his production of "Sadie Goes to Heaven," in order to assure ample time to supply Christmas week bookings.

"Sadie Goes to Heaven," which was released on December 24, features little Mary McAlister, as Sadie, telling the story of her visit to the home of wealth. Pre-release showing of this Essanany Perfection picture netted many complimentary comments on its unusual fund of detail. The picture is adapted from the story that appeared in the Good Housekeeping Magazine.

The production was heavily booked from the start, as it is particularly appropriate for the holidays though not a Christmas picture.

"The Dream Doll," an Essanay Perfection Picture, released on December 10, is realizing a big holiday week run throughout the country also. It is enacted almost entirely by fourteen-inch dolls by a secret process that enables them to do all but talk.

Taylor Holmes' earlier Essanay productions, "The Small Town Guy" and "Efficiency Edgar's Courtship," continue to fill houses throughout all Kleine districts. The accumulative effect of the publicity given Mr. Holmes seems to steadily increase the public demand.

Keystoners Move Without Interruption

The removal of the Triangle-Keystone comedy players to the Culver City studio, from the old Majestic-Fine Arts plant on Sunset boulevard, Hollywood, has given the immense Triangle studio the appearance of a circus lot during the past few days. Seven companies were transported to their new home and installed.

Although the move involved scores of players and workmen and tons of baggage and properties, it was accomplished without confusion or loss of time. Not so much as a wig or a powder-puff was lost in the shuffle and, aside from seeing strange faces among them, the other inhabitants of the twenty-seven-acre production studio were scarcely aware of the increase of population.

Billie Rhodes Creates Most of the Comedy Situations in "Her Awful Fix," for Mutual

Mutual Announces Schedule

Releases for First Two Months of New Year Have Been Completed —Stars Include Mary Miles Minter

STUDIOS producing features for the Mutual Film Corporation have completed releases for the first two months of the new year and a schedule for January, 1918, has been announced.

Completed productions include pictures from east and west coast studios starring William Russell, Mary Miles Minter, Margarita Fischer, Edna Goodrich, Olive Tell, Ann Murdock and Anita King.

The schedule for January includes: December 31—Edna Goodrich in "Her Second Husband," a five-reel satire built on the adventure of a young husband and wife who rush into divorce when "easy money" jars domestic tranquillity, and find love again in a strange fashion.

January 7—Margarita Fischer in "Molly Go Get 'Em," a five-reel comedy drama of the experiences of an attractive and irresponsible young woman who chafes under parental efforts to keep her charms subdued until a rapidly aging sister manages to marry.

January 14—Ann Murdock in "The Impostor," a picturization of the Charles Frohman play which casts Miss Murdock in the role of a self supporting, unsophisticated miss, whose trust in a well meaning married man leads to complications, defiance of convention and stops just short of a scandal.

January 21—Mary Miles Minter in "Mlle. Tiptoe," wherein Miss Minter is cast as an enthusiastic reformer of things as they are, political and economic, and relates her adventures in trying to make the world better and easier.

January 28—William Russell in "In Bad," an adventure drama which reveals Mr. Russell's unusual abilities as an actor and an athlete to even greater advantage than they have heretofore been shown. Preview of "In Bad" has resulted in a declaration that it is easily the best thing Mr. Russell has done and trade and newspaper critics used superlatives in their reviews of his latest release, "New York Luck."

Coburn Appears in Universal Serial

Wallace David Coburn, the "Cowboy Poet," has joined the Universal forces as an actor. He is widely known as the author of "Rhymes of a Round-Up Camp" and other Western stories in verse and prose and is intimately acquainted with the life he portrays.

Mr. Coburn was born in Helena, Montana, and is of Scotch-Irish descent.

Several years ago the "Cowboy Poet" became interested in motion pictures and with his Western training and dash "broke in" on a gallop. His first experience was in one of his own stories, "The Sunset Princess," in which he was featured. Mr. Coburn is now playing a part in the Universal serial, "The Bull's-Eye," in which Eddie Polo is starred, and which is being produced by James W. Horne.

Olcott Depicts Realism in "The Belgian"

Although Sidney Olcott, who produced and financed "The Belgian," announced by the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation as its third special release, did not devote a great deal of footage to the scenes wherein he depicts the invasion of Belgium by the Huns, persons who have lived through the devastation of the martyred nation declare that he has succeeded in converting the historic event to the screen with striking realism.

Frederick Paulton, a magazine writer well known in England and Ireland, who followed in the wake of the Teutons as they swept through the little kingdom, has written a letter to Mr. Olcott congratulating him upon his achievement and expressing the hope that he undertake at some future time to produce a picture in which the real tragedy of the kingdom of grief may be visualized.

First National Endorses Collins' Letter

As an expression of the co-operation which is being accorded the Petrova Picture Company by the members of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit in the presentation of Madame Olga Petrova in a series of eight super-pictures during the forthcoming year, a copy of the following communication has been sent to every motion picture exhibitor in the United States by the executives of the organization which will distribute Petrova productions in this country:

"The statement by Frederick L. Collins enclosed is endorsed—every word—by the First National Exhibitors' Circuit. We know that Madame Petrova is now working under perfect conditions—that the producers are sparing no expense in the making of her pictures nor in the exploitation of the finished productions—and, what is more, we have seen 'Daughter of Destiny,' the first release of the Petrova Picture Company controlled by Petrova herself. It is the finest production in which Madame Petrova has appeared (you will say so yourself when you see it) and is an omen of the Petrova Perfect Pictures which will follow."

Artcraft Finds Demand for Elsie Ferguson

The success of Miss Ferguson's first two photoplays for Artcraft, "Barbary Sheep" and "The Rise of Jennie Cushing" has resulted in a great demand for pictures presenting the talents of this star, according to Walter E. Greene, president of the Artcraft Pictures Corporation. "A great many stage stars have been flat failures as screen artists," said Mr. Greene. "There are various reasons for this, the main one being the lack of photographic qualities of the subject. The eyes of the camera are searching and the lights in the studio are pitiless.

"Actors who, on the stage, have been able to cover defects in their appearance with grease paint cannot hope to camouflage in a film, for they cannot stand the 'close-up' which reveals everything."

Mary Garden, Star of "Thais," for Goldwyn

Triangle Signs New Players

Two players of exceptional ability have signed Triangle contracts and will be seen in productions just started. Jean Hersholt, a character artist of unusual experience, will be seen in "Little Red Decides," which is now being made under the direction of Jack Conway. Marion Skinner, the other player engaged, is one of the best known character women and grand dames of the screen. She is cast in "Real Folks." Director Walter Edwards is handling the megaphone.

Russian Country Life in Pathe Release

The Russia that one finds in the works of Tolstoi, Dostoievsky, Pushkin and Andrieff, not the Russia of which one reads in the newspapers of the day, a nation in the throes of countless revolutions, is to be seen in "The Cloven Tongue," a Russian Art Film to be released by Pathe on January 13 as a special. If it had nothing else to recommend it, according to Pathe, "The Cloven Tongue" would be of interest to everyone as a picture of country life in the "land of snows." There is something about the feature that impresses, it is said, the observer with a sense of sincerity.

Author Value Backs Goldwyn

President Goldfish Believes in Giving Stars Good Stories—Claims That Is More Than Half the Victory

FROM the founding of Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, a year ago, two things stood out to assure the new company's place in the motion picture industry. Even before the release of the first Goldwyn Picture, "Polly of the Circus," these two things—essentials in good picture making—were as incontestible as the artistic worth of Goldwyn's technical work has proved by the actual showing of its productions. These two primary values of Goldwyn were stars and authors.

Mary Garden, Mae Marsh, Maxine Elliott, Jane Cowl, Madge Kennedy and Mabel Normand, meant a good deal, of course, in the progress toward better pictures and more profitable attractions for the exhibitors. But President Goldfish's realization that the greatest of stars means nothing without a strong story determined him to gather "star" authors as well as "star" players together.

The working out of this policy is well worth noting in the eight Goldwyn Pictures so far released and in those to come. By a curious coincidence, in which a measure of poetic justice is hidden, the first two pictures, "Polly of the Circus," with Mae Marsh, and "Baby Mine," with Madge Kennedy, were from the pen of a writer to whom Goldwyn owes much of the perfection displayed in its stories; for Margaret Mayo, as editorial director, has followed Goldwyn productions through from the judging and acceptance of manuscripts to the final editing of the finished pictures and their ultimate success.

Following Miss Mayo's two pictures came one in which two significant factors of the American stage and magazines were united—Irvin S. Cobb and Roi Cooper Megrue, who collaborated on "Fighting Odds" for Maxine Elliott. Next the Goldwyn organization went to an American novelist, Basil King.

Select Secures "The Knife"

Alice Brady Will Star in the Screen Production—Vignola Gets Opening Scenes in Florida

SELECT PICTURES has acquired another Broadway success for one of its stars. "The Knife," which was the attraction chosen to open the new Bijou theatre, has been purchased for Alice Brady and will be her next production.

As in the case of "The House of Glass," bought a couple of weeks ago for Clara Kimball Young, competition was said to be brisk among the film companies for motion picture rights to "The Knife."

"The Knife" is another play from the pen of Eugene Walter, author of "The Easiest Way" and "Paid in Full." It is a melodrama. The story centers about a beautiful Southern girl reared in all the superstitious fancies of the South. When she comes to New York to live, her credulous belief in fortune tellers leads her to the parlor of a clairvoyant who in reality is the agent of a white slave ring. As a vehicle the play provides Miss Brady, it is said, with big moments and ample opportunities for tense emotional acting.

Production has already been started on "The Knife," and the star with her director, Robert G. Vignola, and part of her company have returned from a flying trip to Florida, where the opening scenes of the story were filmed. These required a thoroughly Southern setting and location was established in and around Miami. Aside from Mr. Vignola and his assistant, William J. Scully, Miss Brady was accompanied South by her leading man, Frank Morgan; Johnnie Walker, who plays the juvenile role; Anne Cornwall, Helen Lackaye, Myra Brook and the photographer, H. L. Physioc. With the return to town, work was resumed in the Paragon studios at Fort Lee and the filming of the picture is progressing rapidly.

"The Planter" Plays to Long Runs

"The Planter," the seven-reel spectacle based on Herman Whitaker's novel, has been playing from five to seven-day runs in the houses of the larger cities on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, it is announced by Mutual.

After a run of a week at the Central theatre at St. Louis, "The Planter" was rebooked for four days. It played four days at the Strand theatre at Seattle, five days at the Bijou theatre at Atlantic City, ran all Thanksgiving week at the Boston theatre, Boston, played for five days at the Royal theatre, Des Moines, and five days at the Strand theatre in Duluth.

Tula Belle, the Youthful Star Who Has a Chief Role in "The Blue Bird," for Artcraft

Defense Society Boosts Film

"The Man Without a Country" Will Probably Be Shown in 17,000 Towns—Jewel Sales Department Assists

THE board of Trustees of The American Defense Society are said to be so well pleased with the trial-benefit venture made with the Jewel production, "The Man Without a Country," that on Friday, December 14, they voted to undertake a campaign to have the picture shown in 17,000 towns and cities throughout the United States.

Through the energy of the Jewel sales department an agreement was reached recently between Jewel Productions, Inc., and The American Defense Society that will make it possible for the society to book the picture without interfering with the original marketing plans of the producer.

A schedule has been laid out to protect the exchanges and at the same time to insure fair play for the manager who books the feature. It is planned to have The American Defense Society, through its agents, book the feature in 17,000 towns and cities in which as yet it has not been seen.

A schedule of rentals will be rigidly adhered to and the managers will "do their bit" by turning over to The American Defense Society all or a stipulated per cent of the profits. Many managers have already made known their intentions to give everything taken in for a given period to the society, while others have promised the gross for one day. The American Defense Society will stand all the expenses of securing the bookings while Jewel Productions, Inc., will attend to the publicity and the transportation of the reels.

ParamountStartsNewCampaign

Benjamin Chapin's Series, "The Son of Democracy," Advertised in Many Magazines — Each Chapter in Two Reels

A SPECIAL advertising campaign on Benjamin Chapin in "The Son of Democracy" has been launched by Paramount Pictures Corporation, which is to present Mr. Chapin's work in ten two-reel chapters, each a complete story.

Paramount's drive upon "The Son of Democracy" is aimed at the man, the woman and the child who is not a regular patron of motion picture theatres. The foremost figure in "The Son of Democracy" is Abraham Lincoln, and Mr. Chapin's presentation has a strong appeal to the person who ordinarily avoids the motion picture theatre.

Paramount's idea is to bring these people into the theatre for ten successive weeks to see "The Son of Democracy."

The advertising campaign will reach this class through specially selected publications and specially prepared copy. Among the twenty-two magazines are The Literary Digest, The American Boy, The Youth's Companion, The American Club Woman, St. Nicholas, and the best of the magazines that reach school teachers and other educators.

This advertising will be backed by a direct-by-mail campaign to several hundred thousand club women, teachers, librarians, etc., appealing to them to get behind the exhibitor showing "The Son of Democracy." When the exhibitor showing "The Son of Democracy" begins his own campaign, he will find that Paramount already has paved the way for him.

"The Son of Democracy" is not a life of Lincoln. It is a series of dramas of early American life and Abraham Lincoln —boy and man—is the leading character. Benjamin Chapin, one of the Lincoln authorities, portrays Lincoln. Mr. Chapin has directed, written and produced these thirty-minute dramas, and each is said to be historically correct.

Paramount Completes "The Seven Swans"

AT three o'clock in the morning, one day recently, the final scenes of "The Seven Swans," Paramount's newest Christmas-holidays fairy picture-play, starring Marguerite Clark, was finished.

This marked the end of work on a most elaborate production extending over a period of many weeks. The story is an adaptation of perhaps the most popular of Hans Christian Andersen's fairy tales, and demands lots in the way of setting, costuming, lights, special photographic effects, large cast and hundreds of extra people. In the Famous Players studio alone there were over fifty sets built for one small portion of the story, and each of these sets demanded the attention of a score of artists of brush and hammer.

Despite the fact that the spectacle is a fairy play, there is a decided love interest in the picture. The final scenes taken at the studio show the gorgeously costumed Prince Charming, played by Richard Barthelmess, and the Princess, played by Miss Clark, in a series of very beautiful episodes. Many scenes of the picture were taken at Fort Lee where special village street scenes were built.

"The Seven Swans" is to be released December 31, and, according to those who have seen the first parts of the film and who have followed the progress of its making, it will be, by all odds, the most spectacular and gorgeously arrayed dramatic picture-play in which Miss Clark has ever appeared.

Giegerich Joins Pathe Publicity

Charles Giegerich, who has had long experience in the motion picture industry and principally known as a sales and publicity promoter, is now connected with Pathe's Publicity Department.

For the Pathe Company Mr. Giegerich will devote attention to publicizing Big-Star-Big-Story features and several of the special de luxe productions that Pathe will present during the coming year, beginning with Rudyard Kipling's "The Naulahka." The "Pathe Sidelights," a press sheet of pertinent notes written in a light vein will also be a part of his weekly contribution to the newspapers.

Sym N. de Conde Brings New Screen Type

A new type of screen personality is said to be that of Mons. Sym N. de Conde, who played the role of the Apache in "Revelation," Nazimova's first Metro release.

Monsieur Sym M. de Conde appears in Nazimova's Supporting Cast in "The Revelation," a Metro Picture

Bowers Alternates with Leading Women

Leander Richardson announced last week that John Bowers now acts as principal male support for both Ethel Clayton and June Elvidge, sometimes appearing in scenes from two plays during the same day. This has made it necessary for Mr. Bowers to be a pampered son of the idle rich at ten A. M. and a poor but honest clerk in a real estate office at ten thirty—which is more or less confusing, although enabling him to contemplate life from numerous angles.

"For Liberty" Reaches Screen December 30

Soldiers going over the top in a night battle, activities of the United States Secret Service, a girl's sacrifice for her country and an absorbing love story involving intense rivalry, the whole scene being laid in Germany, are emphasized by the producer as the outstanding features of the Fox Special Feature release for December 30. The picture is entitled "For Liberty" and the star is Miss Gladys Brockwell.

The theme is love, an American girl in Berlin being courted both by a German general and an American spy. The girl tries to aid the spy in obtaining papers which he desires, and the latter, misunderstanding her attentiveness to the general, repudiates the girl.

Two roles in the production are played by Charles Clary, who is cast opposite Miss Brockwell. Others in the supporting company are Bertram Grassby, Willard Lewis, Colin Chase and Clara Graham. The production was directed by Bertram Bracken and the scenario is credited to Bennett Cohen.

Alice Joyce Begins New Blue Ribbon

Alice Joyce, star of many big Vitagraph productions, has begun work on a new Blue Ribbon feature, to be entitled "The Song of the Soul." The production will be under the direction of Tom Terriss and the cast will be one of the strongest, it is said, seen on the screen in many a day. In addition to Miss Joyce, there will be in the company Walter McGrail, Barney Randall, Percy Standing, Edith Reeves and young Stephen Carr.

Work on the new feature was begun last week, within a few days after the completion of "A Woman Between Friends," which was adapted from the story by Robert W. Chambers and produced under the direction of Mr. Terriss. This was the ninth feature in which Miss Joyce worked during the present year, two of them—"Womanhood" and "Within the Law"—having been special features. In five of her pictures this year Miss Joyce was seen with Harry Morey and in three of them with Marc MacDermott. In the ninth she was featured alone.

Norma Talmadge Plans to Resume Work

Norma Talmadge will shortly commence work on a new production, the present title of which is "By Right of Purchase." This picture will be made at Miss Talmadge's own studio and with her own company; it will be presented by Joseph M. Schenck and distributed by Select Pictures Corporation.

Work on "By Right of Purchase" has been held up for a brief interval to give Miss Talmadge a short breathing spell after her "Ghosts of Yesterday," adapted by Mildred Considine from the drama "Two Women." This photoplay was directed by Charles Miller.

More Comedy for Barrymore

Metro Plans to Devote Future to Features in which Star Can Practise Original Art—Late Subject Cause

ETHEL BARRYMORE'S future screen appearances will be devoted to feature comedy productions under her present management, Metro Pictures Corporation, it was announced last week.

This decision has been reached on account of the success of her latest offering, "An American Widow," which Albert Shelby Le Vino adapted from Kellett Chambers' play, and recalls the fact that some of the triumphs of Miss Barrymore on the speaking stage have been in comedy ever since the days when "matinee girls" were in vogue.

The Barrymore family has always been good in representations of the humorous side of life, and it was as a comedienne that Miss Barrymore herself won the hearts of theatregoers by such characterizations as the leading roles in "Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines," by Clyde Fitch; "Cousin Kate," by Davies; Pinero's "Trelawney of the Wells," and, more recently, Edna Ferber's "Our Mrs. McChesney."

Metro's screen play, "An American Widow," has demonstrated that the quality which in these made Miss Barrymore popular can be transferred to the screen.

Some of Miss Barrymore's comedy successes will be revived during her present program of stage productions, which will afford no doubt change and relaxation before she begins her Spring list of feature screen plays.

Brenon Completes "Third Floor Back"

George LeGuere and Ketty Galanta Are in the Cast of Herbert Brenon's "Passing of the Third Floor Back"

HERBERT BRENON has "shot" the last scenes for his forthcoming production, "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," upon which he has been working for several weeks, and already the old sets have been torn down and his staff of workmen have begun to build for the next picture, announcement of which has not as yet been made.

The first public showing of "The Passing of the Third Floor Back" will take place in January, it is announced. The release date is announced for February, from which time it will be shown at all the leading theatres throughout the country.

Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson, the English actor, who came to this country to take part in what, it is expected, will be one of the season's most important screen contributions, has already taken his departure for England. He completed his portrayal of his beloved role of the Stranger about two weeks ago. Since that time Mr. Brenon has been taking the scenes in which Sir Johnston does not appear.

In its screen form, "The Passing of the Third Floor Back" has undergone certain changes necessary to give variety of background and to work out the development of the characters. In the stage version of Jerome K. Jerome's drama, the action centered in the living room of a shabby London boarding house. The motion picture adaptation on the other hand, reveals the different rooms of the lodgers. The three whole floors of the Bloomsbury lodging house were constructed at the studio.

Moss Considers "Seven Pearls" Good

"The Seven Pearls," the Pathe serial featuring Mollie King, Creighton Hale and Leon Bary, released in September, has been a success through every one of its fifteen episodes, according to B. F. Moss, the owner of a circuit of theatres in N. Y.

"'The Seven Pearls' had a good story and was well put on," said Mr. Moss when asked to what he attributed the hold this serial had obtained upon his audiences.

"It was the combination of the regular elements Pathe requires in its serials. We had story, stars, production, plenty of thrills and a good advertising and publicity campaign to put it over. The audiences of all my theatres liked it—and they are very critical and demand the best. Each episode had sufficient suspense to make every member of the audiences want to see the next."

"Convict 993" Stars Irene Castle

"Convict 993," the next Irene Castle picture to be released by Pathe, which will be shown to the critics next week, is reported to be the best subject in which Miss Castle has yet been presented.

In the cast beside Mrs. Castle are Harry Benhaw, Warner Oland, J. H. Gilmore, Helene Chadwick, Paul Everton, and Bert Starkey, all of whom have distinguished themselves in previous Pathe productions.

Starts "Cleopatra" On Road

Forty Companies Will Tour Country With Theda Bara Feature—Picture Is Claimed to be Veritable Magnet

"CLEOPATRA," with Theda Bara portraying the role of the Siren of the Nile, has met with such such success at the Lyric theatre, New York, and in other cities where it has been shown, that William Fox has determined to put out forty road companies.

This drama, it is said, not only caused great comment and talk, but broke all business records in New York, Washington, Buffalo and Schenectady, and has been booked for return engagements.

In the four cities in which "Cleopatra" has been shown there was a great diversity of audiences. In Washington the most fashionable people of the city attended, it is said, and the business increased each day until toward the end of the week it was impossible to obtain seats. In Schenectady it played to the industrial classes, and both days were sell-outs. In every city "Cleopatra" has exceeded the receipts of "A Daughter of the Gods" by from 30 to 40 per cent., it is claimed.

Samuel F. Kingston will manage the booking department for "Cleopatra" and expects to have all the forty companies on the road not later than January 1 of the coming year.

The spectacular drama, Mr. Fox states, has passed every censor board in the United States and has received the commendation of the National Board of Review, which issued a special report on "Cleopatra," saying: "This story, true to main facts of history, shows the ambitious and beautiful Queen Cleopatra using her sex to juggle with the political history of Rome and Egypt. The cast is excellent and intimate details are handled with reserve. The picture abounds in magnificent settings of desert, palace and sea."

Mrs. Maude Murray Miller, of the Ohio Board of Censors, in passing "Cleopatra," issued the following statement: "After a careful review of the film 'Cleopatra,' produced by the Fox Film Corporation, I decided to release it for exhibition in Ohio without any eliminations. The producers have followed history in a remarkable way, and Miss Theda Bara's interpretation of the character is so skillfully and convincingly done, that I feel justified in passing the picture as it was brought to the censor offices."

Four Artcraft Productions Finished

Walter Stradling Is Photographer of Mary Pickford's Artcraft Productions

THE production of four Artcraft releases was wound up simultaneously in the Eastern and Western studios of that concern during the past week and the only producing unit now working is Maurice Tourneur's "The Blue Bird" Company at the Fort Lee plant. The Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, William S. Hart, Elsie Ferguson and Cecil B. De Mille companies will commence activities on new productions in the very near future, so it is stated on good authority.

At the Lasky studios in Hollywood, Mary Pickford's newest vehicle, "Stella Maris," was recently finished and under the personal supervision of Director Marshall Neilan, cut and assembled. This picture will be released in January and again discloses the combined efforts of Mary Pickford, star; Marshall Neilan, director, and Frances Marion, scenario writer.

The new Douglas Fairbanks picture, "A Modern Musketeer," has also been finished at the Lasky studio on the West Coast. The negative was cut by Director Allan Dwan and assembled en route between Los Angeles and New York by Billy Shea. This production is the last Artcraft offering for 1917.

Elsie Ferguson's latest photoplay, "The Song of Songs," staged under the direction of Joe Kaufman, has also been completed. This film, however, will not be Miss Ferguson's next Artcraft release, "Rose of the World" being scheduled for release next, as the opening attraction of Artcraft for the new year. "Rose of the World" was staged by Maurice Tourneur several months ago.

William S. Hart has concluded activities on a new Thomas H. Ince production to be released by Artcraft, "Wolves of the Rail," a picture said to carry many tense and many amusing incidents.

Marjorie Steed Engaged by Titan

The Titan Pictures Corporation has announced the engagement of Marjorie Steed for leading roles in Titan Comedies. Miss Steed has had an extensive and comprehensive experience, having done principal roles with Lubin and other producers. She played opposite Peggy O'Neil in a recent production.

It was at the Rothacker Studio that her work first attracted the attention of Frederick Russell Clark, president of the Titan Company, and his director, Rex Weber. Miss Steed's engagement by the Titan Company is a deviation from its usual procedure, inasmuch as they have hitherto used a different star for each picture. The contract doesn't mean, however, that the company will discontinue the production of pictures using nationally known stars, but merely that Miss Steed will be featured in several of the forthcoming one-reelers.

Marjorie Steed, the Comedienne, Has Been Engaged by Titan Comedies

Arbuckle Goes After "Two-Gun" Record

Warning is hereby issued to Bill Hart, Doug. Fairbanks and all the favorite two-gun men that Fatty Arbuckle is going after their Western records and he proposes to bring home the bacon. For his new comedy, "Out West," Fatty is constructing the wild and wicked town of Mad Dog Gulch in the heart of awesome canyon nearby the Balboa studios at Long Beach, Cal.

A miniature Grand Canyon in its colorings and rock shapes, this location is perhaps the most adaptable for filming purposes yet discovered in California. The "hell-hole" is completely encircled by mountains with but one outlet—the canyon whence you came. Fatty is building a real Western town of the frontier days, and we find the usual saloon and dance hall, with its few surrounding buildings occupying the only street.

Advance Offerings of the Programs

Christmas Brings Edna Goodrich Subject

EDNA GOODRICH is announced by the Mutual Film Corporation in the photodrama, "Her Second Husband," in the New Year's schedule of releases. The play, which was filmed under the direction of Dell Henderson, is said to afford Miss Goodrich the most sympathetic role in which she has yet appeared on the screen. The cordial reception accorded the other Goodrich productions, "Reputation," "Queen X," "A Daughter of Maryland" and "American Maid," augurs well for this latest picture. It was available December 21.

Bara's "Du Barry" Comes December 30

The fourth release in December, 1917, of a Standard Picture will be made December 30 by William Fox. It will be "Du Barry," a Theda Bara super-picture, produced under the direction of J. Gordon Edwards. This production completes the longest list of Standard Pictures given to exhibitors in any one month since the inauguration of this service last August. In all, thirteen Standard Pictures have been placed on the market and a number of others are reported to have been finished, or to be nearing completion.

"Du Barry," which requires a cast of twelve persons, deals with the life of the famous Madame du Barry, who rose from obscurity and comparative poverty to the position of favorite of King Louis XV of France.

"Gown of Destiny" Released by Triangle

A modern romance that centers around a gown conceived by a French designer is the first feature that will be released by Triangle December 30. "Framing Framers," a story of the newspaper and political worlds, is scheduled to follow.

In "The Gown of Destiny" Triangle offers a picture that is said to be a distinct departure from the usual run of features. It is the story of a patriotic French designer, Andre Leriche (Herrera Tejedde), who is employed by a Fifth Avenue modiste, Madame Felice (Bliss Chevalier). Leriche wants to do his bit in aiding France, but because of his small stature he is repeatedly rejected from the Army of France. Disappointed and broken he vows to do "something that will startle the world," and in a dream he conceives the "Gown of Destiny."

Madge Kennedy's Most Recent Picture for Goldwyn Is Called "Oh, Mary, Be Careful!"

New Year Goldwyns Are Ready

Following Mary Garden in "Thais" Will Come Madge Kennedy, Mabel Normand and Mae Marsh Productions

GOLDWYN PICTURES CORPORATION, announcing three new releases that follow the release on December 30 of Mary Garden in "Thais," still further emphasizes and increases its production standards with the following pictures:

January 14, Madge Kennedy in "Oh, Mary, be Careful!" by George Weston; January 28, Mabel Normand in "Dodging a Million," by Edgar Selwyn and A. M. Kennedy and directed by George Loane Tucker; February 10, Mae Marsh in "Fields of Honor," by Irvin S. Cobb and Edgar Selwyn.

In "Oh, Mary, be Careful!" Goldwyn has obtained for Miss Kennedy one of the popular novels with the announced intention of diversifying the work of this new star. In this production the star has been given a picture of dramatic plot and situation with a farce relief, and those who have already seen it feel that it is the best of the Madge Kennedy pictures.

The postponement by Goldwyn of the release date of "Joan of Plattsburg," is said to be more than offset by the production of a picture under the direction of George Loane Tucker, "Dodging a Million." Edgar Selwyn and A. M. Kennedy are the authors.

In "Fields of Honor" Mae Marsh is expected to do the best emotional acting that she has revealed in the past two years. This is an emotional drama by Irvin S. Cobb and Edgar Selwyn, and was directed by Ralph W. Ince.

Following close on the heels of the Goldwyn pictures "Nearly Married," "The Auction Block," "The Cinderella Man" and "Thais," Goldwyn will be noted as adhering closely to its original plan of making productions from stories by America's playwrights and novelists.

Pantages Circuit Shows Pathe Serial

Pathe's newest serial, "The Hidden Hand," will be seen in all the theatres on the Pantages circuit as the result of a contract just closed with Alex Pantages.

Mr. Pantages has booked many of the Pathe serials and is said to have found that they give big returns. He made a special drive on increasing his matinee business with some of the Pathe serials and from the success they made both for the matinee and evening business in his theatres he arranged for "The Hidden Hand."

Mirthful Situations Abound in the Vitagraph Comedies, Starring Edward Earle and Agnes Ayres, and to Which Graham Baker Imparts His Directorial Powers

Big V. Comedies Promise Big Laughs

NEW laughs and thrills are promised in the last two Big V. Comedies on the 1917 program completed at Vitagraph's Hollywood studio—"Dummies and Deceptions" on December 24, and "Stowaways and Strategy" on December 31. In this last named comedy, Director J. A. Howe took his company to sea for a couple of weeks and the actors risked their necks high above the Pacific, with masts instead of skyscrapers to leap and climb about on and what Montgomery and Rock and Lucille Hutton did not do on the good ship Wilmington is not worth recounting, it is said. Down the funnels, up and over the sides, tackled on dry land, crew and passengers standing aghast at their ingenuity and daring. Montgomery and Rock are the stowaways and Director Howe, who wrote the comedy, makes them earn their money keeping out of the way of the ship's officers, aided and abetted by Miss Hutton.

"Dummies and Deceptions," written and directed by Henry Kernan, centers about the strange adventures of a $1,000 bill, which husband hides in an old coat, which in turn wife sells to an old clothes man. Jack Dill, Caroline Rankin and Mr. Kernan furnish the fun, which is said to be fast and without let up. The $1,000 bill is stuck in the pocket of a clothes dummy, is stolen, left in a cafe as security for a supper bill and finally is cast into the ocean. But all the time it is closely pursued by the husband torn between grief at the thought of losing it and apprehension at what will happen when his wife finds out he ever had so much money "held out" on her.

Stern Announces L-Kos Due in January

PRESIDENT JULIUS STERN has arranged the L-Ko series of comedies for January release with two features starring Hughie Mack, lately signed up as a star; with Mack Swain, in another "Ambrose"; and Myrtle Sterling and Eddie Barry, old line favorites with L-Ko audiences, heading the others. Director General J. G. Blystone has supervised all of these productions and edited the completed issue.

Here they are in detail:

January 2—"Carnivals and Cannibals," with Myrtle Sterling the star, and Al Forbes principal comedian. Vin Moore directed.

January 9—"Torpedo Pirates," starring Hughie Mack with Gladys Varden featured in his support. Noell Smith directed.

January 16—"Home Run Ambrose," presenting Mack Swain in a baseball comedy produced by W. S. Frederick as the second "Ambrose" in the L-Ko series.

January 29—"Ash Can Alley," featuring Eva Novak and Eddie Barry. Directed by Dick Smith.

January 30—"Barbarous Plots," starring Hughie Mack, with Bobby Dunn. Eva Novak and Katheryn Young featured in his support. Bobby Kerr directed.

General Releases New Finn and Haddie

The second of the Finn and Haddie Comedies, "His Fishy Footsteps," is released this week by General Film Company. This concludes the fifth series of Jaxon Comedies, which will be followed immediately by a series of six Finn and Haddie comedies. Billy Ruge, the inimitable comedian who has been starring in the Sparkle Comedies, appears this week in "Double Cross."

Olive Thomas Completes Triangle Feature

Olive Thomas has completed her fifth Triangle vehicle, "Limousine Life," under the direction of Jack Dillon. In it she carries on a wooing with her favored suitor while at the wheel of a limousine, and winds up by crashing through a fence. In the earlier scenes she succeeded in hooking up with a wagon and tearing the radiator off her car, and Director Jack Dillon felt rather dubious about the car when he told the star to drive the machine through the fence. Olive succeeded in the stunt, however, without even cracking her make-up.

Dillon is out after a new studio record for actual shooting time on Miss Thomas' sixth subject, "Heiress for a Day," a most unusual comedy drama. This is the screen adaptation of Henry Albert Phillips' story of the same name.

"Rimrock Jones" Next Wallace Reid Film

Following his appearance in "Nan of Music Mountain," which established Wallace Reid as a portrayer of a certain type of youthful Westerner, the Paramount star will again be seen in a Western film production, this being "Rimrock Jones," from Dane Coolidge's novel of that name, scenarioized by Harvey F. Thew and Frank K. Finnegan, and produced under the direction of Donald Crisp.

Henry "Rimrock" Jones, builder of the town of Gunsight, developer of mines, rugged citizen of the real West, is something of the type of character pictured in Frank H. Spearman's character, deSpain, of "Nan of Music Mountain."

Billie Burke Appears in "Eve's Daughter"

Billie Burke's next appearance on the Paramount program will be in "Eve's Daughter," from the play by Alicia Ramsey which was originally produced with Grace George. It depicts a girl surcharged with youth and spirit and blessed with beauty who chafes at the restraint placed upon her by her wealthy father.

James Kirkwood is directing.

Sonia Markova Is Star of Fox's "A Heart's Revenge

Cohan Waives Tax for "Over There" Music

Following up permission to use his war song, "Over There," as the musical theme for the Select Pictures Corporation's war drama, "Over There," George M. Cohan has further evidenced his generosity by granting the use of the music free of tax to any theatre presenting the picture on its program.

This is confirmed in a letter to Select Pictures from Mr. Cohan's publishers, Leo Feist, Inc.

"Over There" is a six-reel photodrama produced by the Charles Richman Pictures Corporation with Charles Richman and Anna Q. Nilsson in the stellar roles. It is a story of every day life built about the present war exigencies and depicts the mental struggles of a man called to the service who believes himself a coward. The picture was directed by James Kirkwood, so long Mary Pickford's director, and is being distributed by the Select Pictures Corporation.

King Bee Changes Name of New Release

The January first release of the King-Bee Films Corporation, starring Billy West, is to be called "The Stranger" instead of "The Prospector," as previously announced.

In this picture Billy West will be seen in some new stunts that will no doubt prove a genuine novelty in comedies. This is the second comedy made by the King-Bee company in California, and is said to be as funny as "The Slave," which every one admits is the best release made by this company since they started making two-reelers.

Wallace MacDonald Goes to West Coast

Wallace MacDonald, formerly with Vitagraph in the Eastern studios, has gone to California and is appearing in Triangle productions at the Culver City studios.

Mr. MacDonald reached California on December 12, and on the same day received word that his father, mother and brother were injured in the Halifax disaster.

Mabel Normand's Leading Man in Goldwyn's "Dodging a Million" Is Tom Moore

"Modern Musketeer" Finished

Will Be Artcraft's Next Release, with Douglas Fairbanks—Was Directed by Allan Dwan on West Coast

THE next release of the Artcraft Pictures Corporation will be Douglas Fairbanks in his latest rapid-fire photoplay, "A Modern Musketeer," written and staged by Allan Dwan, and based on the story by E. P. Lyle, Jr., "D'Artagnan of Kansas." The last scene of this production was filmed at the Lasky studio in California recently, and after being cut under the personal supervision of Director Dwan, the negative was brought to New York by Billy Shea, who assembled it en route.

The prints will be made at the Famous Players-Lasky Eastern laboratory and distributed to the various Artcraft exchanges shortly.

In "A Modern Musketeer," Douglas Fairbanks holds up the mirror of the past and compares the chivalry of olden times to that of the present day. In this photoplay the acrobatic Douglas interprets the role of Ned Thacker of Kansas, a young man who inherited the spirit of D'Artagnan through prenatal influence—his mother having been an ardent reader of Dumas. The self-reliance of the modern woman as compared with her sister in past generations is strikingly shown, for in many cases the chivalry of the modern D'Artagnan is mistaken and his gallant attempts to assist ladies in distress lead to rebukes from the independent maidens, who are on the alert to squelch flirtatious pests. Ned finally meets his fate in the person of Dorothy Morane, a tourist, played by Marjorie Daw, and in scenes of super-heroism done in dashing Fairbanks style, saves the girl from a horrible fate and wins a bride.

Douglas Fairbanks, a Chivalrous Knight in His Newest Artcraft

The release of "A Modern Musketeer" by Artcraft marks the reunion of Allan Dwan and the star. Dwan formerly directed Fairbanks when both were with another company.

The last release of the Artcraft Pictures Corporation in December, "A Modern Musketeer" is expected to wind up this concern's activities for the year of 1917 with another smashing hit. The picture has been selected to open the new Rivoli theatre, by S. L. Rothapfel, its general release date being the last day of this month.

"Empty Pockets" Goes to Distributors

"EMPTY POCKETS," Herbert Brenon's latest production, is soon to be released, it was announced last week. Assembled, cut to six reels, and titled, the film has been turned over to the First National Exhibitors' Circuit, the members of whom are said to have viewed the first showing with enthusiasm. In every way, they say, the picture comes up to the high standard that Mr. Brenon has always maintained.

For his first production as an independent producer, he has chosen an author of the calibre of Rupert Hughes, and a notable cast which also speaks for itself.

"Empty Pockets," acording to all accounts, comes up to the Brenon standard in every respect.

Barbara Castleton's advent into screendom took place a little over a year ago, after a limited experience on the stage. Her rise into the higher circles of the film world has been a quick one and a remarkable one. She began from the bottom and worked up. Her first experience was obtained in a small part for Herbert Brenon in "A Daughter of the Gods," and she owes much of her success to Mr. Brenon's encouragement in the beginning.

From that time on, Miss Castleton devoted all her time to screen work. She appeared in "God's Man," "On Trial," "Parentage," and more recently "For the Freedom of the World." After playing in "The Sins of Ambition" she again fell into Mr. Brenon's hands. He engaged her to play the role of Muriel Schuyler in "Empty Pockets." Her part in this production is that of a wealthy young girl with a leaning towards slumming.

Herman Sims Returns to Universal

Herman Sims, who for several months has served in the capacity of property master and purchasing agent for the Lois Weber studio, has returned to the Universal and there has taken up his former work as purchasing agent.

Prior to his engagement with the Lois Weber Company, Sims served for four years with the Universal, after an experience of a number of years costuming in New York.

J. A. Berst, Vice President and General Manager of Pathe

Pathe Announces List of Gold Roosters

COINCIDENTAL with the announcement this week of the trip to the Pacific Coast by J. A. Berst, vice-president and general manager of Pathe, in connection with his plans for Pathe Plays in 1918, F. C. Quimby, sales manager, issued a statement which reveals a nation-wide drive on Pathe Gold Rooster Plays at special prices, before the new star series of Pathe Plays, with Bessie Love, Fannie Ward, Frank Keenan and Bryant Washburn, are ready for booking.

This means that a large number of features, with well-known stars, will be available to exhibitors at low rentals. The special price list numbers sixty and includes pictures released prior to December 2 last.

"This is a particularly appropriate time," said Mr. Quimby, "for our special offer on Gold Rooster features. We are purposely holding back the Pathe Plays with our new stars and our next serial in order to begin the new year with a clean slate.

"At this time when the war tax is hitting the exhibitor so hard, he is extremely anxious to buy film as cheaply as he can and that is a great factor in our decision to give him an opportunity to book two or three features at a time at special rental prices."

Four Directors Work on General Releases

ONE of its numerous series of successes which General Film Company will continue to release during the new year will be the Broadway Star Feature "O. Henry" stories, now nearing the close of their first year. According to present plans, these features will be continued for some months to come, as there is still a large number of the "O. Henry" stories capable of being adapted for picturization. Ambitious plans are now being worked out for an etensive "O. Henry" program of entertainment for the great army of followers of the "O. Henry" pictures.

The increase in the demand for these short length features, it is said, has made it necessary to keep four directors and as many companies busy producing them. Three directors—Ashley Miller, Martin Justice and George Ridgewell—will continue to produce these stories in the New York studios, while on the West Coast Director David Smith is at work on a new series of Western and Central American stories by the famous authors. Some of the "O. Henry" stories to be released at an early date, according to present plans, are: "The Clarion Call," "The Hiding of Black Bill," "The Fifth Wheel," "The Moment of Victory," a story of the Spanish-American war; "The Count and the Wedding Guest," "The Thing's the Play," "The Compliments of the Season" and "The Trimmed Lamp." Many others are being adapted for the screen and will be ready for production in a very short space of time.

General Film Company expects to begin the new year with a program of "O. Henry" stories which will excell the many popular successes released last year. No other series of short length features in many years has scored such a success as the "O. Henry" pictures, which are continually adding to their fame as box-office attractions.

Keystone Completes New Comedies

Triangle-Keystone Director Herman Raymaker has completed his ship story which has been titled a "Sea Serpent's Desire," featuring Billy Franey, Dale Fuller, Milton Sims, James Donnelly, Lloyd Bacon, Maude Wayne and Frank Opperman. Those who have seen the preruns on this claim it will set a new mark for comedies of this character. Director Raymaker expects to be at work on another Triangle-Keystone comedy this week, featuring practically the same cast he used in the ship story.

"Song of Songs" Ready for Artcraft

The last scenes of Artcraft's adaptation of the play, "The Song of Songs" have been taken, and Director Joseph Kaufman is now assembling the picture. Elsie Ferguson is starred in this production, and has a role very similar to the one she played in "The Outcast," which was said to be the crowning achievement of her stage career.

In "The Song of Songs" she interprets the part of Lily Kardos, a girl of unusual beauty, who begins life as a salesgirl for an Oriental store with branches on the board, walk of Palm Beach, where she attracts the attentions of wealthy men.

The scenario was written by Charles Maigne, and adapted from the play by Edward Sheldon. It is said to be another instance of the greater advantages of the screen over the stage in presenting a dramatic story, for the photoplay is an extensive elaboration of the offering on the speaking stage.

Petrova Picture Plays Rialto This Week

In order to emphasize properly the presentation of "Daughter of Destiny," the initial release starring Madame Olga Petrova in a series of productions bearing the stamp of her own organization, Managing Director Samuel L. Rothapfel of the Rialto has arranged an especially elaborate program for this week.

As a preliminary to the appearance of Madame Petrova at the Rialto during Christmas week the star herself officiated at a little ceremony recently during which she hung upon the walls of the lobby a likeness of herself in oils done by a famous artist. The premiere will be marked by several special parties who will attend the Rialto to see "Daughter of Destiny," among whom will be many of the leading lights of the theatrical world with whom Petrova was formerly associated on the legitimate stage.

Jane Vance and William Sorelle Are Featured in "A Daughter of Uncle Sam," Released by General

Alfred Whitman, Vitagraph Juvenile Lead

General Releases "The Clarion Call"

What is claimed to be one of the snappiest and brightest of the "O. Henry" stories released in many weeks is "The Clarion Call," one of the current releases of General Film Company. This is a story of New York in which a detective and a crook engage in a game of wits which results in a last-minute victory for the former.

Walter McGrail, Bernard Randall and Alice Terry are featured in "The Clarion Call," which is the first "O. Henry" picture in which the latter has appeared. "The Hiding of Black Bill," a dramatic story of a western sheep rancher and a desperado, will follow "The Clarion Call."

Metro Selects Story for Lockwood

Departing from the usual custom of choosing a printed work as the basis for a story, Yorke-Metro, as a starring vehicle for Harold Lockwood to follow his current Metro release, "The Avenging Trail," has selected an original story by Fred J. Balshofer and is now engaged in producing it under Mr. Balshofer's direction.

The story is "Broadway Bill," a semi-society drama, with part of the action taking place in the fast society circles of New York and Palm Beach and the remainder laid in the timberlands of Maine.

Mildred Harris Climbs as a Star

If reports from many parts of the country can be taken as a fair test of Mildred Harris' popularity, the Jewel star can be considered very near the top of the ladder.

In "The Price of a Good Time" her work has called forth considerable praise from the press of the country. Various critics point out that such marked ability, in a girl of Miss Harris' age, coupled with a personal appeal which "gets over" on the screen, is a sure sign that mature years will see her well established as a national favorite.

Vitagraph Starts "Vengeance and the Woman"

WITH an advance advertising campaign, nationwide in extent, to introduce it to the public, "Vengeance—and the Woman," the latest Vitagraph serial, was released to exhibitors on December 24. According to a statement by Walter W. Irwin, general manager of the Vitagraph distributing organization, this fifteen episode serial which follows into theatres immediately upon the conclusion of the fifteenth episode of "The Fighting Trail" has exceeded even the smashing records—made by its predecessor.

"Vengeance—and the Woman" is declared by Mr. Irwin to be the most sensational melodramatic chapter picture ever released and he comes as near giving a guarantee of profit to exhibitors as a distributor could.

His statement in part follows: "In 'Vengeance—and the Woman' I am convinced Vitagraph has turned out a powerful serial boxoffice magnet, better even than our other great serial, "The Fighting Trail.' Bookings on 'The Fighting Trail' prior to release date—September 10—were phenomenal, notwithstanding the great number of serials already on the market and the consequent terrific competition; and now, with the serial only fifteen weeks old, it has to its credit more than 5,200 contracts, so that, on account of the extraordinary merit of the production, they have all stuck to the extent of 100 per cent, showing that exhibitors of serials will run them from start to finish if they hold up in melodramatic action.

"'Vengeance—and the Woman' has opened with an even greater rush than 'The Fighting Trail' both in the number of contracts made in advance or release date and in the total amount of business booked. To date we have recorded between 30 and 35 per cent more contracts than were turned in prior to release date on 'The Fighting Trail,' while the total value of the bookings on 'Vengeance—and the Woman' will exceed the value of those on 'The Fighting Trail' for the same period by from 40 to 45 per cent."

Jaxon-General Serial Held Up for Scenes

ANOTHER postponement in the release of the first episode of "A Daughter of Uncle Sam," the Jaxon serial which will be distributed by General Film Company, has been made necessary due to the fact that several timely scenes were obtained for the earlier episodes which should add materially to their dramatic qualities, it was announced last week. It is now definitely stated that the first episode will be released on January 19, and that there will be no hitch in the release of the succeeding chapters in this sensible serial, as it is called.

In order that the exposures of spy plots and the enemy intrigues might be brought up to date, advantage was taken of an opportunity to include several scenes in the first few numbers of the serial.

"A Daughter of Uncle Sam" is claimed by General to be the first comprehensive picturization of the activities of enemy spies and the manner in which they have been balked in their attempts to destroy ships, munition plants, warehouses containing food and other supplies. Advance bookings for the serial have been good, it is said, and there seems no longer any doubt but that "A Daughter of Uncle Sam" will be one of the boxoffice features of the new year.

Wonderful photography and settings unusually well adapted for the filming of the thrilling encounters which are a feature of the twelve chapters of the serial are said to be two features which add to the pulling power of the Jaxon serial. Jane Vance and William Sorelle are featured.

Fox Two-Year Expansion Remarkable

JUST two years ago, in December, 1915, William Fox sent his first company of motion picture players to Los Angeles. William Farnum headed this pioneer organization of about thirty persons. The Fox forces now have working regularly on the Coast four dramatic companies and five comedy companies, in addition to the periodic production of such spectacular photoplays as "Cleopatra," "Jack and the Beanstalk," "Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp," "The Babes in the Woods," "Treasure Island," and others.

The Fox Film Corporation has expanded in California from a concern originally covering less than an acre of ground there to one now owning five acres in Hollywood, fifteen on Western Avenue, and ten acres in locations at Silver Lake, Fernando Valley and Chatsworth. Where there were at first only two stages, Mr. Fox now has eight in constant use, and will undoubtedly have to build more within the near future if the present rapid expansion continues. To reach this high state of development, Fox Film Corporation spent more than $1,000,000 during the first year following its invasion of the Coast.

As late as June, 1916, only three delegations of Fox photoplayers were on the Pacific. William Farnum was the star of one, George Walsh and Gladys Brockwell of the others. At present, both Farnum and Walsh are in the East, but the former will be at work in California within a few days. Miss Brockwell's starring dramas are still screened in the West, and Tom Mix and Jewel Carmen have been added recently to the roster of the Fox luminaries in California.

You are not going to war. The men who are need all the comforts you can give them. Help them get cigarettes. That is your patriotic duty. If you aren't helping in the "smokes" campaign, get busy—now. Don't be a slacker!

Film Specialties

Films for Children Getting Plentiful

THE appearance of a new catalog of the Beseler Educational Film Company, Inc., wherein each reel is admirably and fully described, calls to mind the large and growing amount of material suitable for exhibitions designed especially for children. The Beseler Company has specialized in building up a library of films of an educational character, every one of which has been most carefully examined and in many cases revised by Mr. Delorne, the manager of the company, to insure its being not only of value but of interest.

With a nucleus of films obtained from many sources, the Educational Films Corporation is adding each week to its store with the scenic pictures of Robert C. Bruce, the Ditmars series of animal studies, known as the Living Book of Nature, and pictures of varied interest taken in many lands, all of which are being well received.

Conquest Pictures, made up into programs of about six reels each, comprising a short, lively feature, a comedy and a scenic or nature study, are being distributed with great success by the George Kleine System.

The Universal Film Manufacturing Company, under the direction of Mr. A. Gross, its educational director, offers programs of five or six reels. The programs are varied in character and have received high commendation from theatres which have employed them for children's matinees.

The Pathe scenics, most of them in color, and the fine studies of birds and animals made by their expert cameramen, still stand practically unrivaled.

St. Paul Paper Urges New Reels

INTEREST in the news reels, educationals and short subjects is rapidly spreading to all parts of the country, according to advices received through the MOTION PICTURE NEWS' correspondence.

In a recent issue the photoplay editor of the St. Paul Daily News commented on the advantage to photoplay programs of topical and news subjects. Especial attention has been attracted to these subjects through the accounts in these columns of the manner in which they are presented at the Rialto and Strand theatres.

Extracts from the St. Paul paper are interesting. They follow:

It is a real mistake these days to miss attendance at movie programs that include current news pictures.

Besides the keen interest and valuable information carried by the films themselves these exhibitions are an excellent barometer of popular feeling, as any observer can establish to his own satisfaction.

Primarily, these scenes are important as illustrating the text of the daily papers. One may read of war tanks and submarine destroyers and great military movements and other vital features of this chapter of history; but even graphic narrative fails to carry the thrill imparted by the photographs.

And there is satisfaction too for curiosity as to the actual presence and appearance of the world's great present-day figures.

It is something to see their actual smiles, to observe their way of meeting people, their general demeanor and characteristics of manner.

But quite as absorbing is the effect on the audience of these various exhibitions.

It is the one type of movie entertainment which never fails, at some stage or other, to elicit applause—quite as though the people of the pictures were standing there in the flesh.

And it is a most interesting indicator of the direction and strength of popular sympathy. Make a point of finding out, one of these days, if you haven't the "news weekly" habit already.

For that matter there are signs pointing to a general change in the managerial viewpoint regarding the makeup of the programs.

This, it is hinted, is likely to come about through the increasing popularity of these same news pictures as well as of travel films.

Instead of being among the "also shown" these reels may gradually come to be the main advertised feature of the bill, with the photoplay shifted slightly in value.

Laemmle Gets Deluge of Xmas Messages

FROM all sections of this country, and from the lands beyond the sea, by wire and by cable, have come to the Universal Film Company New Year messages for the American public from the leaders in the world's thought and action.

They all deal with the one subject uppermost today in men's minds—the war. Already a number of the most important of these messages have been filmed on a special reel and distributed for exhibition.

"My idea," said Carl Laemmle, president of Universal, "in requesting authoritative statements to this symposium over the signatures of representative men of this and other countries was to place before the public the concrete thought of the leading minds on the one all-important question that confronts us, that of the war into which we have been forced in defense of freedom and democracy.

"In my opinion this can best be done through the medium of the screen. I would be the last of men to question the admitted, long established power of the press, but in some respects, at least, the power of the screen is greater.

"Rightly used, it can present to the whole people of the country at one flash, as might be said, the assembled views of all the leaders of light, the greatest thoughts of the greatest minds on any subject of vital interest to the people, in a manner more completely effective than can be approached by any journal, however great or however powerful.

"Now, there is no subject more vital, more commandingly important to the American people at this moment than the fight against autocracy. And in my belief there could be no time more opportune than this, when we stand at the threshold of the new year, to present to the people the views of the men most competent to give them greetings of hope, of encouragement, of wise advice."

Essanay Scenics Create Good Impression

No scenic pictures released in many months have created, according to General, such a favorable impression among exhibitors of the country as Essanay's series of one-reel de luxe scenics being distributed by General Film Company. Theatres which have shown the first of this series, "Salmon Fishing in New Brunswick," almost invariably have booked the remaining subjects in the series for their programs. One of the many examples noted in the last two weeks is the action of the Rialto theatre in Denver in booking the entire series for extended runs, after having seen the first release.

Forthcoming releases in this series are "Water Powers of Western Canada," "Through Canada from Coast to Coast," "How Canada and the Farmers Cooperate in Grain Raising," "Agricultural Opportunities in Western Canada," "The Two Biggest Things in the World—the Grand Canyon of Arizona and Canyon De-Chelly" and "Electrification of Railroads."

Mutual Weekly Shows Red Cross Work

The work of an American Red Cross Ambulance Corps in France is said to be most interestingly pictured in No. 156 of the Gaumont-Mutual Weekly, which was released on Sunday, December 23.

On arrival in France the members of the Ambulance Corps proceed immediately to the headquarters of the Red Cross in Paris, where they are given their credentials. Their personal belongings are forwarded to the ambulance bases by Red Cross motor truck, while they proceed by train.

Red Cross workers do not wait long before reaching the "front," where they are under fire almost from the hour of their arrival. Nothing is sacred to the Huns, and the members of the Ambulance Corps who must seek out the wounded on the battlefield are probably more in danger than the actual fighters in the trenches.

"Fatal Ring" Sets Serial Record

"The Fatal Ring," the Pearl White serial, released by Pathe in midsummer, has set, according to Pathe, an unusual record for serials.

The Muse-Us theatre of Dayton, Ohio, ran the "Fatal Ring" and D. H. Thompson, the manager of this theatre, writes as follows: "Please be advised that I finished 'The Fatal Ring' last night, and I must say it is the best serial I ever had in my theatre. Pearl White is at her best in this story. The weather was zero last night, and we filled our house. That goes to show it is good. I want to thank you and the Pathe Exchange for such a good serial. Many exhibitors can make money with 'The Fatal Ring.'"

HOW MEN PLAY

For a hot weather picture we commend "Fishing for Fish" (Educational Films Corporation) in highest terms. From the first to the last of its five hundred feet it is a ripple and rush of cool, living water. But then we also commend it unreservedly for any old weather, because it is not only beautiful but human and humorous. The three men in a boat, "strong enough in the legs and weak enough in the head to stand all day whipping a river with a thread," as Mr. Bruce puts it, grow so intent on their occupation that before they know it they are swirling along over the rapids. However, no harm comes of it, and the quiet waters of the canyon yield a catch that, "properly camouflaged" in sizzling butter, promises a delectable feast.

DO YOU BELIEVE IT?

We are polite, so we didn't contradict the gentleman from the Bray studios who assured us that the Dog Chauffeur in Paramount-Bray Pictograph No. 99 really did steer the automobile all by himself. He certainly appears to do so in the pictures, taken right on a crowded street, too. It was only our naturally keen intelligence that said, "There ain't no such animal." We leave it to you.

Goodrich Dart and his Little Dog Spot emulate the heroines of some recent mystery serials in their frantic efforts to attain, often at dizzy heights, possession of the Priceless Pearls. No female Douglas Fairbanks could balance with greater agility on the edge of a skyscraper than do Our Heroes. But, alas, the concluding episode is a triumph for the Forces of Evil!

The third subject of the reel has to do with the making of the twine that is used by the giant reapers to bind the sheafs of grain.

VOICES OF THE NIGHT

A warm night in May. The faint, delicious fragrance of lilacs on the air, and somewhere over yonder a beast or bug making a noise like a young sawmill. You are too lazy to search him out. If you should try the chances are a thousand to one that you would miss him, for he is that inch-long atom known as a tree toad. Mr. Ditmars, however, is more successful than you would be and has caught this interesting little chap in the very act of emitting his love song. You never could guess how he does it, and we won't tell. So you will have to see the reel, which is called, with more than a hint of irony, "Nature's Warblers" (Educational Films Corporation). Other members of the nocturnal chorus pictured at close range are our old friends the cricket, katydid and locust. The film is pleasantly interspersed with trick camera work and scenes of the photographer setting his apparatus for night work; it is more than unusually curious and entertaining.

MOUNTAIN RIVERS AND ROADS

In the formidable barrier interposed by the Pyrenees between France and Spain is a cleft known as the Gorges of the Tarn. Through it flows the swift Tarn River, selected as subject for a half-reel in natural colors under the general title of Beautiful Rivers of France (Pathe Exchange). Millau, an ancient Roman town with characteristically graceful bridge, is our introduction to an unusually picturesque and interesting corner of the world. Quaint towns climbing up to a chateau on the hill or clustered around a spired church are pleasantly varied with glimpses of the river rushing between its strangely eroded rocks.

For those fond of coaching behind a team of horses that don't mind declivities so steep that the wheels must be chained to prevent undue haste, the Lake Country of England (Here and There in Keswick, on reel with above) is an ideal spot. The roads, dating back to Roman times, wind like white ribbons over the huge, barren hills but never fail to lead past quaint inns where refreshment can be found for man and beast.

Two unusually beautiful sunset scenes close the reel.

Mutual Camera Catches Halifax Scenes

James Barr O'Neil, Gaumont-Mutual cameraman, who was on duty in Halifax, N. S., at the time of the disaster that cost 1,800 lives, accomplished what is considered an extraordinary feat in making 500 feet of film covering aspects of the disaster and arriving in New York twenty-four hours ahead of any competitor, the pictures being exhibited on Broadway Thursday evening, December 13. They were on exhibition in Chicago and the central west Saturday, December 15.

Short Subjects in Review

By Clara DeLissa Berg

What the Weeklies Offer

ALTHOUGH each of the five news weeklies has distinctive and interesting material of its own, all give space to topics claiming universal attention at the moment. First in timeliness are the measures being taken for the relief of Halifax. Hearst-Pathe News No. 100 and Universal Animated Weekly No. 2 show the amount and variety of the supplies assembled on the dock for shipment, and a heartening picture of the relief ship carrying doctors and nurses to the stricken city. Mutual Weekly No. 155 pictures sections of the city devastated by fire and explosion. Films of the last great battle and victory of the Allied troops on the Aisne have reached this country and are given prominent place in Universal Current Events No. 31, Hearst-Pathe News No. 99, and Mutual Weekly No. 155. Stores of munitions are hurried to the front, followed by trains of the famous "75's"; in the dark dawn the infantry charge over No Man's Land, in company with a monster tank, slowly but surely nosing its ponderous way forward. Then the inevitable result—little batches of wounded, and groups of prisoners which soon grow to the proportions of a small army. At the end of a gallant day tired but happy poilus come back for a well-earned rest, while fresh troops take their places in the front lines.

With characteristic quickness to take advantage of news value, Mr. Cohn has inserted in the Universal Animated Weekly No. 2 a picture of the "Jacob Jones," the U. S. destroyer which has recently fallen a victim to a U boat; and a fine panorama and street scenes of Jerusalem, which, after nearly seven centuries under Moslem rule, has been brought within the realm of western civilization. The possibility that this ancient capital of Judea may again become the political center of a reunited Jewish nation lends additional interest to the picture. The reel is enlivened by some fine shots of that greatest of winter sports, ski-jumping, and by an amusing picture of our sailor boys, under the leadership of the baritone Percy Hemus, emulating the Germans in their one universally commended trait of group-singing. Universal Current Events No. 31 is also characterized by topics of peculiar interest at the moment. We are at war with Austria, and this reel gives us glimpses of our new adversary as he works behind the lines with artillery and camouflage. The opening of the Dutch Parliament affords opportunity for novel and picturesque scenes as Queen Wilhelmina is borne through the streets in her coach of gold drawn by four pairs of splendid black horses. Following this stately pageant is an exciting bit of "the real thing," taken at the scene of a try-out of champion greyhounds at Asbury, Mo. The fleet dogs are given a chance at Br'er Rabbit, who all but gives them the slip in a long chase. The camera man seems to have been johnny-on-the-spot from first to last.

Spain is at the moment sending a strong letter of protest to Germany over the recent sinking of another of her ships by that pirate of the seas. That she is prepared to do more than protest is shown by Hearst-Pathe News No. 99, which displays the trial of two new submersibles just acquired by the Spanish government. An exciting bit in this reel is devoted to rescue work in a heavy sea by the United States Coast Guard at Nome, Alaska. Hearst-Pathe News No. 100 presents a review of the fine body of troops stationed at Camp Devens, Mass. The men march in battalion, and show how they will "go over the top" in a bayonet charge. Of great interest is a view of part of our new air fleet. The aeroplanes no longer fight as "aces," but assemble and leave the field in squadron formation.

Mutual Weekly No. 155 presents our friends of the stage, Harry Lauder and David Warfield, helping the boys of the navy raise a much-needed fund for dependents at home.

In the Topicals of the following week the stricken city of Halifax is again the center of interest. Universal Current Events No. 32 and the Animated Weely No. 3, and Hearst-Pathe News No. 101 devote fully half their length to scenes of deep interest in the harbor and town. The Belgian Relief Shop "Imo," mainly responsible for the terrible devastation, is seen lying half submerged on the bank where she was blown by the explosion. Then follow pictures of the railroad station, from which the roof was lifted bodily; of schools and churches where lives were lost, of dwellings piled in tragic confusion and wreck. Groups of rescuers are everywhere busily at work, and the American Red Cross cares for the wounded in its quick, capable fashion.

As this is Red Cross Week, especial attention is called to the Membership Drive. Animated Weekly No. 3 and Hearst-Pathe News No. 102 picture little Ellen McAdoo, Mr. Wilson's granddaughter, hanging up the flag of the President's household, four stars showing on its ground. Mutual Weekly No. 156 brings home to our imagination and sympathy the work that our membership dollar will eventually perform.

Notable in Hearst-Pathe News No. 101 are pictures Somewhere-on-the-High Seas of United States destroyers and battleships, the latter a powerful and impressive sight as they steam head-on at the spectator. The News No. 102 lightens its more serious scenes of military preparation by snapshots taken at the New York Zoo during the recent snowstorm. The delight of the Polar bears needs no words of description.

Mutual Weekly No. 156 is particularly timely and attractive. Loads of Christmas trees arrive, the Appalachian Club "takes to the woods" near Boston, and its members, men and women, engage in the laudable occupation of "cutting a cord" to relieve the coal shortage.

In the Independent Field

National Gets Lewis Production

The First National Exhibitors' Circuit Buys Negative of Edgar Lewis' Production, "The Sign Invisible"—Anthony Kelly, Author

THE First National Exhibitors' Circuit have closed with Edgar Lewis for the world rights to "The Sign Invisible," one of the two special features produced by Mr. Lewis during the Summer and early Fall, at Ticonderoga, near Lake George in the Adirondacks. The screen version was made from an original story by Anthony P. Kelly, who wrote Mr. Lewis' last screen success, "The Bar Sinister." The cast is headed by Mitchell Lewis, who characterized Poleon in "The Barrier," also produced by Director Lewis from the story by Rex Beach. In the supporting cast are Victor Sutherland, Edward F. Roseman and Mabel Juline Scott, all of whom were seen prominently casted in "The Barrier."

The scenes of "The Sign Invisible" are laid in the Canadian Northwest. The story tells of the adventures of an embittered man of the world who has lost faith in himself and mankind and who has renounced his Creator.

Mr. Lewis, who returned from the scenes of his production only recently, said, in commenting upon the difficulties he experienced in staging the production of "The Sign Invisible":

"We had to build an entire town on the shores of Lake George. This is the point where most of the scenes were taken for "The Barrier." We installed our own power plant, which generated our electricity and conveyed our water to the camp. Living quarters were built—in short a temporary town was brought into being. My company was at work during the entire summer in this region and every detail called for in the script as submitted by the author, Mr. Kelly, was reproduced by the camera. In this production, I believe that I have given to the screen one of the most virile dramas ever projected for screen entertainment."

Edgar Lewis, Whose Latest Picture Has Been Secured by the First National

Before closing the deal whereby The First National Exhibitors' Circuit acquired the sole rights to this production, an official of the company said that Aaron Jones, of Chicago, and Robert Lieber, of Indianapolis, both members of the Circuit, came to New York and saw the picture projected.

"The Slave" Released Without Sub-Titles

"THE SLAVE," the latest Billy West comedy, will be released by the King-Bee Films Corporation without titles. It is said that this is the first time in the history of the industry that a comedy has been released without sub-titles.

Nat I. Spitzer, sales manager, and L. L. Hiller, of the same company, after conferring with Louis Burstein, who supervised the production of "The Slave," said that in their opinion the comedy was the nearest to perfection of any ever produced and that because of this perfection it could be shown without the aid of sub-titles.

"The Slave" is the first Billy West comedy made in California by the King-Bee Corporation. It is said that Billy West does the best work of his career in this production and that there are comedy situations which are entirely original.

Screen Magazine Features Novelty

Universal Screen Magazine, No. 52, which is scheduled for release January 4, announces among its novelties a subject under the title of "Dangerous Occupations," showing the members of the Coast Guard in action.

Warde Buys Foreign Rights to "Public Defender"

Harry Raver announces that the foreign rights to his production, "The Public Defender," have been sold to Reginald Warde, operator in the foreign field. All foreign territory, excepting Canada is included in the contract closed with Mr. Warde.

Mr. Warde said:

"Among the many features I have bought and exploited in foreign markets, "The Public Defender" is the first production I have been able to show to most of my clients in a New York projection room.

"During the past six weeks, nearly every foreign buyer of note has visited American shores and, through the courtesy of Harry Raver, I was permitted to show the picture to all of them. Their universal approval was such that I was enabled to make Mr. Raver a substantial cash offer for the bulk of the foreign territory without risk of losing money on the transaction and I am therefore happy over the result, in that the picture sold on its merits to the buyers I hoped to interest and not because of my personal opinion."

Vic Moore Does "Water Stuff" in Comedy

Klever Pictures, Inc., will release on December 31st a comedy called "Oh! U Boat," featuring Victor Moore. It was written by Thomas J. Gray and directed by Chester M. DeVonde.

Vic hates water so much that he has to be blindfolded before he will take a bath. His wife is a regular mermaid. Vic's Uncle Jasbo left him his yacht, "The Fish Hound," with the proviso that he convert it into a submarine chaser, and in the event that he captures or sinks a U Boat he is to receive the sum of $25,000.

"Cinderella Man" Gets Amount of Praise

New York newspaper critics of motion pictures find much to praise in Goldwyn's screen presentation of Edward Childs Carpenter's holiday play, "The Cinderella Man," in which Mae Marsh is starred. Several declare it is the best thing that Mae Marsh and Goldwyn have done.

Among the most enthusiastic reviewers was T. E. Oliphant, who said in his published criticism: "Photographically and in direction, 'The Cinderella Man' is by all odds the best thing that has yet come from the Goldwyn studio. Mae Marsh had the Strand audience, including hard-hearted newspaper folk, laughing and crying with Edward Childs Carpenter's heroine."

William S. Hart Is the Bandit in "The Bandit and the Preacher," a W. H. Productions Company Release

McGovern, Production Editor, W. H. Productions

Elmer J. McGovern has joined the ranks of W. H. Productions Company in the capacity of production editor, it is announced. He is supervising the completion of the program of twenty-eight two-reel Keystone Comedies. These are, after careful selection, considered the pick of the entire Keystone output and in them are featured Charlie Chaplin, Mack Sennett, Sydney Chaplin, Fatty Arbuckle, Mabel Normand, Max Swain, Chester Conklin, Ford Sterling and Charles Murray.

W. H. Productions Company offers these comedies at $80 per reel with the war tax prepaid.

Mr. McGovern, who will supervise the editing of these productions has had considerable experience in the industry, starting with the MOTION PICTURE NEWS. He has occupied the following executive positions: assistant to Adam Kessel of the New York Motion Picture Corporation, general manager for Frank Powell Productions, Inc., and studio and casting director for the Vitagraph Company. He is author of a number of successful photoplays.

Russell, Treasurer of U. S. Exhibitors' Corporation

William L. Russell, prominent in the business life of Pittsburgh, has been elected as treasurer of the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation, it is announced. With Mr. Russell's appointment, the executive force of the corporation is complete. William Oldknow has been acting treasurer, pending the appointment of a permanent treasurer. Mr. Russell will make his headquarters in the New York office of the corporation, Times Building. Mr. Oldknow will take up the exclusive duties of affairs in the South and will resume his duties as general manager of the Consolidated Film and Supply Company. He will have entire charge of the interests of the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation in the South.

THE INDEPENDENT FIELD TICKER

Territorial Sales Reported During the Past Week

Productions	Buyer	Territory
"The Bandit and the Preacher" (W. H. Productions Co.—Hart Feature)	Tom Moore, Washington, D. C.	Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia.
"The Hell Hound of Alaska" (W. H. Productions Co.—Hart Feature)	Tom Moore, Washington, D. C.	Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia.
"The Two-Gun Man" in "The Bargain" (W. H. Productions Co.—Hart Feature)	A. Dresner, Washington, D. C., Exhibitors Film Exchange	Maryland, Delaware, District of Columbia, Virginia.
"The Two-Gun Man" in "The Bargain" (W. H. Productions Co.—Hart Feature)	Masterpiece Film Attractions, Cleveland, Ohio	Ohio.
"The Bandit and the Preacher" (W. H. Productions Co.—Hart Feature)	Masterpiece Film Attractions, Cleveland, Ohio	Ohio.
"The Hell Hound of Alaska" (W. H. Productions Co.—Hart Feature).	Masterpiece Film Attractions, Cleveland, Ohio	Ohio.
"The Two-Gun Man" in "The Bargain" (W. H. Productions Co. — Hart Feature)	Keystone Distributing Corporation, Philadelphia	Eastern Pennsylvania.
"The Bandit and the Preacher" (W. H. Productions Co.—Hart Feature)	Keystone Distributing Corporation, Philadelphia	Eastern Pennsylvania.
"The Hell Hound of Alaska" (W. H. Productions Co.—Hart Feature).	Keystone Distributing Corporation, Philadelphia	Eastern Pennsylvania.
"The Two-Gun Man" in "The Bargain" (W. H. Productions Co. — Hart Feature)	T. E. Larsen, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma	Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas.
"Babbling Tongues" (Ivan Production)	Liberty Film Renting Co., Philadelphia	Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia.
"Sins of Ambition" (Ivan Production)	Liberty Film Renting Co., Philadelphia	Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia.
"Human Clay" (Ivan Production)	Eastern Feature Film Co., Boston	New England States.
"Sins of Ambition"	Eastern Feature Film Co., Boston	New England States.
"The Public Defender"	Hiram Abrams (Boston Photoplay Co., Boston)	New England.
"The Public Defender"	Walter Greene (Modern Feature Film Co.), New York	New York.
"Human Clay"	Merit Film Corporation, New York	New York State, Northern New Jersey.
"Sins of Ambition"	Merit Film Corporation, New York	New York State, Northern New Jersey.
"Human Clay"	Electric Theatre Supply Company, Philadelphia	Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia.
Sins of Ambition"	Peerless Feature Film Exchange	Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia.
"The Two-Gun Man" in "The Bargain"	A. S. Aronson, Regal Films, Ltd., Toronto, Canada	Canadian Rights.
"The Bandit and the Preacher"	A. S. Aronson, Regal Films, Ltd., Toronto, Canada	Canadian Rights.

Amalgamation at the Point of an Unloaded Gun

A Talk With the Exhibitor

By H. J. Shepard

WITHIN the past few weeks an old friend of "Combination in Restraint of Trade," otherwise known as "Mr. Trust," has been brought into the Film Industry, viz.: Mr. Amalgamation, but Mr. Wise Exhibitor will steer clear of him.

Now, Mr. Amalgamation has devised a very cunning weapon by which he hopes to get the unsuspecting exhibitors in his power, but this weapon is only an Unloaded Gun.

Exhibitors—A great many of you have been in the film business for a number of years; you have watched your theatre develop under your personal guidance; from time to time you have invested more of your own money in your proposition; your name has been linked with your theatre at all times; in fact, the development of the theatre depended upon your personal efforts and financial resources.

Fight or Come Across

IF a highwayman approached you with a gun and ordered you to "come across" or suffer the consequences, you probably would do the same as any other human being would—hand it over and fight it out later. But, if you knew that the "gun was not loaded," you would, no doubt, put up a stiff fight to retain what rightfully belongs to you.

A few years ago a young fellow in New York City evolved an idea by which he could secure a number of thousand of the best established and most reliable retail stores throughout the country (one or more in every city) that were handling a similar line of product that he intended to manufacture; and his plan proved to be such an enormous success that today his organization is one of the most powerful in the commercial world, and the poor unsuspecting boob, who fell for this Mr. Amalgamation, and turned over to him the fruits of the best years of his life, does not realize even today what he has done.

Financing His Scheme

THIS was his plan: He formed a corporation and issued a certain amount of stock which was to be sold to the retailers. (The money received through the sale of this stock was to be used for the purpose of manufacturing the product.) The maximum amount of stock allotted to each man was Five Hundred ($500.00) Dollars. No more and no less, and the Retailers were then entitled to a special discount on the various products manufactured and controlled by the Parent Company. The Retailers also agreed to place the trade mark of the Product in a conspicuous place on the inside and on the outside of their shops.

The result is easily seen. The Retailers pushed the product upon which they were getting the big discount because that, naturally, increased their profits and, on the surface, it looked as if they were getting the best of the deal, for they were increasing their retail profits and, at the same time, boosting the value of their stock. What they did not realize, however, was that they irrevocably sold themselves to the larger organization and that they were simply cogs in the wheels of a Trust, or Amalgamation, if you please.

Neglected Their Own Goods

THEY neglected to push their other merchandise, selling the goods which this particular company supplied them. Their patrons became accustomed to going to them for these particular products. Thus, when later the scheme of Amalgamation had taken a thorough hold they found it impossible to break away. They were forced to sell what they were told and to pay for it whatever the Trust asked. Their stores belonged as completely to the company as if they had sold them outright.

The unavoidable result, which was bound to follow, did follow. The smaller manufacturer died, either fast or slow, as the case happened to be, leaving a vast non-competitive field to the mercy of Mr. Amalgamation.

Then whoop! up went the prices, and the poor retailer whose profits began to lessen, looked about for his usual relief by trading elsewhere. Relief no longer lived, he himself had helped to slay him. Thus you see the poor retailer, and I, in my simile, must liken your status, Mr. Exhibitor, unto his, had assisted in the preparation of his own execution.

Biting the Hand That Feeds

THUS it is shown that the independent manufacturer of that trade was slain by the very people to whom his existence afforded the very necessary protection, and that you, too, Mr. Exhibintor, will be assisting in the digging of your commercial grave if you actively or passively permit a propaganda of this sort to proceed unhampered or unchecked.

This is a wonderful example of being held up by an unloaded gun and they might have eliminated the possibility of losing their own individuality and results of life's labor if they had analyzed this "hold-up" before falling for it.

Exhibitors, do you wish to find yourselves in this situation? Do you wish to fall into a rut from which there is no escape? You certainly have no such desire. Let each one, then, watch your step. Be careful of the agreements you make. No one is giving something for nothing, and you may be sure that there is a catch in most propositions that will rebound to the great profit of the larger organization.

Rothapfel, the Independent

MR. ROTHAPFEL, managing director of the Rialto and the new Rivoli theatres, is conceded to be the leader amongst exhibitors. Mr. Rothapfel put the Strand theatre on the map; he duplicated this feat with the Rialto, and he will also do the same thing with the Rivoli. He does things. He makes his personality a part of everything he is connected with. He does not tie his theatre to any set policy of any particular distributor. He builds his business by the strength of his own individuality and keeps it. He is independent.

Exhibitors—Only by being independent can you retain what rightfully belongs to you. Even though you change your program daily you can only use seven features a week. There are approximately twenty features released each week and among these are three or four independent productions. The latter show an increase in the Independent Market of over 200 per cent within the past year. These figures conclusively prove the fact that you can consistently book such program pictures as are good and the independent productions as well. These combined with your personal method of exploitation will maintain the individuality of your theatre, and still enable you to retain the right to change your policy at any time, thereby not affecting the time, money and energy placed in your investment.

We are now in the most crucial period of the film industry and it behooves you to keep your mind clear and on the lookout for the unloaded gun which is covering you this very minute. Be independent.

Three Brenon Successes Showing in Montreal

CHANDOS BRENON, Canadian representative of the Herbert Brenon Film Corporation, reports the successful showing of three features made by Herbert Brenon, now playing in Montreal at the foremost moving picture theatres in the city.

The three Brenon features playing Montreal at the present time are "The Lone Wolf" at the New Grand, "The Fall of the Romanoffs" at the Regent and "The Daughter of the Gods," which was made two years ago under the Fox banner, at the St. Denis. The first mentioned productions were made at Mr. Brenon's own studios, Hudson Heights, N. J.

In the past four weeks Montreal has seen no less than five pictures directed by Herbert Brenon for, in addition to those already cited, "Neptune's Daughter," which is still a drawing-card, and a re-issue of "The Two Orphans" have also been running simultaneously.

Each of these three pictures now running in Montreal has had its premiere as a special attraction in New York at $2—top price—and each was acclaimed a brilliant success.

Brandon and Bradbury Court Success

Messrs. Brandon and Bradbury, who operate the Bunny theatre and the Majestic theatre, both of the Audubon section in New York, are a success. We accused Mr. Brandon of the fact, and he couldn't deny it. How could he, in the face of the Bunny, operated for several years with a steadily increasing patronage, and of the Majestic, recently taken over by this enterprising firm and showing every sign of promise?

We think we could tell you the secret of this achievement. Speaking generally, it is based on sound sense, psychology, and adherence to an ideal. Quite an interesting little essay might be written on it, and perhaps one day we will write one.

But this is all we are going to say for the present. In addition to a carefully chosen feature and a comedy, Mr. Brandon, the directing genius of the firm, presents a News Weekly, and a travelogue or amusing animal picture at practically every performance. That is his idea of a good program. Box-office receipts would seem to prove his idea a correct one.

Lillian Walker Signs with Crest for Four Pictures

Carl E. Carlton, president of Crest Pictures Corporation, announces that by arrangement with Lester Park, he has signed Lillian Walker, star of the two Ogden productions, "The Lust of the Ages" and "The Grain of Dust," both of which have been bought by the Crest Pictures, to appear in four feature pictures to be produced by Mr. Carlton. Miss Walker, it is announced, will begin work at once.

Miss Walker's late picture, "The Grain of Dust," is an adaptation from David Graham Phillips' novel of the same name. The production was made under the direction of Harry Revier. Roy Sommerville did the sub-titles. The picture will be ready for release and will be given a trade showing within the next few weeks.

Miss Walker is supported by Edith Day, Ralph Delmore, Corene Uzzell, George Henry, Jacques Tyroll, Redfield Clark, Cecil Fletcher, Charles Eldridge, Richard Wagerman and Lawrence Evart.

Louise Lovely Is Said to be Excellent in Universal's "Nobody's Wife"

Hoffman Speaks on Efficiency

M. H. Hoffman, M. H. Hoffman, Inc., Now Traveling Through Middle West, Writes of Conditions

M. H. HOFFMAN, M. H. Hoffman, Inc., who is making a visit to the Foursquare Pictures exchange throughout the country, writes from Chicago where he spent several days, of the conditions as he found them in the territories he has covered. He writes:

"During the past ten days I have had opportunity to see the workings of an economically administered distributing organization—to-wit: Foursquare Pictures. Understand that, while I am against 'scrimping,' that the most efficient organization (no matter what the line) is that wherein the waste is virtually eliminated.

"It is on this account that I felt gratified in seeing the progress, with my own eyes, which has been made in the Boston, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Detroit and Chicago Foursquare exchanges, and which I am confident will be duplicated in the others which I am to visit before my return to New York.

"If ever there were evidence to indicate that distribution of pictures is possible on an economical scale it has been supplied since my departure from the home office.

"George Backer, president of Foursquare Pictures, performs services of untold value in shaping policies and in co-operating with me in the best methods of administration. A financier of the broadest outlook, a business man who sees clearly into the future, Mr. Backer does not draw a princely salary for invaluable guidance. Yet his aid is of inestimable importance.

"For myself, I am more than the executive head of our organization. That much I expect to be, but were I to stop there I should violate the first principle laid down by the company. I am the field man—one of them—and salesman. For if I were to go into a territory and fail to secure some particularly difficult piece of business I should not be fit for my post, as anyone knows.

"Mr. Key, handling the executive end of Foursquare Pictures, under my direction and the duties of manager of sales and advertising, as well as sales promotion works efficiency and under our plan of co-operation he makes progress possible in more ways than one.

"The facts, I believe, show what I mean by economy and efficiency. Every member of Foursquare Pictures feels that he and she is more than an employe. They are all working for more than their salaries, because they share in the prosperity of the concern. We have sought to make our offices places where all who are a part of them liked to come and be busy—in work they enjoyed.

"Modern business is discovering that, after all, the golden rule is susceptible of application."

Great Possibilities, Says Raver

Harry Raver Says That It Is No Time for Pessimism—Brighter Outlook Than Ever Before

FOLLOWING the announcement by Harry Raver that he has made plans to produce twenty-five features for the independent market during the new year, comes the statement by Mr. Raver that, in his opinion, the new year has much in store for those interested in any way in the busines of selling, buying or producing for the open market.

Mr. Raver says:

"The war has made the public careful in all things, including motion pictures. Today, the man who supplies a 'service' of so many reels a week to a theatre must step aside for the producer who specializes, and spends his money on sure-fire stars and stories, for a money-tight public will not support 'just pictures.'

"If one were to judge from pessimistic statements of certain individuals in the trade, as to the war's possible effect on motion pictures," said Mr. Raver, "the entire industry would be scurrying to cover and funds on hand would be hidden in old stoves and pewter pots. Firms, famous for making money because conditions compelled them to, are simply facing a condition now where they are being left high and dry by the progressive showman, who better understands his audience. For, in war times, the public picks its pictures with great care and discrimination. 'Two bits' now looks to the spender like a whole dollar. He is not so inclined to say 'let's go to the movies,' but instead picks his stars and brands when selecting the entertainment he must pay elusive money to see during war times.

"This is an age of 'showmanship.' The exhibitor who sits back and waits for the money to come in, as he did before money became tight, will see the public passing his door, headed for the house where showmanship prevails, where selected pictures are being shown and where every comfort and courtesy are extended.

"I would rather have my money invested in a dozen first-class negatives to-day than at any time in the past five years, because money is available for the purchase of good pictures. A year ago many mediocre pictures were being bought, haphazard, and buyers were so loaded with pictures of such calibre that they had little money left to pay for a really high-grade product."

Essanay Comedies Find Favor

Essanay's General Film one-reel comedies are being merrily received through the country, according to reports. Director Arthur D. Hotaling's idea of comedy humor is finding new favor with movie goers.

Essanay's General Film scenic reels are also said to be having splendid bookings. On December 29 the scenic reel, "Through Canada from Coast to Coast," will be released, showing the natural, agricultural and commercial wonders of the country to our north.

The Foreign Problem Discussed

By Joseph Lamy—Piedmont Pictures Corp.

SEVERAL years ago when I came to this country, the European producers had already introduced everywhere in foreign countries what was called the special film and was nothing else but three, four and five reel feature productions. However, the American producers at that time only occasionally released on foreign markets any production over two reels in length and I remember perfectly well when the Thomas A. Edison Film Company in Paris released their first multiple production.

At that time the Famous Players-Lasky put their first releases on the market and their immediate success due, undoubtedly, to a great extent to their skill and organization, started immediately all the other producers on the road of feature film productions. Since then the American market has seen the height of the feature film production, and according to what is being offered now everywhere, the demand today is mostly for super productions or at least for special productions over 6,000 feet in length.

The increase in the cost of the negatives could be gradually observed by all experts in the line and of course was justified in many instances by an increased quality of the productions turned out, to such an extent that today there are many American films on the market, the technic and market value of which, is by far superior to the average Italian, French or Scandinavian feature productions. However, it could be observed, not only by me, but also by all other export men in our line that the American films have had and are still having troubles to introduce themselves in certain markets. Of course, the present conditions have done a lot against obliging many foreign exchange men to cover his supply with American films, simply because he could not get enough subjects of European make. Others went directly to the source with a view of finding out exactly of what value the American production might be for their market, not only the productions which were shown to them through the London or French market, but also the films which otherwise never might have reached them.

I think such foreign concerns, who came right to the spot here, took the wisest step to be taken under the circumstances, and this brings me to the real purpose of the present statement, namely THE SELECTION OF AMERICAN FILMS ACCORDING TO THE INDIVIDUAL TASTE OF EACH FOREIGN TERRITORY.

With a few exceptions the average producer here is or at least seems to be of the idea that any film produced in this country ought to be suitable for any other country without exception, and they do not figure that the taste and the view points of all nations are different. Of course, a certain grouping of similar tastes is easy to establish and all exporters know that films suitable for Brazil for instance will also in most cases be suitable for Argentine or Chile or Mexico or Porto Rico. However, even, within this group which might be called the Latin American group the requirements are different and there are certainly many films which today may have a big success in Argentine and may only be just suitable for Mexico and vice versa.

Furthermore, we have the group of the Far East. We all know that the living methods, the art, literature and everything in this country is entirely different from the United States, but we have the greatest trouble to convince the producers that a certain film is no good at all for one, or the other, or all of these territories, simply because the ultimate consumer, the moving picture goer will not or cannot understand the subject or is not educated enough to do so. In many of these territories where the bulk of the customers are the natives, the clever exchange man will require only such films which can be understood and appreciated by the natives.

In the third place we came to the European countries where we find that the market which today is the best one, the United Kingdom, very often brings mediocre success to a picture which brought great results here, and other times a picture considered here as an average feature shows very big results in England. This shows that, though the Anglo-Saxon taste is the nearest to the American taste, it is not the same, and it simply needs very experienced men, knowing perfectly the market to judge the value of a picture for that country.

The moment we come to Scandinavia, France, Italy, Spain and Portugal and finally to Russia, we find again the very same thing that the value of a picture consists only in the value which it may have individually for each individual territory.

This brings me to the conclusion that the American manufacturer instead of trying to compel his foreign customers to take practically his entire output, ought to be satisfied if the customer takes only such films which are suitable for his country. If he does so he may not only obtain better prices, but his particular brand or trademark will become more favorably known.

The idea of selling the rights for a picture here in New York and letting the other fellow take the risk, is all right, but it is not favorable for the general business or for the individual business for each concerned. The buyer who has to run such risks by himself, naturally, wishes to protect himself by having the largest possible margin, thus giving us the result that many pictures which in certain countries have brought big money have been sold under price here in the United States.

I may mention that during my twelve years' experience specializing in the export of films all over the world, I have had the opportunity of studying the requirements and tastes right on the spot in many countries, and the proof is that many of my friends in foreign territories have charged me with the selection of their requirements, because they know that I can judge the American films from that particular point of view. I will simply state a few words of one of my friends in Spain, from whom I received a very interesting letter with respect to American films a few days ago only. He writes:

"Here the Italian films continue dominating, and American feature films, even if technically they are better than the Italian films, cannot compete with the latter, because the American stars are absolutely unknown on this side and until they are introduced here in the same way and to the same degree, as for instance, Bertini, Lyda Borrell, Menicchelli have. No special prices will be paid for them."

This shows that the star craze is working everywhere and that even the best star has to be introduced and become popular before it becomes a box office attraction. The writer continues:

"I do not say that American films cannot be introduced here, on the contrary, it is quite likely that gradually they will take the place of Italian films, but we have not arrived at that yet."

When speaking of the efforts, so far successful only to a very little extent, of a big importer of films in Spain, who tried to force the market with subjects of several makes which in this country are considered as the best, he says as follows:

". . . has been here for a good many months without being able to go ahead. He showed many of his best films in special trade shows and with the exception of two, the impression amongst renters and exhibitors is that they are only current subjects."

"If your manufacturers continue asking for special prices and cash in advance they are not likely to do any business in this country. We are quite open to work up the business, but the first risk is to be run by the one who has an interest in introducing his output in this market. If Messrs. —— (here he mentions one of our foremost producers) want to send one copy of their best film to my care through your intervention, such as the European manufacturers are accustomed to do, I am prepared to arrange for a trade show where all important exhibitors can see the films accompanied by orchestra, and I can give an exact report of the impression caused amongst the interested party. I can also indicate prospects either for sale or for rent and not engage the film without instruction from the manufacturer, and meanwhile keep the print at his disposal. This is the only way to find out what the films are worth in this market."

Here we have the judgment of a man, recognized in that territory as an expert in the line, a party who has been handling the output of big producers, appreciated by everybody for his serious and commercial business methods.

Referring to France, if today a few manufacturers are doing business there, it is because they themselves or at least their London offices were wise enough to find that the only way to do business in France is showing a sample print there to the trade and disposing of it according to the market value. The Paris office of the Piedmont Pictures Corporation, were the first American offices established for free market value. The Paris office of the Piedmont Pictures Corporation, were the first American offices, established for free trade after the outbreak of the European war and none of the manufacturers who distributed their films through our channels have had any complaint and will not have any, because we were able to convince them, and if there might have been any doubt, the facts speak for themselves.

Speaking of Italy, there are few American producers who ever have been able to establish a satisfactory business in Italy and not because the business is not there, but mainly because they did not want or could not find the right way to go after it. Apart from a few sporadical orders which a few producers have obtained, or some contract which was cancelled after a short while, the American feature production is known in Italy to a very small extent, although the productions of other European manufacturers are being shown there constantly.

I feel that the ways are open for the American producers to gain a steady position in all foreign markets, the moment they try to apply such International business principles to which the foreign customers are accustomed, and the moment they try to do their best to meet the foreign customers, taking in account their wishes and requirements, and especially if they put their foreign business in the hands of experts who know how to conduct same and who know how to attend the requirements of the foreign business in all its many details.

Oldknow Receives Testimonial from Associates

A personal tribute in the shape of an engraved testimonial bearing the names of all employes associated with him in the management of the Consolidated Film and Supply Company of the South has been sent to William Oldknow, vice-president of the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation. Mr. Oldknow was one of the first film men to engage in business below the Mason-Dixon line.

Thirty-nine young men and women, from Ned Depinet, Mr. Oldknow's right hand man who made his headquarters in the Dallas office of the Consolidated, to the office boys, all affixed their signatures to the document in which they joined in wishing Mr. Oldknow health, happiness and prosperity in his new undertaking.

At the top of the testimonial is an hand painted scene, depicting a train disappearing through a snow-clad mountain vale at sunset and beneath are the words: "Good-bye, Good Luck, God Bless You."

Among those from whom letters bidding Mr. Oldknow godspeed were received are: E. H. Hulsey, of Dallas; Max L. Wolf, of Savannah, Ga.; E. A. Schiller, Atlanta; H. C. Farley, Montgomery, Ala.; E. J. Sparks, Jacksonville, Fla.; W. F. Neil, Spartenburg, S. C.; Maurice F. Barr, Houston, Texas; Carl Kettler, Jr., West Palm Beach; A. LaBelle, Tampa; C. D. Cooley, Tampa; J. B. Joel, Athens, Ga.; Albert Sottile, Charlestown, S. C.; W. R. Winch, El Paso; H. Van Denmark, Houston, Texas, and George C. Warner, Columbia, S. C.

Big Sales for "Public Defender"

Hiram Abrams, of Paramount and Walter Greene, of Artcraft, Buy Territory — Big Demand Noted by Renowned

RENOWNED PICTURES CORPORATION, which purchased the United States and Canadian rights to Harry Raver's production, "The Public Defender," announces that Hiram Abrams, president of Paramount Pictures Corporation, has bought the New England rights to this production. The deal was closed last week. Mr. Abrams predicts a heavy demand for this feature through the New England territory. The feature will be handled through Mr. Abrams' Boston exchange, the Boston Photoplay Company, Boston.

Mr. Akiba Weinberg, acting head of Renowned Pictures, Inc., who closed the contract with Mr. Abrams, said:

"I am more than impressed with the class of buyers who have shown an interest in purchasing territory for 'The Public Defender.' All of the inquiries asking for quotations come from the most prominent exchanges in the country. Mr. Raver has gladly turned these over to us and just as fast as we can assemble the data necessary to intelligently start our propaganda we hope to break all records for rapid sales."

At the same time it is announced that Walter E. Greene, president of Artcraft Pictures Corporation, has secured the distribution franchise for Greater New York and the entire State. The Modern Feature Film Company, Greene's New York exchange, of which Charles Streimer is manager, will start at once the classification of bookings, with a view to releasing "The Public Defender" by January 1. Mr. Greene witnessed the Hotel Astor showing of this picture and later requested Mr. Raver to give him an opportunity to compete for the New York territory if it was decided to sell State rights. "The Public Defender" is the sixty-ninth feature issued by Harry Raver since 1911 and Walter Greene has purchased territory for every one of them.

Hall Promises Big Expansion

President of U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation Sees Bright Future —Forces Complete

WITH less than three months' time having elapsed since the organization of the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation, Frank Hall, its sponsor and president, announces that its executive and sales forces are complete and that its distributing channels lead to all parts of the world.

The domestic territory was covered first and then the foreign territory was placed in the hands of the Robertson-Cole Company of London and New York, one of the largest importing concerns in the world. This company will handle the distribution of the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation's product in the foreign market.

The corporation's first list of releases includes, "The Zeppelin's Last Raid," an Ince production; "Those Who Pay," with Bessie Barriscale featured, another Ince production and "The Belgian," produced by Sidney Olcott with Walker Whiteside and Valentine Grant featured. It is the intention of Mr. Hall and his co-workers to have twelve features for release during the year.

He said: "The demand for productions above the accepted program standard of merit was brought home to me, at my own theatre, the U. S. of Hoboken, New Jersey. I make it a point every few weeks to show a big production. I have found the scheme a splendid business stimulant. The new year will see a further expansion of the U. S. organization. We have an option on four new attractions now in course of making and featuring players who possess genuine box office value. These will probably be announced for release in about two months.

"We have covered much ground since October. We have representatives stationed in thirty exchanges that give us an efficient and economical system of distribution. I have arranged with the four-square Exchanges to handle our business in the major portion of the domestic territory and in the South the Southern States Film Corporation has been entrusted with the marketing of U. S. subjects. The foreign field is covered by the Robertson-Cole Company, and it is the intention of this company to widen its scope of operations during the early part of the new year.

"Through our connection with Robertson-Cole we have direct representation among the exhibitors and distributors of places as remote as Calcutta, Singapore and Sydney.

"The domestic sales division is in charge of Lynn S. Card, formerly of the Mutual Film Corporation and includes the following exchange representatives: J. B. Kelly, Atlanta; A. L. Ehrgott, Boston; F. W. Holderman, Buffalo; C. E. Bond, Chicago; G. W. Wilson, Cincinnati; Arthur A. Lee, Cleveland; Ned E. Depinet, Dallas; Hugh Rennie, Denver; D. R. Blyth, Detroit; B. A. Lucas, Kansas City; Harvey E. Gausman, Los Angeles; W. C. Cook, Minneapolis; Philip Meyer, A. G. O'Neil, S. P. Farber, New York and Brooklyn; Allen May and F. H. Gilman, Philadelphia and Washington; J. H. Zimmerman, Pittsburgh; W. F. Korper, San Francisco; Joseph Desberger, St. Louis; Orrin Woody, Seattle; R. S. Clark, New Jersey."

Mary Pickford New Picture Finished

Mary Pickford's newest Artcraft picture, "Stella Maris," adapted by Frances Marion from the novel by William Locke, has been finished at the Hollywood, Cal., studio of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, presenting the star for the first time in a dual role.

Carlton to Make Optional Sales

Carle E. Carlton, President of Crest Pictures, Says Exhibitor Is Entitled to Optional Rights

CARLE E. CARLTON, president of Crest Pictures Corporation, who has purchased recently the world rights to the Ogden productions, "The Lust of the Ages" and "The Grain of Dust," featuring Lillian Walker, discusses the picture question from the exhibitors' standpoint in the following interview:

"The practice of forcing an exhibitor to signing up for a series or a program is against all principles of right business as I see it. If an exhibitor wishes to take a big star, under the ordinary circumstances, he must be content to follow along with that star a program of more or less secondary features.

"The best way that I can show you what I believe to be the ideal booking arrangement is to show you how we are releasing the Lillian Walker star series: We have now ready for distribution David Graham Phillips' story, "The Grain of Dust," in which Miss Walker stars. The field may have the picture individually without any strings attached. Afterward the exhibitor may have the privilege of engaging the series, which is only fair, if he chooses to take the option for the rest of the series. Many cumulative advantages of the series for all the Walker releases, and assure themselves that the manager down the block isn't going to come along after a time and work in on the foundation of the interest which has been built up by the first man.

"That is to say, the exhibitor will have the right to take an option on all of the Lillian Walker releases, but even then we will not hold him to a contract. In these war times nobody can say what is going to happen to-morrow and if a contracting exhibitor should see fit to ask to be released he will have our permission. This is as it should be. The exhibitor should have the better of the program at every step.

"Now in our arrangements with our State rights buyer we are following out the same plans, we are selling territory on this same basis, as we ask them in turn to sell with the exhibitors."

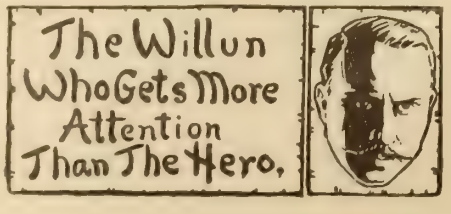
Western Import Speaks for "Mickey"

AN official of the Western Import Company, which has recently purchased the world rights to Mack Sennett's comedy production, "Mickey," featuring Mabel Normand, explains in the following interview why the production has been cut and why the elimination of hundreds of feet of film from this production is not a waste:

"I have no doubt that in time the production of motion pictures will be as carefully systematized as a packing house, where they sell every part of the pig but the 'squeal.' At present we are progressing too rapidly in big things to occupy ourselves with stuffing up little leaks.

"At the same time the wastage is less than appears to the superficial observer. Compare the production of 'Mickey,' the big feature picture which we are about to release, with a big theatrical production. Before a big theatrical show sees Broadway, it has been rehearsed for weeks. By the time it appears in New York, the chances are that not more than one line out of ten remains of the original manuscript. We can't put a motion picture out on a trial run. When it leaves our hands its mistakes are irrevokable. What appears to be an appaling wastage of film is our substitute for the tour of trial performances in the small towns.

"We take each situation from half a dozen angles. If we get two or three 'hunches' we take them all. When we finished 'Mickey,' we came to the projection room with enough film to make five or six big pictures. On an average, we cut out four or five feet of film for every foot that we made. Some of the scenes from 'Mickey' have been made twenty times. This was not because the first time was not good. We were determined that no matter how much time it took or how much film was used up, 'Mickey' must be as near perfection as human effort could make it. 'Mickey,' the little girl around whom this story is woven, is as real to me as though she was a living person. If I let 'Mickey' go out upon the road to seek her fortune, knowing there was one more thing I could have done for her, I would feel as though I had starved a child."



Shorty Hamilton Comedies Made in Five Reels

Victor Kremer, general manager of the W. H. Clifford Photoplay Co., left recently for San Diego, where the Shorty Hamilton series of comedies are being produced, to make arrangements for the production of these comedies in more reelage. This action was taken because of the unusual interest which was taken in the recent comedy productions, featuring Shorty Hamilton, shown for review, "The Snail" and "Denny from Ireland."

Mr. Kremer said:

"The Shorty Hamilton series of comedies are sure to prove a winner. The contemplated expansion will be more in quality than quantity. Each future production will be five reels. The comedies recently shown for review made a hit and I feel sure that the five reelers to come will place Shorty Hamilton in a class with the best screen comedians."

Mr. Kremer will return to New York soon for a conference with Ernest Shipman, sales manager of the company.

Ambrosio Company Finish Historical Feature

AMBROSIO FILM COMPANY, of Turin, Italy, announce the completion of an historical feature, under the direction of Febo Mari. Mr. Mari is also featured in the production.

More than 700 workmen were employed during the period of three months in which time the feature was under production. These workmen rebuilt the fortress of Orleans, the Palace of the Huns in Pannonia, the Chief Temple of Byzantium, the Roman Palace of Ravenna.

The drawing and the frescoes were done by Mr. Puccini and C. Cheduzzi of Bologna, under the direction of the famous Italian sculptor, Peter Canonica, the president of the Ambrosio firm.

One thousand three hundred horses and 4,000 men were employed to represent the Battle of the Marne and about 10,000 costumes were used.

"The great value of the famous work," said an official, "will certainly prove to be the best picture ever put on the market of the world, and one of the best films produced in Italy is not to be found in the luxurious surroundings nor in the grandeur of the scenes. The value is in the structure of the work, which is highly interesting, suggestive for the dramatic episodes of Ildico and Honoria, with all the historical and legendary notes gathered at Attila.

Campaign Started to Exploit "Mother"

A country-wide sales drive has been launched for the George Loane Tucker production, "Mother," by Herbert Lubin, Harry G. Kosch and M. R. Fink, of General Enterprises, Inc., which firm controls the territorial distribution for this production.

Herbert Lubin left New York last Monday for Chicago in the interests of the feature. He will cross the continent to California. Mr. Lubin has established headquarters at the Sherman House, Chicago. A trade showing was given Wednesday in the ballroom of the hotel.

Elizabeth Risdon is featured in "Mother." She is now playing a leading role in "Misalliance," the William Faversham stage production of George Bernard Shaw's famous drama.

Harry Kosch, head of the legal department of General Enterprises, Inc., also left the city Monday, bound for Boston, Mass. where he will preside at several screenings of the George Loane Tucker production and contract for the New England territory.

To consummate the sales-drive which Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin are promoting, to interest state rights purchasers from coast to coast in the McClure feature, M. R. Fink completes the trio of General Enterprises, Inc., executives who are now on the road for "Mother." Mr. Fink, at present in the South, reports widespread interest in the Tucker picture and is also taking care of the arrangements recently completed whereby "Mother" will be shown in the various penal institutions as an aid in the uplift work.

"The PRICE OF A GOOD TIME

A Photodramatic Wonder and a Jewel Production

FAIR PLAY

Our Way—The Only Fair Way —To Sell You Pictures

Book what Jewel Productions you like—whenever you like—without a contract tying you up 52 weeks in the year—without a deposit—without fear of mediocre pictures that you'll have to accept—without compulsion of any kind—except the necessity of giving your patrons the best the market affords.

Realize All That Jewel Fair Play Booking Means

This—the Jewel Way—the only fair way to sell you pictures—gives you a fair, square chance to pick only proven successes—as many or as few of those successes as you want—for the dates that best suit your schedule—for the cream of the business on those pictures. Gives you a fair, square chance to round out your program with other good pictures—if you can find them.

Realize Particularly This

Many other concerns, if they could offer Jewel Quality, would jump at the chance this highest quality offers, to tie you up with all manner of restrictions—limit you clear to the limit—squeeze the orange dry.

Not so, Jewel Productions, Inc.

Under the Jewel Fair Play Booking Plan YOU GET—

All the plums. None of the lemons. At fairest figures.

No forcing you to take several weak features just to get one winning production.

No buying a cat in a bag. You see every Jewel Production before you buy it. Thus you know what your goods are going to be like before you pay a single penny.

No exorbitantly salaried Stars—who add nothing to entertainment value, but who do compel insane rentals that a majority of exhibitors cannot afford—that only a few can play with real profit.

No contract plan. No tying you up on a Series in which there may be a weak picture.

Under the live-and-let-live Jewel Fair Play Plan You Pick Your Picture and Pay for Your Pick and Pay for That Alone

With a Quality Average infinitely above that of any other picture marketing concern in the business to-day, Jewel Productions, Inc., does not tie you up—does not restrict you—does not limit you in any way.

Instead, Jewel Productions, Inc., offers you OPEN BOOKING on the very finest pictures, obtained from every source and renting at figures that give you a white man's profit on every one.

Six Great Successes of Six Different Types

"The Man Without a Country"

The great patriotic drama of the hour, endorsed and recommended everywhere by the American Defence Society. Made by Thanhouser. World Rights owned by Jewel Productions, Inc.

"Sirens of the Sea"

Louise Lovely and Carmel Myers in a dream of Venus-like loveliness, made by Allen Holubar. The Beauty Picture of the Age.

"Pay Me"

Dorothy Phillips—Idol of Millions—in a tornado of a Western drama, produced by Joseph De Grasse. Everywhere a smasher of business records.

"The Price of a Good Time"

Mildred Harris in the most appealing, universal-interest play of many years, lavishly produced by Lois Weber—the Belasco of the Screen.

"Come Through"

Herbert Rawlinson in George Bronson Howard's mightiest melodrama of society and the underworld. Suspense at the shouting point.

"The Co-Respondent"

Elaine Hammerstein in the great Ralph Ince version of the stage play by Alice Leal Pollock and Rita Weiman. With $50,000 advertising to back her up.

Soon to be Released

"The Grand Passion"

Dorothy Phillips, William Stowell, Jack Mulhall, Lon Chaney.
A Drama dyed Red with Human Emotions. Watch and Wait.

JEWEL
PRODUCTIONS (INC)
1600 B'WAY. N.Y.

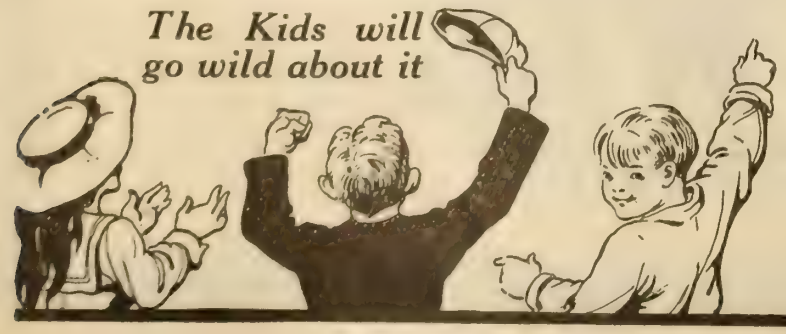
Millions

WILL FLOOD THE

"MYSTE BE ENDING For Boys

LIKE a deluge—millions of explanatory advertising heralds, carrying the advertisement and complete explanation of the UNIVERSAL'S mighty "MYSTERY SHIP BEST ENDING CONTEST" will fairly flood this entire country from end to end—one of the factors that will make this contest—

A TREMENDOUS CROWD COMPELLING PLAN THAT WILL PULL FOR 18 WEEKS



THE heralds give the list of awards—explain every detail—of the age of boys and girls who may participate—how to become a participant—what to do—who the judges are—how the awards will be made—how the suggestions will be judged—and all other details.

388 AWARDS

—consisting of United States Liberty Bonds—War Certificates and Thrift Stamps—Attractive amounts and so arranged as to be of the greatest possible incentive to all children.

NO blanks in this contest. EVERY CHILD IS REWARDED FOR HIS OR HER EFFORTS. This alone triples the value of this plan, and urges every exhibitor throughout the entire country to communicate with his nearest Universal Exchange for this big WINNER.

The Kids will go wild about it

Interests young of Heralds

OUNTRY ON THE

Y SHIP'S ST CONTEST and Girls

MAKE application NOW to your nearest Universal Exchange for this tremendous nation wide—"MYSTERY SHIP BEST ENDING CONTEST" DON'T let your competitor beat you to it. It costs you absolutely nothing—The UNIVERSAL gives all the prizes—conducts the entire contest—does all the work—and YOU get the benefit for 18 straight weeks.

AND remember this—the UNIVERSAL SERIAL—"THE MYSTERY SHIP" even without this tremendous nation-wide plan, stands head and shoulders in punch and pulling power, above ANY SERIAL NOW ON THE MARKET. It opens with the colossal $35,000 thrill in episode 1 and grips like a vise to the finish. YOU cannot afford to be without it. Get in touch with your nearest Universal Exchange and BOOK "THE MYSTERY SHIP" today.

EVERY Exhibitor will secure a generous supply of these "MYSTERY SHIP BEST ENDING CONTEST" heralds for local distribution to back up this plan in all neighborhoods. Thus you will interest EVERY CHILD, every parent, every school teacher, enabling you to play capacity every week on matinees.

UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING CO.

Carl Laemmle, President

"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"

1600 BROADWAY - NEW YORK

News Notes from Canada

Exhibitors Cannot Help Halifax

The efforts of the motion picture exhibitors of Winnipeg to help the sufferers of the Halifax disaster, were nipped in the bud by the action of Hon. Edward Brown, provincial treasurer of Manitoba, who, at the last moment, threatened to revoke the license of any exhibitor who opened his house on Sunday, December 16, for the benfit of the public at large, it was reported from Canada last week.

The theatres had advertised extensively in the newspapers the fact that they would be open on Sunday, the entire proceeds—not from admissions, but from contributions—going to the Halifax Relief Fund. No admission whatever was to have been charged. The managers had received permission to open on Sunday from the Premier of Manitoba, from the Lieutenant-Governor, from the Mayor of Winnipeg and from the Chief of Police. Mr. Brown, whose department has indirect supervision over the theatres of the Province, at the last moment, put his official foot down on the proceeding. He left word that the theatres were not to open, under pain of his displeasure, and then left the city.

Saturday night a party of men, among whom were many returned soldiers, decided to pay a visit to Mr. Brown's residence, and, calling him to the door, demand an explanation of his action. This decision, however, was made before it was learned that the provincial treasurer was out of the city.

Many thousands of intending picture theatregoers were downtown during the afternoon and evening, as on account of this last-minute decision, it had not even been advertised in the papers that the theatres would not be open. In front of each "movie" house was tacked a sign explaining why darkness reigned within.

Reid Has Had Long Experience Editing Films

Hal Reid, who has been engaged by the W. H. Productions to write titles for all their releases of William Hart features and other productions, has had fourteen years experience in the picture industry. His work has been confined to the editorial and scenario end of the business. He has been with Selig Polyscope Company as scenario writer, with Vitagraph as director, scenario writer and sub-titler and assistant editor of its scenario department. He then went with Reliance as director and writer, and later to the Universal, where he was editor and chief of the scenario department.

Mr. Reid wrote the sub-titles and re-edited the first Hart release of the W. H. Productions, "The Two-Gun Man," in "The Bargain" and is now working on other Hart features.

Breezy Items from Canada

The leading motion picture houses in Montreal have felt a decided slump during the past week, according to reports. Loew's new theatre has probably felt it most.

Manager Caldwell, of the Lyceum theatre, Galt, Ont., was a recent visitor to Toronto, where his pleasant smile swept all before it.

Mollie King and Rita Jolivet appeared personally at Loew's new Montreal theatre when that house opened November 19. The feature was "The Secret of the Storm Country," with Norma Talmadge.

W. A. Sault, formerly Toronto manager of General Film Company, has been appointed assistant manager of the Toronto branch of Mutual. James Travis is manager.

In connection with the increased cost of operating theatres in Canada, Pete Griffin, of the Griffin Amusement Company, controlling a circuit of theatres in Ontario, has raised the prices to all the houses to 25 cents flat.

Charlie Stevens, general manager of Superfeatures, Ltd., of Toronto, has gone for a visit to the Western cities, Winnipeg and Calgary.

Exhibitors of Victoria, B. C., announced last week that the prices of all theatres in that city have been reduced, and now range from twenty cents downward. Increased prices did not prove successful.

A. Kay, cameraman of Pathescope, of Canada, Ltd., of Toronto, was killed recently when a taxi in which he was riding was struck by a train.

It is predicted two new censors will be appointed to the Censor Bureau of Winnipeg, one to take the place of the late William Horn, and the other to replace H. Willoughby, who is making a change.

It is said Canadian exchanges around Winnipeg have been complaining of opinions handed down by the Board of Appeals of Censorship.

The new Allan theatre of Toronto permitted Victory Bond salesmen to use the foyer in which to sell bonds recently. The management offered all patrons subscribing a chance to draw for a double ticket of admission to the house, good for three months.

Opinion seems to be divided over the amusement tax fight of the Exhibitors' Association of British Columbia. Anyway, the campaign is said to be creating much attention.

J. Clarke Belmont, special Western representative of the Canadian Universal Film Company, recently paid a visit to the exhibitors of Vancouver Island. Mr. Belmont reports business conditions rather quiet at present.

J. K. Fraser, of Hedley, B. C., who closed his theatre on the inception of the Amusement Tax in British Columbia, has reopened.

Roy O'Connor, formerly manager of the Iola theatre, Toronto, has been appointed salesman for the Specialty Film Import Company.

Specialty Import Company announce that they have pictures of the recent Halifax disaster for Pathe News, and will release same in Toronto within a few days.

Up to the present time no reports have been received as to whether or not any theatres were destroyed in the Halifax disaster. More than likely the amusement theatres will be practically empty until things get straightened up.

The Allies theatre, located at 1240 Ontario street, East Montreal, opened recently under the management of Mr. Bastein. This formerly operated under the name of Liberty theatre.

Mrs. W. F. Osborne, wife of Prof. Osborne, of Manitoba University, has been appointed to the Provincial Board of Motion Picture Censors, according to an announcement by Hon. Edward Brown.

Exhibitors' Association Fights Amusement Tax

The Moving Picture Exhibitors' Association of British Columbia is living up to its statement that it was going to fight the new amusement tax to a finish.

Exhibitors throughout the Province exhibited slides giving their side of the question. However, some of these slides were not very tactfully worded, some going so far as to state that Mr. Brewster, the Premier, levied the tax so that he could increase his own salary.

Naturally the Provincial Government took offence at this statement and the Attorney-General, Mr. Farris, immediately instructed the Censor Board to notify every picture theatre in the province that unless the screening of slides discussing the amusement tax was discontinued their licenses would be canceled. The act governing theatres in British Columbia calls for the censoring of all slides before being exhibited. However, this law has not been complied with and has never been enforced.

The exhibitors have been forced to discontinue the use of slides but have continued their campaign with twenty-four-sheet posters placed in conspicuous positions all over the towns. These posters have such headings as "The Iron Hand in B. C.," and have reference to "The Mailed Fist," etc. They also give a copy of a letter received from the censor regarding the discontinuance of screening slides on the amusement tax.

Winnipeg Theatre Burns to Ground

With the thermometer 28 degrees below zero, the Osborne Motion Picture theatre, River avenue and Osborne street, Winnipeg, was burned at 3 o'clock on the morning of December 12. This house was one of the prettiest and most comfortable neighborhood theatres in Winnipeg, and catered to the fashionable Fort Rouge family trade. The building was owned by M. W. Williamson, who also owns the National, one of the biggest downtown theatres. Mr. Williamson places the blame for the conflagration on the huge furnace, which was situated in the front part of the building.

Superfeatures Represents Griffith in Canada

Superfeatures Limited announce that they will handle all the Griffith pictures for Canada, latest releases being "Civilization," "Lone Wolf," "Vera the Medium," "Salambo." Mr. Stevens is visiting the Maritime Provinces to open up offices in that territory and before long this new distributing company in Canada will have offices in the six most important centres.

In and Out of West Coast Studios

By J. C. Jessen

F. McGREW WILLIS, recently added to the Universal City scenario staff, has been assigned to writing stories suitable for Mae Murray, and work has now been progressing very satisfactorily under the direction of Robert Leonard on Willis' first script, titled "The Eleventh Commandment." Ashton Dearholt is playing juvenile lead in this and Lewis J. Cody, Joe Girard, Clarissa Selwyn and Harry Carter are others of the cast who have the important roles. This will be Lou Cody's second appearance in Bluebird subjects, he having been engaged this week for this part, and probably may be retained by this company. Cody has just completed an engagement with the Diando Company at Glendale, where he played leading-man role in "Any Home," the most recently filmed Baby Marie Osborne subject.

Fox Plans New Drive

Reports current this week are to the effect the Fox studio will become a bee-hive of activity about the first of the coming year. William Farnum is to return to the Western studio at that time, and, according to rumors, Theda Bara will probably return a few weeks later. In addition to these, standard companies it is probable that additional facilities at the Western plant will make possible the addition of other producing units at the season of the year when it is inconvenient to produce at the Eastern studios.

One company is working this week on the dramatic stages of the Fox studios. It is that under the direction of Bertram Bracken, who is filming a dramatic story with a South American atmosphere, in which Gladys Brockwell plays a dual role. The story is by E. Lloyd Sheldon, and the principals are Colin Chase, Bertram Grassby, Joseph Singleton and Rosetti Marstini.

Another Fox company is working at Truckee, Cal., making the exteriors for an Alaskan gold-rush photoplay. Jewel Carmen is the star of this subject and L. C. Shumway, G. Raymond Nye and others, including several of the Fox children, Francis Carpenter, Gertrude Messinger and others take the leading part. The play is being directed by C. M. Franklin, who up until this time has given all his attention to making child pictures. The company will be absent from the studio about ten days.

The first Western subject made by Fox, which stars Tom Mix, has been completed, and Mix, Director LeSaint and the scenario department are now working on a new subject. The first subject has the working title of "Cupid's Round-Up," and is from an original story by George Scarborough.

Universal Adds Directors

The Bluebird and Butterfly studios at Universal City have taken on additional activities by increasing the number of producing units. Two directors were added to the staff this week. One is Wilfred Lucas, who recently arrived from the East after a number of important engagements there, and the other addition is Douglas Gerrard, formerly of the producing forces of this studio.

Mr. Lucas has been assigned to direct Monroe Salisbury and Ruth Clifford in a series of Western subjects, succeeding Rupert Julián, who with Elsie Jane Wilson will co-direct other Bluebird photoplays. Mr. Lucas is one of the oldest players and directors of the screen stage, having deserted the legitimate stage, where he had a long experience in high-class productions, both as actor and producer, for the screen in the early Biograph days. Since that time he was the first feature director for Universal when a three-reel subject was considered a top-notcher. Later, he produced the first Universal serial, "The Trey o' Hearts," and, following this, had a long engagement at the Fine Arts studios, where he was starred in a number of productions. The first photoplay to be filmed by Lucas, with Salisbury and Miss Clifford, is "Heart of the Desert." This is spoken of as a decidedly Western drama.

Constance Talmadge, Select Star, Received a Big Welcome at Los Angeles

Douglas Gerrard is to direct Ella Hall and Emory Johnson. The first subject will be put in production during the coming week, the script now being in the process of preparation by the scenario department, under the direction of Col. Jasper Brady. The title has not been selected for this photoplay, nor have the other players been named.

Hart Looks for Snow

William S. Hart and company spent the past week watching for snow to fall on Mt. Wilson, a distance of forty miles from Los Angeles, and on Saturday were favored with a bountiful supply of the beautiful, and left the summer climate for a few days of zero weather. The snow stuff is needed for the Northwestern lumber-camp story, which is now being filmed, and the players will spend several days at the top of this high California peak. This Artcraft, as yet unnamed, affords Hart the second vehicle without a heroine. Gertrude Claire, character actress, taking the role of an Englishwoman, who comes to the lumber camp in search of her son, is the nearest approach to such a role, for it is by her sweet gentleness that the badman of the camp is caused to alter his character. This is another J. G. Hawks' story, who has written a number for the Western badman.

The first C. Gardner Sullivan story for Ince-Paramount release, now in the making under R. William Neill, with Dorothy Dalton in the star role, has been named "Love Me." This original photoplay is centered about the action of a young Western girl who is confronted with the problem of inducing the relatives of her husband to see that she is worthy of their love and admiration. The cast includes such well-known players as Melbourne McDowell, Dorcus Matthews, William Conklin, Jack Holt and Robert McKim.

Enid Bennett's first Ince-Paramount picture has been completed so far as filming of scenes is concerned, the last having been taken by Director Jerry Storm when the company spent several days at Arrowhead early this week. The film is now in the hands of the film editors, who are under the direction of LeRoy Stone. The photoplay is titled "The Keys of the Righteous," and the cast includes George Nichols, Joe Swickard, Earl Rodney and Lydia Knott.

Triangle Buys Plays

Screen rights for a number of very successful speaking stage plays have been secured by the Triangle Film Corporation, and, to complete negotiations, Vice-President and General Manager H. O. Davis recently departed for New York city, after spending less than two weeks at the producing plant. The plays, it is stated, are all extremely well known and will be made into multiple-reel subjects. The first to be filmed will be "The Servant in the House," by Charles Rand Kennedy. Mr. Davis expects to return West within three or four weeks and will then be prepared to make a statement concerning the purchase of these plays and the screen rights, which are now held by a syndicate of gigantic proportions.

That a film-producing plant can be successfully conducted along the lines of a circus was very emphatically shown this week when the Triangle Keystone producing staff packed away their powder-puffs and wigs, together with the diving nymphs' beach costumes, folded their reflectors and tripods and crept from Hollywood to Culver City without a bit of loss of time. Production was commenced on Monday morning just where the several producing units had ceased on Saturday night; i. e., work was resumed at Culver City on the same stories they had been working on at their former studio. The work of moving required scores of truckloads of scenery and props to be transported from the old Fine Arts studio to Culver City, as well as the removal of all costumes and photographic and laboratory apparatus. All companies continued with their production until the usual hour on Saturday, and moving was accomplished by the transportation staff of the two studios on Sunday. When Monday morning came the technical staff of the Triangle plant had sets ready for the seven comedy companies to resume work.

Sheldon Lewis

Storey Subject Edited

Ten days were taken by Director Tod Browning and B. A. Rolfe, who is in charge of the production at the Western Metro studios, for the editing of the Western-made subject, "The Legion of Death," which stars Edith Storey, and Mr. Rolfe departed with the negative and first print for New York, where a number of atmospheres were added. Mr. Rolfe spent but a few days in the East, and expected to be back in Los Angeles on Christmas morning. Mr. Rolfe also took with him the first Viola Dana Western-made subject, "The Winding Trail."

The filming of the second Edith Storey production, under the direction of Tod Browning, has been progressing very satisfactorily, the company having been engaged the past week in the filming of exterior scenes. Miss Storey performed several hazardous acts for this photoplay, which will be titled "Revenge," and was adapted by William Parker and H. P. Keeler from the Edward Moffitt story, "Hearts Steadfast." The script calls for the burning of a stage-coach, which frightens the horses and causes a runaway on a dangerous mountain road. Miss Storey escapes from the coach just as it leaves the roadway and plunges over a cliff, and crashes to the bottom, a thousand feet below.

At the studio the second Metro company is working on the interiors for "The House of Hearts," an adaptation from the Myrtle Reed novel, "A Weaver of Dreams," by William Parker. The cast for this subject has all been selected and, besides Viola Dana, includes Clifford Bruce, Russell Simpson, Vera Lewis and others. Bruce will be remembered as leading man in "Blue Jeans" and also played in "The Winding Trail," which was recently filmed.

American Takes Rest

But one company was working last week at the American studio, that under the direction of Lloyd Ingraham, who has Margarita Fischer as star in the production of "High Heels."

The Mary Miles Minter company has just filmed "Mlle. Tiptoe," from the adapted story by Elizabeth Mahoney, and will shortly take up the filming of a new photoplay.

The William Russell company, which is directed by Edward Sloman, is not working, owing to the star, Russell, having a black eye, which makes it impossible for him to appear in scenes. The accident to Russell was not caused by flying kindling-wood or anything like that. He was making a dash with an automobile on a mountain grade, and when he leaped from the car to prevent going over a cliff with it, he struck his eye on a part projecting from the windshield. Harvey Clark, who is taking the role of an English butler in the production now in the making, "Detective Dan Cupid," was in the car with Russell at the time, but both escaped injury.

The Lloyd Ingraham subject, "High Heels," will introduce two new American players. One is Golda Madden, who was formerly with the American, and the other is Dave Howard, who apears in the leading role opposite Miss Fischer. Howard has appeared in but few subjects, and was boosted to the leading-man part by Director Lloyd Ingraham, who felt positive that the young man would make good. That he did, is shown by the fact that he has been cast for a juvenile lead in two subjects.

New Plays Completed

Plays completed at the Triangle studios

Bill Russell Two-Steps with a Rattling Good Skeleton are "The Three God Sons of Janet Gontreau," filmed by Director Raymond Wells in nine days. E. Mason Hopper has completed the making of "Mr. Butterfly."

Other subjects now in production for the Triangle-Kay-Bee brand are "The Hopper," adapted from the Meredith Nicholson story, which is being directed by T. N. Heffron, with William V. Mong in the name role. Cliff Smith is at work on "Keith of the Border," with Roy Stewart as star. In this subject Josie Sedgwick, who has been in pictures for more than two years, plays her first dual role, that of a Southern girl and her sister who is a musical-comedy star.

Wallace MacDonald, leading man, arrived in Los Angeles this week from the East to accept an engagement with the playing forces of the Triangle at Culver City. Another new member of the Triangle stock is Jean Hersholt, who for a number of months played with the Butterfly and Bluebird companies at Universal City. Hersholt will first play in "Little Red Decides," now being filmed by Jack Conway.

Complete and Convenient Are the Sanford Laboratories at Culver City, Cal.

arrived in Los Angeles Friday, December 14, and was given a very hearty welcome by scores of film people who were at the station. Manager B. E. Loper of the Select Pictures Exchange of Los Angeles was in charge of the event given in honor of Miss Talmadge's coming, and, upon his invitation, managers of all the exchanges and many of the prominent Los Angeles exhibitors paraded through the principal streets in gaily decorated automobiles, each one of which bore the banner "Welcome Constance Talmadge."

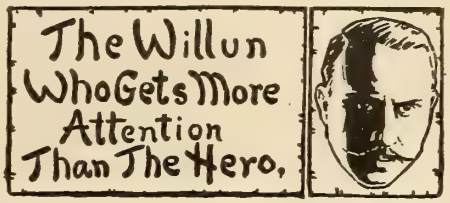
The principals of the cast to support Mary Pickford in her next Artcraft picture, now being filmed by Director Marshall Neilan, was announced this week. Kate Price, who appeared in scores of Vitagraph pictures, is to take one of the important character roles, that of an Irish woman of the tenement district. William Scott will be the roughneck lover, and others named are Norman Kerry and Herbert Standing. Miss Pickford plays the role of a fresh kid of the tenement district.

Anna Little, who played in "Nan of Music Mountain," taking the name role, and later in "Rimrock Jones" as leading woman for Wallace Reid, has been sent East by the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation to play opposite Reid in the picture that he makes at the Eastern studio.

New Bluebird Started

Director Stuart Paton, with Carmel Myers and Kenneth Harlan as leads, has taken up the filming of the Bluebird subject, "Bona," which is an original photoplay by Harvey Gates, written especially for these co-stars. The supporting cast for these players has not been named.

Louise Lovely is now making the finishing scenes for the Bluebird, "The Quest of Joan," which is being filmed by Director Edgar Jones. This is Doris Schroeder's adaptation from the James Oliver Curwood story, and playing in support of Miss Lovely are Philo McCollough, Gertrude Astor, H. A. Barrows, William Chester and Mark Fenton.



Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran have progressed very successfully with the making of one-reel comedies. In the less than two weeks that they have been back from New York two subjects have been completed.

Vivian Martin, in Paramount Pictures

The second was "Hooverizing the Home." C. B. Hoadley, formerly head of the Universal comedy scenario department, has been engaged to write for Lyons and Moran, and the subject just finished is his first contribution. Mr. Hoadley will devote all his time to writing for these two juvenile comedians. Gladys Tennyson has been selected as leading woman for the company.

"The Mystery Ship" serial company, which has Ben Wilson and Neva Gerber as leads, are now working on the thirteenth episode under the direction of Harry Harvey, and "The Bull's Eye" company are now busy with the eighth release. Eddie Polo and Vivian Reed are the principals of this. Both serials are being written by W. B. Pearson.

Bennett Scenes Filmed

Some of the bigger scenes for the Ince production starring Enid Bennett, which has a Lake Superior lumber country atmosphere, were filmed last week. One setting shows the interior of a court room, the morning following raids by the officers, and for these scenes a very motly array of types were secured by Casting Director Tom Walsh. In make-up they represented every kind of human being on the downward slide, and it was into this array that Enid Bennett was forced to go and search for her supposed father. Supporting Miss Bennett in this story are Earl Rodney, Melbourne McDowell, Joe Swickard, George Nichols and Lydia Knott. The direction is in charge of Jerry Storm.

Moose and deer heads, together with all kinds of hides rented by Thomas H. Ince for use in the interior setting of the California lumber district hotel needed for the coming Hart production, are valued at ten thousand dollars by the owners. They represent all the furs that may be rented in California cities, and is perhaps the greatest collection ever seen in one picture.

Hollywood Hookum

Jan. 5, 1918 NEWS MORE NEWS

CLOSE-UPS

BY CON TRIB

Some P. A. has deposited with HOOKUM a quantity of press matter under the heading of "Stop! Look! and Listen!" These are days of militarism, and we took the first command.

Fred Church, the Long Beach commuter, never comes to L. A. but what it is the wrong day for shopping in these -less days. Fred permits his appetite to get away with him.

Laguna Beach has a new sensation. The devil wearing a bathrobe was seen fishing from a pier. The excitement subsided when his Satanic Majesty proved to be none other than Al Garcia of Mena Films. Mem.

Sophie Barnard is Hooverizing. She gave two swell trophies to the winners in a race at her recent plunge party in the Long Beach bath house; one of the aforesaid trophies was a tin cup, t'other was a corn-cob pipe. Mr. Hoover, meet Sophie Barnard. M. L.

When H. O. Stechhan, of Balboa, told Mrs. Al Woods that he had in his photoplay collection a script based on the motion picture industry which he had called "The Bull-Slinger," she remarked: "Well, you sure have the winning title, for the motion picture game is all bull, bull, BULL."

Mal St. Clair, who used to draw cartoons, now draws crowds where his pictures are showing. Adv. Bag.

Willard Mack, hearing of the Fairbanks-Spike Robinson squab farm, night-lettered Doug. as follows: "Sorry to hear you and Spike are going to raise squabs. It is a dangerous and expensive pastime and besides you are not old enough. Squabs flourish better when raised by a man of fifty. They require great care and very lovely lofts. Squabs should have two limousines and a touring car. They will not learn to walk and must be fed any hour of the day or night. However, they are sometimes very intelligent and learn to say papa and daddy without great trouble. They should be taught this by waving money at them. If this fails, try diamonds. Be very careful of Spanish squabs. They acquitted one of murder here last week, and with all this, if you have a nice one, hand raised, and my wife will let me keep it, send it on."

A little murky.

Connie Talmadge is back.

Welcome to our town, Wilfred Lucas.

E. Mason Hopper is studying Japanese.

Viola Dana is the owner of a bucking bronco.

Bill Hart is gunnting this week for snow stuff.

Wanda Petit caled on ye ed. this week with a beautiful picture.

Commodore Blackton has found so many old friends that he can't get homesick.

Startling News: G. Gardner Sullivan is going to write screen plays for Tom Ince.

Reggie Morris succeeded in making a roller skating comedy without a single death.

William Duncan forgot "The Vengeance of a Woman" long enough Tuesday night to occupy a ring side seat.

And now we again hear of that transcontinental automobile tour of Anita King. Will the P. A.'s never forget.

"Slim" St. Clair is all wrought up because comedians don't have special favors at the three-cornered lot.

Jack Livingston has heard of his double, and is not pleased a bit because the other fellow is not much of an actor.

Eddie and Lee did ten minutes in one at the Superba, and swear there is nothing like capering before the camera.

Wally Worsley was seen in "Alimony" on our Broadway this week, and we must say as an actor he's a great director.

E. H. Horkheimer is reported to have gone to New York "clad in a light suit of gray tweeds." How about the woolens?

Fatty Arbuckle was seen in Mad Dog Gulch this week, and the place was so small it was found necessary to cut the extra list.

George du Bois Proctor, the best known man in the business, postcards from the subdued white way that he is meetin' home folks.

Bert Glassmire made the Keystone jump from Hollywood to Culver City without so much as disturbing a single hair on his noble brow.

G. Harold Percival, who dresses up everything for Ince productions, is practicing what he preaches—you should see his beard.

Herman Raymaker saved his life by not shooting one water scene—the Keystone gang was ready to pounce upon him if he had said "just one more."

R. William Neill's Ince troop threatens strike or riot because he insists on working seven days and eight nights a week—regular Simon Legree.

Every one is anticipating Frank Lloyd will begin shooting a new picture next week. He was seen with a washboard frown and his hair fussed up—business of thinking.

Cliff Smith directed a genuine bank robbery chase, and fell down in it because a traction car blocked his way. The trouble was he didn't have Roy Stewart in the leading role.

Tod Browning, the dir., had his big Hudson stolen, and another old rattle trap left in its place. A half hour later the thieves came back and stole the rattle trap. Tod sniffs the air now every morning that the wind blows from the south to see if they really did take the machine to Mexico.

Screen Examinations

"Mother"

(McClure-General Enterprises—Six Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

RECENT sales on "Mother" would point to the fact that it is now within the reach of a majority of exhibitors and they will do well to avail themselves of the opportunity for booking it because it is indeed a charming picture. In no way pretentious, the opposite from sensational, without the accoutrements of the average picture, it moves one with its sweet appeal, stirs with its depth and penetrates deep under the skin because of its pathos and its glorification of a mother and a mother's love and sacrifices. It is always quietly entertaining, often quietly pathetic and once in a while quietly humorous, but never in the least respect boresome.

"Mother" was adapted and directed by George Loane Tucker from Eden Phillpitt's novel, "The Mother of the Man," and was produced in England among the rocky hills of Dartmoor, the story's original location. Those familiar with pictures past and present can readily recall G. L. T.'s other works. They have all been good. In the language of the film mart he has never turned out a flivver or a bloomer or anything approaching flivvers or bloomers. "Mother" is not his latest effort and one cannot well name his best. But rest contented that it is worthy as Tucker's others have been. It is a healthy, moral, matchlessly staged story, done with that fine regard for realism, for the human note, that is one of the director's most priceless possessions.

The English setting is ideal for such a story. Mr. Tucker has utilized the moors and the crags of this quaint quarter of England to advantage to bringing out the high lights of the story. And his types were excellently selected. Even the smaller parts are typical. The actor who plays Ives is excellent. The mercenary Jill is well interpreted. The two old codgers who keep the "pub" never seem to be acting. In fact, no one does—in that lies much of the picture's charm.

Elizabeth Risdon, featured in the title part, is the only player named. A young actress as many will remember from her work in "The Manx-Man," Miss Risdon has applied a remarkable makeup and her acting as the fifty year old mother never betrays her real age.

THE STORY

Avisa Pomeroy (Elizabeth Risdon) is the mother of Ives, a hot-headed young fellow, and Lizzie, an equally tempestuous girl. When Jill discards Ives in favor of Sammy, a farmer with a small fortune in view, providing his uncle dies, the former grows reckless. Urged by Old "Moleskin" he joins him in a poaching escapade. The owner of the birds gets on his track. Ives seeks refuge at home and would have succeeded in throwing the constabulary off his track had not his mother interfered and for his own sake turned him over to the law. Embittered against her for this Ives serves his term, but he comes back home and is welcomed by his mother, who has watched and waited for him through many a long night. Weakened by the passing years, the kindly old lady brings Ruth, a girl who has always loved Ives, into the home after Lizzie has married. She teaches her to look after Ives in the way she has. And soon after she dies, leaving Ives with the realization that each of her acts was for his own good—none for his harm, as he had once believed.

"The Struggle Everlasting"

(Harry Rapf—Seven Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

"THE STRUGGLE EVERLASTING" aims to convey via the morality route the conflict that is for ever taking place between the passions of the body, the reasonings of the mind, and the instinct of the soul, within each individual human being. It is derived from a play by Edwin Milton Royle and presents Florence Reed in the role of Body. Her performance adequately meets all requirements of the part. Body is drawn as the sensuous, passionate and pleasure-loving woman, and Miss Reed presents this figure alluringly, acting with a talented restraint that lends it a forceful significance.

Mr. Royle's play as presented on the screen contains a number of distinct episodes. Body has her fling with various characters, her actions in each affair being influenced by Mind and Soul. Naturally the interest will be divided into as many distinct episodes. James Kirkwood has given the picture a rich production, abounding in lavish settings and sprinkled with pretty exteriors. The photographic work is of the best.

Milton Sills and Irving Cummings appearing respectively as Mind and Soul give good performances. A large supporting cast appears. "The Struggle Everlasting" mixes its morality preachment with drama thoroughly—perhaps too thoroughly—for where one begins and the other ends is not always apparent. Its cast includes both symbolical and straight characters and the actions of the former savor of the material to a degree that is sometimes disconcerting.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Body (Florence Reed) appears in the shape of a barmaid in a college town, pursued by Mind (Milton Sills), a student, who, heedless of the precautions of his brother, Soul (Irving Cummings), neglects his studies because of the desire awakened in him by the woman. Through his last college year he is alternately swayed by Body and Soul and the latter is finally triumphant. Mind emerges from college a student, critic and essayist. Soul becomes a minister, Body, a woman of the world.

Body in turn seeks happiness with a Champion Pugilist (Wellington A. Playter), a Musician (Edwin N. Hoyt), an Actor (Albert Hall) and a Banker (E. J. Radcliffe) and each, when discarded for the new desires of the woman, sinks to a degraded existence. Mind, the critic, stands aside in a cynical attitude and watches the list of tragedies caused by Body, but it remains for Soul to awaken her to the sense of wrong she has done and the right she should have done. She enters his church and devotes herself to saving lost souls. Her passing is caused by a shot fired by Slimy Thing (George Cooper), who had intended to kill Frail Sister (Mildred Cheshire), a girl in his power.

"Taming Target Center"

(Paramount-Mack Sennett—Two Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

UPROARIOUSLY funny, and at the same time sensationally funny, are the assortment of events in "Taming Target Center," Mack Sennett's latest contribution to the Paramount program. As the title suggests it is a Western burlesque. Polly Moran appears in the role of the fearless sheriff who marches the entire population of Target Center to church in the last scene, whereas in the first it patronized the saloon and dance-hall in a body.

Practically every commonplace situation in the commonplace Western has been burlesqued and there are some thrills in its short space of two reels that have never appeared in melodrama. The fearless Polly rides her horse up the stairs and round the balcony of the bar, down the other side and in one room and out the other, herding the sinners in a huddled group, then lassooing them all at once and dragging them through the dust to jail. She jumps her horse from one precipice to another, rescues a baby from drowning and in divers ways endangers life and limb.

It is all thrillingly funny and there is plenty of less pretentious comedy. The subtitles, for instance, every one of them, are responsible for much merriment so easily are they discernible as burlesqued imitations of seriously written inserts. And then there is Ben Turpin, with his impossible eyes, who is good for a score or more of laughs on his own account, and pretty Gonda Durand to hold down another important angle of the comedy. Immense Tom Kennedy also appears to good advantage.

"The Gown of Destiny"

(Triangle—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

ALMOST unusual and fully entertaining war picture is presented in "The Gown of Destiny," adapted from a story by Earl Derr Biggers, which originally ran in the Saturday Evening Post. Somewhat episodic in its original form, Lynn Reynolds, who directed from his own adaptation, has made a compact enough picture, has brought out Mr. Biggers' theme with subtlety and power, has produced in fact a picture that in its entirety will be heartily welcomed by the more inteligent type of audience. For the manner in which Andre Leriche, French costumer of such small physical proportions that he is unable to fight for his native land in the trenches, serves his country through another channel, has none of the hurrahs and thrills that deeds of the usual hero might attract. He serves France by designing a gown.

The gown makes radiantly beautiful two women. And the two women in turn awaken the spark of patriotism in two men to such an extent that they bend all their energies to assist the soldiers of France. It is rather a roundabout road for a patriot to travel, but it is unusual, too, and for this reason "The Gown of Destiny" should be welcome. The character of Andre Leriche has a certain appeal, the results of his design are never known to him and he believes himself useless. And yet the spectator is permitted to gaze on the good he has wrought with the consequence that his heart goes out to the ignorant little Andre.

Lynn Reynolds is usually referred to as a director whose forte is pretty pictures—scenic-dramas. In "The Gown of Destiny," however, he has branched out on a new line. There is a variety of drama in it, including some spectacular and most realistic battle stuff, all of which he has handled with that same degree of appreciation that has made his work along the other line stand out. And in the adaptation, where he has joined the separate plot threads into a whole that is unified to an extent sufficient to retain undivided interest, he has accomplished much.

Herrera Tejedde, as the costumer, and Alma Rubens, A. D. Sears, J. Barney Sherry, Lillian West, Kathaleen Emerson and Pietro Buzzi in other important parts, contribute much to the success of "The Gown of Destiny."

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Andre Leriche (Herrera Tejedde), designer of gowns, bemoans the fact that he has been refused by the French army. He conceives the idea of designing a gown that will make him famous and wealthy—his fame to add to the glory of the nation, his wealth to add to her treasury. His employer, Madama Felice (Bliss Chevalier), sells the gown to Mrs. Mortimer Reyton (Lillian West), a middle aged woman who is gradually losing the love of her husband (J. Barney Sherry). The gown so transforms her that Reyton's eyes are opened. In honor of their wedding anniversary he sends three ambulances to France. Mrs. Reyton then sends the gown to her cousin Natalie (Alma Reubens), a girl unadmired by men. The gown gains her both the admiration and love of Neil Cunningham (Allan Sears), an Englishman who returns to his country to enlist. In France he proves a hero and leading an attack on a German stronghold, saves Andre's father (Pietro Buzzi), mayor of the town, from death. And this is how Andre served France, although he never knows it.

Frederick Vroom and Dorothy Marshall complete the cast.

"Diamonds and Pearls"

(World Film—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

WITHOUT characters possessing sympathy and appeal, lacking full-fledged heroine or hero, "Diamonds and Pearls," Kitty Gordon's latest World feature plays with an exceedingly light touch on the average emotions of the average spectator. Possibly those who name Miss Gordon among their favorites of the screen will revel in the stunning figure she makes of the rather negative part of Violetta D'Arcy, the woman who casts love in the discard to marry for money, but even they will be pardoned if they seem to demand something more basically dramatic, more precise and better constructed than "Diamonds and Pearls."

The story sets out along a well-trodden path, and if it had adhered to the course suggested by this beginning, more entertaining, though conventional, results would have been obtained. The first love of Violetta, sacrificed on the altar of her unwise desire for money, is dropped from the action until the striven-for denouement and then his appearance is more or less irrelevant. In fact, the entire climax, including the suicide of Harrington and the ultimate understanding between Violetta and her husband is forced to an extent that leaves one in a bewildered state of mind. Such an inadequate scenario has seldom if ever before borne the Brady-Made trade-mark.

Milton Sills, George MacQuarrie and Katherine Johnson head Miss Gordon's supporting cast. The direction was in charge of George Archainbaud and Philip Hatkin was at the camera.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Violetta D'Arcy (Kitty Gordon) refuses Jack Harrington (Curtis Cooksey), the man she really loves and marries Robert Van Ellstrom (Milton Sils), a millionaire. But her extravagances are even too much for him and her desire for money leads her to accept checks from Jack's father (George MacQuarrie), a socially ambitious man, willing to pay his way to enter the upper set. At an entertainment given by Violetta to which Jack comes, Harrington forces his attentions on his hostess at a moment when Robert overhears. Jack comes upon the scene only to receive the shot from his father's pistol that was meant for Robert. Believing he has killed his boy, Harrington takes his own life. Jack recovers. Violetta's eyes are opened to her own foolishness and Robert gracefully forgives her.

Henrietta Simpson, Edward Burns, Charles Duncan and Frances Miller complete the cast.

"Her Sister"

(Mutual-Empire—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Lisle M. Albright

THIS is a well-presented story, rather involved as to plot, featuring Olive Tell in a role well adapted to her abilities. As Eleanor Alderson, a high-minded, self-sacrificing girl, imbued with a feeling of parental responsibility for the care and conduct of her younger sister, Miss Tell shines with a grace and tempered emotional expression that is very becoming in this latest offering of the Empire All Star Corporation.

The story centers around the rather thoughtless actions of Eleanor's sister, Jane, and the noble way in which the older girl comes to her rescue and endeavors to divert the sharp tongues of the scandal-mongers and society buzzards by throwing her own reputation into the breach and pretending that she is really "the girl of the escapades."

The Isis scenes, in which the heroine plays the role of a seeress and Eastern mystic, are unusual and effective. David Powell as Ernest Bickley, profligate son of a plutocratic family, with love in his heart that had never been touched until he met Eleanor, plays opposite Miss Tell and is well worth seeing. The rest of the cast do yeoman's service and help to make the play the success that it is.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Eleanor Alderson and her younger sister, Jane, lose their positions as models when Eleanor prevents Jane from accepting the invitations of buyers. Eleanor secures a position as a "seeress" when the old Isis retires.

One of Jane's joy rides results in her being compromised with Hamilton, a married man, whose wife seeks evidence for divorce. Mrs. Herriard, an adventuress, sets her cap for Ernest Bickley, a wealthy young ne'er-do-well and attempts to break his love for Eleanor, whom he has met at the shrine of Isis.

In the meantime the story of Jone's escapade with Hamilton gets into the papers, accompanied by Eleanor's photograph, which a reporter gets by mistake. The older sister pretends that she is the corespondent in the case in order to save Jane's reputation, but Ernest, through clever manoeuvering discovers that Mrs. Herriard is at the bottom of the whole affair and that neither Jane nor Eleanor have done anything wrong. Ernest loves Eleanor better than ever after the scandal has been cleared up. Jane's name is cleared of stain and the story ends happily for all.

"Love Letters"

(Ince-Paramount—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

"LOVE LETTERS," from a story by Shannon Fife, presenting Dorothy Dalton in her second appearance on the Paramount program, is founded on a domestic triangle wherein the foolishly written love letters of a woman work tortures on her later life before a final and happy adjustment is reached. It is a type of story always popular and in this case should be doubly so, for the treatment accorded it by the director and production department is of an even excellence common only in pictures bearing the trade-mark of Thomas H. Ince.

The scenario prepared from Mr. Fife's story is always progressive, contains many scenes enacted over unbroken footage and reveals a dramatic situation in the plight of the wife that is tremendously strong. Miss Dalton gives a performance full of appeal. Her emotional work is of a fine caliber and her transformation from girlhood to womanhood is done with conviction. The support, which includes William Conklin as heavy and Thurston Hall as hero, is of a uniformly high order.

R. Cecil Smith has presented the picture in a most competent fashion. And he has been aided by a production department that evidently spared no expense to procure suitable settings and locations for the story, while the camera work discloses a number of unusual shots that are revelations of beautiful pictorial composition.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Eileen Rodney (Dorothy Dalton) is fascinated by the doctrines of free love and "higher culture" preached by Moreland (William Conklin), a man who preys upon the indiscretions of his various fashionable patrons. She writes him a number of letters that he saves, after his advances toward Eileen have completely disillusioned her. A year later finds her happily married to her guardian, John Harland (Thurston Hall), the district attorney. Moreland gets in his blackmail with the letters to back up his claims. One night while her husband is out, Eileen visits Moreland to claim them. He attacks her and seizing a candlestick, she fells him. She flees, believing she has killed him. The next morning he is found dead.

Harland conducts an investigation, realizing there must have been a woman in the case. Eileen makes another secret trip to Moreland's home to secure the letters. She narrowly avoids a meeting with her husband. Later when the investigation is at its height she can be the suspense no longer and confesses the whole story to her husband. He is horror-struck and is at first inclined to doubt her virtue. A confession from Moreland's gardener, however, clears her of responsibility of the crime. It develops he murdered his master because he had been responsible for the death of his daughter. And afterwards Harland is sane minded enough to accept his wife's word as the truth.

Dorcas Matthews, Hayward Mack and William Hoffman are the remaining members of the cast.

"Convict 993"

(Pathe Play—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

IN "Convict 993," Wallace Clifton, its author, has given an exposition of the crook melodrama at its best. The essentials of such a picture, action, keyed in rapid tempo, suspense, a touch of mystery and a surprise ending that quite rightfully deserves such an appellation have been expertly combined in the story with results that can be imagined of the best.

Nor has Irene Castle ever been awarded a vehicle of like power or one better suited to her particular talent. Her role calls largely for action, not much for acting, but in the few scenes where a portrayal of emotional intensity is required she rises to the situation more competently than ever before. Possibly this is due to the careful direction of William Parke, noticeable in more places than one throughout the entire five reels. He has handled all his players to unusual advantage and the general tone of the production quite equals if it does not surpass the high standard always maintained at the Astra studio.

Additional value is claimed by "Convict 993" through the presence of Warner Oland, the popular serial heavy, whose past performances and type well suit him to interpret the character of Mallory, leader of the crooks. Helene Chadwick, Harry Benham and others of ability and popularity carry their respective roles ably enough.

"Convict 993" without hesitation can be classed with the popular Pathe crook plays that have gone before, such as "The On the Square Girl," "The Angel Factory" and "Blind Man's Luck."

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Roslyn Ayre (Irene Castle), number 993 in the women's prison, breaks jail and makes a successful getaway. Later she is seen living in affluence, wooed by Travers (Harry Benham), wealthy society man. A prison mate, Neva Stokes (Helene Chadwick), on her release, encounters Roslyn and, being a member of a gang of crooks operated by Mallory (Warner Oland), blackmails her into joining in a job. It is Mallory's plan to rob a wealthy woman of her jewels at Roslyn's house party. Smitten by the girl he suggests that they double cross the gang and make off with the loot by themselves. Roslyn, obviously entering into the whole scheme, only because forced to do so, agrees. The jewels secured, Mallory and she attempt escape but are appraised by the remaining members of the band who claim their share. It is not until then that Roslyn reveals herself as a detective and turns the whole gang over to the police.

J. H. Gilmore, Paul Everton, Bert Starkey and Ethyle Cooke fill the remaining roles.

"The Devil Stone"

(Artcraft—Six Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

GERALDINE FARRAR forsakes the spectacle in "The Devil Stone" and appears in a modern drama in which superstition figures prominently. The story was written by Beatrice De Mille and Leighton Osmun and, like her previous pictures, was prepared for the screen by Jeanie Macpherson and produced under the direction of Cecil B. DeMille. While the vehicle is in some instances mechanical in the manner it has been specially molded to achieve certain situations and while the suspense intended by the murder and the subsequent investigation of the detective at times runs at rather a low ebb, there is much concerning "The Devil Stone" that interests.

From the angles of artistry of production and photography it is excellent, as indeed, are the great majority of the pictures made at the Lasky studio. The introduction of the theme of superstition throws something of a weird atmosphere over the story at times, which is of material assistance in bolstering the interest up to a point above the average. The investigations of the detective and the manner in which he solves the intricate mystery, the key to which, however, is always in the spectator's possession, uncover any number of interesting incidents.

The role awarded Miss Farrar contains little appeal in itself and her interpretation of it serves to give small warmth to it. Miss Farrar's forte is after all the spectacle and the more appealing role allotted her the better for both the actress and the audience. Tully Marshall is half comical, half dangerous as the old miser and Wallace Reid as the lover and Hobart Bosworth as the detective contribute performances well up to their usual standards.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Marcia Manot (Geraldine Farrar), a fisher maid of Brittany finds a huge emerald of priceless value. There is a legend attached to it that in the olden days it was stolen from its Christian keepers by unbelievers and that it will forever serve the devil until restored. Silas Martin (Tully Marshall) a crabbed old American, owner of the Brittany fisheries, arrives on a tour of inspection. When he sees Marcia's stone he conceives the idea of marrying her in order to procure it. Marcia, urged to accept by the natives, finally consents to the ceremony and afterwards leaves with Martin for the States.

But she shortly discovers the miserly ways of the old man and her life is miserable until she meets her husband's general manager, Sterling (Wallace Reid). The two are immediately attracted by each other. Martin plans to throw the two young people together as much as possible, that he may have grounds for a divorce, as he has procured the emerald and has no further use for Marcia. But Marcia discovers that he has stolen the jewel and demands to have it. He attacks her and she in defense strikes him on the head with a candlestick. He is found dead and although suspicion points to Sterling he is exonerated and the murder remains a mystery. Robert Judson (Hobart Bosworth), expert criminologist, is put on the case by Sterling after he has married Marcia. And through a series of startling discoveries he learns that Marcia is the guilty party. He allows her a certain time in which to return the jewel to the Brittany parish and there, its career of trouble-making ended, it rests. And Judson does not report the case to the police when she returns.

James Neill, Gustav von Seyffertitz, Ernest Joy, Mabel Van Buren, Lillian Leighton and Burwell Mamrick fill the remaining roles.

As Madame Du Barry, in the Picture by That Name, Theda Bara Is Said to Contribute a More Winning Personality Than in Any Picture She Has Yet Done for William Fox

Edith Day, with a Sunshine Smile and Pleasing Personality, Is the Star of "The Grain of Dust," a Crest Picture

"The Hidden Hand"
(Pathe—Sixth Episode)
Reviewed by Peter Milne

THE authors continue to introduce tricks of melodrama of the most startling nature in this episode of "The Hidden Hand," entitled "The Flower of Death." The Hidden Hand secretes a liquid poison, which gives off a deadly vapor in the blossoms of a night-blooming cereus. This is placed by Ramsey's desk. Doris, seeing the plant, asks the gardner to place it in her room that she may see the flowers open. At midnight they unfold, the poison runs out and Doris is soon unconscious from the fumes.

Revived by Dr. Scarley and Ramsey, the next adventure of the much-abused Doris is to be lured to a distant hut by Verda, where she is suspended over a box of quicklime by a rope. The rope is fastened to the door so that Ramsey, when he comes to her rescue, will loosen it, precipitating Doris into the lime. As Ramsey arrives the episode closes.

The cast continues its good work. Miss Kenyon is a delightful heroine and Mahlon Hamilton a good type for the hero. Sheldon Lewis, appearing as the Hidden Hand and again as Dr. Scarley, contributes two widely different characterizations. Particularly in the latter role, in which he appears without makeup, does he exhibit an ability which should gain him more parts of such a nature in the future.

"When Men Are Tempted"
(Vitagraph—Five Reels)
Reviewed by Joseph L. Kelley

MARY ANDERSON and Alfred Whitman are featured in this late Vitagraph feature, produced under the direction of William Wolbert. "When Men Are Tempted" is an adaptation from the story by Frederick Upham Adams. This work of Mr. Adams does not adapt itself to the screen with the same sincere motive or the same strength of purpose as some others which have been produced by Vitagraph from this author's works.

The author has made his principal character accomplish feats of business strategy, that are not in keeping with the natural turn of affairs. Throughout the run of the five reels, the plot material that is introduced is so forced that an audience accepts the accomplishments of the hero in a smiling same spirit.

In many of the scenes Mary Anderson is given the opportunity to appear as the care-free lass of the country and in these scenes she registers a good percentage. Alfred Whitman does well considering the nature of the character he interprets. Miss Anderson and Mr. Whitman have the only two important roles. R. Bradbury is prominently cast in the latter reels. Otto Lederer presents a character role with appreciation. S. E. Jennings convinces.

The early scenes in this production calls for typical rustic backgrounds and Director Wolbert has seen to it that none will be dis appointed in the realism of these scenes. When the action is transferred to the West, a thrill is put over to good purpose. A horse and rider are seen passing along the ridge of a deep incline. The earth suddenly gives way and horse and rider plunge to the valley beneath.

The photography is of the best. The sub-titles have been written with a good sense of humor, are snappy and to the point. "When Men Are Tempted" is not the best Vitagraph has done. It is an average feature.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

John Burt (Alfred Whitman) is in love with Jessie Garden (Mary Anderson). They live in a small country town. A rich clubman arrives to spend the summer sees Jessie and plans to win her. He forces his attentions upon her and Burt defends her. The clubman is accidently shot. Burt flees to the West, where his father sends him to locate a lost mine. He discovers it and is made rich. Burt meets a boyhood chum and sets him up in business. He fails and Burt sends him East to inquire concerning the clubman. He believes that he has killed him. The chum locates the clubman, but falls in love with Jessie and refrains from telling Burt. Burt comes East, meets the clubman, manipulates the stock market, ruins him, and he and Jessie are united.

"Brown of Harvard"
(Essanay-Perfection Pictures Special—Six Reels)
Reviewed by Peter Milne

RIDA JOHNSON YOUNG'S and Gilbert Coleman's play, "Brown of Harvard," as arranged for the screen and directed by Harry Beaumont makes a capital picture. There is plenty of romance, a goodly share of suspense caused by the sacrifices of the hero in behalf of the weakling, considerable comedy and a corking good eight-oared race that closes the six reels in a veritable blaze of thrills. Director Beaumont has succeeded in enveloping each one of his scenes in a realistic college atmosphere—mayhaps not the kind that will register as accurate with the citizens of Cambridge, Mass. and immediate vicinity—but convincing enough to the patron in more remote centers.

The Young-Coleman play sponsors a rich student at the university. Tom Brown is considered a snob by a student who is working his way through college. His antagonism toward Brown and the weakness of Wilton, brother of his fiancee places him in many an undeserved predicament, but in the end Brown triumphs over all prejudices and wins back the love of the girl. The net-work of evidence which damns Brown in the eyes of his friends and which he refuses to sweep away because the truth will injure others, is tightly woven, is so taut in fact that the suspense of the situation is maintained 'til the very last.

Tom Moore's interpretation of the title character is one of the best pieces of acting that this popular actor has done. He is at all times in the atmosphere of the part, sensing its requirements and possibilities to a degree that makes for even excellence. Hazel Daly is a good heroine. Kempton Greene as Wilton Ames presents the weakling in most convincing fashion. Walter McGrail as the student with a grudge against Brown, Walter Hiers, fat and comical, and Robert Ellis and Francis Joyner in other prominent parts, do sterling work.

(Continued on page 133)

"Wharton Serial to Be Sensation"

Theodore Wharton, of Wharton Bros., Gives Interesting Interview on Flynn Serial, "The Eagle's Eye"

Theodore Wharton, commenting upon the William J. Flynn serial, "The Eagle's Eye," said:

"'The Eagle's Eye,' founded on a story by William J. Flynn, Chief of the United States Secret Service, will prove the great screen sensation of the year. It certainly will go before the public with a tremendous advance interest, for nothing in connection with the world-war has attracted more attention than the alien spy system.

"The sensational features will be founded on fact and will duplicate many actual experiences of Secret Service operatives. In many of the situations famous Imperial German agents will be shown doing the very reprehensible acts they were detected doing by secret agents of this Government.

"King Baggot and Marguerite Snow will play the leading roles of Harrison Grant and Dixie Mason. Bertram Marburg will play Count von Bernstorff; Paul Everton, Captain Franz von Papen; John Wade, Captain Karl Boy-Ed; Frederick Jones, Dr. Heinrich Albert, and Florence Shaw, Madam Augusta Stephen. These players were selected not only for their ability to play these roles but also because of marked similarity in personality.

"If any of the agents of the Imperial German Government ever see 'The Eagle's Eye,' they will witness impersonations of themselves that will forcibly convince them that the United States Secret Service is not an organization of amateurs, and while not trained in arson, bomb-planting and murder, has a habit of getting at the truth.

"The purpose behind this series of pictures is to present to the people, in practical and convincing form, the fullest possible information in reference to the aims and methods of this secret invading army and to create in the public mind a general vigilance and desire to aid the Government in stamping out this menace. The events of the war have shown the value of the motion picture as a vahicle for the moulding of public opinion. In many respects, it is more powerful than the press. For this reason the screen has been selected as an effective weapon to combat the Imperial German Government's system of military, naval and industrial espionage in the United States.

"I believe, by showing what these secret agents have actually done in the past, pictured in scenes and situations so realistic that the spectator will seem to be an actual participant in the work of Government officials in exposing plots and preventing great crimes, an insight into the Kaiser's spy system will be given and a public vigilance created that will result in great help and benefit to the Government.

"These pictures will also serve to show the tremendous visible and secret force against which the Government is contending and how important it is that every individual American who is not a soldier in the field or a sailor at sea should be a soldier in an active citizen army at home, ever watchful to aid the Government authorities in stamping out the spy menace.

"In 'The Eagle's Eye,' every exhibitor will not only present an attraction that will pack his theatre, but he will send from his house hundreds of people awakened to the fact that they may greatly serve their country by knowing their neighbors."

When Is a Comedy—Comical?

Arthur M. Werner, of Pyramid Comedies, Answers the Above Question in the Following Interview

"COMEDY is comedy—if comical. Comedy is depressing if far fetched and strained.

"A comedian with a look of pain on his face is one of the saddest of spectacles, and an actor not adaptable to comedy work endeavoring to simulate a comic expression is even worse.

"When I decided to enter the comedy producing field and we were casting about for a subject of sufficient versatility and with a humorous personality—naturally we sought for a type suitable to fit into what the people as a whole and the exhibitor in particular—seemed to demand. Ray Hughes's natural physical contour seems to spell comedy.

"Under the most irritable circumstances we would meet our prospective comedian and under all circumstances we found him sufficiently enjoyable of personality to maintain a consistent pitch. And he never tried to tell us funny stories.

"Know then that before we invested the very substantial sum we decided to spend before announcing our product, we had learned to know our most important human material, the central figure, the comedian.

"We have four pictures complete and it is due to the fact that we made one reel of "In and Out," a few hundred feet of "Love and Lunch," about five hundred feet of "Beach Birds" and a full reel of "Beauties and Bombs" before we completed any one of the four and in the screening we found Hughes versatile—satisfying and funny.

"We studied him closely to see just how much he was forced to repeat certain attractive movements to get a laugh, and to gauge his sphere of activities in the various funny little things essential to a successful slap-stick picture. The fact that we immediately completed the four attests his versatility.

"Further proof of his ability to amuse is demonstrated by the fact that we have started production on our other pictures and that the buyers we have negotiated with are entirely pleased.

High Standard Set in the "Mickey" Advertising

"The psychology of effective advertising has never been brought home more clearly in the trade papers than by the insert on Mabel Normand in 'Mickey' in last week's trade papers," said an official of the company. "This insert was given a great deal of forethought because it was desired by the Western Import Company to convey a complete message of what the production of 'Mickey' is, and according to the general consensus of opinion throughout the trade this insert has done the work. It will be noted that the first page conveyed the idea of sensationalism and the second page that of conservatism. The Western Import Company will endeavor at all times to set a high standard in advertising so as to convey the proper conception of their product."

Irene Castle Makes New Feature for Pathe

Irene Castle, the Pathe star, attributes her capacity for work to the exercising she has done in her dancing. She throws all of her energy into each production and always finishes without the slightest sign of fatigue, it is said.

Immediately upon the completion of the last scene of "Convict 99," the first of the "big star-big story" Pathe features, to be released during 1918, she commenced work without so much as a breathing spell under the direction of Fred. Wright, in "The Mysterious Client," a big mystery story, the release date of which has not yet been announced.

In "The Mysterious Client" Miss Castle will be supported by an all star cast that includes Milton Sills, Warner Oland and Caesare Gravina.

Hodkinson Books First Paralta Play

The first actual closing of a contract for the Paralta Plays took place in the offices of the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation last Monday when George N. Shorey booked the full Paralta series for his Queen Theatre in Knoxville, Tenn.

Under the Hodkinson plan of exhibitor protection, every contract rate as well as every contract, must be accepted by the head organization, and each contract bears a national serial number. Mr. Shorey is therefore Number 1 in the Hodkinson exhibitor family.

Hart Takes Browning's New Haven Place

W. A. Hart, of Boston, is now house manager of the Olympia theatre at New Haven, Conn. He replaces Harry Browning, the first theatre manager at New Haven to be taken into the National army under the draft. Mr. Browning is the only New Haven manager who, because of age, was subject to draft. He is at Camp Devens, Ayer, Mass.

Six Month Index to Releases

The accompanying index contains the feature releases from July 1 to December 31, 1917, inclusive. The figure and letter signify the number of reels and the class of picture, thus 5 C means "Five-Reel Comedy"; C D—Comedy Drama; D—Drama; Juv.—Juvenile; Hist.—Historical. The date is the date of release. The figures following the date stand for first, the page on which the review may be found; second figure, page on which the music chart is published; the figure in parentheses ( ) denotes the page upon which the "Ready-Made Ad-Talk" may be found.

"'49—'17" (Butterfly), 5D, Oct. 17 ..... 2950 (2900)
ADOPTED SON, The (Metro), 6D, Oct. 29 ..... ——
Adventures of Carol, The (World), 5D, Nov. 12 ..... 3486 (3444)
Alabaster Box, An (Vitagraph-V-L-S-E), 5D, Sept. 10 2039
Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp (Fox Standard), Oct. 14 ..... 2580 4423 (2530)
Alimony (First Nat. Exh. Circuit), 6D 4222
All for a Husband (Fox Special), 5D, Nov. 18 ..... (3809)
Alma! Where Do You Live? (Newfields Prod. Corp.), 6D 864 (1118)
Amazons, The (Paramount-Artcraft), 5D, Aug. 5 ..... (1117)
American Maid (Mutual), 5D, Nov. 26 ..... (3809)
Angel Factory, The (Pathe), 5D, Sept. 16 ..... 2039 (1993)
Antics of Ann, The (Paramount), 5D, Nov. 5 ..... 3663 (3617)
Anything Once (Bluebird), 5D, Oct. 8 ..... 2769 (2717)
Apple Tree Girl, The (Kleine-Edison, 5D, Oct. 1 ..... 2582 (2717)
Arms and the Girl (Paramount), 5D, Oct. 8 3131
Ashes of Hope (Triangle), 5D, Oct. 7 ..... 2583 (2717)
At First Sight (Famous Players-Paramount), 5D, July 2 117
Awakening, The (World Film), 5D, Dec. 3 4040
Awakening of Ruth, The (Edison-K-E-S-E), 5D, Sept. 17 ..... 2209 (2160)

BAB, THE FIXER (Hookheimer-Mutual), 5D, Aug. 13 ..... 1319 (1117)
Babbling Tongues (Ivan), 7D, Aug 1488 (1444)
Bab's Burglar (Paramount), 5D, Oct. 29 ..... 3484 (3445)
Bab's Diary (Paramount), 5CD, Sept. 24 ..... 2949 (2899)
Bab's Matinee Idol (Paramount), 5D, Nov. 26 .....
Baby Mine (Goldwyn), 6C 2581
Barbary Sheep (Artcraft), 5D, Sept. 10 ..... 2205 (2235)
Barker, The (K-E-S-E), 5D, Aug. 13 ..... 1489 (1443)
Baseball Review of 1917, The (Marty McHale) 2951
Beautiful Adventure, The (Mutual), 5D, Oct. 15 ..... ——
Because of a Woman (Triangle), 5D, Dec. 16 4399
Behind the Mask (U. S. Am-Art Dramas), 5D, Sept. 3 ..... ——
Belle of the Season (Metro), 5D, July 16 ..... ——
Beloved Adventuress, The (World Film), 5D, July 16 432
Best Man, The (Falcon-General), 4D 3307 (3267)
Betrayed (Fox Film), 5D, Sept. 2 ..... 1856 (1625)
Betsy Ross (World), 5D, Sept. 17 ..... 2037 (1993)
Betty and the Buccaneers (American-Mutual), 5D, Nov. 12 ..... 3493 (3445)
Betty Be Good (Mutual), 5D, July 16 ..... ——
Betty in the Lion's Den (Favorite Film), 5D, Aug. 13 ..... ——
Big Timber (Morosco-Paramount), 5D, July 5 ..... ——
Bit of Heaven, A (Frieder Film Co.), 5D, (S. R.) 115
Blind Man's Holiday, A (Broadway-General), 4D 2388
Blood of His Father's (Horsley-Art Dramas), 5D, Sept. 10 ..... ——
Bond of Fear, The (Triangle) ,5D, Sept. 23 ..... 2207 (2161)
Bondage (Bluebird), 5D, Oct. 17 ..... 2952 2976 (2900)
Borrowed Plumage (Triangle), 5CD, July 29 279
Bottom of the Well, The (Vitagraph-V-L-S-E), 5D, Oct. 22 ..... ——
Brand of Satan, The (World Film), 5MD, July 9 280
Branded Soul, A (Fox Special), 5D, Nov. 25 ..... ——
Bride's Silence, The (American-Mutual), 5D, Sept. 10 ..... ——
Broadway, Arizona (Triangle), 5D, Sept. 30 2391
Brown of Harvard (Selig-K-E-S-E), 5D, Aug. 27 ..... ——
Bucking Broadway (Universal), 5CD, Dec. 24 ..... 4401 4423
Burglar, The (World), 5D, Oct. 29 ..... 3130 (2718)
By Right of Possession (Vitagraph-V-L-S-E), 5D, July 30 1021

CALENDAR GIRL, The (Mutual), 5D, Oct. 15 ..... ——
Call of the East, The (Paramount), 5D, Oct. 15 ..... ——
Camille (Hanover-General), 6D, ... 2950 (2718)
Captain Kiddo (Lasalida-Pathe), 5D, Aug. 5 ..... 1024 (978)
Car of Chance, The (Bluebird), 5D, July 9 ..... 43 730
Case at Law, A (Triangle), 5D, Nov. 18 ..... (3616)
Cassidy (Triangle), 5D, Oct. 21 ..... 1 (2899)
Chains of an Oath (Favorite Film), 5D, Aug. 13 ..... ——
Charity Castle (American-Mutual), 5D, Sept. 3 ..... ——
Charmer, The (Bluebird), 5C, Aug. 27 ..... 1668 1878 (1626)
Cinderella and the Magic Slipper (Wholesome Films), 4Juv ..... ——
Clean-Up, The (Bluebird), 5D, Aug. 6 ..... 1319 (1511)
Cleopatra (Fox Standard), 10D 3134
Clever Mrs. Carfax, The (Paramount), 5D, Nov. 5 3486
Close to Nature (Paramount-Artcraft), 5D, Aug. 26 ..... ——
Come Through (Universal Special), 7D 114
Conquerer, The (Fox Standard Pict.), 5D, Sept. 16 2205
Conscience (Fox Film), 5D, Oct. 7 ..... 2584 (2344)
Cook of Canyon Camp, The (Morosco-Paramount), 5D, July 19 625
Corner Grocery, The (World), 5D, Oct. 1 ..... 2388 (2344)
Countess Charming, The (Paramount), 5D, Sept. 24 ..... 2388 2976
Courage of the Commonplace, The (Edison-Kleine), 5D, Nov. 11 3663
Cricket, The (Butterfly), 5D, Nov. 12 ..... 3664 4067 (3809)
Crooked Romance, A (Astra-Pathe), 5CD, Sept. 30 2391
Crystal Gazer, The (Lasky-Paramount), 5D 1511 (979)
Curse of Eve, The (Corona Cinema Co.), 8D 2951
Customary Two Weeks, The (Edison-K-E-S-E), 4D 1858
Cy Whittaker's Ward (Kleine-Edison), 5D, Sept. 22 ..... ——

DAUGHTER OF MARYLAND, A (American-Mutual), 5D, Oct. 29, 3308 (3087)
Dead Shot Baker (Vitagraph-V-L-S-E), 5D, Oct. 15 ..... ——
Desert Dust (Paramount), 5D, Nov. 26 ..... ——
Desire of the Moth, The (Bluebird), 5D, Oct. 22 ..... 3134 (2900)
Devil Dodger, The (Triangle), 5CD, Sept. 23 ..... ——
Divorce, The (Vitagraph-V-L-S-E), 5D, Aug. 27 1167
Doing Her Bit (Triangle), 5D, Oct. 28 ..... ——
Dormant Power, The (World), 5D, Oct. 22 ..... 3132 (2899)
Double Crossed (Paramount), 5D, Sept. 17 ..... ——
Double Standard, The (Butterfly), 5D 1041
Down to Earth (Paramount-Artcraft), 5D, Aug. 12 ..... 1320 (1118)
Draft 258 (Metro Special), 5D, Nov. 15 3857
Dream Doll, The (Essanay-Perfection), 5D, Dec. 10 4402
Duplicity of Hargraves, The (O. Henry-Broadway), 4CD ..... (2161)

EASY MONEY (World), 5D, Nov. 19 ..... 3662 (3616)
Edge of the Law, The (Butterfly), 5D, Sept. 24 2390
Efficiency Edgar's Courtship (Essanay-K-E-S-E), 5CD, Sept. 3 ..... 2037 (1811)
Eternal Mother, The (Metro), 5D, Nov. 26 ..... ——
Eternal Temptress, The (Famous Players-Paramount), 5D, Dec. 3 4399
Even Break, An (Triangle), 5D, Aug. 5 ..... 1151 (1117)
Exile (Lasky-Paramount), 5D, Oct. 6 ..... 2389 (2345)
Eye of Envy (Art Dramas-Horsley), 5D 1319 (1117)
Eyes of the World, The (W. H. Clune), 7D 2584

FALL OF THE ROMANOFFS, THE (Herbert Bernon), 9Hist 2038
Fanatics (Triangle), 5D 4403
Fanny's Conspiracy (Favorite Film), 5D, Sept. 3 ..... ——
Father's Hatband (Favorite Film), 5D, Aug. 20 ..... ——
Fear Not (Butterfly), 5D, Nov. 26 ..... ——
Fettered Woman, The (Vitagraph-V-L-S-E) 3485 (3617)
Feudists, The (Favorite Film), 5D, Aug. 27 ..... ——
Fibbers, The (Kleine-Essanay), 5D, Oct. 15 ..... 2771 (2717)
Fighting Back (Triangle), 5D, Nov. 4 ..... 3488 3887 (3267)
Fighting Mad (Butterfly-Universal), 5D, Dec. 3 4223
Fighting Odds (Goldwyn), 6D, Oct. 7 ..... 2769 (2530)
Firefly of Tough Luck, The (Triangle), 5D, Oct. 21 ..... 2952 (2899)
Fires of Rebellion (Bluebird), 5D, July 2 ..... 281 455
Flame of the Yukon, The (Triangle), 7D, July 1 ..... 434 (1170)
Flaming Omen, The (Vitagraph-V-L-S-E), 5D, Oct. 28 ..... 3486 (3266)
Flirting With Death (Bluebird), 5D, Sept. 24 ..... 2582 2803
Flying Colors (Triangle), 5D, Sept. 23 ..... 2036 (1992)
Follow the Girl (Butterfly), 5D, Aug. 6 ..... (1172)
Food Gamblers, The (Triangle), 5D, Aug. 5 ..... 1318 (1117)
Fools for Luck (Kleine-Essanay), 5D, Oct. 8 2581
For France (Vitagraph-V-L-S-E), 5D, Sept. 17 ..... 2205 (1992)
For the Freedom of the World (Iva M. Lowry), 8R ..... (2206)
For Valour (Triangle), 5D, Nov. 25 ..... 3860 4421 (3808)
Forbidden Path, The (Lasky-Paramount), 5D, July 12 118
France in Arms (Pathe), 5D, Nov. 11 ..... 3483 (3444)
Fringe of Society, The (George Backer-M. H. Hoffman), 7D (S. R.), 3664 4421 (3616)
Frozen Warning, The (Commonwealth), 6MD, ... 4226
Fuel of Life (Triangle), 5D, Nov. 18 ..... 3665 4245 (3616)

GARDEN OF ALLAH, THE (Selig), 9D 1150 (827)
Game of Wits, A (Mutual), 5D, Nov. 5 ..... 3308 (3266)
Ghost House, The (Paramount), 5D, Oct. 1 ..... 2772 (2717)
Gift o' Gab (Essanay-Perfection Pictures), 5C, Nov. 26 4042
Girl Angle, The (Horkheimer-Mutual), 5D, Oct. 8 ..... ((2531)
Girl Who Couldn't Grow Up (Mutual), 5D, Sept. 17 ..... ——
Girl Who Won Out, The (Butterfly), 5D, Oct. 8 ..... 2771 (2717)
Girl Without A Soul, The (Metro), 5D, Aug. 13 ..... (1443)
Golden Idiot, The (K-E-S-E-Essanay), 5CD, July 23 ..... 866 (827)
Golden Rule Kate (Triangle), 5D, Aug. 12 1666
Good for Nothing, The (World Film), 5CD, Dec. 10 4224
Goodness Gracious (Favorite Film), 5CD, Sept. 17 ..... ——
Grafters, The (Triangle), 5CD, Aug. 26 1666
Greater Law, The (Bluebird), 5D, July 16 ..... 625 890
Grell Mystery, The (Vitagraph), 5MD, Nov. 19 ..... 3859 (3444)
Guardian, The (World), 5D, Aug. 27 ..... 1490 (1444)
Gulf Between, The (Technicolor), 8 Reels 2391

HAPPY GO LUCKY (Favorite Film), 5D, Aug. 6 ..... ——
Hashimura Togo (Lasky-Paramount), 5D, Aug. 19 ..... 1491 (1275)
Hate (Fairmount Film Corp.), 7D (S. R.) 115
Haunted House, The (Triangle), 5D, Sept. 16 ..... ——
Heart of Ezra Greer, The (Pathe), 5D, Oct. 7 ..... 2583 (2530)
Her Country's Call (Mutual), 5D, Oct. 1 ..... 3130 (2344)
Her Excellency, the Governor (Triangle), 5D, July 1 280
Her Hour (World Film), 6MD, Nov. 26 ..... 3859 (3808)
Her Husband (Favorite Film), 5D, Sept. 3 ..... ——
Her Silent Sacrifice (Select), 5D 4042
Her Sister's Rival (Russian Art Film-Pathe), 5MD 4222
Hidden Spring, The (Yorke-Metro), 5D, July 16 ..... ——
High Speed (Butterfly-Universal), 5D, July 16 ..... 628 727
His Old-Fashioned Dad (Falcon-General), 4D, Nov. 24 ..... 4044 (3616)
Hostage, The (Lasky-Paramount), 5D, Sept. 10 ..... 2208 (1811)
How States Are Made (Favorite Film), 5Hist, Sept. 17 ..... ——
Hungry Heart, The (Paramount), 5D, Nov. 5 ..... 4043 4247

I BELIEVE (Cosmofotofilm), 7D (S. R.) 114
I Will Repay (Vitagraph-V-L-S-E), 5D, Nov. 12 ..... 3666 (3087)
Idolaters (Triangle), 5D, Sept. 9 ..... 1860 (1811)
In Slumberland (Triangle-Ince), 5D 865
Indian Motorcycle (E. J. S. Motion Picture Corp.), 5Ed 2392
Indiscreet Corinne (Triangle), 5 D, Nov. 11 ..... 3488 4065. (3444)
Innocent Sinner, The (Fox Film), 5CD, July 22 1340
Iris (Hepworth-Pathe), 5D, Aug. 26 ..... 1317 (1443)
Iron Ring, The (Peerless-World), 5D, July 30 ..... 1022 (978)
It Happened to Adele (Thanhouser-Pathe), 5CD, July 15 280
Italian Battle Front, The (William Moore Patch), 9 Top 1323

JACK AND THE BEANSTALK (Fox Film), 10 Juv, Sept.. 2 ..... 1151 (1275)
Jack and Jill (Morosco-Paramount), 5CD, Nov. 12 ..... 3860 (3809)
Jerry for Short (World), 5D, Aug. 13 .....
Jinx Jumper, The (Triangle), 5CD, Aug. 26 ..... ——
John Ermine of Yellowstone (Butterfly), 5D, Nov. 5 ..... 3487 (3445)
Judgment House, The (Blackton-Paramount), 6D, Nov. 19 4042
Jury of Fate, The (Metro), 5D, Aug. 6 ..... (1275)

KIDNAPPED (Edison-Conquest), 7D 2390
Kill Joy, The (Essanay. Perfection Pictures), 5CD 4042
Kiss for Susie, A (Paramount-Artcraft), 5D, Aug. 2 ..... 1148 (979)

LAIR OF THE WOLF, THE (Butterfly), 5D, Aug. 20 ..... 1489 1511 (1443)
Lash of Power, The (Bluebird), 5D, Nov. 5 ..... 3484 4067 (3087)
Last of the Carnabys, The (Astra-Pathe), 5D, July 22 433

Law of the Land (Paramount-Artcraft), 5D, Aug. 12 ..... (1274)
Les Miserables (William Fox), 9MD 4398
Lesson in Jealousy, A (Favorite Film), 5CD, Sept. 24 ..... ——
Lest We Forget (Select Pictures), D ..... ——
Life's Whirlpool (Metro), 5D, Oct. 8 ..... ——
Lifted Veil, The (Metro), 5D, Sept. 10 ..... ——
Light in Darkness (K-E-S-E—Edison), 5D, July 9 435
Light of Western Stars, The (K-E-S-E—Selig), 5D, Aug. 13 ..... ——
Little American, The (Artcraft), 5D, July 2 ..... 432 890
Little Boy Scout, The (Famous-Players-Paramount), 5D, July 2 434
Little Chevalier, The (Conquest-Edison), 4D, Aug. 11 1490
Little Duchess, The (Peerless-World), 5D 1317 (1275)
Little Miss Optimist (Paramount-Artcraft), 5D, Aug. 26 1666
Little Patriot, A (Diando-Pathe), 5 Juv. D, Dec. 2 3861
Little Pirate, The (Butterfly), 5D, Sept. 10 ..... 2036 2058
Little Princess, the (Artcraft), 5CD, Nov. 12 3858
Little Red Riding Hood (Wholesome Films), 4 Juv ..... ——
Little Terror, The (Bluebird), 5D, July 30 ..... 1023 1510 (978)
Lone Wolf, The (Selznick), 8D, May 282 (1171)
Long Trail, The (Famous Players-Paramount), 5D ..... (1021)
Lorelei of the Sea (Maritime Film Co.), 7D, Sept. 14 1859
Lost in Transit (Paramount), 5D, Sept. 3 ..... 2039 (1992)
Love That Lives, The (Famous Players-Paramount), 5D, July 9 626
Loyalty (Oro Pictures), 6MD (8R) 3306 (3266)
Lust of the Ages, The (Ogden-Independent Prod.), 5D 1665 (1443)

MADAME SHERRY (M. H. Hoffman, Inc.), 5C 1492
Magda (Select Pictures), 5D (8R) 3135 3888
Maid of Belgium, The (World), 5D, Nov. 5 ..... 3306 (3267)
Man from Montana, The (Butterfly), 5D, Nov. 12 ..... 3859 3888 (3809)
Man from Painted Post, The (Paramount), 5D, Oct. 1 2769
Man Hater, The (Triangle), 5D, Sept. 2 3130
Man Trap, The (Bluebird-Universal), 5D 3306 (3266)
Man Who Was Afraid, The (K-E-S-E Essanay), 5D, July 2 ..... ——
Man Without a Country, The (Thanhouser-Jewel Prod.), 6MD 2204
Man's Law, A (Overland Film), 5D 2769 (2718)
Man's Man, A (Paralta), 7D 2204
Mark of Cain, The (Pathe), 5D, Nov. 4 ..... ——
Marked, Man, A (Butterfly-Universal), 5D, Oct. 29 ..... 3307 (3267)
Marriage Market, The (World Film), 5D, Sept. 10 1857
Marvelous Maciste, The (Hanover-General), CD ..... ——
Mary Jane's Pa (Vitagraph-V-L-S-E), 5D, Aug. 13 1321
Mary Moreland (Mutual), 5D, July 9 ..... ——
Masked Heart, The (Mutual), 5D, July 2 ..... ——
Master of His Home (Triangle), 5D, Aug. 12 ..... (978)
Master Painter, The (Favorite Film), 5D, Aug. 27 ..... ——
Mate of the Sally Ann, The (Mutual), 5D, Nov. 26 ..... 4042 (3809)
Maternal Spark, The (Triangle), 5MD 4401
Medicine Man, The (Triangle), 5D, Nov. 11 ..... —— 4066 (3444)
Melissa of the Hills (Mutual), 5D, July 23 ..... ——
Men of the Desert (Essanay-K-E-S-E), 5D, Sept. 4 ..... 2391 (1811)
Message of the Mouse, The (Vitagraph), 7MD, July 9 432
Miss Deception (Art Dramas-Van Dyke), 5D, July 9 628
Miss Jackie of the Army (Mutual-American), 5D 4398
Miss Nobody (Astra-Pathe), 5D, Aug. 19 ..... 1488 (1443)
Miss Robinson Crusoe (Metro), 5D ..... —— 1172 (1118)
Miss U. S. A. (Fox Special), 5D, Nov. 4 ..... —— 4066 (3444)
Molly Entangled (Lasky-Paramount), 5CD, Nov. 19 4043
Moth, The (Select Pictures), 5D 3153 (2717)
Mother Instinct, The (Triangle-Ince), 5D, July 15 ..... 866 1512 (826)
Mother Love and the Law (Crystal Photoplays Co.), 7D 1669
Mother o' Mine (Bluebird), 5D, Sept 5 ..... 1859 1690 (1811)
Motherhood (Minerva Motion Picture Co.), 6R 278
Mothers of Men (Robards Players), 5D (8R) 3310
Mountain Dew (Triangle), 5D, Sept. 16 2209
Mr. Opp (Bluebird), 5D, Aug. 20 ..... 1490 (1443)
My Little Boy (Bluebird), 5D 4400 4244
Mysterious Miss Terry, The (Famous Players-Paramount), 5D, Aug. 19 ..... 1665 (1274)
Mysterious Mr. Tiller, The (Bluebird), 5D, Sept. 17 ..... 2207 (2160)

NARROW TRAIL, THE (Artcraft), 5D, Oct. 15 ..... ——
National Red Cross Pageant (Nat. Red Cross Pageant Committee), 5 Pict. 4043
Natural Law, The (France Films), 7 reels (8R) 3484
Nearly Married (Goldwyn), 6C, Nov. 18 ..... 4224 (3445)
New York Luck (Mutual-American), 5CD, Dec. 17 4223
Next Door to Nancy (Vitagraph-V-L-S-E), 5D, Nov. 19 ..... (3088)
Night in New Arabia, A (Broadway-General), 4D 3485
North of Fifty Three (Fox Film), 5D, Sept. 23 ..... ——

ON THE LEVEL (Paramount), 5D, Sept. 17 ..... ——
On-the-Square Girl, The (Astro-Pathe), 5D, July 29 625
One Hour (Hoffman-Foursquare), 6D 2204
One Shot Ross (Triangle), 5D, Oct. 14 ..... 2772 (2530)
One Touch of Nature (Triangle), 5D 1023 (978)
Open Places (Essanay-K-E-S-E), 5D, Aug. 20 ..... 1492 (1117)
Outcast, The (Empire-Mutual), 5D, Sept. 10 ..... ——
Outsider, The (Metro), 6D, Nov. 5 ..... (3617)
Outwitted (Metro), 5D, Nov. 12 ..... ——
Over the Hill (Astra-Pathe), 5D, Dec. 16 4040

PAINTED DOLL, THE (Pathe), 5D, Oct. 21 ..... 2581 (2530)
Painted Madonna, The (Fox Special), 5D, Nov. 11 ..... ——
Pants (Essanay K-E-S-E), 5D, Sept. 10 1444
Paradise Garden (Metro), 6D, Oct. 1 ..... ——
Parentage (Frank J. Seng), 5MD 3945 (1340)
Patsy (Fox Film), 5CD, July 1 434
Pay Me (Jewel Prod., Inc.), 5D 1321
Peddler, The (U. S. Amuse.-Art Dramas), 5MD, July 2 628
Peg of the Sea (Van Dyke-Art Dramas), 5D, Sept. 17 ..... ——
Peggy Leads the Way (Mutual), 5D, Oct. 29 ..... 3489 (3267)
Peggy, the Will o' the Wisp (Rolfe-Metro), 5D, July 9 ..... 864 (826)
Penny Philanthropist, The (Wholesome Films), 5D, Sept 2592
Persuasive Peggy (Mayfair), 6CD 3485 (3445)
Phantom Husband, A (Triangle), 5D, Oct. 7 ..... ——
Plaster, The (Mutual Special), 7D, Nov. 12 3307
Please Help Emily (Frohman-Mutual), 5D, Nov. 19 ..... 3860 (3445)
Plow Woman, The (Butterfly-Universal), 5D 280 457
Polly Ann (Triangle), 5CD, Sept. 9 ..... 2037 (1992)
Polly of the Circus (Goldwyn), 8D, Sept. 9 ..... 2035 2415 (1992)
Price Mark, The (Paramount), 5D, Oct. 22 3810
Price of a Good Time, The (Jewel Prods.), 7D (SR) 3661
Price of Pride, The (World Film), 5D, July 2 ..... 115 456
Pride and the Man (Mutual), 5D, Sept. 23 1669
Princess of Park Row, The (Vitagraph-V-L-S-E), 5D, Oct. 1 2770
Princess Virtue (Bluebird), 5D, Nov. 12 ..... 3695 (3808)
Princess' Necklace, The (Edison-Conquest), 7 Juv 2389
Public Be Damned, The (Public Rights Film Corp.), 5MD (SR) 278
Public Defender, The (Harry Raver), 5D 2773 (2718)

QUEEN OF SPADES, THE (Pathe), 5D, Nov. 18 ..... 3133 (3087)
Queen X (Mutual), 5D, Oct. 1 ..... 2802 (2345)

RAFFLES, THE AMATEUR CRACKSMAN (Heller and Wilk), 6D 4225
Raggedy Queen, The (Bluebird), 5D, Dec. 3 4222
Rainbow Girl, The (Mutual), 5D, Sept. 17 ..... ——
Range Boss, The (K-E-S-E-Essanay), 5WD, July 16 ..... ——
Rasputin, the Black Monk (Brady-World Film), 7 Hist, Oct. 8 .2206 (2161)
Reaching for the Moon (Artcraft), 5C, Nov. 19 4044
Rebecca of Sunybrook Farm (Artcraft-Paramount), 5D Sept. 3 2035
Reed Case, The (Butterfly), 5D, July 9 ..... —— 303
Regenerates, The (Triangle), 5D, Nov. 25 ..... 3861 (3808)
Renaissance at Charleroi (Broadway-General), 4D ..... (3445)
Regiment of Two, A (Favorite Film), 5D, Aug. 6 ..... ——
Reincarnation of Karma, The (Favorite Film), 5D, Sept. 24 ..... ——
Reputation (Goodrich-Mutual), 5D, Sept. 3 ..... ——
Rescue, The (Bluebird), 5D, July 23 ..... 867 1042 (827)
Retreat of the Germans at Battle of Arras (British Com.), 10Hist. . 1491
Richard the Brazen (Vitagraph), 5D, July 23 ..... 865 1510 (826)
Right of Way Casey (Gold Seal-Universal), 3CD, July 30 877
Rise of Jennie Cushing, The (Artcraft), 5D, Nov. 19 3857
Rose of Blood, The (Fox Standard), 6D, Nov. 4 3665
Runaway, The (Mutual), 5D, Sept. 24 ..... (2160)

SANDS OF SACRIFICE (Mutual), 5D, Sept. 24 ..... (2160)
Savage, The (Bluebird), 5D, Nov. 19 ..... 3308 3888 (3266)
Sawdust Ring, The (Triangle), 5MD, July 15 ..... 627 1339
Scandal (Select Pictures), 6D (SR) 3309 3887
Scarlet Car, The (Bluebird), 5MD, Dec. 24 ..... 4226 4422
Sea Master, The (Mutual-American), 5D, Oct. 22 ..... 2952 (2899)
Second Mrs. Tanqueray, The (Vitagraph-V-L-S-E), 5D, Aug. 6. 1149 (1118)
Secret Game, The (Lasky-Paramount), 5MD, Dec. 3 4223
Secret Man, The (Butterfly), 5D, Oct. 1 ..... 2583 2612 (2344)
Secret of the Storm Country, The (Jos. M. Schenck-Select), 6D 3662
Self-Made Widow, A (Brady-World), 5D, July 23 867
Seven Keys to Baldpate (Artcraft), 5CD, Aug. 19 ..... 1856 2059
Shall We Forgive Her? (World), 5D, Oct. 15 2771
Shame (John W. Noble-Duplex Films, Inc.), 7D 3860
Ship of Doom, The (Triangle), 5D, Dec. 2 4040
Show Down, The (Bluebird), 5D, Aug. 13 ..... 1511 (1274)
Silent Lady, The (Butterfly-Universal), 5CD, Dec. 10 4043
Silent Man, The (Artcraft), 5D 4222
Silent Sellers (Metro), 5D, Sept. 24 ..... ——
Sirens of the Sea (Jewel Productions), 6R1 1857
Skinner's Baby (K-E-S-E-Essanay), 5CD, Aug. 6 1150
Skylight Room, The (O. Henry-Broadway), 4MD 4402
Slacker, The (Metro Special), 6D 1020 1170 (979)
Sleeping Memory, A (Metro), 5D, Oct. 15 ..... ——
Small Town Guy, The (Essanay), 5CD, Dec. 3 4041
Snap Judgment (Mutual-American), 5D, Nov. 19 ..... 3861 (3616)
Society's Driftwood (Butterfly), 5D, Oct. 22 3132
Soldiers of France (Vitagraph-V-L-S-E), 5D, Sept. 3 ..... 1859 (1812)
Son of His Father, The (Paramount), 5D, Oct. 22 ..... 3132 (3088)
Souls Adrift World), 5D, Aug. 20 1148
Souls in Pawn (American-Mutual), 5D, Aug. 6 ..... 2036 (978)
Southern Pride (Mutual-American), 5MD, Oct. 8 ..... 2953 (2531)
Spindle of Life, The (Butterfly), 5D, Sept. 17 ..... 2208 2235
Spotted Lily, The (Bluebird), 5D, Oct. 1 ..... 2580 (2717)
Spreading Dawn, The (Goldwyn), 5CD, Oct. 14 ..... 3505 3509. (2899)
Spy, The (Fox), 6D 1149
Squaw Man's Son, The (Lasky-Paramount), 5D 1021 (827)
Stainless Barrier, The (Triangle), 5D, Oct. 28 ..... 3132 3695
Stormy Knight, A (Bluebird), 5D, Sept. 10 ..... 2040 2235 (1992)
Straight Shooting (Butterfly), 5MD, Aug. 27 ..... 1668 1688
Stranded in Arcady (Pathe), 5D, Oct. 14 2580
Strange Transgressor, A (Triangle-Ince), 5D, July 8 117
Streets of Illusion, The (Astra-Pathe), 5D, Aug. 12 1149
Sudden Gentleman, The (Triangle), 5CD, Dec. 2 4040
Sunlight's Last Raid (Vitagraph), 5D, Sept. 24 ..... 2389 (1993)
Sunset Trail, The (Lasky-Paramount), 5D, Sept. 17 ..... 2582 (2530)
Sunshine Alley (Goldwyn), 6D, Nov. 4 3862
Sylvia of the Secret Service (Pathe), 5D, Nov. 25 ..... 3664 (3616)

TARHEEL WARRIOR, THE (Triangle), 5CD, Sept. 30 2390
Tears and Smiles(Lasalida-Pathe), 5D, Sept. 2 ..... 1857 (1812)
Ten of Diamonds (Triangle), 5D, Sept. 2 ..... ——
Tenderfoot, The (Vitagraph), 5D, Dec. 3 4225
Tenth Case, The (World Film), 5D 4401
Their Compact (Metro), 5D, Sept. 17 ..... ——
They're Off (Triangle), 5CD, Aug. 19 ..... (1274)
Thing We Love, The (Paramount), 5D, Nov. 26 ..... ——
Think It Over (Art Dramas), 5CD, Aug. 13 1667
This Is the Life (Fox Film), 5CD, Oct. 21 ..... (3087)
Those Who Pay (U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corp.), 7D 4403
Thou Shalt Not Steal (Fox Film), 5D, Oct. 14 2900
Tides of Fate (World), 5D, Sept. 3 1858
Time Locks and Diamonds (Triangle), 5MD, July 8 434
To Honor and Obey (Fox Film), 5D, July 15 ..... 1172 (827)
To the Death (Metro), 5D, Aug. 27 ..... ——
Tom Sawyer (Paramount), 5CD 4400
Torture of Silence (Pathe), 5D, Oct. 21 ..... 2950 (2900)
Trail of the Shadow, The (Metro), 5D, July 2 ..... 866 456
Transgression (Vitagraph-V-L-S-E), 5D, Aug. 20 ..... 1489 (1444)
Treasure Island (Fox Standard), 6D, Nov. 18 ..... ——
Triumph (Bluebird), 5D, Sept. 3 ..... ——
Trouble Buster, The (Paramount), 5D, Oct. 8 ..... ——
Two Bit Seats (George Kleine System), 4CD, Nov. 5 ..... (3267)
Two Little Imps (Fox Film), 5CD, July 8 ..... ——

UNDER FALSE COLORS (Thanhouser-Pathe), 5D, Sept. 23 .. 2208 (2160)
Under Handicap (Yorke-Metro), 5D, Sept. 3 ..... 2040 (1812)
Understudy, The (Falcon Features-General), 4D 3133
Unforseen, The (Mutual), 5D, Oct. 22 ..... (2899)
Unto the End (Art Dramas), 5D, Oct. 8 ..... ——
Until They Get Me (Triangle), 5D 4401
Up or Down (Triangle), 5D, Nov. 4 ..... 3663 3887 (3266)

VARMINT, THE (Paramount-Artcraft), 5D, Aug. 5 ..... 1321 (1118)
Vengeance Is Mine (Pathe), 5D, Dec. 16 4224
Violin of M'sieur, The (Favorite Film), 5D, Aug. 20 ..... —— Voice of Conscience, The (Metro), 5D, Nov. 19 ..... ——

WAR AND THE WOMAN (Pathe), 5D, Sept. 9 ..... 2037 (1993)
War Films of the Russian Revolution (Skobeleff Committee), 10 Hist. 1669
Warrior, The (Itala), 7D 864
Weavers of Life (Edw. Morris Prods.), 6D (S. R.) 3309
Wee Lady Betty (Triangle), 5D, Aug. 19 ..... (1444)
What Money Can't Buy (Lasky-Paramount), 5D, July 16 ..... 867 (826)
When a Man Sees Red (Fox Standard), 5D, Oct. 7 ..... 3483 4227

When False Tongues Speak (Fox Film), 5D, Sept. 9..... ——
When True Love Dawns (Brady International Service-World Film), 5D..... 433
When Women Go on the Warpath (Favorite Film), 5D, Sept. 10.... ——
When You and I Were Young (Art Dramas-Apollo), 5D, July 16, 865 (826)
Whither Thou Goest (Klotz and Streimer), 5D..... 117
Who Goes There? (Vitagraph), 5D, Nov. 26..... 4044
Who Was the Other Man? (Butterfly), 5D, Sept. 3.....1858 1877 (1626)
Wife on Trial, A (Butterfly), 5D, July 30..... 1042
Wifie Number Two (Fox Film), 5CD, July 29..... ——
Wild Sumac (Triangle), 5D, Oct. 14.....2772 (2530)
Winged Mystery, The (Bluebird), 5D, Nov. 26.....—— 4067
Winning the Step-Children (Favorite Film), 5, Sept. 17..... ——
Wolf and His Mate, The (Butterfly-Universal), 5D..... 4226
Woman Beneath, The (World), 5D, Sept. 24..... 2207
Woman God Forgot, The (Artcraft), 5D, Oct. 22..... 3483
Woman in White, The (Thanhouser-Pathe), 5D, July 1.....115 (1042)
Wooden Shoes (Triangle) 5D, Aug. 26.....1488 (1275)

YANKEE WAY, THE (Fox Film), 5D, Sept. 1..... ——
Young Mother Hubbard (Kleine-Essanay), 5D, Oct. 29.....3131 (2530)
Your Obedient Servant (Edison-Conquest), 6D..... 2582
Youth (World), 5D, Aug. 6.....868 (826)

ZEPPELIN'S LAST RAID, THE (V. S. Exch. Booking Corp.), 6 Reels (S. R.).....3665 4422
Zollenstein (Falcon-General), 4D.....4400 (3617)

Ask the Exhibitors in Baltimore

Which newspaper has the greatest following of motion picture fans?

Which best champions the cause of motion pictures?

Which gives most publicity to photoplays?

Which most ably backs up the advertising campaigns of producer or distributor?

Which paper, in brief, they regard as indisptnsable, as their friend?

THEIR ANSWER WILL BE

The Baltimore American

Three pages every Sunday are devoted exclusively to motion pictures; two and three more to motion picture serials. The American holds tht lead in advertising because it is the recognized medium for motion picture news. The Star, its evening paper, is the only daily in Baltimore which has a department of motion picture news.

WANTED: EXCHANGE MANAGERS

EFFICIENT and enterprising men whose records bear investigation, who understand film merchandising and who have every qualification, by an established and responsible film distributing organization, for positions at several important operating points.

Write, stating frankly what you know and what you can do. Tell all, and omit camouflage. No confidences will be violated. Prompt consideration given all responses. Box 16, care of MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

"Brown of Harvard"

(Continued from page 129)

Mr. Beaumont's work as adaptor and director is always noticeable for its even, natural tenor, its completeness in all detail and its realism.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Tom Brown (Tom Moore), substitute on the varsity crew is one of the richer students at Harvard. He is engaged to Evelyn Ames (Hazel Daly). Her brother Wilton (Kempton Greene), has secretly married Mary, sister of a student (Walter McGrail) who is working his way through college. Wilton is a weakling and because of his gambling has fallen in the power of Victor Colton (Sidney Ainsworth), a professional gambler. Tom in his efforts to keep Wilton out of trouble and to discover the cause of Mary's constant apprehension only complicates matters further and is judged guilty of an affair with Mary by Evelyn. That Mary's brother may try for the crew, Tom furnishes him with funds through the medium of a mutual friend. On the day of the big race Colton plans to put the Harvard stroke, none other than the working student, out of the running that he may clean up on his bets. To do this he sends a forged letter to him at the last moment, purporting to come from Mary, telling him of her betrayal. The stroke, in a rage, refuses to row and leaves in search of his sister. Tom steps in and the crew wins. Tom is the hero until the stroke accuses him of betraying his sister. It is not until Wilton gains courage enough to confess his marriage to Mary that Evelyn finally returns to Tom.

Warner Richmond, Johnnie Walker, Arthur Housman and Lydia Dalzell complete the cast.

"Sins of Ambition"

(Ivan—Six Reels)

Reviewed by Joseph L. Kelley

"SINS OF AMBITION," produced by Ivan Film Productions, Inc., under the direction of Ivan Abramson, with Leah Baird, Wilfred Lucas, James Morrison and Barbara Castleton in featured roles, is a problem written and directed by Mr. Abramson.

"Sins of Ambition," while not to be classed as a world-beating independent production, is, however, entitled to a prominent place in the ranks of the good program picture. Director Abramson has permitted the action in the picture to drag at the opening, but once the characters have been planted, and the author has reached his ante-climax, the action forges ahead with a strength of purpose that impresses. If you are entertained by beautiful exterior scenes, extravagant sets and multitudes of people "Sins of Ambition" will prove a source of entertainment.

"Sins of Ambition" stands as an average picture, certain to draw patronage by reason of its meaning title and the popularity of some members of the cast, which includes Wilfred Lucas, Leah Baird, James Morrison, Barbara Castleton, Anders Randolf, Madeline Travers, and Edward Lawrence.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Andrew Maxwell (Wilfred Lucas) is ambitious to create an universal language, which will bring eternal peace to mankind. He becomes so interested in his work that he neglects his wife, Laurette (Leah Baird), and his daughter, Ruth (Barbara Castleton). Laurette longs to return to the stage and she is encouraged in this by Charles Prescott (Anders Randolf), owner of the Prescott Trust Company. Franklin Church (James Morrison), younger brother of Jay Church, a millionaire, loves Ruth. Maxwell finds his wife in company with Prescott and upbraids her for her unfaithfulness. She and Ruth leave his house and take up their residence apart from him.

Ruth discovers that her mother intends returning to the stage on the advice of Prescott and commences a campaign to lure Prescott from the company of her mother. She makes love to him and he soon forgets her mother. Violet (Madeline Traverse), a worker among the poor, is anxious to better their conditions. She seeks the aid of Maxwell and he consents to give up his work to assist her. They plan to break the ice trust. Franklin persuades his brother to publish the Maxwell language and he does so.

Prescott attempts to force Ruth to marry him and meets with death. Laurette repents her actions and returns to her husband. Ruth and Franklin are married.

"Just a Woman"

(Julius Steger—Six Reels)

Reviewed by Joseph L. Kelley

"JUST A WOMAN" was produced for the independent market by Julius Steger under his personal direction. Charlotte Walker is featured. The screen version was made from the stage play by Eugene Walter. It is a social drama dealing with the male character who rises from a common laborer to a financial king and in the process of this social evolution, he forsakes the woman who has been a true wife to him during his days of struggling.

The situation as presented by the theme of "Just a Woman," gives rise to a certain strength of plot that is evident in every scene, in every reel. The locale of the story is centered about a steel manufacturing city and Director Steger has placed the camera within shooting distance of a section that speaks of steel manufacturing from a hundred smoke stacks—not props.

(Concluded on page 138)

Features—Current and Coming

Art Dramas, Inc.

Oct. 1. (Undecided) Erbograph..... 5
Oct. 8. Unto the End (Crane Wilbur) Horsley 5

Bluebird Photoplays

Dec. 3. The Raggedy Queen (Violet Merserеau) 5
Dec. 10. The Door Between (Ruth Clifford). 5
Dec. 17. My Little Boy (Ella Hall)..... 5
Dec. 24. The Scarlet Car (Franklyn Farnum) —
Dec. 31. The Girl by the Roadside (Violet Merscreau) ..... —
Jan. 7. My Unmarried Wife (Carmel Myers) 5
Jan. 14. Face Value (Mae Murray)..... 5
Jan. 21. Broadway Love (Dorothy Philips). 5

Universal Productions

Dec. 3. Fighting Mad (Wm. Stowell, Helen Gibson, Betty Schade)..... 5
Dec. 10. The Silent Lady (Little Zoe Rae, Gretchen Lederer) 5
Dec. 15. Beloved Jim (Priscilla Dean, Harry Carter)..... 5
Dec. 24. Bucking Broadway (Harry Carey, Molly Malone) 5
Dec. 31. The High Sign (H. Rawlinson, Brownie Vernon). 5
Jan. 7. The Wolf and His Mate (Louise Lovely). 5
Jan. 14. Hell's Crater (Grace Cunard)..... 5

Fox Film Corporation

(Special Features)

Dec. 2. The Babes in the Wood (Carpenter-Corbin) 5
Dec. 9. The Pride of New York (George Walsh) 5
Dec. 16. Unknown 274 (June Caprice)..... 5
Dec. 23. The Kingdom of Love (Jewel Carmen) 5
Jan. 6. Stolen Honor (Virginia Pearson)... 5
Jan. 13. Cupid's Roundup (Tom Mix)..... 5
Dec. 30. For Liberty (Gladys Brockwell).... 5
Jan. 20. A Heart's Revenge (Sonia Markova). 5

Fox Standard Pictures

Nov. 4. The Rose of Blood (Theda Bara)... 6
Nov. 18. Treasure Island 6
Dec. 2. A Daughter of the Gods (Annette Kellerman) ..... —
Dec. 9. Troublemakers (Jane and Katherine Lee). 7
Dec. 16. The Heart of a Lion (William Farnum). 6
Dec. 30. Du Barry (Theda Bara)..... 7

Goldwyn Features Corp.

Nov. 4. Sunshine Alley (Mae Marsh)..... 6
Nov. 18. Nearly Married (Madge Kennedy).. 6
Dec. 2. The Auction Block..... 6
Dec. 16. The Cinderella Man (Mae Marsh).. 6
Dec. 30. Thais (Mary Garden)..... 7

Ivan Feature Productions

Mar. 18. Two Men and a Woman (James Morrison, Christine Mayo, Ruybe De Remer, Guy Coombs, John Reinhardt and Helen Arnold)..... 5
June — One Law for Both..... 9

Jewel Productions, Inc.

Sept. — Come Through (Drama)..... —
Sept. — Pay Me (Drama)..... —
Sept. — Sirens of the Sea (Drama)..... —
Oct. — Man Without a Country (Patriotic). —
Oct. — The Corespondent (Drama)..... —
Nov. — The Price of a Good Time (Drama).. —
Dec. — The Grand Passion (Drama)..... —
Dec. — K (Drama)..... —

George Kleine System

(PERFECTION PICTURES)

Nov. 5. Two Bit Seats (Taylor Holmes) (Essanay) ..... —
Nov. 19. Kill Joy (Essanay)..... 5
Nov. 26. Gift o' Gab (Essanay)..... 5
Dec. 3. Small Town Guy (Essanay)..... 5
Dec. 10. The Dream Doll (Essanay)..... 5

Metro Pictures Corporation

Dec. 3. The Square Deceiver (Harold Lockwood), Yorke Film..... 5
Dec. 10. Alias Mrs. Jessop (Emily Stevens), Metro. 5
Dec. 10. (Special) Blue Jeans (Viola Dana). 7
Dec. 17. God's Outlaw (Francis Bushman, Beverly Bayne), Metro..... 5
Dec. 24. An American Widow (Ethel Barrymore), Metro..... 5
Dec. 31. The Avenging Trail (Harold Lockwood), Yorke Film..... 5
Jan. 7. Daybreak (Emily Stevens) Metro... 5
Jan. 14. The Winding Trail (Viola Dana) Rolfe-Metro 5
Jan. 21. The Eyes of Mystery (Edith Storey) Rolfe-Metro 5
Jan. 28. Under Suspicion (Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne) Metro... 5

Mutual Film Corporation

Nov. 5. A Game of Wits (Gail Kane)..... 5
Nov. 12. (Special) The Planter (Tyrone Power). 7
Nov. 12. Betty and the Buccaneers (American). 5
Nov. 19. Snap Judgment (William Russell), American. 5
Nov. 19. Please Help Emily (Ann Murdock), Frohman. 5
Nov. 26. The Mate of the Sally Ann (Mary Miles Minter). 5
Dec. 3. American Maid (Edna Goodrich)... 5
Dec. 10. Miss Jackie of the Army (Margarita Fischer). 5
Dec. 17. New York Luck (Wm. Russell), American. 5
Dec. 24. Her Sister (Olive Tell) Frohman.. 5
Dec. 31. Her Second Husband (Edna Goodrich). 5

Paramount Picture Corp.

Dec. 3. The Eternal Temptress (Lina Cavalieri). 5
Dec. 3. The Secret Game (Sessue Hayakawa) 5
Dec. 10. The Land of Promise (Billie Burke) 5
Dec. 10. Tom Sawyer (Jack Pickford)..... 5
Dec. 17. Nan of Music Mountain (Wallace Reid). 5
Dec. 17. The Fair Barbarian (Vivian Martin) 5
Dec. 24. Love Letters (Dorothy Dalton).... 5
Dec. 24. His Mother's Boy (Charles Ray)... 5
Dec. 31. The Seven Swans (Marguerite Clark) 5
Jan. 7. Mrs. Dane's Defense (Pauline Frederick). 5
Jan. 14. Jules of the Strong Heart (George Beban). 5
Jan. 14. The Spirit of '17 (Jack Pickford).. 5
Jan. 21. Rimrock Jones (Wallace Reid)..... 5
Jan. 21. Blackton's The World for Sale..... 5
Jan. 28. The Widow's Might (Julian Eltinge). 5
Jan. 28. The Hired Man (Charles Ray)..... 5

Artcraft Releases

(PARAMOUNT)

Dec. 17. The Devil Stone (Geraldine Farrar). 5
Dec. 31. A Modern Musketeer (Douglas Fairbanks). 5
Jan. 7. Rose of the World (Elsie Ferguson). 5
Jan. 14. Dead or Alive (Wm. S. Hart)..... 5
Jan. 21. Stella Maris (Mary Pickford)..... 5

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

Nov. 4. The Mark of Cain (Antonio Moreno, J. H. Gilmour, Olive Stokes, John Sainpolis). 5
Nov. 11. France in Arms (War Film)..... 5
Nov. 18. The Queen of Spades (Russian Special) (Mme. Shebueva, I. I. Mozukin, Mme. T. I. Ivan, Mme. Orlova), Astra. 5
Nov. 25. Sylvia of the Secret Service (Irene Castle, Elliott Dexter, Susanna Willa, T. W. Percival, J. H. Gilmour), Astra. 5
Dec. 2. The Little Patriot (Baby Marie Osborne, Marion Warner, Herbert Standing). 5
Dec. 9. Her Sister's Rival (Vera Colodonaya, L. M. Coronova, V. A. Polonsky) Russian 5
Dec. 16. Vengeance Is Mine (Irene Castle, Elliott Dexter, Edwin Hoyt, Frank Sheridan, Reginald Mason, Ethel Grey Terry) Astra..... 5
Dec. 23. Runaway Romany (Marion Davies, Joseph Kilgour, Matt Moore, Ormi Hawley, Gladden James), Ardsley. 5
Dec. 30. Over the Hill (Gladys Hulette, J. H. Gilmour, Daniel Mason, Wm. Parke, Jr.), Astra... 5

Select Pictures

— The Barrier. 7
— The Lone Wolf (Hazel Dawn and Bert Lytell). 6
Oct. — Public Be Damned (Charles Richman). 6
Oct. — The Wild Girl (Eva Tanguay)..... 5
Oct. — Over There (Anna Q. Nilsson and Charles Richman). 6
Oct. — The Moth (Norma Talmadge)..... 6
Oct. — Magda (Clara Kimball Young),..... 5
Oct. — Scandal (Constance Talmadge)..... 5
Nov. — Her Silent Sacrifice (Alice Brady).. 5
Nov. — Secret of the Storm Country (Norma Talmaddge). 5
Dec. — Shirley Kake (Clara Kimball Young). 5
Dec. — The Honeymoon (Constance Talmadge). 5
Jan. — Woman and Wife (Alice Brady..... —
Jan. — Ghosts of Yesterday (Norma Talmadge). ..... —
Jan. — The Marionettes (Clara Kimball Young). ..... —
Jan. — The Studio Girl (Constance Talmadge). ..... —

Triangle Distributing Corporation

Dec. 2. The Sudden Gentleman (Wm. Desmond) 5
Dec. 2. The Ship of Doom (Claire McDowell) 5
Dec. 9. Fanatics (J. Barney Sherry)..... 5
Dec. 9. The Learnin' of Jim Benton (Roy Stewart) 5
Dec. 16. Because of the Woman (Billie Bennett) 5
Dec. 16. The Maternal Spark (Irene Hunt).. 5
Dec. 23. Without Honor (Margery Wilson. 5
Dec. 23. Until They Get Me (Pauline Hart). 5
Dec. 30. The Gown of Destiny (Alma Ruebens) 5
Dec. 30. Framing Framers (Charles Gunn).. 5
Jan. 6. Betty Takes a Hand (Olive Thomas) 5
Jan. 6. Man Above the Law (Jack Richardson) 5
Jan. 13. I Love You (Alma Ruebens)..... 7
Jan. 13. Law's Outlaw (Roy Stewart)..... 5
Jan. 20. The Gun Woman (Texas Guinan).. 5
Jan. 20. Mr. Butterfly (Darrell Foss)..... 5
Jan. 27. Evidence (J. Barney Sherry)..... 5
Jan. 27. Real Folks (Jack Mulhall)..... 5

Vitagraph V-L-S-E.

Nov. 5. The Fetered Woman (Alice Joyce, Webster Campbell) 5
Nov. 12. I Will Repay (Corinne Griffith, Mary Maurice, William Dunn).... 5
Nov. 19. The Grell Mystery (Earle Williams, Miriam Miles) 5
Nov. 26. Who Goes There? (Harry Morey, Corinne Griffith) 5
Dec. 3. The Tenderfoot (William Duncan, Carol Holloway) 5
Dec. 10. The Marriage Speculation (Mildred Manning, Wallace MacDonald)... 5
Dec. 17. In the Balance (Earle Williams)... 5
Dec. 24. When Men Are Tempted (Mary Anderson, Alfred Whitman)..... 5
Dec. 31. His Own People (Harry Morey, Gladys Leslie) 5

Wholesome Films Corporation

The Penny Philanthropist (Peggy O'Neil and Ralph Morgan), D..... 5
Cinderella and the Magic Slipper (Special Children's Cast), Juv..... 4
His Awful Downfall (Rex Adams), 1,000 feet, C.
Little Red Riding Hood (Juvenile), 4,000 feet.

World Pictures

Oct. 15. Shall We Forgive Her (June Elvidge, Arthur Ashley)..... 5
Oct. 22. The Dormant Power (Ethel Clayton) 5
Oct. 29. The Burglar (Carlyle Blackwell, Madge Evans, Evelyn Greeley)... 5
Nov. 5. The Maid of Belgium (Alice Brady) 5
Nov. 12. The Adventures of Carol (Madge Evans) 5
Nov. 19. Easy Money (Ethel Clayton)..... 5
Nov. 26. Her Hour (Kitty Gordon)..... 5
Dec. 3. The Awakening (Montagu Love and Dorothy Kelly) 5
Dec. 10. The Good for Nothing (Carlyle Blackwell and Evelyn Greeley)... 5
Dec. 17. The Tenth Case (June Elvidge).... 5
Dec. 24. The Volunteer (Madge Evans and Henry Hull) 5
Dec. 31. The Wasp (Kitty Gordon)..... 5

Releases in the Independent Field

For Manufacturers' Addresses, Names and Addresses of Buyers handling films in any territory, or any other additional information write—State Rights Department, Motion Picture News

American News Weekly
One reel each week exclusively on Army and Navy activities.

American Standard M. P. Corp.
May 5. Jones' Jonah Day (Sunshine), C..1 reel
May 7. When Justice Errs, D.....5 reels
May 12. (Educational Subject) .....1 reel
May 14. The Daughter of Darkness, Episode No. 1, D.....2 reels
May 19. Ghosts (Sunshine), C.....1 reel
Sept. 17. My Country First.....6 parts
Oct. 7. The Mystery of the Boule.....5 parts
Oct. 15. Blackmailer .....5 parts

Anti-Vice Film Company
Is Any Girl Safe?.....5 reels

Argosy Films, Inc.
The Celebrated Stielow Case.....6 reels
Where D'ye Get That Stuff.....5 reels
Absinthe (King Baggott), Universal Reissue .....5 reels

Arizona Film Company
Should She Obey.....— reels

Arrow Film Corporation
The Deemster (Derwent Hall Caine).....7 reels

Rex Beach Pictures Co.
The Barrier .....9 reels

Bernstein Film Production
June —. Who Knows?.....6 reels

Bluebird Extraordinary
Sept. 3. Mother o' Mine (Rupert Julian and Ruth Clifford) .....5 reels
The Eagle's Wings (Herbert Rawlinson).
Hell Morgan's Girl (Dorothy Phillips).
Mother o' Mine (Rupert Julian, Ruth Clifford, Ruby La Fayette).

Brenon Productions
Lone Wolf .....7 parts
Fall of the Romanoffs .....8 parts
Empty Pockets .....7 parts

JULES BURNSTEIN
Shame .....7 parts

Cardinal Film Corporation
Joan the Woman (Geraldine Farrar).....11 reels

Century Comedies
(FEATURING ALICE HOWELL)
Balloonatics .....2 reels
Automaniacs .....2 reels
Neptune's Naughty Daughter.....2 reels

Benjamin Cahpin Productions
(CHAPTER FEATURES CORP.)
My Mother .....2 reels
My Father .....2 reels
Myself .....2 reels
The Call to Arms.....2 reels

Christie Film Company
Father's Bright Idea.....1 reel
With the Mummies' Help.....1 reel
The Magic Maid.....1 reel
The Milky Way.....1 reel
His Last Pill.....1 reel
The Fourteenth Man.....1 reel
Down by the Sea.....1 reel
Skirts .....1 reel
Won in a Cabaret.....1 reel
His Merry Mix-Up.....1 reel
A Smoky Love Affair.....1 reel

Cinema Distributing Corp.
The 13th Labor of Hercules.

Claridge Films, Inc.
The Birth of Character.....5 reels
The Heart of New York.....5 reels

Clune Productions
Ramona .....8 reels
Eyes of the World.....9 reels

Commonwealth Pictures Corp.
Chariotte.
The Frozen Warning.

Corona Cinema Company
The Curse of Eve (Enid Markey).....7 reels

Coronet Film Corporation
LIVING STUDIES IN NATURAL HISTORY
Animal World, No. 1 Issue.
Animal World, No. 2 Issue.
Birdland Studies.
Horticultural Phenomena.

Cosmofotofilm Company
Incomparable Mistress Bellairs.....4 reels
Liberty Hall .....4 reels
The Black Spot.....4 reels
Victoria Cross .....4 reels
On 18 .....4 reels
His Vindication .....5 reels
I Believe .....7 reels

Creative Film Corporation
The Girl Who Didn't Think (Jane Gail)..6 reels

Dixie Films
Tempest and Sunshine (Evelyn Greely)..5 reels
Just a Song at Twilight.....5 reels

Frank P. Donovan Productions
July—Billy, the Governess (Billy Quirk)..1 reel
Aug.—Butting in Society (Lou Marks)...1 reel
Aug.—After Her Dough (Lou Marks)....1 reel
Aug.—Bunked in Bunkville (Geo. Ross)..1 reel
Aug.—His Dirty Career (Lou Marks).....1 reel
Aug.—Trying it Twice (Mabel Trinneer)..1 reel
Aug.—Helen of Troy (All-Star Cast).....5 reels
Sept.—His Foolish Way (Geo. Thelian)...1 reel
Sept.—At the Barber's Ball (Lou Marks).2 reels
Sept.—Was She to Blame? (in prep.).
Sept.—In and Out (Tammany Young).....1 reel
Sept.—His Flying Flivver (C. J. Van Duesen and Pearl Shepard).....2 reels

Ebony Film Corporation
A Natural Born Shooter.....1 reel
Dat Blackhand Waitah Man.....1 reel
Shine Johnson and the Rabbit's Foot.....1 reel

E. I. S. Motion Picture Corp.
Trooper 44 .....5 reels

Elmont Feature Film Co.
People vs. John Doe.....6 reels
God's Law .....6 reels

Enlightment Corporation
Enlighten Thy Daughter.....7 reels

Eugenic Film Company
Birth .....6 reels

European Film Company
Fighting for Verdun.....5 reels

Exclusive Features, Inc.
Where Is My Father?.....7 reels

Export and Import Film Co.
Robespierre .....— reels
Ivan the Terrible.....— reels

Fairmount Film Corporation
Hate .....7 reels

Flora Finch Film Co.
War Prides .....2 reels

First National Exhibitors' Circuit, Inc.
On Trial.
Charles Chaplin.

Bud Fisher Film Corporation
July 9. Cows and Caws.
July 16. Submarine Chasers.
July 23. Cheese Tamers.
July 30. Janitors.
Aug. 6. A Chemical Calamity.
Aug. 13. As Prospectors.

Fort Pitt Corporation
The Italian Battlefront.

Fox Film Corp.
(Standard Pictures)
The Spy.
The Honor System.
Jack and the Beanstalk.
The Conqueror.
Camille.
Oct. 18. Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp.
Nov. 18. The Babes in the Wood.

Fraternity Films, Inc.
The Devil's Playground (Vera Michelena)— reels

Frieder Film Corporation
The Birds' Christmas Carol (Mary Louise).5 reels
A Bit O' Heaven (Mary Louise).....5 reels

Friedman Enterprises
A Mormon Maid (Mae Murray).....6 reels

Frohman Amusement Corp.
The Witching Hour (C. Aubrey Smith, Jack Sherrill, Helen Arnold, Marie Shotwell and Robert Conness.....6 reels
Conquest of Canaan.....5 reels
God's Man .....9 reels

Joseph M. Gaites
The Italian Battlefront.

General Enterprises, Inc.
Mother (Elizabeth Risdon, McClure)....6 parts
The Warrior (Maciste) (McClure).....7 parts
The Liar (Jane Gail, Stanley Walpole)...6 parts

Gold Medal Photoplays
The Web of Life (Hilda Nord, James Cruze, George Spencer).....5 reels

Golden Features
A Bit of Life.....1 reel

Grand Feature Film Company
Rex Beach on the Spanish Main.....5 reels
Rex Beach in Pirate Haunts.....5 reels
Rex Beach in Footsteps of Capt. Kidd....5 reels

Graphic Features
The Woman and the Beast.....5 reels

D. W. Griffith
Intolerance .....9 reels

Frank Hall Productions, Inc.
(A. H. Jacobs, Prod.)
Her Fighting Chance (Jane Grey).....— reels
The Bar Sinister.....— reels

Hanover Film Company
Maciste .....— reels
How Uncle Sam Prepares.....4 reels

William S. Hart
The Cold Deck .....5 D
The Two Gun Man.....5 D

Hawk Film Corporation
Monster of Fate.....— reels

Herald Film Corporation
Around the World in 80 Days.....6 reels

Hiller & Wilk, Inc.
The Battle of Gettysburg.....— reels
The Wrath of the Gods (Sessue Hayakawa).5 reels

Hippodrome Film Co.
At the Front with the Allies.

Historic Features
Christus .....8 reels

M. H. Hoffman, Inc.
The Fringe of Society (Ruth Roland and Milton Sills) .....7 reels
One Hour (Zeena Keefe and Alan Hale).6 reels
The Silent Witness (Gertrude McCoy)...6 reels
A Trip Through China (Brodsky's Art Pictures) .....8 reels
Her Fighting Chance (Jane Grey).....6 reels
Should She Obey? (Alice Wilson, Gene Genung and Norbert Myles).....6 reels
Whither Thou Goest (Rhea Mitchell and Orrin Johnson) .....5 reels
The Great White Trail (Doris Kenyon)..6 reels

Iliodor Picture Corporation
The Fall of the Romanoffs (Iliodor, Nance O'Neil, Ekaterina Galanta, Alfred Hickman and Conway Tearle).....— reels

Inter Ocean Film Corp.
Enlighten Thy Daughter.....— reels

Ivan Film Productions
One Law for Both.....8 reels
Babbling Tongues .....6 reels

Juvenile Film Corporation
World War in Kidland.....1 reel
A Chip Off the Old Block.....1 reel
Chip's Elopement .....1 reel
Chip's Backyard Barn-Stormers.....2 reels
Chip's Rivals .....1 reel
For Sale, a Daddy.....1 reel
Chip's Carmen .....2 reels

(Continued on page 137)

Short Subjects Current and Coming

Educational Film Corp. of Amer.

SCENICS—EDUCATIONAL

Oct. 24. From Studio to Screen.
Oct. 31. A Trip Through Japan, No. 1.
Nov. 7. A Flying Trip Through the Hawaiian Islands, No. 1.
Nov. 14. A Flying Trip Through the Hawaiian Islands, No. 2.
Nov. 21. Me and My Dog.
Nov. 28. The Chain Gang.
Dec. 5. The Land of Enchantment (Yosemite Valley).
Dec. 12. Fishing for Fish.
Dec. 19. A Trip Through Japan, No. 2.
Dec. 26. Beside the Glimmer Glass.

DITMARS "LIVING BOOK OF NATURE"

Nov. 19. The Animals of Australia.
Nov. 26. The Smaller Monkeys.
Dec. 3. Enemies of the Garden.
Dec. 10. Our Vanishing Game.
Dec. 17. Nature's Weavers.
Dec. 24. Nature's Songsters.
Dec. 31. The Animals in Midsummer.

Fox Sunshine Comedies

Nov. 11. Roaring Lions and Wedding Bells..2 C
Nov. 18. A Milk-Fed Vamp.....2 C
Dec. 9. His Smashing Career.....2 C
Dec. 23. Damaged—No Goods .....2 C
Jan. 6. Shadows of Her Pest.....2 C
Jan. 13. Are Married Policemen Safe?.....2 C

General Film Company

BROADWAY STAR FEATURES
(O. HENRY STORIES)

A Night in New Arabia (J. Frank Glendon, Patsy DeForest).....4 D
The Enchanted Kiss (Chet Ryan, Frances Parks .....2 C-D
The Renaissance at Charleroi (J. Frank Glendon, Agnes Eyre).....4 D
Hygeia at the Solito (Chet Ryan, W. L. Rogers) .....2 D
The Skylight Room (Jean Paige, Carlton King) .....4 D
One Dollar's Worth (Chet Ryan, Frances Parks) .....2 D
The Last Leaf (Mildred Manning, Bernard Siegel, Patsy De Forest).....2 D
Two Renegades (Chet Ryan, W. L. Rodgers) .....2 C-D
Whistling Dick's Christmas Stocking (George Cooper, Adele De Garde)....2 C-D
The Fourth in Salvador (Chet Ryan, W. L. Rodgers) .....2 C-D
The Clarion Call (Walter McGrail, Alice Terry) .....2 D

ESSANAY
("THE BLACK CAT STORIES")

The Long Green Trail (Virginia Valli, Rodney La Rock).....2 D
Don't Lose Your Coat.....2 C
Star Dust (Margaret Clayton).....C-D

GEORGE ADE FABLES

The Fable of All That Triangle Stuff as Sized Up by the Meal Ticket.....2 C
The Fable of the Film-Fed Family.....2 C
The Fable of the Uplifter and His Dandy Little Opus .....2 C
The Fable of the Girl Who Took Notes and Got Wise and Then Fell Down.....2 C
The Fable of the Toilsome Ascent and the Shining Table Land.....2 C
The Fable of the Back Trackers from the Hot Sidewalks.....2 C

ESSANAY COMEDIES (1 reel)

Hard Luck .....1 C
The General .....1 C
A Depot Romeo.....1 C
Make Your Eyes Behave.....1 C
Lunch .....1 C

ESSANAY SCENICS

Salmon Fishing in New Brunswick.....1 Sc.
Lake Louise .....1 Sc.
Banff National Park.....1 Sc.
The Great National Industries of Canada..1 Sc.
Water Powers of Western Canada.....1 Sc.
Through Canada from Coast to Coast.....1 Sc.
How Canada and the Farmer Co-operate in Grain Raising .....1 Sc.

CHAPLIN COMEDIES

The Champion .....2 C
A Jitney Elopement.....2 C
By the Sea.....1 C
In the Park.....1 C
Work .....2 R

FALCON FEATURES

Feet of Clay (Margaret Landis, R. Henry Grey).....4 D
Brand's Daughter (Kathleen Kirkham, R. Henry Grey) .....4 D
His Old-Fashioned Dad (Daniel Gilfether, Mollie McConnell) .....4 D
Zollenstein (Vola Vale, Monroe Salisbury)..4 D

KALEM
(AMERICAN GIRL SERIES WITH MARIN SAIS)

The Man Hunt at San Remo.....2 D
The Door in the Mountain.....2 D
Sagebrush Law .....2 D

("THE FURTHER ADVENTURES OF STINGAREE" WITH TRUE BOARDMAN)

Through Fire and Water.....2 D
A Bushranger's Strategy.....2 D
The Stranger at Dumcrieff.....2 D
A Champion of the Law.....2 D

(HAM AND BUD COMEDIES)

The Boot and the Loot.....1 C
A Whirlwind of Whiskers.....1 C
The Onion Magnate's Revenge.....1 C
The Bath Tub Bandit.....1 C

GRANT, POLICE REPORTER SERIES

The Mystery of Room 422.....1 D
A Deal in Bonds.....1 D
The Sign of the Scarf.....1 D
The Man with the Limp.....1 D

.. A DAUGHTER OF DARING SERIES

A Race to the Drawbridge.....1 D
The Munitions Plot.....1 D
The Detective's Danger.....1 D
The Railroad Smugglers.....1 D
The Deserted Engine.....1 D

JAXON COMEDIES

Too Much Alike.....1 C
Barnyard Frolics .....1 C
Breaking In .....1 C
Blundering Boobs .....1 C
Disappointed Love .....1 C
He's In Again.....1 C
How It Worked.....1 C
Their Model Careers.....1 C
His Fishy Footsteps.....1 C

SPARKLE COMEDIES

Week End Shopping (Kate Price, Billy Ruge) 1 C
Pals .....1 C
Ambition .....1 C
In High Speed.....1 C
A Bargain, $37.50.....1 C
Monkey-Maid-Man .....1 C
On the Love Line.....1 C
The Detective .....1 C
Smashing the Plot.....1 C
After the Matinee.....1 C
Double Cross .....1 C
The Best of a Bad Bargain.....1 C

JOHNNY AND EMMA RAY COMEDIES

A Laundry Mix-Up.....1 C
A Peaceful Flat.....1 C
Cheating His Wife.....1 C
A Bathtub Marriage.....1 C

KLEINE
(GEORGE BICKEL COMEDIES)

A Suit and a Suitor.....1 C
Nearly a Husband.....1 C
Some Statue .....1 C

SELIG

The Law North of 65.....2 D
Vengeance vs. Mercy.....1 D
Training Our Khaki-Clad Heroes.....2 Military
The Angel of Poverty Row.....1 D
The Rustler's Vindication.....2 D
The Witness for the State.....1 D

THREE C COMEDIES

His Watery Waterloo (Lou Marks).....1 C
Fat and Foolish (Hughey Mack).....1 C
A Harem Romance (Lou Marks, Pearl Shepard, Oom Paul).....1 C
His Winning Ways (Lou Marks, Pearl Shepard, Oom Paul).....1 C
A Boarding House Battle (Lou Marks, Pearl Shepard) .....1 C
Stealing a Sweetheart (Lou Marks, Pearl Shepard, Oom Paul).....1 C
A Hash House Romance (Lou Marks, Pearl Shepard, Oom Paul).....1 C
The Hod Carrier's Million (Claude Cooper, Virginia Tracy Clark, Kenneth Clarendon) .....1 C

HANOVER FILM COMPANY

Camille (Helen Hesperia).....6 D
The Marvelous Maciste.....6 D

PHYSICAL CULTURE PHOTO PLAYS CO.

Physical Culture Magazine (Issued Monthly) .....1 Edc.

PIEDMONT PICTURES CORPORATION
(SELBURN COMEDIES)

Hubby's Holiday.....2 C
Too Much Elephant.....1 C
His College Proxy.....1 C
Wedding Bells and Lunatics.....1 C

Inter-Allied Films

July 14. Cine Topics.....1 Ed.

King Bee Comedies

Nov. 1. The Hobo .....2 reels
Nov. 15. The Pest .....2 reels
Dec. 1. The Bandmaster .....2 reels
Dec. 15. The Slave.....2 reels
Jan. 1. The Stranger.....2 reels

Kleine Exchanges

ESSANAY SERIES—DO CHILDREN COUNT?
(Featuring Little Mary McAlister)

Aug. 1. The Season of Childhood.....2 D
Aug. 8. The Little White Girl.....2 D
Aug. 15. The Bridge of Fancy.....2 D
Aug. 22. The Kingdom of Hope.....2 D

SELIG-HOYT COMEDIES

Aug. 6. A Dog in the Manger.....2 C
Aug. 20. A Trip to Chinatown.....2 C
Sept. 3. A Midnight Bell.....2 C
Sept. 17. A Contented Woman.....2 C

Metro Pictures Corporation

METRO-DREW COMEDIES

Dec. 3. Too Much Henry.....1 C
Dec. 10. Wages No Object.....1 C
Dec. 17. The Spirit of Merry Christmas.....1 C
Dec. 24. The Unmarried Look.....1 C
Dec. 31. Shadowing Henry.....1 C
Jan. 7. Their Mutual Motor.....1 C
Jan. 14. Why Henry Left Home.....1 C
Jan. 21. Their First Love.....1 C
Jan. 28. Under the Influence.....1 C

Mutual Film Corporation

Monday, December 24, 1917

MUTUAL—Mutual Weekly, No. 156.....1 Top

Thursday, December 27, 1917

CUB—Jerry's Best Friend (George Ovey)....1 C

STRAND (BILLIE RHODES)

Dec. 4. Just Kidding .....1 reel
Dec. 11. Putting One Over.....1 reel
Dec. 18. Little Miss Fixer.....1 reel
Dec. 25. Mary's Boomerang.....1 reel

Monday, December 31, 1917

MUTUAL—Mutual Weekly, No. 1.....1 Top
Jan. 1. Her Awfuul Fix.....1 reel

Serials

Dec. 3. The Lost Express, No. 12 (Daring Death) .....
Dec. 10. The Lost Express, No. 13 (The Escape) .....2 D
Dec. 17. The Lost Express, No. 14 (Unmasked) .....2 D
Dec. 24. The Lost Express, No. 15 (The Return of the Lost Express).....2 D

MUTUAL-CHAPLINS

Oct. 29. The Adventurer.....2 C

Paramount Pictures Corporation

KLEVER KOMEDIES (Victor Moore).

Dec. 3. Toothaches nad Heartaches.....1 C
Dec. 19. The Instalment Plan.....1 C
Dec. 31. O. U. Boat.....1 C

BLACK DIAMOND COMEDIES

Oct. 7. Susie Slips One Over.....1 C
Oct. 15. Nearly a Baker.....1 C
Nov. 12. A Society Scrimmage.....1 C

ARBUCKLE COMEDIES

Oct. 29. Fatty at Coney Island.....1 C
Dec. 10. A Country Hero.....1 C

BURTON HOLMES TRAVEL PICTURES

Dec. 3. Osaka to Nagasaki.....1 Trav.
Dec. 10. Canning Time in California.....1 Trav.
Dec. 17. In Glacier Park.....1 Trav.
Dec. 24. Going to the Sun.....1 Trav.
Dec. 31. On the Farm Where the Food Comes From.....1 Trav.

WHO IS NUMBER ONE? (Serial)

Dec. 3. Episode 6. The Flight of the Fury.2 D
Dec. 10. Episode 7. Hearts in Torment....2 D
Dec. 17. Episode 8. Walls of Gas.....2 D
Dec. 24. Episode 9. Struck Down.....2 D
Dec. 31. Episode 10. Wires of Wrath.....2 D
Jan. 7, Episode 11. The Rail Raiders.....2 D
Jan. 14. Episode 12. The Show Down.....2 D
Jan. 21. Episode 13. Cornered .....2 D
Jan. 28. Episode 14. No Surrender .....2 D
Feb. 4. Episode 15. The Round-Up.....2 D

MACK SENNETT COMEDIES

Nov. 4. Pullman Bride .....1 C
Nov. 18 Are Waitresses Safe?.....1 C
Dec. 2. An International Sneak.....1 C
Dec. 16. That Night .....1 C
Dec. 30. Taming Target Center.....1 C

PARAMOUNT-BRAY PICTOGRAPHS

Oct. 28. Adirondack Trails; Jewelry and Personality; A Potato Skyscraper; Bobby Bumps, Chef, by Earl Hurd.

(Continued on page 137)

(Continued from page 135)

A. Kay Co.

Twenty Thousand Feats Under the Sea....
Golden Spoon Mary.....1 C
Some Barrier .....1 C
His Trial .....1 C
(Terry Human Interest Reels)
No. 1. Character as Revealed in the Face...Ed.
No. 2. Character as Revealed in the Eyes...1d.

Klotz and Streimer

Whither Thou Goest.....5 reels
The Secret Treaty.....5 reels

Lincoln Motion Picture Company

The Realization of a Negro's Ambitions...2 reels
Trooper of Troop K.....3 reels

Marine Film Co.

Lorelei of the Sea.....— reels

C. Post Marion Enterprises

The Wonder City of the World (Greater N. Y. by Day and Night).....4 reels

Masterpiece Drama Productions

Who's Your Neighbor?..... —

Masterpictures

LION COMEDIES
Oct. 29. Nathan Busts Into the Movies....1 C
Nov. 5. A Village Villain.....1 C
Nov. 12. Her Fatal Resemblance.....1 C
Nov. 19. An Account of a No-Account Count.1 C
Nov. 26. Hicks and Hornets.....1 C
Dec. 3. Waves and Wimmen.....1 C
Dec. 10. Fizzled Finance .....1 C

Mayfair Film Corp.

Persuasive Peggy.....— reels

Moral Uplifht Society of America

It May Be Your Daughter..... —

Mo-Toy Comedies

Midnight Frolic.
Jimmy Gets the Pennant.
Out in the Rain.
In Jungle Land.
A Kitchen Romance.
Mary and Gretel.
Dinkling of the Circus.
A Trip to the Moon.
Goldie Locks and the Three Bears.
Dolly Doings.
School Days.

B. S. Moss M. P. Corporation

Birth Control .....6 reels
The Power of Evil.....5 reels
Boots and Saddles.....5 reels
The Girl Who Doesn't Know.....5 reels
In the Hands of the Law.....5 reels
One Hour (Sequel to "Three Weeks").. ....

Nevada Motion Picture Corp.

The Planter .....— reels

Newfields Producing Co.

Alma, Where Do You Live?.....6 reels

Ogden Pictures Corp.

The Lust of the Ages.....— reels

Paragon Films

The Whip .....8 reels

Peter Pan Film Corporation

(Mo-toy Troupe)
July 19. Little Red Riding Hood.....1 reel
July 26. Puss in Boots.....1 reel
Aug. 2. Jimmy the Soldier Boy.....1 reel
Aug. 9. Jimmie and Jam.....1 reel
Aug. 16. In Japoland .....1 reel
Photoplay Magazine—Screen Supplement—One-reel releases, giving intimate interviews of all the stars. (Through independent exchanges.)

Popular Picture Corporation

Corruption .....6 reels

Private Feature Film

Ignorance (Earle Metcalfe).....6 reels

Public Rights Film Corporation

The Public Be Damned (Charles Richman and Mary Fuller).....5 reels

Purkall Film Co.

The Liar .....6 reels

Radio Film Company

Satan the Destroyer of Humanity.....7 reels
The Spirit of 1917 (James J. Harkness and Carl Sturmer).....— reels

Renowned Pictures Corporation

In Treason's Grasp (Grace Cunard and Francis Ford) .....5 reels
Weavers of Life.....5 reels

Select Photoplay Co.

Humanity 6.reels

Selig Special

Bewar_ of Strangers.....7 reels
The Ne'er-Do-Well.....8 reels
The Garden of Allah (Selig).....10 reels
Who Shall Take My Life?.....— reels

Frank J. Seng

Parentage .....7 reels

Sherman Eliot, Inc.

The Crisis .....10 reels

Sherman Pictures Corporation

I Believe .....7 reels
The Land of the Rising Sun

Signet Film Corporation

The Masque of Life.....7 reels

Standard Newsfilm, Inc.

Demons of the Air.....2 reels

Julius Steger

Redemption .....6 reels

Moe Streimer

A Daughter of the Don.....10 reels

Submarine Film Corporation

The Submarine Eye.....7 reels

Ultra Film Co.

A Day at West Point.....
West Is West.....
The Rustler's Frame-up at Big Horn.....

Unity Sales Corporation

The Bishop's Secret.....4 reels
The Lottery Man.....5 reels
The Marriage Bond.....5 reels

Universal Film Mfg. Company

Robinson Crusoe (Robert Leonard and Margarita Fischer).....4 reels
Hell Morgan's Girl.....5 reels
Come Through .....7 reels

Variety Films Corporation

My Country First.....6 reels
The Pursuing Vengeance.....5 reels
The Price of Her Soul.....7 reels

Victoria Feature Films

The Fated Hour.....6 reels
The Slave Mart.....5 reels

World Pictures

Over Here .....5 reels

RELEASES IN SHORT SUBJECTS

(Continued from page 136)

Nov. 4. Harvesting War Timber; Uncle Sam's Hints, No. 4, to Housewives, The Fireless Cooker; Goodrich Dirt at the Training Camp.
Nov. 11. Most Beautiful of Far Eastern Arts; Farming for Furs; Putting Volcanoes to Work.
Nov. 18. Straw Weavers of the Tropics; Uncle Sam's Hints, No. 5, How to Preserve Eggs; Over the Jumps with Army Tractors; Bobby Bumps at Fido's Birthday Party.
Nov. 25. The World's Greatest Mounted Police; Trench Torches; The Gasoline Engine.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

Sunday, December 23, 1917
The Seven Pearls, No. 15. "The Seventh Pearl" (Mollie King, Creighton Hale, Leon Bary), Astra.....2 D
The Hidden Hand, No. 5. "The Air Lock" (Doris Kenyon, Sheldon Lewis, Arline Pretty, Mahlon Hamilton), Pathe.....2 D
Bashful (Harold Lloyd, Bebe Daniels, Harry Pollard), Rolin .....1 C
The Pearl of the Atlantic (Colored), Belle Isle, Picturesque Brittany (Trav.) and Strange Fresh Water Insects (Colored), Educ. .....Split Reel
Katzenjammer Kids, "Fast and Furious" (Cart.), International, and Indiana Limestone (Educ.), Industrial .....Split Reel
Wednesday, December 26, 1917
Hearst-Pathe News, No. 104.....1 top
Saturday, December 29, 1917
Hearst-Pathe News, No. 105.....1 top
Sunday, December 30, 1917
The Hidden Hand, No. 6. "The Flower of Death" (Doris Kenyon, Sheldon Lewis, Arline Pretty, Mahlon Hamilton), Pathe.2 D
The Eighth Annual Round-Up, Pendleton, Oregon .....3 top
Argus Pictorial, No. 4.....1 Ed.
Step Lively (Harold Lloyd, Bebe Daniels, Harry Pollard), Rolin .....1 C
Rocky Mountain Park (Combitone), Earle 1 Trav.
Katzenjammer Kids, "Peace and Quiet" (Cart); "Making the Comic Section," International, Ed. .....Split reel
Wednesday, January 2, 1918
Hearst-Pathe News, No. 2.....1 top
Saturday, January 5, 1918
Hearst-Pathe News, No. 3.....1 top

Triangle Distributing Corp.

TRIANGLE COMEDIES
Jan. 6. Matrimonial Breaker.....1 C
Jan. 6. His Day of Doom.....1 C
Jan. 13. A Straight Crook.....1 C
Jan. 13. A Marriage Not.....1 C
Jan. 20. Their Indian Uncle.....1 C
Jan. 20. The Price of His Head.....1 C
Jan. 27. A Butler Bust-Up.....1 C
Jan. 27. Too Many Husbands.....1 C
KEYSTONE RELEASES
Jan. 6. His Hidden Shame (Max Asher, Dora Rogers, Alice Davenport, Alatia Morton, Marianne Delatorre).....2 C
Jan. 13. His Punctured Reputation (Wm. Franey, Dale Fuller, Maude Wayne, Milt Sims) .....2 C
Jan. 20. Dimples and Dangers (Harry Gribbon, Dora Rogers, Frank Bond, Claire Anderson) .....2 C
Jan. 27. Courts and Cab Ants (Peggy Pearce, Baldy Belmont, Marianne Delatorre, Max Asher) .....2 C

Universal Film Company

Monday, January 7, 1918
NESTOR—Cave Man Stuff (Gale Henry, William Franey) .....1 C
Wednesday, January 9, 1918
L-KO—Torpedo Pirates (Hughie Mack).....2 C
UNIVERSAL ANIMATED WEEKLY—Weekly No. 6.
Saturday, January 12, 1918
UNIVERSAL SCREEN MAGAZINE—Issue No. 53.
UNIVERSAL CURRENT EVENTS—Issue No. 35 (Shipping date, January 5).
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL—New Enemies (Thirteenth Episode of "The Red Ace" Serial) .....2 D
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL—One Minute to Live (Seventh Episode of "The Mystery Ship" Serial) .....2 D
Monday, January 14, 1918
NESTOR—Maimed in a Hospital (Dave Morris, Max Asher, Gladys Tennyson)...1 C
Wednesday, January 16, 1918
L-KO—Home Run Ambrose (Mack Swain)..2 C
UNIVERSAL ANIMATED WEEKLY—Weekly No. 7.
Saturday, January 19, 1918
UNIVERSAL SCREEN MAGAZINE—Issue No. 54.
UNIVERSAL CURRENT EVENTS—Issue No. 36 (Shipping date, January 12).
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL—The Fugitives (Fourteenth Episode of "The Red Ace" Serial) .....2 D
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL—Hidden Hands (Eighth Episode of "The Mystery Ship" Serial) .....2 D

Vitagraph

BOBBY CONNELLY SERIES
Nov. 5. Bobby to the Rescue.
Nov. 12. Bobby's Country Adventure.
Nov. 19. Bobby Takes a Wife.
Nov. 26. Bobby the Magician.
THE FIGHTING TRAIL SERIES
Dec. 3. Epi. 13. The Water Trap.....2 parts
Dec. 10. Epi. 14. The Trestle of Hororrs.2 parts
Dec. 17. Epi. 15. Out of the Flame.....2 parts
Dec. 3. Spooks and Spasms.
BIG V COMEDIES
Dec. 10. Frauds and Free Lunch.
Dec. 17. Noisy Naggers and Nosey Neighbors.
VITAGRAPH COMEDIES
Dec. 3. A Family Flivver (Edward Earle, Agnes Ayres).
Dec. 10. Paging Page Two (Edward Earle, Agnes Ayres).
VENGEANCE AND THE WOMAN (Serial)
Dec.24. The Oak (First Episode) (Wm. Duncan, Carol Holloway).
Dec. 31. Loaded Dice (Second Episode) (Wm. Duncan, Carol Holloway).

Favorite Film Features

Dec. 3. The Golden Pathway (Mary Charleson, Jane Fearnley, Naomi Childers, Maurice Costello, Robert Gaillard, Brinsley Shaw).....2 D
Dec. 3. His Little Page (Norma Talmadge, Leo Delaney, Van Dyke Brooke).1 C
Dec. 10. Mrs. Bingle's Melodrama (Flora Finch, Kate Price, James Lackaye, Hughie Mack, William Shea, William Humphrey) .....2 C
Dec. 10. Tim Grogan's Foundling (Norma Talmadge, Kate Price, Helen Costello, Van Dyke Brooke, Courtnay Foote) .....1 D
Dec. 17. The Call (Edith Storey, E. K. Lincoln, Gladden James, Ralph Ince).2 D
Dec. 17. No Sweets (Flora Finch, Kate Price, Hughie Mack, Charles Eldridge) .....1 C

MOTION PICTURE CAMERAS
Now At Your Disposal Bass Tested and Guaranteed.
Used Universals; latest models, complete with 50 mm. Tessar F; 3.5 lens $225. Universal Pan and Tilt tripod; list $90; slightly used, $50 Ernemann, $85; Urbans, $75; Prestwich Professional, $110. Write or Wire.
Get complete list and catalogue. America's motion picture camera headquarters.
BASS CAMERA COMPANY
108 North Dearborn St.
Chicago, U. S. A.

TransVerteR
Automatically supplies only such voltage as arc requires. No waste of current in ballast.
HERTNER ELECTRIC & MFG. CO.
W. 114th St., Cleveland, Ohio, U.S.A.

PERFECT DEVELOPING AND PRINTING
TITLES, made on Eastman Stock
Tinting and Toning
Camera Men Furnished
Best workmanship guaranteed
LET US BE OF SERVICE TO YOU
ROTHACKER FILM MFG. CO.
1339-51 Diversey Parkway,
Chicago, U. S. A.

A Dollar Saved
is not only a dollar earned, but it's
An Earning Dollar
All supplies for the M. P. Theatre at fairer prices than you will pay elsewhere
IT PAYS TO DEAL HERE
Send for Price List "X"
INDEPENDENT MOVIE SUPPLY CO.
6th Floor 729 7th Ave., New York

Capacity and Art Laboratories
Capacity is closely related to Quality.
Our Capacity is small,—this means that every job gets full attention and that every foot of work is personally inspected by our Superintendent.
This insures Quality. Therefore, we guarantee satisfaction.
ART LABORATORIES
316 East 48th Street
Murray Hill 6973 Edmond Kuhn, Supt.
Office:
Bryant 8324 1476 Broadway
NEW YORK

"Just a Woman"

(Concluded from page 133)

Eugene Walter, the author, has displayed flashes of perfect dramatic technique in the construction of his plot. It is never strained in the main. He has branched out with a number of tangents, intended to hold the suspense more balanced, and in some of these, he resorts to forced situations which mar, not a little, the strength and sustaining interest inspired by the dramatic force with which the main plot is developed.

The human note is struck with a dramatic resonance that will find response in the heart of every man, woman and child who witness the performance. The author has brought this quality out with such force that even the constrained actions of Miss Walker can not force the appealing note into the background. Miss Walker disappoints in this production. She does not give the performance of which she is capable. For some reason, unknown to the writer, she chooses to present Mr. Walter's character of Anna Warde, without a perceptible change of facial expression excepting in one or two isolated scenes. The part demands that she portray the patient, hard-working housewife, but even in the lives of this class, there is a smile registered at times. Miss Walker holds a fixed, stolid expression for scene after scene without a change. The fault is heightened by the use of too much make-up on the lips.

Miss Walker is supported by a capable cast of players. Lee Baker has the principal role opposite. Ann Williams portrays the maid in true style. Edwin Stanley, Henry Carvel, Charles Kraus, Forest Robinson, Baby Valarie, Cornish Beck and Paul Perez complete the cast.

Director Steger has given "Just a Woman" an excellent production as to detail, settings and exterior scenes. The production can be classed with a little-above-the-average feature for the open market. It presents strong drama, and a smooth running story. Miss Walker has a wide reputation for her work behind the footlights and more recently before the camera. She is not as well known as some of the picture stars because she has not had the opportunity to appear on the screen with such frequency as others. Her name should draw, if well advertised. None of the members of the supporting cast are stars in any sense of the word. They represent the average player in support of featured roles. The light effects have been obtained with natural semblance. The photography is without a flaw.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Jim Warde (Lee Baker) is a worker in the steel mills. His wife, Ann (Charlotte Walker), is a loving, hardworking mate. A friend of Jim's invents a mechanical device to facilitate the making of steel rails. Jim's wife suggests that she invest the money she has saved from Jim's earnings in promoting a company to perfect and manufacture the machine. The machine proves a big success and Jim is made a director in the steel corporation.

With the acquisition of wealth and power Jim resorts to his former habit of drink. He is taken to New York by one of his fellow directors who wishes to oust him from the directorship. His fellow director has arranged with a woman of questionable character to win him from his wife. Her scheme is successful and Jim forsakes his wife. She induces Jim to sue for divorce, having placed hired servants to enter the home of Mrs. Warde to get evidence. The trial is had but Mrs. Warde refuses to retain counsel. She feels that she has lost and tells the presiding Judge that Jim is not the father of their little son. She lied to keep the stain from the child's name. She is informed that her son is to be taken from her and it is then that she recalls the statement and tells the Judge that she has lied. Jim confesses also that he has sworn falsely and is sentenced to a long term in prison.

When he is released he returns to his wife. The epilogue shows the little son grown to manhood and ready to depart for France. Jim returns to work in the steel factory and is happy though penniless.

Get Your Release Dates in By Saturday

Unless You Have The
Automaticket System
You Are Losing Money
1733 Broadway, New York

THE WEST COAST
Service Plus—to Readers
Circulation Plus—to Advertisers
TAKE ADVANTAGE OF IT

MUSIC for the EXHIBITOR
The
MOST COMPREHENSIVE DEPARTMENT
on
THIS SUBJECT CONDUCTED
in
ANY MOTION PICTURE TRADE JOURNAL

Keep Right on Going!

Some of the most helpful departments in MOTION PICTURE NEWS are found in the Accessory News.

There's "Music for the Picture"—with aids that your orchestra leader will warm right up to and thank you for calling to his attention.

There's "Projection"—a department of sound, hard, common sense and real aid.

There's "Worth While Theatres"—the department that keeps you up to date in knowledge of all the newest things in theatre necessities.

Yes!
Keep Right on Going!
—Or you will lose half your money's worth.

Accessory News

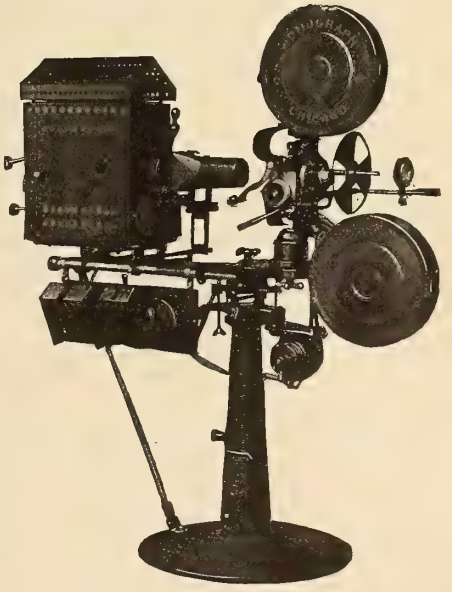
— SECTION OF MOTION PICTURE NEWS —

ARE YOU SATISFIED? DOES THAT SERVICE THAT YOU RECEIVE FROM YOUR PROJECTING MACHINE SATISFY?

TO give your patrons the very best projection you must have the very best projectors in your booth.

The MOTIOGRAPH service and projection is spoken of by every user as the most efficient projector today. Read what W. E. Drummond, of Knoxville, Tenn., says about the Motiograph after an eighteen months' use.

"Knoxville, Tenn., Dec. 12, 1917.



Enterprise Optical Mfg. Co.,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:

We have received the emergency mechanism which you sent us and will send our heads in for inspection. These machines have been used at our Maryville, Tenn., house for eighteen months.

It is a pleasure to buy from a house that keeps their promises like you have done in this matter, and any time I can speak a good word for the Motiograph you can rest assured that I will not lose an opportunity to do so.

Yours very truly,
(SD) W. E. DRUMMOND."

Write for literature

ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MANUFACTURING CO.
564-572 W. Randolph Street
Chicago, Ill.

Western Office: 833 Market Street
San Francisco, California

To All Motion Picture Exhibitors

WAR TAX!!

The undersigned committee of the Allied Exhibitors' Organizations of America elected by the Joint Conventions of all Exhibitors Organizations, held at Washington, D. C., December 11th and 12th, hereby request the fullest co-operation and assistance of every motion picture exhibitor in America.

We are charged with the duty of gathering the exact and absolute truth of how the war tax is effecting every motion picture theatre with a view of securing through united effort a readjustment of the war excise taxes on motion picture theatres and film for presentation to Congress.

Therefore, we respectfully request each and every exhibitor to fill out the following blank, giving the full facts and figures available, the experience of each theatre, and forward immediately by mail to:

FRANK REMBUSCH,
Secretary, Allied Exhibitors Legislative Committee,
Indianapolis, Indiana.

How does the business of your theatre for the month of November, 1916, compare with the month of November, 1917?

.....

Have you suffered a comparative loss? and to what do you attribute same?

.....

Did the war tax effect your business? and to what extent?

.....

General remarks:.....

.....

.....

Your answer will be doubly effective if you send it immediately.
A letter of explanation will be very acceptable.

ALLIED EXHIBITORS LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE

H. P. Varner of North Carolina, Chairman.
Lee A. Ochs of New York.
Ernest H. Horstmann of Massachusetts, Treasurer.
Judge O'Donnell of Pennsylvania.
Frank Rembusch of Indiana, Secretary.

Accessory News

SECTION OF MOTION PICTURE NEWS

Devoted to the technical branches of the motion picture industry, containing records of the latest accomplishments in the mechanical and scientific field; projection helps, inventions and suggestions; camera devices analyzed and commented upon; musical cue sheets for important feature pictures; improvements and innovations in the building and furnishing field.

No charge is made in these departments for answering questions of any nature. Correspondence is invited.

E. Kendall Gillett.....Editor

Alfred S. Cory.....Technical Editor

N. A.-M. L. and Exchanges

WE have already published letters from the Paramount Pictures Corporation and the General Film Company assuring the members of the National Anti-Misframe League that they are heart and soul behind the League in its determination to see to it that the physical condition of the film is materially improved.

Below are two more letters from the Fox Film Corporation and the Triangle Distributing Corporation. These two exchange systems are also enthusiastic over our work. With their co-operation, as well as that of the other systems, there is no doubt of the ultimate result.

FOX FILM CORPORATION
FEATURE FILMS
130 W. 46th Street,
NEW YORK.

December 10, 1917.

Mr. E. Kendall Gillett,
Motion Picture News, Inc.,
729 Seventh Avenue, N. Y. C.

Dear Sir: In reply to your communication of the 6th, I am pleased that you have taken the interest you have in the National Anti-Misframe League.

If I may, I would like to make a suggestion to your league, which undoubtedly will be of great interest, and will help considerably to correct the evil which we are endeavoring to correct.

If the operators would mark the jumps on the last showing of their performance, if any occur, by placing a slip of paper where those misframes occur the exchange examiners could then locate these jumps very readily, and take them out before delivery to the next operator.

To locate misframes is a very difficult matter, unless the print is screened. You know how impossible this is, and what hardship it would work upon the industry if the exchange screened each and every copy before delivery; in fact, it would be an utter impossibility.

I believe if the suggestion, such as I mentioned, were earnestly followed out by all operators of the United States, the life of the film would be very much prolonged and misframe would be reduced to a minimum.

Another suggestion: If the operator, upon finding a misframe in his subject, instead of turning the print over to his assistant, who at times is a mere boy, or when a break occurs in the reel, to himself repair it, and make the patch, I believe a great deal of the misframes would be avoided in their inception. Invariably, after tracing reels that have come into their exchange full of misframes, it was found that the assistant operator, or reel-boy, made the patches which caused these objectionable splices.

It is the ambition of every exchange manager, I believe, to be in harmony with every movement which would help eliminate the bad condition of film, and help prolong the life of any subject, therefore the National Anti-Misframe can count on me to do everything in my power to help along their good work.

Would be pleased to hear from you from time to time, as well as from your worthy publication, in regard to achievements of this league.

Yours very truly,
Fox Film Corporation.

TRIANGLE DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION
General Offices, 1457 Broadway, New York.

December 14, 1917.

Mr. E. K. Gillett, Treas.,
Motion Picture News, Inc.,
729 Seventh Avenue, New York City, N. Y.

Dear Mr. Gillett: Replying to your letter of the 6th, we have both a night and day force to inspect our film, and we keep track of every reel inspected, making note of the operator that inspects it. In addition to this, after each subject is inspected, we insert a slip, copy attached, inside one of the reels of the show and this slip then goes with the show to the exhibitor.

Should the exhibitor at any time find the film not in first-class condition, the exhibitor is then requested to immediately notify this office and we then take the matter up with the inspector that inspected the film.

We work at all times to send out our film in the very best condition and make it a rule never to allow any film to go to another exhibitor without being inspected first. The above system has greatly improved the condition of our films and with the co-operation of the operators we feel that this evil can be, and quickly, eliminated.

Yours very truly,
Triangle Distributing Corporation,
C. B. Price, Manager.

IT is clearly a case of reciprocity. There must be co-operation—and operator must help the exchange and the exchange get behind the operator. The suggestions in these letters are excellent and should be taken to heart. There is no doubt that film should be handled by the most competent hands possible and no patching should be done by a boy who knows nothing and cares less. This applies to the exchange as well as to the theatre.

Film and the result on the screen is all that theatre men have to sell to the public. It is what makes the wheels go around. It is this which keeps the studios open as well as the executive offices. It results directly in making a job for every operator, for, if the people refuse to see pictures they will not be made. Studios will be closed, theatres will close and the industry will go out of existence.

It is up to every member of our League and every other operator to do his share toward helping—no vandalism, no cut outs, no punch holes, in fact nothing which will in any way impair the value of the film.

Complain? certainly. If the exchanges are not doing their share, are sending out poor film, in bad condition, make a fuss. Do it direct to the head office or through the League, but do it, and do it strong, but don't forget your duty. E. K. Gillett.

Equipment Operating — Projection — Questions Answered

Optic Projection As a Problem in Illumination

By J. A. Orange, General Electric Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

[Editor's Note—In this paper the author, Mr. Orange, of the General Electric Research Laboratory, has treated the subject of projector optics from the "source surface" standpoint instead of from the conventional "point source" standpoint. While we do not subscribe to all of the statements, which follow, we commend Mr. Orange's article as a most rational exposition of the factors which determine screen brightness and efficiency in optical projection systems. The paper is reprinted from the Transactions of the Illuminating Engineering Society by kind permission of the Society.]

THE SCREEN PICTURE

As a preliminary to discussion of the magic lantern and moving picture projector it is convenient to consider the question of the most suitable brightness of the picture shown on the screen.

This matter has never been standardized, although there does not seem to be any particular obstacle in the way of some agreement as to the most desirable brightness in the heaviest shadows of a picture, expressed as a function of the general room illumination. A combination of experiment with tests on theatres should settle this point, but the connection between such brightness and the intensity of illumination provided by the projector (measured in the natural way with slide or film out), is the source of much difficulty.

The relation rests on two factors, one the density of the slide or film and the other the nature of the screen. The former is very variable even in the regular photographic product, while the various natural-color achievements may run into appalling densities. The most that can be done at this time is to agitate for a standard density in the ordinary photographic records, there being little excuse for the extremes now run to. The dyed slides and films, moonlight and firelight effects, are not a disturbing feature because gloominess is there part of the effect sought. The natural-color products require a higher order of illumination and should be specially provided for unless the exhibitor can contrive to negotiate them by recourse to such expedients as further darkening of the room, shortening of the throw and substitution of a highly selective screen.

The remaining consideration, screen character, is the one determining the relation between intensity of illumination and screen brightness, slide or film being absent.

Taking the white paint or muslin screen as a standard, the metallic or selective screens offer a factor[1] of from 1 to 7 as regards picture brightness, and where the design of the auditorium is appropriate they are very desirable. Taylor[2] speaks of satisfactory slide projection with ½ foot candle (5½ meter-candles) in the clear parts, presumably with a muslin or white paint screen. H. P. Gage, in the discussion on the same paper, gives some figures which seem to suggest 2.5 to 6.0 foot-candles (27 to 65 meter-candles) for magic lanterns and 2.5 to 30 foot-candles (27 to 320 meter-candles) for moving pictures, again presumably on a matte white screen.

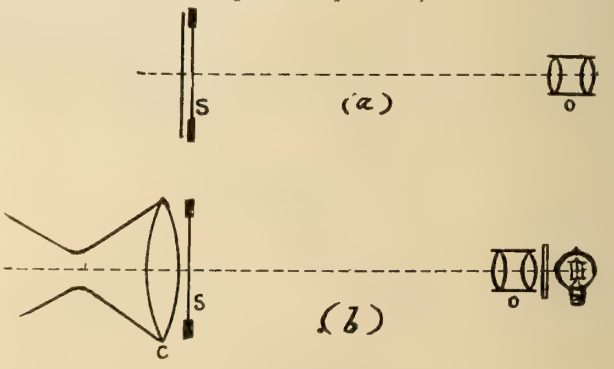
Regarding these figures it is interesting to note that a great many theatres operate successfully with less than 2.5 foot-candles (27 meter-candles) on a plain screen and that one of the best known theatres in the country is operating under conditions equivalent to considerably less than 10 foot-candles (107 meter-candles) on a plain screen.

The report of the Commitee on Glare[3], dealing with screens, suggests a mean picture brightness of ½ Lambert (presumably millilambert), with a factor of 5 either way.

This mean value corresponds roughly with 2.5 foot candles (27 meter-candles) on a white paint screen, measured with slide or film out.

There is excellent reason for assigning an upper limit to the picture brightness in the case of moving pictures; this point will be referred to later.

[1] Committee on Glare, "Diffusing Media; Projection and Focusing Screens," Trans. I. E. S., p. 92, No. 1, vol. XI.



[2] Taylor, J. B., "The Projecting Lantern," Trans. I. E. S., p. 414, No. 3, vol. XI.

[3] Committee on Glare, "Diffusing Media; Projection and Focusing Screens," Trans. I. E. S., p. 92, No. 1, vol. XI.

THE MAGIC LANTERN

In its typical form the magic lantern is an instrument adapted to the projection of transparencies-slides about 10 cm. in diameter. At different stages in its history it has been used successfully with such enormously different light sources as the kerosene flame, the lime-light and the carbon arc. Even when allowance has been made for the transparency of the old time slides and the smaller screens of early days, it still remains a wonder that such different sources should have served the purpose.

For the projection of the slide there is used an objective lens system somewhat similar to a camera lens. One can say immediately that the highest possible illumination is produced if one can contrive an extended background of source surface behind the slide (Fig. 1*a*). In this ideal case the illumination at the screen, the slide being absent, is $\frac{A \times B}{x^2} \times k$ where A is the apparent area of objective opening presented toward the particular screen-point considered, B is the brilliancy of the source, x is the throw and k is the transmission coefficient of the objective. (As in the case of the searchlight the optical system presents an area endowed with the brightness of the source, neglecting objective losses, and the area, the brightness and the remoteness determine the illumination at the point in question.)

—Fig. 1.—
(a) Ideal Magic Lantern
(b) Back-testing a Magic Lantern,
S = slide. C = condenser. O = objective.

If it were not highly uneconomical and inconvenient in many ways this arrangement would be the natural form of magic lantern. In practice it is usual to use, not a background of source-surface behind the slide but a background of lens-surface. Now if there is an extended source-surface behind this lens—and at any distance, provided the source is indefinitely extended—then the lens-surface will appear as bright as the original source, neglecting reflection and absorption losses. If the lens is convex, there can be found one particular position for the source-surface at which a relatively small extent of source is completely sufficient. The result is a screen illumination $\frac{A \times B}{x^2} \times k_1, k_2$, where k_1 is the coefficient of transmission of the [condenser] lens—again simply a matter of absorption, etc.—and k_2 is that of the objective.

The lens which serves in this way is known as a condenser. There is a simple way of demonstrating the possibilities of a condenser, viz., by sending light backwards from the front of the objective, the latter being temporarily covered with a piece of ground glass. By holding a piece of paper behind the condenser one may explore the possible source positions; a circular patch of light is noticed which varies greatly in size with the distance from the condenser, and the size of this patch indicates the maximum extent of source which is useful in the corresponding position, any further extension of source-surface being without effect (Fig. 1*b*). Any piece of glass which is free from flaws and is of a generally convex form will function as a condenser, but it is another matter to design a condenser which will facilitate the use of an extremely small extent of source.

Standard practice involves the use of a pair of plano-convex [condenser] lenses; in any particular case there is a limit to the degree of convexity which it is advisable to use, since it will be found that the more extreme forms call for a greater extent of source. A much better result is obtainable if one can use non-spherical surfaces for the condenser, the sharpest curvature being near the axis. The difficulty of producing such surfaces commercially has restricted this development until very recently.

The limit of design on specially corrected condenser systems is really determined by the lens losses which increase more and more as the design (in effect, the number and convexity of the lenses) becomes extreme.

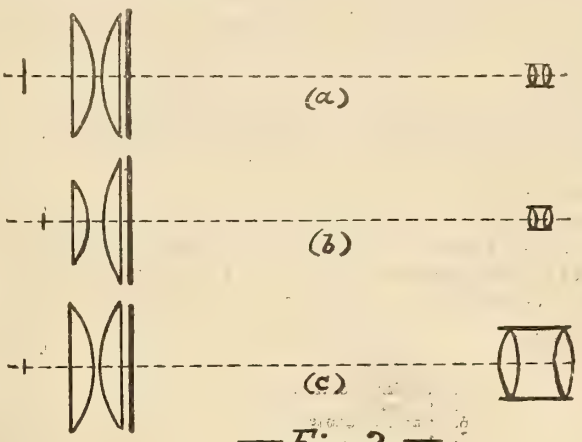
The magic lantern in this form is a relatively simply instrument. Rational design runs somewhat as follows: Knowing the size of slide and the average throw and screen size for which the outfit is intended, the focal length of the objective is fixed. Selecting some standard of illumination which the apparatus shall attain, making due allowance for the conditions under which it is likely to be used—as degree of general illumination and screen factor—there is next to be considered the means adapted to that end.

The expression for the illumination, $\frac{A\ B}{x_2}\ k$ involves area of objective opening and brilliancy of source, throw and coefficient of transmission (this latter covering both objective and condenser). The two latter quantities are known roughly, so that one is left with a simple relation between objective opening and source brilliancy. The brilliancies of light sources are extremely different, as has already been remarked, and it follows that the size of the objective opening required will vary greatly. Attempts to use sources of very low brilliancy encounter the difficulty that extreme "aperture" in the objective is expensive and is subject to a fairly definite limit consistent with satisfactory definition in the projected picture. This applies particularly to oil, coal-gas and acetylene flames and the Welsbach lamp. There is a big gain in source brilliancy in going to the lime-light and Nernst lamp. The corresponding requirement in objective aperture is quite moderate, and in fact it is not so much their optical character as it is general inconvenience which has limited the application of those sources.

The result is that the source which has been most commonly used until recently is the carbon arc. Here we have something which far transcends even the lime-light and Nernst lamp in brilliancy and the size of objective opening needed is very small. In consequence of this the arc lantern as generally used is contrived a little differently from the instrument so far discussed.

A certain small aperture will suffice for the objective and with the best choice of plano-convex condensers a certain size of source is then required.

Now it follows from the existence of marked spherical and chromatic aberration in the condenser that one may with advantage use on objective which is larger than is really necessary but at the same time arranging so that each screen point is served only by a small portion of the objective. Perhaps this device is more readily understood from a numerical example. Suppose that on the basis of arc brilliancies it is concluded that 1 sq. cm. of objective opening is ample. If one were to provide an objective with that amount of opening and then add the most suitable form of plano-convex condenser it might be necessary to use an arc-crater 15 mm. in diameter. On the other hand it would be possible to use an objective 16 sq. cm. in area of which only 1 sq. cm. would be utilized by any particular screen-point; this might be attained with perhaps only 10 mm. arc-crater, using the same condenser arrangement. This alternative arrangement is the one corresponding to the rule which is given in books on projection, namely that the convergent beam coming from the condenser shall penetrate the objective so that no part of the beam shall be obstructed by the lens mounts, etc.



Another way of looking at magic lantern design for arc service is to consider that there are three ways of getting the desired results.

(1) Use a very small objective, an ordinary condenser and a large and expensive source (Fig. 2*a*).

(2) Use the small objective, an expensive condenser and a small, cheap source (Fig. 2*b*).

(3) Use an objective which has a gross aperture in excess of the "effective" aperture for any field-point, a cheap condenser and a small, cheap source (Fig. 2*c*).

The choice is one that turns on relative costs of apparatus and rests with the maker; the third alternative is out of the question with sources of low brilliancy since difficulty and expense are encountered in attaining even the effective aperture they require, let alone anything larger.

—Fig. 2.—
Alternative Arc Lantern Arrangements.
(a) Objective small, condenser cheap, source large.
(b) Objective small, condenser corrected, source small.
(c) Objective large, condenser cheap, source small.

Recently the tendency has been to substitute a tungsten lamp for the arc and it is evident that this is sound practice. The tungsten lamp in its various special forms offers a brilliancy ranging from a value higher than that of the Nernst lamp up to a value exceeding one-quarter of that of the direct current arc-crater. There is no difficulty in getting ample objective aperture for use in conjunction with such a source, but it ought to be remarked that erroneous conclusions may be drawn from tests in which an outfit designed for the arc is made to work with the incandescent lamp.

To sum up: the old illuminants (acetylene, mantle lamps, etc.) have such a low brilliancy that in order to get good results expensive optical apparatus is necessary and even then the possibilities are limited. Between these illuminants and the more recent there is a gain in brilliancy of from 100 to 1,000 fold. This enormous gain renders it easy to provide optical equipment which will yield any results likely to be needed. Questions of convenience then come to the fore and there is no doubt that the tungsten lamp is in much the strongest position in the group (lime-light, Nernst lamp, tungsten lamp, carbon arc).

(To be continued next week)

Society of Motion Picture Engineers Issues Valuable Booklet

AS an important step in their efforts to standardize cinematographic technology, the Society of Motion Picture Engineers has issued an attractive and valuable booklet entitled "Standards Adopted by the Society of Motion Picture Engineers." The publication of this booklet was authorized by the Society in session at New York City in October, and as the first copies have just made their appearance a few words of description will not be amiss.

The contents fall under two chief headings, these being: Motion Picture Standards and Motion Picture Nomenclature, respectively. The former describes and explains the various integrals of cinemachinery or details of cinematogprahic practice for which the most suitable dimensions or modes of procedure have been ascer-

Better Satisfaction

This notice is addressed to the minority of our subscribers who do not regularly answer advertisements.

The service described is, however, open and free to all who wish our help.

We do not wish to discourage you from writing direct to our advertisers; in fact, you do not do enough of it for your own good, but we do want you to get the proper goods to fit your needs.

There are many, perhaps you, who are too busy to write each company separately; therefore we are offering our co-operation, which means that you will receive full information on any subject which you may designate by merely filling out the coupon, designating by numbers the goods in which you are interested.

Your inquiries thus received will be forwarded to reputable manufacturers, even though the goods on which you wish information are not advertised in the "News."

1. Arc Controllers
2. Advertising Novelties
3. Brass Rails
4. Building Materials
5. Cameras
6. Camera Lenses
7. Carbons
8. Chairs
9. Chair Upholstery
10. Change Making Machines
11. Condensers
12. Converters and Transformers
13. Developing and Printing
14. Developing Materials
15. Developing Tanks
16. Disinfectants and Perfumes
17. Economizers and Rheostats
18. Electric Signs
19. Elevators and Escalators
20. Exterior Lighting
21. Film Cabinets
22. Film Carriers
23. Film Cleaners
24. Film Dyes
25. Film Stock
26. Fire Extinguishers
27. Floral Decorations
28. Gas Engines
29. Heating
30. Heralds
31. Interior Lighting
32. Interior Telephones
33. Lithographs
34. Lobby Display
35. Metal Ceilings
36. Motors
37. Mural Paintings
38. Musical Instruments
39. Paints
40. Perforating Machines
41. Printing Machines
42. Programs
43. Projection Booths
44. Projection Lenses
45. Projection Machines
46. Projection Machines (Home)
47. Reels
48. Rewinders
49. Safety Exit Locks
50. Screens
51. Slides
52. Stage Settings
53. Studio Lights
54. Ticket Selling Machines
55. Ticket Taking Machines
56. Uniforms
57. Ventilating and Fans
58. Vacuum Cleaners

Gentlemen: Please send me descriptive matter on the subjects marked in the above lists.

Name.....

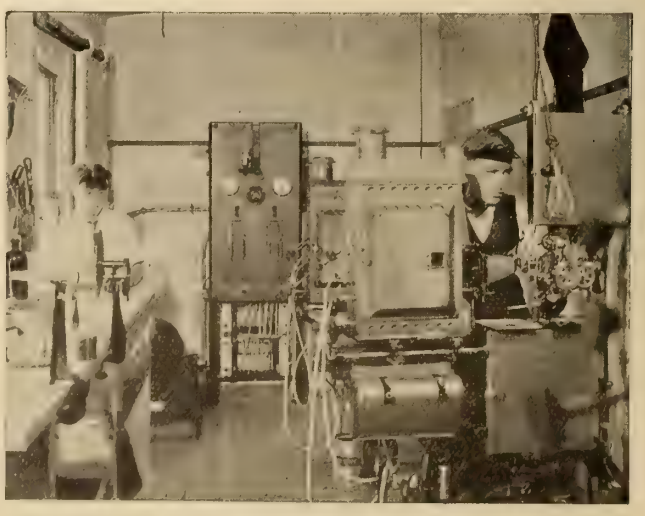
Theatre.....

City.....

State.....

tained by the Society and adopted as standards. It is, of course, the aim of the Society to secure the adoption of these standards by the technical branches of the industry at large, commencing in the studio where the pictures are photographed and continuing right into the projection-rooms of the theatres, where the operators who use the films are directly comprehended by the Society's deliberations.

The heading Motion Picture Nomenclature embraces a collection of definitions of terms much used in both the technical and commercial phases of the industry, and these explanatory definitions, approved by the Society of Motion Picture Engineers, should prove of the utmost value to cinematographic workers, as they form the basis of exactitude in the drawing up of specifications for motion picture machinery, operating-rooms, theatres, etc.



From the foregoing it will be apparent that copies of this new booklet of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers should be in hands of everyone connected with the "fifth greatest industry," and it is, as a matter of fact, the desire and intention of the Society to secure as wide a circulation as possible for this important contribution to the literature of cinematography. The price of the booklet is 10 cents per copy, and in order to secure adequate circulation in the proper quarters, the Society is prepared to furnish the booklets to film producers, laboratories, exchanges and makers of cinemachinery at the price of $1.00 per dozen booklets.

It will immediately suggest itself to all progressive executives within the industry that it is highly advisable to purchase these booklets in quantity for gratis distribution among employees, and the concerns who do this will, in addition to benefiting their workers, be promoting accurancy and definiteness in their own endeavors.

The booklets may be secured singly or in quantities from the main office of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers, 712 Eleventh Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., or quantity lots may be ordered from the Technical Editor of Motion Picture News, 729 Seventh Avenue, New York City. Remittances should, in all instances, be made payable to the Society of Motion Picture Engineers.

Projection Equipment in the Fox Studio

Almost as important in studio work as the taking of pictures is their reproduction for the inspection of directors, camera men, etc. Probably nowhere can a more critical audience be found, since upon its judgment depends the organization's reputation for both dramatic and pictorial quality in its films. When the passing or retaking of a costly setting is at stake, only the best of projection can be relied on. The apparatus in the William Fox Studio, in the suburbs of Los Angeles, is of interest to every operator and owner, as an example of what can be obtained by specifying only the best.

Operating Room, Fox Los Angeles Studio

In this studio, which covers about thirty acres, including several "locations" outside, there are two projection rooms side by side with the booth extending across the end of each room. The throw is 52 feet, giving a 9 by 11 foot picture. Three Powers No. 6-B and one Simplex machine are installed. As a general rule, the current consumption is 45 to 50 amperes per arc. This rather high value is used to lessen the attention necessary for the arc. Since in this class of work many short pieces of film are run, the operator has a great deal of threading up to do, which takes most of his time.

Current is supplied from a Westinghouse Motor-generator set, which consists of an induction motor driven from the 220-volt alternating current lines, and a 75 volt, 72 ampere direct-current generator. On the switchboard are mounted the necessary switches, overload circuit-breaker, voltmeter and ammeter. Beneath are two ballast-resistors operated by projecting handles. Each projection machine was provided with a double-throw switch enabling it to be thrown onto either resistor.

In order to reduce flicker, it was specified that when a second arc was struck the voltage dip at the first arc should not exceed 3 volts. This guarantee has been uniformly met, and in addition the set has repeatedly shown its ability to carry from 90 to 110 amperes for several hours when the need arises. In its nine months of operation the set has required no attention beyond occasional oiling and wiping off—a feature which with its quiet operation is much appreciated in this busy projection room.

National Anti-Misframe League
Pledge

AS a motion picture operator who has the interest of his profession at heart and is willing to assist in eliminating some of the evils practised in the operating-room, I promise that I will to the best of my ability return films to the exchange in first-class condition. Furthermore, I will when it becomes necessary remedy all misframes, bad patches, etc., that may be in the film which I receive and in this way co-operate with my brother operators and give greater pleasure to those who make up the motion picture audience by showing films that are free from such defects. I also promise that I will not make punch marks in film, and when film is received by me, with punch holes, I will notify the exchange to that effect so that they may use their efforts to correct this evil.

Roll of Honor

Roy McClelland	St. Joseph, Mo.
Leeman McCarty	Jackson, Mich.
Joe A. Gibson	Ashland, Ala.
Earnest F. Ingram	Ashland, Ala.
Bernard Fox	Dayton, Ohio
Ulysses Ponsant	Waterville, Me.
Garland L. Goldie	Cherokee, Iowa
Charles S. Peck	Salina, Kans.
A. C. Southick	Lansing, Mich.
Naulbert Gilbert	Ashland, Ala.
Leon E. Dolbee	Kalamazoo, Mich.
A. E. Carson	Kalamazoo, Mich.

Total Membership to Date..... 668

Notice! Anti-Misframe League Members

Membership cards are now ready and are being sent out as fast as possible. There are a number of operators, however, who have neglected to send in the desired information. If you will fill out the blank and mail to this office, button and membership card will be forwarded.

Members's name.....

Home address.....

Name of theatre where employed.....

Address of theatre and name of manager.....

Verdicts are Formed

after

Evidence and Convincing Facts

Have Been Submitted

SPEER ALTERNO CARBONS

FOR A.C. WORK

AND

SPEER HOLD-ARK CARBONS

FOR D.C. WORK

Produce Incomparable Results—results mould operators' opinions—opinions determine the verdicts—verdicts establish the reputation. The operators' "stamp of approval" places Speer Projector Carbons in that exclusive class of motion picture supplies most essential to improved projection.

PARAMOUNT FEATURES

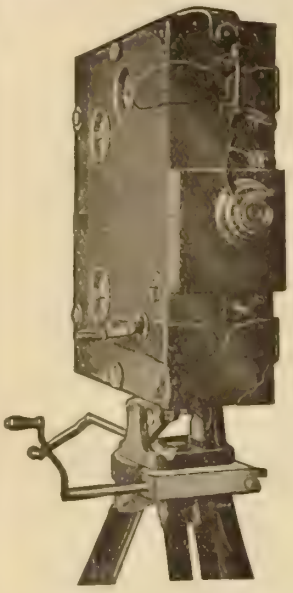
ALTERNO CARBONS

Perfect Projection—Wanderless Arc.
Noiseless Operation—Brilliant Illumination.
Bright, Flickerless, Eye-Resting Light.
No Change Required in Booth Equipment.

ESSENTIAL ADVANTAGES

HOLD-ARK CARBONS

Permanent Arc — Longer Life
Perfect Crater — Minimum Adjustment
Hard Core and Metal Coating
Elimination of Projection Difficulties



When ordering specify whether for alternating or direct current. Each style has a special duty to perform. Substitutions or attempted alterations are costly.

Write today for descriptive literature

"THE CARBONS WITH A GUARANTEE"

SPEER CARBON COMPANY

ST. MARYS, PA.

Have You Bought a Liberty Bond?

We Will Give a $50.00 Bond Free

With each No. 4 Photo Cines outfit sold during the month of January, 1918. Place your order and deposit with us now.

A special introduction for the fourth successful year of this exceptional outfit.

Also bear in mind that the price of this camera has been $250.00 since first introduced and this is pre-war price.

The Liberty Bond a pure bonus.

PRICE $250.00 NET

Includes camera, 400 ft. model, equipped with 2 inch F3.5 Tessar lens; Automatic diaphragm dissolve; Tripod, two sections, with panoramic and tilting top—a professional outfit that has never been equal at its full price

G. GENNERT

24-26 E. 13th Street NEW YORK | CHICAGO 320 Wabash Avenue | LOS ANGELES 455 S. Olive Street | SAN FRANCISCO 394 Canal Street

THE PROJECTION PROBLEM SOLVED

SILVERTIP

In Silvertips We Have the Solution of the Direct Current Projection Problem

SILVERTIPS BANISH FLICKER AND INSURE SATISFACTORY PROJECTION

It is no longer necessary to put up with the flickering and poor light of the old carbons. This new carbon is heavily plated making it capable of carrying exceptionally high current when used with the National Upper gives that intense white light which insures the most clearly defined pictures.

Every operator will take renewed interest in his work if lamps are trimmed regularly with Silvertip Lowers and National Uppers.

Note.—Silvertip carbons are to be used for Direct Current only.

FOR ALTERNATING CURRENT

The noiseless White A. C. Special Carbon has solved the alternating current projection problem as satisfactorily as the Silvertip has solved the direct current problem.

A small investment with big returns.

Let us send you several booklets covering the operation of each of these carbons.

NATIONAL CARBON COMPANY, INC.
Cleveland, Ohio

The Camera

The Distribution of Light Intensity in Photographic Images

(Concluded from last week)

THE instructive photographic delineations of the shapes and sizes of the pencils of rays traversing a photographic lens at various degrees of obliquity (Figs. 10 and 11, last week's issue) may be used as data from which to plot intensity curves showing the amount of illumination at points removed from the axis of an objective, and as Dr. Zschokke has plotted such curves for various types of lenses we give his description of the method and results.

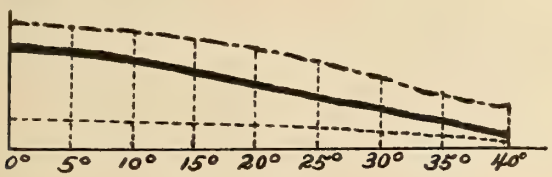


Fig. 13.

"These photographic results," says Dr. Zschokke referring to Figs. 10 and 11, "provide us with the means of determining the intensity of the illumination at parts of the image away from the axis. The intensity at the focus (or of the axial pencil) is taken as unity. To determine the actual intensities of the oblique pencils it is only necessary to measure their cross-sections (as photographically recorded by Dr. Zschokke's apparatus) and to multiply their respective areas by $\cos^3 a$. In these computations $\cos^3$ instead of $\cos^4$ is employed, because, as Fig. 9 (last week's issue) shows, the obliquity of the diaphragm, with reference to the oblique pencils, does not intervene, since the plate upon which their cross-sections are photographed is tilted through an angle corresponding to the obliquity of each pencil of rays thus recorded. The full significance of the employment of $I \cos^3 a$ in this connection will be readily appreciated upon referring to Fig. 4 (Camera Dept. of Dec. 22 issue, page 4417) and the accompanying text.

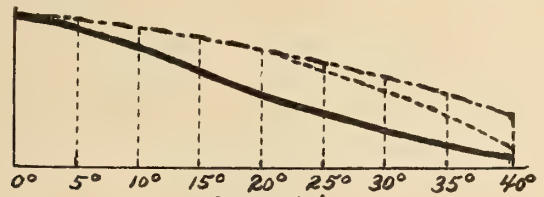

Fig. 14.

"The results obtained and computed in this manner are shown plotted as curves, in Fig. 13. In Fig. 13, the upper curve (dots and dashes) shows the decrease in intensity at increasing distances from the axis in the case of an ideal lens of aperture f 6.8. The second curve (solid line) shows the decrease in intensity over the image-field in the case of an actual lens of aperture f 6.8. It is seen that even at the center (axial pencil) the luminosity, as a consequence of absorption, is less than that of the ideal lens, while toward the margins of the image the difference in intensity is much greater, as a consequence of the interception by the lens mount of portions of the oblique pencils. The third curve in Fig. 13 (dotted line) shows the distribution of luminosity over the image-plane in the case of the f 6.8 lens stopped down to f 15.5. (The two last curves of Fig. 13 are, as might be inferred, plotted from the photographic records, Figs. 10 and 11.—Ed.)

"In order to make comparative observations, on these different lenses, as regards their distribution of light intensity over the photographic plate, it is advisable to take as the unit intensity the intensity of the axial pencil. It is in this manner that the curves shown by Fig. 14 have been obtained by calculation from the values expressed by Fig. 13. The curves depicted by Fig. 14 represent, therefore, the relative intensities in the cases already comprehended by Fig. 13. By reference to Fig. 14, we see that in the case of the 'Dagor' lens stopped down to f 15.5 the distribution of light is the same as with the ideal lens up to an angle of 25° on the diagram (corresponding to an actual angle of view of 50°), and exhibits, in comparison with the ideal lens, no noticeable decrease in illumination except in the case of pencils of great obliquity. The curve represented by the solid line shows the intensity distribution of the Dagor at full aperture f 6.8, from which is is evident that in this case the distribution of the light over the image-field is much less favorable. A noticeable falling off in intensity is apparent at even so slight an obliquity as 5° from the axis.

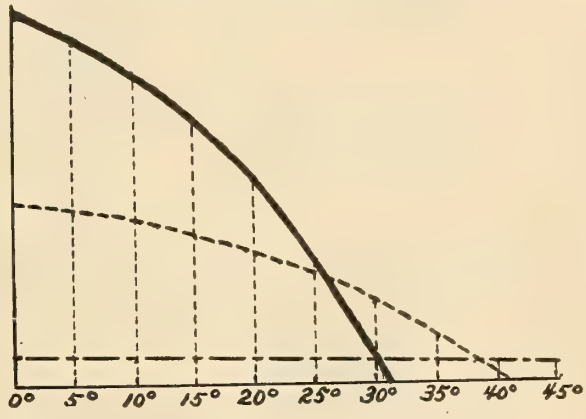

Fig. 15.

"The actual intensities and the relative intensities, at various distances from the axis, have also been computed for lenses of different apertures, and these determinations are graphically represented by Figs. 15 and 16. From a study of these curves it is readily apparent that lenses of large aperture yield the poorest distribution of illumination, which is frequently demonstrated by the fact that in practice a lens of high rated speed sometimes fails to show its superiority over other lenses of smaller aperture. This is well shown by Fig. 17, in which are given the intensity curves of an Aplanat, f 6.3, and a 'Dagor,' f 6.8. Up to an angle of 10° the Aplanat shows the greater intensity, but at 10° from the axis the intensity curve of the 'Dagor' cuts the curve of the Aplanat, and toward the margins the image produced by the 'Dagor' is more intensely illuminated than that of the Aplanat.

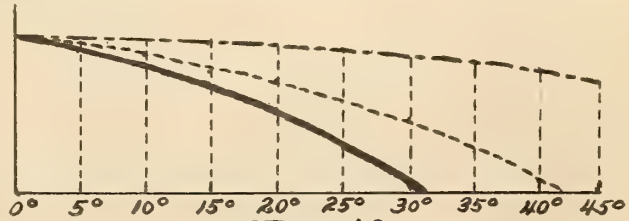

Fig. 16.

"In practice the decrease in illumination toward the edges of images produced by photographic lenses does not always mani-

EASTMAN FILM

The result of highest grade materials and painstaking manufacture is shown in the results on the screen.

Identifiable by the words "Eastman" and "Kodak" on the film margin.

EASTMAN KODAK CO.,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

And Remember THIS

The sum total of the producer's efforts are realized only when the DEVELOPER and PRINTER is equal to the responsibility he undertakes.

EVANS' reputation for absolute perfection and reliability will prove a safe guidepost for you, Mr. Producer.

EVANS FILM MFG. CO.
416-24 West 216th Street New York City
Telephone—St. Nicholas 3443-44

GOERZ

Vignetting Devices

The quality and workmanship of GOERZ VIGNETTING and DOUBLE EXPOSURE DEVICES has earned them the unqualified approval of expert camera men throughout the country. Some of the most beautiful and truly artistic effects seen on the screen today are made by the use of SPECIAL GOERZ DEVICES made to order. When these devices are used in connection with the well-known GOERZ KINO HYPAR F:3.5, they give the camera man an equipment that is unsurpassed in efficiency. Our catalog describes these devices and the GOERZ KINO HYPAR F:3.5. Write or call TODAY.

C. P. GOERZ AMERICAN OPTICAL COMPANY
317J East 34th Street, New York City

fest itself to the extent which would be expected from the foregoing, by reason of the considerable latitude of modern photographic emulsions. In the case of rather full exposures, for example, the falling off in illumination is not generally noticeable, although in the event of scant or under-exposure the effect may be very pronounced. The means of securing even illumination over the image-field is suggested, however, by Figs. 11, 12, 13 and 14, and consists in the employment of a small stop in the lens. This will, in most cases, ensure sufficient eveness of illumination, but if the angle of view exceeds 100° by any great amount the above remedy will prove of no avail, and recourse must be had to some other method of equalizing the illumination from center to edges of the plate. One such artifice is the use of a star-shaped diaphragm, rotated in front of the objective, such as was employed with the original model of the Goerz 'Hypergon' wide-angle lens."

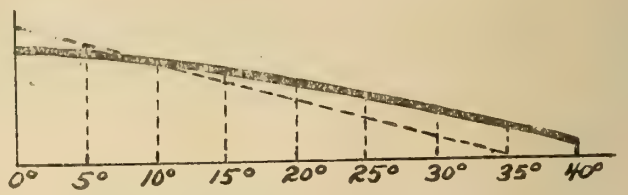

Fig. 17.

Dr. Zschokke's interesting and instructive paper is concluded above, but as the subject of the cutting off by the lens-mount of certain portions of oblique pencils is of considerable importance, we have next to describe a method whereby the degree of obliquity at which vignetting commences may be roughly determined by simple computation. The demonstration of this empirical method is due to Dr. P. Rudolph[1], whose remarks on the subject were as follows: (Fig. 18)

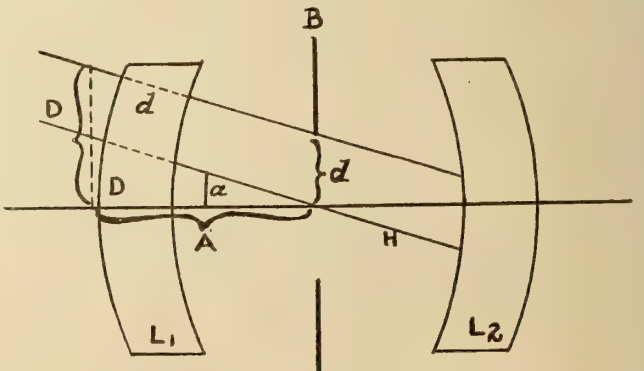

Fig. 18.

"Let L_1 and L_2 be the lenses forming a doublet of diameter 2D, let B be the plane of the diaphragm, and let the diaphragm be situated midway between L_1 and L_2. Let A be the distance of the diaphragm from the apex of the front lens surface, and let $2d$ be the diameter of the aperture of the diaphragm.

"If, for the sake of simplification, the collective effect of the lenses of the doublet be neglected, i. e., if it is assumed that the diameter of the pencil passing through the diaphragm $2d$ is also $2d$ previous to its passage through the lens, and also if we disregard the curvatures of the external surfaces, and the thickness of the lenses, then the oblique pencil passing through $2d$ is partially intercepted (or vignetted) when the principal ray, H, is of that degree of obliquity represented by a straight line contained in a plane cutting the axis of the objective and connecting the edge of the lens with the edge of the diaphragm on the same side of the axis. Let the angle between the principal ray, H, and the axis, be a (Fig. 18), then it is readily seen that the limiting angle of obliquity at which a pencil may be incident upon the lens without undergoing interception by the mount is represented by $\frac{D-d}{a}$

[1] "Die Zeiss-Anastigmate," Photographisches Wochenblatt, 1892, No. 21.

This limit is increased in a measure as the difference $D-d$ becomes greater, i.e., as the aperture of the diaphragm d becomes less, and when $D-d$ is constant a increases as A decreases. From this we infer that the shorter the distance of the diaphragm from the apices of the lenses, the greater is the degree of obliquity at which a pencil of rays may fall upon the lens without being vignetted or partially intercepted by the mount at the edge of the lens."

Having completed a thorough explanation of the light losses to which photographic or projection lens systems are heir, we have now to point out the application of these considerations to the practical aspects of cinematography. Aside from the interest which the intensity distribution curves have for the cameraman or professional photographer, the regulation of the light rays by lenses has a very important significance in the designing, selection and use of lenses for cinematographic projection. We shall point out some of the desiderata in optical equipment for motion picture projection in forthcoming articles in the Projection Department, so it is therefore not necessary to anticipate those remarks on the present occasion. We would point out, however, that the present article abundantly proves that projection objectives of the customary type, and all others having considerable separations between their component lenses, are extremely wasteful of light, and it has also been demonstrated in the course of this article that rear projection through translucent screens cannot succeed in producing an evenly illuminated field when the throw is short and a wide-angle projection lens is used.

ALFRED S. CORY.

Rexo Motion Picture Film

WE have recently received from Burke & James, Inc., 240-258 East Ontario street, Chicago, samples of Rexo negative and positive cinefilm, and having tested the same in practical manner we are pleased to lay the results before Camera Department readers.

The trial roll of Rexo negative stock (a 50 foot length) was partly exposed on outdoor subjects in strong sunlight, and a test exposure was also made indoors "under the lights." At f 16 well exposed exteriors were secured under the conditions named, while the interior exposure, under Cooper-Hewitts and arcs gave a fully timed negative at f 5.6. Development was by inspection (to get the most out of the test) in a bath the constituency of which was unknown to the writer.

The negative showed good gradations in all of the subjects photographed, and the sample roll of Rexo stock experimented with was also characterized by fineness of grain in the emulsion. The developing properties and characteristics of the Rexo negative film can only be determined by experience in handling a considrable amount of the product, but it can be stated that with the time of development necessary to produce a vigorous image with the exposures mentioned no evidence of chemical fogging was visible.

Rexo positive film yields a vigorous print with satisfactory gradations and the sample tested appeared to be good clean stock. It has the necessary density-giving properties to ensure good titles, when exposed in a camera at one-half normal speed (8 pictures per second) with an f 5.6 stop, using Copper-Hewitt title lamps.

Messrs. Burke and James are offering trial rolls of Rexo cinefilm in 50 and 100 foot lengths at $1.50 and $3 per roll respectively, which affords amateur cinematographers, and all others interested in trying out new brands of film, the opportunity of becoming acquainted with the new product.

Many Schools Install Simplex

THE Erker Bros. Optical Company, of St. Louis, Mo., report the sale of a Simplex Projector to the Cleveland High School, which is said to be the very latest in school buildings and the pride of the city. This makes the sixth educational institution in St. Louis to install Simplex projectors.

Six New Features For Sure Results!

Faster, finer and CERTAIN results now are gained with the new improved Universal Motion Picture Camera—the camera that keeps abreast of the science of motion picture photography.

The New Advantages of

UNIVERSAL

MOTION PICTURE CAMERA

New framing adjustment—Better film transmission—Advanced film channel—New focusing tube — New Footage indicator — New "static" prevention. New automatic dissolve now ready. 200 feet magazine capacity—more speed—better results.

At Less Than Half the Price of other similar cameras

Send Postal Today

for complete description of the world's greatest value in motion picture cameras.

BURKE & JAMES, INC.

Sole Wholesale Agents

240 East Ontario Street, Chicago

Eastern Branch: 225 Fifth Avenue, New York City

Your Home Boys

are leaving every little while for the front in France, or

"Somewhere in America"

Why not give your patrons some exclusive "Weekly Pictures"?

Do You Get the Idea?

The K-B Camera and Outfit will enable you to do this at about service rates.

"Remember, we show you how."

DON'T DELAY — WRITE OR WIRE TODAY FOR PARTICULARS

Barker Bros

ESTABLISHED-1880

Motion Picture Camera Department

724-738 S. Broadway, Los Angeles, Cal.

Music and the Picture

Musical Review of Latest Compositions

1—"Fifteen Minutes of Laughter and Tears." A double number in fact and musical intent. Illustrates the two extremes in melodious temperaments. (A) Beautifully defines the lighter or frivolous; (B) Is in a relative minor illustrating the plaintive which is the most serious requirement of the Photoplay. (Obtainable from J. W. Stern, 102 West 38th St., N. Y. C.)

2—"At the Grasshopper's Hope." A characteristic Two-Step equally effective for cornet, street and moving picture work. (Leo Feist edition.)

3—"Violets Bring Memories," by Brandon. A melodious 4/4 moderato movement—unusually delightful and most appropriate for love scenes. (Published by Stark Music Co., St. Louis, Mo.)

4—"Hail, America!" (March) "The Rookies" (March), two favorites by "Geo. Drumm." These marches have the right tingling swing. They are bound to be heard frequently at a time when out of the great abundance of patriotic marchtunes a process of musical selection of the fittest assures the popularity of such numbers as these by Drumm and Gay's Sons of Liberty. (G. Schirmer edition.)

5—"Jazzing Around," One Step by Earl Fuller. A snappy and melodious popular composition which every leader can use to good advantage. (Leo Feist edition.)

6—"Longing for My Dixie Home," by Shannon. A 4-4 Andante moderato movement—very melodious and very effective. (Published by the Vandersloot Music Co.)

7—"Stolen Sweets," a beautiful and melodious waltz movement, by Harry von Tilzer. (Published by Harry von Tilzer.)

8—"In a Garden of Shadows and Tears," by A. Manlowe. A very attractive melody of pathetic character. (Vanderlost Pub. Co., Williamsport, Pa.)

9—"Hail, Hail, the Gang's Here," by Theodore Morse. Every musician knows the famous old song hit, "We Won't Go Home Till Morning." "Hail, Hail" is better. (Leo Feist edition.)

10—"Danse Orientale," by Harriette Cady. Any pianist can play and enjoy this charming dance—fancy in Mongol style.. (G. Schirmer edition.)

11—"Stock of Yard Blues," by Maceo Pinkard. Another of Pinkard's incomparable Two Steps—with all the melody snap and dash which made this writer famous. (Leo Feist edtion.)

12—"Somewhere in France Is the Lily," a novelty song by Jos. E. Howard. A typical composition of tempo "Marziale" most appropriate for opening purposes of scenes of a military character. (M. Witmark edition.)

13—"Bring Back My Daddy to Me," by Geo. W. Meyer. A valse moderato movement of exceptional tonal beauty. (Leo Feist edition.)

14—"America, I Love You, My Yankee Land," by Jack Frost. A wonderful inspiring and martial composition. (Published by the McKinley Music Co., 1501 E. 55th St., Chicago, Ill.)

15—"The Garden of Allah by Moonlight," composed by Florence Blackwell. A remarkable Fantasia of Oriental character, most appropriate for Oriental scenes. (Published by the McKinley Music Co.)

16—"That Cabaret in Honolulu Town," by Jack Frost. This composition is an all around favorite and a popular composition of exceptional merit. (Published by Frank K. Root Music Co.)

17—"Valley Rose Ballad," by Evans Lloyd. A beautiful Andante con espressivo movement, considered to be the greatest ballad ever written by an American writer. It is a composition of artistic value from a musical standpoint and still so wonderfully constructed that the listener or player after hearing it once is bound to remember it forever. For pathetic scenes and the like this composition is unreplaceable. (Published by Jeff Branen, 145 W. 45th St., N. Y. C.)

18—"Prudence" (Entr'acte), by Ernst Luz. A number in gavotte style, effectively arranged. Illustrates romance. Lends itself easily to different tempos, making it valuable for playing to the Photoplay.. A melodius number throughout. (J. W. Stern edition, N. Y. C.)

19—"The Brooklet," "Menuet Rocco," "On the Lake," by Henry Holden Huss. Three pieces for the piano. This distinguished composer always writes with the true pianist's sense of the finer tonal possibilities of his instrument. The delightful "Menuet Rocco" introduces a novelty in the way of a meno mosso in the Lydian mode; "On the Lake" is a beautful study in tone-color and contrasted rhythms; "The Brooklet," a poetic evocation, whose value as an etude for the weak fingers seems incidental to its charm as a mood-picture.

20—"Heavy Mysterioso," by Sol. P. Levy. The title signifies the purpose. (Cineme Music Co., Columbia Theatre Bldg., New York City.)

21—"Give Me the Right to Love You," by Abe Glatt. Considered by many and competent judges to be the finest composition of its kind—most appropriate for love themes and scenes. (Published by Harry von Tilzer.)

22—"Chasing the Chickens," a great jazz number. (Published by Foster Music Co., Chicago, Ill.)

Western Music

THERE was a time when practically all of the big hits came from New York. Big cities occasionally had local hits, which might have been national winners had the publishers been wise enough to follow up their good starts. Today, however, conditions are somewhat different, and although a majority of the big hits emanate from Broadway, it is nothing unusual for western publishers to land a hit, Fred Foster, for instance, has been very active of late, turning out real hits like "Oh Johnny," "Missouri Waltz" and now "Faugh-a-Ballagh," which promises to outsell "Oh Johnny." Then there is Fred Vandersloot down in Williamsport. Years ago the most optimistic could picture a man in Williamsport being fortunate enough to publish a million copy hit, as Fred did when he issued "I Wonder How the Old Folks Are Tonight." And it is songs like "I Wonder How the Old Folks Are Tonight," "Love's Lullaby" and "Send Me Away with a Smile" that win the hight brows and the opera singers over to the popular field. A good melody and clean sentiment in a song levels all brows. Approximately every home that possesses a Victrola or a player piano, be the owner a high or a low brow, contains from one to a hundred popular records.

The Skidmore Music Company is another concern that made eastern folks sit up and take notice. Some of its numbers, including "Pray for the Lights to Go Out" and "Brown Skin Gal" created enough demand to induce Jos. W. Stern & Co. to purchase the selling rights.

The West is finally coming into its own, and W. A. Quincke & Co. is one of the firms that is making song history and hits for the West. Just now the firm is going after "My Cairo Maid," "Uncle Sammy Is Calling You," "My Hawaiian Dream Girl" and "Pride of My Heart," the last by J. N. Hall. The trade finds these numbers to be good sellers, a proof that the public likes them, and a tip that picture musicians should note.

W. A. Quincke & Co. have offices in the Majestic Theatre Building, Los Angeles, Cal., where they have been in business for the past eight years. The songs issued by them are never offered to the public until after they receive a thorough tryout in the vaudeville world, which is a very good method and frequently saves money thrown away on false alarms. In spite of the war and the general uneasiness, coupled with the disinclination of music dealers to pay sufficient attention to music during the holidays, Quincke & Co. are doing a wonderful business.

The Buckeye Music Company is another live western house, and it must be a live one in order to see the logic of investing $1,250 in the Saturday Evening Post, which it intends to do in the issue of January 26. This sum represents a great deal of nerve, more than many of the New York publishers would care to put out. Song publishing, however, being a gamble pure and simple, one must take a gambler's chance from time to time if he expects to get anywhere. Charles Roy Cox, the president of the Buckeye Company, has been making an excellent fight to keep his company in the front line, and while he has had some fine sellers in the past, few thought he was putting over the kind of sellers that would permit him to fool with the pages of the Post. And he is the first western publisher that has been game enough to tackel the Post. But the other fellows have not been heard from as yet. Wait until they see him in print there. Two songs that Cox is banking on to go over are "The U. S. A. Will Lay the Kaiser Away," and "My Flower of Italy." And they are very good numbers for picture musicians.

In Columbus, Ohio, The Buckeye Company has a live rival in the R. C. Young Music Co., for Young's "We'll Follow Pershing Into Berlin" is becoming better known and better liked every day. The company is not the oldest in the business, but one that is worth watching.

The American Music Publishers, 140 North Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill., is another firm that is making things hum. Some of these western houses make it look as if they are going to give New York publishers a stiff fight for hits this year. "Sammy," the concern's latest number, is receiving many calls and a great deal of publicity. In connection with the song the house is offering $100 in prizes, with motion picture musicians having a chance to win some of the money. Should you be interested in the prizes write to the company for particulars.

E. M. Wickes.

General Comments

ARTHUR M. SEIBRECHT & CO. have discovered that their "Movie Club" plan is something that picture musicians patronize and appreciate. And the new postal rates do not have any bad effect on their daily mail.

Jack Mahoney, author of "Tulip and the Rose," has what looks like a sure fire hit in "Bing Bang Bing 'Em on the Rhine." Jack said that although he has not offered it to a publisher, a dozen big acts are going to put it on as soon as they can have orchestrations made. As a fast number for pictures it is a wonder, and as a march and gang song, it is a whale!

Joseph W. Stern & Co. have had an unusual run of orders for their A. B. C. motion picture music. Orchestrations of "When the Moon Is Shining" and "Send Back Dear Daddy to Me," two of Stern's new patriotic hits, are ready for picture houses.

Hamilton S. Gordon's "Motion Picture Music Collection" is responsible for hundreds of complimentary letters from musicians in all parts of the country. Gordon looks as if he had a big money maker in the collection.

Gilbert & Friedland's new ballad, "Are You from Haven" is becoming just as much of a favorite with motion picture musicians as it is with vaudeville singers.

James W. Casey, head of the Echo Music Co., sends in word that he was surprised to find so many picture houses using his "After the War Is Over" and "My Hawaii, You're Calling Me."

And do not forget that G. Schirmer, No. 3 East Forty-third street, New York, has a wonderful collection of music suitable to motion pictures. Schirmer's envelope, with the reddish cover, is a familiar sight along Broadway and Fifth avenue.

"THE SECRET OF THE STORM COUNTRY"

Theme: "Just as Your Mother Was," by Harry von Tilzer

1—"Petite Bijouterie" (Valse Intermezzo) by Bohm until—T: "Deforess Young, the attorney."
2—"Sweet Ponderings" (2/4 Andante) by Langey until—T: "Ebenezer Walderstricker, etc."
3—"Dramatic Andante" by Ascher until—T: "Yer let me go."
4—Hurry to action until—T: "Helen Walderstricker, wife, etc."
5—"Romanzo op. 40" (4/4 Moderato) by Beethoven until—T: "Madelene, you love Fred!"
6—Theme until—T: "Then opened the portals, etc."
7—Continue ff until—T: "While the silent city, etc."
8—"Heavy Mysterioso No. 1" by Sol P. Levy until—T: "Daylight reveals to a visitor."
9—"L'Adieu" (12/8 Dramatic) by Farvarger until—T: "Andy Bishop escaped the Auburn Prison."
10—"Dramatic Recitative No. 1" by Sol P. Levy until—T: "$5,000 reward will be paid."
11—Prelude to "Kunihild" (Dramatic) by Kistler until—T: "Any jail birds from down here."
12—"Canzeneta" (Melodious Moderato) by Nicode until—T: "I've already told her, etc."
13—Theme until—T: "Memories."
14—"Pathetic Andante No. 1" by Paul Vely until—T: "After three months, etc."
15—"The Vampire" (a Dramatic Theme) by Sol P. Levy until—T: "Comin' here won't do us no good."
16—Continue ff until—T: "Tessibel's secret is revealed."
17—Theme ff until—S: "The accident near the water."
18—Ad. Lib. Tympany Rolls, followed by
19—Silence until—T: "Confronted by the hypocritical, etc."
20—Organ improvise to action (Church Scene) until—T: "And for the sin, etc."
21—"Erl King" (Dramatic Agitato) by Schubert until—T: "Thy ways are beyond understanding."
22—"Lamento (Pathetic Melody) by Gabriel-Marie until—T: "Three years later."
23—"Capricious Annette" (Moderato) by Borch until—S: Old witch in view.
24—"Mysterioso No. 32" by Becker until—S: Tess playing with little boy.
25—Theme until—T: "Later."
26—"Dramatic Agitato" by Henry Hough until—T: "Tess seeing the squatter settlement, etc."
27—"Storm Furioso" to action until—T: "She has all the right in the world."
28—"Dramatic Recitative No. 1" by Sol P. Levy until—T: "After the storm."
29—Theme until * * * * END.

"THE LEARNIN' OF JIM BENTON"

(Triangle Production)

(Reviewed on page 4582)

Theme: "Love Song" (Dramatic) by Flegier

1—"Western Moderato" by Bach until—T: "When the sun sets."
2—"Dolorosa Poem" (4/4 Moderato) by Tobani until—T: "Seeking the lonely hut."
3—"Heavy Mysterioso" by Sol P. Levy until—T: "Evelyn Hastings, who at nightfall, etc."
4—Theme until—T: "Dawn's perfume."
5—"'Illusion," Intermezzo (2/4 Moderato) by Bustanoby until—T: "My punchers sure need."
6—"Dramatic Theme" by Sol P. Levy until—T: "Reckon we could graduate."
7—"Intermezzo" (Allegretto) by Pierne until—T: "So the school supplies arrive."
8—Continue to action until—T: "A September morn'."
9—"Capricious Nanette' (Moderato) by Orth until—S: Punchers enter school room."
10—"School Days" (Old popular song hit) until—T: "Private Night School."
Note—Play chorus only
11—"I'll Come Back to You" by Mills (Leo Feist Edition) until—T: "Midsummer."
12—"Intermezzo" (2/4 Presto) by Arenski until—T: "Three o'clock."
13—"Dramatic Recitative" by Sol P. Levy until—T: "The feudists."
14—Hurry to action until—S: "Girl on Porch."
15—Continue pp until—T: "The Return."
Note—Watch for explosion.
16—Theme until—T: "Adding bitterness to an already, etc."
17—"Dramatic Agitato" by Hough until—T: "Another step toward, etc."
18—Theme until—T: "Roused by the injustice."
19—"Dramatic Tension" by Levy until—T: "As the law takes its course."
20—"Ein Maerchen" (Dramatic Fantasia) by Bach until—T: "So ends a legal farce."
21—Theme until—T: "Tension heightens as the day."
22—"Pathetic Andante" by Paul Vely until—T: "Jim, there's hope, etc."
23—"Heavy Dramatic" by Ochmler until—T: "The appeal."
24—"Yelva" (Dramatic Overture) by Reissiger until—T: "The little girl thought me."
25—"Prelude (Dramatic) by Rachmaninoff until—T: "Gathering at dawn."
26—"Dramatic Tension" by Andino until—S: Girl running out of Governor's office.
27—Theme ff until * * * * END.

"MISSOURI-WALTZ"

The World's Greatest
and
Most Popular Waltz

For Piano - - - 30c Per Copy
For Orchestra - 11 and Piano 25c
For Orchestra - Full and Piano 35c

Forster Music Publisher, Inc.
509 So. Wabash Avenue
CHICAGO, ILL.

A. B. C. PHOTO PLAY MUSIC

Composed and Arranged by ERNST LUZ

Complete Catalogue Comprising

A } Melodramatic Edition
B } Concert Edition
C } Feature Photo Play Edition

56 Numbers Now Ready.

Public Performance of all A. B. C. Numbers is permitted without the payment of any extra fee or license

Photo Play Music Co.
100 West 38th Street New York City

"FANATICS"

(Triangle Production)
(Reviewed on page 4403)

Theme: "Cavatin" (4/4 Dramatic Moderato) by Bohm

1—"Dramatic Recitative" by Sol P. Levy until—S: Girl near piano.
2—"Le Retour" (Dramatic Allegro) by Bizet until—T: "Perhaps, Mary, if you would go to him."
3—"The Vampire" (a Dramatic Theme) by Sol P. Levy until—S: Interior of factory.
4—Theme ff until—T: "The steelmaker's home."
5—Continue to action until—T: "Economic conditions are, etc."
6—"Love's Melody," Reverie by Shannon (Vandersloot Edition) until—T: "Lathrop makes an unsuccessful attempt."
7—"Sweet Pondering" (a Melodic Sentiment) by Langey until—T: "Where the spawn of, etc."
8—Prelude from "Eva" (Dramatic) by Massenet until—S: The fight.
9—"Dramatic Agitato" by H. Hough until—T: "Oh, it's all wonderful, etc."
10—"Dramatic Tension No. 1" by Reissiger until—T: "And it looks like a clear case, etc."
11—Theme until—T: "Seeking in the new ideas."
12—"L'Dieu" (12/8 Dramatic) by Favarger until—T: "Trying out her new roadster."
13—"Dramatic Tension No. 9" by Andino until—S: Woman looking at picture.
14—Theme until—S: Eyre nears the fireplace.
15—"Dramatic Narrative" by Pauline Pement until—T: "Chivarly responds to the call, etc."
16—"Romanzo" (Moderato) by Karganoff until—T: "Beginning another day."
17—Continue to action until—T: "Professor Groesbeck knows, etc."
18—"Heavy Mysterioso" by Sol P. Levy until—T: "Delilah is brought by Samson, etc."
19—"Dramatic Tension No. 2" by Reissiger until—T: "Eyre's hypocrisy blinds."
20—"Vanity" (Allegro Caprice) by Jackson until—T: "Driven to a counter attack."
21—"Rustling Leaves" (Characteristic) by Koehler until—T: "You poor fool, don't you know, etc."
22—"Dramatic Tension No. 1" (for heavy disputes) by E. Ascher until—T: "Groesbeck is headin' 'em down to the mill."
23—Hurry (for riot scenes) to action until—S: Interior of room—woman on couch.
24—"Just As Your Mother Was," Song (Harry von Tilzer) until—T: Defeated in the fanaticism."
25—"Pathetic Andante" by Paul Vely until—S: Eyre leaving his office.
26—Theme until * * * * END.

"A LITTLE PRINCESS"

(Artcraft Production)

No Theme

1—"Mauresque," Caprice, by Boccalari until—T: "So they traveled across the sea."
2—Piano Solo (watch screen) until—T: "Sophrania Minchin and her sister."
3—"La Colombe," Intermezzo, by Gounod until—T: "Are you learning by heart?"
4—"Pathetic Andante" by Paul Vely until—S: Close-up of clock on big tower.
5—Strike seven bells, followed by
6—"With All My Heart and Soul" by Ball (Leo Feist Edition) until—T: "But time is a healing."
7—"Capricious Anette" by Borch until—T: "The drudge of the school, etc."
8—"A Summer's Morning" by Haines until—T: "At midnight there comes a twinkling."
9—"Short Mysterioso" until—T: "Once upon a time, etc."
10—"Arabian Serenade by Langey until—T: "Ali Baba borrows."
11—"Mystic Shrine" Intermezzo by Cameron until—T: "Open Hay."
12—"Blissful Dreams" by Helmund until—T: "By the morning after the new moon."
13—Short orchestra rest about 7 minutes, organ improvise until—T: "The first crimson of gold, etc."
14—"Balladora" by Tobani until—T: "I know what you have for me."
15—"Dramatic Recitative" by Sol P. Levy until—T: "Dusk afterglow and night."
16—"Dawn of Hope" by Casella until—T: "Do you hear, Becky?"
17—Continue to action until—T: "To the house adjoining comes,
18—"Garden of Love" (Caprice) by Ascher until—T: "With the Christmas holidays, etc."
19—Good typical Christmas song (not "Holy Night") until—S: Monkey enters Sara's room.
20—"Heavy Mysterioso" by Sol P. Levy until—T: "A week before the shadow, etc."
21—"Romanze" by Frommel until—S: Big tower clock in view.
22—Silence until—S: Change of scene.
23—"Reverie" by Debussy until—T: "Eat Becky, eat."
24—Continue ff with ad lib. tympany rolls until—T: "Who are you and where do you come from?"
25—"Largo" by Corelli until—T: "So, friends, in parting, just a word."
26—"Holy Night," etc. (Christmas Anthem) once through, followed by 27—Another typical Christmas song ff until * * * END.

"THE WILD GIRL"

(Selznick Production)

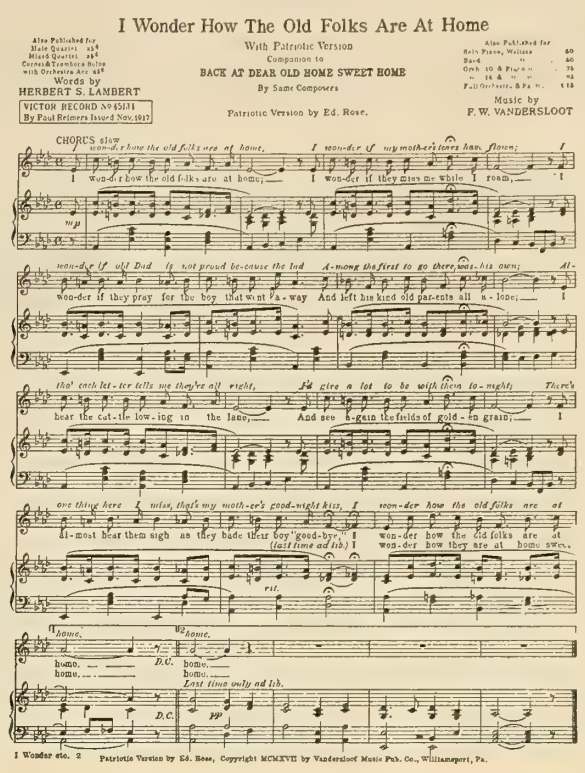
Theme: "Dramatic Recitative," by Sol. P. Levy

1—"I Don't Care" (Eva Tanguay's famous popular song hit) until—T: "Miss Tanguay as Firefly."
Note—Any popular Tanguay hit can be used as the proper opening for the picture.

2—"Gypsy Serenade" (Characteristic) by Jerwitz until—T: "Care for her as your own."
3—"Pathetic Andante" by Paul Vely until—T: "The swift flight of years."
4—"Gypsy Rondo" (Allegro) by Hayden until—T: "A sure source of revenge."
5—Theme until—S: Firefly looking at clouds.
6—"Whispering Flowers" (3/4 Characteristic) by Blon until—T: "Realizing that the Boy Birl, etc."
7—"Gypsy Dance" to action until—T: "Thieves, etc."
8—"Heavy Mysterioso" by Sol P. Levy until—T: "A stranger with a baby girl."
9—Theme until—T: "Andrio summons the tribe."
10—"Dramatic Tension" by Funck until—T: "Not really comprehending."
11—"Gypsy Dance" to action until—T: "The sun's morning rays, etc."
12—"Basket of Roses" (4/4 Moderato) by Albers until—T: "Nightfall and a deserted."
13—"Dramatic Agitato" by H. Hough until—T: "Donald MacDonald, editor."
14—"Alita" (Gavotte) by Losey until—T: "Come along, I'll give you a ride, etc."
15—"Canzonetta" (6/8 Moderato) by Nicode until—T: "Wednesday was a busy day."
16—"Three Graces" (Allegro Intermezzo) by Herman until—T: "Firefly's room at the inn."
17—"To Spring" (6/8 Allegro Appassionato) by Grieg until—T: "The new Firefly."
18—"A la Ballerina" (Valse Lente) by Braham until—T: "You and your mother must leave."
19—Theme until—T: "I have chosen my new manager."
20—Hurry to action until—T: "Realizing the advantages."
Note—Begin pp, then to action.
21—"Cavatine" (4/4 Dramatic Moderato) by Bohm until—T: "Congratulations were in order."
22—"Patel Menuet" by Paradis until—T: A Gypsy—he took her away."
23—"Gypsy Rondo" (Allegro) by Hayden until—T: "She loves me, Andrio."
24—"Allegro" by Bach until—S: The fight.
25—Continue ff until—T: "Terror stricken, the gypsies."
26—"Mysterioso Agitato No. 32" by Becker until—T: "Into the darkness the posse, etc."
27—Galop to action until—T: "What right have you to interfere."
28—Theme ff until * * * * END.

"THE RAGGEDY QUEEN"

(A Bluebird Production)



This picture does not suggest any Theme

Opening—"In Lover's Lane" (6/8 Allegro Moderato by Pryor.
T: "Crazy Anne, etc."—Continue to action.
T: "Father Andre, etc."—"At Sunset" (4/4 Moderato Grazioso) by Brewer.
T: "Drink and an ungovernable"—"Gavotte" by Gosses.
S: Girl Fighting—Hurry to action.
S: Interior of room—"Three Graces" (Allegro Intermezzo) by Herman.
T: "In New York"—"Nocturnal Piece" (4/4 Andante) by Schumann.
T: "Father Andre says"—"Dramatic Maestoso" by Ascher.
T: "Ain't there no proof"—"Legend of a Rose" (2/4 Allegretto) by Reynard.
T: "Father Andre's letter"—"Adoration" (4/4 Andante Moderato) by Barnard.
T: "Grant arrives in Oresville"—Hurry to action.
T: "Pick up the wood"—"Spring Flowers" (Andante) by Wood.
T: "Call the day shift"—"Dramatic Tension" by Winkler.
T: "The following morning"—"Canzonetta Allegretto" (Moderato) by Godard.
S: "The fight"—"Agitato" to action.
S: "Girl sees Grant's body"—"Intermezzo (2/4 Presto) by Arenski.
S: "Grant on bed"—"Romance" (Andante sostenuto) by Karganoff.
T: "A week later"—"Romance Op. 40" (4/4 Moderato) by Beethoven.
T: "Under cover darkness"—"Mysterioso" to action.
T: Morning—"Dramatic Tension" by Funck.
S: "Girl crying for help"—Hurry to action.
T: "She has saved you"—"Yester Love" (Intermezzo Andantino) by Borch.
T: "Madame Tillson you were"—"Dramatic Andante" by Ascher.
S: "Flashback to former scene"—"Reverie" (4/4 Andante) by Vieuxtemps until * * * END.

THE GREAT PATRIOTIC HOME SONG HIT

Song 15c Orchestra, 11 and Piano 25c Band 25c
Waltz 15c Full Orchestra and Piano 35c

VICTOR RECORD BY PAUL REIMERS — PATRIOTIC VERSION BY ED ROSE

VANDERSLOOT MUSIC PUB. CO.
Williamsport, Pa.

GORDON'S
Motion Picture Collection
IN TWO VOLUMES
PRICE, $1.00 POSTPAID

Volume I.—Contains music for 19 standard types of motion pictures. 131 selections altogether.

Volume II.—Contains 43 selections. National airs, miscellaneous scene and special effect music.

This is not a folio but might almost be called an Encyclopedia of Motion Picture Music. It contains no instruction but is actually being used as a Test Book for Motion Picture Pianists.

It is invaluable to all picture pianists.

DESCRIPTIVE CIRCULARS ON APPLICATION — PUBLISHED BY

HAMILTON S. GORDON
141-145 West 36th Street New York, N. Y.

MOVIE PIANISTS
Join our "Movie Club." $1.00 entitles you to everything we publish for one year (Vocal and Instrumental).
ARTHUR M. SIEBRECHT & CO., LEXINGTON, KENTUCKY

THE BARTOLA

Some of the biggest and finest theatres in America are installing the Bartola. We have convinced the owners of these theatres that this is the proper music for them. A Demonstration will convince you. Write for catalogue.

CHAS. C. PYLE, General Sales Agent, 707-712 Mallers Bldg., Chicago, Ill. Factory, Oshkosh, Wis.

You are wasting your opportunities if YOU ignore advertising.

Theatres Worth While

Stage Setting and Promenade Alhambra Theatre, Milwaukee

Alhambra, Remodeled, Presents Every Convenience

ONE of the most beautiful and artistic photoplay houses in the entire Middle West is the recently remodeled Alhambra theatre. The Alhambra, which is Milwaukee's largest theatre, has been under the Saxe management for the last six years or more, Mr. Saxe having taken hold of it when it was a poor theatre and made it into one of the best paying photoplay theatres in this part of the country. He recently remodeled it, boosted the admission price and is now doing a record business.

The theatre contains a children's playroom, ladies' rest room, big and comodious foyer, beautifully dressed stage and a long roomy lobby. From end to end it is most modern. The lobby is lined with photographs of well known stars and in easels on the side are art posters of coming attractions. As may be seen from the accompanying photographs the lobby of the theatre is practically free from any obstruction. In the rear of the theatre is a big promenade with the rest room and children's play room adjoining.

In the balcony of the house was where Mr. Saxe demonstrated his knowledge of the peculiar psychology of price which makes people want things that are most expensive. In the balcony are a series of box seats which were very unpopular with photoplay audiences when the house was at ten cents. During the remodeling Mr. Saxe had these boxes beautifully draped and installed in them luxurious box chairs and large softly shaded lamps.

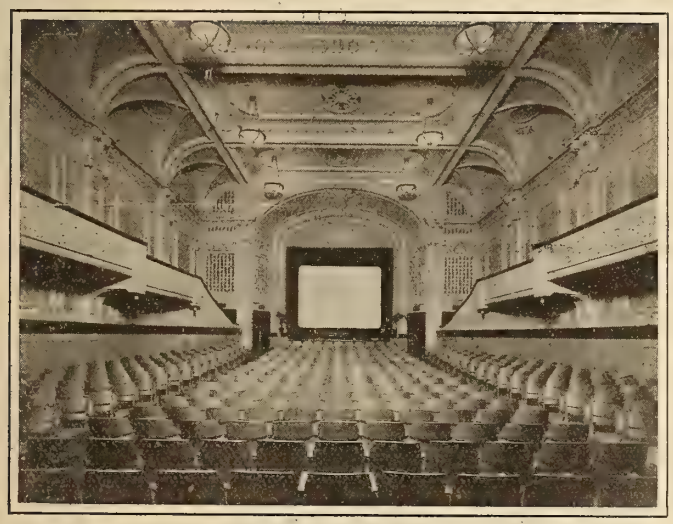
Ladies' Rest Room, Alhambra Theatre

Lobby Alhambra Theatre

Keeney Builds $100,000 Kingston House

WILLIAM E. LEHMAN, architect of Keeney's Brooklyn theatre and Keeney's Newark theatre, has drawn plans for a motion picture house to be erected for Frank A. Keeney on a central site he has purchased in Kingston, N. Y. The new theatre will cost upwards of $100,000 and will seat about 1,500. It will be devoted to feature photoplays produced by the Frank A. Keeney Pictures Corporation and selected from other sources. Ground will be broken in the spring as soon as the weather permits.

Typhoon Fans in California



THE Typhoon Cooling and Ventilating System has reached California by way of the Star theatre, Reedley, Cal., owned by W. L. Sheibley.

The Star is the first house in this state to be cooled and ventilated by Typhoons and the Typhoon Fan Company is looking forward to a big California business next season.

"We feel confident that every exhibitor who visits Mr. Sheibley's house and sees for himself how delightfully cool it is in hot weather will want Typhoons to cool his house too," said C. S. Pabst, of the Typhoon Fan Company. "We base our expectations on what has always happened in the past whenever Typhoons were installed for the first time in other sections of the country."

Saxe Theatre Scores Big Success

AS the first modern moving picture theatre in Minneapolis showing the highest class photoplays obtainable, the Strand opened its doors four years ago. It was then the Saxe theatre,

Attractive Interior of Strand Theatre, Minneapolis erected and operated by Saxe Bros., represented in Minneapolis by William Saxe.

Another Interior View of the Strand Theatre, Minneapolis

The Strand was built exclusively for moving pictures. Every seat in the theatre is on a direct line with the screen, and the seats are said to be the most comfortable in the city. The floor slopes to an angle to the middle of the theatre, then inclines toward the stage, so that the screen is always on a level with the eyes of the auditor.

Directory of New Theatres

ARIZONA

Johen Johanson is erecting a new theatre at Gadsden; ground was broken for same last week.

CALIFORNIA

Work is being pushed on the new motion picture theatre being erected on East Colorado street, Pasadena. The Italian rennaissance is being followed strictly in the design. A ceiling height of twenty-two feet, with a high dome auditorium will give a sweep to the interior, and an extra wide proscenium arch will give place for an unusually large screen. Provision is also being made for a double organ loft in which will be installed a large pipe organ. The lobby is to be the largest of any moving picture theatre in the State; sufficient space being provided to allow of the comfortable passage of one audience while another is buying tickets. The plans include every possible device for the safety of patrons, as well as for their comfort. The Florence theatre is the name chosen for the new house, and Manager D. H. Schulman promises its patrons a series of most pleasant surprises when it is once in full swing.

The new Kinema theatre, Los Angeles, was formally opened last Saturday to capacity business.

So rapidly have the artists, sculptors and decorators pushed their work on the new "Million Dollar theatre," being completed for Sid Grauman at Third and Broadway, that Grauman today was enabled to announce plans for the formal opening of the playhouse early in January, the final date depending on the completion of some of the delicately wrought interior decorations.

N. O. Anderson is planning a $75,000 hotel and theatre building at San Pedro, to be erected on Palos Verdes street, with a theatre lobby and entrance from Sixth street. The lease for the theatre has already been signed by Ray Pierson and F. O. Adler, who have purchased the store room of O. B. Sadler on Sixth street for $22,500, for the entrance. The sale was made on a basis of $600 per front foot, the property being 25 x 75 feet and improved with a one-story brick building.

The theatre at the rear on Mr. Anderson's property fronting on Palos Verdes street will be 57 x 125 feet and will seat about 1,000 persons. On the remaining portion of his property, and over the theatre, Mr. Anderson plans to erect a four-story hotel. The property has a frontage of eighty-seven feet on Palos Verdes and is 160 feet deep. This will give room for stores on the Palos Verdes street frontage thirty-five feet in depth.

J. T. Dickman is having plans prepared for a new theatre at Linda Vista.

L. A. Smith, 621 Investment building, San Pedro, is preparing plans for a one-story Class C moving picture theatre to be erected on Palos Verdes avenue, near 6th street, for N. O. Anderson. F. O. Adler and Ray Pierson are the lessees of the theatre. The auditorium will be 57 x 125 feet in size, the entrance and lobby 25 x 75 feet. There will also be one store room in the building. It will be of brick construction, with concrete foundation, tile and cement flooring, staff ornamentation, composition roof, skylights, plumbing.

G. L. Kirby has prepared plans for a motion picture theatre to be erected on Hobsonway, Blythe, for L. B. Todd and M. E. Fletcher, proprietors of the Gem and Electric theatres. The new building will be 50 x 100 feet and have seating accommodation for 500.

Sonora's new theatre was opened last week to crowded houses under the management of Knowles and Shaw.

FLORIDA

The Cuba Club management is remodeling their two-story building at Key West, and will convert the first floor into a modern motion picture theatre.

MAINE

The new Haine's theatre, at Waterville, is fast approaching completion; Manager Edeart K. Bolen announces the formal opening will take place early in the new year.

MASSACHUSETTS

A new theatre is to be erected at 213 Hanover street, Boston, for the Tivoli Amusement Company. It will be three stories high on concrete foundations. Joseph McGinniss is the architect, and the contract has been let to the Haynes Construction Company. The estimated cost is $90,000.

Work on the theatre and office building in course of erection at Norfolk and Austin streets, Cambridge, for the Olympia Theatre Company is progressing favorably, and the formal opening is announced for early in the new year. The cost of the structure will be about $400,000.

The Savoy theatre, at Fall River, has been purchased from William Durfee by Marcus Loew, who will raze the present building and construct a modern motion picture theatre on the site.

NEW YORK

J. R. Lockwood, part owner of the Majestic theatre, Burlington, Vt., and F. E. Coburn, also of Burlington, has purchased an entire block on Warren street, Glens Falls, and are having plans prepared for a building which will contain a modern motion picture theatre.

Frank Rosso is building an up to date motion picture theatre on Nineteenth street, Niagara Falls at a cost of $12,000.

John J. Dunlea has opened a motion picture theatre at the corner of Smith and King streets, Mohawk, which he calls the "Columbia."

NORTH DAKOTA

The Savoy theatre on Broadway, Fargo, is being thoroughly renovated and remodeled; Manager Clavier plans its reopening for January 15 next.

PENNSYLVANIA

The Grand Opera House, Fifth avenue, Pittsburgh, which was destroyed by fire about six months ago, will be re-equipped and operated as an exclusive motion picture theatre, the Harry Davis interests announce.

Scarelli and Marini, of Belle Vernon, plan the erection of a motion picture theatre there.

WISCONSIN

R. T. Holcomb and Joseph Collins formally opened their new theatre, the Crystal, situated on W. Washington street, Monroe, last week.

DU PONT FABRIKOID

REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

Seats That Stay New

DU PONT FABRIKOID is the only upholstery material that will withstand the perspiration, heat and dust tests of the Moving Picture Theatre and still remain beautiful, sanitary and serviceable.

DU PONT FABRIKOID is absolutely water, grease, stain, dirt and germ proof. It is as handsome, soft and satisfying as the costliest leather, yet will outwear any leather in this service.

DU PONT FABRIKOID is washable. Plain soap and water will keep it permanently handsome and sanitary. There is economy for you and luxury for your patrons in DU PONT FABRIKOID.

Let Us Prove It With A Sample

DU PONT FABRIKOID CO.
Wilmington, Delaware

Canadian Office and Factory
NEW TORONTO, ONT., CANADA

CAMERAMEN LABORATORY-MEN, PRODUCERS, and EXPERIMENTERS

Let the Camera Department or

Motion Picture News

Solve Your Problems
Submit your questions to the

EDITOR OF THE CAMERA DEPT.

"NEWMAN" BRASS FRAMES AND RAILS

DO YOU KNOW?

That 90% of all the brass frames used in the moving picture houses throughout the country are "NEWMAN'S"?

WHY?

Because we steadily have refused to cheapen or lower the quality of our goods, even though others have sought to undermine our prestige by underselling with cheapened products. That is one of the reasons why nine out of every ten frames sold bear the name "NEWMAN." Insist on that name and save money.

You ought to have our latest catalogue. Write us today.

The Newman Mfg. Company

Established 1888
Frames, Easels, Grilles, Rails, Signs, Choppers, Kick Plates, Door Bars

717-19 Sycamore Street, Cincinnati, Ohio
68 W. Washington Street, Chicago, Illinois
Canadian Representative—J. T. Malone, Rialto Theatre Bldg., Montreal, Canada.
Pacific Coast—G. A. Metcalfe, San Francisco, Cal.

REBUILT MACHINES

We have on hand a number of rebuilt machines which we guarantee to be in A1 adjustment, all worn parts having been replaced by NEW GENUINE PARTS MADE AND GUARANTEED BY THE MANUFACTURER of the particular machines.

All orders subject to prior sales.

POWERS No. 6, complete with lenses and Rheostat	$100.00
Motio, 1909 Model, complete with lenses and Rheostat	75.00
Motio, 1908 Model, complete with lenses and Rheostat	50.00
Powers No. 5, complete with lenses and Rheostat	50.00
Edison Exhibition Model, complete with lenses and Rheostat	50.00
Viascope, complete with lenses and Rheostat	40.00
Monarch, complete with lenses and Rheostat	25.00

AMUSEMENT SUPPLY COMPANY

Largest exclusive dealers to the Moving Picture Trade

Dealers in Motiograph, Simplex, Power's, Edison and Standard Machines, Transverters, Motor Generators, Rectifiers and Everything Pertaining to the Moving Picture Theatres.

THIRD FLOOR, MALLERS BUILDING, COR. MADISON STREET AND WABASH AVENUE, CHICAGO, ILL.

THEATRE AND EXCHANGE MAILING LIST SERVICE

We rent lists of or address contemplated or existing theatres, exchanges, state rights owners, publicity mediums and producers, selected as to territory, class, etc. Twenty thousand changes were recorded in our list last year. Its use means a saving to you of from 30 to 50% in postage, etc.

N 144

MOTION PICTURE DIRECTORY CO.

80 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK — Phone, 3227 Chelsea
425 ASHLAND BLOCK, CHICAGO — Phone, 2003 Randolph

Addressing Multigraphing Printing Typewriting

SIMPLEX

SIMPLEX

Motion Picture Machines, not merely as good but far superior to any other. We are exclusive agents for Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland.

Motor Generators and General Supplies

MINUSA Gold Fibre Screens

SPEER CARBONS for Perfect Projection

We are equipped to give you expert service. We repair machines with tools made by the factories. No other concern can offer better service than we. Try us.

Lewis M. Swaab 1327 VINE STREET PHILADELPHIA, PA.

DISTRIBUTOR

THEATRES

THAT ARE WORTH WHILE

IS YOURS?

IF it is, send us full details—also photographs, in order that we may run a complete and fully illustrated story of which you will be proud.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS

729 Seventh Avenue New York City

BE A PERCENTAGE EXHIBITOR!

Figure the needs of your patrons on a percentage basis. They will figure on you in turn for their entertainment.

Comfortable seats are rated as 25% of your needs.

OUR

OPERA CHAIRS

GIVE

The desired percentage of perfection and comfort. We have high quality and low prices. Quick shipment of many styles. Our Service Department open to you.

Write for Catalogue N.

STEEL FURNITURE CO.

1475 Buchanan Avenue, S. W. Grand Rapids, Mich.

The Wise Exhibitor

knows his pictures. He doesn't try to tell his patrons something which he knows nothing about. It is mighty hard to get a line on all the productions put on the market each week unless you subscribe for

"Screen Opinions"

The Independent, Comprehensive Reviewing Service

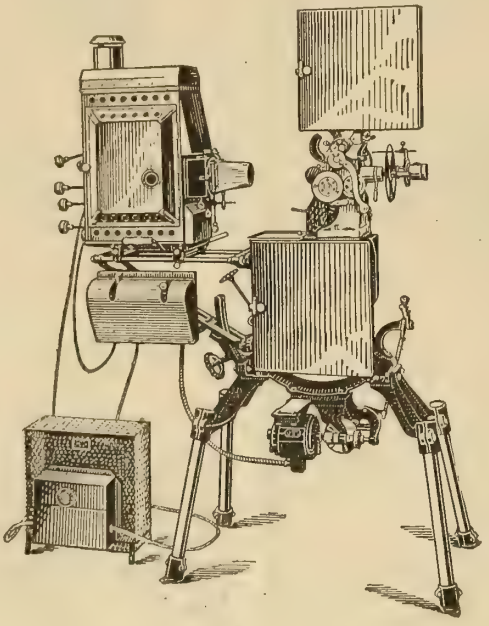
Screen Opinions tell you all you want to know about any picture produced in advance of its release. It gives you the opinions of the best critics in the field. It tells the story of the play. It brings you copy for your program. Every picture produced is reviewed—and published in Screen Opinions—each week and each month. The sooner you subscribe, the sooner you will know what you are talking about when you advertise the pictures you are going to show at your theatre.

Write In for Full Information

Cahill-Igoe Co. Chicago
117 W. Harrison St · THE HOME OF "CICO" PRODUCTS

For Better Music

The Fotoplayer



62 West 45th Street AMERICAN PHOTO PLAYER CO. New York City

TYPHOON COOLING SYSTEM

TYPHOON FAN COMPANY 1544 BROADWAY NEW YORK CITY

REMEMBER

100% efficiency for the 100% dollar is the standard set and maintained by POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH

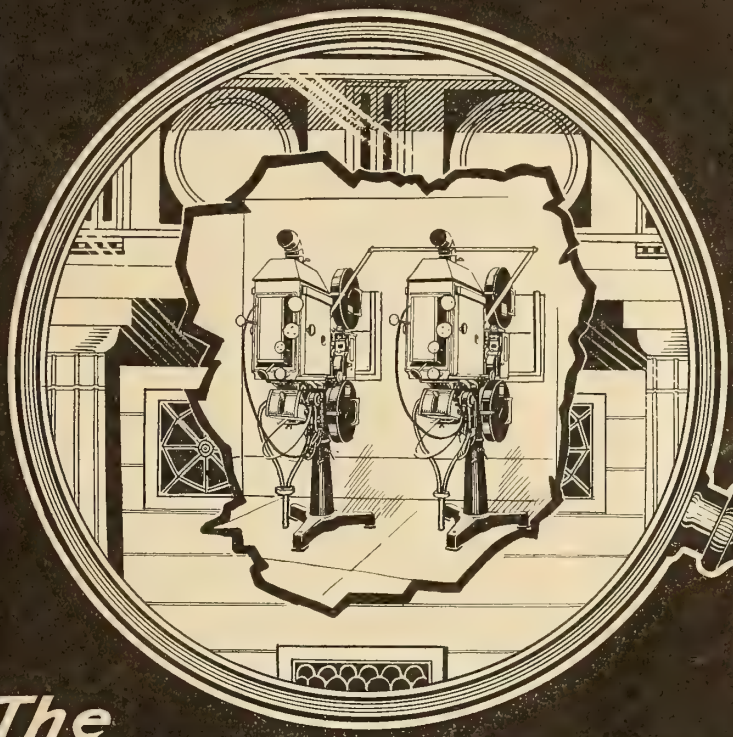
6 B Model, Motor Driven

By efficiency we mean the projection of clear, steady pictures sharply defined on the screen, together with a serviceable durability in mechanical operation that reduces repair bills to a minimum.

Nicholas Power Company

Incorporated

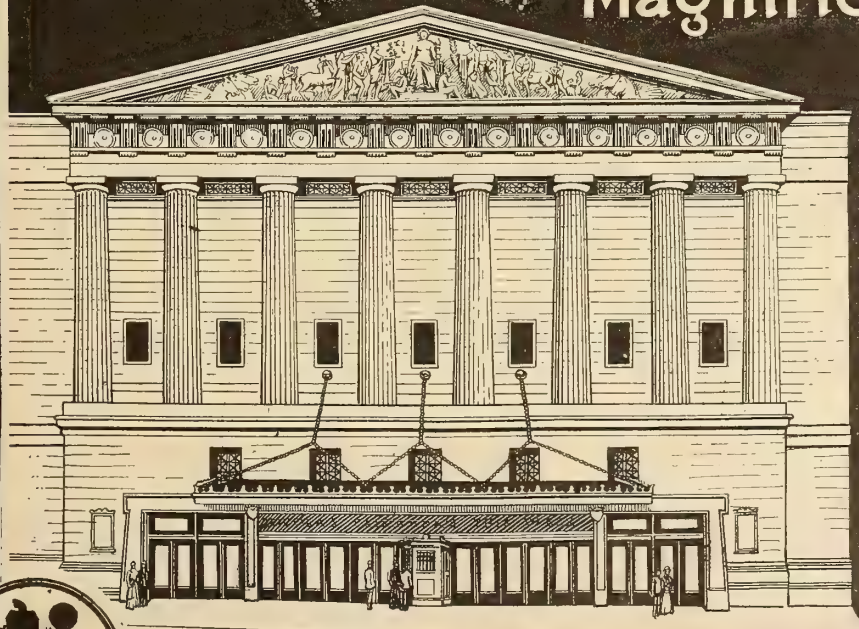
Pioneers of Projection



90 GOLD STREET NEW YORK

POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH

• ASSURES •



PEERLESS PROJECTION

Simplex

A Close-up of the Heart of
Mr. S. L. ROTHAPFEL'S
RIVOLI
Your Theatre Would Live Better WITH A SIMPLEX HEART

The Grandest, the Most Magnificent RIVOLI Temple Ever Erected to the Cinema God

THE PRECISION MACHINE CO. INC.
317 East 34th St. New York

The MAN without a COUNTRY

One photoplay that you can count on for crowded houses as long as Americans are soldiers. Recommended everywhere by the American Defence Society. Made by Thanhouser.

The Five Other Record Smashing Jewels are:

Herbert Rawlinson in
"Come Through"

Elaine Hammerstein in
"The Co-Respondent"

Dorothy Phillips in
"Pay Me"

Louise Lovely - Carmel Myers in
"Sirens of the Sea"

Mildred Harris in "The Price of a Good Time," produced by Lois Weber

COMING — Dorothy Phillips in "THE GRAND PASSION"

JEWEL
PRODUCTIONS
INC
1000 Broadway New York

JANUARY 12, 1918

Motion Picture News

Reg. in U. S. Patent Office.

HAS THE QUALITY CIRCULATION OF THE TRADE

Foremost

There are many famous stars appearing in motion pictures—but in the stars are foremost. It's the difference in "box office" value or drawing power.

Paramount and Artcraft Pictures

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
NEW YORK

485 5th Ave., New York

VOL. XVII-NO. 2 Entered as Second Class Matter, October 13 1913, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act March 3rd, 1879 PRICE 10 CENTS

Dorothy Phillips

Heroine of the smashing success "Pay Me" as Midge O'Hara the little country girl

The heart and soul of New York's Great WhiteWay laid bare

IN

"BROADWAY LOVE"

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS (INC.)

Book thru your Local BLUEBIRD Exchange

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS

in "A Modern Musketeer"

Photoplay by Allan Dwan Based on "D'Artagnan of Kansas" by E. P. Lyle, Jr.

Fairbanks again chosen to open a new theatre

For the second time, S. L. Rothapfel, genius of exhibitors, has chosen Douglas Fairbanks as sponsor for a new theatre.

The fact that Mr. Rothapfel has opened his master creations with Fairbanks-Artcraft Pictures, and that Artcraft and Paramount Pictures form the backbone of his year's attractions, attest the quality and profitableness of these superb photoplays.

An ARTCRAFT Picture

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

A Tremendous Success—is Nationally Advertised

ADOLPH ZUKOR presents

MARGUERITE CLARK

IN

"THE SEVEN SWANS"

Adapted and directed by J. Searle Dawley

A Paramount Picture

Colossal Production—A Delight, says Press and Public

Exhibits the highest finesse of motion picture art.
—New York Herald.

Delighted everyone who saw it at the Strand.
—New York Tribune.

Most artistic screen fairy tale which has been done.
—New York Evening Sun.

Everyone who saw "Snow White" will rush to see this bigger and more advanced production but exhibitors must tell their people long before that this wonderful picture is coming.

not only to the thousands of kiddies and "grown-ups" who saw "Snow White" last year will hear about this picture but this year we are after a new group. Here's one of the National Ads doting mothers and fathers all over the country read to their children this Christmas. Tear it out and take it home to your youngsters.

THE SEVEN SWANS

A PARAMOUNT PICTURE

Come away to the Valley of Make-believe,
A wonderful "magic" we shall weave—
Our hearts are young, as yours may be:
The Children of Make-believe are we!

TO CHILDREN AND THOSE WHOSE HEARTS ARE YOUNG
LETS MAKE-BELIEVE

A LETTER FROM MARGUERITE CLARK

MY DEAR CHILDREN:

John Martin came to see me to-day and we talked a long time about you, which made me very happy. I love you children dearly (and it is plain to see that John Martin does, too.)

Do you know what I want most of all in the world? I want to make you children happy and I want to give you the kind of thoughts that are really lovely; and I want to live and feel like a child myself—that is the reason I like my Fairy Plays most of all.

Won't you children come to see me in my new play, "THE SEVEN SWANS." I am a little Princess in it. You will love the film, I know, because my heart was with you all the time it was being made. Oh, it is a very magic play—and I should not wonder if some day I might step right out of the screen and come right among you children and ask you to play with me! Oh, I wish that would happen! Well—who can tell, perhaps it may.

"When I love you and you love me
Big magics are quite apt to be."

Good-bye, Children, I hope to see you soon.

Affectionately yours,

Marguerite Clark

AND SO

ONCE upon a time, in the Kingdom of Seven Dials, there was a beautiful little Princess, who lived with her father and Seven Big Brothers. In a near-by kingdom there lived a wicked Queen, a miserable Witch, and a cruel Prince. The wicked Queen desired to rule the Kingdom of the Seven Dials, so she arranged for the marriage of the little Princess to her stupid and cruel son. The Queen, and the Witch, and the stupid Prince came to the happy kingdom and wonderful were the betrothal festivities.

CHILDREN COME AND SEE THE BETROTHAL OF YOUR LITTLE PRINCESS.

Reprinted, by permission, from John Martin's Book

This is just another reason why your box office will be besieged when you show this unparalleled attraction.

Paramount-Burton Holmes Travel Pictures

"To Travel is to possess the World" Holmes

ARE you a "live-wire," up-to-the-minute showman?

Then last week you ran the Paramount-Burton Holmes Travel Picture No. 46, "Going to Halifax," Serial No. 1089.

It shows how things looked before the terrible disaster; the news pictures showed what happened, but the people wanted to see "the before" also—

Perhaps it isn't too late yet—

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
NEW YORK

Artcraft Pictures

"I Lecture to Travel" Holmes

Paramount Pictures

Paramount Pictures

SELECT SP PICTURES

ALICE BRADY

IN WOMAN AND WIFE"

adapted by Paul West, from

CHARLOTTE BRONTE'S

immortal novel

"JANE EYRE"

directed by Edward Jose

This is Alice Brady's Second Select Picture

Distributed by

SELECT PICTURES CORPORATION

ALBERT E. SMITH Presents

The Serial Sensation of the Screen

"VENGEANCE— AND THE WOMAN"

Featuring

WILLIAM DUNCAN with

CAROL HOLLOWAY

15 Episodes of Unequalled Melodrama
By Albert E. Smith and Cyrus Townsend Brady
Directed by William Duncan

VITAGRAPH

This Exhibitor Says He Conscientiously Believes He Would Be Doing His Fellow Exhibitors An Injustice If He Did Not Tell Them What He Saw In The Vitagraph Projection Room.

"Dear Vitagraph:-

"We are about to close the fifteenth episode of 'THE FIGHTING TRAIL' to all the way through remarkable and historic financial returns.

"You paid me the delicate compliment of permitting a personal screen review of the first three episodes of your new serial 'VENGEANCE—AND THE WOMAN,' marked up for release December 24th, and continuing William Duncan and Carol Holloway in the leading daring roles.

"MY ANSWER TO YOU IS THAT YOU DON'T HAVE TO HUNT ME UP IN AN ENDEAVOR TO TRADE. MAN ALIVE! I AM COMING AFTER YOU INSTEAD.

"I thought 'THE FIGHTING TRAIL' was the last word in sensational serial escapades, but 'VENGEANCE—AND THE WOMAN,' with its punch after punch every few hundred feet is, to me, the marvel of Western thrillers.

"My only regret is going to be that I cannot take care of the Alpha's patrons who will most assuredly block the sidewalks on 'VENGEANCE — AND THE WOMAN' days."

Sincerely yours,

N. V. DARLEY,
Proprietor and Manager, Alpha Theatre,
Atlanta, Ga.

VITAGRAPH

ALBERT E. SMITH presents

Edward Earle and Betty Howe

in

"The Blind Adventure"

from the famous

Saturday Evening Post Story

"The Agony Column"

By EARL DERR BIGGERS

Author of "Seven Keys to Baldpate"

DIRECTED BY WESLEY RUGGLES

A Picture That Will Be Eagerly Awaited by the Millions Who Have Read This Story in The Saturday Evening Post.

And for your patrons who may not have read this highly unusual story—with its melodrama, its lightning-like action, its delightful love interest and whimsical comedy touches—there awaits nothing less than a real treat.

And it's fairly creepy with mystery, with an ending that will surprise even you.

"THE two initial releases of this series are "THE SNAIL" and "DENNY FROM IRELAND" — super-productions in five reels. I am ready to negotiate with STATE RIGHT BUYERS either on outright sale or co-operative basis as governed by scale of percentages adopted by the FIRST NATIONAL EXHIBITORS CIRCUIT. A franchise for the entire series with a guaranteed monthly release is also available under the same conditions. ONE PRICE ONLY for bona-fide buyers upon application. All supplies at actual cost."

Ernest Shipman

17 West 44th Street
New York City
(Murray Hill 5432-3)
Cable Address "Ernship"
Executive Offices for
W. H. CLIFFORD
PHOTOPLAY COMPANY

An Advertisement
by
W. W. Hodkinson

DO OUR IDEAS INTEREST YOU?
Copies of the first of our Booklets, "What Shall We Do with the Motion Picture Business?" are now being sent free on request. It contains the Mastbaum letter and Mr. Hodkinson's reply. ALSO the Hodkinson Principles as applied to Deposits, Booking Methods, Reel Tax, Rental Prices, Stars and Exchanges. Write to-day.

THE NEW HODKINSON CIRCLE

Six years ago I laid down my first circle of principles. Since then, the trade has recognized that circle of "Longer Runs, Better Pictures, Higher Admissions, Better Theatres, Better Public, Longer Runs, etc.," as the basis of all exhibitor success.

Today I am building another circle, A CIRCLE OF BUSINESS PRINCIPLES which applies to the whole industry.

THE MOTION PICTURE PLUS, with all its unlimited possibilities, is ONLY ONE OF THE GREAT FORCES WHICH MAKE UP THAT NEW CIRCLE.

Four of these linked forces have already been announced:

1. A SUPERIOR PRODUCT IN STANDARD FORM, the PARALTA PLAYS, issued every two weeks. To these will soon be added other product of at least equal quality and quantity.

2. THE FINEST EXCHANGE SYSTEM IN THE LAND, that of the GENERAL FILM COMPANY. Through this arrangement, our salesmen and sales methods can and are being applied to our distribution without waste or duplication and WITH GREAT SAVING TO BOTH EXHIBITOR AND PRODUCER.

3. THE MOTION PICTURE PLUS. This will bring all our product to the forefront of public favor through our guarantee that the MOTION PICTURE PLUS SHALL FOREVER STAND FOR QUALITY ALONE in every element now prized by exhibitors and audiences—PLUS the greater range and power which the new process will give to any picture.

4. THE BUSINESS PRINCIPLES which we are introducing by establishing a genuine distributing organization, free from both producer and exhibitor control. BEHIND THIS IS THE FORCE OF THE WIDESPREAD DISCONTENT IN THE INDUSTRY TODAY, which is really only a blind searching for just that firm business foundation which we are establishing.

TO THESE FOUR GREAT FORCES I AM ADDING THREE OTHERS, AS PRACTICAL AND AS NECESSARY TO THE COMPLETION OF THE CIRCLE:

5. The first, now being accomplished, is PARTNERSHIPS WITH IMPORTANT EXHIBITORS OR IMPORTANT GROUPS OF EXHIBITORS in all exchange and strategic centers. These exhibitors will receive, through these partnerships (1) the assurance of CONTINUED SERVICE OF QUALITY PRODUCTIONS, and (2) A LARGE SHARE OF DISTRIBUTION PROFITS, to which they are entitled by their position, their investment and the support which they give us.

6. Coincident with the tieup with exhibitors will come A CLOSE RELATIONSHIP WITH GREAT PRODUCERS. To producers we offer an assured market, free from the restrictions of producer distribution, demanding nothing but the highest quality plays and talent which they can provide in far greater degree when their only care is producing.

7. The Public will form the final link in our Circle. National Publicity, tied to the unmistakable trademark-on-the-screen of the shape and size of the MOTION PICTURE PLUS, will for the first time reach the public without waste and without confusion, assuring their support for the real quality which the public of today demands.

THERE IS A CONTACT WITH US FOR EVERY FIT ELEMENT IN THE BUSINESS.

Wm. W. Hodkinson

DISTRIBUTION

The PARALTA PLAYS are sweeping the country. Every territory is being covered with absolute protection for first-run, second-run and third-run houses, etc. Write to the "HODKINSON SERVICE" of your nearest GENERAL FILM Exchange and arrange to see the beautiful PARALTA PLAYS. Then find out how our distribution plans meet YOUR problem and protect YOU.

W. W. HODKINSON CORPORATION, 527 Fifth Avenue, New York

Telephone, Murray Hill 2123

PARALTA PLAYS

PICK OF THE PICTURES

The Second Paralta Play

Bessie Barriscale in

Directed by REGINALD BARKER

"Madam Who?"

Written by HAROLD MacGRATH

Advertising versus Camouflage

(Pronounce Calm-moo-flawj)

When a man has a real diamond for sale
and he tells everybody that it is a real diamond;
that's Advertising.
But when a man has a piece of polished glass for sale,
and he tells everybody it is a real diamond;
that's Camouflage. (Meaning fake.)
Camouflage is used by an army to fool the enemy.
By a merchant to fool his customers.
You read an AD about a picture, and it says
the picture is glorific and magnolious.
Then you see that picture.
And then you don't book it.
Then you read another AD about the same picture, and it says
the picture is glorific and magnolious.
Then you're wise. And you say: "Oh, camouflage."
You can test a diamond.
"A Man's Man" played Clune's Auditorium (seating over 3,000)
for a full week, and packed-jammed them in.
Now Mr. Clune has booked "Madam Who?" for TWO weeks!
We're telling you. That's Advertising.
Not Camouflage.

PARALTA PLAYS, Inc. 729 SEVENTH AVENUE NEW YORK CITY

DISTRIBUTED BY
W.W. HODKINSON CORPORATION

PARALTA PLAYS
PICK OF THE PICTURES

The First Paralta Play

J. Warren Kerrigan in

"A Man's Man"

Directed by
OSCAR APFEL

Written by
PETER B. KYNE

ROBERT BRUNTON, Manager of Productions

Sometimes it happens that two men love the same girl.
Wow!
Then we have with us two cave men
fighting for the favor of the one and only female.
Everything goes; biting, clawing, gouging —
and the big fellow wins.
And brothers, partners, friends become bitter enemies.
Now, you can measure exactly how much of a real man a party is in such a situation. Just how far he has advanced from the original brute.
Just how closely he adheres to the man-code
which puts "Honor" 'way up,
and "Unfairness" —— this way out.
And when you see a man sacrificing all his chances to win, because he knows that his friend loves her it makes you feel that this world is a pretty good place.
So long as a man's man, like John Webster,
lives amongst us.

PARALTA PLAYS, Inc. 729 SEVENTH AVENUE
NEW YORK CITY

DISTRIBUTED BY
W.W. HODKINSON CORPORATION

GENERAL FILM COMPANY.

THE THRILL SERIAL FOR PATRIOTIC AUDIENCES

A DAUGHTER of UNCLE SAM

with

JANE VANCE and William Sorelle

The Serial of Dynamic One-Reel Episodes
The Serial of Enemy Spy Plots Outwitted
The Sensible Serial of Condensed Action

A Thrilling Drama of the War at Home

First Episode Ready Jan. 19 Then One Every Week

Produced by

JAXON FILM CORP.

Commercial Trust Co. Building,
NEW YORK CITY

Distributed Exclusively by General Film Company

GENERAL FILM COMPANY.

With JEAN PAIGE and Webster Campbell in leading roles

Another delightful production with the real "O. Henry" humor and bewitching slants on human nature—the story of a girl who romanced about a nobleman fiance, but who found her fate in a prosaic young New Yorker.

Broadway Star Features

Distributed Exclusively by General Film Company

General Film Company does not exact the 15c charge on any of its releases.

GENERAL FILM COMPANY.

Watch CHARLIE CHAPLIN Play in "WORK"

New Prints

New Paper

PACK YOUR THEATRE WITH THESE GREAT ESSANAY-CHAPLIN COMEDIES

"IN THE PARK" "BY THE SEA"
"THE CHAMPION" "A JITNEY ELOPEMENT"

ONE EVERY MONTH

TRADEMARK
Reg. U. S. Pat. 1907

ESSANAY

GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT

1333 Argyle Street, Chicago

TRADEMARK
Reg. U. S. Pat. 1907

Distributed Exclusively by General Film Company

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers

GENERAL FILM COMPANY.

Wonders of Nature and Science

The Bay of Fundy, where the tides flow 60 feet high, leaving the ships on dry ground at the ebb and floating them off at the flood.

SCENICS SUPREME

BOOK ONE EVERY WEEK

"Water Powers of Western Canada"
"How Canada and the Farmer Co-operate in Grain Raising"
"Through Canada from Coast to Coast"
"Agricultural Opportunities in Western Canada"

A NEW PROGRAM MAKER

ESSANAY COMEDIES

(Directed by ARTHUR D. HOTALING)

"He Loved Her So"
"Lunch"
"Nutt Stuff"
"Make Your Eyes Behave"

Screen time 15 minutes

TRADEMARK
Reg. U. S. Pat. 1907

ESSANAY
GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT

1333 Argyle Street, Chicago

TRADEMARK
Reg. U. S. Pat. 1907

Distributed Exclusively by General Film Company, Inc.

A magazine's success is measured by its advertising. Look at the "News!"

MR. FOREIGN BUYER

TIME AND TIDE WAIT FOR NO MAN

A WORD TO THE WISE SHOULD BE SUFFICIENT

PARALTA PLAYS

PICK OF THE PICTURES

ARE NOW AVAILABLE FOR YOUR FOREIGN TERRITORY

BUT—NEXT WEEK

THEY MAY BE SOLD

COMMUNICATE NOW WITH US

THE LARGEST DISTRIBUTORS OF FILMS IN FOREIGN FIELDS

EXCLUSIVE EXPORTERS OF SPEER CARBONS

INTER-OCEAN FILM CORPORATION

PAUL H. CROMELIN
PRES. & GEN'L. MGR.

220 W. 42ND ST.
NEW YORK CITY

WE OPERATE EVERYWHERE

SEMLER

MARGARITA FISCHER

Whose winsome and happy personality has given her established box office value. In which depicts the delightfully unconventional adventures of an indiscreet younger sister who is "misunderstood."

"MOLLY GO GET 'EM"

Produced by American Film Company Inc., Samuel S. Hutchinson, President.

Available January 7
At all exchanges of the
Mutual Film Corporation

He's a pretty good Judge

Minter

Murdock

Fischer

Russell

Day

Tell

Sanderson

Goodrich

Mutual Film Corporation

825-827 SOUTH OLIVE STREET
LOS ANGELES, CAL.

December 10,1917.

"THE MATE OF THE SALLY ANN".

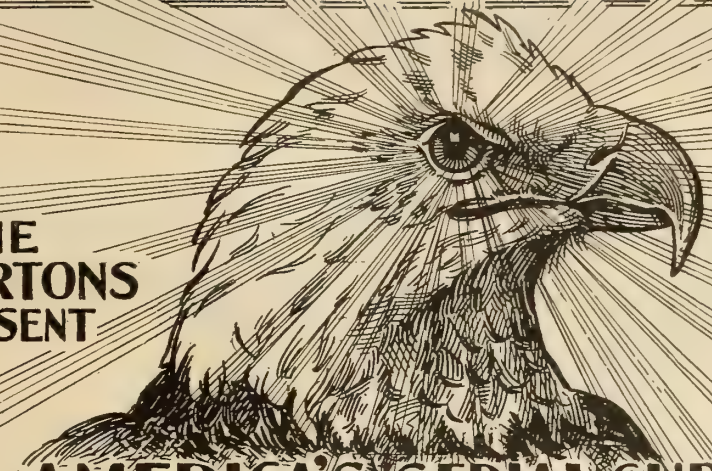
Mutual Film Corporation,
220 South State Street
Chicago, Illinois.

ATTENTION MR. JOHN R. FREULER.

Gentlemen:

It gives us great pleasure to announce that after Mr. Mack Sennett, the well known producer, has personally pre-viewed Mary Miles Minter, in "THE MATE OF THE SALLY ANN", he placed his stamp of approval on this production by booking it for one solid week showing at his Sennett's Broadway Theater, Los Angeles, starting December 30th.

He also advises that all we need to show is pictures of this standard and we will have no trouble whatever in booking them to his theater. We believe, that when a gentleman of Mr. Sennett's standing in the picture world, puts his stamp of approval on the first Mutual Picture, that he has personally viewed with the idea of booking by booking it for one solid week, is a good criterion for theater managers to go by.



Yours very truly,

MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION

J. L. Merrick

M/I

Branch Manager.

THE WHARTONS PRESENT

A PATRIOTIC APPEAL

AMERICA'S SERIAL SUPREME

"THE EAGLE'S EYE"

THE STORY OF
THE IMPERIAL GERMAN GOVERNMENT'S SPIES AND PLOTS IN AMERICA

By WILLIAM J. FLYNN
RECENTLY RETIRED
CHIEF OF U.S. SECRET SERVICE

PRODUCED WITH A GREAT COMPANY HEADED BY THE POPULAR STARS

KING BAGGOT and MARGUERITE SNOW

OUR TRADE SHOWING

Will take place shortly after January 1st

Exhibitors are extended a cordial invitation to be present.
Particulars will be furnished by the nearest Foursquare Exchange.

U.S.A. T.W. WHARTON L.D. ITHACA, N.Y.

4 SQUARE EXCHANGES

DISTRIBUTED BY
FOURSQUARE EXCHANGES
PRINCIPAL OFFICE - 729 SEVENTH AVENUE - NEW YORK
BOOKING OFFICES IN ALL PRINCIPAL CITIES

Goldwyn Pictures

GOLDWYN'S SUPREME ACHIEVEMENT

Opening to Landslide Business at the Box-Offices of North America: Beginning December 30

MARY GARDEN IN THAIS

by Anatole France
Directed by Frank H. Crane

The National Board of Review

after showing Mary Garden in "Thais" to its complete membership and passing it without a single elimination, says in a special report: "This production sums up the artistic achievements of the motion picture in interpretive and imaginative drama. Photographically it is a distinct stride forward, the acting of Mary Garden is notable, and the picture as a whole is an example of creative art."

Goldwyn Pictures

ANATOLE FRANCE'S CONGRATULATIONS TO GOLDWYN FROM PARIS!

The distinguished author of "Thais" and member of t... Academy of Immorta... Goldwyn this fer... tion of its ma... tion and fa...

"Allow m... Thais ... unhea... who ... perse... able...

START THE NEW YEAR RIGHT
WITH FOX SPECIAL FEATURES

GEORGE WALSH

CARL HARBAUGH

GEORGE WALSH is making the Greatest Picture of his Career

WILLIAM FOX is producing for him with
CARL HARBAUGH as director

JACK SPURLOCK-PRODIGAL

A story read by more than 5 MILLIONS OF PEOPLE in THE SATURDAY EVENING POST written by GEORGE HORACE LORIMER

The Most Genuinely Laughable Story ever filmed, with the most Genuinely popular star for the title part

RELEASED ONLY TO THOSE EXHIBITORS
WHO CONTRACT FOR FOX SPECIAL FEATURES

JANUARY R[illegible] [illegible]RE WONDERS IN THEMSELVES-

[illegible]INIA PEARSON

The vanguard of a New Year of wonderful Standard Pictures

William Fox will release New Year's Day

THEDA BARA

in

Du Barry

A powerfully interesting Theda Bara Super Production
French History's most dazzling and most powerful adventuress
From lowly origin, she reached the heights and ended on the guillotine

A splendid production directed by J. Gordon Edwards

OTHER STANDARDS THAT SHOULD BE BOOKED NOW

A DAUGHTER OF THE GODS with ANNETTE KELLERMANN

THEDA BARA'S Super Production THE ROSE OF BLOOD

TREASURE ISLAND

JANE and KATHERINE LEE as TROUBLEMAKERS

FOX FILM CORPORATION

This picture is the second TRIANGLE seven-reel super-production to be released January 13, 1918, on the regular program at NO EXTRA COST to exhibitors.

A RINGER FOR BUSINESS

—and one of the most artistic pictures that TRIANGLE has ever produced, a masterpiece of scenic beauty—is this seven-reel super-feature, "I LOVE YOU," starring Alma Rubens. REMEMBER this picture is released January 13th, on the regular TRIANGLE program and

AT NO EXTRA COST TO EXHIBITORS

TRIANGLE DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

1457 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

S. A. LYNCH, President R. W. LYNCH, Vice-President FRED KENT, Treasurer Y. F. FREEMAN, Gen. Mgr.

Many a packed house is directly traceable to an advertisement in the "News."

SIDNEY OLCOTT'S
STUPENDOUS HEART INTEREST SPECTACLE

The BELGIAN

STARRING
WALKER WHITESIDE
and VALENTINE GRANT

MARTYRED BELGIUM furnishes the overwhelming appeal of "THE BELGIAN," by FREDERIC ARNOLD KUMMER, while in addition to the BIG SPECTACULAR FEATURES of this GREAT SPECIAL PRODUCTION, the TWO EMINENT STARS—WALKER WHITESIDE and VALENTINE GRANT—make it an extra attraction of EXCEPTIONAL BOX-OFFICE VALUE.

BOOK THROUGH THE FOLLOWING EXCHANGES:

FOURSQUARE
NEW YORK.....729 7th Avenue
BUFFALO.....47 W. Swan Street
CHICAGO.....207 So. Wabash Avenue
DETROIT.....304 Jos. Mack Building
DENVER.....1735 Welton Street
SEATTLE.....2014 Third Avenue
PITTSBURGH.127 Fourth Avenue
LOS ANGELES.514 W. 8th Street

PHILADELPHIA.....1325 Vine Street
CINCINNATI.301 Strand Theatre Buildg.
ST. LOUIS.301 Empress Theatre Building
CLEVELAND.....310 Sloan Building
WASHINGTON...8 E Street, Northwest
KANSAS CITY.....1120 Walnut Street
SAN FRANCISCO..191 Golden Gate Ave.
MINNEAPOLIS.206 Film Exchange Bldg.

SOUTHERN STATES FILM CO.
ATLANTA.....114 Walton Street
DALLAS.....1900 Commerce Street

GLOBE FEATURE FILM CO.
NEW ENGLAND.....20 Winchester, Boston, Mass.

FRANK GERSTEN, INC.
NEW JERSEY.....220 W. 42nd Street New York City

FOREIGN RIGHTS: Robertson-Cole Co., 23rd floor, Times Building, New York

U.S. EXHIBITOR'S BOOKING CORPORATION
FRANK G. HALL PRES.

STATE RIGHTS BUYERS!

CLUNE'S CINEMA PRODUCTIONS

By HAROLD BELL WRIGHT
Positively the Finest Photo-Dramatic Work of the Times

RAMONA

By HELEN HUNT JACKSON
The Love Story of the Ages

Success of State Rights Features Hinges Upon One of Three Things
AUTHOR—NOVELTY—STORY
In These Two Attractions You Have All Three Elements

ADDRESS

Shallenberger & Priest, Arrow Film Corp.
TIMES BUILDING, NEW YORK, N. Y.

THE SECOND of the HART SUPER-FEATURES!

A FULL HOUSE IS DRAWN~ BY THE ALL STAR CAST
in

"The BANDIT and the PREACHER"

BY C. GARDINER SULLIVAN with PRODUCED By THOS. H. INCE

WILLIAM S. HART

— as the BANDIT —

SUPPORTED BY

Robert Edeson~ The Preacher
Rhea Mitchell ~~ The Girl
Herschel Mayall~ The Heavy
Gladys Brockwell~The Vamp

5 reels

A NUMBER OF TERRITORIES ALREADY SOLD.~ COMMUNICATIONS CONSIDERED IN ORDER of RECEIPT

W. H. PRODUCTIONS CO.

71 WEST 23rd St NEW YORK CITY
Phone Gramercy 3027

IN PREPARATION
"The HELL~HOUND of ALASKA"

EXHIBITORS —
BOOK "THE TWO~GUN MAN"

The CREAM of the KEYSTONE
COMEDIES

28 two reelers, including
Three of the funniest
CHARLIE CHAPLINS
and they are COPYRIGHTED

$80.00 PER REEL and
WE PAY THE WAR TAX

All from original negatives which we absolutely own and control

Wonderful lobby display of Photographs and One-Three and Six Sheet Posters

A Number of territories already sold. Communicate immediately for quota

W·H·PRODUCTIONS CO.

71 WEST 23rd ST. PHONE, GRAMERCY 3027 NEW YORK

foreign rights

Exclusive of Great Britain

For any and all of the productions of the —

SELIG POLYSCOPE COMPANY OF CHICAGO

By special arrangement and covering a term of years are now

EXCLUSIVELY CONTROLLED

by the Export and Import Film Co. and J. Frank Brockliss (Inc.)

Don't miss this opportunity of acquiring rights for your territory on these super-features just completed

"The CITY OF PURPLE DREAMS"
"The GARDEN OF ALLAH"
"The STILL ALARM"
"BROWN OF HARVARD"
"PAYING THE PRICE"
"The CRISIS"

Export & Import Film Co. Inc.

Phone Bryant 4566-7-8

J. Frank Brockliss Inc.

Phone Bryant 5343

729 Seventh Ave. New York City

HERE'S PROOF!

W. E. GREENE

"IN SPITE OF THE PRICE PAID FOR THE NEW YORK RIGHTS, I BELIEVE THIS GREAT PICTURE WILL PROVE THE BIGGEST CARD I HAVE EVER BOUGHT"

WALTER E. GREENE

HARRY RAVER'S POWERFUL DRAMA

THE PUBLIC DEFENDER

WITH FRANK KEENAN - ALMA HANLON - ROBERT EDESON

HIRAM ABRAMS

"NEW ENGLAND CAME HIGH BUT SUCH PICTURES ARE RARE, AND THE BOSTON PHOTOPLAY CO. SIMPLY COULD NOT RESIST"

TERRITORY GOING FAST

RENOWNED PICTURES CORP.

1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

These are Times when Only BIG THINGS COUNT

The Biggest Achievement of Motion Picture History Is Now At Your Disposal

D.W. GRIFFITH'S GIGANTIC SPECTACLE

MR. EXHIBITOR

Here Is Your Golden Opportunity ¶ You can give this triumph of the screen to your patrons at your prices, providing you maintain a minimum charge of 25¢. ¶ Special engagements now booking in the leading motion picture theatres of the country. ¶ For terms and further particulars, address

EPOCH PRODUCING Corp.
807 Longacre Bldg. New York City
H. E. Aitken, Pres't. J. J. McCarthy, Gen. Mgr.

DO YOU KNOW

that the "Birth Of A Nation" has only been presented in the leading $2 theatres of the world and that it holds the record for length of runs and gross receipts in America?

50 million "Movie Fans"—the best patrons of popular amusements in the country—have never seen this masterpiece of action.

DO YOU WANT TO SECURE— your percentage of this VAST CLIENTELLE?

The Epoch Company can furnish at cost all advertising data that was a feature in the successful establishment of this great subject.

Special Arrangements to stimulate interest will be placed at your command.

THE WONDER STORY OF THE AGE

TARZAN
OF THE APES

STORY BY EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS
DIRECTED BY SCOTT SIDNEY

Millions of Readers

Who Followed the Career of Fiction's Strangest and Most Wonderful Character Are Waiting Eagerly to See Him on the Screen—

TARZAN

EIGHT REELS OF Different Photoplay

IS READY NOW

NATIONAL FILM CORPORATION OF AMERICA
PRODUCERS HOLLYWOOD, CALIFORNIA

The THREE MOST THRILLING REELS YOU EVER SAW —

The 8th ANNUAL ROUND UP

(PENDLETON, OREGON)

If you want to see audiences fairly boil with excitement show this picture of daredevil-deeds.

RELEASED DEC. 30th

Pathé

DORIS KENYON

SHELDON LEWIS

ARLINE PRETTY

MAHLON HAMILTON

BOOKED FOR 70 DAYS OVER THE PANTAGES CIRCUIT

The HIDDEN HAND

WITH

DORIS KENYON

SHELDON LEWIS ARLINE PRETTY and
MAHLON HAMILTON

SUCCESSFUL EXHIBITORS BECOME MORE SUCCESSFUL BY SHOWING PATHÉ SERIALS!.....

Written by ARTHUR B. REEVE

Pathé

PATHÉ SERIALS MAKE HIM MORE MONEY THAN ANY FEATURES ON THE MARKET — and he has played them— .....since 1915.....

"I believe PATHÉ understands the technique of making a serial that brings the people back..... PATHÉ serials have made me more money than any brand of features on the market to day"..... K.R. Burford, m'g'r, REX Theatre ..... Arkansas City, Kans.

There are hundreds of exhibitors who like Mr. Burford book every PATHÉ serial. They know how to pick the winners. They have all picked.....

The SEVEN PEARLS

with

..MOLLIE KING.....

and

...CREIGHTON HALE.....

Produced by ASTRA .....
Written by CHAS. W. GODDARD
Directed by DONALD MACKENZIE

Pathé

BABY MARIE OSBORNE

is one of the best attractions in the business. She is the star of the five-part Gold Rooster Play

The LITTLE PATRIOT

Produced by DIANDO .....
Written by JOHN W. GREY .....

Read the various exhibitors' reports in the trade magazines on the "Baby" pictures. You will find they are cleaning up.

..... Now Ready .....

GLADYS HULETTE

whose pictures are always wholesome, sunshiny and charming, is the star of the five part Gold Rooster Play

.....OVER THE HILL.....

Written by Lois Zellner ..... Produced by ASTRA
Directed by Wm. Parke

"OVER THE HILL" is the story of a newspaper girl in a small town. You'll like it.....

Notice to State Right Distributors and Exhibitors

Ivan

"When I agree to exploit an attraction it will of itself be a hallmark of distinction.

"I will actively and personally assist each buyer of a production to "put over" the attraction in his territory.

"Mine is not merely a selling organization; it is a clearing house and Serving Bureau.

"I will do business with and for reputable concerns only, and I know them all. Ask any of them."

QUOTATION FROM JESSE J. GOLDBURG'S ANNOUNCEMENT "AD." Moving Picture World and Motion Picture News. Issue Dec. 22/17.

CONSISTENT WITH HIS POLICY TO EXPLOIT ONLY PRODUCTIONS OF MERIT, AND TO GIVE PERSONAL ATTENTION TO THE PRODUCTIONS PLACED WITH HIM, WE TAKE PLEASURE IN ANNOUNCING THAT WE HAVE CONSTITUTED MR. JESSE J. GOLDBURG OUR SPECIAL AND EXCLUSIVE SALES REPRESENTATIVE FOR THE PRODUCTIONS HANDLED BY HIM.

MR. GOLDBURG HAS PERSONALLY viewed every picture which he is exploiting.

THE Productions he will handle are the following proved BOX OFFICE ATTRACTIONS: "A MOTHER'S CONFESSION," "CONCEALED TRUTH," "IMMORTAL FLAME," "CITY OF ILLUSION," "HIS WIVES," "FADED FLOWER," "HER SURRENDER," "TWO MEN AND A WOMAN," "ONE LAW FOR BOTH," "BABBLING TONGUES," "HUMAN CLAY," "MARRIED IN NAME ONLY," and "SINS OF AMBITION."

Mr. Goldburg will, the First of January, commence a tour of the entire United States, visiting the principal Distribution Centres, as follows: PITTSBURG, DETROIT, CHICAGO, DES MOINES, DENVER, SEATTLE, PORTLAND, SAN FRANCISCO, LOS ANGELES, FORTH WORTH, DALLAS, NEW ORLEANS, ATLANTA and WASHINGTON, D. C.

WAIT AND WATCH FOR HIM

Our contract provides that Mr. Goldburg has absolute authority to close at a figure which, in his judgment, is fair to the State Right Buyer and to ourselves:—AND HE KNOWS.

The disturbed condition of the trade due to unbusinesslike methods and other wanton extravagance does not apply to us. Our pictures prove unsparing expense yet show full value for all expenditure made upon them. That is one reason Mr. Goldburg feels certain our productions will prove of great saving value to State Right Distributors.

IVAN FILM PRODUCTIONS, Inc.
130 West 46th St.
New York

The "NEWS" advertisers believe YOU worth while; justify them.

HELEN GARDNER IN

Opportunity Knocks at Your Door
It Don't Knock the Door Down

CLEOPATRA, the magic word of the hour—the golden "open sesame" for the exhibitor! The most talked of and advertised attraction of the age!

HELEN GARDNER, the most beautiful woman in America. Pronounced in 1914 the most wonderful picture ever made, up to that time, and now revived, amplified and augmented by the original producer, CHARLES L. GASKILL, with the original cast, including HELEN GARDNER.

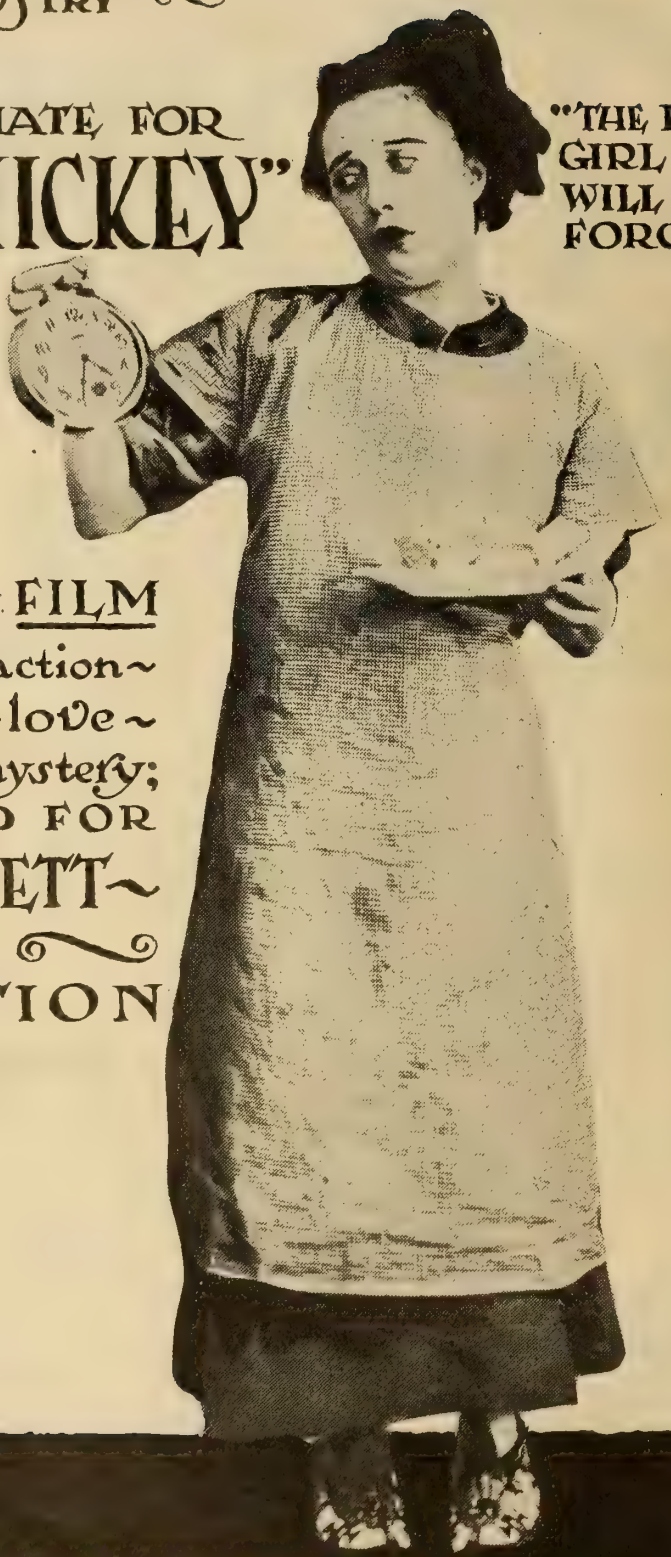
CLEOPATRA FILM COMPANY

Suite 722 Longacre Bldg., Broadway & 42nd St., New York City

CLEOPATRA

Opportunity—Fortune—Is Calling Now! Give Heed!

A GOLD MINE for state right buyers. You can exhibit the big $2.00 feature for 25c and make a big profit.



SIX REELS, and an ensemble of thousands of men and women, in accordance with the most modern technique of the photoplay.

DON'T WAIT until the goose that lays the golden egg has flown —beat " the other fellow " to " the real thing." Write or wire quick for terms. Pictorial printing includes 24 sheets, 8 sheets, 6 sheets, 3 sheets, 1 sheet, ½ sheet.

TO THE FILM INDUSTRY

IT IS TIME TO NEGOTIATE FOR MABEL NORMAND in "MICKEY"
"THE LITTLE GIRL YOU WILL NEVER FORGET"

THE PERFECT FILM
Pulsating with action~ humor~pathos~love~ sensation and mystery;
THE LONG WAITED FOR MACK SENNETT~
$300,000
PRODUCTION

WORLD RIGHTS CONTROLLED BY
WESTERN IMPORT CO.
1010 BROKAW BLDG., N.Y.

TO ALL EXHIBITORS

MABEL NORMAND
in
"MICKEY"

WILL BE EPOCH MAKING IN THE INDUSTRY FOR A LONG TIME

WORLD RIGHTS CONTROLLED BY

WESTERN IMPORT CO.

1010 BROKAW BLDG., N.Y.

Which "Two"?

¶ We have a number of letters in reply to our declaration that:—

"One paper is enough to reach properly and completely the purchasing power of this field but two papers are necessary to preserve a desirable balance of competition—and the proposition stands right up to the manufacturer and distributor for instant action." "Granted" say the letters in substance "but which are the 'two'?" It is hardly our business to designate the two. We shall have to leave that to your own good sense. It is, it strikes us, a matter of only—good sense.

¶ We stated that "one paper is enough to reach properly and completely the purchasing power of this field."

One advertiser keyed his advertising and found that one paper drew inquiries three to one with its nearest competitor.

Another advertiser visited his field, in person, intensively, and came back with the decision that one paper practically dominated the field.

Another advertiser (state rights) got inquiries from one paper twelve to one against any other.

Another advertiser asked his exchanges and they gave one paper a 75% advertising value against the field.

Another advertiser, practically an exclusive advertiser in one paper for a year, gives that one paper credit for the establishment of a highly successful business.

Another advertiser, (state rights) with a businesslike proposition on goods of value, practically sold out this country through an advertisement in one paper.

And that one paper in each of these instances is MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

¶ We will give and substantiate the above proofs—and many more similar ones.

The point for you to consider is whether or not your advertising announcements are in this one paper each week—

If not, then, for that week, you are not heard by the majority of the members of this trade.

The Thomas A. Edison Studios present—

JAMES·MONTGOMERY·FLAGG'S "GIRLS·YOU·KNOW"

Types of attractive Americans.

A series of twelve original, humorous single-reel stories featuring distinctive types of attractive girls.

Ready for release at two week intervals beginning Jan. 2, 1918.

Distributed by
THE GEORGE KLEINE SYSTEM

Perfection Pictures

63 East Adams Street, Chicago
Branches in all principal cities.

Perfection Pictures

"The Highest Standard In Motion Pictures"

WM. N. SELIG

PRESENTS THE SUPERFEATURE

Brown of Harvard

FEATURING

HAZEL "HONEY" DALY and TOM MOORE

An Adaptation in Six Parts from the Sensational Stage Success

By RIDA JOHNSON YOUNG AND GILBERT P. COLEMAN

GEORGE KLEINE SYSTEM

Distributors

Perfection Pictures

"The Highest Standard In Motion Pictures"

Announcement for 1918

A special series of Superfeatures of exceptional box-office pulling power have been prepared for release on the Perfection Pictures program during 1918. Included are:

Title — Star

UNEASY MONEY - - - - TAYLOR HOLMES

(IN SIX PARTS)
A comedy-drama of the well-known story
Produced by GEO. K. SPOOR

BROWN OF HARVARD - HAZEL DALY and TOM MOORE

(IN SIX PARTS)
Adapted from the sensational stage success of college life
Produced by WM. N. SELIG

THE UNBELIEVER - - SPECIALLY SELECTED CAST

(IN SEVEN PARTS)
A stupendous production based on a powerful theme
Produced by THOS. A. EDISON, Inc.

I, MARY MacLANE - - - MARY MacLANE

Revealing the love affairs of the noted authoress; with herself in the title role
Produced by GEO. K. SPOOR

RUGGLES OF RED GAP - - - TAYLOR HOLMES

A comedy-drama from the famous stage success and story
Produced by GEO. K. SPOOR

GIRLS YOU KNOW - TYPES OF ATTRACTIVE AMERICANS

A series of one-reel satires on Society (one every two weeks), written by James Montgomery Flagg, the artist-author
Produced by THOS. A. EDISON, Inc.

Perfection Pictures

GEORGE KLEINE SYSTEM

Distributors

Your Seats Are Waiting for Thirty-Million People!

This number has been aroused to a fever pitch of interest through seeing the Billboards throughout the United States and through reading this famous story in the Saturday Evening Post. They are now

Waiting to See the Picture

Paramount

Distributed by George Kleine System Throughout the United States

Perfection Pictures

Motion Picture News

Vol. 17 No. 2. Jan. 12, 1918

The Week in the Film World at a Glance

GIVE US ENTERTAINING PLAYS (W. A. JOHNSTON) 213
EDITORIALS 214
SERVING IT WITH SPEED AND GINGER....215
THE CHANGEABLE EXCHANGE MANAGER....216
OPENING OF THE RIVOLI....221
WHAT KIND OF A FELLOW IS—ROTHAPFEL....225
"Sirens of the Sea" Gains Strength....246
Vitagraph Signs Sergeant Empey....247
Mutual Displays Service Flag....228
Wm. Fox Engages Peggy Hyland....248
Berst Predicts Great Year....249
Chapin Series Starts Shortly....250
"House of Glass" Is Started....251
Higher Admissions Made Clear....251
Constance Talmadge Gets Busy on Coast....252
Pathe Completes "Innocent"....253
"Daughter of Destiny" Wins....254
Triangle Studios Keep Busy....255
Edith Storey's Metro Debut Arranged....256
War Figures in New Artcraft....257
Vitagraph Names New Releases....258
January Brings Six Fox Films....259
Olive Thomas Takes a Hand....260
Pathe Releases Toto Comedy....262
Hodkinson Outlines Next Step....262
"Live and Let Live" Says W. H....274
Paving the Way to Independence....276
Business Booming for Standard....277
Goldberg to Represent Ivan, Inc....278
Ivan Record Spells Efficiency....282
Hall to Enter Producing Field....283
Flynn Serial Progressing Rapidly....283
"Hour Has Struck for Exhibitor"....285
The Reader has His Say....229
Exhibitors' Service Bureau....230
Rothapfel's Answers to Exhibitors....237
Ready-Made Ad. Talks....240
Exhibitors' Box-Office Reports....242
Live News From the Producers....245
Advance Offerings of the Programs....257
Film Specialties....264
Short Subjects in Review....273
In the Independent Field....274
Among the Exchanges....284
In and Out of West Coast Studios....287
"Betty Takes a Hand" (Triangle)....294
"Daughter of Destiny" (Petrova Pictures)....291
"Framing Framers" (Triangle)....292
"German Curse in Russia, The" (Pathe)....293
First Toto Comedies (Pathe-Rolin)....293
"Girl By the Roadside, The" (Bluebird)....296
"Grand Passion, The" (Jewel)....293
"Her Awful Fix" (Strand-Mutual)....295
"Hidden Hand, The" (Pathe Serial)....295
"His Mother's Boy" (Ince-Paramount)....295
"His Own People" (Vitagraph Blue Ribbon)....294
'In Bad" (Mutual-American)....293
Jerry Comedies (Cub-Mutual)....292
"Lost Express, The" (Signal-Mutual Serial)....291
"Man Above the Law, The" (Triangle)....294
"Quo Vadis" (Perfection)....290
"Sadie Goes to Heaven" (Essanay-Perfection)....291
"Seven Swans, The" (Paramount)....292
Stolen Hours" (World Film)....295
"Vengeance—and the Woman" (Vitagraph Serial)....292
Release Page....298-299-300-301
Accessory....303

Newsy Announcements of the Week Found in the Ad-Pages

"Broadway Love," a Bluebird, Presents Dorothy Phillips in Story of the Heart of New York....162
Fairbanks Again Chosen to Open New Theatre—the Rivoli..163
"Seven Swans" Gets High Praise and Elicits Reply from Miss Clark....164-65
Burton Holmes Goes to Halifax....166
Alice Brady's Latest Select....167
"Vengeance and the Woman" Gets Praise from Darley....168
"The Blind Adventure" a Vitagraph from Saturday Evening Post....169
Ernest Shipman Speaks of Shorty Hamilton Series....170
Hodkinson on "The Motion Picture Plus"....171
"Madam Who" and "Man's Man" Still Hold Paralta Limelight....172-73
War at Home in "A Daughter of Uncle Sam"....174
Another O. Henry "The Count and the Wedding Guest"..175
"Work" is Essanay's Next Chaplin Reissue....176
Scenics Supreme from Essanay....177
Inter-Ocean Has Paralta Plays....178
Mutual's Announcements....179-80
Trade Showing of "Eagle's Eye" Coming Soon....181
Goldwyn's Supreme Achievement is "Thais"....182-83
George Walsh and Theda Bara Stars in Current Fox Pictures....184-85
"I Love You" Is Seven Reel Triangle....186-87
Exchanges Offering "The Belgian"....188
"Ramona" for States Rights Buyers....189
More Hart Pictures from W. H. Productions....190
W. H. Productions Offer Twenty-eight Old Keystones....191
Export and Import Announcement....192
Greene and Abrams Purchase Territory on "Public Defender"....193
All Exhibitors May Now Book "Birth of a Nation"...194-95
"Tarzan of the Apes" Coming from National....196
Pathe....197-98-99-200
Ivan Film's Latest Number....201
Helen Gardner in "Cleopatra"....202-03
Western Import Company Handling "Mickey"....204-05
Edison Perfection Pictures....207
"Brown of Harvard" Presented by Selig Through Perfection....208 Perfection Pictures—Current and Coming....209
'Uneasy Money"....211
"I, Mary MacLane" Promises to Be Big Sensation....212
Jewel Describes "Sirens of the Sea" in Detail (8 pages).265-272
"Price of a Good Time" Plays to Capacity....279
"The Bull's Eye" Latest Universal Serial....280-81

WM. A. JOHNSTON, Pres. and Editor. HENRY F. SEWALL, Vice-Pres. E. KENDALL GILLETT, Sec. and Treas.

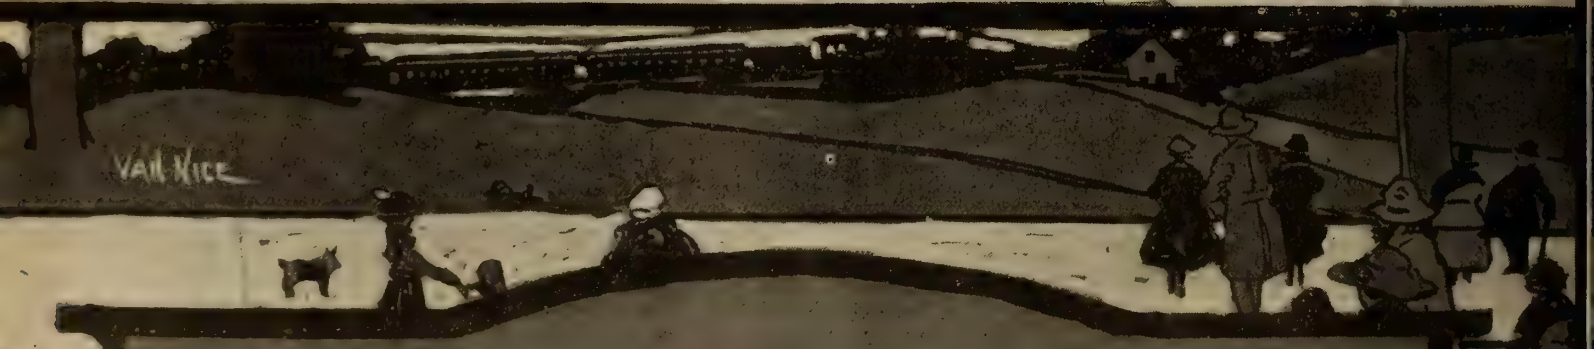
Published on Tuesday every week by MOTION PICTURE NEWS, Inc., 729 Seventh Ave., New York, N. Y. 'Phone 9360 Bryant. Chicago Offices, Mgr. Wm. J. McGrath, 110 So. Dearborn St.; 'Phone 755 Randolph. Los Angeles Offices, Mgr. J. C. Jessen, 429 South Figueroa St.; 'Phones 7140 Main, F-4661. Subscription $2 a year, postpaid, in United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands. Canada, $3. N. B.—No agent is authorized to take subscriptions for Motion Picture News at less than these rates. Have the agent who takes your subscription show his credentials and coupon book.

Copyright, 1917, by Motion Picture News, Inc.

George K. Spoor presents



MARY MacLANE

IN

Men Who Have Made Love To Me

ALL FIRST CLASS PICTURE THEATRES—Ask When!

THE REASONS WHY
Your Patrons Will Demand to See This Play

1. The stripping naked of a human soul.
2. The fame of this erratic author.
3. The widespread curiosity aroused by this story from her own pen.
4. The first opportunity to see her in pictures and know her intimately.
5. Revelations of the unusual love episodes of her own life, as written and enacted by herself.
6. Six leading men, lovers of this unique genius.

BACKED BY THE GREATEST NATIONAL ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN EVER GIVEN AN INDIVIDUAL STAR

Arrange Your Booking Dates NOW

Essanay

DISTRIBUTED BY GEORGE KLEINE SYSTEM THROUGHOUT THE UNITED STATES

Perfection Pictures

JAN -4 1918

©CLB400618

"When you see it in 'The News' It's News"

Motion Picture News

HAS THE QUALITY CIRCULATION OF THE TRADE

"The Exhibitors' Medium of Communication"

Volume 17. No. 2 January 12, 1918 80

Give Us Entertaining Plays

THERE must be no famine of good pictures this year. We spoke last week of the need of better showmanship—the prime necessity facing every exhibitor of giving the public full entertainment value for its money.

The producer will also have his work cut out for him this year.

Can we make this too emphatic?

Good pictures is a broad term, we admit.

A producer is quite well justified in coming back at us with: "Well, just what are good pictures? How will you determine them—in advance?"

The show world asks itself the question each year, and the lucky guesser often makes a fortune. There are many unlucky though experienced stage-producers.

SUPPOSE, in the first place, we call attention to our market report chart. It gives a striking unanimity of opinion—from all sections—in reply to our query: "What class of film is in greatest demand?"

Comedy and society dramas are wanted—of the "best seller" story variety and supported by "heart interest." But light dramas stand out as a concrete instance of an almost unusual demand.

Perhaps one exhibitor hits the nail on the head with a terse remark written on one of our box-office report cards: "One laugh, this year," says he, "is worth a dozen sobs."

People will want to be amused this year. In hard times and sorrowful times the public taste swings quickly and whole heartedly to light and frivolous things.

Producers will do well to bear this fact in mind. The truth that war times demand happy amusement is so well known in the theatrical world as to be almost a trite saying. But are we keeping this knowledge uppermost in picture production?

IT is well also to take a broad tip from the legitimate stage situation in New York City and on the road. In New York the bottom has dropped out of the stage business. Yet there are a half dozen striking successes.

But the point is that these successes are all of very light character and even tricky stage construction. Taking the New York and road shows all into consideration the situation is very well sized up by a writer in The Evening Post, who says that "the high peaks are held by girls-with-music spectacles or by obvious farce."

Melodrama will, of course, be popular, as it always is, if we mean by melodrama an abundance of action and heart interest built upon stories that are at least somewhat original, and certainly that ring true.

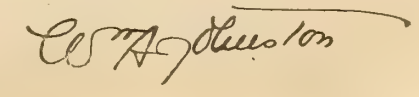
Serious drama will not be popular—by all the signs of the times.

And for the morbid play—this we make emphatic—there is, this year, no hope.

We have appealed right along in these columns for a cessation of the sex play. We need make this plea no longer. The producer who makes a sex play this year should have his sanity examined by his friends and especially by his financial backers.

THIS recommendation of light happy plays may be antagonistic to certain artistic ideals. But we fear very much that the exploitation of these ideals will have to be left to an after-the-war era. These stringent times in general and especially for the motion picture industry indicate the due necessity of feeling and filling the market demand.

Which raises the question: Just how close are our picture makers today to this market demand?



A very practical idea was offered in our hearing the other day, by a manager of production from the West Coast.

"I haven't been away from the 'lot,'" said he, "in several years and I'm glad I came East. When I go back I will have a suggestion to make to the concern—that they send every director out on a short trip at least once a year, to visit exhibitors and exchanges and study the picture market. I wish that some of our directors had been with me to hear the things I've heard said about their pictures."

WE, too, have our ideals in production. We look upon the motion-picture as a great medium that should reflect our National life. We decry the conception of the term "movie." We particularly decry that leaning toward the salacious and sensational that have put the wrong stamp upon motion pictures in the vision of many right thinking men and women.

And we believe fully that these ideals will be realized—sometime—when we have head policies of picture production as keen and definite as those that guide and govern the making of our successful newspapers, magazines, books and plays.

But in the meantime we can at least hew close to the mark right under our eyes—that of a war period that calls for plays of laughs, not tears; of clean action and happy heart interest, not of depressing morbidity and bad taste immorality; of snappy, even frivolous interest, not labored preachments which arrive nowhere.

Speaking Editorially:

Just a Reminder

A GENERAL Committee of the industry—all-representative—asked you last week and the week before to fill out a short coupon stating certain basic facts about the effects of the war tax on your business.

These facts from you are needed if the industry is to secure any meed of comfort from this Congress.

Did you heed the advertisements—or our last week's editorial urging? Or did you put it off "till tomorrow" and then forget it?

It's not too late now—if you do it now. Turn to Page 140 of last week's NEWS and find the coupon.

If you can't find the ad, write a letter. Answer these questions:

"How does the business of your theatre for the month of November, 1916, compare with the month of November, 1917?

"Have you suffered loss? To what do you attribute the same?

"Did the war tax affect your business? To what extent?"

Cheer Up!—It's Holiday Time!

SHERMAN never paid an admission tax—yet the old fire-eater had his own decided views on war.

And war and its outcroppings give one an awry feeling as he extends the greetings of the season to a film man. But frankly we see—and from a chair none too softly cushioned at that—many signs of cheer. For instance:

Portents of a real exhibitor organization are on the horizon.

That nuisance of a reel tax seems certain of adjustment.

A sane legislative program that will merit the consideration of Congress is under way.

Amalgamation talk is thick enough to assure the evolution of some plan for the elimination of waste.

The war has hit so many theatres already tottering that the industry may be forced to take notice of these weaker brothers.

And——

Anyway——

The excess profits tax——

Won't hurt us!

Features from the Field

NOT in the quickly discarded spirit of the usual New Year's resolution is our intention for the new year to provide readers of MOTION PICTURE NEWS with bright and timely articles, well illustrated, from the field. "What Happened When I Raised My Prices" was a sample. This week's "The Changeable Exchange Manager" is another.

Watch for them!

Don't Forget the "Smokes"

IN planning your list of worthy deeds for the ensuing twelve months don't overlook your opportunity to make our soldiers' lives a little pleasanter by sending them tobacco. If you are not now collecting for the smoke fund, write to the Editor for details.

Helping the War Department

WITH hundreds of thousands of husbands and brothers being taken from their social circles and deposited in more or less uncongenial training camps in various parts of the country, a new social problem has forced itself to be recognized.

What are all of these lonely and frequently homesick young men going to do for recreation?

The logical and the most popular answer is shouted from thousands of lusty young "rookie" throats—"the movies!"

On page 224 is a news story relating to the deep interest now being manifested by the War Department in the efforts of exhibitors to satisfy the camps' demands with good and, at the same time, clean pictures.

For obvious reasons the War Department wants to keep sex and vampire pictures away from the camps. We are glad to know that exhibitors show willingness in all cases so far reported to comply with the War Department's wishes.

Forty-Two Minutes from Broadway

OUR Exhibitor Box-Office Reports are showing that many Broadway stars are not stars forty-two minutes away from Broadway.

Time was when road shows quickly extended a star's fame from Broadway throughout the length and breadth of the land. But pictures have largely done away with theatrical road shows—a fact that producers seem to forget when picking what seem to be ready-made stars for pictures.

A One-Sheet Suggestion

AN exhibitor makes a good suggestion on one-sheets. Let them give the entire cast of the play, instead of merely featuring the star. Lots of people are interested in the other players, especially the well-known character players.

Furthermore, the cast gives an inkling to the public of the nature of the play.

This exhibitor finds it necessary and desirable to make his own typewritten announcement along these lines for lobby display.

The Picture Is the Thing

MUSIC has played so large a part in the success of the successive Rothapfel enterprises that many would unthinkingly believe that "S. L." considers the picture a subsidiary portion of his entertainment.

It is interesting, in this connection, to note where Rothapfel places the emphasis in the Program at the opening of his new Rivoli theatre.

"The Picture is the Thing," says Rothapfel—and then repeats it. The screen is the basis—the reason for the fine music—the raison d'etre of the Rialtos and Rivolis.

Good music, of course, but good pictures, by all means, is the Rothapfel promise.

Serving It with Speed and Ginger

WHAT! You've been away for the holidays? Really only lost a couple of business days, but feel as though you have been out of touch with the industry for a dog's age?

Your desk is all littered with papers and you feel as though you'll never catch up with your work. You'd like to read every line in the trade papers this week, but are afraid you won't get time for more than a glance.

So, it's up to us—up to us to give you the week in a glance.

One quick skimming over this page and you'll know just what you have to read, and just what you haven't time to read.

* * * *

WHAT happened this week? Frankly, we think everyone else in the business did the same thing you did—laid off for the holidays.

Hardly a speck of news. Christmas to New Year's—there's the story in a nutshell.

But that doesn't say that we haven't given you an interesting MOTION PICTURE NEWS this week.

* * * *

NO, Sir! We start right off with a bang—right on the next page—with a story that you'll want to read from the first line to the word "finis."

"The Changeable Exchange Man," we called it. Recent exhibitor letters have told us that the story could be duplicated in a number of cities throughout the country. But Guy Leavitt prepared it at first hand in Omaha.

It tells about those quick-change artists—the exchange managers; tells how they hop, skip and jump around the map like pawns on a chessboard.

If you are a producer you'll want to read this feature because every line in it is going to make you think.

If you are an exchange manager you'll read it because every line expresses your own thoughts.

If you are an exhibitor you'll read it because—well, how many times have you complained to us that just when you get to know an exchange manager and just when he gets to know your need—the head office shoots him a transfer to Oskaloosa.

* * * *

WALTER E. GREENE is head of Paramount, Al Lichtman will handle distribution, etc., etc.

There are a lot of newsy changes in the Paramount-Artcraft circle which we tell about this week. Of course, they were sort of expected after the Abrams-Schulberg announcement of last week, but still there are a lot of details you won't want to miss.

Al Lichtman is a pretty big man today, but every mention of his name always brings to us the thought—"Why couldn't Fate deal a few breaks of luck to such a popular fellow as Al Lichtman in his Alco days? Alco was the birth of a new distributing idea, since proven successful; Al Lichtman was a pioneer and a man who knew and knows film distribution from Times Square to the Squedunk express office—yet—

Fate is a curious codger.

* * * *

ONE bit of near-news that has hung on the horizon for weeks was squelched last week.

General Film comes forth in this issue of the NEWS with a denial that any further "amalgamations" or "co-operations" are planned than the present one by which the General Film sales organization is employed by Hodkinson for his Paralta pictures.

The poor rumor-mongers are squelched. For weeks they have been calling us into corners to whisper that—hist, hist—General Film had aligned with this, that and the other organization.

Now it's all off. But if they have taken that juicy rumor from us they have at least left us to juggle with the name of likable and energetic Frank Tichenor, who—so all the birdies tell us—is just showering pepper, ginger and "jazz" all around those G. F. offices.

* * * *

VITAGRAPH comes across with the biggest producer news of the week. It's about the signing of Sergt. Guy Empey, author of "Over the Top," for a screen feature under the same title.

Pretty big news, when one considers the million dollar publicity that has been given Guy Empey and "Over the Top."

* * * *

THE Rivoli opened on Friday night. Of course, that isn't news, so much, since the things that are expected are never news, but the opening was an event.

You'll want to read our story.

After you read it you won't fail to read the interview, "What Kind of a Fellow is—Rothapfel?"

And after you read that you'll be sure to read our department, "Rothapfel's Answers to Exhibitors."

It's in the third week now—and going strong.

* * * *

AFTER we read the last paragraph—speaking of "after"—we decided that this was something of a "Rothapfel Number."

Which, judging from the exhibitor mail that comes to our desk, means that this will be a popular issue.

If accidents will happen, let them be popular ones.

* * * *

J. J. RAYMOND heads the William Fox Exhibitor Aid Bureau. That may not be news to all of you, but to those of us who remember the long years of service "on the firing line" this man Raymond put in with the Gordon interests—his handling of Eclectic's "Les Miserables," for example—it's news that Fox's Exhibitor Aid Bureau is going to be conducted by "one who knows."

Considerable news in these days of real and camouflaged "exhibitor service."

* * * *

THERE'S a new department for you this week. "Bringing Them Into a Close-up" we have labelled it.

"Longacre" is writing this new feature. It's a sort of summing up on what the projection room screens and pre-release showings have given us in the past few weeks. Sort of gives you a chance to catch your breath in the rush of new pictures, and gives you a broader view of what is coming from the studios.

Without his disguise, "Longacre" is none other than Peter Milne.

Assurance to you that "Bringing Them Into a Close-up" will not only be worth while, but also corking good reading.

* * * *

IS that all there is in the NEWS this week? Not by a jugful. But that sincerely flattered Table of Contents—news and advertisements all on one page—is just two turns to the left.

Look there now. You'll find the details of a multitude of other interesting items, and you'll find the page numbers of the stories above.

Transferred Again!

The Changeable Exchange Manager

A dissertation on the man whose home is where he hangs his hat.

[Do you know the managers of the exchanges where you do business well enough to call them "Bill" and "Jack" and "Jim"? Why are exchange members shifted so frequently that they have grown to be a race of suitcase packers? We don't know the answers to those questions. We'd like to! Anyway, you will find this article on the "fly-by-hour" exchange manager mighty interesting and amusing. Besides, it sticks the knife of truth into one of the vitals of this restless, baffling industry.—EDITOR.]

DID you ever try to keep acquainted with the manager of a motion picture exchange? It is safe to say, judging from past experiences and what some of the managers themselves say, that they never know, as they wake up in the morning, whether or not that night will see them manager of the exchange.

"Every morning when I walk into the exchange I halfway expect to see a gentleman with a suit case, come with a telegram from the home office, saying he has been assigned manager in my stead," said the manager of an Omaha, Neb., exchange the other day. This manager, by the way, has accomplished the astounding feat of remaining manager of one exchange in Omaha for several months.

"How can the company expect me to get acquainted with the trade?" asks a manager.

"I don't get well enough acquainted with an exhibitor to treat him any different than if he were an absolute stranger," said another.

"In every line of business but the motion picture trade a man's experience is as valuable as his work, and his acquaintance with the trade and trade conditions of a territory are on a par with either of them," said a third.

"Talk about your fly-by-night exhibitors! Why, we are the fly-by-hour exchange managers!" exclaimed another.

"I'm going to get out of it. Oh, gee, that's what I said the last six times I have been changed. I guess I'll never get out of it. I wonder where I'll go from here?" Another manager was talking.

Thus they go. They get a good salary, they are temporarily looked up to, although they cannot help feeling of less importance than the booker, the bookkeeper or the shipping clerk, because their position is less permanent. There are exceptions, but these exceptions are indeed rare.

The MOTION PICTURE NEWS correspondent often walks into an exchange and sees a strange man seated at the manager's desk. Quite often the desk has been moved to another side of the room.

"Is Mr. So-and-So in?" asks the correspondent, feeling certain just what has happened.

"No, he is out," parries the new manager, wondering whether the correspondent is a bill collector, a private detective, an exhibitor or a caller from the home office.

"Will he be back soon?" asks the correspondent, the same as he has asked in scores of such cases.

"Well, no, he is out of the city," evades the new manager; in a tone and manner which he has probably used before in similar situations.

Thus, gradually, it leaks out the stranger at the desk is the new manager. The old manager? Well, it is understood he has gone to Kansas City, or to Chicago, or somewhere else; nothing ever definite. Is he still with the company? No, he is not with the company; the new manager really doesn't know anything about the old manager, but will the correspondent have a cigar? The correspondent will, and for several weeks, or days, or months he meets the new manager. The new manager confidently replies, in answer to a question as to why the desk was moved, "I had to do something different, didn't I? New Managers always do. And there was nothing to do but move the desk." Often the decorations of the office are shifted, too, but not as often as the desk is moved.

F. W. Thiele, well known in Omaha, went to Kansas City and was brought back to Omaha to act as booker in a new exchange in the Gate City. Soon he was assistant manager, then when the manager one day was said to be "Either in Chicago or New York, I don't know just which," Mr. Thiele was made manager. It was his first managership.

I Wonder Where I'll Go From Here!

Mr. Thiele is a business man, a friend of scores of exhibitors, and he knows moving pictures from A to Z, but the other day when a New York representative called in Omaha Mr. Thiele himself said he was on his way to Kansas City.

"Yep, I resigned," said he. "When the boss came and began going through my predecessor's books I knew I would be responsible for all the mistakes he had made, so I handed in my resignation.

"What am I going to do? Well, I have a proposition open, and I leave tomorrow to see about it. Yes, it's another managership. Oh, when we get to be a manager we stay in that department. Of course we are shifted quite often, but other managers are being shifted too, so what do we care?"

Harry Heyman, for several years—no, not weeks—star roadman for an exchange out of Omaha, then manager of the Omaha office, later special World representative when he refused to be shifted to Denver without being permitted to give his own opinion, finally quit when the home office one night told him to leave the next morning for Indianapolis.

"Not that I have anything against Indianapolis," said Harry, who is decidedly popular in his territory, "but I did object to being handled like I was a pawn on a chess-board. Other managers may stand for that stuff, but I don't like it." The other day Heyman made a trip over the Omaha territory as representative out of Omaha for Metro, and he "cleaned up" with a whole flock of healthy contracts.

Exhibitors automatically look upon a strange exchange manager, and upon most other exchange managers, for that matter, as natural enemies. They parley, they debate, they argue, they flourish, they carry on as no other business man in any other line of business carries on. They do it for fun, and they do it to get a lower price for their pictures, for there is no standard governing the prices of releases to exhibitors in the Middle West.

It is humorous, sometimes, to see an exchange manager, brand new in the territory, as he tells what he intends to do. "Why, the prices out here are absurdly low!" he exclaims in amazement. "How do the exchanges keep alive? No wonder they are dragging the ground. Just watch me! I'll get the price out of these guys."

In a few weeks another manager, also brand new in the territory, is making the same claims. The exhibitors continue to pay the same prices, ruffled now and then by the impertinent insistence of some new manager, and watch the coming and going of managers with indifference. Those of them who study the progress of the business make the pointed remark that the frequent shift of managers shows the distributing companies are afraid of the exhibitors; that the distributing companies intend to remain enemies to the exhibitor; that the distributing companies intend to continue to gouge and squeeze the exhibitor for all they can get out of him, and that the motion picture business, fifth largest business in the nation, is being kept from a firm basis by just such tactics. Oh, yes, there are exceptions. F. A. Van Husan was for years manager of the Laemmle Film Service Co. in Omaha, quitting to go into business for himself. He was again made manager of the Laemmle service, again quit for his own business, and now a new manager—C. E. Calvert, head of the Bluebird exchange ever since it was established in Omaha—is in the office.

Maybe New York can tell the exhibitors of the Middle West why exchange managers are shifted so frequently. "It may be none of our darned business, but we really would like to know," said an Omaha exhibitor, commenting on the question.

Good Morning! I am the New Manager!

Another instalment of "What Happened When I Raised My Prices" will appear next week. This will deal with conditions in Omaha, Nebraska and Newark, N. J.

[For the photographs used in illustrating "The Changeable Exchange Manager," our thanks are due the Artcraft Film Corporation for the photograph of Charles Ray on the opposite page; the Christie Film Co. for the photograph of Billy Mason, to the left; and the Triangle Film Corp. for the photograph in the circle.—EDITOR.]

Middle West Houses Close

At Least Dozen in Nebraska Cannot Get Coal to Heat Auditoriums—Draft Not Blamed for Losses

A COMPILATION of reports in Middle Western states shows that numerous houses have had to close because of lack of coal. Other difficulties are also advanced as the reason for either reducing the number of show nights each week or closing up altogether.

An exhibitor, in speaking of the coal shortage, said: "Letters I receive tell me a scarcity of coal is forcing theatres to close. At least a dozen houses in Nebraska closed last week from this one cause alone. H. O. Peterson, of Genoah, Neb., just called up, saying he had closed. In Oakland, Ia., Hopkins and Larsen, two of the best little showmen in this territory, have been forced to cut their show nights for the first time in their history because the electric light company has raised the price of current.

"The draft is not being felt in the cities, but it took the young men of the smaller towns. These young men took their girls to the show, twice, three or four times a week. Now, since they have gone, these girls do not even come. The exhibitors notice it.

"Epidemics are serious affairs from which the small town exhibitor cannot recover in an entire season. Bad roads get the people out of the theatre habit. These are usual things. But added to them are the unusual conditions."

All the exchange managers in Omaha are in sympathy with the small exhibitors—for the small exhibitors make up the bulk of the motion picture business out of Omaha. Here, where the business is still in its early stages of development, the pinch is being felt the keenest. The exhibitors, frankly, do not consider the exchanges are treating them square. But the exhibitors, if observations made at their meetings and in individual conversations are an indication, never did think the exchanges were treating them square.

But in the present situation, with the reel tax, a few more increases in film rentals, the increased price of posters, higher living expenses for the exhibitor and his help and general increase in general of the expenditure of money, the small exhibitor is growing more and more bitter toward the exchanges. The larger exhibitors are inclined to side against their smaller brothers in business. "Before the winter is over you will see most of these small store-room theatres in Nebraska closed," predicted one of the largest exhibitors in Omaha, Neb., last week. Nebraska's small theatres are not store-rooms, they are especially built houses and in most cases are highly ornamental. But the larger theatre men of the state will not admit it.

"The small theatre man is foolish to stay in the business and struggle against odds which he can never overcome," continued the big exhibitor. "He had better get out and get into many of the good money making avenues now open." This exhibitor added the quality of films would be better, the supply smaller and the business more profitable for the big fellows was it not for the number of smaller exhibitors.

An Omaha motion picture man, as widely known as any other film man in the state, who is in a position to know whereof he speaks, declares the "war profit" made on films, both old and new, amounts to hundreds of dollars a month in one Omaha exchange where he has had access to them.

BOOKERS!

Sure Have Warmed Up to that "All Year Round" Calendar

WE didn't forget the exchanges in sending out our Christmas remembrances this year. Several hundred of the bookers are now in possession of the specially devised Motion Picture News Booker's Calendar—with the whole year, the figures in large clear type, all on one sheet right before their eyes. No fussing with paste and scissors, as they make their own home substitutes; no fuming as they turn over page after page to get a sixty-day date—it's all there on one page in bang-up printing on Motion Picture News Booker's Calendar.

Have you—Mr. Booker—received yours? There are mighty few left, but we don't want to overlook anyone. Tell your manager today that a brief "Send me a calendar" note from him will bring it to you just as fast as Uncle Sam can carry it. Tell him today—you need it.

Jeanne Hall Finds Welcome on Screen

Jeanne Hall, who has been featured by the Film D'Art Corporation, Perry Pictures, in "Auntie's Triumph" and "Cousins," has found a warm welcome from patrons of the silent drama, it has been announced.

Miss Hall entered screen work after a number of years in stock and vaudeville. Her early training was secured in stock, and later she headed her own company in vaudeville.

Her particular style of character delineation lends itself admirably, it is said, to the screen.

Fire Destroys Philadelphia Films

Christmas fire caused considerable damage in the building in Philadelphia occupied by the Ideal Film Company. The loss is estimated at $20,000. The cause of the fire was not determined.

New Corporations

A LIST of new motion picture corporations in the States of Delaware, New Jersey and New York for the week ending December 29 as furnished from the records of the Corporation Trust Company, 15 Exchange Place, Jersey City, N. J., is as follows:

DELAWARE

NATIONAL FILM STUDIOS, INC.—For the manufacture of motion picture films. Incorporated in the sum of $10,000, at Wilmington. James W. Garlick, Emily Garlock and Henry B. Cohen, all of Philadelphia, are the interested parties.

ADELPHI MOTION PICTURE CORPORATION.—A general motion picture producing business; incorporated for $100,000, at Wilmington. F. B. Coigne, C. L. Adams and B. C. Rule, all of New York City, are the incorporators.

THE COPPERHEAD COMPANY.—Incorporated in the sum of $7,500, for the purpose of conducting place of amusement. Bankers' Trust Company (no address given); L. E. Ware, M. Rogers and D. Cameron, of Philadelphia, Pa., are promoting the project.

NEW JERSEY

TISDALE INDUSTRIAL FILM CORPORATION.—Theatrical proprietors; amusement enterprises, etc., incorporated of $100,000, at Newark. The incorporators are, F. Moulton Tisdale, 130 West Forty-seventh Street, N. Y. C.; Maurice J. Zucker, Sadie C. Deixel and Edward R. McGlynn, 810 Broad Street, Newark, N. J.

NEW YORK

FILMS OF BUSINESS CORPORATION.—Advertising and motion picture or otherwise, incorporated for $10,000, at Manhattan. The incorporators are, Camilla Donworth, 64 E. Thirty-fourth Street, N. Y. C.; Charles Charlton, 108 Convent avenue, N. Y. C. and Elizabeth D. Rathbone, 245 W. Fifty-first Street, N. Y. C.

In and Out of Town

Beverly Griffith, special representative, Universal Film Manufacturing Company, Universal City, arrived in New York last week for a short stay, during which time he will transact important business at the New York office.

George P. Jacobs, manager, Masterpiece Film Attractions, Cleveland, O., spent Xmas in New York, and during his stay contracted for some independent productions for distribution in the Ohio territory.

Joseph F. Lee was in Chicago last week on business. Mr. Lee will visit all the important cities between New York and the Coast before his return. A card received from Mr. Lee says that business is booming.

William Parson, National Film Company, Los Angeles, arrived in New York last week, and is stopping at the Hotel Astor. Mr. Parson has "Tarzan of the Apes" for distribution on the independent market. He will be in New York for several days.

Harry Schwalbe, Philadelphia, associated with Stanley Mastbaum and general manager of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit exchanges, was in New York last week. Mr. Schwalbe attended the opening of the Rivoli theatre.

Halifax Theatres Recovering Rapidly

Motion picture theatres at Halifax, N. S., nearly all of which were damaged badly in the recent explosion when a munition ship blew up in the harbor, are recovering from the havoc wrought, and are gradually getting under way again.

Among the theatres included in the list of damaged houses are the Casino, Empire, King Edward, Orpheus, Acker's Family, Strand and the Imperial. The first named was damaged worst of all, and the last named came off the lightest.

All film exchanges in Halifax have been hard hit by the explosion, as the houses have been closed and about six weeks' idleness is marked up. Paramount and Universal are said to have the largest business in Halifax.

Vitagraph Flies Service Flag with 77 Stars

VITAGRAPH'S service flag, containing seventy-seven stars, was unfurled over the company's plant in Brooklyn December 27, President Albert E. Smith, raising it on the flag pole. Gladys Leslie, the little star who recently joined Vitagraph, sang "The Star Spangled Banner" while scores of players and studio attaches joined in the chorus of the national anthem. As the big banner broke to the breeze the entire company, numbering more than two hundred men and women, stood at salute.

Every branch of the service has claimed Vitagraphers since the United States entered the war, and the soldiers and sailors represent all branches of the big organization, from Victor Smith, brother of the company's president and former studio manager, down to the mechanical department of the company. Actors directors, cameramen, studio attaches and members of the sales organization now wear the uniform of Uncle Sam, and several actresses also have been directly affected, Nell Shipman and Agnes Ayres being two who have brothers in the army.

Twenty-nine members of the company's sales force are in the service and Walter W. Irwin, general manager of the Vitagraph distributing organization, takes pride in the fact that so many of his lieutenants have gone to the defense of the nation.

Vitagraph's seventy-seven fighters are assured of everything in the way of comforts while in service, for ever since war was declared the girls at the studio of the company in Brooklyn and Hollywood have been dividing their time between knitting and working, the executives and actors providing the wool. Several months ago, a regular club was formed at the Eastern studio by Alice Joyce, Corinne Griffith, Agnes Ayres, Miriam Miles and others for the purpose of supplying the Vitagraph boys with sweaters, mufflers, wristles, etc. President Smith, Earle Williams, Harry Morey, Edward Earle and other studio leaders made up a pool to purchase wool and the girls, who bought wool, have not permitted the work of knitting to lag for a moment since.

Holiday Greetings Swamp News

Christmas and New Year Cards, Greetings Via Wire and Other Forms of Cheer Pour In from Every Quarter of Globe

INCREASED postal rates in no way lessened the flood of Christmas and New Year's greetings which finds its way to the NEWS office annually. Exhibitors, producers, players, exchangemen, directors and the business men of the film companies sent messages of cheer and good tidings. Holiday greetings were also received by wire, particularly from the Los Angeles edge of the continent. Bill Hart, Thomas H. Ince and D. W. Griffith sent word from this quarter. Watterson R. Rothacker wired from Chicago and P. A. Powers telegraphed the popular sentiment of a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

A number of unusual cards were received. Fred Warren of Goldwyn though wishing all success called to mind the fact that there was much else to think about by his message, "With the wish for as happy a Christmas and as comfortable New Year as the prevailing conditions will permit." Victor Saphiro had a comforting sketch on his card picturing the American soldier of democracy lifting the Kaiser off the earth with his foot. Joe Brandt of Universal, The Exhibitors' Herald, J. S. Johnston of the Minneapolis Universal Exchange, C. Lang Cobb, Tom Bret, Paul Gulick and George R. Meeker were among others who expressed their greetings in a striking way.

Cards were also received from Victor Eubank, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mullen, Jules Timer, Pete Schmid, Arthur M. Brilant, Phil Lang, Charles Maigne, Milton E. Hoffman, Edward Earle, Marc Edmund Jones, Arthur Lang, Will C. Smith, Walter Sanford, Lawrence Urbach, Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Hoffman, Lyman Fiske and Lynde Denig, George Kann, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur MacManus, Nicholas Power, Tom Geraghty, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Raver, Fritz Hirsch, Felix Malitz, Sidney Garrett, Burr E. Clements, Ben H. Grimm, O. F. Spahr, Mrs. Nellie Anderson, Neil G. Caward, Harry K. Lucas, Mr. and Mrs. William W. Hodkinson and W. A. Bach.

A. MacArthur, Jr., Raymond B. West, E. M. Porter, Clarence E. Swezey, Joseph Grossman, Alfred S. Black, Edward Earl, J. Stuart Blackton, Slade F. Clark, Martin, Moriarty and Martin, Mr. and Mrs. E. Richard Schayer, George Gould, Nat Rothstein, James L. Hoff, G. W. Landow, H. A. Spanuth, Turner and Dahnken, Yale Photo-Play company, Joe Fisher, Denis J. Sullivan, W. H. Rudolph, William Noble, William J. McGrath, Ralph O. Proctor, Lesley Mason, G. Clayton Heebner, Felix Malitz and Lionel Delacroix.

Mr. and Mrs. Alec Lorimore were also represented, their card making a long journey from Sydney, Australia.

STRAFE DER KAISER!

Help Our Boys in France
"Smoke Him Out!"

Previously acknowledged		$1,338.06
Orpheum Theatre, Kalispell, Mont., F. W. Striker, Prop...	$ 4.07
Orpheum Theatre, Muncie, Ind., John J. Mulhon	4.07
Grand Theatre, Juliaetta, Idaho, J. F. Hickenbottom	.70
Electric Theatre, Glasgow, Mo., Hannaca & Morgan	6.91
Piper City, Ill....	5.57
Nogales Theatre, Nogales, Ariz., F. Diamo.....	41.32
		62.64
		$1,400.70

If you want to help smoke the Kaiser out, write Motion Picture News for particulars regarding the Tobacco Fund.

Exhibitors Co-operate with Government

O. G. Cocks of the National Board of Review and special representative of the Commission on Training Camp Activities dealing with commercial amusements, has returned from a visit to a number of the camp cities in New England and Virginia, including the Tidewater section which is the most populous Army and Navy center in the United States. He reports a general willingness on the part of the exhibitors in the cities and towns surrounding the training and embarkation camps to cooperate with the officials of the Government. The motion picture exhibitors are universally striving to furnish the most attractive and entertaining programs both for the civil population and for the soldiers.

"The demands for service to the Army and Navy are greatest on Wednesdays and Saturdays," says Mr. Cocks. "The State law in Virginia makes it impossible to furnish any form of commercial amusement on Sundays. The exhibitors have been more than willing to give the use of their theatres for military entertainments and meetings on Sundays. This is particularly true of those theatres which are under the direction of the Wells Syndicate."

Omaha Operators Want Raise

Exhibitors of Omaha, Neb., have been notified that after January 1 the operators will charge 50 cents an hour for a day consisting of eight hours. The scale is now about 35 cents an hour.

"Another reason why all of us will have to raise our admission prices," said an exhibitor.

Paramount Makes More Changes

Executive Supervisor Greene Names Department Heads for New Year —Lichtman Looks After General Distribution

IN assuming executive supervision of Paramount Pictures Corporation following the announcement of the transfer of the activities of Hiram Abrams, president, and B. P. Schulberg, general manager, to the development of a new and more intimate association between Famous-Players-Lasky Corporation and the motion picture exhibitors, Walter E. Green, president of Artcraft, gave out last week an outline of the department heads of the Paramount organization, effective after January 1, as follows:

Al Lichtman, who has been general manager of Paramount and Artcraft, will undertake the duties of general manager of the two distributing organizations. Mr. Lichtman was one of the first general sales managers of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, and also general manager of the Artcraft organization at its inception. He is one of the best known exchange men in the entire film industry.

John C. Flinn will remain in charge as general director of all publicity and advertising of Paramount and Artcraft, and in addition to the other activities of the department, will continue as director of the big national advertising campaign, now so successfully under way.

Frederic Gage, assistant sales manager, will become general sales manager, and J. K. Burger will assume charge as head of a new department of the organization, the Department of Supplies and Service to Exchanges.

Norris Wilcox will be office manager of the organization and J. Albert Thorne will continue as general purchasing agent.

Katterjohn Denies Current Rumors

Monte M. Katterjohn this week wired Motion Picture News from Los Angeles as follows:

"I emphatically deny trade report I have severed connections with Paralta Plays, Inc., and not one word of truth in rumor I have signed with a former employer. Now writing for Paralta stars, Bessie Barriscale, Louise Glaum, Henry Walthall and Warren Kerrigan, besides doing big Paralto special stories such as 'Carmen of the Klondike.'

"Just completing new type of Walthall story. Have long-time contract with Carl Anderson, president Paralta Plays, Inc. Reports perhaps due to recent organization of private feature corporation, plans for which cannot be announced at this date."

Film Pirates Make Haul on Broadway

Film pirates were busy again in the Broadway district last week, and made at least one haul that netted forty reels.

Harlon P. Ross, Jr., of the Ross Film Delivery, wrote Motion Picture News this week as follows: Will you please publish in your paper the enclosed list of reels stolen with my machine at 48th Street, between 7th Avenue and Broadway, Thursday, December 27, at 10.00 A. M. The machine has been found, but the reels have not: Triangle Film Company: "Keystone Comedy," 2 reels; "Ten of Diamonds," 5 reels; "A Fallen Star," 1 reel. World Film Corporation: "Divorce Game," 5 reels. George Kleine: "Truant Lord," 8 reels. Famous Players Exchange: "Antics of Ann," 5 reels; "Silks and Satins," 6 reels (Sherry's copy); "A Comedy," 1 reel; "Who's 'Number One,'?" Episode No. 7, 2 reels. Pathe Exchange (Newark Branch): "Fatal Ring," No. 13, 2 reels. New Jersey Metro Film Company: "The Patriot," 1 reel; also one reel showing the carnival at Keyport, N. J.

Cleveland Exhibitor Draws a Fine

Jacob Stein, manager of the New Palace theatre, St. Clair avenue and East Seventeenth street, Cleveland, drew a suspended sentence of $50 and costs last Friday from Municipal Judge Samuel E. Kramer.

J. E. Granger, first fire assistant chief, testified that the safety locks in the theatre were barred November 29, at which time there was a fire.

La Crosse Church Uses Motion Pictures

The institution of the photoplay plays a big part in the life of at least one church every Sunday in La Crosse, Wis. This is St. Paul's Universalist, of which Leonard E. Blackmer, up-and-going sort of fellow is pastor. Blackmer believes that the young man and the young woman, as well as the boy and girl, is the first part of his flock to look after. He knew that their chief pastime was the motion picture theatre, for he, himself, was a member of the fan body, and so he took steps to allow his congregation to enjoy at least a part of their entertainment inside the church walls.

Sabbath lessons are taught the children by the aid of the screen. This is believed to be a brand new venture in the United States. Special features, on Biblical and other subjects are frequently shown to the congregation, and the auditorium is packed on each occasion.

Photoplay theatre managers co-operate with Mr. Blackmer. He was up against it for funds to begin his venture at the start. So he went to two La Crosse managers, and put his proposition. They gave three-day performances to aid the church-movie fund, and within a few days Mr. Blackmer was sending in an order for an up-to-date projection machine.

It is probable that within a short time other denominations will follow the suit of the Universalists.

Coal Shortage Felt by Saginaw Theatres

Saginaw, Mich., has been hit hard by the coal shortage. The lack of fuel closed many of the manufacturing establishments the week before Christmas, and this did not aid the theatrical business which is never too good preceding the holidays. In addition the street illumination was dimmed and the electric display announcements in front of theatres and other places had to be extinguished. Because of this serious situation it was also proposed that the motion picture houses and other amusement places be required to close, but up to this time they have been running as usual. It was suggested that churches might conserve fuel through holding union services Sunday evening, but the Ministerial association replied that the theatres should close Sundays first before further conservation measures were asked of the churches.

"Struggle Everlasting" Shown to Lambs

On Sunday evening, December 30, through the courtesy of Harry Rapf, "The Struggle Everlasting," was shown at the Lambs' Club to the members of the Lambs.

Lamb Edwin Milton Royle, who is the author; Lamb James Kirkwood, and Lamb Bennet Musson, who wrote the scenario, were present.

On account of the private showing of this picture taking place the night of the Lambs Gambol all the Lambs were not able to see it.

Saginaw Manager Plays Santa Claus

Manager A. J. Moeller of the Franklin theatre, Saginaw, Mich., played Santa Claus host to hundreds of poor children, who were his guests at a special performance of the feature film, "Jack and the Beanstalk," Wednesday afternoon, December 26, the day following Christmas.

The children of the Home for the Friendless and St. Vincent's Orphans Home were invited, while Secretary E. E. Bishop of the Associated Charities, the Salvation Army, and police officials assisted in gathering together other poor children of the city for the show, which was given at 3 p. m. In addition to entertaining the youngsters Mr. Moeller paid the war tax on the tickets. Preceding this performance a special children's matinee was given at one o'clock, announcement of this having been made direct to the children of the city through the public schools.

The production of "Jack and the Beanstalk," played a three days' engagement at the Franklin theatre, starting Christmas day. The picture was billed and advertised like a circus, and in fact the circulars which were distributed to the homes announced that the film was bigger and better than a circus, and the greatest picture on earth. Mr. Moeller also carried a picture of a scene from the play on the cover of his "Weekly Film News."

Rivoli Fills Promises of Triumph

Rothapfel Scores Another Feat with Opening of His Second Big Broadway House Before an Audience of Notables

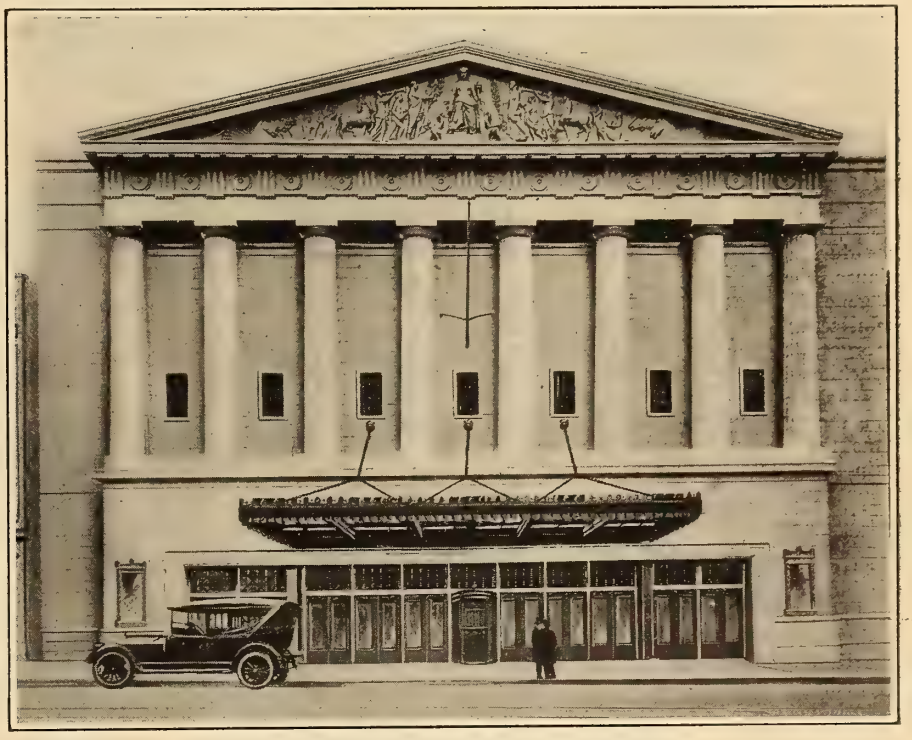
THREE days before 1918—on December 28—a new year was born into the film industry. It came with the opening of the Rivoli Theatre—truly, as its legend says: "The Triumph of the Motion Picture."

Representing the greatest achievement of Samuel L. Rothapfel, the building stands, in its stately Grecian architecture, as a new monument to art. It, in its physical appearance, promises that inside one may find the perfection blend of amusement.

The most notable honor in the history of motion pictures was paid when President Wilson sent as his representative Col. E. M. House, who with Mrs. House occupied the presidential box. Hundreds of New York's notables were there, every star of the film world within reaching distance, nearly every man whose name means anything in the silent art.

Critical Judges

December 28 was a notable day because it proved that the motion picture has won the triumph of winning the most critical of Broadway—the most severe judges in the world—the ones that are always looking for failure amid success. One has only to recall that when Rothapfel opened the Strand the wiseacres stood around and waited for the few days to come when it would close—and when the Rialto was created the hands went into the air and there was moaning over "the fools who wasted their money." And another day came when the Rialto had scored such a success that the men who had made it put their hundreds of thousands of dollars into another motion picture palace.



The Rivoli was not ready when it opened. "We opened it on nerve," said Mr. Rothapfel. "We had no right in the world to throw open the doors, but the staff was so confident that we could put it over that we did. It was simply another case of organization conquering." Here is the sort of a tribute that Mr. Rothapfel paid his employees in his initial program at the Rivoli:

"I have been extremely fortunate in having a trained and loyal staff to assist in the task of preparing our initial entertainment here. They have worked shoulder to shoulder with me so long that adjusting the multifarious details of this program seemed little more than an elaborate rehearsal of the hundreds we had prepared before."

And when the initial performance had ended throngs crowded into the office of Mr. Rothapfel to shake his hand and to tell him of the wonder that he had achieved. And as pleased as a boy with his first triumph, he begged for criticisms and pointed out what was wrong and showed where the errors would be changed and the presentation bettered. And twenty-four hours later the changes had been made, the little kinks straightened out and the wonder work of the master achieved.

Great Demand for Seats

With the zero winds blowing, men and women stood before the doors long before they were opened. Speculators offered almost any price for tickets which were not for sale. And then, as the throngs passed in, they blocked the lobby and the aisles in their wonderment at the beauties of the house. And then the magician's hand was waved:

Rivoli Theatre, Broadway at Forty-Ninth Street

One was seated and the eye traveled to the wonderful dome, something on the style of that at the Rialto, but even richer in its lighting possibilities, offering the fullest blending of colors. It may be said here that little—comparatively little—was attempted in the way of lighting effect on the opening night, for all things were not developed as they were a few days later. And when one's curiosity was aroused by the heavy curtain that hung from the proscenium arch with only a few chairs for the orchestra before it, one wondered whether there was to be only a small orchestra until the curtain went up and revealed the fifty musicians with Dr. Hugo Reisenfeld in charge. And as the lights burst through the proscenium arch—"The Conservatory of Jewels," the big audience applauded.

"Victory of Democracy"

The opening was "The Victory of Democracy," an original conception by Mr. Rothapfel, with the music especially written by Dr. Reisenfeld. As originally produced it was in eight episodes, but it was regarded as much too long and it was afterwards cut down from thirty to seventeen minutes—proof that the creator of this new house knows errors when he himself makes them. Mary Lawton appeared in the role of "History" and alternated in recitals with Forrest Robinson as "The Reader." The first episode told of the coming of the Pilgrims, the second of the Minute Men, the third of Bunker Hill, the fourth of the first Stars and Stripes in Battle, the Battle Hymn of the Republic," Lincoln at Gettysburg, and Perishing in France.

"The Victory of Democracy" was ushered in with the call of the trumpets, sounding the theme of the hymn, the principal melody of which was the message of "Better Days to Come." Gently the different instruments took over the call of the trumpets and brought the first part of the composition to a heroic climax. The movement, played by the stringed instruments, counterpointed with chimes, led into a hymn sung by a boy soprano and then in its wake came the word pictures of the various episodes and then the finale sung by the chorus with ringing of chimes and the counterpoint of the national anthem. And these were the words:

"In the breath of the tempest glad tidings ring,
'Tis a pæan for freemen; a dirge for the king.
In thunder it rolls from the heaven above
And falls on the flowers with bounty of love.
The Liberty Legions sweep on through the sea,
While over them flutters the Flag of the Free.
Our millions united have answered the call
For the rights of the world and Freedom of all."

Too long though it was the audience was wonderfully moved and as the orchestra counterpointed with the national anthem the huge audience arose to its feet and cheered. But when it sat it was silent. And there was psychology to this. "Do you know why the public did not applaud afterwards," Mr. Rothapfel asked, "it's a very simple little thing. In the Rivoli the seats rise with you. When the people started to sit down they had to use one hand to lower the seats. One cannot applaud with one hand, can one?"

Ended with Tableaux

This spectacle closed with a magnificent tableau introducing the Rivoli chorus and representing all of the allied nations, with Victory and America. Flags of all nations were there, and they combined with music and song and scenic settings to leave an impression that will be everlasting.

Following this came one of Robert Bruce's Educational Film scenics, "A World of Dreams," a picture of which Broadway is still talking. It is Mr. Bruce's conception of an ideal scenic, embracing some of the finest "shots" that he has taken in his tour of the country. And with these splendid views of mountains and water and snow and grandeur there was played the andante from Dvorak's "New World Symphony." Many times during this the audience broke into applause.

Eugene Cowles appeared next in "A Reminiscence — Should auld acquaintance be forgot," and here a wonderful effect was achieved. Just near the end of the song the curtain parted and there appeared the gypsy girl reclining on a couch, and as the singer went to seek her the curtain—the curtain of time—closed, blotting out the past. And with the night lights the full effect of the memory was given.

Then came the Rivoli Animated Pictorial, which opened with the playing of the Rialto March. Then came the presentation—in pictures—of the combined staffs of the Rivoli and Rialto, and then a specially made cartoon by Hy Mayer showing the stork bearing the baby Rivoli to its little sister, the Rialto. "Somebody's Coming to My House" was played by the orchestra, and the audience was humming the tune a second later. It added an intimate touch.

With the Animated

Scenes at the Great Lakes training station, with the Sousa band, were first shown, and then the orchestra began "Semper Fidelis," the official march of the marines and written by Sousa. It was played with eight trumpets and three drums, achieving a most martial effect. "Sports of the Navy" followed, with a one-step being played. Then came the exclusive picture of the human American flag —a big patriotic thrill—which was shown to the music of "Jack Tar March," and then toward the end "Stars and Stripes," a third of the Sousa compositions. Then came logging scenes with an allegro by Tschaikowsky, followed by the launching of the first sailing vessel in the Government more-ship campaign, while the orchestra played "Sailing." Followed some wonderful pictures of seals, a human little touch before another thrill—that of the English war bond sale, which aroused great enthusiasm as one of the tanks appeared, and the orchestra counterpointed with "God Save the King." This was followed by a cartoon showing Uncle Sam as the Santa for Belgium, and then a most unusual novelty, "American Achievement," which was shown to "American Fantasy" by Victor Herbert. This by clever mechanical arrangements—on the order of the studies in mud that have already been shown at the Rialto, showed Morse, Lincoln, Bell, Fulton, Edison, Liberty and then Wilson, and as the President appeared the orchestra broke into "Red, White and Blue." There was a clever ending with a gnome appearing on a step on which "Thank you" was carved. The weekly closed with a salute by the fourteen little pages of the Rivoli.

This was followed by Vieuxtemps "Air Varie," a solo by Alberto Bachman and then Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Drew appeared in "Her First Love." Both of these numbers were cut from the regular program for the week, being given only on the opening night. This was followed by a dance interlude by young women of the Luigi Albertieri school. First was the dance "By the Brook" and then a minute, "Comedy and Tragedy" which ended by the two dancers parting the curtain for the feature.

Special scenes were made for the opening of the feature—Douglas Fairbanks in "A Modern Musketeer," showing him riding up to the curtain and then a huge close up that covered the full screen. This feature was especially selected for the opening because of its unusual excellence and it left the audience applauding strenuously as the orchestra, standing broke into "The Star Spangled Banner."

And then the bright lights were up again. A new day had been born into the motion picture.

Triumph of the Picture

Of what is the triumph of the Rivoli? With an unanimity never known before from the New York press every paper in the city hailed the opening as a wonderful triumph—as a triumph for the Rothapfel presentation of music and lights and scenic effects. But the picture is the thing. Read word from Mr. Rothapfel in the opening announcement:

"To my friends in the motion picture industry I wish to say that the keystone of our programs will always be the screen. Some have attributed the popularity of The Rialto to the music, the lighting, the service, or the surroundings. We who are behind the scenes know that it is the picture which has made all those possible. It is the picture which has brought good music to the masses as part of their daily lives. It was the picture which inspired our experiments in color illumination, and it was the picture which won for itself such universal popularity that it became worth while to provide for it an environment of the sort we have created here."

Last week a description of the new house was printed. It need only be said that a view of the house filled every expectation. Built something on the order of the Rialto, the house has a novelty of a semi-dome, with varied illumination to the rear of the house and, of course, the "Conservatory of Jewels" which, with its lighting system working effectively offers a chance for steps ahead in illuminating effects. Besides that the house will be perfumed for special occasions, and with the big Rivoli chorus, the dancers and the many novelties that Mr. Rothapfel has planned, this new Triumph of the Motion Picture promises to amaze the world with "always something new" week after week."

Jaxon Serial Awakes Unusual Interest

THE publicity department of General Film Company stands behind the statement that no announcement made in many months has aroused the interest among exhibitors as has that of "A Daughter of Uncle Sam," the Jaxon serial to be released through General Film Company, beginning January 19. The novelty of a one-reel serial which will fit into any program has been sufficient, according to General, to stir up an unusual amount of enthusiasm among exhibitors, many of whom are said to be writing in to congratulate General Film upon its decision to release something that the company claims to be sensible and entirely different in the way of a serial.

Perhaps the greatest attraction "A Daughter of Uncle Sam" will have for the exhibitor is that General promises crowded into one reel the action usually found in a two-reel serial episode, eliminating a great deal of waste in time and film. Dull moments and draggy scenes are said to have been absolutely eliminated, insuring the maximum of entertainment value. This short-length serial is designed to fit into any program at any part.

The revelations regarding spy plots and German intrigues in the United States will no doubt give the picture fans of the country twelve episodes of the snappiest and most suspenseful story. The timely nature of the spy plot exposures, with the other features of Uncle Sam's home preparations for the war, have given the Jaxon serial sufficient advertising value to make it worth while in every nook and corner of the country. Many incidents featured in "A Doughter of Daring" are said to be founded upon real sensations which have occurred while intrigues and spy plots were being foiled.

Victor Film Starts Serial Campaign

The Victor Film Service in Cleveland is getting all its advertising ready for an extensive campaign for its new serial, "The Bull's Eye," which promises to be as popular as "The Mystery Ship." Several local houses are already dickering for first run week engagements, but no contracts have been signed as yet.

"Serials have been unusually good this season," said L. C. Thompson of the serial department of the Victor Film. Six downtown houses are running "The Mystery Ship" one or two days a week, and the Priscilla runs it every day. The Corona theatre, on East Eighth street and Prospect avenue, runs a different serial every day in the week."

A WAR BABY

Potash Mills Put This Small Theatre On the Map

The town in which this theatre is located has a population of TEN PEOPLE

J. J. SEIGEL is doing a thriving business in the Antioch theatre, Antioch, Neb., a town of ten people. This is the smallest town in Nebraska to have a motion picture theatre. But just outside the boundary lines of the town of Antioch are big potash mills, built in haste since the waste lakes of potash in Nebraska have begun to make millionaires out of a few college boys who realized the war would shut off this nation's supply from outside. In these mills work scores of people who crowd the Antioch theatre every night. The theatre seats 100. Mr. Seigel is now building a theatre of 300—"One of the best little houses in the state, too," he says.

Muir Confirms Canada Condition Statement

The serious state of affairs in the motion picture industry, as outlined by Samuel Goldfish recently in his sensational interview, finds ample confirmation in a statement on conditions in Western Canada made by J. R. Muir, owner and manager of a chain of theatres in British Columbia, including the Dominion of Vancouver, the Dominion theatre of Victoria, the Dominion of Nanaimo and many other houses in those and neighboring cities, according to Goldwyn.

"The film business is in a critical condition, from the exhibitor's quite as much as from the manufacturer's point of view. Of course, we have the Canadian war tax to face out there, as well as a local levy, and the new Victory Loan. I feel that the last-named, while it is the largest begetter of economy among theatre patrons, is also purely transitory. In a short time, the pocketbooks will be adjusted to the new outlay and people's normal and constant craving for amusement will rule.

"But I know, as Mr. Goldfish contends, that exhibitors everywhere in Canada, as in the United States, are suffering from the upward tendency in rentals, due to lack of organization among the producers and to reckless bidding for stars. It is the exhibitor and his patrons who have made these players famous, and when they hold out for huge sums of money which prevent producers from making legitimate profits off any but excessive rentals, they are biting the hand that has fed them."

Exhibitors Plan Convention

Various Organizations May Get Together in February at Exposition in Grand Central Palace in New York

VARIOUS exhibitors' organizations connected with the motion picture industry and their locals in a number of cities in Eastern states plan to convene at the Motion Picture Exposition in Grand Central Palace during the week of February 2 to 10, which is to be held under the auspices of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry and the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League.

This convention has been transferred from Buffalo to New York in view of the fact that the exposition is to be a gathering of unprecedented importance and affords the most advantageous time and place to hold a convention. Associations in the states of New York, New Jersey and all of the New England states will be represented, while those west of New York will be represented to no small degree.

Despite the usual holiday rush in the motion picture industry, considerable progress has been made during the past week in securing new exhibitors for the exposition. Eleven more concerns were added to the already large list of exhibitors who have contracted for space and many more will be closed by January 1, as many of the communications addressed to Manager Frederick H. Elliott state, "We shall close up a contract for an exhibit upon the return of our president, who is on a holiday trip at present." Indeed, it is quite evident that numerous executives of motion picture companies are taking much needed holiday vacations.

Members of the two organizations under whose auspices the exposition is being promoted who are qualified to judge declare that the outlook for a huge exposition is most promising, in spite of war conditions. This opinion is based to some extent upon the fact that other big industrial expositions in Grand Central Palace already are assured financial successes. The Automobile Show has sold every inch of its available space and has had to refuse space to nearly one hundred applicants. The Motor Boat Exposition has allotted most of the space on its two floors, while the International Flower Show in March will have more exhibitors than ever before. Yet, all of these might be termed expositions of luxuries, whereas the motion picture industry cannot rightly be classed as a luxury industry, as it is the lowest priced form of recreation in the world and directly appeals to the masses—rich and poor alike—more so than any other industry, and as is well known "an individual, a community, a nation, cannot prosper without amusement."

Ben Harris Gets Married

Ben Harris, of the Masterpiece Film Attractions, of Philadelphia, was married December 23 to Miss Sarah Liebowitz.

Picture Help Appreciated

Commission on Training Camp Activities Deeply Interested in Having Exhibitor Co-operation — National Board Develops Spirit

THE War Department's Commission on Training Camp Activities, evidently is deeply interested in having the co-operation of exhibitors of motion pictures in the cities and towns surrounding the eighty or more training camps in the United States. "For some months," said Joseph Lee, member of the commission, in an interview, "the National Board of Review has assisted us in developing a co-operative spirit between the field representatives of the commission in the training camp cities, and the exhibitors. This board continues to give us this valued assistance. Quite generally our representatives have found the exhibitors ready and willing to serve the Government in furnishing attractive entertainments to the enlisted men. This spirit is characteristic also of the producers of films who have already placed on the market many feature pictures which have helped to bind together the civilian population and the soldiers.

"We have just received the assurance from Charles P. Pettijohn, general manager of the American Exhibitors' Association, Indianapolis, Ind., that the members of this association have endorsed the work of the commission and have pledged their support in so far as they are able to be of service in the communities adjacent to the camps. The practical assistance of these managers and exhibitors will render much easier one part of the work of the commission.

"We have requested Mr. Pettijohn to suggest the following definite things which the exhibitors may do and are convinced that such assistance will be of decided value:

"1. Care in the selection of feature pictures, especially during the periods of leave of the camp population. This is to avoid pictures which are roughly designated as 'vampire' and 'sex' pictures.

"2. Greater thought in booking dramas and comedies which are especially attractive to men during these off-duty periods.

"3. The submission of feature programs in advance to the representatives of the commission each week, so that they may be advertised in the camps and in those places frequented by the enlisted men.

"4. An expression of willingness to have their theatres used both for the camp population and the townspeople, for community activities on Sunday afternoons and evenings. This will enable our field representatives to plan community meetings at a time when the streets are filled with men in uniform.

"5. Offers of assistance with the few special benefits which may be planned by the local committees and the commission's representatives when funds are needed for community purposes.

"We have discovered that most effective results in building up a cordial spirit in the camp communities require various methods of treatment. Modifications of such a plan as outlined may be necessary. The commission therefore bespeaks from the exhibitors of the United States a friendly willingness to assist the field representatives of the commission."

RIVOLI OPENING

Story of the Presentation Appears on Another Page

ACCOUNT of the opening of the Rivoli will be found on Page 221. The bill at the new Rothapfel will be reviewed each week in these columns, with the comment by Mr. Rothapfel. The accounts of the Rialto will be continued.

These are exclusive features in the MOTION PICTURE NEWS. No other paper can print Mr. Rothapfel's own comment on his own work, showing the exhibitors of the country how they can make their own shows better.

Four Companies Turn Out Keystones

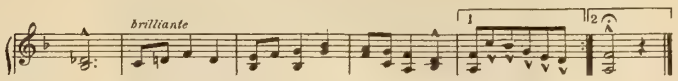
COMEDY production is said to be going along at a rapid rate since the Triangle-Keystone forces have become accustomed to their new quarters at the Triangle Culver City studios and the four companies making two-reel Keystone comedies have productions well under way, two of them already near completion.

Charles Avery, who is making one-reel Triangle Komedies, has already completed one story and has started on another, entitled "Fork Over," since moving to the new "lot." His present story has a cast including Max Asher, Harry Depp, Alatia Marton, Nate Salmon, Rose Carter and Arthur Moon. Harry Depp is appearing in an original make-up which he created some time ago and which made such a hit with Albert Glassmire that Depp may use it as a permanent make-up in the future.

Director Reggie Morris is "shooting" exterior scenes this week for "Did She Do Wrong?" which will feature Harry Gribbon, supported by a capable cast, including Myrtle Lind, Frank Boon, Dora Rodgers, Mario Bianchi, Milburn Morante and Mal (Slim) St. Clair. Both Morris and Gribbon are enthusiastic about the story, which they are confident will smash all previous laugh records for Keystone comedies. The story, which was prepared by Director of Production Albert Glassmire, will have a kick in the finish, which it is said will come totally unexpected, making the whole plot a riddle until the last scene is flashed upon the screen. The exact nature of the story is being closely guarded, as original comedy ideas are as rare as meat on Tuesdays, but the statement that Harry Gribbon has been cast in the role of a "city slicker," with "taking" ways similar to his performance in "Stars and Bars," is enough to assure all that the picture will not lack laughs or suspense. Mario Bianchi, familiarly known on the Triangle Culver City lot as "Frenchy," but who in reality is an Italian, is playing the role of a German policeman in this comedy.

Attorney Praises "Public Defender"

RENOWNED PICTURES CORPORATION which has recently purchased the United States and Canadian rights to Harry Raver's production, "The Public Defender," are in receipt of a letter from Arthur Butler Graham, who has specialized on legal procedure and practice as relating to the motion picture, in which he speaks in the highest terms of this screen version of Mayer C. Goldman and Frank W. Harris' propaganda story, "The Public Defender." Both Mr. Goldman and Mr. Harris are members of the New York Bar. Extracts from Mr. Graham's letter follow:



"I viewed 'The Public Defender' at the trade showing at Hotel Astor, principally because I was anxious to see how you would treat such an important subject in motion pictures. To put it mildly, I was agreeably surprised. Any legal subject is difficult of presentation in motion pictures because of the many details that must be woven into the unfolding of the story. The audience is frequently required to pay close attention to these details and to think rather than seek amusement without mental effort. 'The Public Defender' swings along with fine dramatic action. I was interested from first to last. I was highly pleased with the capable acting and I was astonished at the high quality of direction that could present a subject of this character, filled with complex details in such an easy and natural manner as to hold the keen interest of the audience and maintain it in suspense to the last. You have succeeded in achieving a photodrama in 'The Public Defender' that is at once virile, remarkably effective and highly enterprising."

Fairbanks May Film Picture in Cleveland

Douglas Fairbanks may spend a couple of weeks in Cleveland next spring taking a picture. He announced at one time that he was going to make a film with scenes taken in six different cities. Last week the management of the Mall and Alhambra theatres wrote to him asking him to include Cleveland as one of the six cities and to be the guest of the photoplay followers while in Cleveland. Fairbanks answered that he would undoubtedly include Cleveland in his itinerary.

What Kind of a Fellow Is—Rothapfel?

William A. Johnston

You must know music to interview Rothapfel—you need this bar to read the interview.

"HELLO, S. L.!"

"Hello, W. A.!"

"How do you feel, S. L.?"

Mr. Rothapfel grabbed a desk ruler and waved it like a baton.

"Ta-dee-dee-da: Ta-da-ta-da-de-dum!" (Bar of music).

"Which means—?"

"That I never felt better—

"But if you feel better—"

"Te rum bum!" responded Mr. Rothapfel. "Ta-da-da-dum! dum bum!" (Bar of music).

"Meaning—?"

"Meaning 'I simply couldn't stand it.'"

"Don't you think, S. L., that we better get Dr. Reisenfeld up to act as interpreter."

"No! No! Now look, W. A., let's cut out all the nonsense and be serious. Let's begin right now—"

Mr. Rothapfel regarded me solemnly for a few minutes. Then he spoke.

"W. A.," said he, "I concede that you are the greatest editor in the world; now what do you think of me?"

We, also, looked solemn.

"Of course," said Mr. Rothapfel as we remained solemn and silent—"of course, if you don't think it's policy to say it—in view of your many exhibitor readers—why, you don't have to."

"No," said we after a bit. "We're a fearless paper, we concede it."

"Concede what?" asked Mr. Rothapfel, carelessly.

"That you are the world's greatest exhibitor. That you are the Belasco of the screen."

"Ha!" said Mr. Rothapfel. "But why did you hesitate?"

"Why concede it at all," we argued, "when everybody does?"

Mr. Rothapel brightened all over like lights, the lights of his theatre over a sunrise scene on the screen.

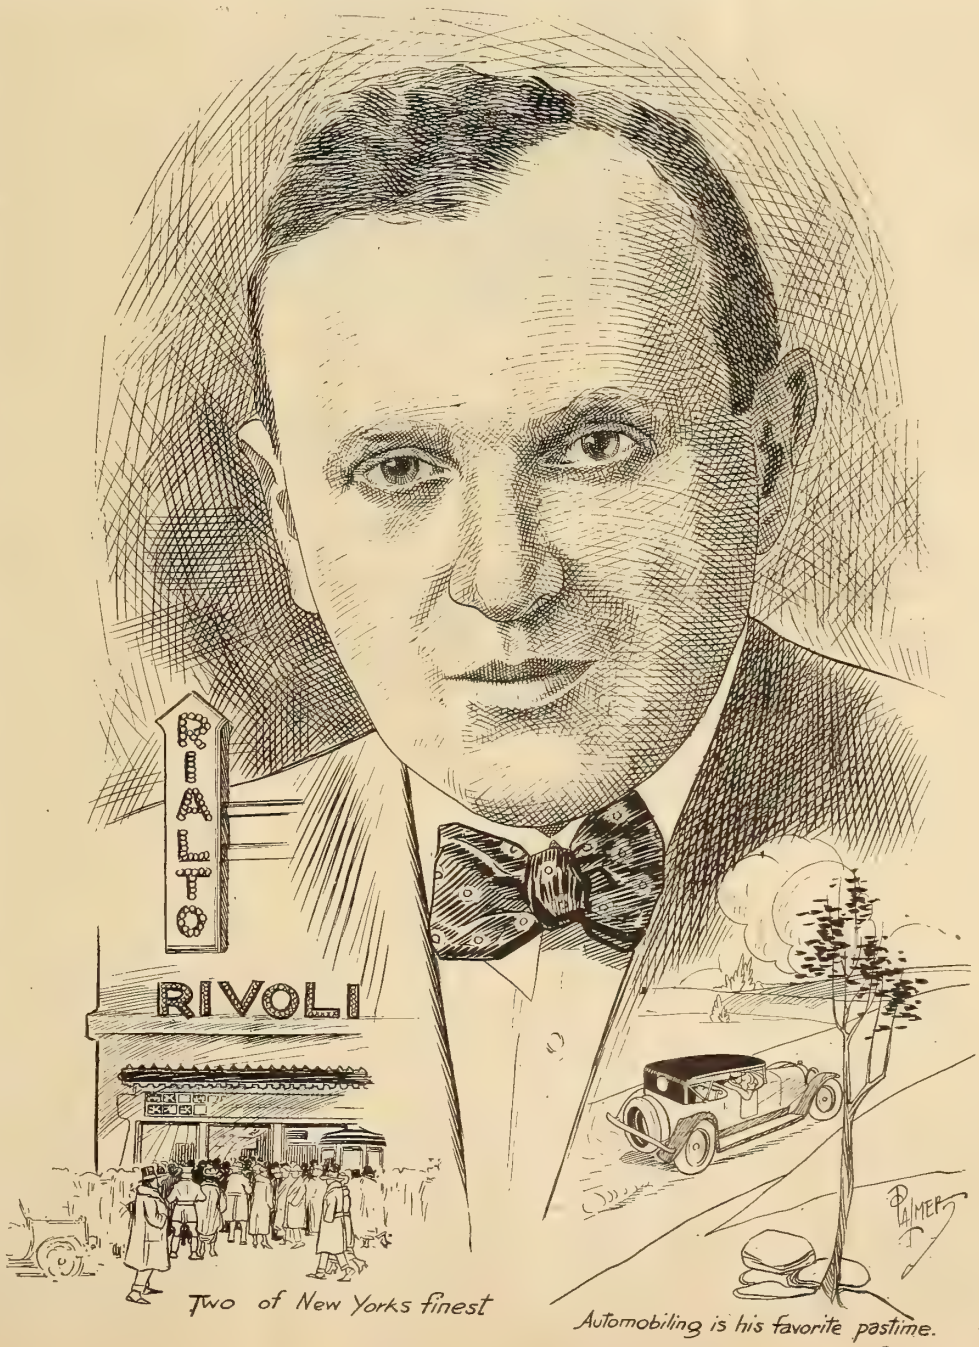
"Ta-de-da - da - da - da!"

"Star Spangled Banner," we interpreted as Mr. Rothapfel suddenly grabbed a telephone.

"Don't let me be disturbed," he ordered the operator. "Understand? Keep 'em all out. No, I don't want to talk to anybody. How's the house running? Packed, eh? Line blocking traffic on the sidewalk? Well, get the Captain of Police. Tell him I can't help it. Understand? Tell him it's not my fault."

Mr. Rothapfel winked and played a few happy bars on his desk blotter, interpretative of struggling, pushing-crowds, etc., etc. "Isn't it wonderful?" Then—"how did you like the Rivoli opening?"

"Great!" we replied. "Wizardry!"



"What's that?"

"Wizardry," we repeated.

"Yes," argued S. L. "But, honestly, W. A., I've got the greatest plans! Draw up your chair and I'll tell you. No, I can't either," he added sorrowfully. "I don't dare. But they're great! Revolutionary, why, I'm going to—no, I mustn't give it away."

"Well, what can we talk about, S. L.?"

"Let's talk about ourselves," suggested Mr. Rothapfel.

Two of New Yorks finest

Automobiling is his favorite pastime.

What Others Say

"He believes completely in himself, as do all men who are doing big things. But he's so boyishly and ingeniously happy over his success that you enjoy it with him."

"He stands alone. Others try to study his principles of screencraft. But he's doing new things while the students are busy."

"His work is spontaneous."

"He is indefatigable."

"He intuitively knows his audience—any kind of audience."

"He loves his work; he never tires."

"He's a genius."

"Works harder than any exhibitor I ever knew—is the only exhibitor I ever knew who isn't a perpetual grouch."

"No! I never even heard him hint that he'd like to be a producer."

"Can out-hurrah George M. Cohan in his shows, but does it with a knack that takes the shoddy out and makes you like it."

Fox Names Executive to Exhibitors' Aid

Fox Film Corporation this week announces that it has appointed J. J. Raymond of New York and Boston to the executive staff and that his sole duty will be the promotion of the exhibitors' interest. He will be the exhibitors' representative in the box-office and it will be his endeavor, it is announced, to supplement the publicity and advertising now being done and extend his work to the problems of management, especially toward showing the exhibitor how to increase and hold patronage.

During twenty-five years, Mr. Raymond has had experience with every branch of the show business. He began with road attractions and then was connected for a long time with George C. Tilyou at Steeplechase, Coney Island. For the past ten years he has been special representative and a considerable portion of the time has been associated with Gordon Brothers, who operate a chain of motion picture houses in New England. He has also written frequently for trade publications concerning motion picture problems.

In commenting on the announcement, General Manager W. R. Sheehan said:

"'How would that appeal to the exhibitor?' is a question constantly arising in various departments of a producer's organization. It will be part of Mr. Raymond's duty to answer this inquiry.

"Try as they may, men who are not constantly in touch with exhibitors, or who do not thoroughly understand exhibitors' problems, are likely at times to lose the point of view we are always striving to maintain. We do not want even occasional deviations, so we have placed at the disposal of our departmental chiefs a man who has had practical dollars and cents experience in every branch of the amusement business. He will devote his entire time to answering questions and offering suggestions within the organization and to directly helping exhibitors."

J. J. Raymond Who Will Represent Exhibitors' Interests at the Headquarters of the Fox Film Corporation

"Third Floor Back" Ready for Screen

IT was announced from the Herbert Brenon offices last week that the finishing touches have been given to "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," Herbert Brenon's latest production.

The last scenes were "shot" at the Brenon studios about ten days ago, and since that time Mr. Brenon has been working night and day supervising the cutting, and making the titles, with the result that the announcement is made of the third Brenon production to see the light of day within the past four months.

Those who have seen "The Passing of the Third Floor Back" pronounce it a decided step forward in the development of the screen.

From all accounts, this production, in which Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson makes his bow before American screen audiences, is destined to have a wide appeal. The picture, in every way, it is said, comes up to the high standard that Mr. Brenon has set for himself.

The scene is laid in England, in a London lodging house in Bloomsbury Place. The action centres around the human foibles and weaknesses of the little community who make this house their home. A disagreeable, unhappy assortment they are, until the Stranger makes his appearance in their midst. He brings order out of chaos, and happiness where misery reigned.

The cast includes Molly Pearson, Ketty Galanta, George Le Guere, Augusta Haviland and others.

Cameraman-Soldier Nails Absurd Rumor

Carl von Hoffman, former motion picture cameraman for Griffith and with various of the producing companies, who is now a first lieutenant in the Signal Reserve Corps of Uncle Sam's army, was in New York on furlough during the Christmast period in direct contradiction of unfounded rumors that he had been interned as an enemy alien.

Lieutenant von Hoffman, during a visit to the office of Motion Picture News, declared his belief that these rumors, which found a rather warm welcome in the columns of a weekly vaudeville paper dealing mainly with scandal of the profession, were the result of personal malice. Despite his name, Hoffman is Russian born, but an American through and through.

Training Camp Uses Screen in Motor Section

The instructive as well as the entertaining value of motion pictures has been recognized by the officers of Camp Herring in East Peoria, where men are enlisted to receive training in the motor section of the Ordnance Department of the Government.

Camp Herring has been recently provided near the Holt manufacturing plant, where the Holt Caterpillars (tanks) now in use on the battlefields of Europe are made. Several hundred men are there given instruction in the methods of operating these tanks, and one of the first forms of the instruction to be presented to the new recruits was a series of motion pictures showing the tanks in the process of construction and later in action. These pictures are to be presented from time to time, as it is believed by the managers of the Holt Company that this is a clearly defined way of placing the system before the soldiers.

In addition to this instruction which is to be given through the motion pictures, the Camp Herring men are also to have pictures as one of their principal forms of entertainment. One such entertainment has already been given for them, and later at a meeting held by the fraternal organizations of the city who are planning recreation for the men, decision was made to use motion pictures programs each week. Practically every fraternal order of the city was represented at the meeting when motion pictures as a wholesome and instructive form of entertainment were indorsed.

"Public Defender" Goes into Library

"The Public Defender," in book form, which was written by Mayer C. Goldman, attorney of New York City, and which furnished the theme for Harry Raver's photodramatic production of the same name, has been added to the files of the New York Public Library.

The screen version of "The Public Defender" was written by Mayer C. Goldman and Frank W. Harris, the latter being also a member of the New York bar. As a motion picture production "The Public Defender," which presents a trio of stars in the persons of Frank Keenan, Alma Hanlon and Robert Edeson, has received high praise from many of New York's clergymen, educators and jurists, and bids fair to become one of the most talked about photodramas of the coming year.

The Renowned Pictures Corporation controls the rights of "The Public Defender" for the United States and Canada.

Marcus Loew Stops Off in Cleveland

Marcus Loew was in Cleveland for one day last week, accompanied by Aaron Jones, Al Lichtman and Maurice Asher. His presence in the city gave rise to the rumor that he has it under contemplation to buy several local theatres, but he said he had nothing definite to announce yet.

From Cleveland, Mr. Loew went to Toledo to inspect the Valentine theatre, which he bought several months ago.

Pathe's Name Suggested for High Honor

A La Crosse (Wis.) newspaper of recent date, in commenting upon the suggestion of M. Pathe's name for a place in the French Academy, said: "From France comes the news that M. Pathe, whose name is associated with the first motion pictures seen in this country, is suggested for the place in the French Academy vacated by the death of Jules Claretie. Will he get it?" asks Book News Monthly, and they go on to say: "Hardly. It is an open question as to whether he deserves it. But even if he is refused he'll be in good company.

"It will be remembered that Jules Verne was refused admittance to the French Academy because his novels were considered years ago but fanciful dreams. But Verne's dreams are now realities. His stories will never die.

"And now Pathe's name is suggested for the honor of the old French society. Perhaps one is incapable of looking at it from the angle of the Frenchman, but one thing is certain; Pathe's name will live as long as the screen lives. Why should his native land wait until years after his death to do him honor."

Chicago Film Magnate's Son Enlists as Private

James Hobart Hutchinson, eldest son of Samuel S. Hutchinson, president of the American Film Company, Inc., of Chicago, who is enlisted with the First Company Military Police, 310 Train, Eighty-fifth Division, at Camp Custer, Michigan, writes that army life is the life for him.

Mr. Hutchinson, who was a student of Armour's Technical Institute, enlisted the minute he was twenty-one, which was early in December. He chose the Military Police because of his love for horsemanship in which he excels. He enlisted as a private on principle and proposes to win his commission on his merits.

"Uncle Sam needs men in the ranks," he argued. "Everybody cannot be officers," and tumbled right into service, being one of many rich men's sons who have taken this same practical and manly viewpoint.

Strand Entertains Crippled Children

The management of the Strand theatre, New York, turned the theatre over to the benefit of over three thousand crippled children from various asylums in and about New York City on Christmas morning. A special program prepared under the personal direction of Managing Director Harold Edel was presented to the unfortunate kiddies, the feature of which was the new Paramount picture starring Marguerite Clark, "The Seven Swans." The popular star herself appeared and told several amusing little incidents in connection with the production of this film which brought shouts of laughter from the youthful audience. Special music to delight the children and fairy tales by Mrs. Winifred Gracie were included in the morning's entertainment.

CAN HE GET AWAY WITH THEM?

R. H. Cochrane, Vice-President of the Universal Film Co., sat down the other day and tapped off on his typewriter the following list of his activities for the month of January:

Jan. 1—Resolve not to do any more fighting in the picture business.
Jan. 2—Raise hell with employees.
Jan. 3—Fight with the trade papers, over anything.
Jan. 4—Sign contract for something.
Jan. 5—Try to get out of contract signed yesterday.
Jan. 6—Raise the devil with other producers.
Jan. 7—Send money to National Association.
Jan. 8—Threaten to resign from Association, for any reason.
Jan. 9—Raise hell with other exchange men.
Jan. 10—Send money to National Association.
Jan. 11—Order new contract blanks.
Jan. 12—Cancel order given yesterday.
Jan. 13—Announce the greatest picture ever made.
Jan. 14—Announce a still better one.
Jan. 15—Raise hell with exhibitors. Find reason.
Jan. 16—Send money to National Association.
Jan. 17—Think up strong title for five-reel feature.
Jan. 18—Change title to please censors.
Jan. 19—Change again to please exhibitors.
Jan. 20—Order posters for new title.
Jan. 21—Change posters after changing title.
Jan. 22—Send money to National Association.
Jan. 23—Tell Johnston his paper is getting better.
Jan. 24—Give Johnston hell for not giving us enough publicity.
Jan. 25—Hire some stars.
Jan. 26—Fire 'em.
Jan. 27—Stop making war pictures.
Jan. 28—Make more war pictures.
Jan. 29—Send money to National Association.

General Denies Re-Alignment

Continues to Present Itself as Service System in Distribution of Film for Any Number of Manufacturers

CONSIDERABLE prominence has been given General Film Company during the last ten days in connection with a variety of surmises of impending realignments in the motion picture industry. A statement from the company makes it plain that so far as it is concerned the wildest kind of guesswork has been employed.

Said an official of General Film: "Following the agreement by which the Paralta plays are being handled through General Film exchanges by the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation, a perfectly normal arrangement which is already giving signs of proving a great merchandising triumph, stories have been published that suggest an even greater scope for General Film in co-operation with other companies that have been named. Although the inference in these stories is in the main complimentary to General Film, really nothing has happened to require anything but a denial.

"Whenever anything does happen, General Film will be heard from officially. Its principal aim at this time is to take on new business as a distributing organization in the normal course of its enlarged activities. It continues to present itself as a service system ready to handle the distribution of film for any number of manufacturers without the duplication of effort, exchanges, employees and overhead expense. Its position in the trade is firmly established, rational and efficient. It should be remembered that General Film has a habit of emerging from each rumor period more serene than ever, more thoroughly organized than before, better qualified to give service.

"The company realizes that the only way for the free lance producer to survive is to concentrate his capital upon production, and not to divert any part of it into free lance distribution. Being a strictly service organization with long experience in national distribution of motion picture product, devoted to giving this service to film manufacturers, large and small, and to rendering an exact accounting of sales and proceeds to them, General Film leads the way from the errors and frightful waste of ordinary distribution. It is dedicated to advanced methods of business in this industry.

"When all adjustments shall have been made under the inevitable pressure of circumstances in the motion picture trade, General Film will remain one of those few competent organizations that will be handling the great bulk of the country's film product by a scientific merchandising system."

Oklahoma Manager Depends on the Star

Manager E. L. Byar, of McAlester, Okla., has placed himself on record as being in favor of the star system, and insists that one film service is as good as another.

Manager Byar said: "I am strictly opposed to the reel tax because I think it unequitable and unjust. Most any service is as good as another. It depends largely upon the star's drawing power how big a picture goes over. Several pictures have gone over big, not because the picture or story was good, but because the star is popular.

"The game is getting back to where it used to be, but it has surely had a hard pull to make it."

Mutual Displays Service Flag

War Continues to Draw Men from the Picture Industry in Big Numbers—Vitagraph and General Included

THE call of war is being heeded very steadily and abundantly within the motion picture industry, with the result that nearly all of the larger companies and organizations are finding themselves tacking many additional stars to the service flags.

Among the latest companies from which men have withdrawn to serve Uncle Sam are Mutual, General Film and Vitagraph.

There are twenty-eight stars in the Mutual Film Corporation's service flag. The younger members of the Mutual staff have rallied to the colors with enthusiasm and the names included in the roster are those of men resident in many states.

Messrs. Roger M. McCullough, Ellis Merkley, Herman Cislak and John Dromey of the home office in Chicago were among the first to join up, and some of the men whose names are included in the following list are already in France or on their way.

The complete roster of the Mutual men now in the service includes the following: Samuel Levine, infantry, Boston; Isadore Wartikowsky, infantry, Buffalo; P. A. Schmidt, infantry, Cincinnati; F. A. Tomes, infantry, Dallas; Richard O. Battles, ambulance, Denver; Ellis Merkley, infantry, home office; Lieutenant Roger McCullough, infantry, home office; Herman Cislak, infantry, home office; John Dromey, War Department, home office; L. A. Anger, infantry, Indianapolis; Rudolph M. Freuler, Milwaukee; E. H. Gilley, infantry, Milwaukee; Floyd H. Vogt, infantry, New York; Herbert C. Luce, infantry, New York; Jack Beam, cavalry, Oklahoma City; Will Withrop, infantry, Omaha; Joe Cowan, infantry, Omaha; Jesse Jessen, infantry, Omaha; Roy Malcolm, infantry, Omaha; Joseph E. Farrow, navy, Philadelphia; Maurice Rose, infantry, Philadelphia; Harry Booth, artillery, Pittsburgh; Whithey Taylor, artillery, Pittsburgh; R. C. Lutes, infantry, Pittsburgh; H. F. Hastings, artillery, Portland; L. A. Cahill, infantry, Salt Lake City; Thomas Herbert, infantry, San Francisco; Jack L. Raper, infantry, St. Louis; George Line, infantry, Salt Lake City; Ben Oppenheim, infantry, New York City; John Briggs, oversea forces, Montreal; G. E. Beck, aviation, Omaha; Ralph Sampson, quartermaster's department, home office; E. F. Carruthers, infantry, Vancouver.

General Film loses one of its valued employees to Uncle Sam in C. R. Cooper, traveling auditor. Mr. Cooper, whose headquarters were in New York, entered the selective service and reported at Camp Upton, Yaphank, Long Island, the day after Christmas. He was given a rousing farewell at the home office of the company.

Gordon Laurence, sales promotion manager of Vitagraph's distributing organization, is now in training for active service in the Naval Reserve Flying Corps. For the next six months he will be instructed in the theory of flying at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, in Cambridge, Mass., and then will be transferred to some aviation camp where he will learn practical flying. Mr. Laurence now has the rank of ensign and expects before the summer to be in France, one of the 100,000 Yankee airmen on whom America depends to win the war.

Foreign Rights Deal Closed

Sidney Garrett, President Brockliss, Inc., and Ben Blumenthal, President Export and Import Company, to Handle Selig

SIDNEY GARRETT, president of J. Frank Brockliss, Inc., and Ben Blumenthal, president of the Export and Import Film Co., Inc., have returned from Chicago, where they completed arrangements for marketing the Selig-Polyscope productions in all foreign countries, excluding Great Britain. This includes all the productions which the Selig Polyscope Company have made in the past and those which will be released in the future.

Having acquired the exclusive rights to the Selig productions, these two concerns now control a great part of the output of American productions. They control between them the foreign rights to the Metros, Bernstein, King Bee, Russian Art, Tweedledum comedies, cartoons, "The Barrier," "The Deemster" and have negotiated for the purchase for different territories of "The Submarine Eye" and the First National Exhibitors' Charlie Chaplin releases.

They announce that they have offices and representatives in practically all the large cities of the world and are in a position to place American productions everywhere.

Messrs. Garrett and Blumenthal are pioneers in the foreign field, and have visited practically every large center throughout the world and have been in close contact with their representatives.

Export and Import Film Company announces that it has acquired the entire foreign rights to the Russian Art productions. Negotiations are under way for the presentation of these films in a number of countries.

"Eagle's Eye" Trade Showing Set

A trade showing of several of the first episodes of "The Eagle's Eye," Secret Service Chief Flynn's screen exposure of the Imperial German Government's spy system in America will be made shortly after January 1. Every exhibitor who will get in touch with the nearest Foursquare Exchange will be informed of the exact date, and will be sent an invitation, it is announced.

Paralta Makes Distribution Announcement

Paralta Plays this week made the following announcement concerning the method of distributing Paralta Plays: "The recent announcement stating that Paralta Plays were to be distributed by the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation through the exchanges of the General Film Company, seems to have been misunderstood in a number of cases.

"Paralta Plays, Inc., of which Carl Anderson is the president, are distributing their productions through the offices of the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation which has its executive offices at 527 Fifth avenue, New York City. Arrangements have been consumated between the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation and the General Film Company under the terms of which the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation will use the General Film Company's exchanges for the distribution of Paralta Plays. Contracts received will not become effective until they have been approved by the contract department of the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation.

"Exhibitors booking Paralta Plays are therefore dealing with the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation who are merely using the distributing facilities of the General Film Company rather than to open up exchanges which would necessitate an expenditure of money which would have to be charged to the overhead of the territory and which the exhibitor would ultimately have to pay.

Clara Kimball Young Given Xmas Surprise

The Clara Kimball Young studio in New Rochelle was the scene of a gay Christmas party last Monday when Miss Young's forces surprised her with a big Christmas tree elaborately trimmed and laden with presents.

The production now under way in the studio is "The House of Glass" by Max Marcin, the star's latest purchase for her Select Star Series, and it was during the filming of a scene from the play that the Christmas tree presentation was made. Miss Young was inveigled into a conference with her director, Emile Chautard, and while busy with him, her dressing room was invaded by a group of her staff and literally transformed. One of the most beautiful gifts was a great horseshoe of roses given by her mechanical staff. Her discovery of the tree was the signal for a cessation of work and "The House of Glass" was laid to rest until after the holiday.

The screen version of "The House of Glass" was written by Charles F. Whittaker and Miss Young has selected Corliss Giles, who played opposite her in "Shirley Kaye," as her leading man. Others in the cast include Miss Young's father, Edward Kimball, William Waltman and Peggy Burke.

Solomon Weds on New Year's Eve

Julian M. Solomon, Jr., of Paramount-Artcraft Service Department, was married on New Year's eve to Lila May Stephenson, at the home of the bride in Philadelphia.

The Reader Has His Say

Editor, MOTION PICTURE NEWS,
729 Seventh Avenue, New York.

Dear Sir: The January 5 edition of the "NEWS" is just at hand and I found the same more than usually interesting. Hodkinson's announcement is interesting to the extent of being startling. If he has got what he says he has got, it will unquestionably be the solution of the star menace.

There is another item on page 57 which seems most timely to me, due to the fact that I have just had an experience which justifies this article. It is the suggestion that the Government confiscate all the positives on the market more than a year old. I would go even further and confiscate all the positives on the market over six months old.

On last Monday, I played the film subject, "The Submarine Eye," thoroughly advertised the same but when the film arrived, found it to be junk as far as condition was concerned. We immediately notified the exchange but no new print was forthcoming. We opened to big business on Monday but the condition of the film was such that we had more stops in one day than we have had in the past year combined.

This, notwithstanding the fact that we attempted to put the film in running shape before we started. As a consequence, by the end of our run on Wednesday, we had thoroughly disgusted and disgruntled many of our best patrons.

Upon taking up the matter with the ones who own this film, we are asked the question, how many hours our operator put in repairing it and what is his wages per hour?

The film was shipped C. O. D. and we paid for the same and the film company has the money.

We feel that in justice to ourselves and to other exhibitors, we should seek legal redress and we have, therefore, instituted suit against these people for the difference in what we paid for the same and the price of junk, as well as suit for damages.

True, it is going to be a hard matter to prove the amount of damages but it may have the result of teaching this class of distributor that the time is past when he can openly obtain money under false pretense.

I would suggest that if you want to be of real service to exhibitors, that you publish names, places and dates when the charges can be substantiated, with a view of saving other exhibitors the same experience.

Very truly yours,
Avon Theatre.
WILLIAM FAIT, JR.,
Manager.

Dear Editor: I ask your permission for the insertion in your paper of my views of adjusting the alleged fifteen-cents-per-reel-per-day war tax, etc. In the complaint filed by the producers to restrain the Brooklyn exhibitors from boycotting the exchanges, it is admitted that the average run of their features is fifty-five days at a price ranging from $1.00 to $100 per reel per day, although I occasionally receive a subject that looks more like it has filled five hundred days' runs instead of fifty, from the way it is shot up, yet we are charged with this same fifteen cents per reel per day. Some of the subjects were originally in five reels and in order to fulfill their promise of five reels they are stretched out to go on five reels with an average of about 600 feet to the reel; yet we are charged for the five reels.

These producers or exchanges admit they get as much per day as $100 per reel and even more. This being the case, is it fair that the small town and neighborhood house, which only has from 7.30 to 10 to do business and whose receipts run any way from $3.00 to $4.000 per night, should pay the same film war tax as the big fellow who has an all-day grind at it and used the show probably as many as seven times a day and whose receipts are as much in one day as many of the little fellows will do in a month. Yet each exhibitor is held to pay the same tax. Why not adjust all these differences and give the small fellow (the 80 per cent man) by charging him, say 1 per cent war tax on his film rental on everything, say up to $75.00, and over that amount charge one-half of 1 per cent. This would make it lighter on the small fellow and help save the industry, and a trifle higher for the big all-day house which can better afford to pay $2.00 war tax per day than 80 per cent of the small fellows can 25 cents per day. In the end the manufacturers or exchanges would realize more out of the war tax than they do today. It isn't right to charge the little $10.00 per day service man as much as the big prosperous $500 or $1,000 per day service man. I doubt if there is a big town fellow in America who would object to this slight increase on his film tax in order to save the drowning small exhibitor.

This is one way to bring about harmony with the exhibitors and producers. What's the need of all this stalling on the part of the various exhibitors' leagues when we are all at the mercy of the manufacturers. We have got to submit just like we have done as regards to the despots, the return express charges, the added cost of paper, etc. Why not fight for a more equitable charge on the film tax.

As to the patrons' tax. Uncle Sam needs the money to help load guns to win this war, and the sooner it's over the better for us all. Let's cut the stalling. Some nights I absorb tax. That is where I used to get 20 cents for an extra big picture, I charged the same and take care of the tax myself. Sometimes charge the tax to the higher seats and assume the tax on the cheaper seats so as to help the poor devil who has a struggle to live today in face of conditions, let alone go to pictures. It isn't the war tax that has caused the decline in patronage. It's the dreadful high cost of everything. Take shoes, foodstuffs and fuel. The average wage scale in my town isn't ten dollars a week. What's the answer? The people haven't the money to attend. My business has been paralyzed since the cold weather and snow set in ten days ago. I would have made money to have closed. But how could I when I had contracted for certain pictures and they have my money and tell me you must play the picture on such and such a date or wait probably several months before I could get same. Then have it come all shot or run to pieces.

As to the patrons' tax, why not ask the Government to allows us to exact the present 10 per cent, and we settle with them, say at 8 per cent of gross. This will not only save all this figuring on each priced ticket, etc., but will allow us a little pay for the trouble, take care of our film war tax, increased cost of fuel, help advertising, etc., and declining business. The conditions in all houses around here for one hundred miles are the same. All say it is desperate. I have a large, well-kept, clean and comfortable house and play the biggest things available, as well as Artcraft, Goldwyn, Select, etc. Yet will have to close in face of conditions. It now takes my Saturday's profits to take care of my losses on the week. I have to pay from $25 to $50 per day for service and many times don't take that in. Simply override my patrons with higher admissions and send the money to the exchange. The exchange plays safe. We are the ones who take the risk.

J. HENKEL HENRY,
Manager Empire.
Winchester, Va.

COMPLICATIONS

Everyone Here but the Villain!

"SOME weeks ago I agreed to cooperate with the 'Our Boys In France Smoke Fund.' I only run one show a week and that week show failed to arrive and one was sent me in place of it for last night's showing. Unfortunately conditions were against the show. We have two preachers holding a series of meetings Sunday denouncing picture shows and the use of tobacco! It was also a rainy night and not even a regular attendance, which resulted in considerably less than expenses. However, I am going to double the per cent asked."

Respectfully,
(Signed) J. F. Hickenbottam,
Grand Theatre,
Juliaetta, Idaho.

Box 47.

Editor, MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Dear Sir: Very sincerely do I wish you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

But I also wish a lot of other things, and one is that you speak to Santa Claus for me. I wish that you would communicate all the following wishes to him, and please see that he gives them to me, because I know you will fight hard in my interest, and that you will not think all these wishes unreasonable, for, after all, I am merely echoing the themes of your editorials during 1917, and if you will just look over your files, and start with the issue of January 6, 1917, you will find that all my wishes are but echoes of your leading editorials. Now, for the wishes:

I WISH distinctive posters.
I WISH that the distributing business be centralized.
I WISH that the daily change be abolished.
I WISH that the ruinous salaries of stars be also abolished.
I WISH that a picture be judged not by its director's salary.
I WISH that the manufacturers get together and stop the wastes and hold-ups in the business.
I WISH pictures for the family circle.
I WISH that the distributing organizations would realize that the fate of the whole industry hinges on the success of the exhibitor.
I WISH no salacious pictures.
I WISH that every picture would be released with the final test: "Will this please the public?"
I WISH that some manufacturers would stop prating about their so-called SERVICE to the exhibitor.
I WISH photoplay sections in newspapers.
I WISH that photoplays be sold by the district—not by the day.
I WISH less photoplays be sold intensively.
I WISH less pictures in an evening—for I do not wish motion picture indigestion.
I WISH longer runs in small towns.
I WISH a motion picture clearing-house—a common roof over exchange centers.
I WISH that all the people could see the big films. I mean an equitable scale of box-office prices which would gradually shrink till even the lower and poorer classes could witness a big film.
I WISH that we all be optimistic in this crisis.
I WISH that the producers retain New York as the film capital of the world by making foreign dealers demand American films.
I WISH that my brother exhibitors glance once in a while over the top of their box-office sheet.
I WISH that the parasite in the state rights' field be exterminated.
I WISH that the motion picture theatre be used more and more as a public forum for the discussion of grave questions.
I WISH that motion picture machines continue hurling high explosive shells of knowledge into the minds of nations.
I WISH that the American Exhibitors' Association shall thrive.
I WISH that we all heed the advice of the MOTION PICTURE NEWS, namely: "Patriotism—not Politics."
I WISH that Uncle Sam shall have the freedom of every screen in the country.
I WISH Service with a capital "S."
I WISH that the MOTION PICTURE NEWS continue showing its thoughtfulness in launching such movements as the Cigarette Fund.
I WISH that the Public should pay for our increased taxes and expenses.
I WISH a story—not a lot of trash on my screen.
I WISH that the distributors study local conditions before issuing their orders to salesmen.
I WISH that we continue to realize that Service is the stabilizer of the industry.
I WISH higher admission prices.
I WISH better retailing.
I WISH better pictures, cheaper pictures, and longer runs.
I WISH that the MOTION PICTURE NEWS continue to fight for the interest of sanity in our business methods, that it continue to show its progressiveness by giving us all as interesting a trade paper as we read during 1917.

Sincerely,
JOHN SMITH,
Eighty Per Cent Exhibitor Who Demands and Should Receive Attention.
Per, M. KASHIN.

Exhibitor Service Bureau

Things Every Exhibitor Can Do

Some Examples of Successful Advertising Where the Newspaper Facilities Are Very Limited

LAST week we illustrated some of the commoner forms of type faces that ought to be found in every country newspaper office. This week we print two advertisements we have made up with the use of these types. These displays are to an extent crude because we have governed ourselves by the very strictest limits and have not used any type that was not before shown. But these advertisements will at least get small exhibitors in the right way to think about their copy.

The only additional thing that we have used are stock cuts which are supplied by practically all of the exchanges at minimum cost or which may be bought for a small sum and retained for future pictures featuring the same stars.

On account of the size of the pages of the NEWS and their difference from newspaper pages, the dimensions of these displays have been made somewhat out of the ideal proportion, one of the advertisements being two columns wide by nine inches deep and the other in single column.

Just one other thing should be explained before entering into the discussion of this advertising, and that is that these displays have taken into consideration each theatre having a name plate, such as we have recommended so many times. Therefore the type that has been selected to carry the theatre name has not been picked to agree with the body of the display, but rather merely to indicate the space that ought to be occupied by the name plate.

In the larger advertisement we have used Cheltenham Bold Caps and Cheltenham Italic L. C. for the part of the display referring to the Mabel Normand picture and Jensen type for the display on the other pictures mentioned. Reference back to the display of types which were printed last week will explain what these are without the necessity of further repetition here. In the single column ad Condensed Gothic is used for the larger display and Cheltenham Italic for the remainder. Certainly here are the two very commonest of types and even the now-and-then paper in the smallest of communities are sure to have them.

We repeat that we do not consider these good advertisements, for we have deliberately handicapped ourselves to the limit in order to show what can be done under the most adverse circumstances. But these displays do accomplish one thing: They tell you the name of the star and the title of the picture in a way that stands out and they add to the interest in the player by presenting a picture of them.

Let us call your attention to some little things about these displays. Take the larger one first. Note that some care has been used in employing the border and it is run into the border of the cut—a simple thing, but it lends grace to the ad. Most exhibitors allow the printers merely to throw a border around the display any old way. Of courst the general public doesn't know the technical things about printing, but every reader of the paper knows when something is attractive to the eye, and when something grates. Now another thing: Mabel Normand hasn't been seen on the screen for some time, but she is known to every follower of motion pictures. It is not necessary to say a lot about her, and the expression "The Snuggly Girl," taken from the Goldwyn Press Book is far more descriptive than a wealth of adjectives. Then the title and then barely enough about the picture to excite the interest. We are also trying to show you how to mention your other pictures on the same bill. Supposing that there is another comedy.

Note the line "Added Laughs" and the mention of Billy West. Now most of the small exhibitors run to the superlative in their exploitation and two-thirds of them would probably have used in big type some line like "The Greatest Comedy Bill Ever" or something of that sort, but the two words "Added Laughs" tell the story a great deal simpler and with a far greater punch. You will also note that this comedy and the Pathe News are mentioned only as minor incidents, for the simple reason that you ought to try to feature but one thing at a time in a display, and in this instance we have selected the Normand picture.

In the single column display we have featured a single picture. What do you note as the effect of this one? Isn't it that the first thing that hits your eye is the name of Alice Joyce and that your eye immediately travels back to the cut? You get the punch of the name and the mind stops a moment for reflection as you look at the cut. Even if she had been forgotten for the moment she is recalled and you are ready to go on with the next thing, the name of the picture and an important fact that Robert W. Chambers is its author. Then, as in the other display, and as it should be in all advertising there is enough to give the character of the production—and no adjectives. The border on this one is what is known in printing as a "light double rule border," something that you will find in stock everywhere. Both of these displays would have been improved had a distinctive border been used, and we believe there are few offices in which you cannot dig up a distinctive one and have the publisher retain it for your exclusive use. But we have not even taken a chance on this in supplying these samples.

Let us venture one caution here: Use care in the selection of your border. The average country printer will try to give you something very "fancy." Avoid the fancy in your advertising. It is like an amateur dressmaker trying to make a Paris gown.

There is one important thing to which we wish to call your attention, and that is the amount of white space in these displays. You could have saved half the space we have used and have employed the same sized types, if you wanted to crowd your matter up, but the result would have been bad advertising. You would lose the smashing effect that you want to get in all displays.

To get this white space effect have the printer "center" your type. It's a good idea to give him a standing order to leave a certain amount of white between the border and the other reading matter, or you can so indicate this on each piece of copy.

Don't think money is wasted where there is no ink. It's the surroundings that make the mansion.

Now a reference to the cut question: We would advise exhibitors who are showing the same stars regularly to invest in these single column cuts and keep them on file. They will more than pay for themselves in saving postage to the exchanges and in delay in getting the matter. And then you are prepared for emergencies, like cases where another picture is substituted on you at almost the last minute.

Of course cuts occupy space in the newspaper and space costs money, but as we have told you many times before in these articles, they are more than worth any mass of type display.

Practically every one of the film companies supplies cuts of all its stars. Some of them furnish scene cuts on various productions. These can be rented with the picture and returned when they are finished. The great trouble about the scene cuts are that they try to show too much within a small space. They would present a crowded effect even in a well printed paper, and when you figure that the smaller papers are not well printed, as a rule, and that even the best cuts fail to come out as they should, you will see the result where you try to do too much will have the mere effect of a smudge.

It is an unfortunate thing that the advertising side of most of the film companies are made up from the point of view of the big exhibitor. The man who is changing his bill frequently and using the services of several companies cannot afford to buy a

(Continued on page 236)

Using the Best Facilities of the Country Newspaper Office

Here are two advertisements set up with the use of type that will bbe found in any office, together with cuts which are supplied by producers. On the opposite page is told how it is done.

THE QUEEN

FRIDAY and SATURDAY

MABEL NORMAND

The Snuggly Girl, is Back Again in

DODGING A MILLION

The Romance of An Heiress Who Lived in Luxury on Nothing a Year.

A GOLDWYN PICTURE

MABEL NORMAND IN "DODGING A MILLION" GOLDWYN PICTURES

ADDED LAUGHS:

BILLY WEST

IN

"THE SLAVE"

□ □ □

LATEST PATHÉ NEWS

ADMISSION 5 and 10 Cents

Princess

FRIDAY

ALICE JOYCE

in Robert W. Chambers' Story

"The

FETTERED WOMAN"

This Vitagraph Production tells the struggle of a young girl unjustly accused.

ADMISSION - 10c

Seeing the Rialto with Rothapfel

WHEN we went to the Rialto Sunday to see the first performance for the week we did not find Mr. Rothapfel at his usual post of observation from which he surveys the performance. You will immediately guess that the answer was that he was at his new theatre, the Rivoli, which opened on Friday. But you will guess wrong. After two days the Rivoli was sunning smoothly, and the genius of exhibition had left everything there in the hands of the responsible subordinates.

We'll tell you where he was. He was back at the gigantic switchboard himself directing the light effects for the Rialto. And toward the end of the performance he jumped into the orchestra and himself led the music for the Drew comedy. As a matter of fact he did not go near the Rivoli all day. We heard him coversing with one of his assistants over the 'phone, and was told that everything was going smoothly. Mr. Rothapfel congratulated the man, and then was told that the Rivoli was still sending standing room only. "You'd better lookout," said Rothapfel. "We are making you go some down here." And the Rialto was packed at every showing of the W. S. Hart feature, "The Narrow Trail." It should be explained for the benefit of out-of-town readers that this first of the Artcraft-Hart pictures had been held up through injunction proceedings which applied to New York state, hence the fact that it was shown here so long after its premiere in other cities.

Now, every other manager, almost, in the country, who had just opened a new house would have spent at least half his time there. But not Rothapfel. First, he was determined that the opening of the Rivoli shouldn't for the moment even lower the standard of exhibition at the Rialto. And, in the second place, he proved that he had built up a wonderful organization, and he likes to give his people confidence in themselves by leaving it to them alone to care for the details. It is not only good showmanship, but good sense. Mr. Rothapfel believes in doing his full duty to the public, and that spirit has so well spread to his subordinates that the trust in them is rarely misplaced. That's a mighty good point for exhibitors everywhere to think over.

When Rothapfel writes under the name of a theatre, "Directed by S. L. Rothapfel," he gives the public the guarantee that it will be a real Rothapfel show—and he sees to it that his word is made good.

Erno Rapee is conducting at the Rialto this week. While he hasn't won the splendid smoothness that marks the work of Dr. Hugo Reisenfeld, there cannot be the slightest doubt that the mark of music at the Rialto will be the same. Dr. Reisenfeld will divide his time between the two houses, and will have the assistance of three conductors. The overture this week is "Ruy Blas" and was helped along a great deal by the splendid lighting effects.

This was followed by another one of the wonderful Robert Bruce (Educational Film) scenic, "Beside the Glimmer Glass," pictures taken in the extreme Northwest, with some wonderful water and mountain scenes. There is a clever humanness added in the camp scenes. It is rather remarkable that both the Rivoli and Rialto are showing Bruce scenics this week. This was played with Grieg's "Whispers" and then a meditative violin solo with the organ. This added a wonderful effect to the picture and brought a torrent of applause. During the presentation of this picture the curtains parted from the panels on either side of the screen, showing waterfalls and mountains, all with a lighting of deep purple.

This was followed by Henrietta Montley, who beautifully sang "Answer," a ballad composed by Dr. A. G. Robyn, one of the Rialto organists and a composer of note.

One might wonder whether the celebrated Rialto Animated Magazine did not suffer, with the result of having to supply Rivoli's as well, but the answer is a specific no. Mr. Rothapfel has the whole field of short subjects at his hand now, and if there is any difference it is that the Animated is unusually good this week. With "Master Builders" march it opens with pictures of jack tars at Mare Island and then turns into a Mutt and Jeff comic, which has been cut down to a couple of hundred feet and affords a good laugh before the weekly turns to pictures of fox hunting at Piedmont, Va., shown to the music of Bucalowski's "Hunt." Then, in marked contrast were pictures of the funny new hobby horses, with a fox trot, "Cashing the Chickens." Next were Indian dances with "Tessequah" played. Then came more of the funny "Miracles in Mud," showing first the neighbor's boy and our own boy. This turned into "Our Boy," with a picture of General Pershing an "Attaboy" with Uncle Sam. This was played with "Dixiana's Rise" with a counterpoint of America, and got an immense hand. The weekly closes with a Hearst-Pathe cartoon, showing Uncle Sam taking over the railroads. Note that this was a very varied weekly this week, with the amusing side standing out rather strong. This was because the feature is a strenuous Western picture with a great deal of humanness furnished by "Fritz," the pony. In fact, this might be called a "human" bill this week.

It is just another case of giving a motif to an entire bill. We have quoted Mr. Rothapfel to you, telling how it can be done. It is being done at the Rialto this week, and it sends everyone away happy with the joys of life.

This human note is carried out in the Metro-Drew comedy, "Shadowing Henry," which was shown with "Punchinello," a mysterioso during the detective scenes and "Blame it on the Blues," rendered pianissimo. Other musical numbers are Lacome "Los Toros," played by the orchestra, and a due from "Martha," sung by Signors Sciaretti and Interrante.

It's a splendid bill. No, two theatres are not too many for a man like Rothapfel. He works and he thinks all the time. He never quits and that sort of a man will never let the public quit him, and we predict that the Rivoli will always be packed and that the Rialto will not lose a patron—all because of the Rothapfel way. BE THAT WAY.

This Week at the Strand

TWO special striking effects, both of which brought a storm of applause, are achieved at the Strand this week by Managing Director Harold Edel. The first of these comes with the playing of "The Star Spangled Banner" just before the overture. The stage setting shows British warships in the foreground firing at the fort over which flies the American flag, which is illuminated by red light and has the perfect representation of flying in the air. The audience, already standing, of course, applauded with the greatest enthusiasm. The overture was "Roumanian Rhapsody."

The second novelty came just before the presentation of the feature, Mary Garden in "Thais." Here the back panels of the stage disappeared and in their place appeared a scene in the deserts of Egypt, the local of part of the picture, with the Sphinx and the pyramids in the background. Clever effects brought out a small caravan moving across the background, small figures which just could be distinguished. The effect was most artistic, and immediately came the presentation of the picture.

Strand Topical Review opens with the pictures of Axel's toy horse in Chicago, and then follows the New Orleans fire and the start of American army trucks from Detroit for Europe. The inscriptions on them such as "From Detroit to Berlin" brought many cheers from the audience. Then followed a series of Christmas scenes, showing gifts being distributed at one of the New York armories, scenes at Camp Meade, with the soldiers getting gifts and the singing of Christmas carols on the steps of the nation's capitol. Methods of signalling were interesting and the patriotic note was struck again with pictures of American troops in France. A contingent starting for the firing line, cheered with music by a French band got a big hand. It closed with pictures of Secretary McAdoo and examples of the railway tie-up, and a cartoon on Uncle Sam taking over the railroads. This and the toy horses, both Hearst-Pathe, are at both the Strand and Rialto.

Lobby display on "Come Through" at the Sunset theatre, Portland, Ore. The Sunset is one of the few houses on the Northwest Coast that pays considerable attention to lobby exploitation.

Portland and Seattle Exhibitors Lead in Proper Exploitation of Pictures

Wm. A. Bach, who has been touring the country establishing service bureaus for Universal, writes here on conditions in the Northwest. Numerous examples of the advertising of the Seattle and Portland papers, to which he refers, have been printed in this department from time to time and will continue to be used.

IT gives an advertising man who loves his profession a distinct thrill of pleasure to come up into the Northwest, the Great Northwest, and see the way the theatre men in this section handle their advertising.

Picking up the Seattle Times or the Portland Oregonian, let's say these papers for sake of argument, one cannot fail to note that there are motion picture houses in these cities. Large, well-balanced ads and very little copy, with a consequent generous helping of white space, is the recipe the movie gentlemen of this section work on.

A half-page Sunday ad of the Liberty theatre in Portland, now before me, is an example, and a fairly average one at that. Simple, forceful, no bull-striking design, well put together, and every strong point featured—it is almost that impossibility—a perfect ad.

And the Liberty is not the only consumer of space in such huge doses; the Columbia, the Strand, the Peoples, the Majestic; all use heavy and strong newspaper advertising campaigns.

Does it pay? I wondered that, too, at first, but when I tried to get into the Majestic theatre at four o'clock one afternoon, after a day or two of his massed formation advertising on the "Auction Block," and found myself one of a hundred and fifty people or so stranded in the back of the house, I felt sure that it paid and good dividends at that.

Now, friends, do not get it into your heads that advertising out here costs little or nothing, because while it does not approach our Eastern prices, yet it costs and that some stiffly, too. So you see a theatre man must know what he wants to say, how best to say it and how short to say it before he goes treating himself to a half-page ad in these Northwestern papers.

But at that, liberal advertisers are treated just as liberally by these same papers in the matter of publicity, which of course has great value to the exhibitor. I wonder why some of our Eastern papers don't investigate our Western friends' methods, from the standpoint of the profit and loss column.

But while Portland exhibitors use the daily press with great efficiency, they don't line up their lobbies to cash in on the advertising as well as they should.

Portland has some wonderful houses. They are large, modern and wonderfully beautiful as to interior. Perhaps some of the exhibitors think that their houses are too high class to descend to real selling lobby display or perhaps they feel that the advertising does the whole work. Whatever the cause, with the exception of one or two, Portland theatres are very ordinary in their display, pretty it is true, but not striking, and it makes one wonder that with men managing them, whose names are now known from coast to coast, just why the lobbies are so ordinary.

One of the exceptions, I have spoken of above, had a lobby a short while ago, that I think well worth mentioning. The house, "The Sunset" theatre to which I refer, under the leadership and guidance of Mr. J. A. Jennings, has made a hit and a success of running what he calls "proven successes only."

That means that he runs second-run pictures that have made good in one of the larger first-run houses. His lobby on the Jewel production "Come Through," was an excellent piece of work and thoroughly proved itself and the idea of hammering on one vital point, by bringing the crowds. The photograph of the lobby is shown on this page and is well worth study. It's comparative inexpensiveness also commends it.

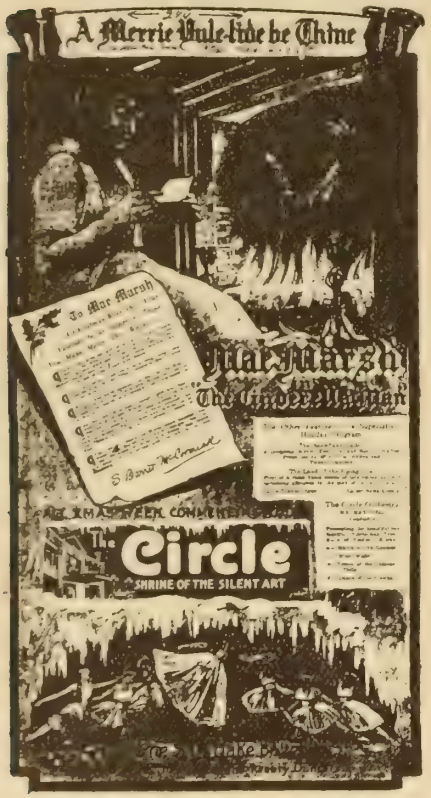
It was interesting to note that twenty-four sheets were very much in evidence throughout the town, all of them on the bigger features, and I must say that I disagree with a well-known film man, who after returning from a trip in the middle west remarked that he thought the twenty-four's were done. I believe they will always have a distinct value, especially to the bigger house.

Another little scheme that I noticed, that is good enough to copy, is directly in line with my suggestion to watch your slides carefully. Poor slides may spoil a picture and this Portland house makes its own, by using scenes from the coming play, neatly bordered in a standard color mat that is as distinctive as the house itself. Also the tendency to show "coming" slides for a half a dozen features is happily absent in Portland and I am sure nobody is losing by it.

Special children's matinees and the "Patrons' Chorus," a new idea introduced into Partland by Ralph Ruffner of Seattle fame, have taken a firm hold. The "Patrans' Chorus" is rather an old idea in new dress, but Ruffner is putting it over at the Columbia, and when the chorus of some old favorite like "When You and I Were Young Maggie," is thrown on the screen, the audience after a bit of camouflage does actually sing and they do it as if they enjoyed it. There is food for thought in the idea because this is war time and old songs and community singing represent real relaxation.

The Strand theatre produced a rather effective result by using a six sheet in a heavy frame, lighted by hooded lights right over the inside lobby entrance that attracted a lot of attention.

Many Knitting Parties Appear at Omaha



Omaha exhibitors are extending an invitation to the women of the city to bring their knitting to the theatres. Recently one of the papers published as the lead of the society news a story about prominent society women knitting at the picture theatres and named a number who were especially proficient in doing this patriotic work at the movies.

There are many of the "knitting parties" being held at the picture theatres and the managers are keeping the lists of "those present" and sending them to the society departments of the local papers.

Your Idea—and Ours

HERE is the best of the Christmas advertisements that have come to our attention up to the present, though we haven't yet received the Far Western newspapers as this matter is printed.

Circle theatre always does good advertising. There isn't a theatre in the country that has a better average output. Here it has combined the art of making a display on its current attraction and at the same time getting over a Christmas appeal. While "The Cinderella Man" hasn't anything in the world to do with Christmas, the Circle got the idea into the ad. by using the fireplace and the scene picture in it that certainly has the holiday touch. Then S. Barret McCormick, the manager addressed a personal letter to the star, Mae Marsh, which immediately lined the note up with the season.

This is a display of a man that thinks. It pays to think.

What did you get for Christmas—confidence or a grouch?

OMAHA is a very poor town so far as motion picture advertising is concerned. The newspapers themselves appear to have made only a fair start in co-operation, but it may be because the exhibitors have held back on the use of space. We'd like to know what is really the matter, for it's too good a city to neglect.

Yet with that true, Omaha sets the pace with a Christmas display from the theatres and exchanges. It occupies about one-sixth of a page and it is bound to stir new interest in pictures. It is a simple wish of the best of the season to the public, but there isn't a reader that won't start to think after he has read this display.

Keep the public's eye on your business, no matter what it is, but more especially keep up the interest in pictures. There was a day when the railroads pursued a policy of "the public be damned" on the theory that the public had to use the railroads. Today they are spending millions in publicity. And its time for the public to get out of the idea that the public is coming to motion pictures because it has got to come, and make it come.

A smile now is worth a dozen letters after patrons lost.

SENSATIONALISM may be well enough in teaser campaign and in throw-away matter, but the newspaper is no place in which to use this matter. When you use newspaper space with the announcement of your current attraction, you are supposed to give the public some idea of the attraction that you are expecting it to BUY.

This display, which we take from the Rochester papers might do well on cards which should be distributed several days in advance of the attraction. That might arouse the curosity of a number of people who would be watching for the announcement of the picture. But as a primary announcement itself, it is about as poor a piece of publicity as we would expect.

Here is a display appearing right before Christmas. It is much more calculated to drive people away from the theatre than to bring them in. It has the cheapest sort of appeal for it's a good form of "bunk" advertising.

"Sick 'em Tige!" of the comics, is a good motto for the exhibitor. But you be the Tige.

WE don't know whether our suggestions had anything to do with it, but a couple of weeks ago we printed some advertising of the Sourwine theatre, Brazil, Indiana, but certainly there has been a big improvement. You that have been following this department closely will remember the border that was used by the Sourwine, which we termed a "smudge" and the fact that the theatre advertised attractions for two different days with equal prominence. This was the special Christmas advertisement of the Sourwine and for this a neat border with the holly effect was used and striking type displays were achieved. The same face was used through the advertisement which certainly gives contrasting effect with that of past advertising of this theatre. This is simply one of the hundreds of instances where attention to little suggestions can improve the displays of theatres.

What Live Wires Are Doing

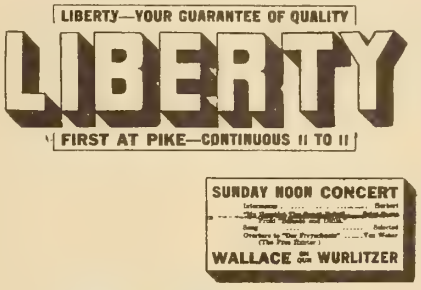
Every theatre needs an advisory board, and on it should be every patron of the house.

THERE are various schools of advertising with their various theories, but a great deal of the doctrine of advertising that might apply in other businesses distinctly does not apply to motion pictures. Here is a "display" of the Strand theatre, New Orleans. Here is one of the best managed houses in the country, new and modern in every way, but the theatre is setting an example of how not to advertise.



You may have noted that we quoted the word Display. This advertisement occupies a space two columns wide by seven inches deep and contains more than enough matter for a page. Of course, it is all right to figure your advertising on the basis that it is so entertainingly written that all will read it, but first you have to make the public know that. And no matter how clever a writer you may be, you are not going to spread this impression with a jumble of type. One result of the advertisement is that there isn't the slightest display on the pictures of the Halifax disaster pictures which were played up strong by other theatres all over the country.

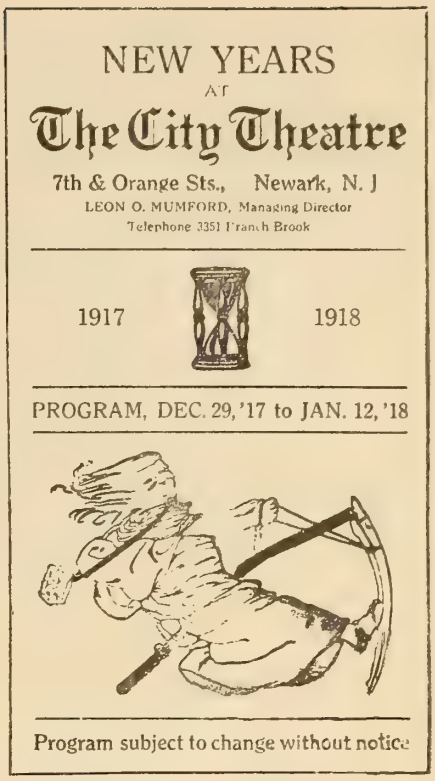
Like the woman who is always talking, the advertisement that says what it has to say and quits, is far more interesting to come in contact with.

NOW take the marked contrast with the Strand advertising. Here is a display on the Liberty theatre, Seattle, Wash. on another Dorothy Dalton picture. This is the work of "Hundred Per Cent" Fullerton whose work has often been commented upon in these columns. In the first place the display occupies a space four columns wide the full length of the news-

In "The Price Mark" Miss Dalton is cast as an artist's model—a girl whom hunger drove to the studio—a gem in a market where jewels are priced in beauty and youth! Six reels!

ROPING HER ROMEO
A wild-western, rough-riding, six-shooting, dyed-in-the-wool comedy. Five reels of fun packed in two!



STAR-LIBERTY NEWS WEEKLY

ADMISSION 20c CHILDREN 10c

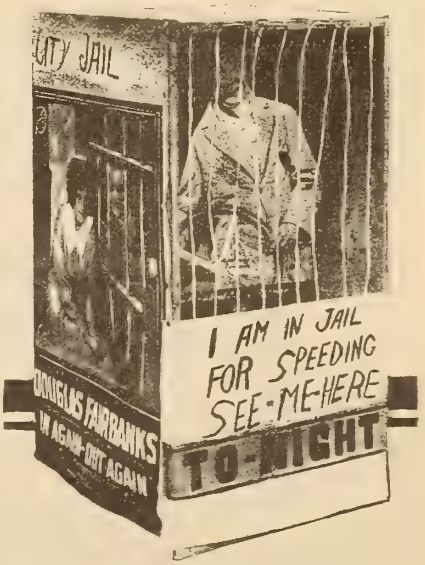
paper. But the main point to bear in mind is the punch that has been put in with the least possible type. Note that the advertisement covers just as many subjects as does the Strand. It calls attention to the feature above everything else, mentions the concert, brings out the comedy and mentions the News weekly.

Things don't just happen. Something makes 'em do it. See the idea?



WHILE we are all still in this holiday let us show you the cover of the program of the City theatre, Newark. Here is again one of the "little things" that we are so fond of mentioning. Just before Christmas Manager Leon G. Mumford issued a clever little Christmas program that called for special mention in the local newspapers and also brought scores of commendations from his patrons. So he followed it up with this special designs for the New Year. He did not increase the size of the sheet or materially increase the cost, but he used a clever little cut of the old year passing away and printed it in blue and gray.

Little drops of courtesy make a flood of patronage.

HERE is a clever little idea that was used by Manager W. C. Pierce of the Royal theatre, Princeton, W. Va., during the run of Douglas Fairbanks in "In Again, Out Again." By using a one sheet with the picture of Fairbanks and a cage illustrating a jail, the house was able to get a display that stopped hundreds of people in the street to comment on it.

How the Milwaukee exhibitors have turned to advertising since the ban on use of electric signs. The Journal has two practically solid pages of display matter in its last Sunday issue.

Things Every Exhibitor Can Do Even Though Facilities Are Limited

(Continued from page 235)

lot of advertising matter on each production. He must make the best of it and use what is available for him. Some of the companies, too, in the cuts that they prepare, take advantage of the fact to give the greatest prominence to the name of the company and the brand, and at the expense of the exhibitor. We believe by all means in brand advertising and we believe that you should mention the name of the maker of every good picture in your advertising, but you are unwilling to put that ahead of anything else.

Another serious fault with many of the prepared advertisements is that the writers of them deal in superlatives and sometimes make statements that do not fit the pictures. Still another failing of some of these is an attempt to give the name of the author of the scenario, the director and often the photographer. These are things in which the trade is interested, but about which the public doesn't care a hang. The name is important when it means something, when it stands out like the name of Robert W. Chambers. If it doesn't mean something, it merely clutters up your display and occupies valuable space.

Serious complaints come from all sections of the country of exchanges failing to send out advertising cuts when they are ordered. Some exhibitors have written that these requests have been ignored. The picture comes along all right, but the rest of the stuff is ignored. You may rest assured that an exchange manager who conducts his business along such lines won't last long—or if he is allowed to last the film company itself is likely to go into the discard.

But we do urge you to familiarize yourself with the advertizing aids that you can get on each picture. Don't wait until the day that you are going to show this picture to get the information. Get it when you book the picture, and you will find it advisable to make the booking of the picture conditional on your getting this matter. It is a mighty good thing to go over this matter when you receive it, but at least file it away under a date several days before you show the picture and then dig it up and see what you can do with your advertising. If you haven't on hand the stock cuts that we mentioned, then get busy with your order to the exchange if the material has not yet been received and begin to design your advertising.

Here is another little thing that counts. Get your advertisement to the printer in plenty of time and see that he sends proofs back to you. You will then have time to make changes without waiting until the last minute. It's a mighty good ad writer who can sit down and write a display merely from his knowledge of type faces and his sense of judgment that cannot be improved upon in some way when they are put into the cold type.

We know one small city exhibitor who has done an excellent thing along this line. Above his desk he has a large board on which he tacks the advertisements as they appear, until the board is filled. He has them before him, the good ones as an inspiration and the bad ones as an example of what to be avoided. "I often find myself unconsciously studying these displays," he told us. "I see things that I did wrong and that could be easily improved. I make a mental note of these things and it is rarely that the same mistake happens again."

This is the sort of an exhibitor who is progressing—the sort of an exhibitor that all who expect to survive and prosper have got to become. No one can drill into you the necessity of these things. We cannot help it if you simply pass these articles up as "dry reading" and let it go at that. But remember there is nothing that is dry and that brings with it the sunlight of prosperity.

It is hard to portray in arbitrarily written advertisements what will help you, as an exhibitor in a small city or town, to do better advertising, but we will be very glad to take up with you here or in personal correspondence any of your advertising and show you how you can improve—and with the facilities that you have.

We recognize that the greater share of the advertising advice is written for those with unlimited facilities and plenty of money to spend. The smaller theatre is even more in need of exploitation. And the small theatre can do this and do it successfully. We believe that we have proven that to you to some extent. Now if you want to take a step further, tell us where we can help you specifically and we will be very glad to devote the time and the expense to showing you.

"Lightless Nights" Prove Worth of Newspaper Ads in Milwaukee

LIGHTLESS nights in Milwaukee are not hurting the photoplay theatres. At least, not so far. One taking a view of the downtown-house business Sunday night, when all but the most necessary of the lights were out, would think that it had improved business if anything. For though the front of the theatres were dark and dismal and the ticket booth about the only bright spot, all of the signs and other ads being unlighted, the crowds were packed around the entrance of all of the houses. Local managers are beginning to ask themselves, "was all this talk about a light attractive front pure bunk?" Was all the expensive outlay of money for signs and electrical illumination necessary, or was it just a case of one manager trying to outdo the other and the public absolutely uninterested in how well a house was lighted in front as long as the value was there in the picture? It would seem to be true from indications of Milwaukee's lightless nights.

It may be that they have decided that it is better, as well as being more patriotic, to put their money into newspaper advertising and forget the lighting end. At least this was the conclusion one would be forced to reach after scanning the theatre pages of the local papers Sunday. Practically two solid pages of theatre advertising, and with the exception of a small amount of space used by the legitimate and vaudeville theatres, practilcally all of this was used by the photoplay houses. And the results seem to justify such expenditures. Everyone of the downtown houses that carried these big ads was packed Sunday night—but nine days before Christmas—and holding them out.

The Whitehouse theatre, with "The Italian Battle Front," topped the list with seventy-two inches of advertising. The Whitehouse was run a close second by the Butterfly theatre advertising "Joan the Woman," with a sixty-inch ad. Then came the Alhambra theatre announcing Douglas Fairbanks in "Reaching for the Moon," with a forty-inch ad. The Strand theatre had a thirty-inch ad, followed by the Merrill with only a sixteen-inch spread, while the Princess theatre used a fifteen-inch space to tell of its features.

Rothapfel's Answers to Exhibitors

Mr. Rothapfel Will Answer Here any Questions Regarding Problems in Exhibition. The Only Conditions Are That the Questions Must Not Bear on the Merits of Particular Pictures or Services and That They Must Come Through the NEWS. Address Your Inquiries "ROTHAPFEL ADVICE, EXHIBITORS' SERVICE BUREAU, MOTION PICTURE NEWS."

I am sorry that I cannot give the lengthy answers to this week's questions that I should like to, but the fact that I am opening my new theatre, The Rivoli, makes it impossible to devote the time to these this week that I should like to. The opening of a theatre of this kind with such a scarcity of labor is a very strenuous task.

S. L. ROTHAPFEL.

IX—I have just taken over a house seating 500 people. The business has been neglected and is in a very bad condition. Please advise me what would be the right amount to spend for weekly advertising. The population is about 38,000. The admission prices are five and ten at the matinee and ten and fifteen in the evening. Also advise me if I should direct my advertising to newspapers or if I should use different mediums such as mailing lists, window cards and billboards. I am inexperienced in the show business and any suggestion would be appreciated.—R. T. H.

THE fact that you are inexperienced in the show business does not necessarily mean that you are handicapped except in the matter of routine. If you will apply good business methods to your show there won't be any question about your success. I have a leaning toward the newspapers and of course in a town of 38,000 it might be wise to have a mailing list. It depends entirely on the copy and the personality behind the advertising. A town of 38,000 in my opinion could be reached very effectively for about $50 a week, and it might pay you to spend even more until such time as you get going properly. I would not have any five cent price.

X—Here is my problem. Under present admission prices and receipts I am able to pay out a certain amount each week for pictures. I cannot have good pictures every night and on the others I have to pad out the show with serials and short pictures, or else reduce the quality of my program uniformly. I have not been successful in showing a picture for more than a single day's run. I know that I am not giving the public the best, but I simply cannot afford it. I would like to use the best of big pictures and run them all two days. I am located in a possible picture patronage of 12,000 and have a capacity of only 500 and give but three shows a day. Therefore at the maximum, which is rarely attained, I can reach only 1,500 on a single day—and a single picture as I am running at present. What should I do to make my runs longer and give better features.—A. S. C.

MY advice to you is to raise your admission price, to change your program three times a week instead of daily, to not use padded stuff, short pictures and "fillers," as you call them. These have been the death of many a house and their use is mighty bad policy. Go after your house; make your show a little better. Break it into short pictures, but have them features instead of padded out stuff. I have never advocated the use of a serial—I know some of my manufacturing friends are going to yell at this, but, frankly, I have never in all my career used one. Make a personal appeal to your audience and try to make your show better in every way. Of course you must advertise and do it generously at first, even if you lose a little money.

XI—I probably have the most peculiar problem that ever presented itself to you. I am located in a prosperous city of 15,000. Due to war factory operations the people are getting more wages than they ever got before. I have the only show in town, as long as I stay at the ten-cent admission. Recently I tried to raise my prices to fifteen cents, but a man who had been in the exhibition business before and who knows nothing about it opened his house again at ten cents. I lost patronage and had to go back to that admission. Now he lets it be known all over town that if I again increase my price he will again open his theatre! I cannot make money and give good pictures at the present prices. I can do this with a five cent raise, but the minute I do this the opposition opens up again and the result is that I am once more in the hole. What can I do?—NEW YORK STATE.

I AM very sorry to hear of the condition you speak of because your question shows me there is a great weakness and that you are not as strong as you might be morally. Strange as it may seem, I had a very similar experience in a small town that I first operated in, but what the other man did never worried me. I went ahead, raised my prices, gave a better show and the other man tried to run his show for ten cents, with the result that for awhile people went to him, but when the novelty had worn off the people came to the best show and he got tired of "bumping his head against a stone wall."

This man is evidently using a club over your head and has a few followers and to you it might appear as if the whole town is against you. But prepare for your battle—stick it out and I think you will win. In fact, I'm sure you will!

XII—I am a believer in new reels, but at the price that I can afford to pay under present conditions, by the time I get the reel it is out of date—some four weeks after issue, and with these changing war conditions some of the things appear ridiculous. I have a chance to get these for a two-day run four days after release, but the price is much higher than I am paying now. How can I feature these—for I have to run a five-reeler also—so that they will bring in the increased admissions. I have the only theatre in a city of 8,000.—NORTH CAROLINA.

OF course I, too, am a believer in having the film in as good condition as possible, but to have new film in a location like yours, with the price you would have to pay, would not pay you, I think. I find that with proper manipulation and proper care you can give a very good show on stuff two or three weeks old, and you then have the great advantage of knowing exactly what to pick and you will be certain of refinement, and, too, you will always be able to give a very good program, a better one, in fact, than the man who gets the picture at release. Don't feature any picture unless it is worth featuring. Simply because a picture is a five-reeler and is new is no reason why it should have any more featuring than one that is three weeks old and is better.

Having the only theatre in a city of 8,000 is, believe me, a cinch, and if you will just simply run your business on a good conservative basis, be fair with your public, give them a little better show, reap a fair profit, you will in the long run be prosperous, and I think you will have a clientele in your town that opposition will not dare approach.

Diary of a Successful Showman

Experiences of an Exhibitor Who Learned His Lessons to Appear

BEGINNING next week the NEWS will print the experience of an exhibitor just starting into business and the study of his business week after week. He will tell himself how he made his mistakes and how he remedied them—the things he did to put his business on its feet.

This man started in without experience in motion picture exhibition, but he has intelligence and he was ready to recognize his errors. He studied the public, he watched his pictures and he kept a lookout for the future. There isn't an exhibitor in the country who cannot profit from his experience.

And this is especially true of the smaller showmen, for the conditions that confronted this exhibitor are those which prevail almost everywhere.

Keeping Hand on the Public's Pulse Brings Success to Minneapolis House

"FEEL the public pulse—and stimulate it!"

That is the theme which Manager Charles Branham of the Strand theatre of Minneapolis has as a working theory. It is the common grade-school axiom; the familiar is the interesting. Probably no manager in the Northwest so applies himself and his theatre to give the public that with which the public is at the moment most familiar. Mr. Branham, before entering the theatre game was in the estate just behind the Great Fifth. As an ex-member of the Fourth Estate he has at his finger tips experience gained by ten years on some of the largest newspapers of the country. He is merely applying his newspaper principle to the theatre.

The Strand, commonly nominated Minneapolis's Popular Playhouse, obtains its photoplays—all its pictures—on the open market. This, according to Mr. Branham's theory, eliminates the surplus expense of, at times, paying for pictures on the shelf, and further, gives him opportunity to watch and more closely adhere to the tendency of public desire. Probably no photoplay produced a more satisfying box-office result than did "The

Specimen Quarter Page Advertisement of Strand Theatre

Slacker" of the Metro Company, and "The Little American" of the Artcraft Company.

When the state of Minnesota came to be a state much discussed in the press of the entire country over the dickerings with the Peace Council in the city of Minneapolis; and when later St. Paul was chosen as the meeting place for the Non-Partisan League where was delivered the now notorious speech of Robert M. LaFollette, Mr. Branham held the showman's finger to the public pulse and "The Little American" was thrown onto the Strand screen for a week which broke the house record and came back again for a record return engagement.

The same atmosphere pervaded the state when "The Slacker" was screened. Throughout the days when the American public was aroused by talk of sedition running rampant, Mr. Branham kept "his ear to the ground" and found patriotic pictures which thrilled his audience. When the Dunwoody Naval Training station was instituted in Minneapolis he invited the entire cadet corps to his theatre. The cadet corps came, and with it came an enthusiastic public. Mr. Branham gave the Jackie-thinking public that which they were at the time most aware of.

Helping "Liberty Loan"

Fleeting stories of slackers, men who refused to register, men who claimed to be alien enemies and therefore not liable to service filled the newspapers. Mr. Branham's two-estate mind rushed into quick action. He struck the striking point. "The Man Without A Country" came to the Strand screen. It brought a week of heavy business. Then came the Liberty Loan campaign. Minneapolis found itself in the midst of a money drive which it had never before witnessed. Liberty Day, proclaimed throughout the country, gave Mr. Branham another opportunity to stimulate the public pulse. He took personal charge of filming the Liberty Day parade, as well as the number of loan meetings, and had them on the Strand screen early that same evening.

To raise money for the state troops, the First Minnesota Infantry, there was conceived the idea of a Vimy Ridge spectacle at the State Fair grounds, with Major J. F. Templeton, veteran Canadian officer who had been through the Vimy Ridge affair, in charge. Mr. Branham filmed the "battle" and the public rushed to see again that at which it had been present during the day. So continually Mr. Branham is hammering at the theory—give the public what it knows most about; give them the familiar things.

Using Local Scenes

When Minneapolis's own, as did many another city's own, left with the Rainbow division, Mr. Branham, in co-operation with the Minneapolis News "shot" the boys and brought the pictures to the Strand screen.

Another big drawing card was "France In Arms." Few cities have such high regard for France as has Minneapolis. French is taught to all its high-school students. The Department of French at the University of Minnesota, located in Minneapolis, is ever bringing to the public attention some new interpretation of French character. Saturday evening, when the Strand orchestra played the Marseillaise the entire audience rose from its seats. This fact, that the audience stood up to the playing of the French national anthem, is one of the vital proofs that his ear-to-the-ground is finding the proper pulse beat.

For the past few weeks the local newspapers have been filled with columns of news and editorials on the state loyalty convention held at St. Paul, and the loyalty meetings held in Minneapolis. From all sources the public is hearing the thought, "democracy for all, freedom from autocracy." And Mr. Branham booked for a week's run "For the Freedom of the World" and it "produced."

So it is from time to time.

Much as he believes in applying the "pulse" theory, however, he does not believe in a surfeit of war, as the present circumstances might bring. He chooses comedy drama and comedy to intersperse among the pulse pictures. Comedy, he says, offers more relaxation now than it ever did in peace times.

Charles G. Brantham, Manager Strand Theatre, Minneapolis

Of course not every exhibitor has had newspaper experience. But every exhibitor does read newspapers—he does know what the public is at the moment most interested in. It is up to the exhibitor to take advantage of this.

"It is neither advisable, nor is it good business, to go through a weary and costly process of teaching people to like olives because other people who have learned to know olives like them. Olives never agree with some people." So speaks Mr. Branham.

So to repeat, ending with Mr. Branham's motto: "Feel the Public Pulse—And Stimulate It."

Mary McAlister Gets Theatre for Xmas

Little Mary McAlister was given the Virginia theatre, at State and Halsted streets, Chicago, to do with as she pleases on Christmas Day. William Heaney, manager of the Virginia, was so pleased with the entertainment the tiny Essanay star gave the orphans and poor children in his neighborhood on Thanksgiving that he felt the least he could do was to turn the theatre over to her again on Christmas.

On Thanksgiving George Kleine donated a print of Little Mary's picture, "Pants," for the charity showing and the little actress appeared herself and told stories about humorous incidents that occurred in connection with her various pictures. And the affair went off so well that Mr. Heaney decided to give the unfortunates under fifteen years of age in his neighborhood another treat when he discovered Mary would appear again on Christmas.

Here are two of the lobby displays of the Midway theatre, Montreal. At the left is a display of "Rasputin" showing the throne. Appropriate placards increased the interest in the study of the display. At the left is a display on "The Russian Revolution," with the figure of Kerensky dominating. This was one of the most effective displays that Mr. Laurie ever used.

Laurie Tells Exhibitors That Smashing Lobby Displays Bring in the Patrons

"KASHIN has gone, but his work still goes on and the Midway does not take second place to any Toronto theatre."

These lines from A. J. Laurie, advertising manager of the Midway, Montreal, writes this in sending a number of his lobby displays. Readers of the NEWS will get the reference to Mr. Kashin who originated this style of displays at the Midway and who has since come to New York where he did some brilliant work before going into business for himself.

Mr. Laurie believes in making his lobby displays big enough to attract real attention. He gets down to the central theme of the picture and then portrays that one big idea. No one who walks in front of the Midway ever has to wonder what the picture is about. There is nothing left uncertain; the appeal is smashing. He has achieved these results, not only with strong dramas which have the "punch," but he has put them over equally well with comedies.

One typical display was made on the Arbuckle picture, "His Wedding Night." Here he used a big picture of "Fatty" and the mule sitting on the negro. The back of the lobby was finished as a barn and a one-horse wagon standing there carried out the effect. There are not many exhibitors who would think of turning their central display over to a comedy when there was a five-reel feature on the same bill, but Mr. Laurie did this because he could put the punch over with the comedy and he could not do so equally well with the feature.

Exhibitors who study pictures will find that they are able to get a variety of displays and all sorts of pictures are adapted to this. For instance, some big event in a news reel might be featured and the exhibitor might even take the theme from some scenic and fit his lobby up as the Canadian Rockies or whatever part of the country was being featured. The one great thing that recommends lobby displays to the exhibitor is that they contribute to longer runs of pictures. The ordinary exhibitor who will put on a real display on his next picture will find a demand for it after he has taken the feature off—that is if he has studied the picture and made some big idea stand out in a way that every one would understand.

ASK QUESTIONS

You Are Most Fortunate in Having Rothapfel to Answer Them

NEVER before in the history of the motion picture industry have you had the free advice of the world's greatest exhibitor on the problems that concern your individual house. Never before have you been able to get the very supreme in the work of a "consulting expert."

Mr. Rothapfel is doing this work because of his great interest in the whole industry—because he wants to see every showman succeed just as he has succeeded. It is a labor of love to him—and it is worth an untold amount to you.

There are two conditions to these questions. They must not deal with the merits of particular pictures or particular film service, and they must all come through the NEWS. Questions sent in any other manner will be ignored. Address your inquiry

ROTHAPFEL ADVICE
Exhibitors' Service Bureau
Motion Picture News

Police Aroused by Ads on "The Spy"

Prior to the time of showing "The Spy" at the Majestic theatre at Portland, Ore., Manager James Parker carried on so sensational a campaign that the Governor of the state, police officers, and other officials came to look upon it as a menace. Statements were carried in the daily papers warning everyone to be careful, to watch for the spy, and pointed out the attempts that were being made to poison people by the use of court plaster and the attempts made on the lives of soldiers by sending them poisoned cigarettes and water. This frightened people who wrote letters and telephoned to the officials, and the calls became so numerous the Governor sought the source of the advertising and urged Parker to stop. When the other announcements came out later, the people appreciated the hookum that had been shot at them.

Real Exhibitor to Aid Hodkinson Service

An exhibitors' service department has been established by the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation. At its head is L. F. Guimond, who was with Mr. Hodkinson at the Triangle Distributing Corporation. While there he was in several departments, including publicity and advertising and exexutive management, as well as sales promotion.

Mr. Guimond has had five years of exhibitor experience and is still an exhibitor, owning a small town theatre. His previous work has been as a free lance advertising man, and throughout his experience in the business he has specialized in analytical studies looking toward service from the producer to the screen.

You are not going to war. The men who are need all the comforts you can give them. Help them get cigarettes. That is your patriotic duty. If you aren't helping in the "smokes" campaign, get busy—now. Don't be a slacker!

Ready Made Ad-Talks

Jack Richardson and Strong Cast Present "The Man Above the Law"

(Triangle Five Reel Production)

Lanier Bartlett has written a story titled "The Man Above the Law." In this story he tells of a victim of an unlucky love affair and a more unlucky experience with religion and the law. The victim has centered his hatred against women and religion and is feared by the neighborhood. He is known as "the man above the law." This story has been prepared for screen presentation and presents one of the most interesting screen dramas seen on the screen of the ———— Theatre for some time. It was produced by Triangle under the direction of Raymond Wells. Duke Chalmers, "the man above the law," is presented by Jack Richardson, who has been seen in villain and character bad-man parts in some of the best Western productions. With him in the cast are seen Josie Sedgwick, Claire McDowell, who will be remembered for her work with Mary Pickford and Blanch Sweet in the early Biograph productions, and May Giracia. Duke goes West and becomes a trader among the Indians. He wins them with the aid of whiskey and then gets them hopelessly in debt. He takes an Indian girl as his squaw and a daughter is born, named Tonah. Esther Brown comes West to open a mission school. Duke meets her. He refuses to allow his daughter to attend the school and forbids the neighboring Indians, who are his slaves, to send their children to the school. She pleads with Duke to permit his child and the children of the native Indians to attend her school and to stop selling whiskey to the Indians. Duke agrees to the first plea but denies the second. Esther casts a spell over Duke and he realizes that he loves her. They are seen often together and Duke's squaw becomes jealous. Duke slays a Mexican for attacking Esther and then Esther realizes that he loves her. She suggests that they part. Duke asks a day in which to give his answer. The morning following, Esther finds his cabin deserted. He has left with his squaw and child. At the ———— Theatre on ———— of ———— week, Jack Richardson in "The Man Above the Law."

William Russell, Supported by Francelia Billington, in "In Bad"—Comedy-Drama

(Mutual Five Reel Production)

"In Bad" is the next staring vehicle in which William Russell will be seen on the screen of the ———— Theatre. The story was written by Raymond L. Shrock and adapted to the screen by Chester B. Clapp. It was produced under the direction of Edward Sloman for the American Film Company releasing through Mutual. In the supporting cast are seen Francelia Billington, presenting the principal feminine role; Harvey Clark, Bull Montana, who has been seen in several Douglas Fairbanks features; Fred Smith, Lucille Ward and Carl Stockdale. William Russell presents the role of Monty, who gets "in bad" because he will not marry the girl his aunt has selected for him and secondly because he turns down an offer auntie makes him on condition that he will settle down. All this takes place before he sees the girl auntie has selected for him. On one occasion he is knocked down a flight of stairs in the home of his aunt, by his trainer, Lefty Ned, and he falls at the feet of Victoria Harrison, the girl whom his auntie has chosen. Victoria did not think much of his sudden entry into her life but Monte fell hard for her. Victoria leaves on a trip to Yucatan and Monte follows. Speed Armstrong accompanies her. Speed is a friend of Monte. Victoria was chaperoned by Monte's aunt. The party was on a treasure hunt and had brought along a bunch of ruffians to help dig the treasure. The ruffians planned to abscond with the treasure but Monte saves the day. A fight was staged and Monte comes out victorious. The ruffians had locked Monte's aunt, Victoria and her father in a handy cave. His aunt pleads with Monte to free them and Monte, having the upper hand, exacts a promise from her which is fulfilled.

What is the promise?

See William Russell in "In Bad" at the ———— Theatre ———— week and receive the answer.

Tom Moore and Hazel Daly in Rita Young's Play, "Brown of Harvard"

(Selig Five Reel Production)

"Brown of Harvard," the stage play in which Robert Edeson made such a decided hit some years ago, has been adapted for screen presentation and is presented by William N. Selig on the Perfection program with Tom Moore and Hazel Daly in the featured roles. The production was made under the direction of Harry Beaumont. Hazel Daly will be remembered for her excellent work opposite Bryant Washburn in the "Skinner" stories. Mr. Moore has been seen as leading man for many of the leading stars on the screen. He played opposite Mae Marsh in "The Cinderella Man," pronounced by the critics to be the best screen drama in which Miss Marsh has appeared since "The Birth of a Nation." In this production, Mr. Moore has the title role and Miss Daly has the principal feminine role. The play was written by Rita Johnson Young and Gilbert P. Coleman. The story as told in pictures presents one of the best dramas ever produced and presents Tom Moore in a part that fits him like a glove. As Brown of Harvard he makes a decided "hit" and patrons of the ———— theatre are guaranteed a most enjoyable time when "Brown of Harvard" is screened on ———— of ———— week. It is a story of college days and romance runs ripping through its reelage as presented on the screen with the delightful swish of waters in a brook. You will enjoy every minute "Brown of Harvard" is on the screen. There is entertainment for both young and old. It takes you back to the days you spent at your Alma Mater and you will leave the theatre with the satisfied feeling.

At the ———— theatre on ———— of ———— week, Tom Moore and Hazel Daly in "Brown of Harvard."

"The Grand Passion," with Dorothy Phillips and Jack Mulhall in Leading Roles

(Jewel Five Reel Production)

"The Grand Pasion" is the next Jewel production to be seen on the screen of the ———— theatre. Dorothy Phillips, William Stowell, Jack Mulhall and Lon Chaney are in the principal roles. Evelyn Selbie, Bert Appling and Alfred Allen are seen in support. The picture was produced under the direction of Ida May Park, one of the few women directors. It was adapted from the story by Thomas Addison. Dorothy Phillips will be remembered for her work in some of the best Bluebird productions. Jack Mulhall has been seen to advantage in a number of Universal productions. It tells a virile, powerful story on the screen and one which is well worth seeing by the patrons of the ———— theatre. It will be seen ———— of ———— week. "The Powder Plant is going!" is the ominous yell of the mob. The wind is blowing toward the Powder Plant, and the whole town will go if the oil tank explodes.

Dick Evans, the boss of Powderville, is about to start a newspaper, "The Trumpet," to evolve a new city that may redeem his past. Thus a toll of all the hell-holes yields $4,000 for advertisements. Jack Ripley has editorial charge of "The Trumpet" and both he and Dick are in love with Viola, whose uncle, Paul Argos, heads a revolt against the boss. Viola warns Jack that his life is in danger, and Argos casts her off as a traitress. She is kidnapped by a gunman, "Red Pete" Jackson, who is enamoured of her, but is soon traced by Dick and Jack to a notorious resort at Death Valley, where she is rescued after a thrilling fight. The Death Valley mob and Powderville rioters, led by "Red Pete," storm the "Trumpet" office, demanding the $4,000 collected for advertisements. Dick declines to yield to their demand, and the mob is held at bay by a vigorous defence. Meanwhile Argos, half-demented, sets fire to his restaurant and the conflagration spreads through the town.

The suspense becomes acute in the final reel as to whether the Powder Plant will be destroyed and also as to whether, in case they are not killed by the mob, will it be Dick or Jack who wins out with Viola?

At the ———— theatre on ———— of ———— week, "The Grand Passion," with Dorothy Phillips, Jack Mulhall, William Stowell and Lou Chaney in leading roles.

Taylor Holmes in "Uneasy Money" Best Yet—Don't Fail to See It

(Essanay-Perfection Five-Reel Production)

Taylor Holmes, who has made such a hit with motion picture audiences in his comedy-dramas, is to appear on the screen of the ———— theatre on ———— of ———— week in "Uneasy Money," his latest work. And it is a "corker." Don't miss it—if you do there is no telling when you will be given the opportunity to see such a real, lively comedy-drama on the screen. This is, without a doubt, the best work Mr. Holmes has done. It is full of humor, and runs with the smoothness of running water in a brook. He presents the role of Lord Dawlish. In support he has such well-known screen artists as Virginia Valli, Arthur Bates, Charles Gardner, Virginia Bowker, Fred Tiden, Lillian Drew, James F. Fulton and Rod LaRocque. Ira Newcombe is a rich American, and likes to play golf with Lord Dawlish, who has everything but money. Later the Lord learns that he has inherited a million pounds, bequeathed to him by his old friend Newcombe. Lord Dawlish writes to his sweetheart in America of his good fortune. On the boat Claire Edmont meets rich Mr. Pickerton, and decides to dish the Lord. She does not know that her lover has inherited a fortune. Lord Dawlish goes under the name of plain "Bill" Chalmers. In the meantime Claire receives Lord Dawlish's letter, notifying her of his good fortune. She leaves Mr. Pickerton to look up Lord Dawlish, who is living under the name of Bill Chalmers. Then the fun starts.

Taylor Holmes will be seen on the screen of the ———— theatre on ———— of ———— week in "Uneasy Money."

Late Chapter, "Vengeance—and the Woman"—Thrilling "Hold-Up"

(Vitagraph Serial—Two Reels)

The second chapter of Vitagraph's new serial, "Vengeance—and the Woman," entitled "Loaded Dice," with William Duncan and Carol Holloway in the leading roles, is full of what is commonly referred to as action. There is action every minute—action on the wide open plains of the West. In the first chapter we saw Black Jack Haines sentenced to a long term in prison. In this chapter Blake and his wife are on their way to the State capitol when they receive word that Black Jack and his confederates have escaped from prison. A Wild West "hold-up" of an entire town is staged in this episode. The outlaws are lead by two convicts, who have just escaped from prison. Blake's wife is carried away by the bandits, and, while they sleep, she escapes. As she races through the canyon on her horse, an Indian, a confederate of the bandits, lassos her, and she is left swinging from the cliff as the chapter closes.

At the ———— theatre on ———— of ———— week, William Duncan and Carol Holloway in the second chapter of Vitagraph's new serial, "Vengeance—and the Woman."

Mae Murray in "Face Value"—The Adventures of an Unfortunate

(Bluebird Five-Reel Production)

Mae Murray is to be seen in "Face Value" at the ———— theatre on ———— of ———— week. "Face Value" is a Bluebird production, made under the direction of Robert Leonard. The story was written by Miss Murray working in collaboration with her director, Mr. Leonard. The scenario was prepared by Fred Myton. In the supporting cast with Miss Murray are seen: Clarissa Selwyne, Florence Carpenter, Wheeler Oakman and Casson Ferguson. Miss Murray has the role of Joan Darby, who came from nowhere, as far as her neighbors could learn. Had she not taken a long chance and jumped from a swiftly-moving freight train she would be serving a long term in the reformatory. She took the chance and escaped injury and the reformatory. She found a job as delivery girl for a washwoman. In the neighborhood in which she lived two "gangs" fought for supremacy. Joan conceived the idea of staging a prize fight between the leaders of the two games. This was done in order that she might obtain some money. She had obtained the idea from reading accounts of prize fights in the newspapers. When the spoils were divided Joan had enough to buy a pretty cloak she desired. The old woman for whom she worked accused her of being rich. Her life became intolerable and she fled. She is found by one of the gang leaders whom she had defrauded and threatens to expose her if she does not asisst him in his work. Joan is detected, and is sentenced to a reformatory. On her way to the reformatory she leaps from the train and escapes. She is taken in by a rich young man and his mother.

READY-MADE AD-TALKS PUBLISHED IN LAST WEEK'S ISSUE

January 5, 1918

FEATURES

TITLE OF PLAY	PRODUCERS
"The Fair Barbarian"	Paramount	5 reels
"Convict 993"	Pathe	5 reels
"The Gown of Destiny"	Triangle	5 reels
"Diamonds and Pearls"	World	5 reels
"Stolen Hours"	World	5 reels
"In the Balance"	Vitagraph	5 reels
"Les Miserables"	Fox	9 reels
"Betty Takes a Hand"	Triangle	5 reels
"Without Honor"	Fox	5 reels
"Her Second Husband"	Mutual	5 reels
"Alimony"	First National Exhibitors	6 reels
"Beloved Jim"	Universal	5 reels

SERIALS

"Who Is Number One?"	Paramount—7th Episode	2 reels
"Vengeance—and the Woman"	Vitagraph—1st & 2d Episodes, (each)	2 reels

She becomes a society belle. The gang leader turns up again in the home of her benefactor and he recognizes her.

Come to the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week and learn how Joan is proven innocent. Mae Murray in "Face Value."

Geraldine Farrar, American Opera Singer, in Strong Play, "The Devil Stone"

Geraldine Farrar appears on the screen of the ——— theatre ——— week in "The Devil Stone," one of her best works for the screen. Miss Farrar whom everyone recognizes as the most accomplished American opera singer, was first seen on the screen in "Joan the Woman" in which she made a tremendous hit. Her last picture was "The Woman God Forgot." In this production which comes to the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week, Miss Farrar presents the role of Marcia Manot. In the supporting cast are seen Wallace Reid, who has done such fine work for Paramount in featured roles and who is now working in the Paramount Eastern studios in a big Western play in which he has the featured role, Hobart Bosworth who has been seen on the screen for years. He appeared in the old Bison and other Western pictures when pictures first came into vogue; Tully Marshall, James Neil, Gustave Seffertitz, Ernest Joy, Mabel Van Buren, Lillian Leighton and Burwell Hamrick. Jeanie MacPherson who has contributed so many big successes to the screen, wrote the story. Cecil De Mille produced the picture. The opening scenes of "The Devil Stone" are laid in a picturesque fishing village on the Coast of Brittany. The latter scenes are laid in New York. Silas Martin, an unscrupulous American, owner of vast fisheries along the Breton coast. He marries Marcia Manot, a simple fishing girl. In order that he may get possession of a valuable emerald which the girl has found. He believes the emerald to be a relic of the ancient Norse Queen Grenelda, who met a violent death for having taken the stone from a Christian priest. Marcia marries him only to bring comfort to her aged mother. Marcia is taken to America by her husband where his penurious instincts are given full play. He attempts to take the stone from Marcia and in the struggle Marcia kills him. Sterling, a young man whom her husband had named as her lover, is accused. Then follows the solving of the murder.

At the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week, Geraldine Farrar in "The Devil Stone."

Charles Ray in Rupert Hughes' Story—Screen Title, "His Mother's Boy"

(Paramount Five Reel Production)

Charles Ray in "His Mother's Boy"—this is the picture you want to be sure and see at the ——— theatre ——— week. It's a "corker" and one that is guaranteed to please old and young. "His Mother's Boy" is adapted from one of Rupert Hughes's most famous and likable stories. The adaptation was made by Ella Stuart Carson from Mr. Hughes's story, "When Life Is Marked Down," presented on the screen under the title, "His Mother's Boy." It was produced under the direction of Victor L. Schertzinger, under the supervision of Thomas H. Ince for the Paramount Program. In the supporting cast are seen Doris Lee, William Elmer, Joseph Swickard, Jerome Storm, Gertrude Claire, and Lydia Knott. The story tells of Matthew Kenyon, a product of a New England village. His father was a prominent business man who encouraged his fellow citizens to invest in oil property in Texas. Matthew lived with his widowed mother. She showers a wealth of motherly affection upon him and will not permit him to mingle with the boys of the village. The boy is left to redeem the family honor which the father had jeopardized by wrongly advising his friends on a fake investment. The story tells of the boy's adventures in the West, where he discovers the fraud which ruined the reputation of his father and wins back the money and a pretty wife for himself. The story is human from the first flash to the fade-out. There is every essential contained which goes to make for good entertaining drama. Charles Ray is an actor. He knows that to be a good actor is to act natural and this he does from first to last. This is the reason why he has risen from the ranks of the supporting cast to one of the biggest stars on the screen. You will like him in this very human drama, adapted from one of Rupert Hughes's best and most likable stories, "When Life Is Marked Down."

"His Mother's Boy" will be seen on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week.

Violet Mersereau in "The Girl by the Roadside"—Unusual Drama

(Bluebird Five Reel Production)

"The Girl by the Roadside" is the next Bluebird feature in which Violet Mersereau will be seen on the screen of the ——— theatre. In the supporting cast are Cecil Owen, Ann Andrews, Allen Edwards, Robert F. Hill, Royal Byron, Kenneth Hall, and Sam B. Winter. Miss Mersereau has the role of Judith Ralson, sister of Budd Ralson, gentleman adventurer. Budd's wife is Vera Ralson, presented by Ann Andrews. While motoring in the mountains of Virginia, the party is seen by Fayban, a secret service agent, who is on Budd's track. He misses them at the hotel and registers to lie in wait. Judith goes for a gallop and is thrown from the horse and injured. She is rescued by Boone Pendleton, who is on his way to his hunting lodge in the mountains. In the meantime Fayban arrests Budd and his wife and sets out to search for Judith. He learns that Judith's horse was found near Pendleton's hunting lodge. Boone and Judith are held in-doors by a heavy storm. They fall madly in love. She is informed by an old negro that the secret service man is looking for her and that her brother and his wife are in jail. The officer finds her, but she is rescued from him by Boone. Fayban tells Boone that Judith is a member of a band of crooks. She goes to her brother, but he refuses to tell her why he is in prison. She goes to Washington. Boone follows in his car. Fayban calls his chief in Washington and tells him to be on the look-out for Judith. Meantime Budd and Vera escape from jail. On the train Judith is approached by one Cartwright, who convinces her that he has met her. The experiences the three have in attempting to elude the authorities are recounted with intense interest in this most interesting drama. Miss Mersereau is at her best. The supporting cast is composed of leading screen artists.

At the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week, Violet Mersereau in "The Girl by the Roadside."

MAYBE NEXT WEEK

You'll Be Looking For Information Then on Some Picture Covered Here

DON'T be in the position of so many exhibitors who go to the express office and get the feature they are to show that day, without knowing the slightest thing about it. Don't be in the position that you have to deal in generalities in your statements to patrons and in your advertising.

The most dangerous thing that you can put in your theater is BUNK. The public is always suspicious of it, and once you fool the public you begin building up a hesitant patronage. And whether you mean to or not, you will certainly bunk the public if you don't know for yourself what you are talking about and what you are advertising.

Clip out these ad talks that you know you are going to need. File them away. If you already know the date of the showing of these pictures, get yourself a monthly file and put them under the proper days. If you don't know, clip out the little box on the opposite page and paste it in a book, and keep this up week after week and you will have a handy reference to this material.

Keep it at hand where you can find it—and use it.

Marguerite Clark in "The Seven Swans"—Most Elaborate Production—Rich Settings

(Paramount Five Reel Production)

The biggest and most elaborate production in which Marguerite Clark has been seen will be shown on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week. "The Seven Swans" is the tite. J. Searle Dawley, who directed Miss Clark in "Snow White," which made such a tremendous hit just a year ago this time, directed her in this late production. Those seen in the supporting cast with Miss Clark are William Danforth, Augusta Anderson, Edwin Dennison, Daisy Belmore, Richard Barthelmess, Richard Allen, Jere Austin, Joseph Sterling, Fred Merrick, Leo F. Daly, Stanley King, and Gordon Dana. Among the scenes are several dance hall scenes, including a shadow dance, using the new Harmer-Mark lights and a troupe of beautiful girls from the big success of the year on the legitimate stage in New York, "Chu Chin Chow," now playing to crowded houses on Broadway; a sundial dance, or the dance of the hours, from "La Giaconda." The dance was directed for screen reproduction by Lillian Thurgate. One of the sets used in the production occupied an entire floor of the spacious Famous Players' studio in New York. The Princess Tweedledee is the part presented by Miss Clark. She was to marry the wicked Queen's son. All was feasting and rejoicing. The Princess lived with her father and seven brothers in the "kingdom of the seven dials." The wedding is announced and the wicked Queen, her witch, and the bad son made the journey for the wedding. A time was set apart for dancing and feasting as was the custom in fairyland. The Princess hated the Queen's son. The wicked Queen wished to marry her son to the Princess and then planned to kill the Princess so that she could get control of the kingdom. The wedding guests arrive and on the screen the happenings are recounted with all the fantastic doings of these magic people.

Miss Clark will be seen on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week in "The Seven Swans."

Margarita Fischer in "Molly Go Get 'Em"—True Boardman in Important Role

(Mutual Five Reel Production)

Margarita Fischer in "Molly Go Get 'Em"—this is the attraction for the ——— theatre for ——— week. You all remember Miss Fischer. In the supporting cast is seen True Boardman, who will be remembered for his work in the featured role of the "Stingaree" series, produced by Kalem. Others in the supporting cast are Jack Mower, who played opposite Lillian Walker in "The Lust of the Ages"; Hal Clements, Margaret Allen, David Howard and Emma Kluge. Miss Fischer has the role of Molly Alison, who has the reputation for getting into more scrapes than any other girl in town. She is compelled by her family to remain in the background until her older sister, Julia, has captured a husband. A bogus Count, in reality a French cook, comes to town, and learns that Julia is looking for a husband. He has his eye on the Allison fortune and makes quick progress, courting Julia with all the gallantry of the Middle Ages. Gordon Gilbert is his partner in the scheme to win Julia's fortune. He plans to compromise Molly. He takes her to the country for an auto ride and feigning a breakdown invites her to remain at a roadhouse over night. Molly escapes and starts back home, a distance of twenty miles. Molly's story is not believed by her father and he refuses to listen to her. She accidentally meets the Count and tells him that she is not related to the Allisons and that her mother was an Indian squaw. A burglar robs the Allison home, taking Julia's valuable pearl necklace. Molly discovers the robber, follows him and unmasks the bogus Count and his assistant. Molly elopes with her sweetheart, Billy Wilcox, while Julia thanks her stars that she had a sister like Molly.

At the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week, Margarita Fischer in "Molly Go Get 'Em."

Mary Anderson and Alfred Whitman in "When Men Are Tempted"—Adams Story

(Vitagraph Five Reel Production)

Mary Anderson and Alfred Whitman, who have been seen in some of Vitagraph's best features produced at its Western studios, are seen in the screen version of one of Frederick Upham Adams, most popular and widely read stories, "When Men Are Tempted." The picture was produced for Vitagraph, under the direction of William Wolbert. It will be shown at the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week. In the supporting cast with Miss Anderson and Mr. Whitman are seen: R. Bradbury, Otto Lederer and S. E. Jennings. The opening scenes are laid in a small country town. The action, in the later reels, is taken to the West, making a combination of straight and Western drama that is seldom excelled. Miss Anderson presents the role of Jessie Garden, living in a small town and in love with John Burt (presented by Mr. Whitman), a rustic individual who has seen little of the world outside. Arthur Morris, a fashionable clubman and broker comes to spend his vacation at the lake near the home of these two, sees Jessie and attempts to force his attentions on her. John, in revenge, attacks Morris, and he (Morris) is accidentally shot. Burt, believing that he has killed Morris, flees to the West, where his father has sent him, telling him the directions to a lost mine. Burt finds the mine, and is made immensely wealthy: He returns, finds Morris' living, manipulates the stock market in such a manner as to break Morris. He marries Jessie.

See this drama on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week. "When Men Are Tempted," with Mary Anderson and Alfred Whitman.

Exhibitors Box Office Reports

TITLE, STAR, AND BRAND	E.	N.	S.	W.	EXHIBITORS' OWN REPORTS OF BOX-OFFICE VALUE
ADOPTED SON, THE (Bushman-Bayne—Met.)	Big	Big	Big	Ave.	"Good picture, no drawing card." "Fair picture, too much Bushman." (For other comments, see issue of Dec. 29.)
ADVENTURES OF CAROL (Madge Evans—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Fair show; did not draw." "Star good, everyone liked it" (E.). "Don't care for child stars."
ALADDIN AND HIS WONDERFUL LAMP (Fox Kiddies—Fox St.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Wonderful production." "Positively great." "Good kids' picture, will not draw the adults."
ALIAS MRS. JESSOP (Emily Stevens—Met.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good show, star not popular." "Very good picture."
ALL FOR A HUSBAND (Virginia Pearson—Fox)					"Not up to Virginia Pearson's standard." "Poorest picture on Fox program in months" (W.). "Rotten picture" (E.). "Good picture." "A very poor grade of picture" (N.). "People did not care for this" (W.). "Good business, but patrons not pleased" (N.).
ANGEL FACTORY (Antonio Moreno—Pathe)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Excellent role for Moreno."
ANTICS OF ANN (Ann Pennington—Para.)	Big	Big	Ave.	Ave.	"Very clever picture" (W.). "Fair picture." "Great—a knockout." (For other comments, see issue of December 29.)
ANYTHING ONCE (Franklyn Farnum—Blue.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Full of action" (N.). "Very good, much like Doug. Fairbanks" (W.).
APPLETREE GIRL, THE (Shirley Mason—K.E.S.E.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Photography good, pleasing picture."
ARMS AND THE GIRL (Billie Burke—Para.)	Ave.	Big	Big	Big	"Very good picture—one that pleased everybody." "Very good—improvement over others." "Good picture but only fair drawing card." "Better than first picture." "Good, pleased all, second day even with first." "Good picture, only fair drawing card." "Very good—improvement over others." "Very good." "Very fine—pleased everybody." "Billie Burke very popular—picture pleased." "Pretty good picture." "Supporting cast not strong enough and war film not popular" (Week run.).
ASHES OF HOPE (Belle Bennett—Tri.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Extra fine." "Jack Livingstone very good." "Very fine—played capacity—pleased all." "Above average—ran two days—business good." "Excellent picture." "Everybody highly pleased." "As good as W. S. Hart."
AUCTION BLOCK, THE (Rex Beach Production—Gold.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Splendid production." "From a box-office standpoint best we have ever played." "Record business—big in spite of zero weather—week run" (N.). "Played in worst weather in years to good business, therefore I consider excellent production" (N.). "Exceptionally good, typical Rex Beach, liked by everybody" (S.). "Great picture, poor photography."
AWAKENING, THE (Montagu Love, Dor. Kelly—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"A good interest-sustaining picture." "Better than average."
BAB'S BURGLAR (Marguerite Clark—Para.)	Big	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"Not as strong as first 'Bab' picture." "Very pleasing star, clever actress, fine comedy." "Good picture, went well first day, not so well second." "Fine comedy, exceptional photography." "Not as good as Bab's Diary." "Stories of the Bab series are not big enough—something lacking." "Very good." "Not as good as most Clark pictures, but appealed particularly to young folks." "Last of series should go over big." "Very, very good."
BABES IN THE WOOD (Fox Kiddies—Fox St.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Fairy tales do not draw." "Good for kids only."
BAB'S MATINEE IDOL (Marguerite Clark—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"Tired of these stories" (S.). "Her poorest picture of the Deb series" (S.). "Big hit with old ladies and flappers, brought many new faces" (W.). "Tired of these stories" (S.). "Her poorest picture of the Bab series." "If Clark is to draw, she must quit the baby stuff" (S.).
BABBLING TONGUES (Ivan Production—St. R.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"One of best acted dramas ever produced, good surprise finish" (S.). "Fine picture." "A very good picture" (S.). "People seemed to like it" (N.).
BABY MINE (Madge Kennedy—Gold.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Business better after the first day." "Great cast and direction." "Very ordinary production, drawn out and too long." "Rain hurt business, but picture great." "Business fair, production excellent; star unknown, but watch her grow." (For other comments, see issue of Dec. 15, 1917.)
BLIND MAN'S LUCK (Mollie King—Pathe)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"As good, if not best, 5-reel feature this house has shown" (N.). "Fine production."
BONDAGE (Dorothy Phillips—Blue.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"This star is getting more popular." "Very fine production." "Bluebird improving remarkably."
BOTTOM OF THE WELL, THE (Evart Overton—Vita.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"A good interest holding picture."
BRANDED SOUL, A (Gladys Brockwell—Fox)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Melo—pleased; elaborate production."
BURGLAR, THE (Carlyle Blackwell—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Splendid picture; stars lack draft." "Good picture, very sad, not kind that will draw." "Stars popular, good story" (N.). "Neglected wife, forget-me-not story, big business" (N.). "Great." "Excellent, but bad ending."
CALENDAR GIRL, THE (Juliette Day—Mut.)	Ave.	Poor	Ave.	Ave.	"Not up to Mutual standard." "A pleasing picture."
CALL OF THE EAST, THE (Sessue Hayakawa—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"Good play, well liked by all." "Very slow, but holds the audience." "A fair picture." (For other comments, see issue of Dec. 29.)
CAMILLE (Theda Bara—Fox)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Seven reel production made it difficult to handle crowds." "The story has been done to death." "Bara's followers liked the picture." "Well liked star." "Big—Bara is great, but story has small appeal" (N.). "Not a good picture for Bara, women like it, though" (W.). "An excellent production, got me money two nights" (N.).
CASSIDY (Dick Rosson—Tri.)	Poor	Poor	Poor	Poor	"Good picture—no name—no star—no business." "Most morbid production—a business killer." "Leading role very well done—fine storm scenes—holds interest—title only chance for improvement." "No attraction." "Just plain rot" (S.). "Good picture, but morbid" (W.). "Rosson's acting overdone, good story" (N.).
CLEVER MRS. CARFAX (Julian Eltinge—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Clever female impersonator; not so good in this one, though they seem to like it" (S.). "Deserved better biz" (W.). "Just a picture, that's all" (E.).
COLD DECK, THE (William S. Hart—Lynch)	Big	Extra	Big	Extra	"A picture that pleased." "He is a good drawing card." "Dandy Hart picture." "Best Hart has done—we think." "Wonderful picture—big money-getter."
COME THROUGH (Herbert Rawlinson—Jewel)	Ave.	Big	Ave.	Big	"Rattling good picture." "Four big days on this." "Did greater business on this than Hart two weeks before" (W.). "Patrons well pleased." "Photography splendid." "Too much footage." "Good picture, pleased all."
CONSCIENCE (Gladys Brockwell—Fox)	Ave.	Big	Ave.	Ave.	"Did not entirely please—too allegorical" (Middle). "Interesting story, and the production end ranks well among the program class—average business" (South). "Fair only." "A very fine picture—only like others before, failed, too allegorical" (W.). "A picture that is hard to take up, unless seen from the beginning." "A good picture of its kind, but allegorical subjects not wanted." "Fine, S. R. O." "Small appeal, but great" (N.). "Excellent picture, poor business."
CORNER GROCER, THE (Madge Evans, Lew Fields—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Star is not a drawing card." "Much too long to please." "A very pleasing picture." "Very good."
CY WHITTAKER'S WARD (Shirley Mason—K.E.S.E.)	Poor	Poor	Poor	Poor	"No drawing power." "Patrons like star, but not story." "Poor—not much to it."
DEAD SHOT BAKER (William Duncan—Vita.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Too much blood and thunder." "We're getting too much Westerns." "Excellent. Western subject." "A good picture, pleased patrons."
DESIRE OF THE MOTH, THE (Ruth Clifford—Blue.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good Western, title misleads fans" "Title not appropriate. Good picture. Monroe Salisbury a comer."
DEVIL DODGER, THE (Roy Stewart—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Type of play that takes well in Arizona." "An extra strong picture. "Not good" (W.). "Good drama, Stewart a second Hart if properly directed."
DORMANT POWER, THE (Ethel Clayton—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave	"Very good picture" (S.). "Star popular, story fair." "Good subject, and star, Clayton a great favorite" (N.). "Good." (For other comments, see issue of Dec. 29.)
DRAFT 258 (Mabel Talliaferro—Met.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Very nice picture for this time" (E.). "A great patriotic picture (N.). "A strong patriotic picture, not quite up to our expectations as a business getter."

TITLE, STAR, AND BRAND	E.	N.	S.	W.	EXHIBITORS' OWN REPORTS OF BOX-OFFICE VALUE
EASY MONEY (Ethel Clayton—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"A pleasing picture; this star is improving" (W.).
ETERNAL MOTHER, THE (Ethel Barrymore—Met.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture, not much drawing power" (N.). "These kind of pictures don't draw." "Good picture, not much drawing power." "Pleasing, good story with moral." "Star not popular."
ETERNAL TEMPTRESS (Lina Cavalieri—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Just a picture—nothing to rave over." "Star does not register, poor picture."
FETTERED WOMAN, THE (Alice Joyce—Vita.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Ordinary picture." "Star not popular." "Program stuff."
FIBBERS, THE (Bryant Washburn—K.E.S.E.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Not up to Skinner." "Star well liked. A few more good pictures will make him a big drawing card." (For other comment, see issue of Dec. 29.)
FIGHTING BACK (William Desmond—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good Western." "Only fair." "Fair picture."
FIGHTING ODDS (Maxine Elliott—Gold.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Poor	"Interesting picture" (N.). "Did not please" (W.). "Fair picture, did not draw." "Goldwyn's poorest thus far." "Picture good, photography kills it." (For other comment, see issue of Dec. 29).
FIREFLY OF TOUGH LUCK (Alma Reubens—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Splendid, will repeat this." "Good Western." "Good Western stuff—what they want." "Routine Western."
FLIRTING WITH DEATH (Herbert Rawlinson—Blue.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture."
FOOLS FOR LUCK (Taylor Holmes—K.E.S.E.)	Ave.	Ave.	Poor	Ave.	"Fair picture." "Patrons clamor for this type" (S.). "Patrons seemed to enjoy themselves with this" (N.).
FOR THE FREEDOM OF THE WORLD (Special—Gold.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Good picture." "Nice production."
FRANCE IN ARMS (Pathe)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Great picture." "Too monotonous."
GAME OF WITS, A (Gail Kane—Mutual)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Best Mutual we have ever played" (S.). "Patrons all satisfied" (N.).
GHOST HOUSE, THE (Pickford-Huff—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Above average in production; Jack Pickford fair in this." "Not up to standard." "Poor business-getter." "Fair picture." "Very good." "Good, patrons pleased." "Good Pickford-Huff picture." "Fair picture." (For previous comments, see issue of Dec. 22, 1719.)
GOOD FOR NOTHING, THE (Blackwell-Greeley—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Average picture" (W.). "Good picture" (S.).
GRELL MYSTERY, THE (Earl Williams—Vita.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Excellent picture." "Best Williams picture in some time—held the interest."
HEART OF EZRA GREER (Frederick Warde—Pathe)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave	"Good picture and cast." "Good."
HER COUNTRY'S CALL (Mary Miles Minter—Mut.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Fair patriotic feature, nothing out of the ordinary." "Very pretty picture—star becoming a favorite." "Fair picture—she always draws well" (Middle). "Good photography—direction poor in spots, some settings not elaborate enough." "Well liked." "Title killed this one" (West). "Patrons tired of war plots." "Poor story, star not popular here." "An appeal to patriotism.
HER HOUR (Kitty Gordon—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good picture." "Average program."
HUNGRY HEART, THE (Pauline Frederick—Para.)	Big	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good." "Picture did not please—climax melodrama of the 10-20-30 type." "Good picture, appealed mostly to women." "Interesting problem play with weak finish." "Very good, average business." "Good picture" (E.). "Average business" (S.). "Pleased fairly well; picture took an awful slump at finish" (W.).
INDISCREET CORINNE (Olive Thomas—Triangle)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Olive Thomas is a comer." "Good, very pleasing picture, star rapidly growing in favor."
JACK AND JILL (Pickford-Huff—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Pickford a young Douglas Fairbanks. Huff also clever. Good picture with plenty of action."
JOHN ERMINE OF YELLOWSTONE (Francis Ford—Butterfly)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good Indian picture." "O. K."
JUDGMENT HOUSE (Stuart Blackton Production—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Only a fair production." "Good high class picture, but it didn't get the business."
KILL-JOY, THE (Mary McAlister—K.E.S.E.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Pleasing, no drawing power; McAlister clever, but the story is absolutely unreasonable, and director on location bad" (W.). "Fair picture" (N.).
LAND OF PROMISE (Billie Burke—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Has the merit of being different, only my patrons did not care for the story."
LIFE'S WHIRLPOOL (Ethel Barrymore—Metro.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Best Barrymore ever appeared in, but did not draw." "Very ordinary." "A good picture—star just fair here." "Photography good, settings good, star good." "Too much misery."
LITTLE PRINCESS, THE (Mary Pickford—Art.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Interests children only; will hurt star unless given a play to interest grown-ups; substituted another picture to finish the week" (E.). "A good picture, but did not draw as most Pickfords do" (W.). "Not up to standard of last two pictures—good entertainment, but lacked the drawing and pleasing qualities of Rebecca of Sunnybrook" (S.). "Did not draw like Rebecca of Sunnybrook, or other late Pickford" (N.). "Poorest Pickford business ever in our history." "Too much of a kid picture, does not draw grown people" (N.). "Star had to carry the whole load—less than average business." "Too much fairy tale story, not a comparison with Sunnybrook Farm or Little American."
LONE WOLF, THE (Brenon Production—Sel.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Excellent." "Return business to capacity." "Going big on second week" (W.). "Extra big entire week." "Swell picture" (N.). "A great picture, and a good drawing card, with plenty of exciting situations." "Could recommend this subject for any theatre."
LOVE DOCTOR, THE (Earl Williams, Vita.)	Big	Big	Ave.	Ave.	"A winner." "Story 'impossible'—star going back as drawing card." "Star draws, picture not up to standard." "Good stuff." "Not up to standard but went big."
MAGDA (Clara Kimball Young—Sel.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave	Ave.	"Started good, but did not hold up." "Business poor in comparison to what she has done" (West). "Splendid" (Middle). "Very poor" (West). "Did not please audience" (W.). "American people want to laugh." "Good picture, but did not get the money" (E.). "Didn't draw—picture fair" (N.) "Very pleasing, but did not draw" (E.). "Picture poor, not a proper vehicle for the star" (N.). "Very good picture."
MAID OF BELGIUM (Alice Brady—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good." "This star always does average business." "Good picture and very pleasing." "Fine, good photography."
MAN TRAP, THE (Herbert Rawlinson—Blue.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Not especially well liked, about 50-50." "Interesting, entertaining, big business." "High class picture."
MANX MAN, THE (Geo. Loane Tucker Production—Gold.)	Ave.	Big	Ave.	Big	"Turned hundreds away first night" (N.). "Very good picture, not so much pulling power" (W.). "Wonderful picture—a little too long" (N.). "Fine picture."
MAN WITHOUT A COUNTRY (Jewel Production)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Great, if publicity is properly handled." "Fine patriotic production that any American audience will like."
MARKED MAN, A (Harry Carey—Blue.)	Ave.	Big	Ave.	Ave	"Good business, fine, pleased."
MARK OF CAIN (Mrs. Castle-A. Moreno—Pathe)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture, excellent photography, beautiful settings, no pulling power" (W).
MISS U. S. A. (June Caprice—Fox)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Well received" (S.). "Military N. G." (N.).
MOLLY ENTANGLED (Vivian Martin—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very nice picture, star well liked" (E.). "Good picture" (W.).
MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY (Petrova—Met.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Petrova's best picture." "Same old stuff." "Nothing extra." "Best Petrova yet." "Splendid picture, did not draw especially." "Went only fair." "Good photography, good settings, good story. Petrova does not draw here" (W.).
MOTH, THE (Norma Talmadge—Sel.)	Ave.	Big	Ave.	Big	"Only fair—fine photography, but draggy." "Excellent picture." "Extra big business." "Star growing in popularity." "Excellent photoplay—star well liked here." "Don't come up to her previous releases." "People well pleased with star and picture. A coming big favorite."
NARROW TRAIL, THE (William S. Hart—Art.)	Extra	Big	Big	Extra	"Excellent picture"(East). "Only fair" (South). "Best Hart up to date." "Pinto pony excellent; caused as much comment as Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" (East). "Star well liked. Remarkable horse" (South). "House record—best Hart to date—big hit here" (West). "Best of its kind" (Middle). "Same old Hart—best drawing star in the business—cannot handle the crowds." "Wonderful Hart picture." "Hundred percent picture." "Hart draws them out."
NEARLY MARRIED (Madge Kennedy—Gold.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Splendid picture, star good, but does not draw." "Splendid high class comedy" (N.). "Not a big drawing card" (S.). "Fine picture, fair business, star not known." "Good picture, but very light" (E.). "Good picture, star doesn't draw."
NORTH OF FIFTY THREE (Dustin Farnum—Fox)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Cave man stuff." "This star draws well." "This type of play very popular here" (North). "Great picture." "Well liked." "Good picture, star well liked, and book very popular."
OUTSIDER, THE (Emmy Wehlen—Met.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Beautiful picture." "Poor title—fair picture." "Star always dr ws." "Good picture."

TITLE, STAR, AND BRAND	E.	N.	S.	W.	EXHIBITORS' OWN REPORTS OF BOX-OFFICE VALUE
ONE SHOT ROSS (Roy Stewart—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good; lots of my patrons like him better than Hart." "Routine Western." "Picture fair; photography extra." "Good picture, but star not well enough known to have much pulling power." "Fine Western, good business" (S.). "Drew good crowds." "Fair Western."
OUTWITTED (Emily Stevens—Metro.)	Big	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"Story unusual—pleased" (E.). "Wonderful picture" (N.). "Exceptionally good feature" (W.). Fine picture, didn't draw" (S.).
OVER THERE (Charles Richman, Alice Q. Nielson—Sel.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good war picture—drew good business at advanced prices."
PAINTED MADONNA, THE (Sonia Markova—Fox)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave	"Good picture, star not known" (N.). "New star—did not draw" (W.).
PARADISE GARDEN (Harold Lockwood—Met.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Good picture, but long." "Star popular, photography fair, fair business." "Star very popular." "Subject excellent, photography delightful, star always draws." "Good story, but peculiar; beautiful scenery." "Very nice picture, Lockwood pretty good individual card." "Some picture—Lockwood gets me as much as Marguerite Clark." "Very good picture, little slow." "Patrons liked this best of all Lockwoods." (For previous comments, see issue of Dec. 22, 1917.)
PEGGY LEADS THE WAY (Mary Miles Minter— (Mut.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very popular star—appealing" (N.). "Fair picture." "Cute star, cute picture—pleased" (W.).
PLEASE HELP EMILY (Ann Murdock—Mut.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Light entertainment." "Not as good as other Empires." "Pleasing comedy drama."
POPPY (Norma Talmadge—Sel.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Above the average production."
PRICE MARK, THE (Dorothy Dalton—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture of its kind. Too suggestive" (Middle). "Picture more for the H.B. (high-brow) than the average. Bad start for this program here" (South). "Good picture, but did not draw." "Very good." "From moral view a little strong." "Entirely too suggestive."
PRINCESS OF PARK ROW (Mildred Manning—Vita.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture." "Good, but stars not known." "Good, Miss Manning excellent."
PRINCESS VIRTUE (Mae Murray—Blue.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very artistic picture." "Liked by some, not by others."
QUEEN X (Edna Goodrich—Mut.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very fair subject, star popular here." "Good picture." "Nothing to waste 5000 feet on" (E.). "Fair picture, star didn't show to advantage."
RASPUTIN, THE BLACK MONK (Montagu Love—World)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Extra big for program picture." "Great film, best World ever made." "Great—went over big." (For other comments, see issue of Dec. 29.)
REACHING FOR THE MOON (Douglas Fairbanks—(Art.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Good picture." "Kind of picture people like to see Fairbanks in, dressed in real clothes." "Decidedly divided opinion among patrons on merits of this—ranging from 'his best' to 'his worst.'"
REDEMPTION (Evelyn Nesbit Thaw—State R.)	Big	Extra	Big	Big	"An exceptionally good picture, well acted, good attendance at raised prices." (For other comment, see issue of Dec. 29.)
RISE OF JENNIE CUSHING (Elsie Ferguson—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good picture; as yet this star does not draw" (N.). "Too suggestive." "Good picture but only fair business."
SCANDAL (Constance Talmadge—Sel.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Splendid subject, beautiful settings, the kind of story the great majority of the fans want" (S.). "Splendid picture and star" (E.). "Fair picture—star is a real light and a comer" (N.). "Clever picture" (N.).
SEA MASTER, THE (William Russell—Mut.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"He is capable of better work." "Star a general favorite." "Not a children's picture." "Good fight picture." "Good—pleased generally" (W.).
SECRET GAME, THE (Sessue Hayakawa—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Great—one of the Jap's best yet" (W.).
SECRET OF THE STORM COUNTRY (Norma Talmadge—Sel.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Good picture; star always draws; best she has done." "Fairly good picture—star deserves better vehicle than this. In my opinion star in 6 months will be biggest box-office attraction in the business" (S.)
SHALL WE FORGIVE HER? (June Elvidge—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Only an average production."
SILENT MAN, THE (Wm. S. Hart—Art.)	Big	Big	Ave.	Big	"History repeats—they are killing off the Westerns" (W.). "Not up to Hart standard" (N.). "Hart pictures seem to all look alike, guns, cowboys, cards, saloons, gambling." "Give Hart a change, like 'Between Men'—dress him up, if only for a reel or two; my patrons say, 'The same old Hart with the same old gun.'"
SIRENS OF THE SEA (Jewel Production)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Patrons liked this" (N.).
SLEEPING MEMORY, A (Emily Stevens—Met.)	Ave.	Ave.	Poor	Ave.	"Very good picture, though too deep and too long" (W.). "Had some walkouts on this; only a fair play" (N.). (For other comment, see issue of Dec. 29.)
SNAP JUDGMENT (William Russell—Mut.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"One of Russell's best."
SOCIETY'S DRIFTWOOD (Grace Cunard—Butterfly)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good" (South).
SON OF HIS FATHER, THE (Charles Ray—Para.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Very good." "Average program picture." "Only average." "Good picture and the kind that pleases." "Kind that pleases all." "Ray more popular each picture" (W.). (For other comment, see issue of Dec. 29.).
SPREADING DAWN (Jane Cowl—Gold.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good picture, business poor." "Good star and story" (W.). "Went very well" (E.). "A very good picture." "Pleasing picture." "Picture well liked by those who saw it—Jane Cowl has no drawing power" (W.). (For other comment, see issue of Dec. 29.)
SQUARE DECEIVER, THE (Harold Lockwood—Met.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Lockwood always draws." "Much better than average." "Good picture."
STAINLESS BARRIER, THE (Triangle Players—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture without a star." "Ordinary." "N. G." "Good title, poor story." "Not a picture to rave over."
SUNSHINE ALLEY (Mae Marsh—Gold.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Fair picture, business bad." "Star never favorite here, production below Goldwyn standard." "Poor story, photography and star weak." "Patrons seemed pleased with this." "Good picture." "Story light, but entertaining, star is great, well liked." "Nothing to picture." "Just a moving picture, that's all." "Star too good for such a poor story." "Some picture." "Good picture." "Pleased, that's all."
THIS IS THE LIFE (George Walsh—Fox)	Ave.	Big	Big	Ave.	"Good comedy drama, star great." "Far superior to Fairbanks." "Star great." "Good picture, practically as good as Fairbanks." (For other ocmments, see issue of Dec. 29.)
THOU SHALT NOT STEAL (Virginia Pearson—Fox)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Too much of a detective drama." "Average feature—director-actor steals show from star." "Fair picture." "Poor picture." "Pleased nine tenths of patrons." "Pleased my audience, a good many said it was Miss Pearson's best." "Excellent picture, but V. P. does not draw here."
TOM SAWYER (Jack Pickford—Para.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Bully picture, had us guessing to handle the crowds." "Excellent—pleased greatly."
TROUBLE BUSTER, THE (Vivian Martin—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Well liked by patrons." "This picture nothing more than 2-reeler; poorest of hers yet, I think." "Good, clean picture, very entertaining." "Only fair." "Extra good."
UNFORESEEN, THE (Olive Tell—Mut.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Star unknown and a fair release." "Story no good."
UP OR DOWN (Geo. Hernandez—Tri.)					"Very poor picture" (N.). "Fair, that's all" (N.). "Fair production" (W.) "Rotten" (W.).
VOICE OF CONSCIENCE, THE (Bushman-Bayne—Met.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"An excellent picture." "This picture is good, I think star is getting better." "Fair picture." "One of the best pictures we have run this season—too much Bushman" (W.).
WAR AND THE WOMAN (Florence Labadie—Pathe)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good photography. Some striking effects." "As a whole too dry for a war picture." "Fair—too imaginary."
WHEN A MAN SEES RED (William Farnum—Fox St.)	Ave.	Big	Ave.	Big	"A very fine picture." "Good picture." "A good picture but it will take a little time to bring back this star." "One great show—star ditto."
WHIP, THE (All star cast—Paragon)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Return engagement almost equalled first showing" (E.). "Sort of picture you can count on almost anyone liking" (S.). "Very big on return" (W.). (For other comment, see issue of Dec. 29.).
WHO GOES THERE? (Harry Morey-Corinne Griffith—Vita.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Not up to standard" (S.). "Star popular, picture fine" (N.). "Stars appear lost—no acting—no punch; always expecting one and don't come" (W.).
WITHIN THE LAW (Joyce-Morey—Vita.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Very big, each day better." "Too long—great show, very interesting." "Picture good, but business slacking." "Alice Joyce is particularly well cast as Mary Turner. The subtitles make a fat part of Aggie Lynch." "A good picture with apparently no drawing power" (local). "Best picture I have seen in a long time." "A box-office record-smasher, everybody highly pleased."
WOMAN GOD FORGOT, THE (Geraldine Farrar—Art.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Most wonderful" (S.). "Remarkable production." "Story slight, costume plays not desirable." "All records broken." "No story, as usual with DeMille production" (W.). "Very fine." "Wonderful production but did not please—costume plays do not get the money." "Elegant, beautiful." "A great picture, well acted and directed, but our public will not stand for a costume picture." (For other comment, see issue of Dec. 22.).

Live News from the Producers

"Empty Pockets" Goes to Distributors

"Empty Pockets," the mystery story by Rupert Hughes, which Herbert Brenon has made into a photoplay, has passed into the hands of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit. Numerous prints have been shipped from the Brenon laboratories on Hudson Heights to the various theatres of the First National Exhibitors throughout the country, and already many principal theatres of the Circuit have run the film.

Florence Short Goes to Ithaca

Miss Florence Short, well known in the picture world through her portrayal of adventuress roles, has left for Ithaca, N. Y., where the Wharton Bros. are producing their new serial, "The Eagle's Eye."

It is said she is not a bit vampirish off the screen and devotes most of her spare time working in the surgical bandage department of the Stage Women's War Relief Committee. Miss Short states that the supply of linen and cotton is running extremely low and she would be glad to have anyone who has old cotton or linen rags to send them to her at her home, 156 West 106th street, New York City, as they will be greatly appreciated and can be used to advantage in the manufacture of bandages. Up to the present writing the league has turned over to the Red Cross many thousands of bandages.

Miss Florence Short

Plays of Power Gain Steadily

Goldwyn President Believes Light and Frivolous Picture Is Due for Slump—Public Mind Is More Serious Than Usual

SAMUEL GOLDFISH, president of the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, is frank to say, in an announcement last week, that he believes the taste of photoplaygoers during the coming year will turn from the light and frivolous to plays of power and meaning.

"There is a decided trend," he said, "toward drama, sturdy, up-standing heart-interest drama. Never before have the people of the whole world been living, feeling and thinking so seriously. Many thought that America's entrance into the war would put a premium on light, frothy comedy as a relief from the war's cares. The experience of the whole industry has shown the very contrary. America is stirred to its depths. America is aroused emotionally as it has not been in half a century. The reflection of this is a tremendous and constantly growing demand for screen entertainment that gives emotional satisfaction, that expresses the stress of the moment—and its optimism. America is ready to meet any problem, any situation, tremendous though it may be and tragic in its potentialities, and America is ready to solve it with confident heroism.

"It is a vital satisfaction to us of the motion picture industry to see the democratic screen so truly a reflector of the nation's mood.

Samuel Goldfish of Goldwyn

"As for more general prophecy, I feel most confident that in a fundamental respect Goldwyn's policy and experience will rule in the industry during the coming year. There will be fewer and better pictures. By this I mean that more and more producers will come to realize that the making of 'quality pictures,' like the making of any other quality product, takes time."

World Decides on Drama Name

After Some Discussion "The Beautiful Mrs. Reynolds" Is Retained as Title of Early Romance Story

IT was announced last week that "The Beautiful Mrs. Reynolds" will be retained as the title of the historical romance of Alexander Hamilton and Aaron Burr to be released in January by World-Pictures Brady-Made. There was some discussion among World executives regarding the advisability of this choice lest it conceal the full identity of the story and characters.

In the final conclusion, however, it was decided to bring out the Hamilton-Burr value by supplying a suitable sub-title in the printing and newspaper advertising, while still holding the attractive main association, which attaches to a renowned woman of beauty such as Mrs. Reynolds, whose fascinations played havoc with the lives of great statesmen of Colonial times.

The story provided by Samuel M. Weller in his scenario follows not only the heart affairs of Hamilton and Burr, but the political struggle between them by which their already bitter rivalry was intensified to the point of extremest hatred. This side of the picture quite naturally necessitated the most careful preparations in pursuit of accuracy, to the end that before the staging of "The Beautiful Mrs. Reynolds" was begun, Mr. Brady had assembled one of the most complete libraries of that period in existence.

Inasmuch as the major portion of the play was laid in old New York, it was essential to conduct a minute search of the ancient book stores and print shops to secure really authoritative data. In addition, the City History Club contributed material of value in the form of maps and literature.

The most important help, however, came with the possession of a copy of Valentine's Manual of the Corporation of the City of New York, dated 1854.

"Sirens of the Sea" Gains Strength

Jewel Productions, Inc., Predict Picture Will Be One of Strongest on the Market—From Throughout World Come Good Reports of Its Popularity

JEWEL PRODUCTIONS, INC., predict that "the picture incomparable," as "Sirens of the Sea" is now known, will prove to be one of the strongest attractions on the market.

Reports from exhibitors throughout the United States, Canada, South America, England and France would indicate that the faith of the producers is warranted.

It is understood that in the foreign field, the beauties of the West Coast "Lorelei" have already almost doubled the business done heretofore in the same territory.

Unusual Advertising

France and South America in particular have been running the United States a close race on flattering comments and it is interesting to note that the Latin-American managers in Buenos Ayres and Rio de Janeiro used some out of the ordinary advertising methods to increase their profits on the production.

In "Rio" one enterprising manager worked a "ballyhoo" of diving girls outside his theatre, while in Buenos Ayres the principal exhibitor had the "stills" enlarged to almost life size. His patrons evidently appreciated his ideas of "high art" for they flocked to the theatre in droves.

In this country, according to a Jewel official, there seems to be no question as to the feature's popularity, even in some of the smaller cities where it played to capacity. In Portland, Oregon, a sworn statement from Sam Sax, manager of the Princess theatre, states that the feature broke all box-office records while similar testimony is said to be in the hands of Jewel officials, which tells of like feats in Los Angeles and Kansas City.

The story, it will be remembered, tells of the adventures of a young Croesus who sighs for new worlds to conquer. While cruising in his yacht he sights a magic isle where girlish sirens clad in seaweed and shells disport on the beach.

Legend in Story

His friend warns him of the legend which all mariners know so well and pictures the probable fate which lies in store for him if he attempts to get better acquainted with the sea maidens.

A Tense Moment in "The Grand Passion," a Jewel Production

The most beautiful of the sirens turns out to be the foundling daughter of the millionaire owner of the island. Jealousy parts the two friends and then things happen. The siren disappears and the despairing hero follows her trail through grottos of the sea, made surpassingly alluring by beautiful diving nymphs. Scenes of fanciful Neptunic splendor flash by on the film. At last the loving hearts are reunited and the Lorelei princess and the modern Croesus sail away to find real happiness in a more modern land.

The picture was made in the grottos and along the shores of Catalina Island under the direction of Allen Holubar. More than one thousand people were employed in the various scenes and it took six months of painstaking, careful work to complete it.

Louise Lovely, who plays the principal siren, is a vision of delight. Never before has she appeared to better advantage or more appealing to the human eye.

Carmel Myers Featured

Carmel Myers makes a graceful and alluring second to Miss Lovely's lead and adds to her laurels by many exciting and pretty aquatic evolutions.

The West Coast was combed for the most attractive girls Holubar could find, and it may be truthfully said that he is a director with good taste. Seldom have so many pretty girls appeared in one picture.

In getting up advertising features for the aid of exhibitors Jewel Productions, Inc., have been lavish in their expenditure. Elaborate booklets with extensive illustrations and a three color cover have been printed in addition to rotogravure heralds. Stills that would attract the attention of the most blase point out the fact that beautiful women abound on the enchanted island, while, one, three, six, twelve and twenty-four sheets allow a wide latitude in the selection of paper.

In addition to this each Jewel zone headquarters has a publicity man who is ready to rush special newspaper and advertising copy to meet any local exhibitor confronted with some out of the ordinary problem.

Advertising cuts to meet all requirements complete the array, while special "ideas" embodied in a publication called "The Treasure Box" show exhibitors how to get the best out of their lobby.

Louise Lovely, a Group of Lovely Sea Sirens and a Few Mere Men Form the excellent Cast Which Makes "Sirens of the Sea" a Surpassingly Interesting Jewel Production

Vitagraph Signs Sergeant Empey

Widely Known War Lecturer Will Appear in Special Feature to Be Called "Over the Top"—Lois Meredith Engaged as Leading Support

SERGEANT ARTHUR GUY EMPEY, author of "Over the Top" and one of the most widely known personalities developed by the war, has signed a contract with Alfred E. Smith, president of the Vitagraph Company, to appear in a big special feature to be called "Over the Top" and will start work at once.

Lois Meredith has been specially engaged to appear with Sergeant Empey and the production will be directed by Albert E. Smith himself, assisted by Wilfrid North and Sergeant Empey.

Served in Trenches

Empey, an American who volunteered for service with the British expeditionary forces in France immediately after the sinking of the Lusitania, served eighteen months in the trenches. He was thrice wounded in battle and won his promotion for bravery in action.

His book, "Over the Top," in six months has been read by more than 2,500,000 people on this side of the Atlantic alone. His publishers declare this to be a record in the book market. The advertising his work has given him since his return to this country is enormous, and his magnetic personality has made him one of the real individuals of the nation. He has collected for the various "smoke" funds more than $50,000. He has been an active worker, by lecture and personal appeal, in behalf of the Red Cross and autographed copies of his book, sold at auction for the benefit of smoke funds and the Red Cross, have brought as high as $2,000.

A new book, called "First Call, or Guideposts to Berlin," is now on the presses of G. P. Putnam & Sons, publishers of "Over the Top," and will be published on January 5.

Smith Puts It Over

The signing of Empey for his appearance in "Over the Top" is considered a distinct accomplishment on the part of President Smith, of the Vitagraph Company. Four other companies previously had made overtures to the sergeant to appear on the screen, but he had persistently refused them. He also has turned down several offers to appear in vaudeville, declaring that he had no desire to make a show of the sufferings which the American soldiers and their allies are undergoing in the cause of civilization. He signed up for the Vitagraph production, he says, "simply in the hope that a motion picture adequately depicting conditions on the other side may serve further to awaken America to a realization of what we are up against."

Immediately upon the signing of the contract Walter W. Irwin, general manager of the Vitagraph distributing organization, wired all of his branch managers as follows:

"Vitagraph has just signed Sergeant Empey, author of 'Over the Top' and most widely advertised and best known hero of the European war. This is the biggest scoop for exhibitors ever obtained in the industry. The sale of Empey's book and the amount of publicity he has received in all newspapers, large and small, are unprecedented. So successful are his lectures that he is sought by every community in the United States and Canada.

Sergeant Guy Empey

Actual Experiences Filmed

"The picture 'Over the Top,' will be a drama but will contain Empey's actual experiences, staged and directed by himself. Work on the production starts January 2."

The screen version of "Over the Top" has been prepared by Robert Gordon Anderson, of the Putnam Company, a very close associate of Sergeant Empey and his publishing adviser. He has woven a love story in between the events which Sergeant Empey's book details and it is declared the story is one of the strongest war documents yet produced. It shows Empey as a machine gunner and bomb thrower and introduces an airplane episode wherein Empey, at the point of a revolver, forces a German flyer to carry him from behind the German lines to those of his own comrades.

Lois Meredith, who plays the heroine, is well known both on the screen and the legitimate stage. Miss Meredith was born in Pittsburgh, but spent the greater part of her life in Belfast, Ireland, being educated there. She was accorded star honors the first year she went on the stage, her work in "Everywoman" winning her such praise that she was immediately selected for leading roles. She played in "Madame Sherry" and followed Laurette Taylor in "Peg o' My Heart" at the Lyric theatre, New York. Her first screen appearance was in the Morosco-Paramount production of "Help Wanted," and subsequently she appeared in "The Woman," a Lasky production; "The Antique Dealer," made by World, and "Sold at Auction" and "The Precious Packet," Pathe plays.

Pathe Sales Manager Issues New Year Notes

F. C. QUIMBY, sales manager of the Pathe Exchange, has issued to the organization a number of brief pointed paragraphs headed "New Year Notes" which give a good idea of what the Pathe executives are aiming at during 1918.

Some of them follow: "Bigger things than ever are ahead for all of us.

"We want you to feel that you are working with us rather than for us.

"Maximum results depend upon the number of exhibitors on our booking sheets.

"The length of the list depends upon the service we give.

"The equipment is our part of the business—the service is yours.

"The primary elements in perfect service are courtesy and consideration.

"These qualities not only mean more customers but better jobs for those that have them.

"Always remember you are a part of a great Institution.

"Be interested in its progress and in its plans for the future.

"Your position is not trivial—you have your definite and important place to fill.

"Your success and Pathe's depend upon how well you fill it.

"Remember what every Big Business Man teaches: The customer is always right.

"He is the man to be considered first, last and all the time—if you really want to consider yourself.

"Your New Year's motto should be: 'Every member of the Pathe family is valuable in accordance with his ability to give perfect service.'

"Best wishes and the Season's greetings to you all."

Winnipeg Censor Bureau Faces Reorganization

Complete reorganization of the provincial motion picture consorship bureau of Winnipeg, together with a change in policy was unofficially intimated at the Parliament buildings. It was stated that an announcement would be made in which many important changes would be foreshadowed.

Wm. Fox Engages Peggy Hyland

Star Will Head Her Own Company, Making One Picture a Week—Scene of Activities in East Studios

Peggy Hyland, One of the More Popular and Brilliant Screen Stars, Has Affixed Her Signature to a William Fox Contract

PEGGY HYLAND, the English actress who has become well known in pictures during the past two years in the United States, has been engaged by William Fox, it was announced last week, and it is understood the producer will star her at the head of her own company, making one picture a week. Productions with Miss Hyland will be released as Special Features, it is said.

For his newest star it is announced that William Fox has secured a suitable subject, the name of which has not been announced. The director who will look after Miss Hyland's features is said to have been chosen, but as yet the Fox offices have not announced his name. The Fox Eastern studios will be used for Miss Hyland's screen productions under the Fox banner.

About eighteen months ago Miss Hyland came to the United States to appear in pictures, and her popularity has grown steadily.

"In Peggy Hyland," reads the announcement from Mr. Fox, "picturegoers found an exceedingly winsome girl—one whose charm lay chiefly in her possession of the unique combination of appealing demureness and an irrepressible spirit of fun and good spirit. We now anticipate an even greater success for Miss Hyland than has been hers in the past."

Some of Miss Hyland's earliest work for the art pantomimic was done with E. H. Sothern. Her characterizations have been cameo-clear because of her vibrant nature and her unfailing geniality. One reviewer defined the Peggy Hyland fascination better than any other, perhaps, when she wrote: "She is some of the paprika of life."

Franklyn Farnum Plays Dual Role

"The Winged Mystery," with its dual role, served Franklyn Farnum so well as a Bluebird attraction, that decision was reached to soon present him in another comedy in which the star will play his own "double." Joseph F. Poland prepared the story and scenario for the forthcoming Bluebird, now in process of construction, under the title of "Breeze Bolton Blows in."

Mr. Farnum will interpret two roles entirely different in nature, one a prize fighter of the "mixed ale" type, and the other a college youth of a retiring and studious disposition. Out of these contrasting natures Director Joseph De Grasse is said to have created the elements of fast-moving and effective comedy. Juanita Hanson, who supported Dorothy Phillips in "Broadway Love," will be Mr. Farnum's leading lady, appearing with him for the first time in "Breeze Bolton Blows In."

King-Bee Waltzes Ready for Press

King-Bee waltzes, composed by Billy West, star of the King-Bee comedies, and which are now ready for publication, will be released Jan. 2, and will be published only in Sunday magazine sections of newspapers throughout the country. They will be given to the newspapers with a guarantee that they are an exclusive set of waltzes that cannot be purchased anywhere, and are dedicated by Mr. West to his admirers.

Any exhibitor desiring to play these waltzes in his theater can do so, it is said, feeling assured that no music tax will be charged. A copy of these waltzes will be sent to any exhibitor upon request to Edward Rosenbaum, Jr., publicity director, King-Bee Corporation, Long Acre Building, New York.

Capellani Judges Pictures by Art

Albert Capellani, who has completed "Daybreak," starring Emily Stevens, which is his initial production under the Metro trade-mark, is a past master of screencraft. He was trained in the old Pathe Company of Paris, France, a pioneer of the art. He was with this concern twelve years, practically during the entire development of the motion picture, from the days of the 300-foot comedies to the ten-reel spectacle.

"You can't make photoplays as you make shoes," declared Capellani recently. "There are too many motion picture factories in America and too few real studios. Producing a motion picture is an art, not a job."

Berst Believes Star Is Essential

In speaking of Pathe's Big Star-Big Story features for 1918 that will begin to be released on January 6, J. A. Berst, vice-president and general manager of Pathe Exchange, Inc., said: "Considerable discussion has taken place on the relative merits of the star system, the big story system, directorial importance, the value of national advertising, and some producers seem to think the public entertains a preference for one or the other of these essentials in their plays. I am of the opinion that all three—star, story, and director—are vital to the success of all features and that adequate advertising is necessary and highly valuable to both producer and exhibitor."

Three Character Men in "The Hopper"

Three of the best known character men in the profession appear in the Triangle feature, "The Hopper," Director Thomas Heffron's latest picture, from the Collier's Weekly story by the same name. They are Walt Whitman, George Hernandez and William V. Mong, so the picture might be termed one showing an all-star cast of character actors. It is a crook play.

"Madam Who?" Shows Secret Service Workings

The great public interest at this time, owing to the war, in the United States Secret Service will no doubt find satisfaction in the first Paralta play in which Bessie Barriscale is presented as a Paralta star, Harold MacGrath's "Madam Who?"

Metro Scenarioist Goes to West Coast

Albert Shelby Le Vino, Metro scenario writer, who has written the continuity of a long list of subjects for the screen, will leave shortly for the firm's Western studios at Hollywood, California, where he will be Western Manager B. A. Rolfe's right hand man in the arranging of stories for pictures starring Viola Dana and Edith Storey.

"The Knife" Gets Scenes in Florida

One of the distinctive features of Alice Brady's new Select production, "The Knife," now being filmed in the Fifty-sixth Street Studio, will be the Southern scenes with which the story opens.

These were taken on the Emerson plantation near Jacksonville, Florida, and embody in architecture and grounds the real atmosphere of the old South.

"The Knife," which was written by Eugene Walter and which was one of last season's Broadway successes, has been adapted for the screen by Charles Maigne. In it Miss Brady plays the role of a pretty Southern girl imbued with all the superstitions of her old negro nurse. In New York her desire to peer into the future leads her to a clairvoyant whose side line is white slaving, and from then on the action moves tensely and rapidly. Miss Brady's leading man, Frank Morgan, appears as the doctor who rescues her and avenges her injuries. Other members of the cast are Johnnie Walker, Anne Cornwall, Helen Lackaye and Myra Brook.

"The Knife" is the third Select Picture to be made by Alice Brady. Miss Brady's latest Select production is "Woman and Wife."

Kenyon Writes Scenarios for Fox

Charles Kenyon, the playwright, has joined the William Fox forces as scenario writer in the Western studios at Los Angeles. Among the plays Mr. Kenyon has written are "Kindling," which appeared at Daly's theatre, New York, in 1912, and "Husband and Wife." He also wrote "The Operator" and "Batting Bill." With Frank Dare he wrote "The Claim."

Mr. Kenyon's first work with the Fox Film Corporation was the writing of the scenario for George Scarborough's story, "Cupid's Round Up," which Tom Mix is using as his first starring vehicle. He is now engaged in writing the scenario for a new work in which Gladys Brockwell will be the star.

Billie Burke Is Making "Eve's Daughter" for Paramount

J. A. Berst, of Pathe, Gathers His Stars About Him For a Leave-Taking When He Starts to the West Coast. In the Party Are Creighton Hale, Antonio Moreno, Gladys Hulette, Fannie Ward, Pearl White, Bessie Love and Frank Keenan

Berst Predicts Great Year

Declares Each Move Pathe Is Making Is Step to Bigger Things—Better Pictures for New Year

J. A. BERST, vice-president and general manager of Pathe Exchange, Inc., immediately following his arrival on the West Coast, where he has gone in accordance with Pathe future plans, revealed to a representative of MOTION PICTURE NEWS his aims for the future and the steps he is taking to assure their realization:

"The year 1918 will be the greatest in the history of Pathe Exchange," he said. "Each move we are making is a step to bigger things. The industry has come to a critical period in its development and Pathe is on the right side of the fence. The quality of Pathe releases all along the line is destined to improve and go on improving and every day I am confronted with new evidence that our policy of giving the best possible films to the exhibitors at prices that will allow them to make a profit on their investment, is the only one that will win out.

"I am now planning the addition of several names to our list of Pathe plays stars and will also probably organize another serial and another comedy producing company. Among the plays which Pathe has bought there are a number of A. H. Woods' biggest hits, such as 'Innocent,' 'For Sale,' 'The Other Woman,' 'Wanted—Jim Bennett' and 'The Power of Money,' each of these being an immensely valuable theatrical property in itself.

"The scenario department has been augmented until it now contains a large number of people who have done big things with the biggest companies, and every department is being made larger and more complete all the time," Mr. Berst continued.

"Gold Rooster plays with Baby Marie Osborne, Gladys Hulette and Creighton Hale will continue better than ever.

"Already we have laid plans for the production of five serials in 1918, including one by Charles Logue and Arthur B. Reeve, authors of 'The Hidden Hand,' with scenario by Bertram Milhauser, who wrote 'The Fatal Ring,' and another founded on Guy de Taramond's famous novel, 'The Mystery of Lucien Delorme.'

"During the year we will have more official war pictures and just as each we have been released in 1917 has been greeted as better than the one that preceded it, I hope and expect that each to come will be a corresponding improvement. This should be the case with the interest of America destined to become more and more centered on the conflict and the sensation caused by 'The German Curse in Russia' at the Strand, is an indication of what to look forward to in this regard."

Finishing Touches Put on "The Rowdy"

The last scenes have been "shot" of Harry Beaumont's latest Selig feature "The Rowdy." The cast is said to be exceptionally good, with Hazel Daly as "The Rowdy," Harry Hilliard and Sidney Aiworth.

Chapin Series Starts Shortly

Paramount Plans to Give Them to Exhibitors Before Lincoln's Birthday—Called "The Son of Democracy"

PARAMOUNT announced this week that the first chapter of "The Son of Democracy," Benjamin Chapin's series of photoplays of early American life, will be released early in February, so that exhibitors showing them can begin the run of these Lincoln stories before Lincoln's birth day, Feb. 12.

The first prints of this series of ten dramas, each of which is a complete story, are soon to be shipped to all Paramount exchanges and Paramount, sure of the entertainment value of these pictures, is urging that all exhibitors see the Chapin productions as soon as possible.

Famous persons, whose judgment is worth while, are said to be heartily recommending "The Son of Democracy."

Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, after attending a private showing in Washington recently, wrote to Mr. Chapin: "It was a real pleasure to see your interpretation of Abraham Lincoln a few days ago in this city. I have long been a student of Lincoln's life and writings, and everything concerning that wonderful man has deep interest for me, as, of course, it has for all of us. I was particularly impressed with the fact that American spells OPPORTUNITY by this presentation of the story of Lincoln's early life. I think his career will forever be a thrilling inspiration to all Americans, particularly to those who make their own way from poverty up to great usefulness. Your interpretation is interesting and illuminating."

This indorsement is especially valuable since it comes from one of the South's most prominent men.

Mrs. William Grant Brown, president of the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs, writes: "The story of Lincoln is worderfully portrayed in 'The Son of Democracy' and it should be an inspiration to every boy and girl who sees it. To the older people it shows the spirit of perseverance, honesty and integrity, which should be engraved in the heart of every true American."

Edna Goodrich, Mutual Film Star

Brenon Makes "False Faces"

Sequel to "Lone Wolf" Will Have Bert Lytell in a Principal Role—Others in the Cast Not Yet Announced

HERBERT BRENON announced last week that within a few days time, when all the finishing touches of "The Passing of the Third Floor Back" will have been applied, he will begin the production of a continuation of the novel by Louis Joseph Vance, called "False Faces," or "The Sequel to the Lone Wolf." As is generally known, Mr. Brenon has already filmed "Lone Wolf."

It is announced that Bert Lytell will again be seen in the role which won for him so high a place. Announcement is not as yet made of the remainder of the cast, though it is more than probable that many of those who took part in the former production will be seen again in their old roles.

"The Lone Wolf" proved that Mr. Brenon was past master in the art of producing melodrama. Although it came out over six months ago, it is still in great demand throughout the country. In the sequel, the action is transferred to the battlefields of Europe. With the war and the war's spectacular setting as a background, it contains many exciting incidents and hairbreadth escapes. The Lone Wolf has forsaken his life of crime, but not his love of adventure. He meets old friends and old enemies, and makes new ones. He becomes entangled in a network of thrilling events.

je
annou

While those who have seen "The Wolf" will, no doubt, be doubly interested in his return, those who are unfamiliar with his previous escapades will have no difficulty in following his career. Louis Joseph Vance has made his continuation a complete sequence, so that it can be thoroughly enjoyed by all, it is claimed.

Vignola Renews Paramount Contract

Robert G. Vignola, who for two and a half years has been one of Famous Players' most successful and artistic directors, has just renewed his contract for a year. Of late, Mr. Vignola has been personal director for Pauline Frederick in almost all of her Paramount pictures. He has displayed an ingenuity and artistic conception of picture drama and an ability to procure remarkably fine results.

Some of the most successful pictures starring Pauline Frederick, which Mr. Vignola directed, include "The Spider," "The Moment Before," "The Love that Lives," "Double-Crossed," "Madame Jealousy" and "The Hungry Heart." Some other pictures, directed by Mr. Vignola recently, were "Seventeen" and "Great Expectations," starring Jack Pickford, and "The Fortunes of Fifi," starring Marguerite Clark.

Frank Lloyd Introduces a Novelty

There are said to be many distinctive touches in "The Kingdom of Love," Jewel Carmen's initial starring production for William Fox, but Director Frank Lloyd, who made the film, has provided, it is said, none more effective than his method of disclosing one of the story's surprises. Miss Carmen has the role of Violet Dale, a dance-hall belle, in an Alaskan gilded palace. Into her life comes her brother, whom she has not seen in twenty years, since both were children romping about together on the floor. Neither recognizes the other. The brother gives Violet a photograph of his mother—her mother—and as the girl recognizes it, the portrait slowly fades out and within the narrow frame she holds in her hands her thoughts are visualized. One sees again, in miniature, the two children playing as they did a score of years before.

The scene is said to be as effective as it is novel, for it explains in a better and a more original fashion than any subtitle could, precisely what brings the tears to Violet Dale's eyes as she gazes at the picture of her mother.

This is but one of the many novelties which Director Lloyd has introduced to pictures.

"Stolen Honor" Completed

"Stolen Honor," starring Virginia Pearson, is announced by the William Fox offices as the newest picture to be completed at the Fox studios in the East. It is Miss Pearson's thirteenth for William Fox, and was directed by Richard Stanton.

Bert Lytell Has Been Cast by Herbert Brenon in a New Picture

"Bunker Bean" Stars Jack Pickford

"His Majesty, Bunker Bean," is announced as the title of the next photoplay for Paramount, starring Jack Pickford, to be released in March. The play is an adaptation of "Bunker Bean," Harry Leon Wilson's novel, and has already been produced on the stage. Louise Huff is cast opposite Pickford.

"The Spirit of '17," Jack Pickford's current Paramount picture, will be released January 14. Several hundred Grand Army veterans are said to be featured in some of the scenes. Scenes of the play were made at the Veterans' Home at Sawtelle, Cal. Headed by a fife and drum corps, a hundred of the veterans, led by Jack Pickford, as a Boy Scout, and "Captain Jerico Norton" of the G. A. R., surround and capture a band of German plotters.

Marguerite Clark Loses No Time

Immediately after the holidays Marguerite Clark will begin a new production for Paramount, according to an announcement just issued. Miss Clark's newest starring vehicle is to be "Prunella," adapted from the play-fantasy of that name.

"The Seven Swans," the current Paramount release starring Miss Clark, has started off on a wave of popularity. This production, the annual fairy-tale picture made for Paramount, seems destined to eclipse all records made by Miss Clark's "Snow White."

Army and Navy Approve Jewel Slogan

Jewel Productions, Inc., believing that optimism is necessary in all branches of the trade, are pushing their battle slogan, "Smiles Help Win the War." All standard publicity matter is stamped with the war motto and it is being helped along by many influential men.

Among the latest to take notice of the movement are Secretary of the Navy Daniels and Secretary of War Baker.

Louise Fazenda Gets a Surprise Attack in "The Kitchen Lady," a Mack Sennett Paramount Comedy

"House of Glass" Is Started

Is Being Produced by Clara Kimball Young and Her Own Company —Emile Chautard Does the Directing

THE filming of the "The House of Glass" was begun last week in the Clara Kimball Young Studios in New Rochelle. This will be the next Select Picture produced by Miss Young and her own company, and follows her most recently completed offering, "The Marionettes." It is being directed by Emile Chautard.

Only a portion of the casting has been accomplished. Corliss Giles, who was Miss Young's leading man in "Shirley Kaye," has been chosen to support her in the present production, and her father, Edward Kimball, whose portrayal of the father in "Magda," attracted widespread approval, has been given a strong part. The role of Burke, the chauffeur-cook, which is one of the most important in the play, had been planned for Nigel Barrie, but his enlistment in the Royal Flying Corps necessitated other arrangements, and the place has not as yet been filled. His wife, Mrs. Nigel Barrie, has been cast as Nellie, the maid.

"The House of Glass" came to Miss Young after spirited bidding from rival film concerns and is considered one of the most important purchases of the year. It is a melodrama, written by Max Marcin.

The screen adaptation has been made by Charles F. Whittaker. This will be the fourth of the Select Star Pictures made by Clara Kimball Young and her own company and when finished will be distributed through Select exchanges.

Clara Kimball Young, Star of Select Pictures

Higher Admissions Made Clear

Jewel Productions Submits Proof That Good Pictures Can Bring Increased Prices as Well as Patronage

THE exhibitor who has been continually declaring that "prices can't be raised without a loss of patronage" will find his arguments refuted by statements made by L. M. Goldstein, secretary of the Woman's National Council of the American Defense Society, according to Jewel Productions, Inc.

Mr. Goldstein, who has been handling the society's interests in the benefit showing of the Jewel production, "The Man Without a Country," has made a close study of motion picture conditions in all parts of the country. He states that from personal observation, he is confident that the public will stand for higher admission prices if the quality of the production is in keeping.

"During the trial bookings of 'The Man Without a Country,'" said Mr. Goldstein, "I have observed that some managers were much averse to meeting our requests for a raise in the price of admission. Many of them contended that an increase in the price of admission would ruin their business. They seemed obsessed with this idea and to demonstrate that they were wrong, we often 'bought out' their houses for one day. Needless to say they regretted later that they did not play on a percentage as the results justified our faith.

"Many of these managers, realizing that what we could do, they could continue to do, are now playing better pictures at higher prices.

"'The Man Without a Country' set a standard which they have tried to follow. We opened up sources of revenue which they did not know existed. We showed them how to get the most out of their usual advertising mediums. We demonstrated that cooperation was the keynote of success.

"We brought about understanding between the press and the manager which has proved to be of lasting benefit to both. We brought people into the theatres who had never before considered the 'movies' seriously"?

Harlem Opera Makes Movie on Stage

The Harlem Opera House, in One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, New York, has announced a novel way of giving aspirants for picture honors a "chance."

It is planned to make a picture from beginning to end on the stage of the theatre at regular performances, the first falling the week of January 7. The next week the completed picture will be exhibited.

R. J. O'Donnell and Sol J. Levoy will supervise the "tests," which, it is understood, are open to all.

Constance Talmadge, Winsome, Petite and With a Charming Personality, Is Fast Making An Enviable Name in Select Pictures

Constance Talmadge Gets Busy on Coast

CONSTANCE TALMADGE, cemedienne star in Select Pictures, who recently returned to Los Angeles after an absence of two years, has commenced work in the Morosco studio on her forthcoming production, "The Shuttle." Rollin Sturgeon is directing Miss Talmadge in this picture.

As in her former stellar releases, "Scandal," "The Honeymoon" and "The Studio Girl," she will be presented by Lewis J. Selznick, and the picture will be distributed by Select Pictures Corporation.

Miss Talmadge's arrival was made the occasion for a welcome to the young screen star. Among those who greeted her were Dorothy Gish from the Griffith studio and Mildred Harris of Bluebird, Mrs. Gish, T. L. Tally, proprietor of the Broadway Theater at Los Angeles; B. E. Loper, branch manager of Select's Los Angeles Exchange; Mrs. Harlan, Mrs. George Seigman, Fred Turner, Bennie Zeidman, Al Cohen, Ed Durling of the Telegraph, Tom Geraghty, Pat Dowling, Paul Conlon and a host of other friends and admirers.

In "The Shuttle" Miss Talmadge portrays a young high-spirited girl of New York's smartest social set, who goes abroad to rescue a sister from an unfortunate matrimonial alliance. While work is proceeding on this latest Constance Talmadge production at the Morosco studio in the West, the cutting and titling of her Select Picture, "The Studio Girl," is rapidly nearing completion in the East.

"Romanoffs" Goes Big in New Jersey

"The Fall of the Romanoffs," Herbert Brenon's picturization of the recent dramatic events in Russia, had its premiere in New Jersey on Christmas Day. Arthur Moore secured this production to celebrate the opening of the Forest Hill theatre in Newark, where it was presented for the first time in that territory.

The opening of "The Fall of the Romanoffs" in Jersey was preceded by a far reaching advertising campaign. Special paper, newspaper advertisements, and illustrated booklets were prepared by Mr. Moore, who reports that his labor was well repaid by the intense interest which has been shown in the picture.

Universal Busy on Features for March

THE production forces at Universal City are busy on features to be distributed in March, following the regular schedule of releases that Universal has announced for the first two months of the year. There are now under way, either at Universal City or on location where adaptable scenery is available, a production directed by Elsie Jane Wilson; another by Edgar Jones, a third attraction by Jack Ford, and a fourth release by Elmer Clifton.

The Jack Ford production will engage Harry Carey as star, with Molly Malone his featured leading lady, in "Lin McLean," from the widely read story of the same title by Owen Wister, author of "The Virginian." Important roles in support of Mr. Carey and Miss Malone will be played by Betty Schade, Edward Jones, Vesta Pegg and M. K. Wilson.

Ella Hall and Emory Johnson are playing the featured roles in "Donna Perfecta," the Spanish story, written by B. Perez Galdos, now being picturized by Elsie Jane Wilson.

Director Edgar Jones has Louise Lovely as his star in "The Quest of Joan," and Herbert Rawlinson is to be the star of "More Power to Him," now being created by Elmer Clifton. Claire Du Brey will be Mr. Rawlinson's leading lady. Philo McCullough is a new leading man for Louise Lovely, appearing with her for the first time in James Oliver Curwood's story. Gertrude Aster and Charles Hill Mailes will also be prominent in Miss Lovely's support.

Vitagraph Presents Hedda Nova in Serial

ALBERT E. SMITH, president of Vitagraph, announces that Hedda Nova, whom he recently put under a long term contract, will make her first Vitagraph appearance in a serial, work upon which began last week. Frank Glendon, heretofore starred in the O. Henry subjects made by Vitagraph, is to be featured opposite Miss Nova.

The serial, which will be in fifteen episodes, was written by President Smith and Cyrus Townsend Brady is called "The Woman in the Web." Mr. Smith promises that it will be one of the most unusual pictures ever made. It is obvious that even an outline of the story cannot be told, for President Smith says that it is a story which takes the players around the world thus giving an opportunity for showing local scenes in Russia, Japan, China, England, France and the United States.

President Smith calls attention to the fact that "The Woman in the Web" will be a serial entirely different in treatment and story from anything which his company has produced. "The Fighting Trail," released last September and "Vengeance—and the Woman," released to exhibitors on Christmas Eve, were both Western pictures with mountains and deserts as their background, but "The Woman in the Web" will be totally unlike these.

Holubar's Company Has Many Accidents

DIRECTOR ALLEN J. HOLUBAR, who recently finished the staging of "The Girl Who Dared" with Dorothy Phillips, the Bluebird star in the title role and William Stowell playing opposite her, is looking for a cast of unbreakable actors for his next production. The people who worked in "The Girl Who Dared" were not durable enough, he declares.

Hardly had he started on the picture when James G. Russell, playing a heavy role, broke several bones in his right foot while staging a fight scene with Lon Chaney, the principal villain of the story. His injury made it impossible for him to go on in the part and the role was given to James Farley, Russell's work of course, going into the discard.

Half way through the picture, in a scrap with Frank Brownlee, Mr. Farley fractured a bone in one of his fingers, but the damage was not severe enough to prevent him from finishing the picture. Priscilla Dean, playing a half-breed girl in the production, had nearly completed her part of the picture when she was called upon to enact a struggle with Mr. Farley. In trying to avoid hurting the actor's broken finger, she tore the nail completely out of one of her fingers.

Lon Chaney sustained a sprained ankle and numerous nicks and skin bruises.

Those who had had no chance to get hurt before, including Miss Phillips herself, were given ample opportunity while the final scenes were being filmed. The dance hall set—one of the largest ever built at the studios—was wrecked in a general melee. The leading lady was struck by a flying chair and rendered unconscious. Fully a dozen of the combatants were quite badly hurt and everyone of the sixty people in the scene were more or less banged up during the collapse.

National Board Passes Petrova Film

"Daughter of Destiny," the first of the eight pictures in which Madame Olga Petrova will star during the new year, has been passed in tote by the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures. The first Petrova picture has been made, according to Petrova's publicity department, the subject of a special report by one of the reviewing committees, the details of which are as follows:

"We wish to advise you that the majority comment on your photoplay, 'Daughter of Destiny,' reviewed by the National Board of Review on December 17, 1917, was as follows: Entertainment value, good; artistic value; dramatic interest of story, good; coherence of narrative, clear; acting, good; costuming, excellent; atmospheric quality of scenic setting, good; historic value, good; moral effect, good.

"General comment:—In this romance of the present war, Madame Petrova, as an American woman enmeshed in the intrigue of foreign powers, first gains the sympathy, then the interest and lastly fires the patriotism of her audience."

Fannie Ward, John Miltern and Armand Kalitz Are Chief Players of Pathe's "Innocent," Starring Miss Ward

Pathe Completes "Innocent"

Fannie Ward Is Star of the Production, Her First Under This Banner—Release Date Not Yet Announced

THE first Pathe feature in which Fannie Ward will be starred has been completed and is now in the process of being titled, and an announcement is expected to be made later of the date on which the feature will be released.

Miss Ward's first appearance in Pathe's "Big Star—Big Story" features will bear the title of "Innocent" after the Al H. Woods play from which the production was made. She will be supported by John Miltern, playing the same role that he created in the stage production, and Armand Kalitz, a well known artist on the speaking stage. According to advance information this subject is one of the most colorful plays ever produced for screen presentation.

It is said by Pathe that more than twice as much money has been spent as is usually put into high grade five-reel features, in order to give Director George Fitzmaurice every opportunity to instil the utmost truth in the color and atmosphere of the Orient which he knows so well. It is said that a remarkably high grade of photography has been secured and that the lighting effects have been so skilfully blended that pictorially this feature will be classed as a camera study.

The story of "Innocent" begins and ends in China, and George Fitzmaurice, under whose direction the production was staged, has transferred to the screen, it is said, all the fascinating lure of the Orient. Miss Ward in the title role is seen as a young girl brought up within the confines of a high-walled Chinese garden. The death of her father leaves her dependent upon the protection of her father's friend, played by John Miltern.

War Brings No Change in Film Length

CONSIDERABLE discussion has been aroused regarding the lengths of future photoplays as a result of the war tax on film. The supposition that regular productions would be shortened in length does not seem to be prevalent among the big distributors such as the Artcraft Pictures Corporation.

In this connection, Walter E. Greene, president of that concern, last week said: "The war tax will not bring about any noticeable change in the length of the future photoplay. A feature production that demands five or six reels could not be shown in three reels with the same result, no more than the three act drama could be presented as effectively in a vaudeville sketch.

"The five and six reel photoplay is an institution just as the three act drama is. There would be no saving in presenting shorter pictures inasmuch as the public demands a show of a certain length. If the pictures were made shorter the exhibitor would have to get more pictures to make up his show and this of course would mean that there would be no saving on the total footage.

"On the other hand, however, the war tax should discourage the padding of a production that should take no more than six reels, and making it into a longer film in order to get a big rental for it. It should not effect the person who has a subject that really warrants more than six reels. There will be films of such length from time to time and if they really justify an advance in the usual admission price schedule they should prove successful."

"Daughter of Destiny" Wins

Petrova Considers Unusual Faith Placed in Her Fully Justified—Newest Picture Proves Her Unusual Artistry

FULLY justifying the faith placed in the artistry and drawing powers of Madame Olga Petrova by Frederick L. Collins, president of the recently organized famous player's own picture organization and the members of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit, who will release the eight pictures in which Madame Petrova will be seen during the forthcoming year, are the results considered achieved by the showing of "Daughter of Destiny." The first production presenting the emotional artiste through the medium of the Petrova Picture Company has created, it is said, a furore among the exhibitors of the United States and has been hailed by all who have thus far seen it as one of the best screen dramas in which Madame Petrova has appeared since her screen debut.

Among the many congratulatory letters and telegrams said to have been received at the office of the Petrova Picture Company and the First National Exhibitors' Circuit from exhibitors and public, the following has been announced as indicative of the work of the star under her own banner: "Spontaneous outburst of enthusiasm marked our trade screening of 'Daughter of Destiny' to representative number of Ohio exhibitors. United comment is that this is Olga Petrova's greatest picture and one truly worthy of her artistry. Picture was adjudged perfect in production and technique. Sets beautiful. Believe box-office value will be accordingly high. Expect thoroughly satisfactory results in bookings. First National Exhibitors' Circuit Company of Cleveland, Ohio."

Another reads: "If coming productions measure up to standard of this picture, Petrova is valuable link in Exhibitors' Circuit chain. Audience, exhibitors and press critics delighted and praise picture highly. H. T. Nolan, First National Exhibitors' Circuit Company of Denver, Colorado."

Cecil B. DeMille Favors Star System

Cecil B. DeMille, Artcraft Director

WHEN "The Whispering Chorus," the first of the series of super-photoplays Cecil B. DeMille will produce for Artcraft, was announced, considerable interest was evidenced in the fact that there would be no individual star featured in this picture. This, however, according to a statement from Mr. DeMille, is no indication that he is in favor of a movement to do away with motion picture stars. In view of the fact that such screen artists as Kathlyn Williams, Raymond Hatton and Elliott Dexter appear in this play, it might be termed an "all-star" production. Nevertheless, the subject itself will be featured, rather than the individuality of the players.

In making himself clear on this point, Mr. DeMille said: "When Mr. Griffith staged 'The Birth of a Nation' he did not feature Henry Walthall, he featured 'The Birth of a Nation'; it will be the same way with 'The Whispering Chorus.'

"This cinema will be an example of a photoplay, which, instead of starring a player, stars the production itself. It is one of those stories which embodies, largely, outstanding characters and only such pictures justify a non-star production. The character of this particular play is such that unusually strong roles are given to several players of all-star caliber; these are Kathlyn Williams, Raymond Hatton and Elliott Dexter. Several other players will have prominent parts in the production, among them James Neill, Edythe Chapman and others who have earned considerable reputation for themselves through many years of work on the stage and screen."

Real Incidents Supply Brown Humor

According to the newest announcement from the offices of General Film Company, some of the richest and most wholesome humor uncovered in many a day has been translated upon the screen in "The Chocolate of the Gang," the second of General Film Company's "Judge Brown Stories of Youth." Unlike "Bud's Recruit," the first release in this series of stories of boy life, "The Chocolate of the Gang" is based upon real incidents taken from Judge Brown's experiences in juvenile life.

"The Judge Brown Stories" are being produced by the Boy City Film Company, under the supervision of Judge Brown, for twenty-five years a leader in juvenile court work. "The Preacher's Son" will be the third picture in the series.

Monroe Salisbury and Ruth Clifford in Their Latest Bluebird Feature

Petrova Instills Variety Into New Film

The vehicle in which Madame Olga Petrova will make her second appearance as the star of her own picture organization, the title for which has not been announced, offers the Polish artiste, it is said, in a role distinctly different from any in which she has yet been seen. Brimful of what is described as human interest and poignant heart appeal, the story presents Madame Petrova in the role of a young mother, torn between the call of professional duty toward humanity in general, and the urge of "mother-love" for her small son.

Martha Mansfield Joins Lockwood

Harold Lockwood's leading woman in his forthcoming Metro wonderplay, "Broadway Bill," now in course of production under the direction of Fred J. Balshofer, who is also the author of the story, will be Martha Mansfield, Metro announces.

Miss Mansfield's most recent engagement in pictures was as leading woman for Max Linder in the comedies he made in this country. During this engagement she was known under the name of Martha Early. On the stage Miss Manfield was last seen in A. H. Wood's production of "On with the Dance," with John Mason, which played an engagement at the Republic theatre, New York, this Fall. Miss Mansfield played the ingenue role in this production.

Hodkinson Adds to His Mastbaum Reply

In his booklet on "What Shall We Do With the Motion Picture Business?" W. W. Hodkinson has added to his open letter to Stanley Mastbaum a statement of his stand on questions of especial interest to exhibitors. The booklet contains not only Mr. Hodkinson's letter but also the text of Mr. Mastbaum's telegram of November 26. It is put up in very readable form and the points brought out in the Hodkinson open letter are well emphasized with sub-heads and display type. It is being distributed free upon request.

Cincinnati Exhibitors Are Optimistic

JEWEL PRODUCTIONS, INC., in its desire to get first hand information regarding actual trade conditions throughout the country, and in order that it might be supplied with expert testimony, recently sent H. M. Berman, sales manager, on an extended tour.

The first report received at the home office from Mr. Berman tells of conditions in Cincinnati as folows: "I have personally interviewed every large exhibitor in this city and from their conversations I can gladly say that while present conditions are not as good as they would like to see them, they are not a bit worried, because in past years the situation has been exactly the same during the holiday season.

"They claim that their business has not suffered to any great extent on account of the war tax and Mr. Libson in particular states that he is doing as good a business as it is possible for him to do.

"Every exhibitor here seems confident that the first of the year will see a decided increase in their receipts and that 1918 will bring better things. Really they are most optimistic in Cincinnati.

"Messrs. McMahon and Jackson of the Gifts theatre are greatly enthused over the success of their new house. They have been using our productions and spoke very highly of them."

"Blue Bird" Demonstrates Film Advance

"The Blue Bird," which is being picturized by Artcraft, is said to sharply draw attention to the advantages of the screen in the dramatization of big themes, and demonstrates the giant strides which have been made in the art of motion pictures.

The cast is too lengthy to enumerate, all the ordinary matters of life being personified, and girls in symbolical costumes interpret various parts. Eleanor Masters, the model for James Montgomery Flagg, is Milk; Mary Kennedy, Water; Lillian Cooke, Fairy Berylune; Gertrude McCoy, Light; Rose Rolanda, premier dancer in "Over the Top," lead the ballet in symbolical dances, and Lyn Donelson is Night.

Tula Belle and Robin Macdougall are the children who search for the blue bird. Both are well known in picture work. Tula is eight years old and Robin ten. Maurice Tourneur is directing.

"Over There" Creates Much Praise

"Over There," the big war drama being distributed by Select Pictures, has passed the final test of merit. After winning the approval of audiences North, South, East and West, it has apparently captured the commendation of the army. In a letter to J. S. Woody, Select's Northwest general manager, Major Seth W. Ellison, of Fort Flagler, Washington, emphatically places the stamp of his approval on the picture and declares it made a bigger appeal to the men at camp than any photodrama so far shown there.

Olive Thomas Keeps 'Em Guessing in the Triangle Play, "Betty Takes a Hand"

Triangle Studios Keep Busy

Olive Thomas' New Feature Is Completed Coincidental with Desmond Subject—Four Pictures Now Near Completion

TWO pictures, said to be of exceptional merit, both five-reelers, have been completed in the past week, one new subject has been started, four other pictures are in various stages of production and four directors are waiting for new stories in the dramatic department of the Triangle's Culver City studios.

The pictures just completed are "Heiress for a Day," featuring Olive Thomas, and Director Gilbert P. Hamilton's picture, "Captain of His Soul," with an all-star cast including William Desmond, Charles Gunn and Jack Richardson.

Cliff Smith, director of Triangle Western thrillers featuring the cowboy star, Roy Stewart, is more than half through with his latest offering, "Keith of the Border," from Randall Parrish's novel of the same name. A feature of this picture will be a fight between Roy Stewart and Pete Morrison, who engage in a hand-to-hand battle until both fall from exhaustion.

Director Frank Borzage, whose last Triangle offering was "The Gun Woman" featuring Texas Guinan, has begun work on a new subject, the working title of which is "The Work and Its Worth." Included in the cast are William Desmond, Mary Warren, Wilbur Higbee, Mary McIvor, Aaron Edwards, Bill Dyer, Joseph Bennett and Jack Richardson.

Director Thomas Heffron is working with an all-star cast of character men, including William V. Mong, George Hernandez and Walt Whitman, on the crook comedy drama, "The Hopper," from the Collier's Weekly story by the same name. Others in the cast are Peaches Jackson, the child star, Eugene Coery, Lillian West and Irene Hunt. Heffron expects to complete "The Hopper" in another week.

When Director Jack Conway's company takes to the road for location work these days it looks like a wild west circus, for more than a half score of cow-punchers are included in the cast. The working title of this story is "Little Red Decides" and it is the screen adaptation of a magazine story by the same name. Jack Curtis has the leading role. Others in the cast are Walter Perry, Frederick Vroom, Curley Baldwin, Goro Kino, Japanese character actor, and three and one-half-year-old Barbara Connelly, who has the title role of "Little Red."

Directors who are waiting for new subjects and will begin work at once include Raymond Wells, E. Mason Hopper, Jack Dillon and G. P. Hamilton.

Marie Dressler Finishes Her Fourth

Production activities of the Dressler Producing Corporation grow apace in the California sunlight. Word comes from the Hollywood studios of the company that Marie Dressler has completed two more film comedies for Goldwyn release, making a total of four finished and ready for exhibitors. Two of these, "Fired" and "The Scrub-Lady," are already being shown.

Neither of the new comedies has been titled, but it is said that one of them has to do with a subject closely akin to the war and that it has been developed in a manner slightly different from the usual Dressler comedy pattern.

Lou Burstein Likes the West Coast

Lou Burstein, president and general manager of the King-Bee Films Corporation, who has moved to Hollywood to supervise the making of the Billy West King-Bee comedies, has written his associates, Nat H. Spitzer and L. L. Hiller, in New York, that he likes the coast immensely. He has leased a residence there for the period of a year.

Edith Storey Is Surrounded By An Excellent Cast, and Each Detail Is Perfect In Her Newest Metro Photoplay

Edith Storey's Metro Debut Arranged

EDITH STOREY, who affixed her name to a Metro contract several months ago, makes her debut under the parrot trademark in "The Eyes of Mystery," it was announced last week. Tod Browning directed the production from the scenario of June Mathis, which was based on the story, "The House in the Mist," by Octavus Roy Cohan and J. U. Giesy.

Miss Storey has been appearing in motion pictures for years, being one of the first players to gain stellar prominence. With the exception of one year, when she was loaned to the Melies Company for a series of Western pictures, Miss Storey played for the Vitagraph Company. Among the most notable productions in which she has recently appeared are "The Christian," "The Chains of an Oath," "Captain Alvarez," "Aladdin from Broadway," and "The Captain of the Gray Horse Troop."

In her initial Metro release, Miss Storey plays both a mother and her daughter, first in the fascinating crinolines and powdered hair and later in the mode of the moment. Through the greater part of the picture, the star appears as the daughter, Carma Carmichael, an athletic, outdoor girl. This role affords her boundless opportunities to ride, shoot and swim.

"I feel that my role of Carma Carmichael in my first Metro Picture is distinctly a role for me," said Miss Storey recently. "I prefer a type of role that gives me opportunities to wear 'sport' clothes and to be a real red-blooded girl who rides, shoots and swims."

Fox Uses Nationally Known Stories

THE FOX FILM CORPORATION considers it noteworthy that its last release for the year of 1917 should be "Du Barry," the picturization of the memoirs of the adventuress—a story known to generations of readers.

"During the last year," said a statement from Mr. Fox, "we have been particularly active in adapting for photoplay purposes stories and novels of national or international fame, by authors of the highest repute. Seven of the twelve Standard Pictures which Fox Film Corporation offered in the twelvemonth just elapsed were film versions of some of the most celebrated stories in modern literature.

"I refer to 'Du Barry,' 'The Heart of a Lion,' William Farnum's de luxe production based on Ralph Connor's novel, 'The Doctor'; Robert Louis Stevenson's classic, 'Treasure Island'; Dumas' world-known 'Camille'; the thrilling and appealing Arabian Nights Tale, 'Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp'; 'When a Man Sees Red,' William Farnum's drama visualized from 'The Painted Lady,' Larry Evans' Saturday Evening Post story; and that anonymous, but never-to-be-forgotten tale, 'Jack and the Beanstalk,' which we made the first of the Francis Carpenter-Virginia Lee Corbin series.

"Among the one-a-week, 52-a-year Special Features and super productions may be found an equally impressive array of authors. Outstanding features here are 'The Darling of Paris,' founded on Victor Hugo's 'The Hunchback of Notre Dame'; 'The Scarlet Letter,' from Hawthorne's masterwork; Dickens' immortal 'Tale of Two Cities'; both 'She' and 'Jess' by Rider Haggard, 'Jess' appearing in film form in 'Heart and Soul'; 'American Methods,' adapted from Ohnet's 'The Ironmaster'; the famous 'Babes in the Woods,' and the stirring novel by the Baroness D'Orczy, 'The Scarlet Pimpernel.' There were many more, but these were perhaps the chief stories used.

Van Ronkel Gets Jewel Chicago Berth

I. Van Ronkel, well known throughout the trade as an energetic salesman and a close student of the motion picture industry, has been appointed manager of the Chicago office of Jewel Productions, Inc., it was announced last week.

DeMille Supplies New Beban Pictures

GEORGE BEBAN, Paramount's character star, has started production work on a new photoplay to follow "Jules of the Strong Heart," which will be released January 14. Mr. Beban's new piece is called "One More American," and the story has been supplied by William C. DeMille, author of numerous stage and screen plays, director, and brother of Cecil B. DeMille. William C. DeMille will direct the picture.

In the cast supporting Mr. Beban will be several Lasky favorites, including Jack Holt, Raymond Hatton, Helen Jerome Eddy, Camille Ankewich, who has changed her name to Marcia Manon; Ernest Joy, Signor Buzzi, Hector Dion and May Palmer. Mr. Beban has gathered about him, it is said, a crowd of 300 Italians, who are appearing in scenes taken in a reproduction of the Mulberry Bend section of New York.

In spite of his numerous duties, Mr. Beban had time to visit a Yuletide festival bazar at the Billy Sunday Tabernacle, where he and Douglas Fairbanks auctioned each other's photographs before a crowd of several thousand people. After half an hour of spirited bidding the party ended by Fairbanks buying Beban's picture and Beban purchasing Fairbanks' likeness, thus adding quite an appreciable sum to the object for which it was designed.

Clark Picture Shown in Kansas City

Under the auspices of a daily newspaper of Kansas City Mo., a series of presentations of "The Seven Swans," the Paramount picture starring Marguerite Clark, was given in Kansas City's Convention Hall during Christmas week.

Paramount Pictures Corporation was represented by A. D. Flinton, branch manager, and Carl H. Pierce, who has been on the road in the interests of the company.

Frank Newman, manager of the Royal and Regent theatres, had managerial charge of the details.

Advance Offerings of the Programs

Universal Shows Uncle Sam at Work

Two years ago the Universal released a twelve-reel subject, entitled "Uncle Sam at Work," basing the production on "The American Government," a book by Frederick J. Haskins that explained, in minute detail, the inner workings of every branch of Federal activities.

Universal believes that exhibitors will be interested in a re-issue of "Uncle Sam at Work," and has prepared twelve separate reels, to be released singly, under new titles as applying to the United States at war. These reels will be complete in themselves and may be used as adjuncts to a program, or may be combined into a complete entertainment. It is believed that there will be a patriotic interest in seeing "the wheels turn" in Uncle Sam's marvelous machine of government, and every detail is shown as applying to all departments.

Polly Moran Tames Target Center

"Taming Target Center," the Paramount-Sennett comedy, released December 30, contains a scene played by Polly Moran and a horse that caused, it is said, even the hardy old thrill-comedians of the Sennett plant to gasp. In the course of the story, Miss Moran is called on to clean up the village in her well-known impersonation of Sheriff Nell. Polly proceeds to do it on horseback, indoors and out. She rides her steed galloping into a studio-set barroom filled with people and trots him upstairs, over a balcony and down stairs again, all in full view of the camera. There is no fake about the stunt. It is genuine from the start; genuine that Miss Moran and three extras were injured by the falling horse during the filming of the scene.

Following "Taming Target Center," Mr. Sennett will release "The Kitchen Lady," featuring Louise Fazenda, and "His Hidden Purpose" with Marie Prevost in the role of a modern September Morn, and Chester Conklin.

"Face Value" on Broadway

The Bluebird picture, "Face Value," with Mae Murray, was the offering of Katherine Russell Bleecker, Manhattan's woman manager, in Carl Laemmle's Broadway theatre, the week of December 30.

Robert Leonard, Miss Murray's director, is responsible for the story, after the scenario by Fred Myton. The cast includes Wheeler Oakman, Casson Fergurson, Mrs. E. Griffith, Clarissa Selwynne and Florence Carpenter.

Elsie Ferguson, a Vision of Grace and Lovliness, in "Rose of the World," an Artcraft Picture

War Figures in New Artcraft

Elsie Ferguson's "Rose of the World" Will Be Followed by William S. Hart's Newest Subject on January 14

THE next release of the Artcraft Pictures Corporation is an Elsie Ferguson photoplay, "Rose of the World," presenting what is said to be a thrilling emotional war drama adapted from the book of the same name by Agnes and Edgerton Castle. This will be Artcraft's first offering for the new year and will be released on January 7.

Supporting Miss Ferguson in "Rose of the World" is perhaps one of the best casts yet given her in films. Wyndham Standing, the screen and stage actor, and a member of the Standing family, portrays the leading part opposite the star. Others in the cast are Percy Marmont, Ethel Martin, June Sloane, Clarence Handysides, Marie Bendetta, Gertrude Le Brant and Sloane De Masber.

The next William S. Hart-Thomas H. Ince production to be released by Artcraft Pictures, on June 14, will be "Wolves of the Rail," an original story by Denison Clift, presenting Hart in the role of a railroad detective. In this photoplay Hart is first seen as Buck Andrade, a daring highwayman, whose gang is feared and dreaded by the officials of a Western railroad. Buck's conversion is effected at the bedside of his dying mother and he gives to his task of reformation all the energy, all the vitality and all of the thoroughness that characterize his career as a "bad man," it is announced.

Vola Dale, the Ince actress, portrays the role of Faith.

The story, by Denison Clift, is heralded as one of the best vehicles yet selected for Bill Hart. "Wolves of the Rail" and several other scripts were recently submitted to Mr. Ince by Mr. Clift, whose literary efforts heretofore were confined to writing for magazines.

Groves' Work Stands Out in "Manx-Man"

Probably no one, according to Goldwyn, who saw "The Manx-Man," will ever forget the appearance of Fred Groves in the picture. His work in the production is considered by Goldwyn to be the height of stalwart simplicity and rugged honesty.

Fred Groves has a long list of screen subjects to his credit, though "The Manx-Man" introduced him to American audiences. In his family are six members of the army and navy, each a married man who when the call came relinquished engagements on the stage and in the administration of motion pictures in London.

Governor Whitman of New York, Albert E. Smith, of Vitagraph, and Director John Robertson Discuss the Forthcoming Patriotic Feature Vitagraph is to Make

Vitagraph Names New Releases

First Blue Ribbon of the Year Is "The Blind Adventure," Followed by "The Wild Strain" and "The Menace"

VITAGRAPH last week announced its releases for the first three weeks of the new year.

The first Blue Ribbon feature to be released in the new year will be "The Blind Adventure" on January 7, featuring Edward Earle and Betty Howe. The play, which was adapted from "The Agony Column," a published serial of Earl Derr Biggers, was produced under the direction of Wesley H. Ruggles, now at Yaphank in training for service in France.

Other Blue Ribbon releases for January are the following: January 14—"The Wild Strain," an adaptation from an original story by George Randolph Chester and Lillian Chester, entitled "The Eighth Great-Grand-Parent." Nell Shipman with Alfred Whitman are featured in the production, which was directed by William Wolbert.

January 21—"The Menace," a melodrama, featuring Corinne Griffith with Evart Overton. It was directed by John Robertson.

January 28—"A Mother's Sin," a melodrama, featuring Earle Williams, produced under the direction of Tom Mills.

Albert E. Smith, president of Vitagraph, in announcing the features on the company's January list, declares that "The Blind Adventure" is one of the most novel screen stories he has ever seen and that it is one of the most gripping mystery dramas [illegible]

Edward Earle, who scored as the American aviator in Vitagraph's drama, "For France," is seen in this production in the role of an adventurous youth with a taste for romance and mystery, who stages a murder for the edification of a girl who wishes to be amused. It is a role that calls for a peculiar admixture of ability, the player being called upon to portray tragedy and comedy alternately, and Mr. Earle is said to have met the demands of the part admirably.

The stars, it is declared, have been surrounded by a particularly strong cast, the players including Eulalie Jensen, Percy Standing, William Bailey, George Wright, Frank Norcross and Gilbert Rooney.

Drews Have January Laughs Ready

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew have produced a quartette of laugh-provokers of one reel each for release by Metro during January, 1918. The comedy team has selected four of their best comedies of the domestic life of the "Henrys" to start the releases of the new year.

"Their Mutual Motor," a story telling the experiences of the Henrys with a second-hand car, which they use as a general excursion vehicle for the entertainment of their friends and their friends' friends, will be released on January 7. The second January release, on the 14th, will be "Why Henry Left Home," which explains the reason for hubby Henry's general dissatisfaction with home surroundings that should have been sublime.

Vitagraph Presents Garland in February

Hamlin Garland, the writer and friend of the American Indian, is represented on the screen again in the February list of Blue Ribbon features announced by Albert E. Smith, president of the Vitagraph Company. Mr. Garland wrote two other features for Vitagraph, "Money Magic" and "The Captain of the Gray Horse Troop," which were released last Spring.

Jaxon Makes New Comedy Series

The Jaxon Comedies are being augmented with a new series of eleven subjects, the first of which will be released on January 18. These screen comedies have proved to be one of the most widely booked comedy series in many months and will be continued indefinitely by the Jaxon Film Corporation, the producers, it is said.

Five of the new series as released by General Film Company will be known as Finn and Haddie Comedies, and will feature Walter Stahl and Billy Ruge, the two premier fun makers of other Jaxon Comedy series. The other subjects will present a number of robust comedy actors who have shown unusual ability. "Out and In," the first Finn and Haddie comedy, will be released January 18. Other Finn and Haddie subjects in the list are "Close Shaves," "In Wrong," "Her Fatal Shot" and "Hash and Horrors." The other subjects are "The Inspector's Wife," "Anybody's Money," "Marooned," "Sherman Was Right," "What Will Happen Next?" and "Which Was Lucky?"

Moreno Enjoys Appearing in "Naulahka"

Antonio Moreno, who, with Doraldina, the exotic dancer, heads the cast of stars that have visualized romantic adventures described by Rudyard Kipling in "The Naulahka," declares that he enjoyed every minute of the time spent in the production of the story.

"As a production," said Mr. Moreno, 'The Naulahka' is the finest picture I have ever appeared in. I have never had the pleasure of seeing so much care taken to make a picture play so artistically perfect, for instead of following the usual custom of going to some particular section of the country and there doing most of the exterior scenes, we went on what was almost a 'Cook's Tour,' to be exact, we worked in five different states making outdoor scenes and the journeys were undertaken in many cases, merely to secure a few feet of film, because these few feet of film were necessary to create the proper illusion of reality."

Triangle Wins Out on Re-Issues

Two Triangle features, in which William S. Hart and Douglas Fairbanks appear, are scheduled by Triangle as January re-issues, it was announced by that company last week.

On January 6, "Between Men," Triangle re-issue starring Hart, will be released. In this production, Hart is cast as Bob White, a Westerner who comes to New York to aid a friend in Wall street.

On January 20, "Reggie Mixes In," one of Fairbanks' pictures produced while he worked under Triangle, will be released.

These two Triangle features will open the 1918 re-issue campaign and one release a month of a Hart and Fairbanks picture will follow.

"Eve's Daughter" Gets Good Cast

What Paramount has announced as an exceptionally strong cast is presented in "Eve's Daughter," Billie Burke's next Paramount picture, which is being directed by James Kirkwood. The story is said to be vivacious, and Paramount asserts great care was taken to select for the supporting roles actors able to carry the tempo set by Miss Burke. The principal parts are interpreted by Thomas Meighan, Lionel Atwill, William Riley Hatch, Florence Flynn, Harriet Ross, Lucille Carney, Mary Navaro and Harry Lee.

Lionel Atwill and Florence Flynn have the same roles they played in the stage production, as presented at the Playhouse, New York. Harry Lee is considered one of the most versatile members of the Famous Players-Lasky stock company, and in the past two years has appeared in fifty-one photoplays.

The chief cameraman assigned to film the scenes in "Eve's Daughter" is L. E. Williams.

Charles Ray Makes "Let's Go"

"Let's Go" will be the title of Charles Ray's fourth Paramount picture, under the personal supervision of Thomas H. Ince. The story is said to be totally unlike what has come to be known as a "typical Ray story," giving this young Paramount star a chance to do acting of a type different from any with which his name has heretofore been associated, according to Paramount.

In "The Hired Man," to be released January 28, Ray, who has come to be recognized by some as the typical American boy, plays a new and somewhat different sort of role from anything he has yet attempted. This is a farmhand on a large New England farm, who is sincerely and deeply in love with the pretty daughter of his "boss." The sacrifices that he is called upon to make for her are many, and he cheerfully gives up every thought of himself for her sake.

Charles Ray, Paramount-Ince Star, Makes Friends with the Collie

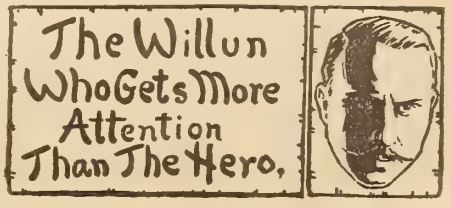
"Stolen Honor," a William Fox Picture Presenting Virginia Pearson, Promises Many Breathless Moments

January Brings Six Fox Films

Three Are Special Features, the First Being "Stolen Honor," with Virginia Pearson—Tom Mix In a Drama

FIVE releases for January have thus far been announced by the Fox Film Corporation, with the certainty of at least one more being added to the list.

Three of these releases, and a fourth to come, are Fox special features. The first, January 6, is "Stolen Honor," in which Miss Virginia Pearson is starred. This involves the theft of a painting in Italy and the smuggling of it into this country.



Tom Mix, whose activities heretofore have been confined to comedies, will make his debut January 13 as a star in Western dramas. "Cupid's Round Up," in which he will be seen, is reported to be a stirring story of ranch life, involving cattle rustling by a band of which a woman is the head and numerous battles between cowboys.

Madame Sonia Markova will make her second appearance as a star this month, her release, "A Heart's Revenge," being on the calendar of special features for January 20. Madame Markova takes the part of a Russian girl who is loved both by a Russian nobleman and an officer of the United States navy.

Announcement has not been made of the Fox special feature for January 27, the understanding being that if the "Jack Spurlock—Prodigal" story, now being made in the East by George Walsh under the direction of Carl Harbaugh, can be finished in time it will be set down for that date. The probabilities, however, are said to be that this picture, based on the book of the same name by George Horace Lorimer, editor of the Saturday Evening Post, will not be ready before February The production is to be given exclusively, and at regular rates, to exhibitors who are under contract at the time of its release for Fox 52-a-year pictures.

No statement has been made of releases of Standard Pictures during January, although it is reported at the Fox offices that there may be important announcements to be made later.

The month's program includes two Fox-Lehrman Sunshine Comedies, "Shadows of Her Pest" and "Are Married Policemen Safe?" The first of these will be released January 6, and the other January 13.

Olive Thomas Takes a Hand

Triangle Stars Her with Charles Gunn, Week of January 6, Followed by Jack Richardson's Latest Production

TRIANGLE DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION announced last week that a comedy-drama featuring Olive Thomas, formerly of the "Ziegfeld Follies," will open the Triangle program for the New Year, on January 6, and Jack Richardson, in "Man Above the Law," a dramatic story of the Navajo Indian country is scheduled to follow.

For the first part of the week, Olive Thomas with Charles Gunn, will appear in "Betty Takes a Hand," described as a pleasantly humorous, fast moving story written by Katherine Kavanaugh. The story deals with a girl who learns from her father that he had been swindled out of a mine by James Bartlett, now a wealthy politician of Los Angeles.

For the second release of the week, Jack Richardson will appear in "Man Above the Law," with Claire McDowell and Josie Sedgwick supporting. This is a story of a man who leaves the civilized world in disgust because of an unlucky love affair and an even more unlucky brush with religion and law.

In "His Punctured Romance," the Keystone comedy, also scheduled for release January 6, William Franey appears as a "bunko" wrestler who offers $250 to anyone who can throw him. By having a man underneath the stage, armed with a hat pin and by the simple process of pounding the floor, Franey usually puts his opponent out. But when he lands in one town, Franey gets his signals mixed and he is chased all over the village when the populace discovers his game.

"Matrimonial Breaker" and "His Day of Doom," one-reel Triangle Komedies will complete the week's releases.

"Molly Go Get 'Em" Released

Margarita Fischer Is Star of the Mutual Comedy-Drama January 7—Gorgeous Array of Feminine Apparel

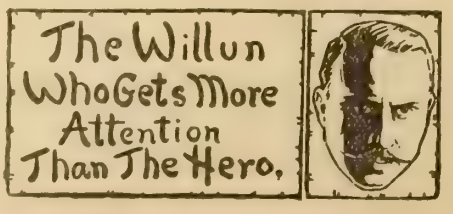
IT was announced last week that the next American-Mutual release is "Molly Go Get 'Em," on January 7, with Margarita Fischer in what is said to be an exciting and unusual role. Lloyd Ingraham directed the picture, which is said to be mostly comedy, along original lines.

Miss Fischer convinces a bogus count that she is the daughter of an Indian squaw, and the inheritor of a tendency to throw aboriginal fits on the least provocation. The "Count" has his pecuniary eye on the money-bags and other valuable assets of her father, but his plans are frustrated by the irrepressible Margaret, who catches him red-handed with the family jewels in his possession and conducts him to her father at the point of a rather nervous pistol in an unsteady hand.

The steady and consistent growth in public favor of the Margarita Fischer productions has created a vogue for this little cut-up of the screen, and the very favorable reports from exhibitors who have booked the previous Fischer pictures, such as "The Girl Who Couldn't Grow Up," "Miss Jackie of the Army," etc., augur well for the forthcoming release of the latest Fischer comedy.

The consensus of opinion of the exhibitor is expressed in the terse report from J. J. Chrissis, of the Queen and Isis theatre, Chicago, on "The Girl Who Couldn't Grow Up." Mr. Chrissis writes: "Splendid. Was well liked and brought good business."

H. C. Miller, of the Boston and Alcazar theatres, Chicago, reports on "Miss Jackie of the Army": "A very clever comedy drama."



"Mary 'Gusta" Stars Vivian Martin

FOR Vivian Martin's next Paramount picture there has been assembled a cast that Paramount considers would do justice to any feature picture. Two of the principal parts are Captain Shad Gould and Zoeth Hamilton, and these are played by Theodore Roberts and James Neill.

Under a make-up of apparent gruffness Captain Shad hides an exceedingly tender heart. Uncle Zoeth is more demonstrative of his affection for Mary 'Gusta, but both of these old men, in their guardianship of the strange little personage who has entered so largely into their lives, and Mary 'Gusta herself, in her "motherly" care of her guardians, stand out as a charming group, it is said.

Harrison Ford is cast as the young leading man, Crawford Smith, son of the absconding partner. Vivian Martin and Harrison Ford, as screen lovers, will be remembered from "Molly Entangled," in which Miss Martin was the vivacious Molly Shawn, and Ford, her good-natured Irish sweetheart, Barney Malone.

Jane Wolff appears in the cast as Mrs. Young, and Helen Gillmore as Mrs. Hobbs, the housekeeper from whom Mary 'Gusta is rescued by Uncle Shad and Uncle Zoeth. Richard Cummings plays the role of Rastus Young, Bert Hadley appears as Edgar, while John Burton is cast as Judge Baxter.

Gould Estate in "Gates of Gladness"

MANY of the scenes of "Gates of Gladness," a new World-Picture Brady-Made for release at the end of January, were photographed upon the estate of George Gould. The Gould place is named Georgian Court, and its picturesque beauties are backgrounds for what are said to be the stirring episodes of this play.

The story of the new World-Picture coils around two brothers who are both in love with the same girl. The younger brother marries the girl and is disowned by the father, who afterward dies leaving his fortune to the elder son. The younger has a hard time of it trying to earn a living as an artist, but his little daughter, played by Madge Evans, ultimately brings the estranged brothers together, although she is shot and very nearly killed in the process.

It was for the home of the rich brother that the Gould estate was utilized. One of the "shots" takes in a birdseye view of the most ornamental section of the grounds. Another situation represents moonlight in a grove of tall, slender trees, with a midnight marauder threading his way among the trunks as he stealthily approaches the mansion to "break in and steal," as the Scriptures put it.

Featured with little Miss Evans in this screen play will be George MacQuarrie, who has played many roles in World-Pictures. Also in the cast are Gerda Holmes, Mrs. Stuart Robson, Baby Joan, Niles Welch and Rosina Henley.

"Ruggles" Rides on Real Merry-Go-Round

GEORGE K. SPOOR, to inject more than the usual amount of realism into "Ruggles of Red Gap," starring Taylor Holmes, imported a genuine merry-go-round into his studios.

Preparations for the release of this George K. Spoor special are now being completed. The advertising end of the production has been given unlimited consideration, the chief feature of which is to be a billboard campaign, Mr. Spoor's policy to help exhibitors on all of his ultra features.

"Uneasy Money," also featuring Taylor Holmes, is an adaptation of the story by the same name that appeared in the Saturday Evening Post, and is to be the first of Mr. Spoor's special releases. "Uneasy Money" shows the comedian in the role of an English lord in America.

"Men Who Have Made Love to Me," featuring Mary MacLane, the authoress, is already said to be receiving quizzes from exhibitors representing all parts of the country.

Love Causes Laughs

Essanay's comedy General Film release for January 5 is announced as "He Loved Her So," said to be a lively, scampering affair, in which a suspicious husband gets into a thrilling and laughable mess over his jealousy.

Mabel Normand Had Diversified Support in Filming "Mickey," Under Mack Sennett's Direction. The Western Import Company Controls the Releasing Rights

"Auction Block" Draws Good Reviews

Goldwyn announced last week that reviews in favor of Rex Beach's picture, "The Auction Block," released by Goldwyn, continue to come into the home offices of that corporation.

The reception of "The Auction Block" in the smaller cities is recorded by a critic of Tulsa (Okla.), as a demonstration that every now and then a picture appears which is so strong in its drawing power and its ability to satisfy an audience that the customary two-days' showing is inadequate. "Extraordinary in every way is 'The Auction Block,' which opened at the Majestic yesterday for a two days' run—all too brief for a picture of its rare merit. It ought to stay at least four days, for every lover of great art in moving pictures should have an opportunity to see it. Unfortunately, this is its last day, and believe me, if you are any kind of a film fan you'll see it before it gets away."

Jewel Meets Exhibitors Half-Way

Extensive advertising announcements indicate that Jewel Productions, Inc., is making a strenuous effort to meet the exhibitor more than half-way. Jewel Productions are now available to exhibitors under the most equitable arrangements.

In speaking of the new marketing system, a Jewel official said: "It seems to me now that we are starting the new year, the exhibitor can find much of practical interest and financial comfort in the terms under which Jewels may now be secured. Jewel Productions may be booked when the exhibitor likes and where he likes. No contract tying him up for 52 weeks is required. No big deposits are necessary. He does not have to accept a mediocre picture in order to get the best ones; for all Jewels have stood the test and any particular one which strikes his fancy can be secured without him binding himself to take the others."

"Mickey" To Top Them All, Says Western

"MICKEY," the Mack Sennett production, featuring Mabel Normand, which was more than two years under production and is now being distributed by the Western Import Company, will take its place at the top of comedy productions, says an official of the company who is most optimistic over its future.

"We honestly think this will be one of the most appealing pictures ever shown," said he. "It has the intimate touch that the public wants. Many, otherwise charming and wonderful pictures, have failed because the locale of the story was too remote. People don't want to hear or see stories that happened back somewhere in the mists of the past. They want stories about the litle girl who lives next door—they want something with a direct personal appeal.

"'Mickey' has the dash and zest of the youth in it—the simplicity, frankness and verve of early twenty. What impresses us particularly about 'Mickey' is that it stands re-telling. We have seen it many times, yet are always glad to see it again.

"Experience has taught us a number of things about picture-making and marketing of pictures, and we feel quite confident that 'Mickey' will top them all.

"A lot of time has been used in the production of 'Mickey,' and it has also cost a lot of money. It could have been made in half the time and a fraction of the expense, but Mack Sennett and Miss Normand were determined when they said good-bye to 'Mickey' and sent her out into the world, the play should be as nearly perfect as human effort could make it.

"The making of this great multiple-reel drama was a terrific strain upon all concerned, but the completed production, as it stands now, is the greatest endorsement of the director, the star and the support, that has ever been given to anyone in picture filmdom. Western Import Company will release 'Mickey' on the state rights market."

Madame Petrova Outlines Special Plans

IN "Daughter of Destiny," the first of a series of eight special feature film subjects which will present Madame Olga Petrova under the standard of her own screen organization during the forthcoming year, the actress essays the type of role which it has long been her wish to portray, according to her company's latest announcement. The opportunity afforded to carry out her own ideas by the recent formation of the Petrova Picture Company has apparently been quickly taken advantage of by the star in her initial release, which was shown at the Rialto last week.

Speaking recently on the subject, Madame Petrova said: "When I signed this new contract with Frederick L. Collins, it was with the hope of accomplishing three things. In the first place, I want to make high class dramatic pictures that will please the public, so that, secondly, if the public is pleased, I can repay my backers who have had such faith in me. Then, thirdly, I want to put a feminist note into my pictures, as I am a great believer in women and everything that tends to her advancement and development. Of course, I intend to do this in such a way that will not interfere at all with the value of my pictures as entertainment. They are by no means to be regarded as propaganda."

You are not going to war. The men who are need all the comforts you can give them. Help them get cigarettes. That is your patriotic duty. If you aren't helping in the "smokes" campaign, get busy—now. Don't be a slacker!

Pathe Releases Toto Comedy

Ex-Clown of Hippodrome Announced for January 13, Along with "The German Curse in Russia," a War Picture

WHAT is characterized as one of the greatest war pictures yet seen in this country, and the first of the two-reel Toto comedies are the features of Pathe's program for the week of January 13.

"The German Curse in Russia" as photographed by Donald C. Thompson, the war photographer and staff camera correspondent of Leslie's Weekly, as official distributor of French and British war pictures. Pathe has added to their record in getting the animated documents of the conflict before the American public, by securing this film of Russia in revolt taken by the young Kansan, who has been three years in the trenches cranking actual battle scenes.

Doris Kenyon stars in "The Hidden Hand," eighth episode, entitled "The Slide for Life," with Sheldon Lewis, Arline Pretty and Mahlon Hamilton.

There is an issue of the Argus Pictorial, an animated magazine in one reel, produced by Argus Laboratories, which has made considerable of a success already. This is the fifth issue. "Our National Parks" is the title of a one-reel Pathe colored travel picture, dealing with Yellowstone Park, its wonders and oddities.

Toto makes his screen debut in "The Movie Dummy," a two-reel comedy produced by Rolin. It was first announced that he would appear in "A One-Night Stand," but release dates have been changed. The comedy is said to give Toto an unusual opportunity to display his ability in a type of fun-making that is entirely new to the screen. He appears in very large, baggy trousers and coat, as a worker in a factory where dummies are manufactured to be used in making motion pictures. Life is so hard for him that he resolves to become a regular dummy for a day at least and thus he is transported to the Rolin studio in answer to a hurry call and the rest of the time has to act just as a dummy would, apparently having no bones in his body.

Hodkinson Outlines Next Step

Aims at Partnerships with Exhibitors and Groups in Exchange Centers —Called "New Hodkinson Circle"

PARTNERSHIPS with exhibitors and groups of exhibitors in exchange and strategic centers is announced this week as the next step to be taken by W. W. Hodkinson. This is contained in an outline of what is described as the "New Hodkinson Circle."

In his statement Mr. Hodkinson points out that the Motion Picture Plus with all its possibilities for production and also as a guarantee of quality is but one of the forces which he is bringing to bear in the solution of the problems of the hour. He speaks of three other forces which he has already announced: (1) a standard product of high quality represented by Paralta Plays with J. Warren Kerrigan, Bessie Barriscale and Henry B. Walthall; (2) the arrangement for exchange service with the General Film Company; (3) the Motion Picture Plus; (4) business principles represented by a distributing organization without control by producers or exhibitors.

Regarding the exhibitor partnerships, Mr. Hodkinson points out two advantages to the exhibitors; first, a continued service of quality productions which is not dependent upon a franchise or contract, and second, a large share of the distribution profits which he has announced previously.

The next two steps toward the completion of what he describes as the New Circle will be: (1) a tie-up with producers which will free them from the limitations consequent to their assuming the distributing problem, and (2) the support of the public secured by national advertising. This national advertising will be tied to the Motion Picture Plus with "its unmistakable trademark on the screen in shape and size."

"Brown of Harvard" Stars Moore and Daly

IT was announced from the George Kleine Chicago offices last week that negotiations have been completed whereby "Brown of Harvard," William N. Selig's latest production, will be released January 10 on the Perfection Pictures program.

Trade showings of the subject are being run now at all branch offices of the George Kleine System, distributors.

The picture is an adaptation in six parts of the novel and stage drama "Brown of Harvard," and presents a romance of student life at Cambridge.

Hazel "Honey" Daly and Tom Moore are featured as co-stars, the former in the role of Evelyn Ames, a typical daughter of a poor but proud New England family, and the latter as Tom Brown, Harvard student. Miss Daly was the Honey of "Skinner's Dress Suit" and subsequent Skinner pictures. One of Moore's most recent screen appearances was with Mae Marsh in "The Cinderella Man."

Sidney Ainsworth, who took the part of Strickland, the accused murderer in the superfeature, "On Trial," heads the supporting cast in the role of Colton, the unscrupulous gambler. Other members of the extensive cast include Warner Richmond, Walter McGrail, Nancy Winston, Kempton Greene, Alice Gordon, Frank Joyner, Robert Ellis, Lydia Dalzell, Walter Hiers, Arthur Hausman and Johnnie Walker.

"Jack Spurlock" Moves Along Nicely

THE picturization of "Jack Spurlock—Prodigal," written by George Horace Lorimer, is said to be rapidly nearing completion at the Fox studios. Director Carl Harbaugh expects to complete the film within three or four weeks, barring unforeseen delays.

George Walsh, Fox star, featured in the picture, is enthusiastic over the production, declaring it has more life, "pep," interest and thrills than any picture in which he ever worked.

"Director Harbaugh is compelling me to extend myself to the limit in 'Jack Spurlock—Prodigal,'" said Walsh, "and the atmosphere of the entire studio is surcharged with 'pep.' Everybody working with me appears infected with young Spurlock's 'gingery' nature and the result is certain to be not only a worthwhile picture but one that will cause a sensation.

"Mr. Lorimer's story has the punch and the picture also has the 'punch.' The combination punch is certain to make 'Jack Spurlock—Prodigal' the year's success in the comedy-drama field. There's not a dull moment in it—on the contrary there's 'something doing' all the time. I'm enjoying every minute that I'm working in it."

Fairbanks Selects Rosson as Director

As a reward for his loyalty and in recognition of his developed ability, Art Rosson, who has been assisting Allan Dwan, was last week made director by Douglas Fairbanks.

The latter believes in the development of new material, as in the case of Rosson, who served his apprenticeship with Allan Dwan. He staged several pictures that were rehearsed by Dwan at the Eastern Triangle Studio. His first picture will be a Western story by Allan Dwan, who recently completed "A Modern Musketeer." Dwan has great confidence in his former assistant and is personally lending him every assistance.

"O, U-Boat!" Reaches the Screen

Klever Pictures, Inc., released on December 31 a comedy called "Oh, U-Boat!" featuring Victor Moore.

The comedy tells a story about Vic, who hates water so much that he has to be blindfolded before he will take a bath. His wife is a regular mermaid, and at the beach she dives and swims like a fish.

Laughs Linger Long in Selburns

Rollicking, swiftly moving comedy of a novel sort is promised in "Wedding Bells and Lunatics," the forthcoming release in General Film's series of Selburn Comedies, featuring Neal Burns and Gertrude Selby. All sorts of complications are said to result when the heroine is given twenty-four hours in which to get married in order to claim an estate.

Fox Plans More Costly Productions

WINFIELD R. SHEEHAN, general manager of the Fox Film Corporation, predicts that the motion picture industry will have the biggest year in its history during 1918.

"We will have more stars, more directors and more companies than we ever had," said Mr. Sheehan discussing the plans for 1918. "We will spend more money for features than we ever spent before. Our productions will be made on a scale more elaborate than anything ever undertaken in the history of the business.

"The 'Jack Spurlock—Prodigal' deal, which we have just completed with George Horace Lorimer, is an indication of our intention to go the limit in obtaining the right sort of material for our stars. The Saturday Evening Post editor's novel cost us more than any producer ever paid for similar rights.

"We have in hand a number of other much bigger projects—one, for instance, already far enough under way to justify the statement that it will surpass anything of the sort we have ever undertaken. We are demonstrating our faith in the picture by carrying our foreign campaign right into the war area."

Bouquets Still Come to Goldwyn Picture

GOLDWYN'S first production and its latest, "Polly of the Circus" and "The Cinderella Man," both starring Mae Marsh, have received notable critical praise in the last few days, according to a Goldwyn announcement. For good measure there came another bouquet for the Rex Beach picture, "The Auction Block," released as a Goldwyn subject, and which is said to be playing to good business in various sections of the country.

Of "The Cinderella Man," Edward Childs Carpenter's play, a Chicago writer said: "There is a feast in store in 'The Cinderella Man' for the admirers of Mae Marsh. Certainly Miss Marsh, in her role of fairy godmother to the impecunious, good-looking and stubborn young poet in an attic, was never more charming.

Another Chicago paper said: "The Goldwyn Company has made a remarkably good picture out of this Broadway play. There is something so Christmasy about it, too. Exhibitors could do no better than use it for one of their holiday programs."

King-Bee Shows Films to the Trade

The King-Bee Films Corporation scheduled for a trade showing on Jan. 2, at the Miles projection rooms in New York, their latest two-reel comedies, called "The Candy Kid" and "The Slave." Reviewers of the various trade papers were expected to be present.

Considerable interest has been shown, apparently, in the two-reel comedy, "The Slave," through the fact it is to be released without any sub-titles. This is said to be the first time an innovation of this kind has been tried.

Pathe Releases Short Dramas

Series Scheduled to Start January 20 Under Title of "The Price of Folly"—Loew Presents Them

PATHE has completed arrangements to release on January 20, 1918, a series of eight two-reel dramas under the general title of "The Price of Folly."

A prerelease booking has been arranged on the entire series by Marcus Loew for his circuit of theatres in and around New York City, beginning December 30.

"'The Price of Folly' might best be described as a series of two-reel dramas dealing with the general theme of the payment life exacts from humans when they cast aside their better judgment and let folly dictate their course of action, in certain crises, that come to everyone," said a Pathe official.

"The films are replete with dramatic action and deal with situations and events that could happen in the lives of any of the persons in the audiences, which will see them, and similar situations no doubt are arising in many of those lives every day. In other words, they present vital problems of every day life.

"The first of the series to be released is called "The Phantom Fame." It deals with the problem of a young wife who wants to live her own life and have a career apart from her husband. She was young and beautiful and thinks she was fitted for a literary career. An elderly admirer encourages her in this view and the price she pays for her folly is the wreck of her own life and her husband's life, when she brings a just vengeance on the head of the man who lures her from home and husband.

"The story and the scenario are from the pen of Will M. Ritchey."

Bluebird Forces Prepare New Subjects

THE arrangement of the Bluebird program having been completed until week starting February 11, production forces are active in preparing feature attractions in which all of Bluebird's stars are participating. During the past week three fixtures not previously announced have been added to the program: Franklyn Farnum, in "The Fighting Grin," January 28; Violet Mersereau, in "Morgan's Raiders," February 4, and "The Wife He Bought," starring Carmel Myers, February 11.

Mae Murray Is Starred in "Face Value," a Bluebird Picture

Mae Murray's production of "The Eternal Columbine," directed by Robert Leonard from H. Sheridan Bickers' story and scenario, has been completed, and Miss Murray is now employed in filming "The Eleventh Commandment," written for her by F. McGrew Willis.

Two features for Ruth Clifford have been finished by Director Rupert Julian and she is now preparing "The Heart of the Desert," from Honore Willsie's book, under the direction of Wilfred Lucas. The Rupert Julian productions, being finally edited and prepared for release, are "His Wife in Arizona," which arrived at Bluebird headquarters in New York, during the past week, and "The Highest Card," just finished at Seven Oaks, Cal. In all of Miss Clifford's Bluebirds, Monroe Salisbury will be featured as her leading man.

Director Stuart Paton, who has lately taken the screen management of Carmel Myers, has completed "The Green Seal," from Charles Edmund Walk's book, and is now producing "Bona," written and prepared for the screen by Harvey Gates. In "The Green Seal" Ashton Dearholt will be Miss Myers' leading man and in "Bona" Kenneth Harlan will lead the supporting company.

War Films Bring Enemy Aliens to Jail

The importance of Pathe's new war film, "The German Curse in Russia," is said to be shown by events wherever it is being shown.

In New Haven last week Donald C. Thompson, the camera-correspondent who took the picture, stated in a front page interview that all alien enemies and suspects should be locked up at once to prevent the spread of German propaganda here as in Russia.

In New York, Paul Kulikoff was sentenced by Magistrate Ten Eyck to six months for hissing scenes of a film which favored the Allies during its Strand theatre premiere.

Film Specialties

Gaumont-Mutual Plan Better Service

PLANS which have been carefully worked out, according to an announcement made this week, enable the Gaumont Company to promise its patrons an even better news reel in Gaumont-Mutual Weekly for 1918 than before.

The Gaumont Company claims it is able to make this promise because of its facilities for newsgathering. It has co-operative branches in all of the principal countries, and expert news cameramen throughout the entire world. Nineteen hundred and eighteen will be the biggest year of all time. The newspapers state that the Kaiser is planning another bid for peace, but the allied democratic nations will undoubtedly refuse. The Gaumont-Mutual Weekly aims to be a faithful pictorial chronicle of these important historical events as they occur

For three years the Gaumont-Mutual Weekly has continued an unbroken series of numbers, the year 1917 terminating with No. 156. For conveniences, however, it has been decided to start a new series of numbers, and the issue for the first week of the new year will be No. 1.

Universal Distributes Short Reels

Universal has started the distribution of one-reel subjects that are declared to mark a new departure in educational features. Not alone are the subjects said to be enlightening, but they are said to carry an unusual interest to all classes of showgoers. William Finley, superintendent of the Oregon State Fish and Game Commission, who has made an intimate study of the wild creatures which inhabit the sea and air and roam the forests of our land, has created a series of intimate pictures that show the haunts and habits of every species of fish, fowl and beast known to the great Northwest.

The Finley Nature Study Pictures will be released independent of any other Universal subjects and are available as one-reel adjuncts to any entertainment for the reason that being exclusive, they can in no manner conflict with any other form of release. The distribution begins with the current week, through all Universal exchanges throughout the country.

Cameraman Writes from War Front

From "Somewhere in France" there has been received by Jack Cohn, manager of Universal's Animated Weekly, Current Events and Screen Magazine, a letter from one of his former cameramen, Leon H. Caverly, now Quartermaster Sergeant in the U. S. Marine Corps. As he explains in his letter, Mr. Caverly has been appointed official cinematographer for the United States Marine Corps.

Writing of his work he says: "My collection of both movies and stills are growing daily with some very good stuff. Light conditions are very bad as it is pitch dark by three-thirty, and besides it rains and rains and rains with the result that we are knee deep in mud spelled with a capital letter. If 'war is Hell,' as Sherman said, it should be fought in the tropics to carry out the proper idea of heat. Incidentally light conditions would be greatly improved."

Mutual Pictures Navy Activities

In the Mutual Weekly No. 1 for 1918 a great number of scenes at Great Lake, Ill., a training station for navy men, are scheduled, with several shots attendant upon the subject. Among these are John Phillip Sousa and his band of sailors, a sham battle, recruits being presented with comfort kits and bringing in the Christmas tree.

Other subjects show activities in France, at Santa Fe, N. M., Brant Rock, Mass., San Francisco, Fall River, Mass., and other places.

Gaumont Camera Catches Flight

Once more the Gaumont-Mutual Weekly comes forward with pictures which substantiate its claim that its cameramen are never asleep. One of these subjects, which is pictured in the issue which was released on Sunday, December 31, shows the landing in the Presidio, San Francisco, of Katherine Stinson, the daring girl aviator who has set a new American record in flying without stop the 610 miles between San Diego and San Francisco, California.

Another picture in this issue is the training of men-of-war's men at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station. In this subject is shown the famous composer and bandmaster, John Philip Sousa, and his marine band of 300 pieces.

Cohn Proud of Red Cross Pictures

Films of which Jack Cohn is said to be especially proud are those of war scenes obtained for Universal's Animated Weekly from the United States Government, through arrangement with the Red Cross, on the battle front in France and Belgium. They present the dramatic thrill of intense realism and bring the war, and what it means, home to every American. That some of the best cameramen in the country are now at the front is shown by the quality of these pictures.

Pictograph Shows New Type War Dog

Realizing the importance of the dog as an aid in wartime activities, Mrs. Anita M. Baldwin, the daughter of the late "Lucky" Baldwin, of California, and one of America's best-known dog fanciers, has developed a new breed of dogs said to be especially well fitted for service on the battlefield. Her kennels and activities form a unique subject in the one-hundredth release of the Paramount-Bray Pictograph, "the magazine on-the-screen."

The things which these dogs can be trained to do are said to be quite remarkable. The will stand sentry duty with the greatest intelligence and fortitude. As a retriever of wounded soldiers they excel any other breed and their great strength makes them invaluable as draught animals in driving machine guns and ammunition carts.

Rivoli Shows Essanay Scenic

The new series of Essanay scenics distributed by General Film Company has scored another triumph in that "The Great Natural Industries of Canada," the fourth of the series, found a place upon the program of the new Rivoli Theater for the opening week. The scenic was booked through Manager P. H. Bloch of the New York exchange of General Film. "Salmon Fishing in New Brunswick," the first of the series, was shown at the Strand and "The Banff National Park" was shown at the Rialto during the week of December 23.

Pathe Shows War Films of Russia

The Pathe Company has added to its record in getting the animated documents of the conflict before the American public by arranging to present throughout the country the films of Russia in revolt, taken by Donald C. Thompson, the young Kansan who spent three years in the war country.

It will be released on January 13, though it is likely that special presentation will be arranged here and in other cities than New York before that.

Newman Travel Talks in Best Houses

It was announced last week that the thirty travel pictures which E. M. Newman will distribute through Educational Films during this year will be exhibited only in the first-class motion picture theatres in the United States, Canada, Mexico, South America and all of the European countries.

Essanay Scenics Fill Long Want

Essanay's scenic one-reelers, released through General Film, are filling a long-felt want, judging by the booking office reports. They are scenics out of the ordinary, emphasizing the artistic grandeur of the spots photographed, as well as revealing curious and ponderous things to interest the somewhat blase movie-goer.

"Sirens of the Sea"

The Beauty Picture of the Age

Carmel Myers

Louise Lovely

Idling over summer seas, wealthy young Waldron spies on an uncharted Isle, beautiful Lorelei, daughter of its millionaire owner, surrounded by school chums playfully impersonating Sirens. Pursuing them with Royce, his companion, he is led, through the jealousy of Julie, false friend of Lorelei, into a tragic dream life in the grottos undersea, finally escaping to happiness with Lorelei in the world of today.

A spicy cocktail mixed for you by Venus-formed maidens led through six reels of eye-delight by two beautiful Stars of national reputation.

Give your patrons the most startling photographic effects ever achieved, enchanting as a dream. Not weeks but months were consumed in getting the proper lighting for "Sirens of the Sea."

Sirens
of the Sea
-a Jewel
production

As long as men love women, the posters of "Sirens of the Sea" will crowd your Theatre. The female form in all its divinity enhanced by marvelous natural scenery.
Sirens of the Sea
-a Jewel production

A Twentieth Century enchantment for grown-ups, in which Today is merged with Fairyland with thrilling action and consummate art.
Sirens of the Sea
-a Jewel production

Let these Alluring Posters Crowd Your Theatre Too

READY IN FULL COLOR
Three 1-sheets, as shown. Also one 3-sheet, one 6-sheet, one 24-sheet—all different. Also Window Card.

HERALDS. The most exquisite of the scores of beauty-scenes, reproduced in finest rotogravure. Almost as powerful as the great posters.

LOBBY DISPLAYS. Black and white, set of twelve, 8 x 10. Color Gelatine Photos, set of eight, 11x14. One, 22x28.

NEWSPAPER CUTS. Set of twelve, six 1-column, five 2-column, one 3-column.

READY-MADE ADS. Smashing designs and clever copy. Two 1-column and one 3-column. Little giants for their space.

PRESS MATTER. Brilliantly written human-interest stories about Louise Lovely, Carmel Myers and Jack Mulhall. Feature stories of the unique settings.

What Others have Done with these Wonderful Posters You can Do-or Surpass!

These same wonderfully beautiful, alluring posters of the most entrancing picture ever made to charm the senses, furnished in full color, made a town of only 1900 people give up $105 to see "Sirens of the Sea" — an unprecedented average of five and one-half cents per head of population.

FIGURE OUT WHAT YOUR OWN TOWN'S POPULATION WILL PAY YOU ON THIS BASIS. THEN BOOK "SIRENS OF THE SEA" FOR YOUR LONGEST RECORD RUN — NOW — TODAY.

Book through any Jewel Exchange, or the Home Office

JEWEL
PRODUCTIONS, Inc.
1600 Broadway, New York City

CHRISTIAN SOLDIERS

No more popular heroes ever marched across the screen than the boys who for three years have shared danger, suffering, and death with the American Ambulance Units in France. The Photographic Section of the U. S. Signal Corps has been perpetuating their work, and has just sent to this country a fine set of pictures which appear in Hearst-Pathe News No. 103 and in Universal Current Events No. 33. The ruined towns through which they speed, the camouflaged roads where, at any moment a bursting bomb may mean the destruction of the ambulance with its wounded, and their own death, seem in no wise to chill their happy bravery. General Pershing's evident approval of the splendid organization is heartily echoed by the sympathetic spectator.

The News starts off with a lively football scrimmage between army and navy at San Diego. Close-ups show an enthusiastic band of cheerers, and the subject ends with a fine panorama of the navy lads celebrating victory in a triumphal march. Artillery practice at Camp Grant, Illinois, and snow scenes in Massachusetts and New Jersey complete the reel.

Current Events shows the destruction of a four-hundred foot wireless tower at Brant Rock, Mass. There is the never-failing thrill as the lofty structure topples and crashes to earth. A picture one views with mingled emotion is that of German prisoners in Georgia enjoying a baseball game in most delightful surroundings. Would they change places with the prisoners in their own land? Timely and amusing cartoons from three newspapers end the reel on a laugh.

OF VARIED INTEREST

Eclipsed in spectacular interest by the men who are learning the offensive tactics of war, the boys in the Hospital Corps of Uncle Sam's army are nevertheless still faithfully fitting themselves for the important work they may be called on to do. In Universal Screen Magazine No. 53 we see them receiving instruction in bandaging. Then, when the word comes that comrades need help, they search the bushes for the wounded and render such aid as can be given before litter and ambulance carry the patient to the Field Hospital.

"On the face of it," anything as dainty as My Lady's Veil should not be the product of the heavy machines that are shown in this number of the Magazine. But the fine Italian silk threads stand the strain and appear in filmiest weave and latest mode to deck the pretty girls that exhibit them. The subject is of just the right length for theatre purposes, and is made understandable by careful editing.

"Behind the scenes" is always wonderland for even the grown-up and sophisticated. Here we are introduced to the mysteries of the theatre and the devices that produce thunder, the galloping horse, rain on the roof, and the sound of Pat falling downstairs. An excellent opportunity, this, for the enterprising orchestra leader to get in some realistic illustrative work!

Willie Hopkins presents "Some Boys" in animated clay.

WAY FOR THE LADIES

We always suspected that Mr. Jack Cohn of the Universal was a man of vision. So we were gratified but not surprised at noting the space he gives in the Animated Weekly No. 4 to women who are lending novel aid in the work of winning the war. Here is the "Bird Woman," Katharine Stinson, pinning a flag on the aeroplane with which she has recently established a new non-stop record, as a token of her hope that Uncle Sam will adopt her as a regular official flier. Fifteen very active girls in practical garb shovel snow from the Hippodrome roof, not at all dismayed by their distance from the ground. And Mary Pickford, very fetching in braided cap and uniform, marches at the head of the band that invites the boys to recruit for "over there."

It's a changing world we are living in, as the above would indicate. Here are further evidences. Out in Akron, Ohio, the stockholders meeting of the Big Tire Concern is participated in by everyone from the president to the office boy. The smiles and lively interest displayed seem to prove that the plan is working well. And even Mexico is trying to bring herself up to date. Scenes attending the adoption of a new Constitution show delegates from twenty-seven states, and a portion of the national army (the official one!) looking very trim and soldier-like.

The launching of a fine new schooner at Fall River, the first to be built there after an idle interval of forty years; the work of a caterpillar plough on rough lands just reclaimed for war purposes from the salt marshes near San Francisco; and lively scenes in the recent snowstorm, make up a particularly attractive reel.

Short Subjects in Review

By Clara DeLissa Berg

Juvenile League Works for the Children

THE exhibitor who succeeds is the exhibitor who makes his theater a part of the life of his community. In these days of storm and slush the Children's Matinee, that keeps the youngsters off the dirty streets, should add greatly to the popularity of the exhibitor who has the wisdom to initiate it.

An agency that works directly with the theater manager, who is willing to throw open his doors to the children, is the National Motion Picture League, of which Mrs. Adele F. Woodard is president and leading spirit. With headquarters in New York, the league has State chairmen and members all over the country, and numbers on its board of directors such men and women as Owen R. Lovejoy, secretary of the National Child Labor Association; Mrs. E. V. S. Chamberlin, of the National Housewives League; Dr. Gustave Straubenmuller, acting city superintendent of schools in New York, and others of equal prominence.

Unlike many whose efforts for young people are well meaning but impractical, Mrs. Woodard has succeeded in making the league a helpful working instrument for the exhibitor. The league not only publishes monthly bulletins of wholesome and entertaining films suitable for young people, all of which have been viewed and passed by volunteer members of the league, but furnishes a certain number of chaperones for any theater giving matinees made up from the league lists. This last obviates the necessity of having adults accompany the children, the local authorities being always willing to stretch the law under these conditions. In order to insure a good attendance, Mrs. Woodard personally obtained the permission of the Board of Education of New York city to advertise coming matinees in the public schools in the neighborhood of the chosen theater. The work of the league is entirely voluntary, and no fee of any kind is charged the exhibitor for the co-operation it gives.

For the year ending October, 1917, the league has a showing of children's matinees successfully conducted under its auspices all over the country, with attendance running as high as 5,000. In New York city children's matinees were given at nine theaters with an average attendance of 1,000. An exhibitor who has been particularly successful in pleasing large numbers of children with wholesome, entertaining pictures is Mr. Sussman, manager of the Empire Theater in New York. Using the lists of the National Juvenile Motion Picture League and availing himself of its chaperonage, Mr. Sussman has for a year given matinees at which the attendance at times reached 2,000, and never fell below 1,000.

With the holidays over and mothers and teachers free to undertake new plans for the young people, exhibitors can and should interest them in this commendable enterprise. Lists of recommended films and advice on obtaining assistance from local chairmen and authorities will be gladly furnished at the headquarters of the league, 2173 Broadway, New York. C. DEL. B.

Adele F. Woodard Is President of the National Juvenile Motion Picture League

THE WONDERLAND OF CANADA

"Fifty Switzerlands in one" was the verdict of a veteran Alpine climber when he visited Banff National Park in the heart of the Canadian Rockies, chosen by Essanay for the fourth release in its new scenic series (General Film Company).

As a tourist we first visit the beautiful Banff Springs Hotel, from whose porches are splendid views of lake and water, then take tallyho for a wonderland of beauty and grandeur. The photographer has been particularly happy in recording only striking scenes, each a picture in itself. Now it is Mount Rundle, thrusting its bare head nearly ten thousand feet in the air, now Twin Falls, pouring like silver threads over sheer walls of rock. An upland pasture where a little herd of buffalo peacefully graze forms a charming idyl in contrast to panoramas of rugged peaks discerned through drifting cloud. In unity and artistic appeal this number of the series is the finest yet released.

FOR THE YOUNGSTERS

How would you feel if, when you wanted to write, a big, hairy arm came around your shoulders and a formidable paw suggested, more or less gently, that you romp instead? We shouldn't like it, but the little girl playing with "Animal Pets" (Educational Films Corporation), Mr. Ditmars' reelase for the holidays, seems much less afraid of the ourang who comes to share her Christmas festivities than she does of the bunnies who poke their heads over the tops of the Christmas stockings. Perhaps little girls who live with Mr. Ditmars grow to expect the strange and unusual and do not fear it. Anyway, the ourang is really quite human in his manner of emptying his own stockings for Santa Claus goodies.

Other pleasant young creatures who take kindly to gentle treatment are the bear cubs reluctantly left behind by the troops to whom they were given as mascots; Billy Biplane, the goat who travelled four hundred miles in the air; and a funny little monkey who makes away with walnuts, candy, a huge banana, and anything else coming his way, with ill-mannered rapidity.

In the Independent Field

"Live and Let Live," Says W. H.

W. H. Productions Company, in the Field Only Two Months, Has Forged to the Front—Handling Millions of Feet of Film—Representing Recognized Powers

WITH only two months having elapsed since the organization of the W. H. Productions Company, this institution has become an important factor in the distributing branch of the independent field. It is now at the front, controlling millions of feet of film, including comedies, dramas and the Western type.

An official of the company gives the following statement which indicates, in general, the progress this company has made since its organization two months ago:

"The keynote of the success of this company is found in the oft-quoted expression, 'live and let live,'" he said.

"The W. H. Productions Company will now expand its energies and efforts towards making it possible for foreign buyers and distributors to secure pictures and service on a basis that will assure profits to themselves first and an assured profit to all others concerned.

"W. H. Productions Company now control millions of feet of film which have not yet been shown in foreign territories—comedies and dramas in any and every length, in any quantity, including a selection of over one thousand Keystone comedies. This film will be sold at reasonable prices, and credit will be extended to responsible parties. Our motto is: 'Pay when you can. We don't even want you to pay for your films unless you can make money with them.'

"We intend also to go further than this, and will buy any independent productions outside of our own, if you want them, and will supply them to you upon the same terms that you take our own product. Shipments will be made either from New York or from our London connections, the Western Import Company.

"It will pay every responsible foreign buyer to make immediate connections with us, because we have solved the great problem of the industry, 'Live and let live.'

"We represent the Triangle Film Corporation for the entire world, except the United States; the New York Motion Picture Company, the famous Keystone Film Company, the Reliance Film Manufacturing Company, the Majestic Film Company, the K. B. Film Company, and Bronco Film Company for the entire world. A permanent conection with us will mean the worry off your mind and the burdens off your shoulders.

"Our financial connections in New York are the Harriman National Bank, The Bankers Central Trust Co., and the Columbia Bank; in London, the London, City & Midland Bank, and the County of Westminster Bank.

"The New York business will be transacted by W. H. Productions Company of New York City, and the London business by the Western Import Company of London. We believe we have started something."

Metro Buys "Warrior" for New York State

GENERAL ENTERPRISES, INC., announces that it has closed a deal with Metro for "The Warrior" for New York City and State. The transaction was closed by Arthur H. Sawyer, representing General Enterprises, Inc., and Joseph W. Engel and Edward Saunders, acting for Metro. "The Warrior" will be released by the purchasers as an extraordinary feature attraction through the Metro Exchange of New York City and its branches throughout the state.

The announcement of the latest sale involving "The Warrior" completes a remarkable state rights campaign which has been successfully promoted for this picture by Herbert Lubin and A. H. Sawyer, of General Enterprises, Inc. In addition to the purchase made this week by Metro, the following contracts have been closed throughout the country for territorial rights for the Italian war picture: To the Allen Film Corporation of Chicago, Illinois, the States of Illinois, Texas, Michigan, Iowa, Nebraska, Ohio, Indiana, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Missouri and Kansas; the Westcott Film Corporation of Minneapolis, Minnesota, the States of Wisconsin, Minnesota, and North and South Dakota; to the Clark and Rowland Theatres Company of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, the States of Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia; to Civilization Film Corporation of New Jersey, the entire State of New Jersey; to the Birth of a Nation Company of the Northwest, the States of Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana; to Special Features Company of Knoxville, Tennessee, the States of Tennessee, Georgia, Florida and Alabama; to American Film Company of Philadelphia, Eastern Pennsylvania, Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia and Delaware; to the Eastern Feature Film Company of Boston, Mass., the New England states.

First Shorty Hamilton Comedies Ready for Release

Ernest Shipman announces that the first releases of the W. H. Clifford Photoplay Company, entitled "Denny from Ireland" and "The Snail," are now ready for distribution. Mr. Shipman has a complete and attractive line of posters and other advertising matter which is offered at actual cost. Territorial rights are available under a protective franchise covering the entire series of twelve released monthly. Straight sales or the co-operative plan can be arranged under the scale of percentages as adopted by the First National Exhibitors' Circuit.

Mr. Shipman says:

"The state right buyers will find the Shorty Hamilton comedies a most inviting business proposition inasmuch as the W. H. Clifford Photoplay Company and I have decided upon a marketing policy which is estimated upon a legitimate and equitable basis, with ample room for money-making possibilities for the producer, state rights buyer and exhibitor.

"All ideas of inflated values have been eliminated and the prices agreed upon are the result of common sense business reasoning. A confidential price list will be furnished bonafide buyers upon application. The many exhibitors writing the New York office for information as to what exchanges will distribute the Shorty Hamilton series will be informed as the sales are consummated."

Three Brenon Successes Showing in Montreal

Chandos Brenon, Canadian representative of the Herbert Brenon Film Corporation, reports the successful showing of three features made by Herbert Brenon, now playing in Montreal at the foremost moving picture theatres in the city.

The three Brenon features playing in Montreal at the present time are "The Lone Wolf" at the New Grand, "The Fall of the Romanoffs" at the Regent and "The Daughter of the Gods," which was made two years ago under the Fox banner, at the St. Denis. The first-mentioned productions were made at Mr. Brenon's own studios at Hudson Heights, N. J.

In the past four weeks Montreal has seen no less than five pictures directed by Herbert Brenon, for, in addition to those already cited, "Neptune's Daughter," which is still a drawing-card, and a re-issue of "The Two Orphans" have also been running simultaneously.

Each of the three pictures now running in Montreal has had its premiere as a special attraction in New York at $2—top price—and each was acclaimed a brilliant success.

Rothapfel Endorses Tucker's Production, "Mother"

S. L. Rothapfel, managing director of the Rialto and Rivoli theatres, following a special private screening of "Mother" recently given for his benefit, makes the following statement endorsing this McClure feature:

"I have just seen 'Mother' by George Loane Tucker and, to say the least, it is a picture that will linger with me for a long, long time. Miss Risdon, who plays the character part of 'Mother' gives one of the finest character performances I have ever witnessed on the screen. The refinement, the intelligence and the good taste displayed by her make her, in my opinion, one of the greatest artistes on the screen. The whole picture has an atmosphere of good taste about it and the drama is so big that I don't see how in the world it can go wrong. The musical possibilities in this picture are also great and I can assure you that if it is properly played and handled it will touch a responsive chord in everyone's heart and is bound to be talked about.

"I will let you know in the near future just what date I can give you in either the Rialto or the Rivoli and you can rest assured that I shall be glad indeed to play it."

(Signed) S. L. ROTHAPFEL.

It is announced that "Mother" will be given a week's run at either the Rialto or the Rivoli theatres in the near future.

Brazilian Market Will Favor American Product

"The Brazilian film market which has shown a marked preference for Italian-made photo productions owing to the increased cost of American-made film is gradually swinging in favor of the American product," said Edna Williams, special representative of the Robertson-Cole Company, which film is handling the foreign distributing rights to the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation's productions.

"A survey of the Brazilian field," declared Miss Williams, "has impressed me with the fact that American films have been advancing rapidly in popularity in that territory and that as soon as the prices of productions made in the United States are regulated to the satisfaction of the exhibitors of Brazil they will probably use our pictures to the exclusion of all others."

Miss Williams announces the sale of "The Zeppelin's Last Raid," for Brazil.

George MacQuarrie in Madge Evans Film

In furtherance of his policy of direct recognition of effective work in World Pictures, Director General William A. Brady has arranged to "feature" George MacQuarrie with little Madge Evans in "Gates of Gladness," recently completed. Many of the scenes of this photoplay were taken in the house and grounds of Georgian Court, the estate of George Gould.

The first engagement of Mr. MacQuarrie by Mr. Brady was as leading man for the principal traveling company playing "Bought and Paid For" as a spoken drama.

THE INDEPENDENT FIELD TICKER

Territorial Sales Reported During the Past Week

Productions	Buyer	Territory
"Ignorance"		France, Egypt.
"The Natural Law"	J. Frank Brockliss, New York	Foreign Rights.
"Mother"	Grainger Film Corporation, Chicago	Illinois, Michigan, Iowa, Nebraska, Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Kansas, Missouri.
"Mother"	Allen Film Corp., Chicago	Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky.
"Mother"	Wescott Film Corporation, Minneapolis	Minnesota, Wisconsin, North and South Dakota.
"Mother"	M. J. Wohlfarth, Lakewood, N. J.	New Jersey.
"Mother"	First National Exhibitors' Circuit, Pittsburgh	Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia.
"Sins of Ambition"	Joseph Monat, New York	France.
"One Law for Both"
"Married in Name Only"
"Human Clay"	Export and Import, Film Company, New York	Foreign Rights.
"Sins of Ambition"	Mammoth Film Corporation. New York	Northern New Jersey.
"Babbling Tongues"	E. & H. Film Distributing Co., Atlanta, Ga.	Florida, Georgia, Alabama, North and South Carolina, Mississippi.
"Human Clay"	M. & R. Feature Film Exchange, San Francisco	California, Nevada, Arizona.
Twenty-eight Mack Sennett Produced Comedies (W. H. Productions Co.)	Peerless Photoplays Co.	Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas.
Twenty-eight Mack Sennett Produced Comedies (W. H. Productions Co.)	Weiland Film Co., Pittsburgh	Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia.
Twenty-eight Mack Sennett Produced Comedies (W. H. Productions Co.)	Regal Films, Ltd., Canada	Canadian Rights.
"The Bandit and the Preacher" (W. H. Productions Co.)	Regal Films, Ltd., Canada	Canadian Rights.
"The Hell Hound of Alaska" (W. H. Productions Co.)	Regal Films, Ltd., Canada	Canadian Rights.
"The Bandit and the Preacher"	William Politzer, San Antonio, Tex.	Oklahoma, Arkansas, Texas.
"The Hell Hound of Alaska"	William Politzer, San Antonio, Tex.	Oklahoma, Arkansas, Texas.

Norma Talmadge Begins New Select Film

NORMA TALMADGE has commenced work on her new photoplay, "By Right of Purchase," in which she is presented by Joseph M. Schenck. This will be the fourth of her Select Pictures, and its production follows that of "Ghosts of Yesterday," which Miss Talmadge completed recently.

"By Right of Purchase" is a society drama with a New York setting, and among its interiors will be a reproduction of Hero Land, the bazaar conducted this year for war charities in New York. Miss Talmadge plays the part of a moth-like young wife who spends her time flitting from one bit of frivolity to another, and the role affords her opportunity for the wearing of an array of beautiful gowns calculated to give her an added charm.

The picture will be directed by Charles Miller, and Eugene O'Brien has been chosen as leading man. Mr. O'Brien also plays opposite Miss Talmadge in her latest picture, "Ghosts of Yesterday," which is a screen adaptation of Rupert Hughes' famous play, "Two Women," and presents the star in a highly emotional characterization.

Paving the Way to Independence

A Thought Talk to the Exhibitor

By H. J. Shepard

A SHORT time ago a distributor summoned one of his producers and criticized him on the quality of a certain production. The director is said to have answered: "What do you care? You'll get yours. It will go into the program and they (the exhibitors) will have to take it."

Because of this general attitude among some of the program distributors, the exhibitor must take, on their contract, what is parcelled out to them, whether good or bad, helpful or detrimental. It is plainly seen that the program system is not sympathetic for the exhibitor.

There is a relief from this situation. It is the Independent Field, and the live exhibitors throughout the country are today taking advantage of it. A very recent example is that of "Tom Moore, of Washington." His action speaks for itself. He has the guts to fight, and he will win out, because he is fighting for INDEPENDENCE IN THE FILM INDUSTRY.

Every exhibitor who is in business for himself, and wants to remain in business for himself, must cultivate and help develop the Independent Market, by booking Independent productions from the reliable and efficient Independent Exchanges in their respective territories.

The large percentage of the best productions are being released on the Open Market. Even some of the program companies resort to a camouflage, by taking a fairly good picture from their program every once in a while and releasing it under a different brand on the Open Market, in order to get the extra revenue—thus taking advantage of the exhibitor. It is all wrong, and the solution, Mr. Exhibitor, lies with you.

You should keep in touch with the Independent Market through the trade papers and the Independent exchangemen in your territory. Select your own pictures when and as you like them. Get what your patrons desire. There is at least one Independent exchangeman in each territory, who is considered reliable, and if there are two, so much the better for you. It means that competition for your business will be keener.

The Independent exchangemen, as a whole, are capable business men, and select their pictures with the utmost discrimination. You naturally demand the best from them. They will, in turn, demand the best from the Independent producer. By your efforts a better product will be created.

How long would that inefficient producer with his careless methods survive if he continued to make inferior productions in the Independent Field? The termination of his career would be ultimate, thus eliminating this calibre of producer.

In the Independent Field of the film industry, like in the shoe, automobile and other industries manufacturing articles of universal use, the greatest amount of attention is paid to every detail—no matter how small or seemingly unimportant. This is absolutely necessary because a field for its disposition, once found, must be maintained; to be sold it must possess saleable features, and that means efficiency in every respect.

DECLARE YOUR INDEPENDENCE by looking up all Independent productions and getting in touch with your best Independent exchangemen. If you can't get the information you want, address your inquiries to the State Rights Department of the Trade Papers, and they will help you.

Finally, BOOK ALL GOOD INDEPENDENT PRODUCTIONS.

Hodupp to Establish Twenty Exchanges

V. H. HODUPP, of V. H. Hodupp, Inc., Indianapolis, Ind., announces that within the next few weeks, twenty distributing exchanges will be opened by this company. Mr. Hodupp has strong faith in the maxim "while others might be talking the Hoosier will be doing," and says that it finds verification in their latest developments. He said:

"There are twenty distributing centers of V. H. Hodupp, Inc., to be opened shortly. Two weeks ago the first of a string of twenty newly appointed offices were opened in the new Wimmer Building, Indianapolis. Six hustling salesmen are entrusted with covering Indiana, and although they have been on the job but two weeks, they started a special drive on the recently acquired Ivan Film Productions' output, and the office reports sixty-seven consecutive days of booking on 'Married in Name Only,' and the same for every Ivan production which I could procure for his territory.

"The location for the second office in St. Louis has been decided upon and will be opened on the 15th of January. The same applies to Kansas City for the 30th of January, and other offices will be opened at about two weeks' interval, until the last of the twenty offices considered necessary to cover the territories contemplated will have been established.

"So well does Mr. Leonard of the Lenwood Amusement Company, Indiana, think of the general proposition as outlined by me, that he has purchased 750 shares for each of the distributing companies. It is well at this time to bear in mind that each territory has its own company working in a co-operative form with the exhibitor in said territory.

"Manfred Feitler of Pittsburgh, Pa., a representative exhibitor in Western Pennsylvania, owning and managing seven theatres, is a sample of the kind of an exhibitor who has approved, and sees the equity and thereby the assured success of, the plan and operation of V. H. Hodupp, Inc. Mr. Feitler has subscribed to 100 shares for each of the offices opened and the rest of the twenty offices to be opened.

"These operations are no tiresome network of frenzied finance or multiplication of operations involved in the distributing plans of the company. The plan is so simple that 'he who runs may read.'"

Whartons Guard Against Pro-German Interference

Great preparations are being taken at the Wharton Studios at Ithaca, New York, to guard them from injury by anybody interested in preventing or delaying the production of "The Eagle's Eye," the new serial founded on the story by William J. Flynn, Chief of the United States Secret Service, exposing Imperial Germany's spy system in this country. Guards patrol the grounds day and night and no one is permitted to enter the premises without a pass and without being identified by someone in authority. Manager Kent is taking every precaution against interference.

Jacobs Gets Hart Features for Ohio Territory

George P. Jacobs, manager of Masterpiece Film Attractions, Cleveland, and associated with Sol L. Lesser, San Francisco, and Leon Netter, Cleveland, before leaving New York last week, closed a deal with the W. H. Productions whereby he is to distribute the three W. S. Hart features, "The Bargain," "The Bandit and the Preacher" and "The Hell Hounds of Alaska," in the Ohio territory.

Mr. Jacobs is prominent in the independent field. He has been an exhibitor, producer and has had much experience in the distributing end of the business. Before associating with Masterpiece, he was connected with the Life Photo, Noted Players, and World in Pittsburgh. He expects to close contracts for other productions for the Ohio territory soon.

Argus Pictorial Booked at Strand

The fifth issue of the Argus Pictorial, Pathe's new screen magazine in one reel, will be released Jan. 13. It is said to be a very interesting number. The Argus Pictorial has been booked at the Strand theatre, New York.

"Gold Beating" is the title of the first article in this issue and it shows an industry which has not changed since the days of ancient Egypt.

Two tiny wonders of nature—the vorticella and the monstyla—are shown in another article, and the last part of the film is devoted to the bag worm.

Jewel Carmen, William Fox's Dresden China Star

W. H. Productions, Late Hart Release True Realism

"The Bandit and the Preacher," the late W. S. Hart feature released by the W. H. Productions Company, is said to be one of the best of this series. In their endeavor to get realism in the scenes which depict strong, virile action, William Hart in the role of the bandit, fractured both hands and Robert Edeson, presenting the role of the preacher, emerged from the fight which was staged between him and Mr. Hart, with two black eyes.

The story tells of the manner in which a preacher converts a bandit's sweetheart, a dance-hall girl to the better walks of life and later marries her. The bandit's friends taunt him and he takes vengeance. A fight follows and the bandit is worsted. Later the preacher renders valuable assistance to the bandit and they become close friends.

"The Bandit and the Preacher" is a typical Western picture and Mr. Hart's characterization of the bandit is said to be the best he has ever done.

"Bar Sinister" Praised by South Carolina Exhibitor

C. N. Carlin, manager of the Caring theatre, Greenville, South Carolina, says that "The Bar Sinister" is one of the greatest screen plays. "The Bar Sinister," written by Anthony P. Kelly, is an Edgar Lewis production and distributed in this territory by Hoffman-Foursquare Exchanges.

Mr. Carlin writes:

"I wish to state that we have played almost all large productions but will say that 'The Bar Sinister' is one of the very greatest plays we have ever had the pleasure of playing and was a pronounced hit. The photography and directing—GREAT, and the films in fine condition. It was a pleasure to play this beautiful play."

Business Booming for Standard

Phil L. Ryan, Sales Manager, Standard Film Corporation, Gives Encouraging Report—Distribution in Ten Middle Western States

PHIL L. RYAN, sales manager, Standard Film Corporation, handling William S. Hart, two-reel features, Billy West comedies and other independent features through ten Middle Western States, reports, upon his return to the home office after an extended stay in New York, that business is booming. The Standard Film Corporation is one of the largest independent exchanges operating in the Middle and Southwest and Mr. Ryan is one of the best known and most prominent sales manager in this district. His report indicates that the New Year promises a thriving business in the independent field.

He writes:

"The William S. Hart two-reel features, which I am handling in ten Middle Western States, have met with an enthusiastic reception. The Billy West comedies are receiving the same welcome that was accorded them from the start. They are received throughout my territory with a welcome that could not be excelled for real, genuine enthusiasm.

"I am in receipt of the following letter from W. A. Mustard, manager of the Blue Mouse theatre, St. Paul, Minn., which speaks well for the Hart features.

"'Enclosed find check to pay for Wm. S. Hart two-reel feature, "The Last Raid," which I understand is our next booking. The Hart film, "Dakota Dan," which we are now running is very fine and our patrons like it.

"'I feel it not only a duty but a pleasure to let you know how exceedingly well the Hart two-reelers are pulling the "movie fans" to the Blue Mouse. The first feature, "Dakota Dan," stood 'em out at every performance during the showing and everyone who commented on the picture gave it praise. When we paid you your price for the Hart productions I fully expected fair returns on the investment but did not anticipate a landslide. I consider Mr. Hart the best "puller" in the business today and am more than pleased that we have a binding contract for the rest of the Hart two-reelers.'

"Nothing need be said in extenuation of the above," continued Mr. Ryan, "except, possibly, to mention that Mr. Mustard is the kind of exhibitor who never makes a misleading endorsement of anything.

"The Billy West productions have been continuing what was from the start a meteorically successful career in the Middle Western States," said Mr. Ryan. "The demand for this type of comedy is constant and unvaryingly great. The Sapphire theatre in Kansas City, Mo., has increased its patronage approximately 20 per cent since putting on the Billy West comedy-features and Mr. Elliott, the manager, who has already placed in the hands of a construction company plans for the construction of a new theatre on the Sapphire site, to cost nearly $100,000, is tracing the patronage increase almost directly to the addition of the West productions to his program.

"The various offices of the Standard are constantly receiving praise-filled letters on the West productions and also on the single-reel Christie Comedies; the 'society brand' of film comedies, and look forward to 1918 to hang up a great competitive record in increased distribution on these productions. The Standard has acquired 'The Bargain,' 'The Hellhound of Alaska,' and 'The Bandit and the Preacher,' five and six-reel super-Hart features, directed by Ince. These were purchased from the W. H. Productions Company of New York City, and are to be distributed in all of the states served by the Standard."

Hart Features Are Getting the Business

"GIVING the exchanges successful pictures at prices assuring a profit for themselves and the exhibitors and a service after they have bought the productions, to help them and the exhibitors exploit each production to their best advantage."

The above statement was made by an official of the W. H. Productions when asked to what he attributed the success of this company.

"We have found from experience that the most successful and lasting productions must have certain qualities. In every one of our productions, you will find the following salient qualities: First—we have the biggest stars; second—each star is backed up with a story and supporting cast that would be of sufficient drawing power without the particular featured star; and in addition to this, each one of our productions lends itself easily to exceptional exploitation possibilities—in fact, all of the superlatives that could be used would not do justice to these productions in describing their drawing power.

"We sold our series of two-reel Hart features in record-breaking time, and from the advice received from the exchanges who are handling these productions, we are pleased to say that each one is more than satisfied with his purchase. Of course, the fact that they are making money on these productions and that they were satisfied with our methods of doing business has paved the way for our future releases, 'The Bargain,' 'The Bandit and the Preacher' and 'The Hell Hounds of Alaska,' and the series of the famous twenty-eight Keystone-Mack Sennett comedies.

"We intend to expand and remain in business, and we appreciate that this can only be done by building up a permanent remunerative connection with and for the individual and independent exchangemen throughout the country."

Goldburg to Represent Ivan, Inc.

I. E. Chadwick, General Manager, Ivan Films, Engages Jesse Goldburg as Special Representative for All Ivan Productions

JESSE J. GOLDBURG who opened, recently, an office in the Times Building, New York, to handle the executive work in connection with his business as special representative and exploitation manager, closed a deal last week with I. E. Chadwick, general manager of Ivan Film Productions, Inc., whereby Mr. Goldburg becomes special and exclusive sales representative for all Ivan productions. The contract specifically provides that the exploitation of the Ivan productions shall not prevent Mr. Goldburg's office from handling the productions of other manufacturers or Mr. Goldburg's service idea for other producers or state rights buyers. It does provide, however, that Mr. Goldburg shall give his personal attention to the affairs of the Ivan Film Productions.

Mr. Chadwick made the following statement:

"We were impressed with the advertisements and announcements of Mr. Goldburg's in the trade papers, and as a result obtained his services. What impressed us as much as anything else was Mr. Goldburg's appraisement of valuation of our productions for the various territories. There was no inflated statement as to what he could procure, and I confess that in some territories on Mr. Goldburg's advice, I made material cuts in what I believed we should receive, and in two or three others we made slight advances in prices. The services of Mr. Golburg do not merely include the selling of our productions, but also embrace a serviceable campaign for a continuation of the exploitation of our productions after their sale.

It was Mr. Goldburg's suggestion that he make a tour of the United States. While this will take Mr. Goldburg away from his office and prevent for the time being, his taking on other attractions, he feels that the trip will give him an opportunity to confer with state rights buyers in order that upon his return, he will devise new plans of exploitation, sale and advertising if necessary, for the year 1918.

"At present we have four companies working, and as long as the market justifies it, as far as we are concerned, there will be no lack of state rights releases.

"It is rare that one finds in a man all of the qualifications which make Mr. Goldburg to our mind the most competent all around motion picture man in the industry, and especially as a state rights sales representative.

"Mr. Goldburg has produced his own attractions, supervised their direction, and has acted as publicity, advertising, and sales manager for some of the best feature photoplays produced, and to my knowledge, he has shown others the way. And for our benefit as well as that of the state rights exchange, we are taking advantage of Mr. Goldburg's organization."

Mr. Goldburg said: "My contract with the Ivan Film Corporation will not interfere with my organization or plans to handle attractions of other independent producers. I trust to do things on this trip that will assist in keeping the state rights market in a healthy condition, and foster the principle of open booking. When I reach Los Angeles I hope to close several contracts, to act as exclusive sales and exploitation representative for independent producers on the Coast, operating, of course, from my New York office. I also will open a branch office there to facilitate the increasing business.

"I have been asked by several producers: 'Is there really a market for state rights productions?' and my answer, of course, has been 'Yes, a healthy, substantial, and continuous market, provided two things are adhered to. First, that productions be made without the expenditure of money for which there is no value received. It makes no difference how much a production costs as long as the attraction itself justifies the expenditure, and secondly, that the returns sought be on a legitimate basis without an attempt to reap a fortune on a "lucky strike" without any consideration for the state rights buyer's investment, or the theatre manager's ability to do business.'"

Vic Moore Saves the Life-saver in "Oh, U Boat!" a Klever Komedy Picture

Crown Establishes New Exchange in Texas

P. C. Crown announces that he has organized a new exchange at Fort Worth, Texas. It is known as the American Film Exchange. The first release will be "The Lust of the Ages," Ogden production, the negative to which is owned by Crest Pictures Corporation, New York.

Mr. Crown is one of the pioneer exhibitors, conducting, until recently, the Crown theatre, Houston, Texas. He has a number of other productions under consideration for this territory, it is announced. He is buying also for the Australian market, where he has connections.

"Mother" Shown in New York and Chicago at Same Time

"Mother," George Loane Tucker's production, was shown to the trade last week in New York and Chicago, at the same time. The New York showing was held at the Balboa projection room and the Chicago showing was given at Ziegfeld theatre. Herbert Lubin was in charge of the Chicago showing and Arthur Sawyer conducted the New York showing.

Pathe Adds Another Quality Feature

WITH the completion of "The Other Woman," featuring Peggy Hyland, supported by Milton Sills and Anna Lehr, Pathe has added another high quality feature to its reserved stock of 1918 productions.

"The Other Woman" is an adaptation from a play, stage rights of which are controlled by Al. H. Wood. It has not yet been produced on the speaking stage but it is rumored that the story will be seen behind the footlights shortly after it makes its appearance on the screen.

While it is a social problem play, bringing in the eternal triangle, the story is said to have a unique twist and in its situations it never even remotely approaches the suggestive. The action of the story takes place for the most part in New York City and depicts life in the art studios.

Peggy Hyland is seen as Elenor Gates, a country girl who comes to New York and gains fame as a painter, and in the opposite role is Milton Sills playing the part of Harrington, the husband whose wife loves him too well and thinks that the marriage state is all sufficient even to the exclusion of the diversions offered by the theatres and the restaurants.

This production was staged under the direction of Albert Parker, who has given the feature, it is said, all the life and color made possible by the fascination that attaches to life in the Latin quarter.

Theda Bara, Fox Star, in Her Newest Character Role

"Price of a Good Time" a Winner

Jewel Production Is Greeted by Capacity Houses in All Parts of the Country.

JEWEL PRODUCTIONS, INC., are decidedly pleased with the remarkable success of their feature, "The Price of a Good Time," which has met with capacity houses and "repeat" bookings in all parts of the country. The story of the picture, it will be remembered, deals with the struggle of a young girl employed in a metropolitan department store to resist the temptations which beset her on every side. She loves good clothes and wants to have a "good time." She finally gives in and sells herself to a young spendthrift who gives her all that she desires in the way of clothes, money and jewels, but she discovers too late that love formed the essential part of her scheme of life and comes to an untimely end in an automobile crash.

Scene from "The Price of a Good Time" (Jewel).

Lois Weber's direction of the delicate situations involved and the appealing acting of Mildren Harris as the "little shop girl," have received considerable attention by the [illegible] of the nation. Critics everywhere have commented favo[illegible]

Twenty-six of the largest and most popular photoplay theaters in New York, Brooklyn and Newark have or are at present playing the feature. At Fox's Terminal theater in Newark, Sunday, Dec. 9, the crowds which were waiting to gain entrance to the performance were so great, that they finally broke through the police lines and smashed their way through the main doors of the theater. Reserves were called out to disperse the crowd and the run of the feature ended with a "record" box-office statement.

In some parts of the country the feature received persona[illegible] it with a view to censoring, but decided instead to endorse it as a powerful weapon for good.

Every publicity help which could be extended to an exhibitor was furnished those who booked the picture. Heralds, one three, twelve and twenty-four sheets were ready to shout from the billboards the quality of the production. "On the spot" publicity was furnished by the various zone exchanges and many of the exhibitors arranged elaborate lobby displays to further attract the public.

The result of all this aid is now centering in "return dates." An example of this is the action of the management of the Mount Morris theater at 116th street, New York, which, after playing the feature as a "first run" for three days, is again to play it day and date in opposition to the same feature booked in Moss' Regent theater in the same locality.

Officials of Jewel Productions, Inc., are confident that when the final returns are all in, the feature will prove to be even a greater attraction than "Where Are My Children," and every exchange manager in the thirty-two Jewel branch offices is striving to make predictions become reality.

FORBES-ROBERTSON BIDS FAREWELL TO AMERICA.

Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson, the eminent English actor, who came to America to take part in Herbert Brenon's production of "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," has folded his tent like the Arabs.

Having completed his role of the Stranger at the Brenon studios last week he has taken his departure for England. He will arive in London in time to spend Christmas with his family, it is expected.

The last public appearance of the distinguished British actor was at Hero Land, where he spoke briefly in behalf of the Allies' cause and its needs. His final journey to America was made solely for the purpose of fulfilling the contract he had made to appear before the camera in the screen production of Jerome K. Jerome's famous drama.

Another Shorty Hamilton Comedy

W. H. Clifford Photoplay Company Announces Another Release, Named "The Snail."

IN ACCORDANCE with a statement recently made in the trade papers relative to the "Shorty Hamilton Comedies," consisting of twelve five-reel comedy dramas per year, the W. H. Clifford Photoplay Company now announce another release, entitled "The Snail," a Chinese-American story. The title, however, does not suggest in any way the activities of "Shorty" in telling of the story. From its very beginning and continuing through the entire unfolding of the tale there is a rapid succession of action and many provoking incidents with the star in the lead.

Farce comedy has a scarcely irresistible fund of real humor, there is ever-pleasing absence of the slap-stick methods or the over-acting in order to get a laugh. The story is told with full sympathetic dramatic value and interpreted by a company of recognized screen favorites. The W. H. Clifford Photoplay Company operates its own studios and laboratory and with every modern facility turning out the highest type of product. With a guaranteed release on the first of each month, a franchise covering the entire series is of great value to the exhibitors, inasmuch as it permits the booking of a definite program, and a financial arrangement which must prove most inviting.

The marketing of the Shorty Hamilton series is being negotiated in the offices of Shipman [illegible] West Forty-fourth street, New York City, both for the domestic and foreign rights.

HOW LOWRY GOT NIGHT TRENCH PICTURES.

Handling thousands of men at night is not an easy job, even for a movie director who is not expected to acknowledge difficulties.

In making "For the Freedom of the World," Ira M. Lowry's spectacular patriotic film now being extensively booked by Goldwyn offices, the director faced the problem of keeping in touch with thousands of men in both his own and "the enemy" trenches. Supplies of various kinds were experimented with, but when gun fire began the director realized that this system would not work. A battery [illegible] was set out for telephone instruments and a complete system of [illegible] telephones was constructed.

Exactly duplicating positions at the front, transmitters were placed in the dugouts in each trench sector, and the officers were thus able to give the word to charge simultaneously. As a result, the actual construction of the trenches, the use of star shells and light rockets made the battle scenes realistic, but the conduct of the troops was regulated in exactly the same way.

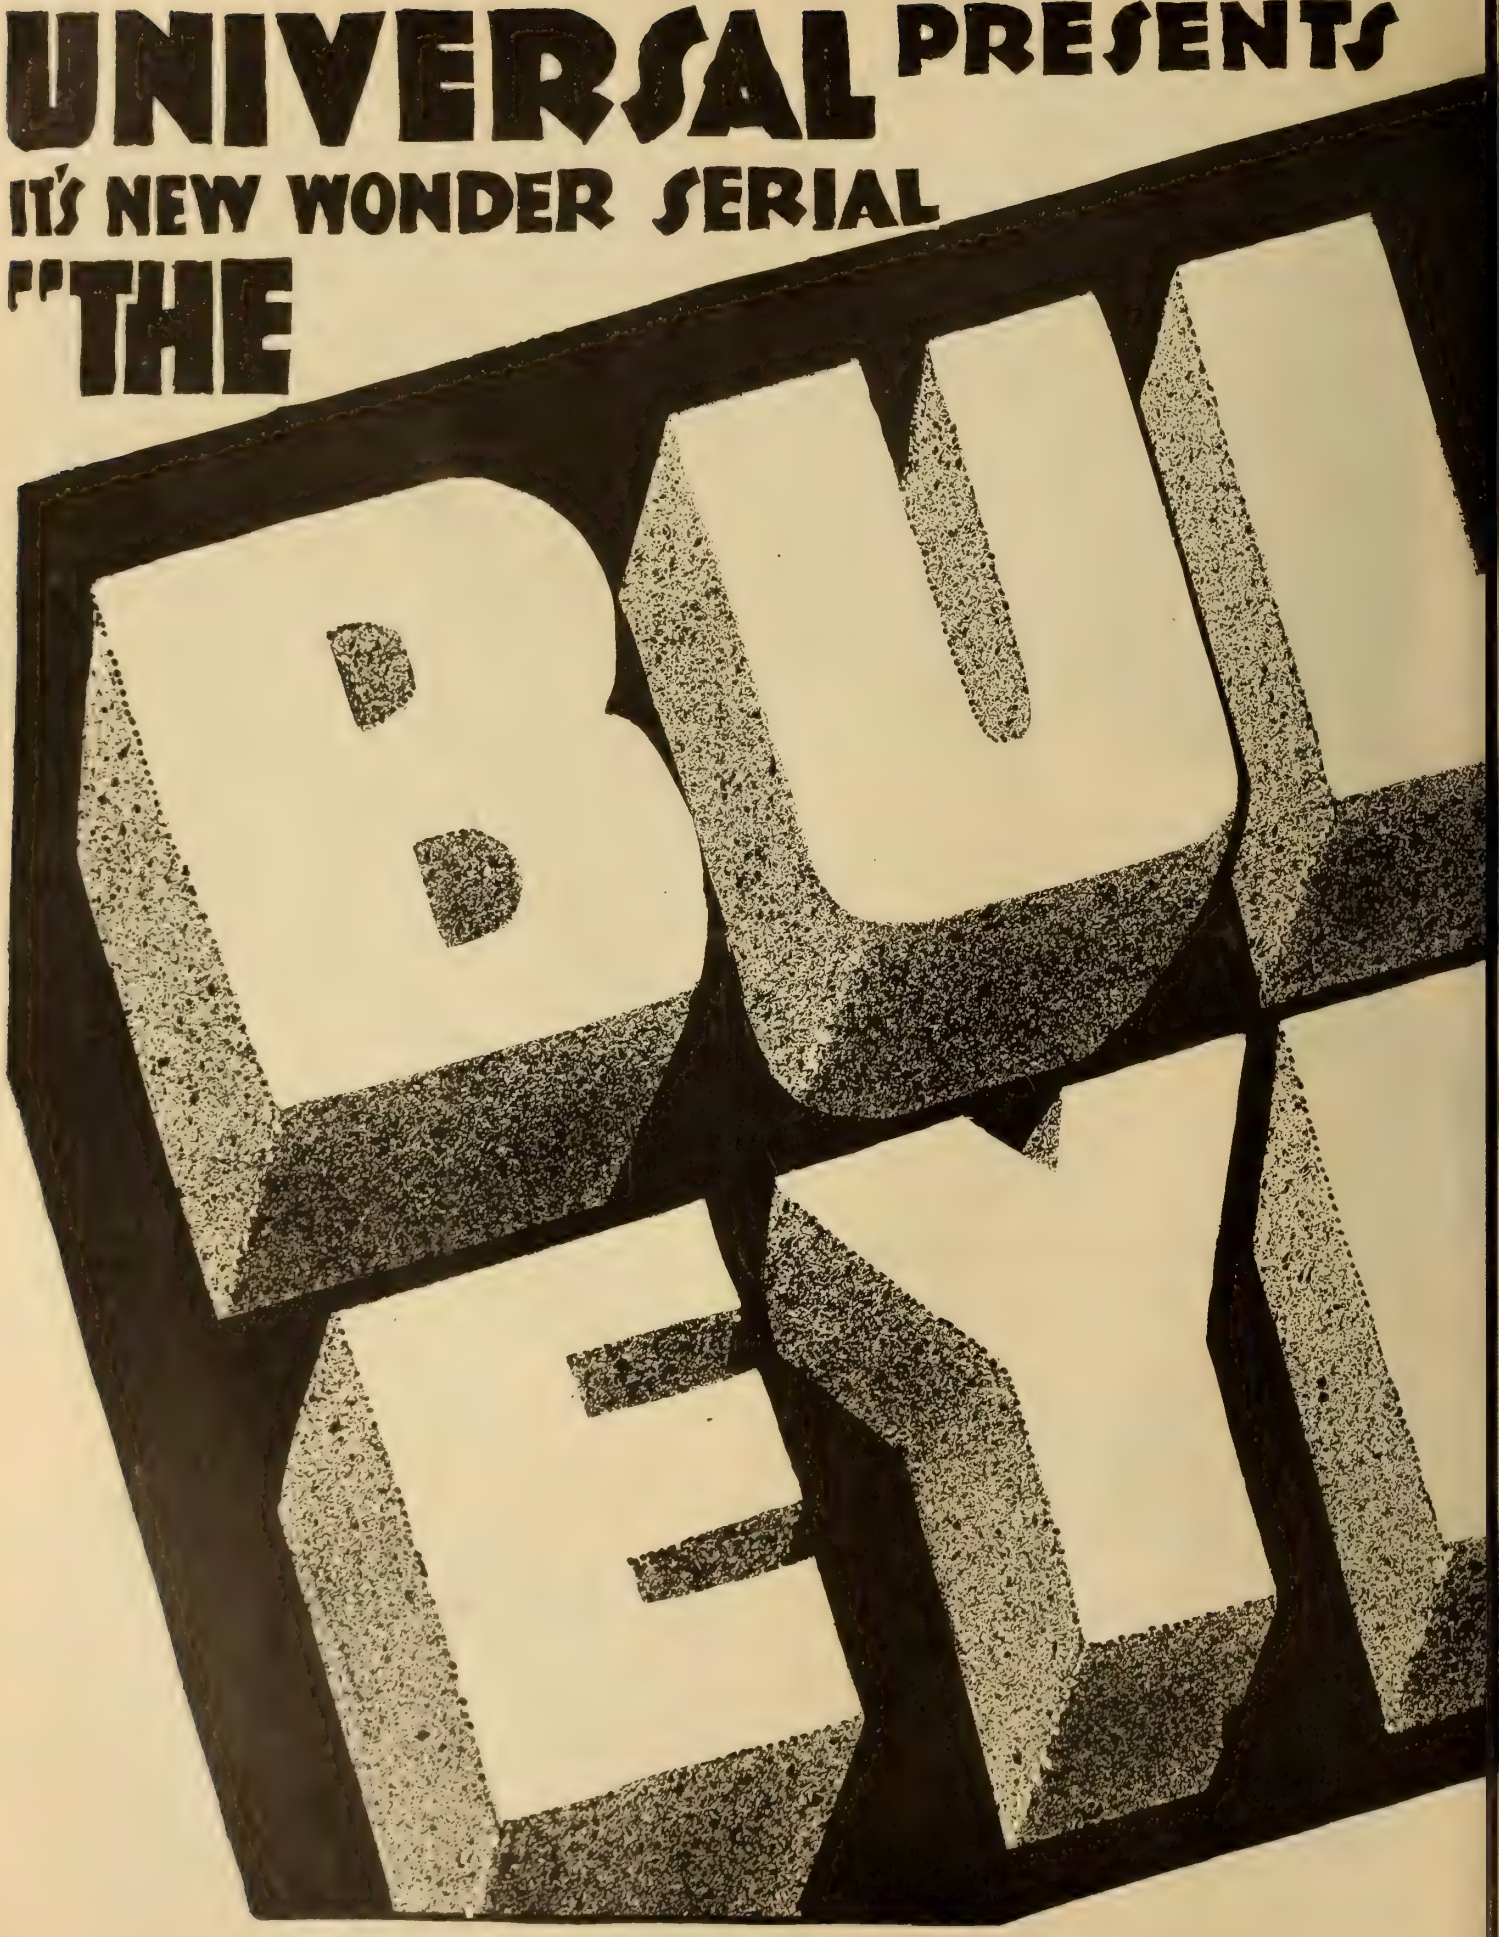
NEW YORK SENSATION IN "THE NAULAHKA."

Doraldina, who is seen with Antonio Moreno in the Pathe de luxe production "The Naulahka," is creating a tremendous sensation on the vaudeville stage at the famous Palace theater, New York City.

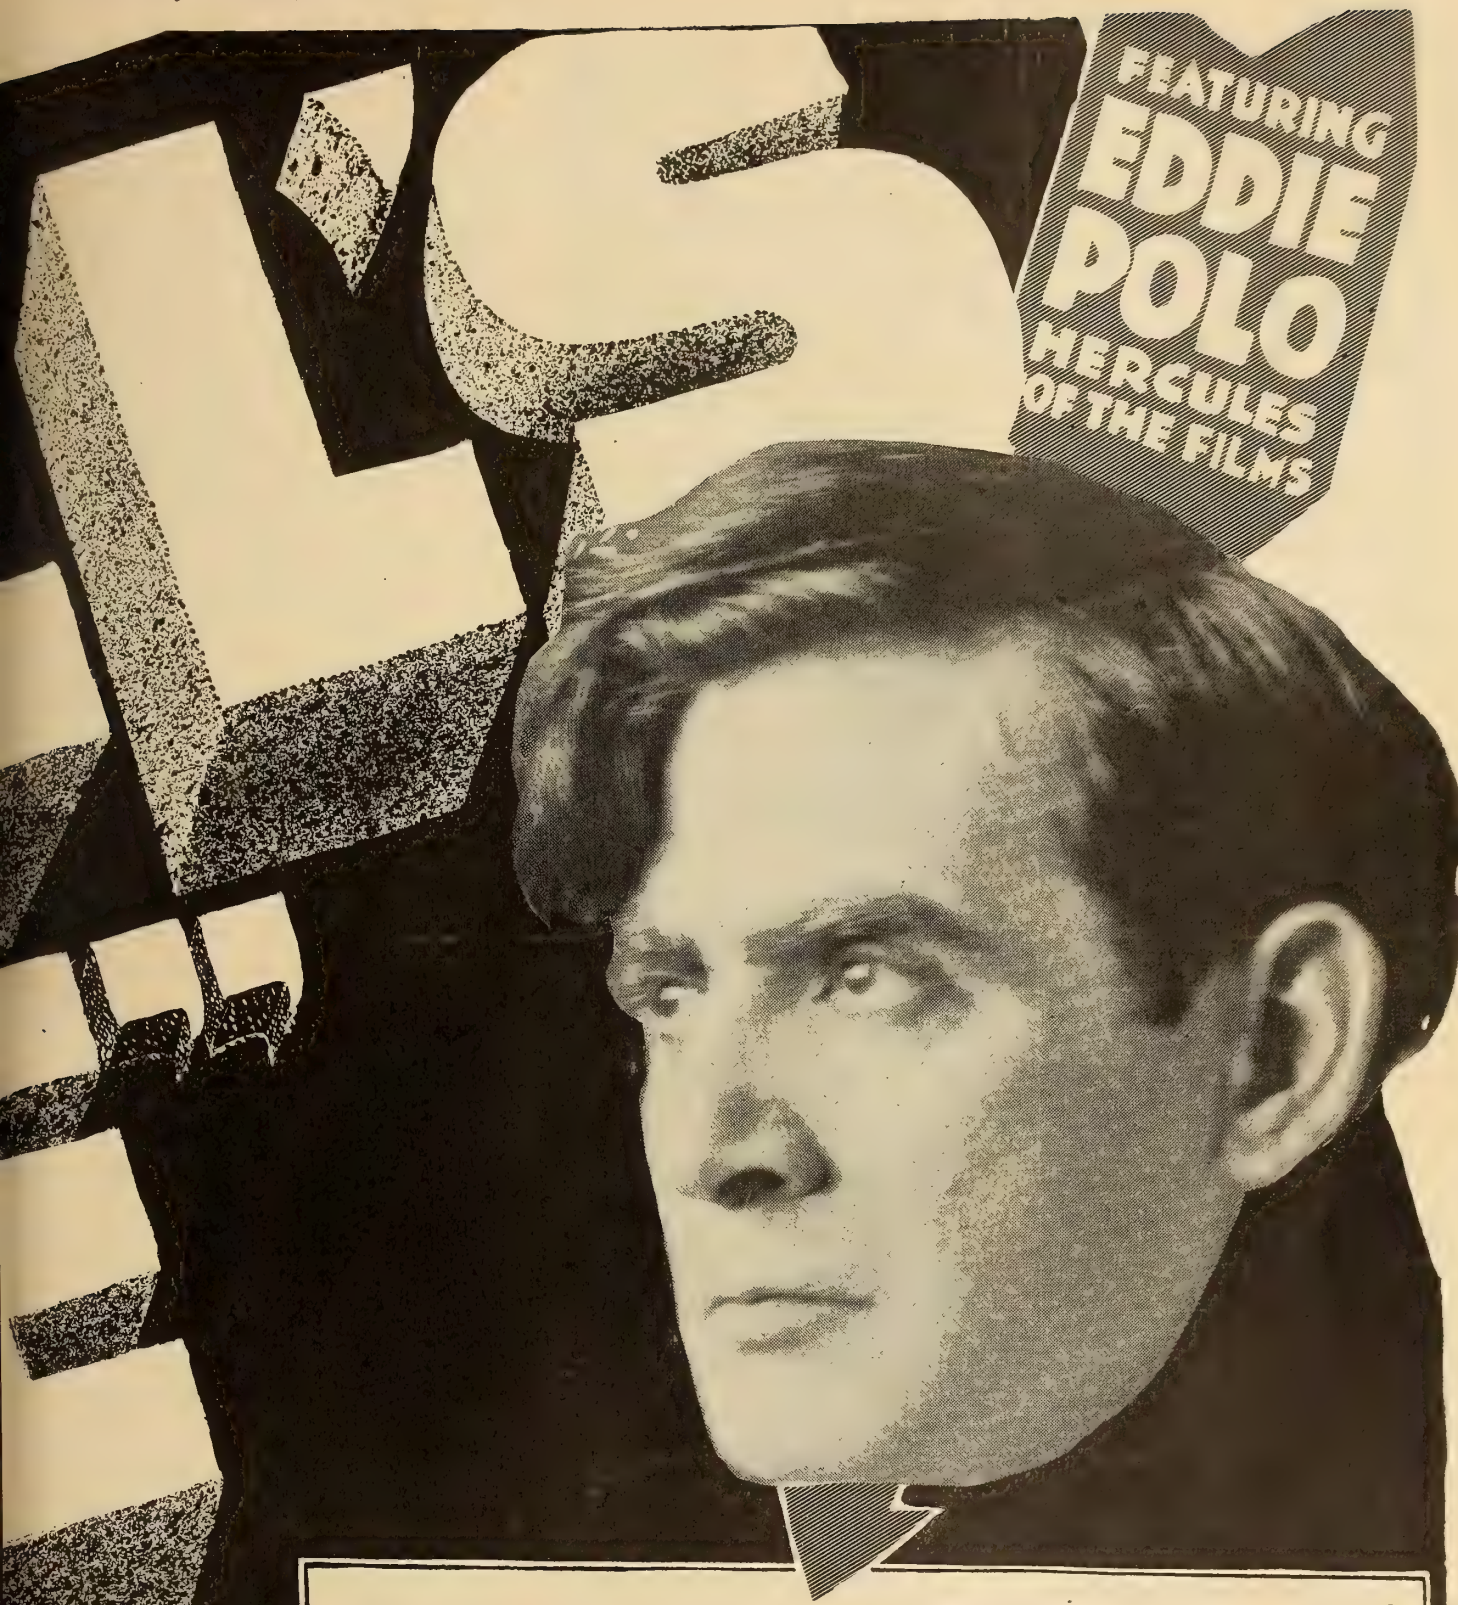
Doraldina is credited with being the most accomplished Oriental dancer that has ever appeared on the boards in New York City. And in the [illegible] the screen will be given a special dance, evolved from a number of native East Indian dances that are even more clever than those with which she is creating the present sensation.

In addition to dancing, according to announcements from the Pathe Company, Doraldina has proved herself to be an exceptionally clever screen actress. It is said that Doraldina will prove to be the best vamp that has yet been seen on the screen.

This would seem to indicate that "The Naulahka," with its strong cast, headed by Antonio Moreno, and supported by a current New York sensation, will be one of the big screen successes of 1918.



CONSTANCE TALMADGE IN LOS ANGELES.



Constance Talmadge, Select's brilliant young comedienne, who left Los Angeles less than a year ago comparatively unknown, returned to the Coast the [illegible] in a blaze of glory, a star in her own right, with a seventy-foot electric sign on Broadway. And [illegible] arrival in the West the occasion for an [illegible] demonstration.

Miss Talmadge will start work shortly on "The Little," which has been [illegible] for the screen from [illegible] Hodgson Burnett's widely-read novel of the same name. Once her immortal story of Little Lord Fauntleroy Mrs. [illegible] has written nothing more fascinating than this story of international love and marriage. In the role of Betty Vanderpoel, fearless, straight-forward and lovable, is [illegible] particularly suited to the star's personality. "The Studio" [illegible] which Constance Talmadge finished just before leaving New York is now being titled and cut and upon release will be distributed through Select Exchanges.

"TROUBLEMAKERS" GETS GOOD START.

"Troublemakers," featuring Jane [illegible] Katherine Lee, William Fox's "Baby Grand" stars, released December 9, found immediate favor with the public, at least this is the substance of announcement by purveyors of Fox publicity, and it is further stated that it is based upon reports from Fox exchanges.

UNIVERSAL PRESENTS
IT'S NEW WONDER SERIAL
"THE
BU
E
R

ANOTHER great big smashing Universal box-office serial Winner for Exhibitors—"THE BULL'S EYE," featuring Eddie Polo, Hercules of the Films—in sensational stunts that have never yet been shown on any screen—Unbelievable thrills that defy all precepts of human nerve and daring.

A SERIAL that will set your town afire—a serial that will make your competition look sick—a serial so utterly beyond anything in the line of sensations your town has ever seen, as to make comparison ridiculous. Waste not one second's time in wiring your nearest Universal Exchange for booking or reservation, and positively get a copy of the huge ad campaign book free to Exhibitors. Do it right this minute.

UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING CO.

CARL LAEMMLE, President

"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe" 1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

Billy West and Beatrice Joy Canter the Park, a La Riverside Drive, in "The Stranger," a King-Bee Comedy

Ivan Record Spells Efficiency

I. E. Chadwick, Head of Ivan Film Productions, Inc., Points to Evidence of the High Quality of Ivan Productions

I. E. CHADWICK, general manager and executive head of Ivan Film Productions, Inc., express great satisfaction with the record this company has made during the past year. Mr. Chadwick, who has become head of this producing organization, recently pointed with pride to the record that he says stands for quality in the production of feature pictures.

During the past year the Ivan Film Productions, Inc., has given to the screen such pictures as "Two Men and a Woman," "One Law for Both," "Married in Name Only," "Babbling Tongues" and "Sins of Ambition." The wide field open to Ivan productions is the best evidence of the efficiency and satisfaction that the producing company has established.

The following distributors are handling Ivan films and have made arrangements for the purchase of other pictures to be released by the above-mentioned company:

New England States, Eastern Feature Film Company, Boston, Mass.; Greater New York, Merit Film Corporation, New York City; Upper New York State, Super Film Attraction Co., Syracuse, N. Y.; Northern New Jersey, Mammoth Film Corporation, New York City; Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia, Electric Theatre Supply Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; Western Pennsylvania, Liberty Film Renting Company, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Ohio, Michigan, Ohio Ivan Film Distributing Company, Cleveland, Ohio; Kentucky, Tennessee, Big Feature Rights Corporation, Louisville, Ky.; Indiana, V. H. Hodupp, Inc., Indianapolis, Ind.; Illinois, Southern Wisconsin, Unity Photoplays Company, Chicago, Ill.; Northern Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, V. H. Hodupp, Inc., Indianapolis, Ind.; Iowa, Nebraska, Quality Feature Film Company, Sioux City, Iowa; Kansas, Missouri, V. H. Hodupp, St. Louis, Mo.; North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, E. & H. Film Distributing Company, Atlanta, Ga.; Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, True Film Company, Dallas, Texas; California, Nevada, Arizona, M. & R. Feature Film Co., San Francisco, Cal.; Canada, Globe Films, Ltd., Toronto, Can; foreign rights, Piedmont Pictures Corporation, New York City.

Special Publicity During Run of Flynn Serial

An unusual method of publicity will be put into operation during the showing of William J. Flynn's serial, "The Eagle's Eye," now under production by Wharton Bros. at the Wharton studios, Ithaca, N. Y. It is announced that as the episodes are released a series of illustrated special articles and stories will be published relating to the history and the evolution of the German government's system of espionage—industrial, diplomatic, military and naval. These articles will be founded on official facts.

The establishment of a branch of this German spy system in the United States was begun here many years ago and grew as time progressed into a most formidable body, numbering thousands of carefully selected and trained men and women. Its existence here was not appreciated till the outbreak of the war. It soon began to make its presence felt. The real history of this body of military secret agents in this country, never before related, is the theme of Chief Flynn's serial.

Hart Re-Issues Life-Savers for Exhibitors

Abe Warner, who has several of the Hart re-issues for distribution in the Cleveland territory gives these features a word of praise in the following statement:

"These Hart pictures," he said, "are the biggest life savers that the motion picture exhibitor has ever had. With conditions as they are; taxes, the high cost of pictures, more taxes, the increased cost of operating, and still more taxes, they offer the exhibitor a chance to do business and make some money which he could not do otherwise. This is how he does it. He books a Hart re-issue at small cost. He advertises the Hart picture extensively. Some exhibitors have even featured it in electric signs. Then he books an unimportant five-reel picture, also at small cost, advertises a big double bill including a star and a feature, and comes out on the right side of the ledger at the end of the week.

"Forty houses in Cleveland are doing just that," continued Mr. Warner, "two first-run houses among them. And all through the state they are shown at such representative theatres as the Colonial, in Columbus; the Star and the Family, in Cincinnati; the Strand in Louisville, and the Feiber Shea Circuit in Youngstown, Akron and Ashtabula and Canton."

In addition to the Hart re-issues, Mr. Warner releases through the Standard Film Service of Cleveland, the Art Dramas features and "War As It Really Is."

"My Four Years in Germany" Praised by Nigh

"My Four Years in Germany," now under production by Mark M. Ditenfass Productions, Inc., under the direction of William Nigh, is said to possess an entertaining value unlike any other subject that has been prepared for the screen. The story tells of Ambassador James W. Gerard's experiences at the German Imperial Court. The story has appeared in many of the big newspapers. The adaptation was made by Charles A. Logue, with the assistance of Mr. Gerard.

Director Nigh, who has won a reputation as star, director and author, has the following comment to make on this production:

"'My Four Years in Germany,' has been printed in almost every important paper in the United States and has been more discussed than any book of recent years. When the synopsis was prepared by Mr. Logue from which the scenario was made with Mr. Gerard's co-operation there began to stir in me the creative feeling, and I realized that I had the foundation for a masterpiece. This will be the greatest of my work for the screen."

Mr. Nigh's successes as star, author and director are known by "Notorious Gallagher," "The Blue Streak," "Life's Shadows," in which he has played. As author and director he has produced "Salomy Jane," "Mignon" and "Emmy of the Stork's Nest." His picture "The Yellow Streak" was pronounced a perfect production.

Ohio Exhibitor Praises Hoffman-Foursquare Features

George W. Erdmann, manager of the Cleveland Branch Exchange, Hoffman-Foursquare Pictures, is in receipt of the following letter from J. Kennedy, manager of the Majestic theatre, Ashtabula, Ohio, in which Mr. Kennedy praises Hoffman-Foursquare productions. Mr. Kennedy writes:

"I want to hand it to you for being able to deliver the goods. When you talked me into making a Hoffman-Foursquare week I did not feel that I was doing the best thing for a naturally dull week, but you went over big, right 'over the top.'

"'Her Fighting Chance' is a fine drawing card, but that blizzard we had gave me a whack on receipts; but at that I did very well. The picture is a corker and just enough out of the ordinary to put it in the big league.

"'The Fringe of Society' I can not say too much for, as it is fine. Wednesday and Thursday I stood them up. Do this in a 1,200-seat house, four shows at a 25-cent top and it sends you home feeling that it is glorious to be a showman.

"'The Great White Trail' presents a story of the type that pleases any class of an audience and the scenes and photography are beautiful.

"All I can say is—get some more like them and you will always find room in my cozy corner.

(Signed) J. KENNEDY.

Katterjohn Makes Big Change in "Zeppelin" Picture

Monte Katterjohn, who re-edited and revised Ince's production of "The Zeppelin's Last Raid," now being distributed by the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation, in a letter addressed to the officials of the Booking Corporation, had the following to say on the great change that was effected in the original negative:

"For more than one year this production, because of its similarity to 'Civilization,' and its pronounced pacifist tone, was the white elephant of the New York Motion Picture Corporation. In May, 1917, after the Zeppelin scene had been produced, to substitute for originally made submarine scenes, I re-wrote every title in the picture, utterly changing the story as originally conceived by C. Gardner Sullivan. Prior to that time it was an extreme pacifist production, showing the people of all the nations at war, including the soldiers in arms, organizing against war under the peace banners of the purple cross.

"Because of America's entry into the world conflict I eliminated the pacifist titles and scenes, re-writing the story in the titles so as to picture a revolution in Germany, the overthrow of the Kaiser and the establishment of a government of, for and by the people. To substantiate the changed story I caused additional scenes to be cut in and in every way so changed the picture that it was possible to release it without government censure.

Hall to Enter Producing Field

Frank Hall, President of U. S. Exhibitors Booking Corporation, Announces Plans for Special Productions Under Direction of Prominent Directors

THE United States Exhibitors' Booking Corporation will enter the production field of the industry, it is announced by Frank Hall, president and general manager. Negotiations are pending now for a series of special productions under the direction of four prominent directors. The names of these directors will be announced after the consummation of the deal.

"Having acquired three special productions with which to launch the United States Exhibitors' Booking Corporation," said Mr. Hall, "I want others of equal worth and the surest and most efficient way of getting them is to turn them out under the organization's direct supervision. I am about to close a contract with four of the most prominent directors in the business and under their direction will be produced a series of special productions for the United States company.

"Our first offerings, 'The Zeppelin's Last Raid,' an Ince production; 'Those Who Pay,' featuring Bessie Barriscale and Sidney Olcott's first production for the independent market, 'The Belgian,' featuring Valentine Grant and Walter Whiteside, have received the unanimous approval of all exhibitors who have booked them. In the forthcoming special productions, the first of which I will have ready for release some time in February, I feel sure that the exhibitor will be given a feature that will get the money, will satisfy and will prove the maximum of entertaining value.

"The United States Corporation will assist the directors in question to finance their productions and the company will reserve the right to approve scenarios and to name a supervising director whose duty will be to co-operate with the director in chief in making the productions. These stipulations will be put into the contracts for the purpose of safeguarding the booking concern against possible production errors.

"It is our intention to produce only productions founded upon a successful play or popular book and a star of genuine box-office value will be featured in every subject. We shall exercise care in the selection of both the star and the vehicle and will co-operate step by step with the directors in the making of the production. We shall select only such plays as lend themselves to intensive exploitation. We believe in giving the exhibitors something they can sell to the public, something which, to use an expression of the day, they can make a noise about.

"Despite the wails of the calamity howlers, I think the future holds much of promise for the picture industry. It is up to the picture makers, however, to produce plays that are real attractions, plays that the exhibitors can advertise."

Flynn Serial Progressing Rapidly

King Baggot and Marguerite Snow Having Strenuous Time Impersonating German Spies—Exciting Incidents Reproduced

WILLIAM J. FLYNN'S serial, "The Eagle's Eye," now under production by Whartons, Inc., at its studios in Ithaca, is being reproduced rapidly for screen presentation. The Whartons state that in Chief Flynn's picture they will present a photodrama that will prove most sensational when seen on the screen and yet it will only reflect incidents that have actually happened, staged with dramatic license.

King Baggot and Marguerite Snow are having a most strenuous time playing the leading dramatic roles in Chief Flynn's serial. They are repeating in their work for the screen many of the exciting incidents that actually happened in the experience of Chief Flynn's operatives. Men and women are depicted in most hazardous acts in the carrying out of political, military and criminal plots, actuated by a stronger will that knows neither conscience nor law.

Both Mr. Baggot and Miss Snow have proved equal to every requirement. She has confessed that imitating some of the experiences of a secret service operative for dramatic pictorial effect is no easy job. Mr. Baggot says he believes that the life of "a second-story man" is a primrose path compared with that of a United States secret service operative if a government detective has to do many of the "stunts" that have been put up to him.

"The Eagle's Eye" will reveal not only how closely Chief Flynn and his staff followed the conspiracies hatched by Von Papen, Boy-Ed, Von Igel and Dr. Albert, but it will also show to what extremes they had to go to secure the information and evidence on which they acted to prevent the consummation of several most carefully planned conspiracies against the United States and the Allied Governments.

Spoor Chooses Holmes' New Subjects

George K. Spoor has announced "A Pair of Sixes" and "The Rainbow Chaser" as future subjects for Taylor Holmes, the comedian.

"A Pair of Sixes" was written by Edward Peple, author of "The Littlest Rebel," "The Prince Chap," "The Love Route" and other stage pieces. Mr. Holmes will play the role of T. Boggs Johns, the vivacious patent pill manufacturer.

"The Rainbow Chaser" is an adaptation of the Saturday Evening Post story, "Mr. Williams Takes a Chance," by Freeman Tilden.

Among the Exchanges

Exhibitor Forms Circuit in Nebraska

P. H. Hoppen, formerly an exhibitor at Kearney, Neb., and well known among exhibitors throughout Nebraska, has started a new idea in his state. He has completed a circuit of twenty-four houses, for which he is the booking agent. He books pictures for thirty days each, getting a material reduction from the exchange, as he saves the exchange its cost of help in handling the film during that time. He attends to circulating such films as he books among the various houses, where only those pictures which he supplies are shown. Hoppen is in one sense of the word a "hired" agent, although he developed the idea by showing the twenty-four exhibitors how he could save money for each of them.

Cleveland Footage War Still On

Prosecuting Attorney Samuel Doerfler called a meeting of the Cleveland exchange men, whose officers are charging the exhibitors the fifteen-cent footage tax, last Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The conference was the direct result of the efforts on the part of the motion picture exhibitors of Cleveland to indict the exchanges on the charge of violating the Valentine anti-trust law. Nothing conclusive was done at the meeting, however. After hearing the exchange managers' version of the matter, Doerfler said that he needed more evidence before passing judgment, and that when he had acquired the desired information he would call another meeting.

Ellman Handles Press for Wolfberg

J. L. Ellman, for the past few months publicity director for the Harris P. Wolfberg Attractions, has been appointed manager of the home office, Pittsburgh.

He succeeds Howard Stahler, who is in Maryland opening up that territory with "The Crisis." The Wolfberg Attractions now also distribute "The Mad Lover," "To-Day," "Persuasive Peggy" and "The Deemster."

Mr. Ellman is a former advertising agency man and was induced to enter the moving picture industry by the present head of the Wolfberg exchange, Harris P. Wolfberg.

Stout Takes Up Denver Duties

X. K. Stout, who recently resigned his position as manager for Select Pictures Corporation in San Francisco, has arrived in Denver with his family and entered upon his duties as secretary of the Foursquare Pictures Corporation of Colorado.

Breezy Items from Canada

C. J. Briant, former motion picture editor of a New Orleans paper, has been appointed manager of the New Orleans office of Metro.

G. B. Svenson, construction superintendent with Mutual, has been in Omaha supervising the rearrangement of Mutual's new headquarters in Farnam street. Manager Herman, of the Omaha Exchange, expected to move into the new rooms the first of the year.

S. T. Stephens, recently appointed Southern supervisor of the Mutual Film Corporation, was tendered a supper in New Orleans recently in honor of his second anniversary with Mutual. Al Durning, acting manager of the New Orleans branch, was among those present.

B. R. Tolmas, Pennsylvania film man, has joined the sales forces of the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation in that distirct. He succeeds F. H. Gilman, who has assumed charge of another section.

Lynn S. Card, general sales manager of the U. S. Exhibitors', has received word that the "Zep" picture has been passed by the Maryland Board of Censors without a cut.

George Wilson has succeeded Lewis Greenstein as manager of the Standard Film Service Company in Cincinnati. The latter has joined the army, Quartermaster's Department.

Sidney Harris, late of Goldwyn's distributing organization, is now a marine.

The Laemmle Film Service Company, of Omaha, claims to be the first exchange in that city to reach 100 per cent. membership in the Red Cross, according to word from Manager John H. Calvert.

Raymond S. Nelson, who recently withdrew from General Film's Denver branch to enter the service of Uncle Sam, was given a big send-off.

Walter S. Rand, Denver manager of Goldwyn, has returned from a trip through Utah and Idaho. He reports conditions good.

Edward Armstrong, division manager of Universal, bases his optimistic feeling concerning the coming year on reports and contracts which he is sending to the home office.

Manager Calvert of the Universal exchange in Omaha, has bought his fourth print of "Current Events." The Muse theatre in Omaha recently booked both the "Current Events" and "Animated Weekly."

John W. Drum, Jewel manager in Denver, has lined up a number of contracts on "The Price of a Good Time," released January 1.

George Bourke, of the Denver Bluebird office, has returned from an extensive trip through the Black Hills, where he has placed Bluebirds in all except seven towns.

Manager Grossman, of the Standard theatre in Cleveland, declares he is getting a better look at real money since he discontinued the program policy and started booking on the open market.

E. A. Eschmann, formerly Cleveland manager of World Film Corporation, has been called to the home office to fill a vacancy. C. A. Thompson took up the duties in Cleveland where Eschmann left off.

Mutual Film Corporation in Cleveland now has R. S. Moran as manager. He was in the sales department of Mutual for two years, when W. E. Lusk was manager.

Al Christie was in Cleveland recently, the guest of Standard Film Service.

Sam Morris, manager of Select Pictures in Cleveland, is ill, but expects to be around this week.

Victor Film Service in Cleveland has added Tom Colby, Ferdinand Siegel and F. L. Davie to its sales force. This makes six new road men for Victor since E. J. Schmidt took over the management.

Claude Morehouse, publicity director of Famous Players in Cleveland, spent the holidays with his family in Pittsburgh.

J. R. Johnson, manager of the Cleveland Vitagraph office, spent all of week before last with his sales force, starting the campaign in behalf of the new serial, "Vengeance—and the Woman." Toledo and Columbus were visited before Cleveland exhibitors heard about the picture.

The Standard Exchange in Omaha, Neb., has employed Phil Monsky, Gordon Brown and Jack Radley as salesmen.

Nebraska and Iowa since December 7 have been in the grip of a severe cold wave, but the motion picture business did not suffer except in the smaller places. The Pathe exchange in Omaha reported the week of December 9 the best in the history of the office.

M. S. Wessling has been appointed to succeed W. E. Lusk as manager of the Cleveland branch of the Mutual Film Exchange. Wessling was formerly Pathe manager in Cincinnati.

W. E. Lusk, when he left Mutual, received a smoking stand of mahogany as a farewell gift from old associates at the exchange. He has taken over the First National Cleveland office.

Manager G. W. Erdman, of the Hoffman-Foursquare Pictures in Cleveland, announced that last week three downtown houses in the "sixth city" presented the company's pictures.

E. T. Lux, district manager of Hoffman-Foursquare Pictures, visited Cleveland recently with M. H. Hoffman to look over the exchange there.

John R. Hays, one of the bright lights on the Paramount sales force in Cleveland, has quit his job for a new one that he says will take him much higher. He recently joined the aviation corps for Uncle Sam.

Before Raymond S. Nelson, of Denver, who is leaving General to join the army, departs for his new duties he will be the honor guest of the Rocky Mountain Screen Club at a farewell luncheon.

W. W. Tally is making his first trip on the road for Vitagraph, and is covering the Black Hills territory.

H. L. Knappen, new manager for Select, has booked Eva Tanguay and Clara Kimball Young for two first runs a week at the American in Denver.

G. G. Ebersole, for the past four years in the services of Pathe in Indianapolis, has been transferred to Denver as booker.

Mutual exchange in Denver is displaying a service flag for R. C. Battles, former booking clerk in the Denver office.

Walter S. Rand, of Goldwyn, has returned to Denver from a business trip to Salt Lake City and Boise.

Goldwyn Installs Gold King Screens

To insure the utmost brilliance and clearness in pictures shown to exhibitors in branch office projection rooms, Goldwyn Pictures Corporation has installed Gold King screens in all its exchanges. The quality of picture shown to theatre owners is, of course, of primary importance, and Goldwyn has taken this method of insuring proper presentation of its pictures and consequent satisfaction upon the exhibitor's part.

George Wilson has Succeeded Lewis Greenstein as Manager of Standard Film Service in Cincinnati

Goldberg Joins Big Feature Branch

Lee L. Goldberg, who was formerly manager of the Mary Anderson and Strand theatres in Louisville, Ky., has been appointed secretary and treasurer of the Big Feature Rights Company in that city, with offices in the Rex Theatre Building.

Mr. Goldberg, it is understood, resigned from the management of the theatres only after great consideration and with much urging on the part of Fred Levy, president of the Big Feature Rights Company.

The company controls the franchise on the productions of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit in Kentucky and Tennessee.

Jewel Subjects Go Well in South America

Reports received from South American agents indicate that "The Co-Respondent" and "Pay Me" are meeting with unusual success in the many enterprising cities below the equator.

"Sirens of the Sea" is another feature which Jewel claims the Latin-American brothers have taken to strongly. Beautiful women have ever been the apple of the Spanish eye and with the "flock" of alluring sirens which disport in this feature it is small wonder that the land of the tango takes to Louise Lovely and her frolicsome teammates.

South American managers go in heavy for publicity. They pay special attention to lobby displays and rely greatly on photographs and lithographs. Some of their methods are rather sensational, but like the old-time "ballyhoo," attract the amusement-loving Latins in droves.

In Buenos Ayres, during the showing of "Sirens of the Sea," one enterprising manager had the "stills" of the production enlarged, that his patrons might better view the beauties of our West Coast "Lorelie," while another worked a real "Ballyhoo" of diving girls.

"Hour Has Struck for Exhibitor"

M. H. Hoffman, Hoffman-Foursquare Pictures, Returned Recently from Extended Trip, Says Exhibitors Have Found the Light

M. H. HOFFMAN, Hoffman-Foursquare Pictures, who has returned recently from an extended trip through the Middle West and East, had opportunity to talk personally with some of the most prominent exhibitors in this territory and tells in the following interview his impressions of conditions generally:

"The best undivided surplus a distributing organization can have in these times is a host of exhibitor patrons who have faith in it; who are confident quality will be maintained in the product it offers, and that the prices will be kept down to a reasonable point.

"The hour has struck for the exhibitor. Predictions I have been making ever since Foursquare Pictures was organized last spring are coming true. These men who are the sources of the producers' and distributors' bread and butter see now that certain things are due them, and are beginning to insist upon having these things.

"One of them is the wisdom of increasing the amount of open bookings; of selecting pictures that have been made deliberately without hurry—on a basis wherein economy has been judiciously exercised. The specially produced feature, independently distributed, is gaining headway with significant rapidiy.

"Exhibitors who have been booking pictures with concerns that turn out a vast number each year have awakened to the fact that no single organization, no matter how great, can hit the bull's-eye with each production. That the large producing firms have likewise made this discovery is indicated in the plans now being shaped to reduce the quantity of their annual output. It is quality that is now in demand and the exhibitor, in order to satisfy his patrons' growing taste for unvaryingly good pictures, is choosing with greater care than ever before.

"Foursquare Pictures is beginning the New Year with full cognizance of changing conditions which were foreseen when it was organized. As an independent distributing concern, it will select its pictures with the utmost care and acquire only that which the exhibitor will regard as a good buy at prices that are right."

Mr. Hoffman visited various points in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, Missouri and Iowa.

Goldburg Pleased with Venture

Jesse Goldburg, Who Recently Announced His Entrance in Independent Field as Representative, Pleased with Success

JESSE GOLDBURG makes the announcement that since his venture in the exploitation branch of the independent field, he has met with exery success. Mr. Goldburg announces that he has received communications from independent buyers, manufacturers and others interested in this field, for full details as to his plans and asking that he represent them in disposing of their product.

Mr. Goldburg said in commenting upon his success since his entrance into the independent field as an independent representative for the exploitation of manufacturers' products:

"I have signed contracts to act as exclusive advertising, publicity, and sales representative with two independent producers, one of whom has been producing extraordinary attractions of popular appeal for some time past. Announcement of the details of these releases will appear in the advertising pages of this publication in a forthcoming issue.

"The ready response on the part of independent producers as well as state rights buyers to my announcement certifies not alone to the practicability and sound business methods of the organization, but also to the healthy condition of the state rights market.

"While I did expect encouragement and success, I did not believe that things would shape themselves so soon toward a successful operation of my business. I have rejected five in the past two weeks; three of them because the producers expected a return all out of proportion to the character of the production and a legitimate profit on the cost."

Mr. Goldburg has engaged the services of two artists to assist in the creation of advertising matter issued in connection with the productions distributed by him.

Hand Chosen Cincinnati Chairman

At the last meeting of the Associated Film Exchanges of the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce, Stanley W. Hand, manager of the local office of the World Film Corporation, was elected chairman of the board of control.

Mr. Hand has been associated with the World Film Corporation for the last three years in New York and Boston, and was only recently transferred to the managership of the Cincinnati office. He has, however, been very active in striving for closer cooperation among the film exchange managers of Cincinnati, resulting with his being unanimously elected chairman of that body.

Omaha Manager Predicts Big Things

E. C. Blakeman, formerly the manager of the Paramount exchange in Atlanta, Ga., is manager of the Triangle exchange in Omaha, Neb., succeeding L. B. Thiele, who has gone to Kansas City.

Lucas Supply Opens Little Theatre

The Lucas Theatre Supply Company, Inc., of Atlanta, Ga., opened in that city on December 21 a "miniature demonstration" theatre, called Lucas Baby Grand, seating forty people and conceded to be one of the most complete in existence. It is located on the ground floor of the Lucas Building, at Marietta and Bartow streets.

The opening, which was a formal affair, was attended by all the exchange managers in Atlanta. A half dozen comedies especially selected for the occasion were included in the program. The little theatre will be used for the convenience of local film exchanges.

Bluebird Changes Schedule for February

The publicity department of Bluebird last week announced that a change has been made in the Bluebird schedule as applying to releases previously furnished for February 4 and 11.

Violet Mersereau in "Morgan's Raiders," has been withdrawn from the schedule for the present. "The Wife He Bought," starring Carmel Myers, previously set for release February 11, will be moved up one week to take the place of the Violet Mersereau picture for the week of February 4.

Kent Departs from West Coast

S. R. Kent, sales manager for the General Film Company, who has spent the past three or four weeks in Los Angeles in connection with the distribution problems here, additional releases on the General, has as well as looking after arrangements for departed for the East.

Universal Makes Changes in Omaha

These changes are announced at the Universal Exchange in Omaha, Neb., since John H. Calvert succeeded F. A. Van Husan as manager:

Sherman Fitch is manager of the Colonial Exchange, Universal branch at Sioux Falls, S. D., to succeed J. W. Jackson.

E. P. Abbott, former road man, is named manager of the Bluebird Exchange to succeed Mr. Calvert.

Jake Mitchell has resigned as assistant manager at the Universal and H. F. Lefholtz has succeeded him. Mr. Lefholtz continues to handle the Butterfly pictures.

C. L. Booth, manager of the Jewel Exchange, has established offices in the Universal building at Twelfth and Farnam streets.

Exhibitors Hold Ball

The Exhibitors' Association of Queens County has announced its Movie Ball for January 25, at Schuetzen Park, Astoria, L. I.

EXHIBITORS' PERSONALS

ARIZONA.—Alfred Rabogliatti, manager of the Elks theatre at Martin, recently bought the Martin theatre on South Broad street, Martin, and will personally manage both.

CALIFORNIA.—Fred Autden Kamp of Laguna Beach has bought the Downey theatre at Downey.

R. Derby, J. Enos and L. H. Killingsworth have bought the Lincoln theatre at Richmond from W. S. Godfrey and O. B. Attkisson, and have already assumed management.

C. E. Howard and N. O. Turner have purchased the new Grass Valley theatre in Grass Valley. Mr. Turner will personally conduct the management of the house, having as an assistant Herman Kersken.

Clay H. Powers has bought a motion picture theatre at Klamath Falls, where he has moved and will personally superintend matters.

J. H. Wilson, manager of the T and D theatre at Hanford, has been appointed manager of one of the T and D theatres at San Francisco. C. C. Angley of Bakersfield has been appointed his successor.

George Campbell of San Francisco has purchased from D. D. Baxter the motion picture theatre at San Anselmo, and has already assumed active management.

COLORADO.—L. A. Carlin has sold his Rex theatre at Firestone to F. J. Potestio, who also conducts a general merchandise store at that place.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.—Harry M. Crandall, head of Crandall's circuit of theatres, has taken over the American theatre, at First and Rhode Island avenue northwest Washington, and has added it to his chain of houses. The acquisition of the American gives Mr. Crandall one of the strongest and most compact groups of motion picture theatres in the East, practically covering every section of Washington.

ILLINOIS—I. G. Ingersoll has leased the A-Mus-U theatre, Table Grove, from H. W. Perry.

Allendale now has a motion picture theatre, with Elijah Greathouse as manager. The Clyde King building has been purchased by Mr. Greathouse and new equipment has been installed. Allendale has been without a picture house for a number of years.

Herman Hexter, former Ottawa clothing merchant, has embarked in the theatrical business at Camp Grant, Rockford. He has just completed the erection of a large movie theatre which opened December 15. It is located just north of the main entrance to the camp, with a seating capacity of one thousand. It includes a vaudeville stage, as Mr. Hexter will put on a vaudeville show in addition to the pictures if there is a demand for it.

The grounds and building represent an investment of $12,000, and it is in the thick of the small settlement of commercial houses which has sprung up just outside the camp. Just south of the theatre is a branch of Henry C. Lytton's Chicago Hub.

Dominica Frisina, proprietor of the Majestic theatre, Charleston, has taken an option on the Rex theatre and the deal is expected to be closed in a day or so.

It is believed that Frank Francis will be a partner in the business and both theatres will be operated at less expense and be able to book greater attractions for the Charleston screen fans.

In case the theatres are combined, as expected, Mr. Jackson of the Rex may go into the theatre business in another city.

J. D. Casteel has purchased the Star Opera House at Oakford from J. H. Garber.

INDIANA.—W. C. Senior has assumed the management of the Grand theatre, Decatur.

J. C. Rucker of Attica has purchased the Princess theatre, Williamsport, from Miss Lelia Hollin, who acquired possession only about a month ago.

Julius Nassau has sold out his interest in the Columbia and International theatres at Indiana Harbor.

W. R. Thompson of Gaston has taken the management of the Pastime theatre, Hartford.

IOWA.—E. A. Moon has opened a new motion picture theatre at Knoxville.

KENTUCKY.—C. G. Ginter and several associates have purchased from J. A. Lightner, the latter's half interest in the business of the Colonial Theatre Company, Winchester.

William Small has leased the Tabb theatre, Mount Sterling, from Messrs. Judy and Gay and assumed active management January 1.

MARYLAND.—M. Baumgarten has reopened the Paterson theatre at 1202 Laurens street, Baltimore.

NEBRASKA.—J. W. Crough has purchased the Elite moving picture theatre at Saint Paul.

Thietje and Case have purchased the Ideal moving picture house at West Point.

L. H. Martin has opened a new moving picture theatre at Blue Springs.

George Allgaier, Jr., has purchased the moving picture theatre at Nelson.

NEW MEXICO.—Joseph V. Yeager, owner and manager of the Rex theatre, Caton, has leased the Lyric theatre at Albuquerque from Arthur Everitt, and will assume charge April 1 next.

James Carragien has bought the Princess and Crystal theatres at Deming from the Hull Amusement Co.

NEW YORK.—Mary F. Augar of Utica has sold to Ira B. Cary the theatre property located at 886 Bleecker street.

An important transaction in the theatrical affairs of Geneva was completed recently when L. C. Brady, manager of the Regent theatre, signed a lease to conduct moving pictures at the Smith Opera House.

Mr. Brady plans to produce at the Smith Opera House first class moving pictures in connection with the regular high-class attractions.

Ray Clover of Scranton, Pa., will succeed Mr. Brady as manager of the Regent.

OHIO.—D. M. Detrick has bought the Idlehour motion picture theatre at Kenton and has installed A. W. Reel of Bellefontaine as manager. A new set of projecting machines has been put in and the theatre remodeled.

Carl Stahley of Middletown has been appointed assistant manager of the Rex theatre.

WISCONSIN.—C. A. Nelson and E. H. Neef have leased the Idle Hour theatre at Phillips.

G. W. Leyds and Fred Grunwell of Deerfield have purchased the entire motion picture outfit from E. J. Welsh, and assumed active management last week.

Proctor Takes Over Pathe Chicago Branch

Ralph O. Proctor has been appointed and has taken over his duties as Chicago branch manager for Pathe, succeeding C. W. Bunn, now special representative.

Mr. Proctor is considered one of the most competent and best-known film men in the Central West. He made his entry into the film business with the old Burton and Webster theatres in Chicago. For two years he remained with them. This initiatory process proved so interesting that he decided to learn the exhibiting game from the bottom up. In consequence, after leaving the Burton and Webster Company, he spent some time as a motion picture operator.

After his term of service and acquiring the rudiments in full, he went with the General Film Company, and served in all capacities, ranging from inspector to branch manager in Chicago for two years. He was manager of the office until December, 1915. He then went to Des Moines as special representative there, and in Omaha and Kansas City. He later took charge of the Kansas City exchange until May, 1916.

Exchange Man Joins the Colors

Branch Manager R. S. Nelson, of General Film Company's Denver office, will give up his position on January 1 to enter the new National Army. He expects to be assigned to one of the Western camps, and will leave immediately to join the colors. In his absence Eugene Gerbase will serve as acting manager.

The Denver office will move to its new quarters at 1539 Weltson street the first of the year.

In and Out of West Coast Studios

By J. C. Jessen

HENRY LEHRMAN has two Fox Sunshine Comedies in production at the present time, one headed by Billy Ritchie as the chief comedian, dealing with hotel life. The other has Ford Sterling as his principal comedian, and for it a great quantity of elaborate settings and unusual effects have been built. In addition to directing two Sunshine Comedies, Mr. Lehrman is finding it convenient to appear in many of the scenes in the Ritchie subject. Neither of the comedies have as yet been named.

Triangle Increases Work

Indications at the Triangle studios point to a material increase in production, and by some it is whispered about that within a few weeks productions totaling twenty dramatic subjects per month will be filmed. No statement is given for increasing the output, and up to this time no additions have been added to the producing staff outside of the scenario department and a number of new writers have been added.

But one new subject was put in production last week. This is at present known as "Work and Its Worth," which will have William Desmond as star, supported by Mary Warren, Wilbur Higby, Mary MacIvor and others.

The Japanese photoplay, with Derral Foss and Teddy Sampson as leads, has been completed by E. Mason Hopper, and permanently titled "Her American Husband" instead of "Mr. Butterfly."

Gilbert P. Hamilton has made the last scenes for "Captain of His Soul," which has William Desmond, Charles Gunn and others; and Jack Dillon finished "Heiress for a Day" in record time in order that the star, Olive Thomas, could depart for the East to spend a vacation.

Two companies are working on Western subjects. One is that under the direction of Cliff Smith with Roy Stewart as star. This unit is still on "Keith of the Border." A very brutal fight was enacted between Stewart and Pete Morison this week, and will serve for a number of scenes in this photoplay. Those who witnessed the action say the men fought until almost exhausted.

Weather Conditions Good

Weather conditions have been even better than satisfactory, and up to this date the film companies have been delayed but a few days because of cloudy weather. No rain has prevented production so far this fall and winter. The good weather has been exceptionally beneficial for the Universal Company, as it made possible the filming of scenes for serials otherwise impossible. Both serial companies, under the direction of Harry Harvey and James Horne, have spent the greater part of the past several weeks on exteriors, and when the rainy season does begin they can catch up with their interiors to good advantage.

Two new stories were put in production at Universal City this week. Director Elmer Clifton has Herbert Rawlinson in a photoplay adapted from a magazine story titled "Mr. Cinderella." Priscilla Dean has been chosen to play the feminine lead.

The Western Company, headed by Harry Carey, is now at work on "The Hill Billy." Molly Malone is the principal support, and the company is under the direction of Jack Ford. The story is accredited to George Hively.

Director Wilfred Lucas and company, headed by Monroe Salisbury and Ruth Clifford, were absent from Universal studio last week, having spent the past ten days on the desert north of Los Angeles. Here exteriors for "The Heart of the Desert" are being filmed.

Jack Richardson and Claire McDowell Star in Triangle's "Man Above Law"

Director Allen Holubar has completed the filming of "The Girl Who Dared," with Dorothy Phillips, supported by William Stowell as leading man, and Miss Phillips will shortly begin work with Ida May Park in a new story especially written for her. The subject, just finished, has a Canadian Northwestern atmosphere.

Hart Subject Awaits Name

Until the film is edited completely and ready for the market, no name will be given the fifth William S. Hart production for Artcraft, which was completed last week at the Hart studios in Hollywood. The subject is now being given the final double O's at the laboratories of the Thomas H. Ince studio, and in the meantime the star and producing company is enjoying a holiday vacation.

Mr. Hart, to celebrate the completion of the film, spent an afternoon with his Pinto pony Fritz at Fritz's home near the beach. The star found his pensioned former mount exceedingly glad to see him, and after a month of enjoyable life on pasture and in privately cared quarters was so full of pep he would allow no one but his master to go near him. In appreciation of Fritz's roguish manner of showing his appreciation, Hart presented him with several Christmas gifts, one being a blanket that will cause envy in the hearts of all who see it.

Now that Director R. William Neill and the Dorothy Dalton-Ince Company have completed the first C. Gardner Sullivan story for Paramount or Artcraft program, which is at present known as "Love Me," the organization has taken up the making of an Alaskan story in which picturesque scenery will play a very important part. The making of this film will take the producing unit away from the studio a greater portion of the next three or four weeks.

Russell Completes One

During the past week the William Russell American Company, directed by Edward Sloman, completed the last of the series of six subjects Mr. Russell was contracted to appear in. This is at present known as "Detective Dan Cupid," and spoken of as a comedy-drama filled with athletic stunts of a thrilling type. There is much speculation as to whether Russell will continue with the American Company for the Mutual or not, as no announcement has been made concerning whether Mr. Russell's contract has or has not been renewed. The contract made by President S. S. Hutchinson more than a year ago terminates with the completion of this picture. It is definitely known that President Hutchinson made a special trip to the coast to renew the contract with William Russell, but no information has been given as to whether terms were reached. Russell has proven a very popular player for the American in the three years he has been affiliated with this organization. For two years Mr. Russell has worked under the direction of Edward Sloman, whose contract was very recently renewed for a term of one year, which is a compliment to Director Sloman for his very satisfactory results. Sloman and Russell have worked together for a longer period than any other star or director as far as is known by the writer. The association has been continuous for the past two years, and all of that time the work of making five-reel subjects has been carried on.

In the subject just finished, "Detective Dan Cupid," Russell is supported by Francelia Billington in the leading feminine role and Harvey Clark takes the principal character part, that of an English butler. Some of the thrills for this were secured at the liberty sweepstake races held at Ascot Park, Los Angeles, and the film will show Eddie Hearne in his race against time, in which he lowered the fifty-mile record for the world. Barney Olfield will also be seen in his record-shattering mile in forty-five seconds.

Three Leading Men

With William V. Mong, George Hernandez and Walt Whitman, all character men, playing in one comedy drama, "The Hopper," for T. N. Heffron, leads the production officers of Triangle studio to believe it will be an exceptional picture. It is an adaptation from the story by the same name which appeared in Collier's Weekly. Mong grew a beard to play the leading role in this picture, and is now promised possibilities of a shave on New Year's Day.

Director Walter Edwards has the cooperation of Kate Corbaley, author of "Real Folks," the first prize story of the Triangle Photoplay Magazine Contest. Mrs. Corbaley is spending considerable time at the studio working with the director and his players. Principals are Barney Sherry, Francis McDonald, Fritzi Ridgeway and Alberta Lee.

The scenario department is working more than over-time. Julian Johnson, editor and chief, is giving particular attention to the adaptation of "Shoes That Dance," now in preparation. This play will have as its central figure a department store girl, who saves her lover from arrest by captivating a detective who appears at a mask ball in the make-up of Charlie Chaplin. Pauline Stark has been assigned to play this leading role.

Frederick Bechdolt, magazine writer and author of a number of short subjects for Kalem, is working on "The Hard Rock Breed," and Kenneth B. Clark is adapting his Saturday Evening Post story, "Blue Tattooing."

New Episode Started

The ninth episode of "The Bull's Eye" has been started at Universal City by Director James W. Horne.

Mae Murray is appearing in "The Eleventh Commandment" under the direction of Robert Leonard. F. McGrew Willis wrote the story.

"Dona Perfecta," under the direction of Elsie Jane Wilson, with Ella Hall and Emory Johnson in the leading roles, has been finished. The story was written by B. Perez Galdoz and prepared for the screen by Elliott J. Clawson.

Rea Berger has been engaged by the Universal to direct Zoe Ray, the child actress. Preparations for his first story, "Litte Miss Sherlock," which was written by Norris Shannon, are under way. Gretchen Lederer, William Carroll and Val Paul will constitute the supporting cast.

Wilfred Lucas is at work on "The Heart of the Desert," in which Monroe Salisbury and Ruth Clifford appear. The story was adapted for the screen by Bess Meredyth from the book by Honore Willsie. Other important parts are being played by Val Paul, Gretchen Lederer, Monte Blue, Al Sears and Princess Neola.

Louise Huff Shifted

Jack Pickford has gone to New York for a vacation, and Louise Huff will be shifted from the Morosco studio to the Lasky, where she is to appear in the J. Stuart Blackton production, together with Theodore Roberts and Jack Mulhall.

The next film in which Constance Talmadge appears will be "The Shuttle," which is to be directed by Rollin S. Sturgeon. Harvey Thew of the Lasky scenario staff prepared the scenario and the Talmadge production will be filmed at the Morosco stages.

William C. De Mille has completed the production of "One More American," in which George Beban enacted the leading role. The story is an adaptation of the De Mille play, "The Land of the Free." The next De Mille production will be a Marion Fairfax story with Sessue Hayakawa in the leading part.

Eugene Pallette is not to appear in the next Mary Pickford film. Pallette has been given a commission in the Aviation Corps and is already on his way.

Lucien Littlefield, who went to France with the Ambulance Corps, has also earned a commission in the Aviation Corps. Littlefield was formerly with the Lasky Company.

Metro on Location

The Tod Browning-Metro Company was absent from the studio last week working in the vicinity of Pine Crest, near Bear Lake Valley, on exteriors for the story, "Revenge," which has Edith Story and Ralph Lewis as principals.

Charles Brabin, who arrived last week from New York to become director for the Metro, has spent the week with H. P. Keeler of the scenario department, and together they have written an original story which has a New England seacoast atmosphere. Brabin is now selecting locations for exteriors of this story, which will be taken at Santa Cruz Island, Oceanside, and La Jolla, all on the Califorina Pacific coast. The Metro Company has leased the boat "Fremont," and considerable time will be spent by the producing company on the ocean.

Telegrams from B. A. Rolfe advise that he is on his return trip from New York after spending thirty-six hours there. Mr. Rolfe left the Coast December 15 and is due to arrive in Los Angeles on Christmas afternoon. He took the first two Western-made Metro subjects, "The Legion of Death" and "The Winding Trail," to the New York offices of the Mtro Company.

Real Japanese Lunch

A number of members of the Japanese Photoplay Association of Los Angeles who took part in scenes of "Her American Husband," produced by E. Mason Hopper, on completion of the film tendered a dinner to all members of the cast at a Japanese cafe in Los Angeles. The dinner was served in Japanese style. The guests sat upon mats and used chopsticks instead of the usual tools. Among the guests were O. L. Sellers, Mr. and Mrs. Bryant Washburn, Mr. and Mrs. E. Mason Hopper, Teddy Sampson, Derral Foss and the Japanese players Yukio Aoyama, Goro Kino, Henry Kotani and others.

Practically all Keystone Comedy producing units are at work on new subjects this week. Harry Depp and Max Asher are being featured in "Fork Over," supported by Alatia Marton, Nate Salmon, Rose Carter and others. This comedy is by Albert Glassmire, director of production. The character make-up created by Depp for this subject is considered so good that he will in all probability use it in a series of pictures.

The company, under the direction of Reggie Morris, is filming "Did She Do Wrong?" with a big cast that is topped by Harry Gribbon who has the support of Myrtle Lind, Dora Rogers, Mal St. Clair, Milburn Moranti and others. The comedy is said to be a riddle to the last scene, when the big problem is solved. Harry Gribbon takes the part of a city slicker who has taking ways and bids fair to prove himself a pretty slick article of the brand desired for a correct delineation of the part.

Harry Carey and Molly Malone in Universal's "Back to the Right Trail" Lend Excellent Work to the Director's Equally Good Choosing of Ideal Backgrounds

System Made Stars

"The Triangle system of production and distribution made a large majority of the stars of to-day and carried them to the point where it was necessary to pay them such exorbitant salaries that their pictures could not be offered to exhibitors at a price which we felt to be equitable. There is only one course to follow in producing any commodity, and that is the course which makes the product marketable. Exhibitors will not stand for low quality nor exorbitant prices. These problems have been met by putting in the field an organization of writers, directors, and actors, each of whom is peculiarly qualified for his individual task. All the units are so harmonized that the right sort of plays are acted by people qualified to play the parts assigned them. We depend on the merit of combined efforts for our box-office value, and we get it. It's nothing very new, just a new application of the old axiom that no man is so good that he cannot be replaced.

"The year ahead promises a new era of constructive work. No doubt we shall see some plan worked out to better adjust the natural differences between the producers and exhibitors. Perhaps the movement of the latter to make the distributing field a part of their own work will gain considerable headway. Whatever the means of bringing it about, mutual confidence must have a chance to grow, if all elements are to prosper."

American Makes Additions

Production of "Molly Go Get 'Em," which is being directed by Lloyd Ingraham, continues at the studio where a number of very attractive interior settings have been built. When President S. S. Hutchinson was on the coast recently, he gave explicit orders for the more lavish dressing of all interiors, and the technical staff has, it is reported, gone the limit in the making of a ball room set Director Ingraham is using. Margaret Allen was especially engaged for an important part in this photoplay.

Several additions have been made to the American scenario department. Clifford Howard continues as department head, but will give all of his time in the future to the editing of scripts. James E. Hungerford, who has written a number of pictures for the screen, is now engaged on a story for the William Russell Company. Elizabeth Mahoney is writing a continuity for a Charles Turner Dazey story for William Russell, and Myron N. Stearns is engaged on another.

Harry Edwards, late director of Nestor Comedies at Universal City, is a new member of the Triangle-Keystone directorial staff, and is now casting his first picture. He will probably have the players who were formerly under the direction of Harry Williams. This boosts the number of companies working at the Keystone up to five, the others being directed by William Beaudine, Reggie Morris, Herman Raymaker and Charles Avery.

Monroe Salisbury, who is being starred in another Bluebird feature under the direction of Wilfred Lucas, sprang a surprise on his companions recently when scenes were being taken at Seven Oaks with Rupert Julian. A benefit performance was given and Mr. Salisbury gave two pianoforte solos, disclosing the fact that he is a brilliant pianist. He is a modest man and seldom talks about himself and only recently had a photoplay accepted by one of the big producing companies.

Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle Was the Center of Attraction at the Ball Given in His Honor Recently by Horkheimer Brothers

Hollywood Hookum

Jan. 12, 1918 NEWS MORE NEWS

CLOSE-UPS

BY CON TRIB

Why Do They Know Him?

Chief of Police Butler of L. A., according to M. G. Jonas' carbon copy, is the man who never neglects an opportunity to call and say "Hello" to his friends among the Bluebird players at Universal City.

"Good morning, Judge."

Cheerful as a Funeral

Max Asher bidding good-bye to a fellow player who enlisted in the submarine service:

"Well, Eddie Gribbon, old top, whatever happens remember that the best wishes of the gang go down with you."

Famous Sayings by Famous People.

"Fritz is just hellish, but as smart as any man." Bill Hart.

"When I was selling buttons." Hal Cooley.

"Did I ever tell you that story about—." Walter MacNamara.

From the publicity department of Doug. Fairbanks Film Corporation comes an interview supposedly with the wild man himself: "The motion picture game is just in the beginning, and so far it is a 'business' most decidedly. You can't call it an art, when a raw beginner can start at the bottom of the ladder today and in three months arrive at the top. Artists are not made that quickly.

"I have no illusions about it. I know that those of (75 word limit).

Not a cloud.

"The Crusade" is to be the debut production for Sophye Barnard.

In the future it is to be Marion Torrey instead of Marianna de la Torre.

Vester Pegg has joined the army and so he dropped the fictitious name of Perry.

Mario Bianchi, Keystone Triangle Italian comedian, is playing the role of a German policeman.

Cliff Smith has joined the aristocratic class and is sportin' a new automobile of the go-devil type.

American's alliteration Mary has been assigned life insurance by an aviator at North Island, San Diego.

Polly Moran after owning seven automobiles — Saxophones and Buicks, is now dashing about in a Chandler.

The mystery is solved: Double H Van Loan has been found polishing the mahogany near Fifth and Spring.

Ben Turpin was knocked cold when hit by a plaster of paris model, and an unkind person was mean enough to say he was as sensible one time as another.

The "jules" publicity story is out again. This time from the over-worked P. A. of Triangle—J. B. Woodside. Belle Bennett hasn't found them yet.

Bob Leonard is learning to eat spaghetti, and he has become so fond of the wop staple that he has Norman MacNeill play an accordion in all scenes.

We learn that three publicity men are to work in the same room at the Lasky studio—Adam Shirk, Ken. McGaffey, and Irisher Dowling. Gas masks will be used.

R. Henry Grey, who has his hair cut every four days, has been given a bonus of a million shares of stock in Consolidated Crepe Hair, if he'll permit the white wing to follow him on the fourth day.

Al Curtis came in from snow-clad Denver, and has been knocking our weather with the oft repeated statement, "that the mile high city has more sunshiny days per annum than our beflowered midst." Al, this cannot be.

The Fox Company wired a hotel keeper in the heavy snow district of northern California to let them know when the beautiful fell. "Plenty of snow now" came over the wire, and a company of thirty went north. They found the hotel vacant with respect to guests and no snow on the ground. Then they waited a week, and no snow fell. And still there are exhibitors who wonder what makes the pictures cost so.

313313 is the license number on the front and rear of Bryant Washburn's machine. He insists that thirteen or double thirteen or triple thirteen is lucky. The day he got the number he began work in "Skinner's Dress Suit." Since that time he has made a dandy little contract with Pathe and come to Los Angeles for the making of films. Now he's trying to bribe the California authorities into giving him the same number for his 1918 license.

Screen Examinations

Bringing Them Into a Close-Up

By Longacre

A RECENT fortnight gave the trade "The Cinderella Man," "The Auction Block," "Mother," "Uneasy Money," "Brown of Harvard," all pictures to be described in superlatives; all holding forth a golden promise for both exhibitor and public. And there are still those who waste copy paper, time and the amount of gray matter it takes to compose a sentence or so in English to deplore the lack of good pictures. Those five pictures, to say nothing of many which have gone before, are examples of the motion picture art at its best, not at its spectacular height, but at its even best. This seems to be striking a pretty good average. It might even indicate that the "picture business is here to stay," or that it has its "future."

But a close observer of the business will very likely call to mind the fact that none of the five pictures mentioned above were written originally for the screen. Even so. "The Cinderella Man," though a good play, failed to extend any great number of opportunities to the picture producer. "Uneasy Money" was not the type of magazine story to immediately attract the attention of the director. The beauty of "Mother" rests largely in the handling. "The Auction Block" and "Brown of Harvard" conceivably presented an adequate amount of pictorial material, only requiring final whipping into shape by the adaptor.

So the antagonist of the screen might be forgiven if he selected these pictures as owning a source other than the studio or the enthusiastic writer for the screen. But by going back another week, there appear "My Little Boy," "Until They Get Me," "Those Who Pay" and "Convict 993," attractions of as much merit and of equal promise. Not one of these bears the name of an author known without the world of pictures. And yet these are pictures that will send an audience away in a satisfied frame of mind.

Consequently one may pop the question: "What is the score?" "Has the screen its own writers of ability?" To the first there is no answer. To the second the affirmative is obviously the only reply. For the first: As long as works of merit appear on the stage or in magazines, it is only reasonable to advance the theory that their merits will show on the screen, even though their framework must of necessity be altered to meet the new requirements.

And as to the second to say that the screen has no writers of ability is to absolutely belittle the works of C. Gardner Sullivan and Anthony P. Kelly, of Lambert Hillyer and Lynn Reynolds, of Charles Maigne and Roy Somerville, of Monte Katterjohn and Jeanie MacPherson, and of many more who have studied the possibilities of the screen story and developed them to their fullest extent.

Certainly comparing the output of the studios at the present time with the output a year ago, there is an improvement of marked degree. "The deplorable lack of stories" has long been the cry, but the few examples cited above all appearing within the short space of three weeks seems to put this pessimistic assertion quite to route. If this average can be maintained throughout the coming year the producer has just cause to pat himself on the back and laugh at the misdirected innuendos of the few who will forever refuse to award pictures their proper place in the field of entertainment.

All of which is more or less by way of introduction. The future purpose of this department will be to call the attention of the trade to the progress made in the production of pictures, the progress generally referred to as revolutionizing as well as the minor points of progress which cannot be deservedly spoken of in a review. And, of course, mistakes cannot be ignored or avoided. Their mention here will be made purely in a spirit of well-meaning criticism.

To begin with, there are the subtitles in Metro's special production, "Blue Jeans." "Blue Jeans" is, by the way, a picture of the old melodramatic type which should prove commercially successful in the majority of localities. With its thrilling saw mill scene as a finale, and the tremendous amount of appeal which the heroine will attract, it possesses two big assets which are noteworthy in themselves. As for its subtitles. These have probably been more extensively commented upon than any other subtitles since the art directors conceived the idea of embellishing the printed inserts with symbolical sketches and silhouettes suggestive of the action. The background for these subtitles was formed by throwing up a single frame of film, clipped from the action immediately preceding or following the title. Most of them were spoken by one or another of the characters.

The effect created is somewhat inclined to throw the spectator out of the illusion created by the melodrama. Every one knows the misapprehension caused when a film that has previously been running through the machine as smooth as could be desired suddenly buckles and stops dead. The players grow stiff in their tracks. They pause with uplifted arm or open lips, the imperfections, not visible in the moving film suddenly stand out with surprising vividness. It is this result that is produced by the subtitles first introduced in "Blue Jeans."

But while not pleasing in their present state of development, these subtitles deserve further attention. Would it not be possible for the backgrounds to be photographed in motion as is the main action itself? One of the chief faults with these inserts was that while the printed matter on the still action plainly indicated that a conversation was in progress, the figures in the background did not move. Why not allow them to move? Not with the same degree of difference that is allowed in the general line of action, but only slightly so that the desired illusion of reality may be carried through subtitle and all. This method of procedure might be worth experimenting with at least, for if successful it would do away with the sudden and sometimes disconcerting break in the pictured action caused by the insertion of a plain subtitle.

To return to "The Cinderella Man," the exceedingly fine direction of George Loane Tucker's has received an equally worthy complement in the art direction of Hugo Ballin. This includes a number of scenes with snow on the ground—or rather on the roof. Mr. Ballin's property snow is so realistic that it fooled more than one wiseacre into believing it was the real thing. Mr. Ballin and Goldwyn alone possess the secret of its manufacture, it is to be surmised, but the recipe should be placed on the market for the benefit of the industry at large. Then at last would snow be possible in Los Angeles right on the studio lot, snow that would not remind one of a confettied wedding, and which the closest observer would easily mistake for the real article. Now if some director, Mr. Ballin perhaps, would only invent a realistic rain effect we might be spared the agony of watching the results of an automatic sprinkler, buckets, spring water and a property man united in an effort to imitate the storm clouds.

"Quo Vadis"

(Perfection—Eight Reels)

Reviewed by Lisle M. Albright

WHEN George Kleine conceived the idea of bringing forth this great photoplay again, after leaving it on the shelf for four years, he judged rightly that it was a production that was not made for an age but for all time. In its present form, after being re-edited, furnished with new subtitles and cut down to eight reels, it again presents an appeal that only the blind, the mentally warped and the dead can refuse to hear.

Taken from Henry Sienkiewicz's great novel dealing with the early Christian era and the voluptuous profligacy of Rome during Nero's reign, "Quo Vadis" synthesises a number of themes any one of which would have made a picture by itself. It has the spectacular on a grand scale, shows the burning of Rome and revivifies the arena of history with its gladiators, bull fights, and utter disregard of human life when the Emperor's lust for blood had to be satiated.

A love story is introduced in which Vinitius, a Roman patrician, loses his heart to a Christian girl held by Nero as a hostage. One of the best character parts ever seen on stage or screen is played by Chilo, a soothsayer and philosopher, who works his way from beggar up to nobleman through flattery and betrayal of the Christians only to repent when he realizes the enormity of his treachery.

The persecution of the Christians and the historical events of the time are spread before the eye in a way that is especially illuminating, showing, as they do, the analogy between the great crisis then and the world ferment of the present day. All of this, however, is merely a roundabout way of saying that "Quo Vadis" is a long way from being an ordinary picture and that it ought to prove even more of a drawing card now than it did four years ago.

"Sadie Goes to Heaven"

(Essanay-Perfection—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Joseph L. Kelley

"SADIE GOES TO HEAVEN" presents the best work that Little Mary McAlister has done before the camera. A good bit of her success is due to the excellent story which Dana Burnet has created for reproduction on the screen. It is one of the most human, pathetic stories screened in some time and gives the little child actress every opportunity to present her most likable traits for approval on the screen.

The production presents a fine example of properly done continuity and attests in a most favorable manner the care which the author has taken in building the plot. There is just enough plot material for five reels of pictures and the action has been kept at a pace that moves with dramatic precision and advances with a purpose in every scene. The most appropriate descriptive work to use in criticizing this picture is to say that it is a charming photoplay, presenting a most charming little star at her best. There is not a question as to this feature's entertaining value. All will find in this production, clean, unadulterated amusement in the picture theatre.

The story has been worked to perfection. Enough and no more action has been supplied. The homely, human traits of youngsters and the eccentricities of the idle rich, are brought out in such a matter-of-fact, true-to-life manner that old or young can not but enjoy every moment of its run, for every move that the players make can be appreciated for every move is human not feigned or acted.

Little Mary McAlister shines in the production. She acts with a grace of abandoned movement, and interprets the spirit of carefree childhood with the artistry that can be displayed only by an accomplished, talented child. Jenny St. George, in the character role of a tenement-house mother, gives an excellent performance. She is due a lot of credit for her work in this picture. Other members of a good supporting cast are: Russell McDermott, Frankie Raymond, Rodney LaRocque, Kathryn Kennedy and Bobby Bolder. It has been given a careful, detailed production. The photography is of the best. Last, but not least, the sub-title is to be given a full amount of praise. He or she, whichever it may be, has done praiseworthy work with the explanatories.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Sadie O'Malley (Little Mary McAlister) is six years old, a daughter of the tenements whose mother (Jenny St. George) is a loving, hardworking woman. Sadie, inspired by a settlement worker because of her mental pictures of heaven, climbs into a laundry basket, just placed in the tonneau of an automobile, for delivery by the servant to the home of rich Mrs. Riche (Frankie Raymond). Sadie and her dog, George Washington Square, are landed safely in the basement of the Riche home. She, with George Washington Square, wanders through the house until discovered by the housekeeper (Kathryn Kennedy). The housekeeper thinks that the little girl is a new novelty with her mistress and provides her with new clothes and gives her a much needed bath. .

Mrs. Riche has left for a trip but misses the train and comes back unexpectedly. In the meantime Sadie is having the time of her life, playing with George Washington Square and Mrs. Riche's nephew, Orval (Russell McDermott). Sadie thinks that she has surely arrived in heaven.

Mrs. Riche is surprised to find the little girl in her home and chides the housekeeper for allowing her in the house. Her heart is softened toward the little girl when she finds that she loves her pet poodle dogs. Then George Washington Square makes his entrance and Mrs. Riche orders the cur to be taken from the house. Sadie refuses to stay unless George Washington Square is allowed to remain, so she is taken back to her mother and father, who have been hunting the city high and low for her. Sadie has been to heaven.

"Daughter of Destiny"

Petrova Pictures—First National—Five Reels

Reviewed by Peter Milne

USING the war for a background and centering on German intrigue in a neutral kingdom of mythical origin, though suggestively called Belmark, "Daughter of Destiny," Mme. Petrova's first picture with her own company, makes a strong bid for popularity, particularly before those whose patriotism is aroused by the somewhat obvious method of flag waving. Marion Ashley, the role carried by Petrova, is unfortunate enough to be the wife of a German spy, and later is still more unfortunate in believing him dead. But it proves to her advantage after all. In Belmark she is wooed and wed by the Crown Prince, a very democratic young man, who favors joining the war with the Allies. A Teutonic chancellor made up like Bethmann Hollweg or some one equally as villainous does all in his power to annul the marriage and force the prince into a union with the German Princess Sophia. But at the psychological moment the United States declares war on Germany, and Belmark casts her fortune on the same side of the line.

The film which was produced under the direction of George Irving is well presented in its scenes of even tenor. There is a view of the West Point cadets on parade in the first reel. The German spy is villainously painted, but not realistically. If all were like Franz Jorn no opposing nation would have the least bit of trouble with them. Of its particular type the story is strong in appeal. The heroine works heart and soul for America's interest—and so does the hero for that matter—and when they finally triumph over opposing forces great will be the rejoicing. The bit of mob stuff in the last reel is theatrically staged. The frantic waving of handkerchiefs is the sole manner in which the mob makes its demonstration.

Mme. Petrova, whose beauty peculiarly fascinates, has seldom shown more life than in her portrayal of Marion Ashley. It is to be regretted that in the love scenes with the prince of whom there are not a few, it reacts to her disfavor. Instead of conveying the impression of a woman deeply in love, Mme. Petrova only succeeds in being excited and overwrought to a most distressing extent. There are too many of these scenes, by the way, and their introduction serves to disrupt the continuity of the action which is otherwise good. Thomas Holding makes a fitting Crown Prince. Anders Randolph is polished as the spy and a most capable actor not named, who appears as the plotting German chancellor, completes the chief support.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

In Paris, before America's entrance into the war, Marion (Mme. Petrova) discovers that her husband, Franz Jorn (Anders Randolph), is a German spy. She leaves him to join her father, Ashley (Robert Broderick), American Ambassador to Belmark, a neutral kingdom. Jorn is reported burned to death in a fire, but it is merely a ruse—he has made good his escape to Germany. In Belmark Marion renews her acquaintance with the Crown Prince (Thomas Holding), which started in the United States. He proposes a morganatic marriage, swearing that he will never wed another while she lives. They are married in secret, and on the following day the German Chancellor arrives to propose a marriage between the Crown Prince and a German princess. Despite the threats the Crown Prince refuses. The Chancellor produces Jorn, but, despite him, Marion's husband declares his intention of standing by her through thick and thin. At this moment word reaches Belmark that the United States has declared war on Germany. The German Chancellor sees his cause lost. German pacifists in the crowd surrounding the palace throw a bomb intended for the prince, but, though Marion is severely wounded by the explosion, its only victim is Jorn. And so there is nothing left to interfere with the happiness of the Belmark prince and the American woman.

"The Lost Express"

(Signal-Mutual—Two Reels)

Reviewed by F. G. Spencer

THE last two episodes of "The Lost Express" titled respectively "Unmasked" and "The Return of the Lost Express" do not measure up to the standard set earlier in the series, for in the fourteenth episode, although Gaston Pitts' harelip makeup has been found, it is not clearly known that he had worn same when posing as the crook Harelip.

In the fifteenth and final chapter now that the lost express has been found and returned and the reward paid, that automatically concludes the drama.

Helen Gibson has throughout carried herself remarkably well, never hesitating at many hair-raising exploits and finally emerges wholeskinned and with a fetching smile. She is well supported, and this series will go with as great a bang as any of Helen's previous ones.

"The Seven Swans"

(Paramount—Five Reels)

Reviewed by R. E. Pritchard

TAKEN from one of Hans Andersen's universally read fairy stories, "The Seven Swans" is an especially appealing picture for this season of the year, and one that ought to attract unusual attention from the children. But it is interesting not alone to the young, but to every person who has anything of the "refuse to grow up spirit" in his heart. Given an elaborate production, the picture is ably irected by K. Searle Dawley, while the photography adds much to the delight of the offering.

It is unnecessary to say that Marguerite Clark is delightful as the princess. She has never had a role that gives a greater opportunity for her beauty and her grace. Unlike most of our so-called "great" stars, Miss Clark, when she has the role of a child, never makes the character foolish and simpering, with the idea that such [illegible] he only way to picture childhood, but she seems to have kept [illegible] spirit of youth eternally with her, and to be able always to in[illegible]ret it with the greatest charm.

[illegible]he of the most interesting scenes is that in which Miss Clark [illegible] a dance. In this scene and in several others representing [illegible]airies, a troupe of chorus girls from "Chu Chin Chow" ap[illegible]pe[illegible] The cast is an excellent one, but most of the work falls on M[illegible] Clark and Richard Barthelmess, who appears as Prince Cl[illegible]ming.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Princess Tweedledee (Marguerite Clark) is living with her father, "the King of the Seven Dials" (William Danforth), and her seven brothers, when the queen of "The Land of the Bouncing Ball" (Augusta Anderson), sets covetous eyes on the kingdom, so she conspires to have her son marry Princess Tweedledee. She then sets about to accomplish the destruction of the seven princes, and calls on the service of the witch of the bouncing ball, who changes them into seven white swans, and leads them far away from the court. But the moon fairies come to the assistance of the princess, and tell her how her brothers have been changed. They give her the sandman's bag, and she puts the inhabitants of the town to sleep and [illegible]ees, and, directed by the sandman, she finds the swans. She determines [illegible] stay and keep house for her brothers, and during this time she is seen [illegible] Prince Charming (Richard Barthelmess), who falls desperately in love [illegible]. her. About that time the moon fairies again appear to her, and tell her [illegible]t she may change her brothers back to human form if she will weave [illegible]en robes of nettles and cover the swans with them. But a condition [illegible] that she must not speak to a human being during that time. The prince [illegible]annot understand her silence, especially when she is heard speaking to [illegible]er pigeons and the swans. Finding that her enforced dumbness was about [illegible]o lose her love she returns to her native land, and there she is accused [illegible]s a witch for putting the inhabitants to sleep when she fled, and urged on [illegible]y the wicked queen she is sentenced to be burned to death. While she is [illegible]waiting in her cell for the morning on which she is to die to come the white mice suggest that she send her pigeons as messengers to summon the Prince Charming and the seven swans to her. The swans arrive just as she is about to be consigned to the pyre, and she hastily throws the not quite finished robes over them, and the swans again take on human form—except that one robe was not quite finished, and one brother is left with a white wing. At that moment Prince Charming appears, and claims his bride, while the wicked queen is sent to the death that she would have had the princess meet.

"Vengeance—And the Woman"

(Vitagraph Serial—First Three Episodes)

Reviewed by Joseph L. Kelley

THE new Vitagraph serial, "Vengeance—and the Woman," if the first two episodes can be taken as a criterion for the quality of the thirteen chapters to follow, presents the melodramatic type of photoplay that is received by the motion picture audience with applause. Like its predecessor, "The Fighting Trail," the new product from the Vitagraph Western studios, spells action with a capital. Events shape themselves in logical, dramatic sequence and Director William Duncan has lost no reelage in superfluous explanatories, but has opened with a flash of meaning action and closed both of the first two chapters with a bang.

"Vengeance—and the Woman" was written by Albert E. Smith and Cyrus Townsend Brady. William Duncan and Carol Holloway are in the featured roles. These two will be remembered as the featured players in Vitagraph's last serial, "The Fighting Trail." In the supporting cast are seen the faces of some of those who contributed such good character work toward the last production. George Holt, Tex Allen, Vincente Howard, Fred Burns, S. E. Jennings and Natalie Warfield are seen in "The Oath," the title of the first episode.

"The Oath," in two reels, is the opening chapter. "Loaded Dice" is the title of the second chapter. The serial is in fifteen chapters of two reels each.

The first chapter opens with a court-room scene. The trial of a notorious bandit has been in progress and the judge pronounces a sentence of fifteen years on the life of the bandit. John Blake (presented by William Duncan) is a prosperous railroad contractor. The seat of action is then taken to the prison where the bandit is taken. He makes a thrilling escape with his fellow-prisoners and seeks revenge from Blake. A good thrill is registered when the prisoners make their escape on a freight train, which crashes through the huge door leading from the prison inclosure. A realistic fire is shown in the final scenes. The action moves fast with some clever horsemanship presented.

The second chapter, "Loaded Dice," opens with Blake returning to his home to find it in flames and his wife, Bessie (presented by Carol Holloway), gone. The action reaches dramatic heights when Blake comes upon the escaped prisoners. The climax of this second chapter shows the bandit and his pals in the hands of the authorities and Blake's wife, who had been kidnapped by the prisoners, returned to her husband.

Practically all the action takes place in the open. Some realistic scenes of Western country are shown and Director Duncan has spared neither time nor money in detailed, careful production. The first two chapters of "Vengeance—and the Woman" are winners and should waive all doubt in the minds of the exhibitors as to the advisability of booking this serial. It's a corker—a sure bet!

"The Unscaled Peak" is the title of the third episode and is a fit companion for the first two, for it abounds in thrills and shows Helen Blake in several precarious situations. Not only is she lassoed and dragged from her horse, but is eventually left to spend a night on a mountain peak, she having cut the ropes of a suspension bridge to prevent her tormentors from following. At the present rate of development "Vengeance—and the Woman" promises many thrills. This episode is scheduled for release on Monday, January 7.

"Framing Framers"

(Triangle—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

"FRAMING FRAMERS," by Philip J. Hurn, is a comedy-drama of many and complicated situations, which interests mildly from start to finish, and which will probably result in average days for exhibitors. Its central figure is a reporter who, through the fell clutch of circumstance is discovered asleep on a park bench by one of two political rivals. Thought to be a bum of the conventional variety he is dressed up as a millionaire, introduced to the daughter of the other political aspirant and told to marry her. This the reporter does, but through his own choice. When at last the first framer is ready to announce the fact that his rival's daughter is the wife of a park bencher and so ruin his career, up steps the reporter with all sorts of affidavits that will ruin him if published. And so the framer is framed on his own account, and the lovers have the laugh on all concerned.

The story in its various twists is unusual, and should, for this reason if for no other, prove of interest. Its presentation gives greater stress to the lighter side rather than the dramatic. In fact, the only trouble with "Framing Framers" is that a number of situations holding forth promising possibilities in the way of suspense have not been realized to the best degree. A more skilfully constructed continuity might have brought forth better results in this line.

Charless Gunn is a hero with a contagious smile, Laura Sears a suitable heroine, and Mildred Delphine an adventuress true to type.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Gordon Travis (Charles Gunn), a reporter, after a mixup with gangsters, is left unconscious on a park bench. He is found by Brandon (Edward Martin), political leader, who is anxious to put his rival, Westfall (George Pearce), out of the running. He has previously prevented Ruth Westfall's marriage with a young millionaire by enlisting the service of Grace Carwood (Mildred Delphine), an adventuress. He sets Travis up in affluence, and imparts to him the fact that he will pay him well if he marry Ruth (Laura Sears). Travis proceeds successfully—but love not desire for money is responsible for his marriage. In the meantime from Grace and certain gangsters he has procured sworn statements regarding Brandon's interference in the plans for Ruth's marriage to the millionaire. As a consequence Brandon is forced to admit defeat, particularly when he discovers that his "bum" is the reporter.

Edwin Jobson, Lee Phelps, Eugene Burr, Anna Dodge, Verne Peterson and Leo Willie complete the cast.

"Two Jerry Comedies"

(Cub-Mutual—Single Reelers)

Reviewed by F. G. Spencer

IN "Jerry's Double Cross," poor Jerry being denied the hand of an antique dealer's daughter decides to end it all, and so hires a professional murderer to do the job. Later on he repents his rash act, but the party of the second part to the killing contract insists on performing his end, with the result that Jerry does some tall dodging to evade his finish. He makes good, however, later to learn the bookkeeper's scheme to defraud the antique dealer's daughter. Release date, Thursday, December 20.

"Jerry's Best Friend" is rather above the average Cub release and shows Jerry in some rather remarkable equestrian stunts. All the sub-titles are couched in rhyme of the Mother Goose style. It will be well received. Release date, Thursday, December 27.

"The Grand Passion"

(Jewel—Seven Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

IF gunplay, mob stuff and exceptional lightings were the principal ingredients of a motion picture, then "The Grand Passion," the latest Jewel production, would rank with the highest, for these ingredients it has in great abundance. Unfortunately, however, these elements so profusely employed do not serve to tell a story clearly and straight-forwardly. There is so much gunplay, so many fights, so many surging, urging mobs that the spectator comes away with a bewildered impression of it all.

"The Grand Passion" is derived from a magazine story by Thomas Addison. It appears quite evident that the adaptor sought to bring out the rough atmosphere of the munitions town at every turn. This he has succeeded in doing at the outset. But too much stress on this phase has resulted in its weakening to such an extent that an audience will possibly refuse to take it seriously as the last two reels come in view. At any rate, the adaptor has neglected the love story which, more than likely, was one of the biggest if not the big asset of Mr. Addison's original novel. The rivalry of Dick Evans and Jack Ripley for Viola's heart, meant to be friendly, sacrificing rivalry dwindles down to mere rangling, and only shows sincerity toward the finale when, however, it is almost too late.

Ida May Park has given the picture a production that is spectacular to the last degree. The atmosphere of Powderville as she presents it is typical of its name. It is explosive, wild, lustful, large street settings, huge dance halls, and saloons serve as realistic backgrounds to the almost incessant individual and mob encounters of the play.

The photography and lighting presided over by King Grey are remarkable, and serve to enhance the value of the individual scenes. Dorothy Phillips, William Stowell, Lon Chaney and Jack Mulhall do their best with roles that have not been properly characterized by the scenarioist.

The manner in which a matinee audience at the Broadway received "The Grand Passion" is perhaps a valuable record. It was expectant because of the title, interested at its promising start, impressed with the big scale on which it was done, but disappointed as repetition became obvious and little of the intimate divulged.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Dick Evans (William Stowell) is boss of Powderville—a cruel, grafting boss. Jack Ripley (Jack Mulhall) arrives to take charge of a paper contemplated by Evans, with a view of extorting more money from the Powderville citizens. On the train he makes the acquaintance of Viola (Dorothy Phillips), after protecting her from the insults of Red Pete (Bert Appling), one of Evans's henchmen. Jack's sense of fair play awakens in Evans an ambition to make Powderville clean. Viola's father, Argos (Lon Chaney), proves a stumbling-block at first, because he refuses to take Evans's motive as sincere. Both Evans and Jack fall in love with Viola, and when Red Pete makes her captive in the resort conducted by Boston Kate (Evelyn Selbie), they rush to her rescue despite the fact that Pete and Kate have a large following. The mob attacks the print shop where Viola and her protectors, including Mackey (Alfred Allen), Evans's loyal henchman, have taken refuge. When all seems lost, and with the town afire in various sections, Evans urges Jack to escape with Viola. He is mortally wounded himself. Viola insists on returning for Evans when she realizes it is for him that she bears the greatest love, but he dies in her arms.

"In Bad"

(Mutual-American—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Lisle M. Albright

IN baseball parlance William Russell would be called a "pinch hitter" if he were as successful at the bat as he is in turning out good pictures. For of late every time he has come up "to look 'em over" he has finished by crossing home plate.

In "In Bad," his latest feature, he starts out with an unquenchable delight in sports and fights and a total disregard of anything that wears skirts. After a trip to the Yucatan peninsula he still would rather meet a riot head on than walk around the block, but his attitude toward women has undergone a complete change. For he finally met a woman, and met her right in "his own aristocratic set," that meant a lot to him. And the rest of the story is an explanation of how he succeeded in getting her to realize that he meant a lot to her.

The picture moves rapidly and is full of clever comedy. Russell as usual has enough fights to last an ordinary man a lifetime and through the greater part of the life to come. In the outdoor mountain scenes and in the unusual lighting effects during the fight in the subterranean vault the American Film Company again achieves most desirable results. Francelia Billington does good work as Russell's lady love, and Bull Montana and Carl Stockdale make a pair of crooks that one would not care to meet except on the screen. Edward Sloman is the director.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Monty (William Russell) is a rough young aristocrat who doesn't care a hang for anything outside of a fight. Women don't interest him, and his aunt's offer of fifty thousand dollars if he will settle down and marry a nice girl in his own set makes him laugh.

He is boxing upstairs with Lefty Ned (Bull Montana) when Victoria Harrison (Francelia Billington) calls to see whether his aunt will accompany her father, Richard Harrison (Harvey Clark) on a treasure hunting trip to the Yucatan peninsula. During the boxing match Monty is knocked downstairs and lands at the feet of Victoria. He is smitten with her and she is disgusted with him.

When the treasure hunting party is finally made up Monte is left out, but he follows along later by himself. He arrives just in time to prevent a bunch of crooks from fleecing Mr. Harrison and stealing the treasure. He liberates the party from the tomb in which they have been locked by the workmen, first, however, extracting a promise from each. Victoria has to promise that she will marry him before he will let her out, her father has to agree to the marriage, and his aunt has to renew her promise to give him fifty thousand dollars.

First Toto Comedies

(Pathe-Rolin—Two Reels Each)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

TOTO, ex-clown at the New York Hippodrome, now Pathe comedian, makes his debut on the films in "The Movie Dummy," an original and highly amusing type of comedy. Toto imitates no one and offers a type of comedy that, particularly in his first release, registers to exceedingly pronounced effect. Under the understanding direction of Hal Roach, the Rolin producer-in-chief, there seems to be small doubt of his attaining the heights in the field of eccentric comedy.

"The Movie Dummy" is designed to bring out the abilities for which Toto is best known. He takes the place of a dummy being shipped to the Rolin studio with which the companies plan to do rough work. Acting the dummy, Toto reveals himself as completely collapsible, obviously double jointed and as boneless as a jelly fish. He is seized by the property men of the studio and slung hither and thither as carelessly as if he were actually made of rags and paper. The effect of this action is laughable to a great degree.

Toto has been surrounded by a well shaped vehicle in these two reels. The vampire with rolling eyes and the soulful ingenue to say nothing of the other conventional inhabitants of a picture studio all do their bit to assist the lead in a most commendable fashion. The incidental studio business is fine burlesque. Bud Jamieson, Marie Mosquini and Kathlyn O'Connor carry the principal supporting parts. For comparison's sake "The Movie Dummy" takes rank with the high type of two reel comedies the Rolin organization has been turning out featuring Harold Lloyd.

"The German Curse in Russia"

(Pathe—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

MANY pictures of military activities on the Western fronts of Europe have made their way to the screen but "The German Curse in Russia" is the first war film of any importance to show the manner in which warfare in the East is conducted. Surprisingly intimate views of trench life were caught by Donald C. Thompson who procured the pictures, obviously at great peril to himself. Time and again the scenes show Russian soldiers going "over the top." Not a few fall dead in their tracks, only a handful manage to stumble through the network of barbed wire and secure control of the enemy trenches—but in the end control is theirs.

An interesting section of the five reels is devoted to activities of the women's Battalion of Death, formed by the patriotic daughters of Russia. With cropped hair, men's uniforms, handling guns like veterans, they present a most inspiring and unusual spectacle which doubtless will bring a house down with applause. But the fatal side of war is also presented with no sparing of feelings. Literal piles of mangled dead are shown strewn on the bloody fields of Russia. A more heart-rending sight could not be secured.

Of great interest also are the many scenes taken in Petrograd when the social revolution with all its attendant anarchy was at its height. The streets of the city are a mass of soldiers and civilians. Propagandists of all sorts, harangue on every corner. Different sects march after banners bearing different inscriptions. Disorder is in supreme command. Any definite procedure is a thing remote. As a result the spectator gets a suggestion of the chaos that ruled in the city and which is still ruling.

Mr. Thompson has titled his scenes "The German Curse in Russia" because of the fact that he aims to show that the defeats of the Russian army, its lack of supplies and ammunition and the preachments of Linine and the Bolsheviki are directly due to the vicious propaganda offered by agents of "germany." Throughout he spells the enemy name with a small g. And Hun is relegated to the small h with the obvious result of instilling patriotism into the mind of the spectator as well as showing educational topical scenes. And for both his efforts Mr. Thompson should receive great credit. With what are probably the most interesting war pictures ever placed on the market, presented in a decidedly pro-American and anti-enemy atmosphere, he is rendering both the individual and the United States a tremendous service.

"His Own People"

(Vitagraph Blue Ribbon—Five Reels)

Reviewed by F. G. Spencer

"HIS Own People," from the pen of William Addison Lathrop and directed by William P. S. Earle, shows Harry Morey and Gladys Leslie at their best, they both being assigned roles in which to display their talents to good advantage.

The film contains many features of everyday life in Ireland and the picturesque localities are screened true to nature. The lowly cot and the stately manor are equally interesting from their different aspects and the kindly old schoolmaster, the friend and adviser of the poorer classes, is shown in vivid faith. The arrogant Lord Percival Cheltenham could perhaps have been portrayed by some one with a more aristocratic appearance, but William Dunn acquits himself fairly well in the role. Gladys Leslie as Mollie the village coquette registers anger and love forcibly and loses not an opportunity. The picture is scheduled for release on the Vitagraph program Monday, December 31, and will prove a strong box-office attraction anywhere.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Hugh O'Donnell (Harry Morey) is the blacksmith and leader among the people and very much in love with Molly Conway, charming and fine and who evinces her love for Hugh in mischievous pranks at his expense. Percival Cheltenham owns most of the village and is disliked for his war on the peasantry who poach on his acres.

Lord Percival gives a great party at his manor and among the guests is Lady Mary Thorne (Betty Blythe). She meets Hugh when she calls at his shop to have a shoe of her horse set, and impressed by his rugged manliness, asks him to call, for she is bored by the men guests. Molly, overhearing the invitation, is piqued and retaliates by flirting with Percival.

Hugh finally decides to call on Lady Mary; and Molly, stealing up to the manor, sees him graciously received by the hostess. As she stands outside the window, Percival comes upon her, and to escape his advances, she flees to the library in the manor. He pursues her and locks himself in the room with her.

That night there is a fight between the poachers and Percival's gamekeepers and a peasant is killed. A band of enraged villagers reach the manor bent on hanging Percival, arriving just in time to save Molly from harm at his hands.

Hugh pacifies the mob by promising to turn Percival over to the constable. Searching the manor for its master, he breaks into the library and finds Percival with Molly. The girl in shame and terror flees without attempting an explanation. That comes later when she goes in the night to Hugh's home and in his arms tells her story.

"Betty Takes a Hand"

(Triangle—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

ONE of Triangle's first offerings for the new year is "Betty Takes a Hand," a comedy in which Olive Thomas is the star. In the recent scenario contest conducted by Photoplay Magazine in conjunction with Triangle, the story upon which this picture is based submitted by Katherine Kavanaugh, was awarded second prize. While a number of possibilities probably presented themselves in the original 'script, it is difficult to imagine in the completed offering how the story could have been rated high enough to draw the second plum in such a contest. Quite lacking in suspense, the strength of the picture obviously relies on its comedy, but the opportunities provided in the scenario by Jack Cunningham have seldom been realized in the production.

Miss Thomas has done work of a much higher calibre in her previous vehicles. They at least have possessed action and comedy sufficient to cast her engaging presence in enjoyable settings. But too great a burden has been thrown on the shoulders of the little star in this current offering. The caprices and whims of her former appearances are gone and Miss Thomas in the character of Betty does little else than laugh at herself, while Charles Gunn as hero runs firm as a second in this capacity. And when players persist in laughing at themselves it becomes quite exasperating to the mere onlooker, particularly when he is unable to find the joke.

To be sure, there is some humor in "Betty Takes a Hand," but nowise enough to warrant a five-thousand-foot presentation. The boarding-house comedy registers now and then and George Hernandez realizes his few opportunities to exert his abilities in the comedy line with some of his usual success. But an inadequate plot and unsuccessful by-play prevent the picture from entering the list of box office attractions as a strong competitor. Jack Dillon directed and Anton Nagy turned the camera crank.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Betty Marshall (Olive Thomas), leaves her father (Frederick Vroom), for a visit with her aunt (Bliss Chevalier), who lives in the city. The aunt and her daughter (Mary Warren), have succeeded in going through a fortune in double-quick time and as a consequence Tom Bartlett (Charles Gunn), son of the millionaire (George Hernandez), is looked upon as a good catch for the girl. These two depart on a yachting trip which Tom is supposed to attend. But Tom gets a look at Betty and decides to stay home. Betty, under the impression that her father was once swindled by the senior Bartlett, at first looks with disfavor on Tom, but he soon puts her prejudices to rout. To gain money for her father Betty opens her aunt's home as a boarding house during her absence. Tom becomes the star boarder in more ways than one. Their romance is rapid and when the picture ends they are married, while Marshall and Bartlett have patched up their old misunderstanding.

Margaret Cullington, Graham Petite, June de Lisle and Anna Dodge have less important parts.

"The Man Above the Law"

(Triangle—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

"THE Man Above the Law," by Lanier Bartlett, presents as its chief male character a man both pessimistic and cynical toward civilization, religion and women. He is a squaw-man, holding sway over a settlement of Mexican Indians, providing them with whiskey in the guise of "Pain-Killer" and attaching their property in return. His sense of honor, a realization of his duty toward the Indians and to his wife, is finally awakened by the advent of a school mistress in the lonely place. His love and respect for her lead him to depart from the quarter with his wife and child, leaving the Indians in peace.

This tale is told in a suppressed monotone throughout the entire five reels. Considerable thought has been expended on the story and its theme awakens interest in many places. But the picture lacks action. It bears the old burden of too much space. The same story done in two or three reels would be twice as entertaining and the idea of the author would rise nearer the surface and still be subtle enough to evade being termed a preachment. Its strength and subtlety in its present preponderance of footage are qualities that are dulled.

Raymond Wells furnished a fine production for it. The Mexican village is a thing to be remembered and the vast loneliness of the single white man is driven home with force. Jack Richardson plays this part capably. Claire McDowell is the squaw and Josie Sedgwick the school teacher who acts as rescuing angel. May Giracia as the child contributes an appealing bit.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Duke Chalmers (Jack Richardson) maintains the only trading post in the Mexican desert. His chief sales are on whiskey which he sells to the natives at an exorbitant rate. His squaw wife, Natchah (Claire McDowell) is merely his servant although her child, Tonah (May Giracia) is the only human being at the post able to attract any affection from him. Esther Brown (Josie Sedgwick) arrives to teach school. Chalmers' dislike for anything suggesting civilization causes him to keep Tonah away from school at first but after a personal interview with Esther he consents to her attending. Chalmers finds himself attracted by the white girl and soon the two are in love. Esther reminds him of his duty to Natchah but he is inclined to disregard her because she is an Indian. Later Natchah, jealous, makes an attempt on Esther's life. Chalmers saves her. But this act of Natchah's makes him realize her great love for him. The next morning when Esther comes to the post she finds Chalmers and his family gone.

"His Mother's Boy"
(Ince-Paramount—Five Reels)
Reviewed by Peter Milne

CHARLES RAY'S thorough appreciation of the title role and his skilful interpretation of it is the outstanding feature of "His Mother's Boy," a picture based on Rupert Hughes' story "When Life Is Marked Down." Mr. Ray, who can portray the bashful, awkward youth better than any other actor on the screen, follows up his individual successes scored in such pictures as "The Pinch Hitter" and "The Clodhopper" with his realistically humorous characterization of Matthew Denton, the mother's boy from a New England town who sallies forth to Texas oil fields, there to be severely shocked by the prevailing moral code so strikingly in contrast to that in which he has been reared.

And it is Mr. Ray's acting that is responsible for the abundant comedy and the few touches of strength that "His Mother's Boy" possesses. Mr. Hughes' story is obvious in the extreme and forgets plot for the detailed character of Denton. But the numerous experiences of the awkward boy, his first sight of the tough barroom and his experience with a glass of condensed milk, his initiation into poker playing, his love making, and his final awakening to the fact that it is better to fight than to be killed, and the fracas that follows form a series of events of high entertainment value.

Victor Schertzinger, who has been responsible for all of the star's latter pictures, directed this one and has left nothing undone in the way of proper and realistic presentation. Doris Lee, a pretty little girl with an admirable sense of facial expression appears opposite Ray. Billy Elmer is a ferocious heavy and Jerome Storm has a comedy part.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Angered by the assertions of the townfolk that his late father swindled them in an oil well proposition, Matthew Denton (Charles Ray) finally breaks away from the apron tsrings of his mother (Gertrude Claire) and leaves for Texas to look into the matter. Banty Jones (Billy Elmer) superintendent of the wells has been tapping the main pipe line and selling oil on his own accord, hence the shortage in the stockholders' dividends. By a series of coincidences Denton discovers the perfidity of Banty but the latter is so much of a bully that the New Englander is afraid to act. It is only when Banty openly insults Mabel Glenny (Doris Lee) that Denton is aroused to action and in a fist and gun fight gets the better of his opponent.

Joseph Swickard and Lydia Knott as the parents of Mabel complete the cast with capable performances.

"The Hidden Hand"
(Pathe—Seventh Episode)
Reviewed by Peter Milne

"THE FIRE TRAP," the separate title of this episode of "The Hidden Hand," opens with the scene showing Doris suspended over a bed of boiling lime. Ramsey arrives just in time to save her from a horrible death and after a fight with the henchmen of the Hidden Hand succeeds in carrying her away to safety.

Flatt, the detective, who has also been working on the case secures the precious locket from the Hidden Land. To make sure that no one but himself may have admittance to the packet he removes a jewel from the locket. This finished he is attacked by the Hidden Hand and killed. Ramsey secures the jewel.

The Hidden Hand kidnaps Verda. Doris and Ramsey follow to the rescue. The culprits lead them to an apparently deserted shack. Here hero and heroine are thrown into a cellar the walls of which spout poisonous flame. A glass trap door in the ceiling offers the only means of escape. Ramsey breaks this and swinging up hangs by his knees. He reaches down to grasp Doris. At this juncture the Hidden Hand appears above and is about to attack Ramsey with a knife when the episode closes.

"Stolen Hours"
(World Film—Five Reels)
Reviewed by Peter Milne

WHILE never soaring to heights acclaimed as "gripping," "Stolen Hours," Ethel Clayton's latest World picture, runs along at a pace that is always interesting. It is a love story quite purely and somewhat more simple in which the obstacle between the lovers is the man's wife who remains unobtrusivly but firmly in the way for the greater part of the reelage and who finally assists in bringing on the happy ending by consenting to a divorce.

Without the sincerity of interpretation which is always associated with Miss Clayton's performances it might be surmised that "Stolen Hours" would have been unequal to meet even the demands of a moderately satisfied public. The picture contains more incident than actual plot, and her fine acting serves to add impetus and appeal to the somewhat scant character of the story.

It is an adaptation of a magazine story by Olive Wadsley. Travers Vale directed. John Bowers presents the role of the hero in good style.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Diana Lester (Ethel Clayton), daughter of a gambler (Joseph Herbert), meets Hugh Carton (John Bowers), member of Parliament, who takes an interest in her and places her in the care of his sister (Louise De Rigney). Unaware of the fact that Carton is married, Diana allows herself to fall in love with him. When she learns the truth she is heartbroken. Carton acquaints her with the true facts of his marriage; that his wife refuses to live with him and that she also refuses to divorce him. So Diana comes back to Carton and for a while they live together in perfect happiness. But Carton neglects his Parliamentary duties in his attentions to Diana, and she, urged to leave him by his sister, finally does so. She returns to her old home, where she accepts the attentions of Duran (Frank Mayo), a man she inspired to succeed. He asks her to marry him, realizing her past. She accepts, but before the wedding she breaks under the strain of what she has been through and becomes delirious. Carton, who has learned that his wife will divorce him, eventually finds Diana and his presence proves the means of restoring her to consciousness.

Jack Drumier, Victor Kennard, Richard Clarke and Lila Chester complete the cast.

"Her Awful Fix"
(Strand-Mutual—One Reel)
Reviewed by F. G. Spencer

CULLEN LANDIS, as successor to Jay Belasco, playing leads with Billie Rhodes, is improving right along, and in this latest release makes a good lover to the irrepressive Billie, and in "Her Awful Fix" many amusing situations are found. The play is built around a wedding party waiting for the bride, but Mary (Billie Rhodes) is visiting a friend who has a sick baby, and the baby's malady is diagnosed as smallpox and the house with the complete party is quarantined. The groom-to-be recalls that Mary is visiting a friend, and not knowing the facts he calls on her and the result is that he is cornered in the quarantine too. The diagnosis was made by a disappointed lover of Mary's who had been called in professionally. A little later, however, another doctor says the child is simply suffering from prickly heat and the quarantine is raised and wedding bells ring.

This single-reeler will be well received wherever shown. Release date, Wednesday, January 2.

"A Modern Musketeer"
(Artcraft—Five Reels)
Reviewed by Peter Milne

IN "A Modern Musketeer," Douglas Fairbanks in one bound again attains the heights of comedy, heights which have been languishing for an occupant since his former successes. For "A Modern Musketeer" is by all odds the best thing he has done while producing for Artcraft. It allows ample play for his athletic prowess, for his ability as a stunt comedian, utilizes his catching smile to excellent advantage, presents ideal romance quickened by swift touches of melodrama so closely bordering on a burlesque of it that one is at a loss whether to be thrilled or amused, and seasons the whole with a fine assortment of clever subtitles.

The fearless Douglas scales houses with his usual ease, travels on a rope faster than an ordinary human would scale a ladder and balances on his hands on the very edge of the Grand Canyon of Arizona! There are innumerable little feats of agility that the actor interpolates every now and then, all of which serve to garner that tremendously elusive pep and can it in five thousand feet of film, so securely that its only avenue of escape leads to the audience. In fact "A Modern Musketeer" is really a typical Fairbanks number, a thing which his last two efforts were not. And "typical" is altogether conservative. This effort can even safely be acclaimed his best.

Allan Dwan prepared the scenario from a magazine story and directed. He has done wonderful work in every department, particularly in the matter of subtitling. For if all the inserts in the five reels are of his creation then indeed he may write "subtitler" after his name in characters as bold as that in which he spells "director." Scenically the picture is a marvel. Many of its exteriors were photographed in all the natural grandeur of the Grand Canyon. Some of the shots procured in this indescribable locality would outshine many a view from even the better class of scenics.

A NATIONAL INSTITUTION

The Strand

Broadway at 47th. Str.

Harold Edel
Managing Director

Greetings 1918

May the recollections of the happy hours spent at the Strand be but a reminder of the many big things we have to offer you during the Glad New Year

The Strand

Marjorie Daw who has from time to time played in Artcraft and Paramount pictures in parts of more or less importance takes the lead opposite Fairbanks. A sweeter, more natural and appealing type than she would be difficult to find. Frank Campeau, Tully Marshall and Eugene Ormonde, polished actors all of them, contribute the type of support that one would expect from them.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Ned Thacker is a modern D'Artagnan—restless to the point of being cyclonic, anxious to get out of Kansas and look the world over. He is the soul of chivalry—a perfect optimist. So his father gives him a Ford and tells him to go. And he does. Out on the desert he meets the motor party of Vandeteer (Eugene Ormonde) which consists of himself, Mrs. Morane (Kathleen Kirkham) and her daughter Dorothy (Marjorie Daw). Mrs. Morane is anxious to have Dorothy marry Vandeteer because of his wealth but naturally Ned's appearance forecasts an altogether different conclusion. In the Grand Canyon an Indian guide (Frank Campeau) sets eyes on Dorothy and determines to have her for his own. How she is rescued by the daring Ned and how he eventually wins her for his own provides a strong finish to the delightful picture.

"The Girl by the Roadside"

(Bluebird—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

THE word "kittenish" just naturally fits Violet Mersereau. It is the one word which flashes to the mind when one sees her pouting in a closeup or playing pranks on her sweetheart of the picture. It is this which is the outstanding feature in "The Girl by the Roadside," an adaptation of the novel by Varick Vanardy made by John Brownell and directed by Theodore Mastron.

The plot supplies a moderately interesting tale, concerning a girl who is at first unaware of the fact that her brother is a counterfeiter. Her efforts are chiefly confined to keeping Boone Pendleton, the man she loves, from discovering this shadow that darkens her life, at the same time helping her brother to escape the secret service agents at every turn. It is melodrama of the average type, made more enjoyable by the

(Continued on page 302)

HAROLD J. BINNEY—SAYS:—

MASTER MOTION PICTURE COMPANY
(INCORPORATED)
Producing "MASTERPICTURES"

Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 14, 1917.

Chamber of Commerce,
Jacksonville, Fla.

Gentlemen: Permit me to express my very great appreciation of the help that has been given me in getting located in your city.

Your Motion Picture Service Department has been of great help to me regarding locations, props, extra talent and in fact all that is needed by our profession. The maintenance of this department I am sure will be of much value to the companies that visit Jacksonville and I do not doubt but what every one of them will greatly appreciate it.

In my opinion Jacksonville offers every advantage possible, except mountain locations, to the producing companies and it seems to me that your organization is doing just the right thing in showing a desire to co-operate with the companies that come here. If you keep up this good work I am sure that the results that you will receive will greatly please you. Moving picture companies circulate an enormous amount of money and the more of it that is spent in your fair city the better for your merchants and community generally.

Again expressing my pleasure over the service rendered me, I am,

Yours very truly,
(Signed) H. J. Binney, President.

"This Co-operation Makes Filming in Jacksonville a Pleasure"

Write, wire, phone or call—We will do as much for you

JACKSONVILLE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE,

Motion Picture Service Department JACKSONVILLE, FLORIDA

OF COURSE YOU WILL BE THERE!

No one interested in the Motion Picture Industry can afford to remain out of the Motion Picture Exposition

To Be Held in the Grand Central Palace

New York City

FEBRUARY 2 to 10, 1918

Under the auspices of the NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF THE MOTION PICTURE INDUSTRY and MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS' LEAGUE OF AMERICA

Here is an unusual opportunity to bring your products before the people you wish to reach.

All those interested in the trade and profession will be there.

As a combined sales and advertising proposition the exposition will be unequalled.

BETTER GET YOUR SPACE NOW—IT IS GOING FAST!

Write To-Day For Space Diagram and Information

Motion Picture Exposition Co., Inc.

805-806 TIMES BLDG. NEW YORK

FREDERICK H. ELLIOTT, General Manager

Telephone Bryant 6743 Telephone Bryant 6744

Features---Current and Coming

Art Dramas, Inc.

Oct. 1. (Undecided) Erbograph..... 5
Oct. 8. Unto the End (Crane Wilbur) Horsley 5

Bluebird Photoplays

Dec. 3. The Raggedy Queen (Violet Mersereau) 5
Dec. 10. The Door Between (Ruth Clifford). 5
Dec. 17. My Little Boy (Ella Hall)..... 5
Dec. 24. The Scarlet Car (Franklyn Farnum) —
Dec. 31. The Girl by the Roadside (Violet Mersereau) ..... —
Jan. 7. My Unmarried Wife (Carmel Myers) 5
Jan. 14. Face Value (Mae Murray)..... 5
Jan. 21. Broadway Love (Dorothy Philips). 5
Jan. 28. The Fighting Grin (Franklyn Farnum) 5
Feb. 4. The Wife He Bought (Carmel Myers) 5

Universal Productions

Dec. 3. Fighting Mad (Wm. Stowell, Helen Gibson, Betty Schade)..... 5
Dec. 10. The Silent Lady (Little Zoe Rae, Gretchen Lederer) 5
Dec. 15. Beloved Jim (Priscilla Dean, Harry Carter)..... 5
Dec. 24. Bucking Broadway (Harry Carey, Molly Malone) 5
Dec. 31. The High Sign (H. Rawlinson, Brownie Vernon). 5
Jan. 7. The Wolf and His Mate (Louise Lovely). 5
Jan. 14. Hell's Crater (Grace Cunard)..... 5
Jan. 21. Madame Spy (Jack Mulhall)..... 5

Fox Film Corporation

(Special Features)

Dec. 2. The Babes in the Wood (Carpenter-Corbin) 5
Dec. 9. The Pride of New York (George Walsh) 5
Dec. 16. Unknown 274 (June Caprice)..... 5
Dec. 23. The Kingdom of Love (Jewel Carmen) 5
Dec. 30. For Liberty (Gladys Brockwell).... 5
Jan. 6. Stolen Honor (Virginia Pearson)... 5
Jan. 13. Cupid's Roundup (Tom Mix)..... 5
Jan. 20. A Heart's Revenge (Sonia Markova). 5

Fox Standard Pictures

Nov. 4. The Rose of Blood (Theda Bara)... 6
Nov. 18. Treasure Island 6
Dec. 2. A Daughter of the Gods (Annette Kellermann) ..... —
Dec. 9. Troublemakers (Jane and Katherine Lee). 7
Dec. 16. The Heart of a Lion (William Farnum). 6
Dec. 30. Du Barry (Theda Bara)..... 7

Goldwyn Features Corp.

Nov. 4. Sunshine Alley (Mae Marsh)..... 6
Nov. 18. Nearly Married (Madge Kennedy).. 6
Dec. 2. The Auction Block..... 6
Dec. 16. The Cinderella Man (Mae Marsh).. 6
Dec. 30. Thais (Mary Garden)..... 7
Jan. 14. Fields of Honor (Mae Marsh)..... 5
Jan. 28. Dodging a Million (Mabel Normand) 5

Ivan Feature Productions

Mar. 18. Two Men and a Woman (James Morrison, Christine Mayo, Ruybe De Remer, Guy Coombs, John Reinhardt and Helen Arnold)..... 5
June — One Law for Both..... 9

Jewel Productions, Inc.

Sept. — Come Through (Drama)..... —
Sept. — Pay Me (Drama)..... —
Sept. — Sirens of the Sea (Drama)..... —
Oct. — Man Without a Country (Patriotic). —
Oct. — The Corespondent (Drama)..... —
Nov. — The Price of a Good Time (Drama).. —
Dec. — The Grand Passion (Drama)..... —
Dec. — K (Drama). ..... —

George Kleine System

(PERFECTION PICTURES)

Nov. 5. Two Bit Seats (Taylor Holmes) (Essanay). ..... —
Nov. 19. Kill Joy (Essanay)..... 5
Nov. 26. Gift o' Gab (Essanay)..... 5
Dec. 3. Small Town Guy (Essanay)..... 5
Dec. 10. The Dream Doll (Essanay)..... 5
Dec. 17. Salt of the Earth (Edison)..... 5
Dec. 24. Sadie Goes to Heaven (Essanay)... 5

Metro Pictures Corporation

Dec. 3. The Square Deceiver (Harold Lockwood), Yorke Film..... 5
Dec. 10. Alias Mrs. Jessop (Emily Stevens), Metro. 5
Dec. 10. (Special) Blue Jeans (Viola Dana). 7
Dec. 17. God's Outlaw (Francis Bushman, Beverly Bayne), Metro..... 5
Dec. 24. An American Widow (Ethel Barrymore), Metro. 5
Dec. 31. The Avenging Trail (Harold Lockwood), Yorke Film..... 5
Jan. 7. Daybreak (Emily Stevens) Metro... 5
Jan. 14. The Winding Trail (Viola Dana) Rolfe-Metro 5
Jan. 21. The Eyes of Mystery (Edith Storey) Rolfe-Metro 5
Jan. 28. Under Suspicion (Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne) Metro... 5

Mutual Film Corporation

Nov. 5. A Game of Wits (Gail Kane)..... 5
Nov. 12. (Special) The Planter (Tyrone Power). 7
Nov. 12. Betty and the Buccaneers (American). 5
Nov. 19. Snap Judgment (William Russell), American. 5
Nov. 19. Please Help Emily (Ann Murdock), Frohman. 5
Nov. 26. The Mate of the Sally Ann (Mary Miles Minter). 5
Dec. 3. American Maid (Edna Goodrich)... 5
Dec. 10. Miss Jackie of the Army (Margarita Fischer). 5
Dec. 17. New York Luck (Wm. Russell), American. 5
Dec. 24. Her Sister (Olive Tell) Frohman.. 5
Dec. 31. Her Second Husband (Edna Goodrich). 5
Jan. 7. Molly Go Get 'Em (Margarita Fischer) 5

Paramount Picture Corp.

Dec. 3. The Eternal Temptress (Lina Cavalieri). 5
Dec. 3. The Secret Game (Sessue Hayakawa) 5
Dec. 10. The Land of Promise (Billie Burke) 5
Dec. 10. Tom Sawyer (Jack Pickford)..... 5
Dec. 17. Nan of Music Mountain (Wallace Reid). 5
Dec. 17. The Fair Barbarian (Vivian Martin) 5
Dec. 24. Love Letters (Dorothy Dalton).... 5
Dec. 24. His Mother's Boy (Charles Ray)... 5
Dec. 31. The Seven Swans (Marguerite Clark) 5
Jan. 7. Mrs. Dane's Defense (Pauline Frederick) 5
Jan. 14. Jules of the Strong Heart (George Beban) 5
Jan. 14. The Spirit of '17 (Jack Pickford).. 5
Jan. 21. Rimrock Jones (Wallace Reid)..... 5
Jan. 21. Blackton's The World for Sale..... 5
Jan. 28. The Widow's Might (Julian Eltinge) 5
Jan. 28. The Hired Man (Charles Ray)..... 5

Artcraft Releases

(PARAMOUNT)

Dec. 17. The Devil Stone (Geraldine Farrar). 5
Dec. 31. A Modern Musketeer (Douglas Fairbanks). 5
Jan. 7. Rose of the World (Elsie Ferguson). 5
Jan. 14. Dead or Alive (Wm. S. Hart)..... 5
Jan. 21. Stella Maris (Mary Pickford)..... 5

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

Dec. 2. The Little Patriot (Baby Marie Osborne, Marion Warner, Herbert Standing). 5
Dec. 9. Her Sister's Rival (Vera Colodonaya, L. M. Coronova, V. A. Polonsky) Russian 5
Dec. 16. Vengeance Is Mine (Irene Castle, Elliott Dexter, Edwin Hoyt, Frank Sheridan, Reginald Mason, Ethel Grey Terry) Astra..... 5
Dec. 23. Runaway Romany (Marion Davies, Joseph Kilgour, Matt Moore, Ormi Hawley, Gladden James), Ardsley. 5
Dec. 30. Over the Hill (Gladys Hulette, J. H. Gilmour, Daniel Mason, Wm. Parke, Jr.), Astra... 5
Jan. 6. Convict 993 (Irene Castle, Warner Oland, Paul Everton, Etheyle Cooke, Bert Starkey)..... 5
Jan. 13. The German Curse in Russia (Wat Film), Donald C. Thompson..... 5

Select Pictures

— The Barrier. 7
— The Lone Wolf (Hazel Dawn and Bert Lytell). 6
Oct. — Public Be Damned (Charles Richman). 6
Oct. — The Wild Girl (Eva Tanguay)..... 5
Oct. — Over There (Anna Q. Nilsson and Charles Richman). 6
Oct. — The Moth (Norma Talmadge)..... 6
Oct. — Magda (Clara Kimball Young),..... 5
Oct. — Scandal (Constance Talmadge)..... 5
Nov. — Her Silent Sacrifice (Alice Brady).. 5
Nov. — Secret of the Storm Country (Norma Talmadge) 5
Dec. — Shirley Kake (Clara Kimball Young). 5
Dec. — The Honeymoon (Constance Talmadge). 5
Jan. — Woman and Wife (Alice Brady..... —
Jan. — Ghosts of Yesterday (Norma Talmadge). ..... —
Jan. — The Marionettes (Clara Kimball Young). ..... —
Jan. — The Studio Girl (Constance Talmadge). ..... —

Triangle Distributing Corporation

Dec. 2. The Sudden Gentleman (Wm. Desmond) 5
Dec. 2. The Ship of Doom (Claire McDowell) 5
Dec. 9. Fanatics (J. Barney Sherry)..... 5
Dec. 9. The Learnin' of Jim Benton (Roy Stewart) 5
Dec. 16. Because of the Woman (Billie Bennett) 5
Dec. 16. The Maternal Spark (Irene Hunt).. 5
Dec. 23. Without Honor (Margery Wilson. 5
Dec. 23. Until They Get Me (Pauline Hart). 5
Dec. 30. The Gown of Destiny (Alma Ruebens) 5
Dec. 30. Framing Framers (Charles Gunn).. 5
Jan. 6. Betty Takes a Hand (Olive Thomas) 5
Jan. 6. Man Above the Law (Jack Richardson) 5
Jan. 13. I Love You (Alma Ruebens)..... 7
Jan. 13. Law's Outlaw (Roy Stewart)..... 5
Jan. 20. The Gun Woman (Texas Guinan).. 5
Jan. 20. Mr. Butterfly (Darrell Foss)..... 5
Jan. 27. Evidence (J. Barney Sherry)..... 5
Jan. 27. Real Folks (Jack Mulhall)..... 5

Vitagraph V-L-S-E.

Dec. 3. The Tenderfoot (William Duncan, Carol Holloway) 5
Dec. 10. The Marriage Speculation (Mildred Manning, Wallace MacDonald)... 5
Dec. 17. In the Balance (Earle Williams)... 5
Dec. 24. When Men Are Tempted (Mary Anderson, Alfred Whitman)..... 5
Dec. 31. His Own People (Harry Morey, Gladys Leslie) 5
Jan. 7. The Blind Adventure (Edward Earle, Betty Howe) 5
Jan. 14. The Wild Strain (Nell Shipman, Alfred Whitman) 5
Jan. 21. The Menace (Corinne Griffith, Evart Overton) 5
Jan. 28. A Mother's Sin (Earle Williams).... 5
Feb. 4. The Other Man (Harry Morey, Grace Darmond, Florence Deshon)..... 5

Wholesome Films Corporation

The Penny Philanthropist (Peggy O'Neil and Ralph Morgan), D..... 5
Cinderella and the Magic Slipper (Special Children's Cast), Juv..... 4
His Awful Downfall (Rex Adams), 1,000 feet, C.
Little Red Riding Hood (Juvenile), 4,000 feet.

World Pictures

Dec. 3. The Awakening (Montagu Love and Dorothy Kelly) 5
Dec. 10. The Good for Nothing (Carlyle Blackwell and Evelyn Greeley)... 5
Dec. 17. The Tenth Case (June Elvidge).... 5
Dec. 24. The Volunteer (Madge Evans and Henry Hull) 5
Dec. 31. The Wasp (Kitty Gordon)..... 5
Jan. 7. Stolen Hours (Ethel Clayton)..... 5
Jan. 14. The Strong Way (June Elvidge).... 5
Jan. 21. The Beautiful Mrs. Reynolds (Carlyle Blackwell, June Elvidge)..... 5
Jan. 28. Gates of Gladness (Madge Evans).. 5

Releases in the Independent Field

For Manufacturers' Addresses, Names and Addresses of Buyers handling films in any territory, or any other additional information write—State Rights Department, Motion Picture News

American News Weekly
One reel each week exclusively on Army and Navy activities.

American Standard M. P. Corp.
May 5. Jones' Jonah Day (Sunshine), C..1 reel
May 7. When Justice Errs, D.....5 reels
May 12. (Educational Subject) .....1 reel
May 14. The Daughter of Darkness, Episode No. 1, D.....2 reels
May 19. Ghosts (Sunshine), C.....1 reel
Sept. 17. My Country First.....6 parts
Oct. 7. The Mystery of the Boule.....5 parts
Oct. 15. Blackmailer .....5 parts

Anti-Vice Film Company
Is Any Girl Safe?.....5 reels

Argosy Films, Inc.
The Celebrated Stielow Case.....6 reels
Where D'ye Get That Stuff.....5 reels
Absinthe (King Baggott), Universal Reissue .....5 reels

Arizona Film Company
Should She Obey.....— reels

Arrow Film Corporation
The Deemster (Derwent Hall Caine).....7 reels

Rex Beach Pictures Co.
The Barrier .....9 reels

Bernstein Film Production
June —. Who Knows?.....6 reels

Bluebird Extraordinary
Sept. 3. Mother o' Mine (Rupert Julian and Ruth Clifford) .....5 reels
The Eagle's Wings (Herbert Rawlinson).
Hell Morgan's Girl (Dorothy Phillips).
Mother o' Mine (Rupert Julian, Ruth Clifford, Ruby La Fayette).

Brenon Productions
Lone Wolf .....7 parts
Fall of the Romanoffs .....8 parts
Empty Pockets .....7 parts

JULES BURNSTEIN
Shame .....7 parts

Cardinal Film Corporation
Joan the Woman (Geraldine Farrar).....11 reels

Century Comedies
(FEATURING ALICE HOWELL)
Balloonatics .....2 reels
Automaniacs .....2 reels
Neptune's Naughty Daughter.....2 reels

Benjamin Cahpin Productions
(CHAPTER FEATURES CORP.)
My Mother .....2 reels
My Father .....2 reels
Myself .....2 reels
The Call to Arms.....2 reels

Christie Film Company
Father's Bright Idea.....1 reel
With the Mummies' Help.....1 reel
The Magic Maid.....1 reel
The Milky Way.....1 reel
His Last Pill.....1 reel
The Fourteenth Man.....1 reel
Down by the Sea.....1 reel
Skirts .....1 reel
Won in a Cabaret.....1 reel
His Merry Mix-Up.....1 reel
A Smoky Love Affair.....1 reel

Cinema Distributing Corp.
The 13th Labor of Hercules.

Claridge Films, Inc.
The Birth of Character.....5 reels
The Heart of New York.....5 reels

Clune Productions
Ramona .....8 reels
Eyes of the World.....9 reels

Commonwealth Pictures Corp.
Chariotte.
The Frozen Warning.

Corona Cinema Company
The Curse of Eve (Enid Markey).....7 reels

Coronet Film Corporation
LIVING STUDIES IN NATURAL HISTORY
Animal World, No. 1 Issue.
Animal World, No. 2 Issue.
Birdland Studies.
Horticultural Phenomena.

Cosmofotofilm Company
Incomparable Mistress Bellairs.....4 reels
Liberty Hall .....4 reels
The Black Spot.....4 reels
Victoria Cross .....4 reels
On 18 .....4 reels
His Vindication .....5 reels
I Believe .....7 reels

Creative Film Corporation
The Girl Who Didn't Think (Jane Gail)..6 reels

Dixie Films
Tempest and Sunshine (Evelyn Greely)..5 reels
Just a Song at Twilight.....5 reels

Frank P. Donovan Productions
July—Billy, the Governess (Billy Quirk)..1 reel
Aug.—Butting in Society (Lou Marks)...1 reel
Aug.—After Her Dough (Lou Marks)....1 reel
Aug.—Bunked in Bunkville (Geo. Ross)..1 reel
Aug.—His Dirty Career (Lou Marks).....1 reel
Aug.—Trying it Twice (Mabel Trinneer)..1 reel
Aug.—Helen of Troy (All-Star Cast).....5 reels
Sept.—His Foolish Way (Geo. Thelian)...1 reel
Sept.—At the Barber's Ball (Lou Marks).2 reels
Sept.—Was She to Blame? (in prep.).
Sept.—In and Out (Tammany Young).....1 reel
Sept.—His Flying Flivver (C. J. Van Duesen and Pearl Shepard).....2 reels

Ebony Film Corporation
A Natural Born Shooter.....1 reel
Dat Blackhand Waitah Man.....1 reel
Shine Johnson and the Rabbit's Foot.....1 reel

E. I. S. Motion Picture Corp.
Trooper 44 .....5 reels

Elmont Feature Film Co.
People vs. John Doe.....6 reels
God's Law .....6 reels

Enlightment Corporation
Enlighten Thy Daughter.....7 reels

Eugenic Film Company
Birth .....6 reels

European Film Company
Fighting for Verdun.....5 reels

Exclusive Features, Inc.
Where Is My Father?.....7 reels

Export and Import Film Co.
Robespierre .....— reels
Ivan the Terrible.....— reels

Fairmount Film Corporation
Hate .....7 reels

Flora Finch Film Co.
War Prides .....2 reels

First National Exhibitors' Circuit, Inc.
On Trial.
Charles Chaplin.

Bud Fisher Film Corporation
July 9. Cows and Caws.
July 16. Submarine Chasers.
July 23. Cheese Tamers.
July 30. Janitors.
Aug. 6. A Chemical Calamity.
Aug. 13. As Prospectors.

Fort Pitt Corporation
The Italian Battlefront.

Fox Film Corp.
(Standard Pictures)
The Spy.
The Honor System.
Jack and the Beanstalk.
The Conqueror.
Camille.
Oct. 18. Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp.
Nov. 18. The Babes in the Wood.

Fraternity Films, Inc.
The Devil's Playground (Vera Michelena)— reels

Frieder Film Corporation
The Birds' Christmas Carol (Mary Louise).5 reels
A Bit O' Heaven (Mary Louise).....5 reels

Friedman Enterprises
A Mormon Maid (Mae Murray).....6 reels

Frohman Amusement Corp.
The Witching Hour (C. Aubrey Smith, Jack Sherrill, Helen Arnold, Marie Shotwell and Robert Conness.....6 reels
Conquest of Canaan.....5 reels
God's Man .....9 reels

Joseph M. Gaites
The Italian Battlefront.

General Enterprises, Inc.
Mother (Elizabeth Risdon, McClure)....6 parts
The Warrior (Maciste) (McClure).....7 parts
The Liar (Jane Gail, Stanley Walpole)...6 parts

Gold Medal Photoplays
The Web of Life (Hilda Nord, James Cruze, George Spencer).....5 reels

Golden Features
A Bit of Life.....1 reel

Grand Feature Film Company
Rex Beach on the Spanish Main.....5 reels
Rex Beach in Pirate Haunts.....5 reels
Rex Beach in Footsteps of Capt. Kidd....5 reels

Graphic Features
The Woman and the Beast.....5 reels

D. W. Griffith
Intolerance .....9 reels

Frank Hall Productions, Inc.
(A. H. Jacobs, Prod.)
Her Fighting Chance (Jane Grey).....— reels
The Bar Sinister.....— reels

Hanover Film Company
Maciste .....— reels
How Uncle Sam Prepares.....4 reels

William S. Hart
The Cold Deck .....5 D
The Two Gun Man.....5 D

Hawk Film Corporation
Monster of Fate.....— reels

Herald Film Corporation
Around the World in 80 Days.....6 reels

Hiller & Wilk, Inc.
The Battle of Gettysburg.....— reels
The Wrath of the Gods (Sessue Hayakawa).5 reels

Hippodrome Film Co.
At the Front with the Allies.

Historic Features
Christus .....8 reels

M. H. Hoffman, Inc.
The Fringe of Society (Ruth Roland and Milton Sills) .....7 reels
One Hour (Zeena Keefe and Alan Hale).6 reels
The Silent Witness (Gertrude McCoy)...6 reels
A Trip Through China (Brodsky's Art Pictures) .....8 reels
Her Fighting Chance (Jane Grey).....6 reels
Should She Obey? (Alice Wilson, Gene Genung and Norbert Myles).....6 reels
Whither Thou Goest (Rhea Mitchell and Orrin Johnson) .....5 reels
The Great White Trail (Doris Kenyon)..6 reels

Iliodor Picture Corporation
The Fall of the Romanoffs (Iliodor, Nance O'Neil, Ekaterina Galanta, Alfred Hickman and Conway Tearle).....— reels

Inter Ocean Film Corp.
Enlighten Thy Daughter.....— reels

Ivan Film Productions
One Law for Both.....8 reels
Babbling Tongues .....6 reels
Married in Name Only.....7 reels
Sins of Ambition.....6 reels

Juvenile Film Corporation
World War in Kidland.....1 reel
A Chip Off the Old Block.....1 reel
Chip's Elopement .....1 reel

(Continued on page 301)

Short Subjects Current and Coming

Educational Film Corp. of Amer.

SCENICS—EDUCATIONAL

Oct. 24. From Studio to Screen.
Oct. 31. A Trip Through Japan, No. 1.
Nov. 7. A Flying Trip Through the Hawaiian Islands, No. 1.
Nov. 14. A Flying Trip Through the Hawaiian Islands, No. 2.
Nov. 21. Me and My Dog.
Nov. 28. The Chain Gang.
Dec. 5. The Land of Enchantment (Yosemite Valley).
Dec. 12. Fishing for Fish.
Dec. 19. A Trip Through Japan, No. 2.
Dec. 26. Beside the Glimmer Glass.

DITMARS "LIVING BOOK OF NATURE"

Nov. 19. The Animals of Australia.
Nov. 26. The Smaller Monkeys.
Dec. 3. Enemies of the Garden.
Dec. 10. Our Vanishing Game.
Dec. 17. Nature's Weavers.
Dec. 24. Nature's Songsters.
Dec. 31. The Animals in Midsummer.

Fox Sunshine Comedies

Nov. 11. Roaring Lions and Wedding Bells..2 C
Nov. 18. A Milk-Fed Vamp.....2 C
Dec. 9. His Smashing Career.....2 C
Dec. 23. Damaged—No Goods .....2 C
Jan. 6. Shadows of Her Pest.....2 C
Jan. 13. Are Married Policemen Safe?.....2 C
Feb. 3. Son of a Gun.....2 C

General Film Company

BROADWAY STAR FEATURES
(O. HENRY STORIES)

The Skylight Room (Jean Paige, Carlton King) .....4 D
One Dollar's Worth (Chet Ryan, Frances Parks) .....2 D
The Last Leaf (Mildred Manning, Bernard Siegel, Patsy De Forest).....2 D
Two Renegades (Chet Ryan, W. L. Rodgers) .....2 C-D
Whistling Dick's Christmas Stocking (George Cooper, Adele De Garde)....2 C-D
The Fourth in Salvador (Chet Ryan, W. L. Rodgers) .....2 C-D
The Clarion Call (Walter McGrail, Alice Terry) .....2 D
The Hiding of Black Bill (W. L. Rodgers, Chet Ryan) .....2 D
The Thing's the Play (Mildred Manning, Jack Crosby) .....2 C-D

ESSANAY
("THE BLACK CAT STORIES")

The Long Green Trail (Virginia Valli, Rodney La Rock).....2 D
Don't Lose Your Coat.....2 C
Star Dust (Margaret Clayton).....C-D

GEORGE ADE FABLES

The Fable of All That Triangle Stuff as Sized Up by the Meal Ticket.....2 C
The Fable of the Film-Fed Family.....2 C
The Fable of the Uplifter and His Dandy Little Opus .....2 C
The Fable of the Girl Who Took Notes and Got Wise and Then Fell Down.....2 C
The Fable of the Toilsome Ascent and the Shining Table Land.....2 C
The Fable of the Back Trackers from the Hot Sidewalks.....2 C

ESSANAY COMEDIES (1 reel)

Hard Luck .....1 C
The General .....1 C
A Depot Romeo.....1 C
Make Your Eyes Behave.....1 C
Lunch .....1 C
Nut Stuff .....1 C
He Loved Her So.....1 C

ESSANAY SCENICS

Salmon Fishing in New Brunswick.....1 Sc.
Lake Louise .....1 Sc.
Banff National Park.....1 Sc.
The Great National Industries of Canada..1 Sc.
Water Powers of Western Canada.....1 Sc.
Through Canada from Coast to Coast.....1 Sc.
How Canada and the Farmer Co-operate in Grain Raising .....1 Sc.

CHAPLIN COMEDIES

The Champion .....2 C
A Jitney Elopement.....2 C
By the Sea.....1 C
In the Park.....1 C
Work .....2 R

FALCON FEATURES

Feet of Clay (Margaret Landis, R. Henry Grey) .....4 D
Brand's Daughter (Kathleen Kirkham, R. Henry Grey) .....4 D
His Old-Fashioned Dad (Daniel Gilfether, Mollie McConnell) .....4 D
Zollenstein (Vola Vale, Monroe Salisbury)..4 D

KALEM
(AMERICAN GIRL SERIES WITH MARIN SAIS)

The Man Hunt at San Remo.....2 D
The Door in the Mountain.....2 D
Sagebrush Law .....2 D

("THE FURTHER ADVENTURES OF STINGAREE" WITH TRUE BOARDMAN)

Through Fire and Water.....2 D
A Bushranger's Strategy.....2 D
The Stranger at Dumcrieff.....2 D
A Champion of the Law.....2 D

(HAM AND BUD COMEDIES)

The Boot and the Loot.....1 C
A Whirlwind of Whiskers.....1 C
The Onion Magnate's Revenge.....1 C
The Bath Tub Bandit.....1 C

GRANT, POLICE REPORTER SERIES

The Mystery of Room 422.....1 D
A Deal in Bonds.....1 D
The Sign of the Scarf.....1 D
The Man with the Limp.....1 D

A DAUGHTER OF DARING SERIES

A Race to the Drawbridge.....1 D
The Munitions Plot.....1 D
The Detective's Danger.....1 D
The Railroad Smugglers.....1 D
The Deserted Engine.....1 D

JAXON COMEDIES

Too Much Alike.....1 C
Barnyard Frolics .....1 C
Breaking In .....1 C
Blundering Boobs .....1 C
Disappointed Love .....1 C
He's In Again.....1 C
How It Worked.....1 C
Their Model Careers.....1 C
His Fishy Footsteps.....1 C

SPARKLE COMEDIES

Week End Shopping (Kate Price, Billy Ruge) 1 C
Pals .....1 C
Ambition .....1 C
In High Speed.....1 C
A Bargain, $37.50.....1 C
Monkey-Maid-Man .....1 C
On the Love Line.....1 C
The Detective .....1 C
Smashing the Plot.....1 C
After the Matinee.....1 C
Double Cross .....1 C
The Best of a Bad Bargain.....1 C

JOHNNY AND EMMA RAY COMEDIES

A Laundry Mix-Up.....1 C
A Peaceful Flat.....1 C
Cheating His Wife.....1 C
A Bathtub Marriage.....1 C

KLEINE
(GEORGE BICKEL COMEDIES

A Suit and a Suitor.....1 C
Nearly a Husband.....1 C
Some Statue .....1 C
Nearly a Husband.....1 C
Some Statue.....1 C
A King of Cooks.....1 C
Love, Luck and Loot.....1 C

SELIG

The Law North of 65.....2 D
Vengeance vs. Mercy.....1 D
Training Our Khaki-Clad Heroes.....2 Military
The Angel of Poverty Row.....1 D
The Rustler's Vindication.....2 D
The Witness for the State.....1 D

THREE C COMEDIES

His Watery Waterloo (Lou Marks).....1 C
Fat and Foolish (Hughey Mack).....1 C
A Harem Romance (Lou Marks, Pearl Shepard, Oom Paul).....1 C
His Winning Ways (Lou Marks, Pearl Shepard, Oom Paul).....1 C
A Boarding House Battle (Lou Marks, Pearl Shepard) .....1 C
Stealing a Sweetheart (Lou Marks, Pearl Shepard, Oom Paul).....1 C
A Hash House Romance (Lou Marks, Pearl Shepard, Oom Paul).....1 C
The Hod Carrier's Million (Claude Cooper, Virginia Tracy Clark, Kenneth Clarendon) .....1 C

HANOVER FILM COMPANY

Camille (Helen Hesperia).....6 D
The Marvelous Maciste.....6 D

PHYSICAL CULTURE PHOTO PLAYS CO.

Physical Culture Magazine (Issued Monthly) .....1 Edc.

PIEDMONT PICTURES CORPORATION
(SELBURN COMEDIES)

Hubby's Holiday.....2 C
Too Much Elephant.....1 C
His College Proxy.....1 C
Wedding Bells and Lunatics.....1 C

Inter-Allied Films

July 14. Cine Topics.....1 Ed.

King Bee Comedies

Nov. 1. The Hobo .....2 reels
Nov. 15. The Pest .....2 reels
Dec. 1. The Bandmaster .....2 reels
Dec. 15. The Slave.....2 reels
Jan. 1. The Stranger.....2 reels

Kleine Exchanges

ESSANAY SERIES—DO CHILDREN COUNT?
(Featuring Little Mary McAlister)

Aug. 1. The Season of Childhood.....2 D
Aug. 8. The Little White Girl.....2 D
Aug. 15. The Bridge of Fancy.....2 D
Aug. 22. The Kingdom of Hope.....2 D

SELIG-HOYT COMEDIES

Aug. 6. A Dog in the Manger.....2 C
Aug. 20. A Trip to Chinatown.....2 C
Sept. 3. A Midnight Bell.....2 C
Sept. 17. A Contented Woman.....2 C

Metro Pictures Corporation

METRO-DREW COMEDIES

Dec. 3. Too Much Henry.....1 C
Dec. 10. Wages No Object.....1 C
Dec. 17. The Spirit of Merry Christmas.....1 C
Dec. 24. The Unmarried Look.....1 C
Dec. 31. Shadowing Henry.....1 C
Jan. 7. Their Mutual Motor.....1 C
Jan. 14. Why Henry Left Home.....1 C
Jan. 21. Their First Love.....1 C
Jan. 28. Under the Influence.....1 C

Mutual Film Corporation

Monday, December 24, 1917

MUTUAL—Mutual Weekly, No. 156.....1 Top

Thursday, December 27, 1917

CUB—Jerry's Best Friend (George Ovey)....1 C

STRAND (BILLIE RHODES)

Dec. 4. Just Kidding .....1 reel
Dec. 11. Putting One Over.....1 reel
Dec. 18. Little Miss Fixer.....1 reel
Dec. 25. Mary's Boomerang.....1 reel
Jan. 1. Her Awful Fix.....1 reel
Jan. 8. A Peach and a Pill.....1 reel

Monday, December 31, 1917

MUTUAL—Mutual Weekly, No. 1.....1 Top

Serials

Dec. 3. The Lost Express, No. 12 (Daring Death) .....
Dec. 10. The Lost Express, No. 13 (The Escape) .....2 D
Dec. 17. The Lost Express, No. 14 (Unmasked) .....2 D
Dec. 24. The Lost Express, No. 15 (The Return of the Lost Express).....2 D

MUTUAL-CHAPLINS

Oct. 29. The Adventurer.....2 C

Paramount Pictures Corporation

KLEVER KOMEDIES (Victor Moore).

Dec. 3. Toothaches nad Heartaches.....1 C
Dec. 19. The Instalment Plan.....1 C
Dec. 31. O. U. Boat.....1 C
Jan. 14. Meatless Days and Sleepless Nights.1 C
Jan. 28. He Got His.....1 C

BLACK DIAMOND COMEDIES

Oct. 7. Susie Slips One Over.....1 C
Oct. 15. Nearly a Baker.....1 C
Nov. 12. A Society Scrimmage.....1 C

ARBUCKLE COMEDIES

Oct. 29. Fatty at Coney Island.....1 C
Dec. 10. A Country Hero.....1 C
Dec. 20. Out West .....2 C

BURTON HOLMES TRAVEL PICTURES

Dec. 3. Osaka to Nagasaki.....1 Trav.
Dec. 10. Canning Time in California.....1 Trav.
Dec. 17. In Glacier Park.....1 Trav.
Dec. 24. Going to the Sun.....1 Trav.
Dec. 31. On the Farm Where the Food Comes From.....1 Trav.
Jan. 7. Sydney, the Antipodean Metropolis.
Jan. 14. A Trip to the Jenolan Caves of Australia.
Jan. 21. Melbourne, the Magnificent.
Jan. 28. 'Round About Melbourne.

WHO IS NUMBER ONE? (Serial)

Dec. 3. Episode 6. The Flight of the Fury.2 D
Dec. 10. Episode 7. Hearts in Torment....2 D
Dec. 17. Episode 8. Walls of Gas.....2 D
Dec. 24. Episode 9. Struck Down.....2 D
Dec. 31. Episode 10. Wires of Wrath.....2 D
Jan. 7. Episode 11. The Rail Raiders.....2 D
Jan. 14. Episode 12. The Show Down.....2 D
Jan. 21. Episode 13. Cornered .....2 D
Jan. 28. Episode 14. No Surrender .....2 D
Feb. 4. Episode 15. The Round-Up.....2 D

(Continued on page 301)

(Continued from page 299)
Chip's Backyard Barn-Stormers.....2 reels
Chip's Rivals .....1 reel
For Sale, a Daddy.....1 reel
Chip's Carmen .....2 reels

A. Kay Co.

Twenty Thousand Feats Under the Sea....
Golden Spoon Mary.....1 C
Some Barrier .....1 C
His Trial .....1 C
(Terry Human Interest Reels)
No. 1. Character as Revealed in the Face...Ed.
No. 2. Character as Revealed in the Eyes...1d.

Klotz and Streimer

Whither Thou Goest.....5 reels
The Secret Treaty.....5 reels

Lincoln Motion Picture Company

The Realization of a Negro's Ambitions...2 reels
Trooper of Troop K.....3 reels

Marine Film Co.

Lorelei of the Sea.....— reels

C. Post Marion Enterprises

The Wonder City of the World (Greater N. Y. by Day and Night).....4 reels

Masterpiece Drama Productions

Who's Your Neighbor?..... —

Masterpictures

LION COMEDIES
Oct. 29. Nathan Busts Into the Movies....1 C
Nov. 5. A Village Villain.....1 C
Nov. 12. Her Fatal Resemblance.....1 C
Nov. 19. An Account of a No-Account Count.1 C
Nov. 26. Hicks and Hornets.....1 C
Dec. 3. Waves and Wimmen.....1 C
Dec. 10. Fizzled Finance .....1 C

Mayfair Film Corp.

Persuasive Peggy.....— reels

Moral Uplifht Society of America

It May Be Your Daughter..... —

Mo-Toy Comedies

Midnight Frolic.
Jimmy Gets the Pennant.
Out in the Rain.
In Jungle Land.
A Kitchen Romance.
Mary and Gretel.
Dinkling of the Circus.
A Trip to the Moon.
Goldie Locks and the Three Bears.
Dolly Doings.
School Days.

B. S. Moss M. P. Corporation

Birth Control .....6 reels
The Power of Evil.....5 reels
Boots and Saddles.....5 reels
The Girl Who Doesn't Know.....5 reels
In the Hands of the Law.....5 reels
One Hour (Sequel to "Three Weeks").....

Nevada Motion Picture Corp.

The Planter .....— reels

Newfields Producing Co.

Alma, Where Do You Live?.....6 reels

Ogden Pictures Corp.

The Lust of the Ages.....— reels

Paragon Films

The Whip .....8 reels

Peter Pan Film Corporation

(Mo-toy Troupe)
July 19. Little Red Riding Hood.....1 reel
July 26. Puss in Boots.....1 reel
Aug. 2. Jimmy the Soldier Boy.....1 reel
Aug. 9. Jimmie and Jam.....1 reel
Aug. 16. In Japoland .....1 reel
Photoplay Magazine—Screen Supplement—One-reel releases, giving intimate interviews of all the stars. (Through independent exchanges.)

Popular Picture Corporation

Corruption .....6 reels

Private Feature Film

Ignorance (Earle Metcalfe).....6 reels

Public Rights Film Corporation

The Public Be Damned (Charles Richman and Mary Fuller).....5 reels

Purkall Film Co.

The Liar .....6 reels

Radio Film Company

Satan the Destroyer of Humanity.....7 reels
The Spirit of 1917 (James J. Harkness and Carl Sturmer).....— reels

Renowned Pictures Corporation

In Treason's Grasp (Grace Cunard and Francis Ford) .....5 reels
Weavers of Life.....5 reels

Select Photoplay Co.

Humanity .....6 reels

Selig Special

Beware of Strangers.....7 reels
The Ne'er-Do-Well.....8 reels
The Garden of Allah (Selig).....10 reels
Who Shall Take My Life?.....— reels

Frank J. Seng

Parentage .....7 reels

Sherman Eliot, Inc.

The Crisis .....10 reels

Sherman Pictures Corporation

I Believe .....7 reels
The Land of the Rising Sun

Signet Film Corporation

The Masque of Life.....7 reels

Standard Newsfilm, Inc.

Demons of the Air.....2 reels

Julius Steger

Redemption .....6 reels

Moe Streimer

A Daughter of the Don.....10 reels

Submarine Film Corporation

The Submarine Eye.....7 reels

Ultra Film Co.

A Day at West Point.....
West Is West.....
The Rustler's Frame-up at Big Horn.....

Unity Sales Corporation

The Bishop's Secret.....4 reels
The Lottery Man.....5 reels
The Marriage Bond.....5 reels

Universal Film Mfg. Company

Robinson Crusoe (Robert Leonard and Margarita Fischer).....4 reels
Hell Morgan's Girl.....5 reels
Come Through .....7 reels

Variety Films Corporation

My Country First.....6 reels
The Pursuing Vengeance.....5 reels
The Price of Her Soul.....7 reels

Victoria Feature Films

The Fated Hour.....6 reels
The Slave Mart.....5 reels

World Pictures

Over Here .....5 reels

RELEASES IN SHORT SUBJECTS

(Continued from page 300)

MACK SENNETT COMEDIES
Dec. 2. An International Sneak.....1 C
Dec. 16. That Night .....1 C
Dec. 30. Taming Target Center.....1 C
Jan. 13. The Kitchen Lady.....2 C
Jan. 27. His Hidden Purpose.....2 C

PARAMOUNT-BRAY PICTOGRAPHS
Dec. 9. Fastest Thing on Four Legs; Woman's Self-Defense; Bobby Bumps; Early Shopper.
Dec. 16. How Doth the Busy Bee; Skiing oa Colorado Springs; A Substitute for Butter.
Dec. 23. A Dog Chauffeur on Fifth Avenue; Binding Uncle's Sam's Harvest; Goodrich Dirt and the $1,000 Reward.
Dec. 30. Knit Your Bit; War Dogs; Bobby Bumps's Tank.
Jan. 6. The New Art of Dress; Destructive Power of T-N-T; Goodrich Dirt and Duke de Whatanob.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

Sunday, December 30, 1917
The Hidden Hand, No. 6. "The Flower of Death" (Doris Kenyon, Sheldon Lewis, Arline Pretty, Mahlon Hamilton), Pathe.2 D
The Eighth Annual Round-Up, Pendleton, Oregon .....3 top
Argus Pictorial, No. 4.....1 Ed.
Step Lively (Harold Lloyd, Bebe Daniels, Harry Pollard), Rolin .....1 C
Rocky Mountain Park (Combitone), Earle 1 Trav.
Katzenjammer Kids, "Peace and Quiet" (Cart); "Making the Comic Section," International, Ed. .....Split reel
Wednesday, January 2, 1918
Hearst-Pathe News, No. 2.....1 top
Saturday, January 5, 1918
Hearst-Pathe News, No. 3.....1 top
Sunday, January 6, 1918
The Hidden Hand, No. 7 (The Fibre Trap).2 D
The Tip (Harold Lloyd, Bebe Daniels, Harry Pollard), Rolin .....2 C
Picturesque Rivers of France; Here and There in Keswick, Cumberland, Eng....
Katzenjammer Kids, "Der Captain's Birthday" (Cart.); War Bibles (Ed.)...Split reel
Wednesday, January 9, 1918
Hearst-Pathe News, No. 4.....1 top
Saturday, January 12, 1918
Hearst-Pathe News, No. 5.....1 top

Triangle Distributing Corp.

TRIANGLE COMEDIES
Jan. 6. Matrimonial Breaker.....1 C
Jan. 6. His Day of Doom.....1 C
Jan. 13. A Straight Crook.....1 C
Jan. 13. A Marriage Not.....1 C
Jan. 20. Their Indian Uncle.....1 C
Jan. 20. The Price of His Head.....1 C
Jan. 27. A Butler Bust-Up.....1 C
Jan. 27. Too Many Husbands.....1 C

KEYSTONE RELEASES
Jan. 6. His Hidden Shame (Max Asher, Dora Rogers, Alice Davenport, Alatia Morton, Marianne Delatorre).....2 C
Jan. 13. His Punctured Reputation (Wm. Franey, Dale Fuller, Maude Wayne, Milt Sims).....2 C
Jan. 20. Dimples and Dangers (Harry Gribbon, Dora Rogers, Frank Bond, Claire Anderson) .....2 C
Jan. 27. Courts and Cab Ants (Peggy Pearce, Baldy Belmont, Marianne Delatorre, Max Asher) .....2 C

Universal Film Company

Monday, January 7, 1918
NESTOR—Cave Man Stuff (Gale Henry, William Franey) .....1 C
Wednesday, January 9, 1918
L-KO—Torpedo Pirates (Hughie Mack).....2 C
UNIVERSAL ANIMATED WEEKLY—Weekly No. 6.
Saturday, January 12, 1918
UNIVERSAL SCREEN MAGAZINE—Issue No. 53.
UNIVERSAL CURRENT EVENTS—Issue No. 35 (Shipping date, January 5).
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL — New Enemies (Thirteenth Episode of "The Red Ace" Serial) .....2 D
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL—One Minute to Live (Seventh Episode of "The Mystery Ship" Serial) .....2 D
Monday, January 14, 1918
NESTOR—Maimed in a Hospital (Dave Morris, Max Asher, Gladys Tennyson)...1 C
Wednesday, January 16, 1918
L-KO—Home Run Ambrose (Mack Swain)..2 C
UNIVERSAL ANIMATED WEEKLY—Weekly No. 7.
Saturday, January 19, 1918
UNIVERSAL SCREEN MAGAZINE—Issue No. 54.
UNIVERSAL CURRENT EVENTS—Issue No. 36 (Shipping date, January 12).
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL—The Fugitives (Fourteenth Episode of "The Red Ace" Serial) .....2 D
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL—Hidden Hands (Eighth Episode of "The Mystery Ship" Serial) .....2 D

Vitagraph

BOBBY CONNELLY SERIES
Nov. 5. Bobby to the Rescue.
Nov. 12. Bobby's Country Adventure.
Nov. 19. Bobby Takes a Wife.
Nov. 26. Bobby the Magician.

THE FIGHTING TRAIL SERIES
Dec. 3. Epi. 13. The Water Trap.....2 parts
Dec. 10. Epi. 14. The Trestle of Hororrs.2 parts
Dec. 17. Epi. 15. Out of the Flame.....2 parts

BIG V COMEDIES
Dec. 3. Spooks and Spasms.
Dec. 10. Frauds and Free Lunch.
Dec. 17. Noisy Naggers and Nosey Neighbors.
Dec. 24. Dummies and Deceptions.
Dec. 31. Stowaways and Strategy.
Jan. 7. Sleuths and Surprises.

VITAGRAPH COMEDIES
Dec. 3. A Family Flivver (Edward Earle, Agnes Ayres).
Dec. 10. Paging Page Two (Edward Earle, Agnes Ayres).
Dec. 17. He Had to Camouflage.
Dec. 24. His Wife Got All the Credit.
Dec. 31. His Wife's Hero.

VENGEANCE AND THE WOMAN (Serial)
Dec. 24. The Oath (First Episode) (Wm. Wuncan, Carol Holloway).
Dec. 31. Loaded Dice (Second Episode).
Jan. 7. The Unscaled Peak (Third Episode).
Jan. 14. The Signaling Cipher (Fourth Episode).
Jan. 21. The Plunge of Destruction (Fifth Episode).
Jan. 28. The Lure of Hate (Sixth Episode).

Favorite Film Features

Dec. 10. Mrs. Bingle's Melodrama (Flora Finch, Kate Price, James Lackaye, Hughie Mack, William Shea, William Humphrey) .....2 C
Dec. 10. Tim Grogan's Foundling (Norma Talmadge, Kate Price, Helen Costello, Van Dyke Brooke, Courtnay Foote) .....1 D
Dec. 17. The Call (Edith Storey, E. K. Lincoln, Gladden James, Ralph Ince).2 D
Dec. 17. No Sweets (Flora Finch, Kate Price, Hughie Mack, Charles Eldridge) .....1 C
Dec. 24. The Masked Dancer.....2 D
Dec. 24. The Wonderful Statue.....1 C
Dec. 31. The One Good Turn.....1 D
Dec. 31. Pickles, Art and Sauerkraut.....2 C
Jan. 7. The Trap .....2 D
Jan. 7. A Change in Baggage Checks.....1 C

Up-to-date Laboratory Manager disengaged is open for engagement. Systemized output, highest quality of work. Thoroughly experienced in Photography. Omega, Motion Picture News.

FOR SALE—Very cheap, standard moving picture machine and new compensarc. Write to H. Wasserman, 81 7th St., New York City.

UNIVERSAL
Motion Picture Camera
more speed, better results, at half the price.
Write for 6 new features
Burke & James, Inc.
240 E. Ontario St., Chicago

TransVerteR
Automatically supplies only such voltage as arc requires. No waste of current in ballast.
HERTNER ELECTRIC & MFG. CO.
W. 114th St., Cleveland, Ohio, U.S.A.

A Dollar Saved
is not only a dollar earned, but it's
An Earning Dollar
All supplies for the M. P. Theatre at fairer prices than you'll pay elsewhere.
IT PAYS TO DEAL HERE
Send for Price List "N"
INDEPENDENT MOVIE SUPPLY CO.
6th Floor 729 7th Ave., New York

Capacity and Art Laboratories

Capacity is closely related to Quality.

Our Capacity is small,—this means that every job gets full attention and that every foot of work is personally inspected by our Superintendent.

This insures Quality. Therefore, we guarantee satisfaction.

ART LABORATORIES
316 East 48th Street
Murray Hill 6973 Edmond Kuhn, Supt.
Office:
Bryant 8324 1476 Broadway
NEW YORK

"The Girl By the Roadside"

(Continued from page 296)

presence of the star, whose many admirers will doubtless revel in "The Girl by the Roadside" in its entirety.

Allen Edwards as Boone and Robert F. Hill as a Secret Service agent contribute good performances.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Judith Ralston (Violet Mersereau) is an innocent implement in the hands of her brother Budd (Cecil Owen) and his wife (Ann Andrews) counterfeiters. At the opening of the story they are located in a small town. The appearance of Fayban (Robert F. Hill), secret service agent, causes the guilty pair to take flight. Judith's meeting with Boone Pendleton (Allen Edwards) precipitates a romance, but Budd and his many attempts to evade the watchful eye of Fayban in order to break up his counterfeiting machinery for which he enlists the aid of his sister cause any amount of trouble. The secret service men finally trap Budd in his hut but owing to the interference of Judith his escape is made possible. The suspicion attached to Judith because of her brother's unlawful trade is wiped away and Judith goes to Boone for a happy finale.

Shirley Mason, the Edison Star, Is Expected to Appear in "The Weaver of Dreams" Within the Near Future

Get Your Release Dates in By Saturday

Unless You Have The
Automaticket System
You Are Losing Money
1733 Broadway, New York

THE WEST COAST
Service Plus—to Readers
Circulation Plus—to Advertisers
TAKE ADVANTAGE OF IT

MUSIC for the EXHIBITOR

The MOST COMPREHENSIVE DEPARTMENT
on
THIS SUBJECT
CONDUCTED
in ANY MOTION PICTURE
TRADE
JOURNAL

Keep Right on Going!

Some of the most helpful departments in MOTION PICTURE NEWS are found in the Accessory News.

There's "Music for the Picture"—with aids that your orchestra leader will warm right up to and thank you for calling to his attention.

There's "Projection"—a department of sound, hard, common sense and real aid.

There's "Worth While Theatres"—the department that keeps you up to date in knowledge of all the newest things in theatre necessities.

Yes!
Keep Right on Going!
—Or you will lose half your money's worth.

Accessory News

— SECTION OF MOTION PICTURE NEWS —

REMEMBER YOUR 1918 SUCCESS IS BUILT ON THE SERVICE YOU GIVE

START today and join that large procession of MOTIOGRAPH BOOSTERS.

MOTIOGRAPH SERVICE is spoken of by every user. Read what Mr. Melvin Godfrey, of Magrath, Alberta, Canada, says about MOTIOGRAPH SERVICE:

"Magrath, Alberta, Can.,
Dec. 10, 1917.

Universal Film Co.,
Calgary, Canada.

Dear Mr. Walkley:

In regard to the Motiograph which I purchased through you or from you, I am pleased to state that the machine is way above my expectations. The picture is as steady as a rock just as though it had been glued there. It is noiseless and simple to operate.

I am very pleased with the machine and would recommend it to any wishing to purchase.

Yours very truly,
(SD) Melvin Godfrey,
Owner & Mgr., Empress Theatre,
Magrath, Alberta, Can."

Write for literature

ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MANUFACTURING CO.
564-572 W. Randolph Street
Chicago, Ill.

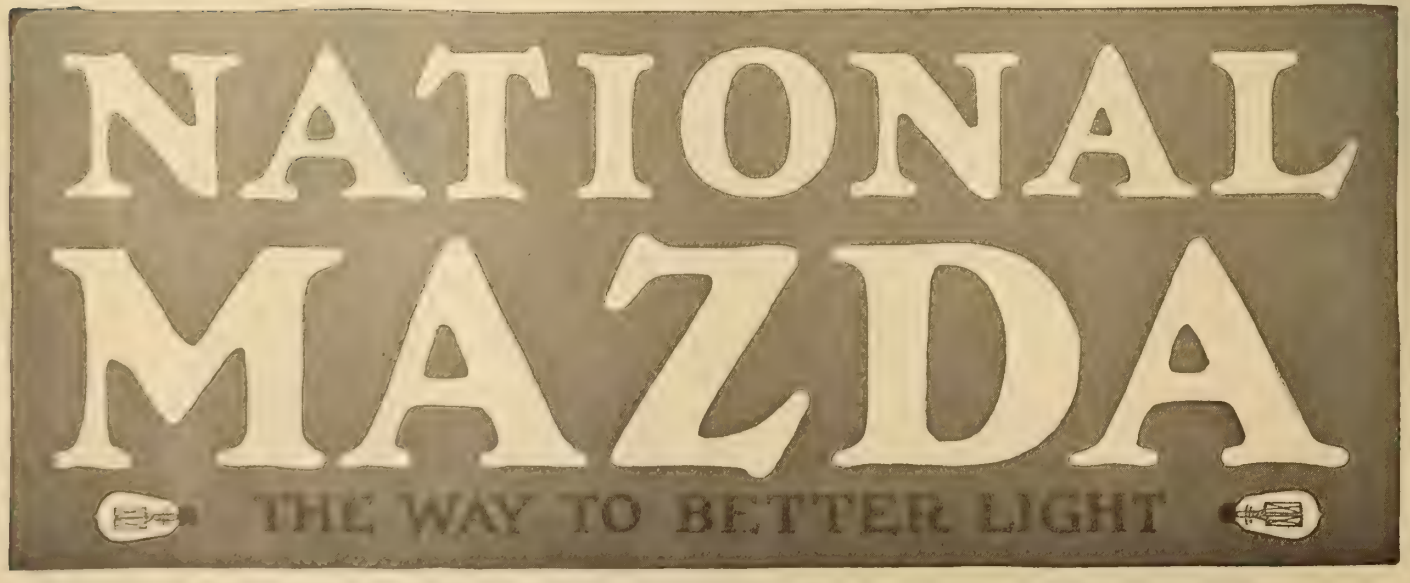
Western Office: 833 Market Street
San Francisco, California

Better Light, Less Expense and a Whole Lot Less Trouble

The use of NATIONAL MAZDA lamps for projection costs less. The saving in current alone, to say nothing of the other savings, will pay for rebuilding your projector. Besides, you will have the added benefits of:

(1) Less heat and better air in the booth;

(2) No regulating after the lamp is once focused;



(3) Flickerless light on the screen;

(4) Even illumination all over the screen;

(5) Greatly lessened breakage of lenses;

(6) No more expense for carbon jaws.

Full information from your Supply House, or from Nela Specialties Division, NATIONAL LAMP WORKS of General Electric Co., 108 Nela Park, Cleveland, Ohio.

Accessory News

SECTION OF MOTION PICTURE NEWS

Devoted to the technical branches of the motion picture industry, containing records of the latest accomplishments in the mechanical and scientific field; projection helps, inventions and suggestions; camera devices analyzed and commented upon; musical cue sheets for important feature pictures; improvements and innovations in the building and furnishing field.

No charge is made in these departments for answering questions of any nature. Correspondence is invited.

E. Kendall Gillett.....Editor

Alfred S. Cory.....Technical Editor

National Anti-Misframe League Again Indorsed

WE have published letters from four exchange systems which have indorsed our work—Fox, General, Paramount and Triangle. All are willing and anxious to co-operate.

Now comes a letter from the Pathe Exchange, echoing the same sentiments.

PATHE EXCHANGE, INC.
25 West 45th Street, New York City.

December 21, 1917.

Mr. E. Kendall Gillett,
Motion Picture News, Inc.,
729 Seventh Avenue, New York City.

Dear Mr. Gillett:

I am, of course, in touch with the work of the National Anti-Misframe League. This seems to me to be a splendid movement in the direction of assuring better physical condition of films as shown in theatres.

Pathe exchanges are extending every possible co-operation. In this regard Mr. Hammill, the associate manager of our New York Branch, had a talk with Mr. Cory the other day and Mr. Cory took occasion to speak especially of the pleasure it gave him to be able to say that Pathe exchanges throughout the United States have always shown the finest spirit when approached on the subject of better care of film.

We are constantly on the watch to see that our film inspection department is efficient. While, of course, we do not believe that we should be dictated to by outsiders regarding the proper time when a subject should be taken out of service, yet we are at all times willing to discard films when it means the betterment of service. The movement of the Anti-Misframe League seems to be a meritorious one when you stop to think of the immense good that can be done through closer co-operation between our exchanges and the operators who use our film.

The co-operation which we are extending is this, in accordance with Mr. Cory's request: When a customer complains that a subject run by him is in poor condition, we do not pass it by and forget about it, but immediately investigate the print, replying courteously by letter to the account making the complaint. We do not try to square the kick by promises, but get right to the root of the evil and have the print gone over and put in shape.

I understand that there is a movement on foot to affiliate the Anti-Misframe League with the Operators' Union of Greater New York. This will bring the league a larger membership in the New York territory.

In the case of Pathe, where so much of our output is made up of serials that are booked very closely, great care must be exercised that the film is in good shape. Because of the fact that prints of serials work almost every day, the consequent wear and tear is greater than on features and others that have breathing space between bookings.

Owing to the fact that we endeavor at all times to deliver films to our customers in such shape that there can be no cause of complaint, a movement such as that instituted by the National Anti-Misframe League has our support. Any movement that will help us to keep our films in good condition certainly deserves this support. Only a small percentage of operators in the past have given us the service that is asked for now by the members of this new league. If the league can obtain the co-operation of operators who heretofore have been lax in the matter, the proposition becomes a simple one for the exchange.

Very truly yours,
PATHE EXCHANGE, Inc.
(Sgd) F. C. Quimby, Sales Manager.

IN the case of all these exchange systems the members of the N. A.-M. F. L. may expect co-operation and if they do not get it they may expect to know the reason why.

There should not be any need at any time to dictate to an exchange as to when a film has reached its limit of usefulness as it is a very poor organization which does not realize this limit of usefulness. The great need, however, is in the checking up of the inspection departments and seeing to it that they make proper patches, keep up the full footage of film, put in new lengths when the sprocket holes are torn out and otherwise send out a product which will encourage theatre patronage.

Promises by an exchange for better treatment in future mean absolutely nothing. Every time film in bad condition goes out it means that motion picture theatre patrons have been driven away—and by the way those who have once become disgusted are the hardest to ever get back again. They are usually out for good. This is something which the film inspectors do not realize.

The suggestion contained in Mr. Quimby's letter that the Operators' Union of Greater New York is to join the League is news, though individuals are members and enthusiastic ones too. As much as we would like to have this happen we could not accept them as a body though all might join as individuals. We say this because every member must sign the pledge, otherwise we will not enroll them. They must know what they are signing and be prepared to live up to this pledge. The mere fact that this causes the prospective members a little trouble and exertion will tend to keep out the undesirables—the vandals—and those who are doing so much to ruin the exhibiting end of our industry. It is not mere members we want; it is workers.

"Only a small percentage of operators in the past have given us the service that is asked for now by the members of this new League." This is significant. It shows that we are on the right track. We have members now. We will soon be past the thousand mark—all striving to improve the physical condition of film and hence increase the popularity of pictures and incidentally the permanency of their jobs.

E. K. Gillett.

Equipment Operating — Projection — Questions Answered

Optic Projection

By J. A. Orange,

(Continued from last week)

THE projection of motion pictures, while optically but an outgrowth of magic lantern work, is relatively complicated by the presence of peculiar features. The simplest mode of consideration is to omit all reference to the film movement and shutter action in the first instance, the problem being thus reduced to the projection of lantern slides 2.5 cm. in diameter as against 10 cm. One has, as before, an objective for the actual projection of the picture, and just as in the case of the magic lantern previously discussed the limiting illumination at the screen is $\frac{AB}{x^2}k$, and the ideal means of attaining it would be an extended background of source surface behind the slide (Fig. 3*a*). This is as impracticable as in the case of the magic lantern proper, and the logical thing to do is to provide a condenser immediately behind the slide, followed in turn by a source surface. Even this miniature edition of the complete magic lantern is difficult to use except in amateur work. The reason is best seen from a numerical example.

A regular magic lantern might disclose the following particulars:

Slide diameter	10 cm.
Objective focal length	36 cm.
Effective objective aperture	4 cm.
Source size	1 cm.
Clearance, source to condenser	10 cm.

Now, if one wished to make a change from slide to film (i.e., 10cm. to 2.5) keeping throw, picture size and illumination the same, then the following would be about the scheme:

Slide diameter	2.5 cm.
Objective focal length	9 cm.
Effective objective aperture	4 cm.
Source size	1 cm.
Clearance, source to condenser	2.5 cm.

What one may term the factor of clearance, i.e., the ratio of the last two terms, constitutes a serious difficulty because of the marked heating effect on the condenser and on the lamp bulb, if there is one. This difficulty becomes less marked in the cases of where a smaller screen picture will suffice, and, in fact, there are successful amateur outfits designed along these lines (Figs. 3*b* and 3*c*).

To avoid this trouble it is well to arrange theatre outfits so that instead of having a small condenser immediately behind the film one has a larger condenser further away. So long as the outlook through the film from all parts of the objective opening is faced by condenser surface, limiting illumination at the screen is possible, subject to the inevitable condenser losses (reflection, absorption and, in the case of Fresnel lenses, interruptions between rings). (Fig. 4*a*.)

There are an indefinite number of possible condenser positions, the greater the distance from the film the greater being the diameter of condenser required to give limiting illumination over the screen. The single advantage of increased source clearance has to be set off against increased absorption and increased cost as well as a slightly decreasing economy, i.e., the more remote condenser positions require a slightly larger extent of source (if the size of the condenser but not its form be varied). For these reasons it is well to adopt a condenser position which is as near the film as is consistent with a satisfactory source clearance. The maximum useful extent of condenser opening in any plane is defined by the locus of points from which it is possible to see through both aperture plate (the frame of the film) and objective simultaneously. The best position for the source and the maximum useful extent in that position are most easily determined by back-testing as described in the magic lantern section. This point should be noticed, however; for some condenser arrangements back-testing will reveal two well defined spots in different planes, one being rectangular and the other circular. Naturally the smaller spot is the more economical source-position and either spot may be the smaller according to circumstances. The only kind of source which may be placed in correspondence with the rectangular spot, however, is one devoid of structure, such as a flame, because any source structure will be more or less clearly imaged in the film position and in turn on the screen. With a rough source it is essential to place it nearer to the condenser; how much nearer is a question which depends on the degree of roughness of the source (coarseness and contrastiness of structure), the relative aperture of the objective and the degree of evenness desired in the screen illumination. In the case of a suitable tungsten-filament and customary objective aperture it is sufficient in practice to adopt the sharpest circular spot as source position. (In short, while a perfectly smooth source may sometimes advantageously be placed conjugate with the film, a rough source must be placed more nearly conjugate with the objective opening.)

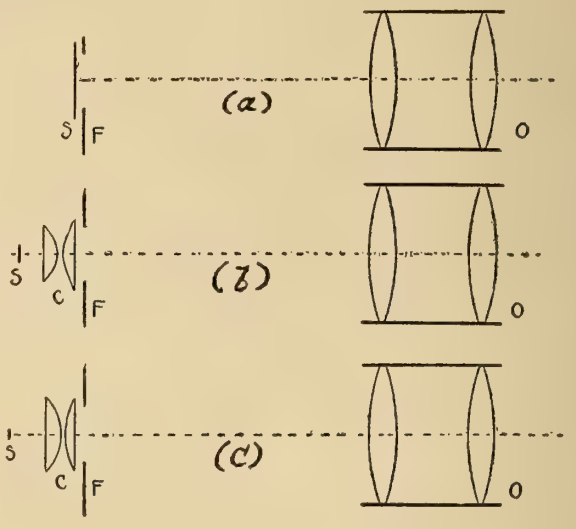

Fig. 3.

Motion Picture Systems. (a) Ideal, (b) Magic Lantern Type; adapted for theatre use, (c) The same adapted for amateur use.

It is advisable to consider at this stage what effect is produced in the general case, if one "stops down" or reduces the opening of a condenser so that it no longer satisfies the primary condition for limiting illumination over the screen.

In general the condenser opening is imaged some little distance ahead of the objective. (It may be readily found by using a slip of paper.)

The effect is this: from any viewpoint on the screen one sees as much of the objective opening at standard brightness as may be seen through the imaged condenser opening. Thus with some particular example of condenser opening it may happen that central points on the screen have a view of the objective opening quite unrestricted by this imaged opening, while peripheral points are not so fortunate. The result is a waning illumination as one moves towards the edge of the screen, a so-called vignetting action.

It is important to notice the various stages in the transition arising from a gradually shrinking condenser opening in the general case where the condenser is not very close to the film. First: with the condenser opening sufficiently large, limiting illumination is possible at all screen-points. Reduction of the opening is first effective in a slight darkening of the corners of the picture. The effect becomes more marked and eventually it is impossible to get limiting illumination even at the center of the screen. Carrying the reduction of the condenser opening further and further, the screen illumination steadily decreases but it becomes gradually more uniform. At a certain stage it becomes quite uniform, and although further reduction of condenser opening leads to decreased illumination, yet the distribution stays uniform. These changes are illustrated in Fig. 5, representing the distribution along the diagonal of the screen.

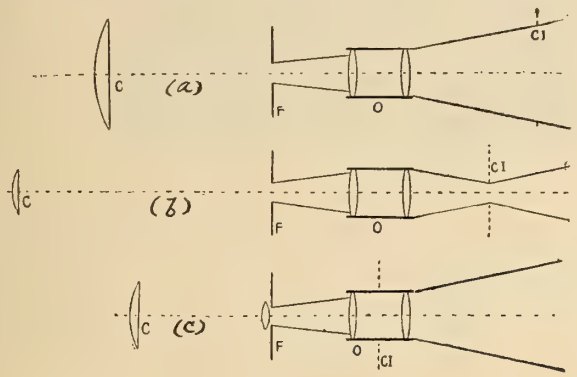

Fig. 4.

Motion Picture Systems. (a) Large remote condenser for limiting illumination, (b) Small remote condenser for low, even illumination, (C) Use of a field lens adjacent to the film. C = condenser, F = film CI = image of condenser opening. Outlines of useful beam shown in each case (for shutter design).

It may well be asked, of what interest is it to consider anything but the primary condition in which the condenser opening is large enough to secure limiting illumination all over the screen?

The extreme case of restricted condenser opening is very interesting because it is a condition advocated and practised largely in the theatres to-day (Fig. 4*b*). That is, a plano-convex condenser system of 4 in. (10 cm.) opening is often placed at 15-20 in. (35-50 cm.) from the film. The arrangement approximates to the stage e shown in Fig. 5, low but uniform illumination. There are advantages unconnected with illumination associated with this arrangement; these advantages will be related later and shown to be overestimated.

The case of a slight restriction of condenser opening is of practical interest for the following reasons. The slight vignetting is not a serious disadvantage at least; some even go so far as to claim it as a positive improvement of the picture. There is quite an advantage in being able to use a smaller condenser size, both on account of cost and, more important, the saving in thickness of glass which results in an improved source-clearance.

To summarize, the condenser for motion picture projection may conform with any of three conditions:

(1) Miniature magic lantern arrangement; condenser a little larger than the film and placed close behind it.

(2) Condenser at a distance from the film and of such a diameter as will lead to limiting illumination over the screen, or at any rate over the greater part of the screen.

(3) Condenser at a distance from the film and of such small diameter as will given even or practically even illumination.

(There is a fourth arrangement which has had various supporters; this employs in addition to the condenser proper a small field-lens close to the film such that the condenser opening and objective opening are respectively conjugate, or in the relation of object and image. Lack of space forbids more detailed mention). (Fig. 4*c*.)

As regards the form of condenser best suited to motion picture projectors, a few remarks may be of interest.

Amateur outfits using the magic lantern arrangement will give satisfaction with plano-convex condensers. The mode of operation resembles that of the arc lantern; that is, the effective objective aperture is less than the gross opening (Fig. 3*c*).

Corrected, i.e., non-spherical condensers have greater possibilities with such outfits, but it is largely a question of cost. Such condensers would be very desirable if any attempt were made to use this arrangement in theatre work, in fact, they would almost be essential (Fig. 3*b*).

Of the other condenser positions, it may be said that the non-spherical construction is always an advantage in spite of the fact that spherical aberration is not always a detriment (in limited amounts). There is always a saving in lens thickness and hence a diminished absorption and an improved source clearance when the corrected surfaces are used.

A peculiar form of condenser of the Fresnel type can be used for any position not immediately adjacent to the film. In estimating the relative utility of such a condenser it is necessary to set off the advantages of small thickness (hence low absorption and good source-clearance) and cheapness against the disadvantages of considerable "discontinuity" and surface-scattering losses.

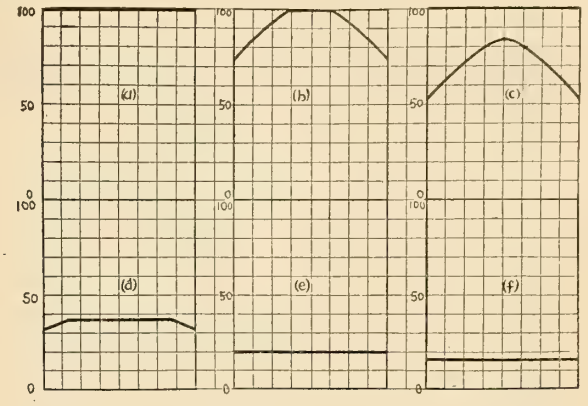

Fig. 5.

Distribution of illumination along screen diagonal as affected by relative opening of motion picture condenser; openings diminish from (a) to (f). abscissae = points along screen diagonal —— ordinates = intensities.

(A Fresnel lens necessarily has interruptions of aperture between the prismatic rings; in its aperture relations it is analogous to an ordinary condenser having black paper rings pasted on it.)

There is a possibility which has not been discussed, namely, the use of an extent of source which is smaller than that really called for by the optical train. This alternative which involves using a smaller effective aperture of objective for any particular screen-point than would otherwise be used, cannot be adequately treated here. The resulting illumination is correspondingly low and there is no apparent advantage associated with this arrangement.

(To be continued next week)

The Universal 4 K.W. Generating Set

The popularity of the Universal Generating sets for moving picture work and theatre lighting has advanced by bounds since this reliable outfit came on the market in 1914. The design of this set seems to have embodied every requirement of the showman, and in its design every angle of this work was kept in view, such, for instance, as compactness and lightness in weight, reliability and smoothness of operation.

The weight, 500 pounds, makes it the lightest set on the market, and this is brought about by precision in design and manufacture, and the combining of the armature and fly-wheel. This is especially important where the outfit is used for portable work and will be appreciated by traveling show men.

The Universal Motor Company has just completed a large addition to its plant to double the previous capacity, so that at present the production of the 4 K.W. sets is six per day complete.

The Universal set, shown in the illustration, comprises a four-cylinder four-cycle engine with built-in governor running in oil, and combined generator of special design which is eight-pole compound wound, 110 volts 40 amperes or 60 volts 70 amperes as desired.

Verdicts are Formed

after

Evidence and Convincing Facts

Have Been Submitted

SPEER ALTERNO CARBONS

FOR A.C. WORK

AND

SPEER HOLD-ARK CARBONS

FOR D.C. WORK

Produce Incomparable Results—results mould operators' opinions—opinions determine the verdicts—verdicts establish the reputation. The operators' "stamp of approval" places Speer Projector Carbons in that exclusive class of motion picture supplies most essential to improved projection.

PARAMOUNT FEATURES

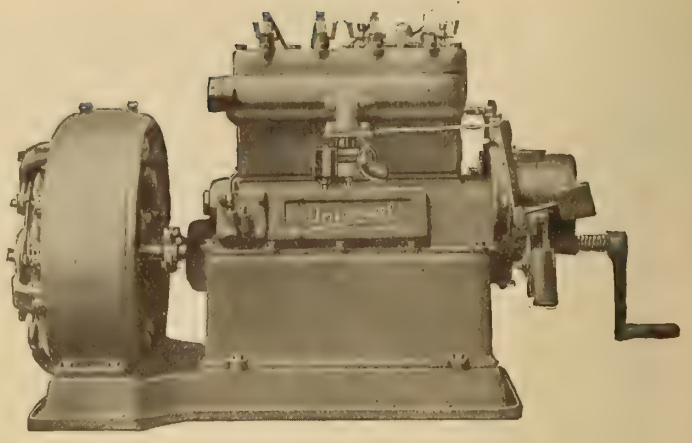
ALTERNO CARBONS

Perfect Projection—Wanderless Arc.
Noiseless Operation—Brilliant Illumination.
Bright, Flickerless, Eye-Resting Light.
No Change Required in Booth Equipment.

ESSENTIAL ADVANTAGES

HOLD-ARK CARBONS

Permanent Arc — Longer Life
Perfect Crater — Minimum Adjustment
Hard Core and Metal Coating
Elimination of Projection Difficulties



When ordering specify whether for alternating or direct current. Each style has a special duty to perform. Substitutions or attempted alterations are costly.

Write today for descriptive literature

"THE CARBONS WITH A GUARANTEE"

SPEER CARBON COMPANY

ST. MARYS, PA.

The Universal 4 K.W. Generating Set

For stationary installation a seventy-gallon water tank can be supplied for cooling instead of radiator and fan or water can be taken from water service pipes.

Full description of this attractive unit can be had by writing the Universal Motor Company, Oshkosh, Wis., for bulletin No. 26.

Unsteady Picture

J. H. JENKINS, Boissevain, Manitoba, writes: "I have a Motiograph machine which I have run for a good few years, running one or two nights a week. I get a jump in the picture in running. The faster I run, the worse it is, and especially when a joint passes through the intermittent. My sprockets are nearly new, and I have also just put in a new aperture plate and spring shoes. I have no lost motion in the intermittent sprocket and my framing device seems to be solid. Can you tell me where to look for the trouble?"

IN reply: Inasmuch as the correspondent has not described the jump in his picture, as it appears on the screen, we cannot advise the particular mode of removing it right offhand, but we can, as the correspondent requests, suggest some places to look for the trouble.

Firstly, it is just possible that the machine is not securely fastened to the floor of the operating-room, or, even if it is firmly anchored, there may perhaps be vibration present. When a projector is not firmly mounted the picture will move up and down, and sometimes sidewise, on the screen in exact accompaniment with the turning of the crank, and in such a case, the faster the machine is cranked the more rapid will be the jumping movement of the picture on the screen.

It seems to us, however, that were the correspondent's machine not firmly mounted he would be aware of this, so we will suggest some other causes of unsteady projection. It might, for instance, be found that the tension-shoes which bear upon the film at the aperture-plate are not bearing with sufficient pressure against the film. This could also account for the correspondent's statement that the jump in the picture increases with increased speed of projection. As a rule, it is found that most operators carry too tight a tension on the shoes, or springs, but the correspondent is, nevertheless, advised to investigate this point.

We note that the correspondent has recently installed new sprockets, but he says nothing about the renewal of the star-wheel or cam. It may happen that the star-wheel or the cam, or both, are badly worn and need renewing, although the design and mode of adjustment of the Motiograph intermittent is conducive to a long period of usefulness on the part of the star and cam. It can further be premised in view of the recent installation, by the correspondent, of new sprockets, that either in removing the worn intermittent sprocket, or in putting on the new one, the spindle carrying the star and sprocket may have become sprung or bent slightly out of true. It is hard to imagine how this could occur, as the Motiograph intermittent sprocket is secured to its shaft with set-screws and no punching is necessary to remove it. We mention it as a possible cause of the jump in the picture and many other causes of the same annoyance could be mentioned, not the least of which is excessive wear in the bearings of the intermittent movement.

With regard to the jumping of the picture when a splice passes through the intermittent, this is a common occurrence and is sometimes due to the type of the join, a thick splice generally causing the picture to climb momentarily on the screen. This jumping of the picture when a splice traverses the intermittent can also be caused by having the idler-roller set too close to the sprocket, and we recommend that all idler-rollers be adjusted so that they are at a just perceptible distance from the faces of projector sprockets.

Christmas Brings New Equipment to Simplex Office

KRIS KINGLE was up bright and early the morning of the 23rd, and when the office force of the Precision Machine Company arrived at the Simplex factory, they were surprised by finding an entirely new set of office equipment installed for their use. Kris didn't forget the trimmings either, for he had placed a nickel-plated Simplex Projector in front of a large American flag and for a frame used a large wreath of laurel.

The second surprise of the day came when Miss Terese Hogan of the office force, said something about remembering the Red Cross, and before she knew it fifty-six members had been enrolled.

Then the mail started to arrive with orders for thirty machines, pretty calendars, cards and well wishes from all parts of the country, which goes to make one feel this is not such a large world after all.

Then another surprise was sprung when word went the rounds that pay-day was advanced two days in order that all might have money on Christmas Day, and to cap the climax, Old Kris remembered all with a present or an increase in salary, making it the end of a perfect day, to all at the Simplex factory.

Lang of Power's Returns from Mexico

MR. A. J. Lang, of the Nicholas Power Company, has just recently returned from Mexico, where he has been for the past month in the interests of his firm. Mr. Lang reports the successful outcome of his mission, which was, no doubt, connected with the introduction of the Cameragraph into the land of cacti and tortillas.

Attention Arizona Managers

WE have received word from Mr. E. E. Wise, secretary of Local 415, Miami, Ariz., that two of the members of that organization are now at liberty and would be pleased to resume work as soon as possible. The gentlemen are Mr. F. L. Gibson, of Miami, Ariz., and Mr. W. W. Garrett, Globe, Ariz. Letters addressed to them in care of Local 415, I. A. T. S. E., Miami, Ariz, will reach them promptly, and any manager requiring a reliable and experienced operator will do well to get into touch with these men. Both are married and neither is subject to the present Federal draft.

Fort Wayne Local Has Successful Dance

WORD has just been received that the dance held on Christmas week by Local 466, I. A. T. S. E., of Fort Wayne, Ind., proved a great success and netted a substantial sum for the treasury of the organization.

The Fort Wayne boys form a real live organization and all hustled their limit for the social affair, which gained real notice from the city at large.

Projection, Like Photography, Demands a Good Lens

All the better-known camera men demand the highest grade lenses for their photography. And operators know that are equally necessary to get the most out of the film.

Bausch and Lomb Projection Lenses

Designed with special reference to projection problems, Bausch and Lomb Projection Lenses give you sharp, brilliant images right out to the edge of the screen.

If you're interested in better projection, let us send you our interesting descriptive booklet. It's free.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co.
569 ST. PAUL STREET ROCHESTER, N.Y.
New York Washington Chicago San Francisco
Leading American makers of Photographic and Ophthalmic Lenses, Microscopes, Projection Lanterns (Balopticons), and Other High-Grade Optical Products.

SIMPLEX

SIMPLEX

Motion Picture Machines, not merely as good but far superior to any other. We are exclusive agents for Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland.

Motor Generators and General Supplies

MINUSA Gold Fibre Screens

SPEER CARBONS for Perfect Projection

We are equipped to give you expert service. We repair machines with tools made by the factories. No other concern can offer better service than we. Try us.

Lewis M. Swaab 1327 VINE STREET PHILADELPHIA, PA.
DISTRIBUTOR

GET YOUR RELEASE DATES IN BY SATURDAY

"WE NEVER DISAPPOINT"
TELEPHONE BRYANT 5576
CROMLOW FILM LABORATORIES
INCORPORATED
220 WEST 42ND STREET
NEW YORK
ALLAN A. LOWNES
GEN. MGR.

The Camera

Prizma's Latest Color Pictures

An Advance Over Former Demonstration

NEARLY a year ago we described the Prizma system of color cinematography, and gave our impressions of the screen results by the Prizma process. After a great deal of further experimenting, Prizma, Inc., have introduced a new method, the results of which are now on view at the 44th Street theatre, New York City.

Under the title "Our Navy," the Prizma concern is exhibiting a multiple-reel subject depicting the doings of our sailor boys, and the tremendous strides by which the United States Navy has been augmented and raised to fighting strength in the course of the past year. The subject "Our Navy" is of paramount interest of itself at the present time, but when it is considered in addition that the entire picture was recorded and reproduced by color photography, it was, to say the least, a pleasure to witness this exhibition.

The purpose of these paragraphs is to review the results from the technical standpoint, which we preface by a brief outline of the earlier Prizma process. As readers of the Camera Department will recall, the original Prizma Process was a four-color process, the color-sensation records being produced successively in series of four images; an orange-red, a blue-green, a yellow and a blue image comprising each color cycle. The positives (black and white prints representing the respective color values) were projected by a Simplex machine equipped with a rotating filter-disk divided roughly into two sections—one-half being red-orange and the other half blue-green.

The rate of projection for the earlier Prizma color pictures was (for best results) thirty-two per second; and in this respect the latest Prizma results are similar. In the case of the Prizma system as worked at present, there is no rotating color-filter attached to the projector, because the projecting colors are on the film itself —each film image on the positive strip carrying its own projecting filter. Although this may sound strange, the explanation is very simple, as is also the practical operation of the method.

The color-sensation negatives are photographed on panchromatic film stock, the exposures being made successively through alternating red-orange and blue-green filters. This yields a negative bearing alternate red-and-green sensation images as in the case of the Kinemacolor system.

From the color-selection negatives thus produced, black-and-white positive prints are made on ordinary positive stock, but the alternating red-and-green sensation images of these positives represent, respectively, the redness and the greenness of the subjects photographed.

Now, by passing the film through ingenious and highly accurate machines, each red-sensation image is covered with an even coating of transparent red dye, and each green-sensation image is covered with an even transparent coating of green dye, and thus each image on the positive strip is provided with its own projecting filter of proper hue.

When, now, the positives thus prepared are projected on an ordinary projecting machine (with no special attachments), at the rate of thirty-two or more pictures per second, the result is a reproduction on the screen of the subjects photographed in approximately their natural colors, and the degree of fidelity of coloring will be governed by the usual factors, such, for instance, as: the spectral sensitiveness of the negative film stock; the transmissions of the taking-filters; the adjustment of the ratio condition; the quality of the positive prints; the transmissions, or hues, of the projecting-filters and their approximation to fulfillment of the neutrality condition.

In an earlier article we pointed out some of the scientific desiderata in the case of just such a color process as we have now under consideration, so, instead of dwelling longer on the purely technical phases of this latest Prizma method, we pass to the consideration of the results as revealed on the screen at the 44th Street theatre.

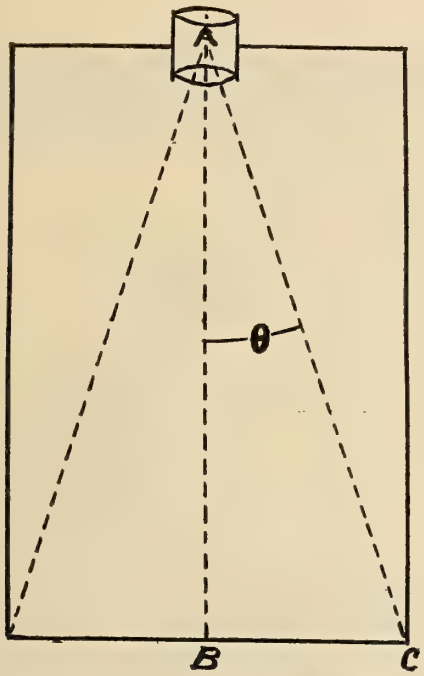
It can be stated at once, in connection with these successive processes in which each alternate color-sensation image is provided with its own projecting-filter (in the form of a transparent layer of dye) that the screen results are not free from pulsation at a lower projecting rate than thirty-two images per second, and a higher projecting rate is (with most subjects) essential to absolute freedom from eye-fatigue, as we have pointed out on several previous occasions. When the projecting speed was unduly lessened momentarily at the 44th Street theatre, as occurred on one or two occasions, the pulsation in the bright colors was very marked, while if the projecting speed is very considerably decreased, a stroboscopic flickering effect follows, which is more severe than any flickering which can be produced in black-and-white projection.

The color projection at the 44th Street theatre was, in the main, kept rigorously up to the proper speed, however, so that the performance could be appreciated and the reproduction of colors closely studied. The whites of the subjects exhibited are of sparkling clearness in these latest Prizma results, which indicates that the projecting colors used are actually complimentary to one another, or very nearly so, and, as in the case of Prizma's earlier exhibitions, a wide range of warm tones were well reproduced, including a close approximation to pure red in some scenes. Some remarkably vivid and interesting volcanic scenes, showing fountains and rivers of molten lava, had obviously been specially prepared to accentuate the reds, but this was a virtue, as it enhanced the realism of the picture.

When we reviewed the earlier Prizma results, we stated that greens were not in evidence, and that yellows were likewise lacking; and the same holds true for the present showing, but not so rigidly, because the blue-greens which should be greens in the latest results are nearer to green than in the case of the former method, and a flash of yellow can be seen now and then when conditions have been favorable to its reproduction. The cause of this absence of greens and yellows is that the projecting colors used on these Prizma films lie somewhat more toward the blue of the spectrum than the ideal scheme for two-color additive reproduction. As the green projecting color is much more blue than green, the greens cannot be depicted on the screen, while the absence of sufficient green also prevents the formation of yellows, which latter, as is well known, are formed by the admixture of red and green light. The Prizma projecting red is complementary to the decidedly bluish blue-green projecting color, as was previously stated, and has, therefore, a wide transmission band making the hue orange-red.

Although this combination of projecting colors has its limitations as regards the reproduction of certain hues, we are of the opinion that it is a very useful combination for most work, and the results shown were of such uniform quality, and reproduced the subjects photographed with sufficient accuracy to justify the statement that it is probably more practical to employ this synthesis consistently than it is to use filters more near to theoretical correctness and be continually altering the color balance to secure certain effects.

The exhibition at the 44th Street theatre represents a notable advance over Prizma's earlier demonstration.



ALFRED S. CORY.

Calculating Angle of View of Photographic Lenses

R. C., New York City (name withheld by request) inquires: "Could you describe a method of determining the angle of view included by various lenses? I have some tables of view angles, but they do not cover all cases, and I would like to know of some method of ascertaining the angle of view which a lens takes in."

In reply: In speaking of the angle of view included by a lens, we must always take into consideration two factors upon which the result depends, i.e., the equivalent focal length of the lens and the size of plate with which the lens is to be used. Both of these factors will be known to any photographer; the size of the plate is known exactly, and the E. F. of the lens as marked on the mount will be sufficiently accurate. The only other requisites are the ability to add, subtract and multiply, and the possession of, or access to, a table of natural tangents of angles. A good set of mathematical tables, i.e., logarithms, sines, cosines, tangents, etc., should be in the possession of all photographers and users of apparatus for optical projection.

Referring now to the annexed diagram, in which the solid lines represent a camera with lens attached, we proceed as follows:

Let the dotted line A B represent the E. F. of the objective, and let B C represent half the width of the longest side of the plate. (Makers of photographic lenses use the diagonal of the plate, instead of the longest side, as the basis of their computations. This gives the absolute view angle, included on a plate of given size, but it is not generally as suitable for practical requirements as the view angle calculated for the longest side of the plate.) The angle θ, or B A C, represents, therefore, one-half of the angle of view included by any given lens on a plate of specified dimensions, while the entire angle of view will be represented by 2θ.

We require to find the tangent of the angle θ, and by simple trigonometry the tangent of the angle B A C is represented by the ratio $\frac{B\,C}{A\,B}$

Taking now a concrete example:

What angle of view will be embraced by a 5″ lens on a 5 x 7 plate?

Putting the values of the equivalent focal length and the half of the longest side of the plate into the proper sides of the above equation, we have $\frac{3.5}{5.0}$, or .7, for which we require the numerical value of its tangent. By reference to a table of natural tangents, we note that the tangent of .7 is 35°, which represents one-half of the angle of view included on the plate considered. Twice 35° is 70° the angle of view of the 5″ lens on the 5 x 7 plate.

The foregoing is the method by which published tables of view angles have been computed and will be found accurate. If it is desired to calculate the absolute view angle along the diagonal of the plate, the diagonal should be measured and one-half of its length inserted in the above equation, in place of the half of the longest side of the plate.

EASTMAN
FILM

The result of highest grade materials and painstaking manufacture is shown in the results on the screen.

Identifiable by the words "Eastman" and "Kodak" on the film margin.

EASTMAN KODAK CO.,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Just one Local Picture might Pay for your

K. B. Camera Outfit

and it will last for years with reasonable care

A combination outfit, with which you can take and make your own local stuff

The Best Money Maker you can get—

The Camera - - 110.00
The Tripod - - - 30.00
The Tank - - 30. and up

"Remember we show you how"

BARKER BROTHERS
724-730 So. Broadway
Write or Wire today LOS ANGELES

Every Detail

When you consider that the value of every detail of every foot of film you show depends on the character of the projection lens, you will appreciate the value of a lens, which invariably brings out the full value of every detail in every part of every picture.

Marlux

That is the reason that Simplex and other first class projectors, which are only sold with the highest quality of equipment, are furnished with the Marlux lens when specified.

The Marlux costs no more than any good lens, and gives better results.

Your Dealer will give you further information, or write direct to

CROWN OPTICAL COMPANY
ROCHESTER, N.Y.

Great News

EVANS' DEVELOPING and PRINTING has kept pace with the rapid strides of the producer towards film perfection.

Now, more than ever, competition demands that you have the best of service—EVANS' SERVICE, of course.

EVANS FILM MFG. CO.
416-24 West 216th Street New York City
Telephone—St. Nicholas 3443-44

Printing, Developing, Toning, Tinting

Titles
Domestic Foreign

Empire City Film Laboratories, Inc.
345 West 40th Street New York

Benjamin Chapin Devises New Arrangement for Cooper Hewitt Lights

MR. BENJAMIN CHAPIN, the well-known motion picture star, was dissatisfied with any lights that he could purchase for getting certain effects "close up," so he evolved a novel combination which gives perfect lighting in taking a close-up set.

Calling his technical director and chief electrician to his office, he outlined his invention and instructed them to make the new bank at once out of various parts of late model Cooper Hewitt banks which were installed in his studio.

The accompanying photograph shows the completed bank in use with the actor-inventor inspecting them.

When interviewed by General Sales Agent Hubbard, of the Cooper Hewitt Electric Company, Mr. Chapin explained the influences that led him to invent the new unit.

"As you doubtless know," explained Mr. Chapin, "the character of Abraham Lincoln, which I portray in the Lincoln Cycle, is a very difficult subject to photograph for various reasons. In the first place, Lincoln wore a black suit, and with the dark beard it does not offer much contrast photographically. I found it particularly difficult to arrange the lights, as we are using both the ordinary side banks and the combination side and overhead. In numerous tests I noticed that the black beard was hard to be distinguished from the black coat that I wear. I figured that if I could get sufficient light from underneath, it would act as a back light and throw the dark outlines into relief. When the combination bank was made and tested, it proved to be just as I anticipated, and gave wonderful results, which can be especially noticed in our recent "close ups." The effect is a soft, natural tone which we could not get in the glare of carbon lamps generally used in these close-up scenes."

The Cooper Hewitt Company realizes the big advantages of Mr. Chapin's novel invention, and will add it to their line of banks, so that in the near future other producers will find a difficult phase of lighting solved through Mr. Chapin's ingenuity.

Music and the Picture

Musical Review of Latest Compositions

1—"We'll Follow Pershing into Old Berlin," by R. C. Young. A patriotic Song hit, published by the R. C. Young Music Co., Columbus, Ohio.

2—"Reflections Waltz, by Foster." A melodious Waltz most appropriate for Society Dramas. (Published by W. A. Quincke & Co., Los Angeles, Cal.)

3—"Alexander's Got a Jazz Band Now," by Schonberg. A comic composition suitable for slapstick work. (Published by Deely De Sylva & Schonberg Music Co., Los Angeles, Cal.)

4—"Boy Scouts Parade" (March), by J. K. Johnson. A typical march suitable for Military Scenes. Koninsky Music Co., Troy, N. Y.

5—"Yock-A-Hilo Town," a typical Oriental Song by Donaldson. (M. Witmark edition.)

6—"Tiger Rose," One or Two Step, by Louise Maurice. A splendid number suitable equally for concert or dance work. (Leo Feist edition.)

7—"We're After You," by Lloyd. One of those typical up-to-date march songs most appropriate for cartoons of political character. (Jeff Branen edition., 145 W. 45th Street, New York City.)

8—"Dramatic Recitative," by Sol. P. Levy. An exceptionally fine composition depicting scenes of intense danger and heavy dramatic situations. This number is obtainable from the Cinema Music Co., Columbia Theatre Bldg., 47th St. and 7th Ave., New York City, at a special reduced price.

9—"I'll Come Back to You When Its All Over," by Kerry Mills. No matter what you do buy this month, do not under any circumstances neglect to secure a copy of this wonderful number. (Leo Feist edition.)

10—"Ten Minutes of Drama." A suite of two very long numbers. (A) Illustrates the dramatic in a neutral style; (B) Melodiously expresses a romantic or pathetic aftermath. (Obtainable from J. W. Stern, 102 W. 38th St., N. Y. C.)

11—"Your Voice Came Back to Me," by Clinton Keithley. A charming slow movement with a most delightful melody, growing constantly in popular favor. It is an "Andante Expressivo" of exceptional beauty; a really exquisite composition which every music lover will appreciate. (Published by the Frank K. Root Music Co.)

12—"I Don't Know Where I'm Going, But I'm On My Way." An inspiring and catchy melody, by Geo. Fairman. (Published by Harry von Tilzer.)

13—"Homeward Bound," by Geo. Meyer. A typical composition of popular appeal introducing a new surprise in every bar. A fine snappy number with unusual attractive chorus and arrangement which leaves absolutely nothing to be desired. (Published by Leo Feist, Feist Bldg., N. Y. C.)

14—"Fifteen Minutes of Pathos." A suite of two long concert numbers that will maintain a pathetic appeal interestingly. Both numbers will permit of dramatic interpretation.

15—"United We Stand," by F. E. Holly. A snappy two-four March Movement, most appropriate for Scenes of military character. (Edition Schubert, 11 E. 22nd St., New York City.)

16—"Nocturne," by A. Nepomuceno. A decidedly welcome addition to the somewhat restricted literature of a special field. This composition has a true lyric beauty, a distinctive quality of charm, and the appeal of sentiment melody to commend it. It will please every pianist who cultivates a genre whose chevaux de bataille for years have been such numbers as the Sextet from Lucia and Count Geza Zichy's celebrated waltz. (G. Schirmer edition.)

17—"Elks March." A brand new novelty March, by M. L. Lake (Carl Fischer edition.)

18—"Berceuse," by Huerter. Another wonderful composition by this gifted writer. "Berceuse" by Huerter is a delightful and charming melody very effectively arranged and obtainable for any combination of instruments. (Published by the Boston Music Co.)

19—"A Russian Pansy," by Otto Langey. An attractive new Intermezzo from the pen of Otto Langey. It has much of the appeal of the familiar "Flower Song" by Gustav Lange, together with the freshness and the interest attached to a new composition. (Published by G. Schirmer, N. Y. C.)

20—"At Twilight"—Theme and Romance, by Earnest S. Golden. A delightful concert number with a Theme accompanied by chimes. This number is indispensable when playing to pictures. (J. W. Stern, New York City.)

21—"Constance"—Theme and Romance, by Earnest S. Golden. A concert number of serious intent with a melodious theme that will allow for musical synchronization to tense and emotional situations on the Photo Play screen. The Romance is a natural illustration for passion. (J. W. Stern, New York City.)

22—"Venetian Barcarolle," by Earnest S. Golden, a beautiful melody in Venetian style. Adapts itself wonderfully for Theme use. The interlude is in minor, permitting the most dramatic musical interpretation. A beautiful number with harp accompaniment. (J. W. Stern, New York City.)

Out of Town Publishers

JUST at present the music business appears to be in a very healthy state, and patriotic songs have first call—that is, the novelty patriotic numbers. And the out of town publishers are turning out their share. Many of them, however, are not losing sight of the fact that the public likes a variety, and the publishers are getting out some good ballads and novelties. The Harmony Music Hall, a new one in the field, and located at Coney Island, has "All the World is in Love with You," and "I'm Goin' to Peck in Pekin."

David G. Baltimore, Lakeside Building, Chicago, has a big feature patriotic number in "Peace and Liberty," which should be good for picture work.

"We'll Have Peace on Earth and Even in Berlin" is a novelty war number that is making a great many friends and sales for the Thomas J. Flanagan Music Co., Syracuse, N. Y.

Boosey & Co., the House of Song Fame, has started to make a hit of "We'll Keep Old Glory Flying." The firm is exploiting it in the vaudeville world, feeling that it is the kind of a song that will appeal to the masses.

C. Arthur Pfeiffer keeps on the job and after his catalog. Day by day he is growing bigger and bigger. His "Flanders" song is getting many calls from singers and musicians.

"Soul of the Rose" and "My Sweet Hawaiian Love Beside the Sea" are two numbers that are going very big in the West. They are published by the Allanson Publishing Co., Chicago, and are just beginning to make themselves felt here in the East. Edward C. Allanson wrote both numbers, much to his credit.

The Hopewell Publishing Co. of Hopewell, Va., is making big strides with its new number, "You've Gone Too Far with Uncle Sam."

The Acme Publishing Co., Philadelphia, Pa., has just issued a new recruiting song that is stirring things up in the city of brotherly love. "What Do You Say, Boys," is the number.

The Song Mart of Santa Cruz, Calif., has a lively gang song suitable for comedy pictures, called "What Do you Care?" The Song Mart has a big following on the coast.

The James S. White Company of Boston winds up the old year by offering a fast novelty in "Who Told You You Knew How to Love?"

The Red Star Music Company of Fayetteville, Ark., has made a special edition of "Astralita Serenade" for small orchestras.

"Mothers of France" is a new patriotic song just published by Friedman, Guthman & Co., of Chicago, Ill.

O. E. Howard, publisher, Chicago, has a stirring march song in "Hurrah for the Red, White and Blue." It is a good picture number.

"We're Off To-day for the Mighty Fray" is John E. Wall's latest contribution to the song world. Wall is doing business in Quincy, Ill., and is giving "Pot" Pfeiffer a run for first honors.

The Sovereign Publishing Co., of Buffalo, has several war songs, including "Go, My Son, God Bless You."

"After the War is Over" has a fine swing, and is published by Frederick H. Green, Muscatine, Iowa. Green has been in the business some time and knows how to get his songs over.

John H. Bingemann, of Buffalo, is making a special play on instrumental numbers suitable for picture work.

"Can the Kaiser" is a new one just put out by Adkins-Fennell Company, of Kansas City, Mo.

Harry Tenney, a Patriotic Song Writer

HARRY TENNEY, connected with Jos. W. Stern & Co., is anxious to do his bit towards furnishing the boys in the trenches with cigarettes, and as a result has made arrangements with his publishers to turn over 25 per cent. of his royalties from his new song, "Send Back Dear Daddy to Me," to the "Our Boys in France Tobacco Fund." If the song lives up to expectations many a soldier will be made happy by the cigarettes that will go over as the result of Tenney's generosity. E. B. Marks thinks that it will be equally as popular as their other juvenile hits, "A Little Lost Child" and "In the House of Too Much Trouble." And if the reception that Bailey and Cowan received at the Colonial theatre two weeks ago when they introduced it is any criterion of its future success, the song will be one of the biggest juvenile ballads this country has ever seen. Bailey and Cowan stopped the show every time they put it on.

Harry Tenney, Author of "Send Back Dear Daddy To Me," Donates His Royalties to the Cigarette Fund for Soldiers

"Send Back Dear Daddy to Me" is a splendid number for motion picture work.

Some new writers have published songs and offered to give a certain percentage of the earnings to one of the societies interested in the welfare of the soldiers, but they did not have the proper facilities to exploit the numbers, and in most cases hoped that patriotism would sell the copies. In Tenney's case it is different. The song was published and put out in the regular way, and the same amount of money and energy would go behind the song regardless of any donations to the soldiers. So every cent that goes to the soldiers comes out of his pocket, and will in all likelihood amount to more than a thousand dollars.

Tenney, however, is not the only one of the Stern staff who is contributing to the smoke fund. Frederick Rath, now at Camp Upton as a private, has also arranged to turn over one-quarter of his royalties from "When the Moon Is Shining Somewhere in France" to the "Our Boys in France Smoke Fund." Rath has been with the boys in khaki for months and he knows just how necessary smokes are. In giving to the soldiers Rath is doing two bits.

E. M. WICKES.

Joe Morris Has a Live Catalog

JOE HOLLANDER, professional manager for Joe Morris, is one of the busiest men in Melody Lane these days. And as a result of the time and energy he has put into Morris's catalog he has several real hits in "Say a Prayer for the Boys Over There," "There's a Service Flag Flying in Our Home," and "My Heart's Tonight in Old New Hampshire." Hollander is the first to offer a service flag song to the musical world, and the way the calls are coming in for the number it looks as if Joe has stolen a march on the rest of the boys. However, it is nothing new for Joe, as he has been a long time in the game, and what he does not know about placing songs is scarcely worth knowing.

"Who Said Dixie?" and "We're Going Over the Top" are two other songs in the Morris catalog that are showing up very well. Morris expects 1918 to be the biggest year he has ever had, which means that he will have to go some, when you take into consideration what he did with "There's a Quarker Girl Down in Quaker Town," "America, Here's My Boy," and others. But Morris feels that having Hollander on the job constantly, he has nothing to worry about but depositing checks in the bank.

E. M. WICKES.

"BECAUSE OF THE WOMAN"

(Triangle Production)

(Reviewed on page 4399)

Theme: "Love Song" (Dramatic Melody) by Flegier

1—"Longing" (Moderato) by Armand until—T: "A storm foretelling sunset."
2—"Characteristic" (Tremolo) by Lovenberg until—T: "Above the noise of the Storm."
3—Continue ff until—T: "Gwynne Manor, blocked, etc."
NOTE—Effects of wireless apparatus
4—"Sweet Jasmine" (Melodious Allegretto) by Bendix until—T: "Hasn't Barrett returned yet?"
5—"Garden of Memories" (Reverie) (Vandersloot & Ed.) until—S: Girl and young man near big trees.
6—Theme until—T: The epilogue of dining.
7—Chorus of Popular Song "Come back to me, Sweetheart" until—T: "We'll excuse Noel, etc."
NOTE—To be played as a Vocal Solo with Piano accompaniment
8—Continue Piano Solo improvise ad. lib. until—S: Young man kissing Girl.
9—Theme until—T: Awaiting Colonel Gwynne's return.
10—"Heavy Mysterioso" by Sol. P. Levy until—T: "Prestige won by years, etc."
11—"Dramatic Recitative" by Sol. P. Levy until—T: "Looks to me like the Colonel, etc."
12—"Dramatic Tension" by Funck until—T: "If you think you've got anything on me, etc."
13—"After Sunset (4/4 Dramatic Moderato) by Pryor until—S: Flash back to lonely hut.
14—"Furioso" (for Storm Scenes) by Becker until—T: "Two years is a long time out here."
15—"Dramatic Agitato" by H. Hough until—T: "Write a confession or—"
16—"Ein Maerchen" (Dramatic Fantasia) by Bach until—T: "Yes I married Muriel, etc."
17—Theme until—T: "You Win."
18—Repeat "Furioso" (same as Cue No. 14) until—T: "After trying for hours."
19—Pathetic Andante by Paul Vely until—S: Incoming Train.
20—Railroad effects—followed by
21—Theme until—T: Finally the desire to Kill.
22—"Le Retour" (Allegro) by Bizet until—T: "Welcome, my boy, Welcome."
23—"Pastel Menuet" (3/4 Allegro giocoso) by Paradis until—S: Woman near Piano.
24—"Bring back my daddy to me, Song (deo Feist Ed.) until—S: Automobile on road.
25—"The Vampire" (A dramatic Theme) by Sol. P. Levy until—T: "I have some influence with Allen."
26—Piano Solo—improvise to action until—S: Change of scene.
27—Repeat "The Vampire" until—T: That's the Greenway Girl.
28—"Intermezzo" (Moderato) by Bohm until—T: Determined that his sacrifices, etc.
29—"Mysterioso" to action until—S: Interior of Restaurant.
30—"Tiger Rose," Two Step by Maurise (Leo Feist ed.) until—T: Dinner over, with honors even.
31—"Reflections Waltz" by Foster until—T: All is fair in.
32—Repeat "The Vampire" (same Cue as No. 25) until—T: Monopolizing one to bring, etc.
33—"Dolorosa" (Poem Moderato) by Tobani until—T: At the Tilden Ball.

34—Popular Waltz until—S: Night Scene in Garden.
35—Popular One Step until—T: There must be some truth, etc.
36—Popular Waltz until—T: Obeying a loving impulse.
37—Theme until—S: The Fight.
38—Agitato to action until—T: "Gentlemen why make, etc."
39—"Erotik" (Dramatic) by Grieg until—T: "Mother what's a girl to do?"
40—Theme until * * * * END.

"THE ROSE OF BLOOD"

(Fox Standard Production)

(Reviewed on page 3665)

Theme: "Chanson sans Paroles," by Tschaikowsky

1—"Chanson Triste" by Tschaikowsky until—T: "The Samovar Party."
2—"Intermezzo Russe" by Franke until—T: "You will need no other recommendation."
3—"Sweet Revery" by Tschaikowsky until—T: "At the home of the Arbassoffs."
4—Continue to action until—T: "You will serve such people."
5—"Russian" (Characteristic) by Moszkowsky until—T: "Let me see how they look, etc."
6—Theme until—T: "Wass ya and his comrades."
7—Continue ff until—S: Prince riding through streets.
8—"Herodiade," Fantasia by Massenet until—S: Explosion.
9—Produce effect, followed by—
10—Repeat "Herodiade" ff until—S: Interior of the Prince's room.
11—Theme until—T: "Every day adds to your chance."
12—"Dramatic Recitative" by Sol. P. Levy until—T: "Although you are not, etc."
13—Continue or repeat pp until—T: "Only too eagerly are the orders."
14—"Allegro" by Bach until—T: "I have been assured that, etc."
15—Orchestra Rest until—T: "By this Rose the Color of my Blood."
16—"Cavantine" by Bohm until—T: "Love levels all ranks."
17—Theme until—T: "Lisza, this is General Doring."
18—Continue pp until—T: The Day of the Celebration.
19—"March Slave" by Tschaikowsky until—S: Interior of Church.
20—Organ to action until—S: Lisza fires the shot.
21—Continue "March Slave" to action until—T: The Arbassoffs Reception.
22—"Polly with a Past," Valse by Maurice (Leo Feist Ed.) until—T: "Just as I thought you are the Red Rose."
23—Part 1 from "Orestes" by Bendix until—T: "But still the work, etc."
24—Theme until—T: "And at this very moment."
25—Long Heavy Furioso until—T: "The Imperial Council, etc."
26—"Maximilian Overture" by Ascher until—S: Lisza lighting fuse on bomb.
27—Silence until—S: Explosion.
28—Produce effect—followed by—
29—Theme until * * * * END.

"THE HONEYMOON"

Theme: "The Vampire" (a Dramatic Theme) by Sol. P. Levy

1—"Polly with a Past" (Valse) by Maurice (Leo Feist Ed.) until—T: "The loveliest rose has its thorn."
2—Theme until—T: "Not unless you help me break."
3—"Air de Ballet" (3/4 Allegretto) by Chaminade until—T: "Get me out of this pickle."
4—"Characteristic Tremolo" (for Waterfalls) by Lovenberg until—T: "Phil has told me everything."
5—Theme until—T: "Yes Darling! you are the only woman, etc."
6—Repeat "Characteristic Tremolo" by Lovenberg until—T: "A shock that brings Dick back to earth."
7—Dramatic Recitative by Sol. P. Levy until—T: "I'm Phil Lane's brother-in-law."
8—"Illusion Intermezzo" (2/4 Moderato) by Bustanoby until—T: "Just before dinner."
9—Continue to action until—T: "I'm curious to see the stage."
10—Theme until—T: "After Dinner."
11—Continue ff until—T: "The short cut, through the alley."
12—"Aurora" (Ballet Intermezzo) by Von der Mehden until—T: "Shall we say ten thousand dollars."
13—"Dramatic Tension No. 9" by Andino until—T: "My wife won't believe me."
14—Dramatic Agitato by H. Hough until—T: The relatives compare Telegrams.
15—"Le Retour" (Allegro) by Bizet until—S: Mrs. Creer reading telegram.
16—Theme until—T: "On the outing that is to terminate, etc."
17—"Forest Whispers" (Gavotte) by Losey until—S: Interior of Court room.
18—Continue pp until—S: View of Niagara Falls.
19—Repeat "Characteristic Tremolo" by Lovenberg (same as Cue No. 4) until—T: "Absolutely precious the only girl, etc."
20—"Heloise" (Moderato Intermezzo) by Langey until—T: "What have you done with, etc?"
21—"Vanity" (Allegro Caprice) by Jackson until—T: "I paid no attention to."
22—Continue ff until—T: "Thanks to that fool, etc."
23—Galop to action until—T: "Don't disturb us."
NOTE—Play pp during "Interior Scenes" and "ff during "Exterior Scenes."
24—Theme : until * * * * END.

"THE PLANTER"

(Mutual Production)

(Reviewed on page 3307

Theme: "Mexican Kisses" (Hobanera) by Roberts

1—"Serenata" (3/4 All. Mod.) by Tarenghi until—T: "While in the far off tropics."
2—"Tropico" novellette (2/4 All. Mod.) by C. Smith until—T: Mrs. Man entertains.
3—"Electric light" Quadrille by Schlepegrell until—T: "So we're in need of a new manager."
4—Missouri, Waltz (Forster Ed.) until—T: And the hand-reared son goes forth.
5—"Manzano" Intermezzo by Brooks until—T: "Lying at the junction, etc."
6—"Besos Y Pesos" Mexican Waltz by Martinez until—S: Woman showing phonograph record to young man.
7—Silence until—S: Woman starts phonograph.
Important NOTE—Just watch effects—Church bells ringing.

"MISSOURI-WALTZ"

The World's Greatest
and
Most Popular Waltz

For Piano - - - 30c Per Copy
For Orchestra - 11 and Piano 25c
For Orchestra - Full and Piano 35c

Forster Music Publisher, Inc.
509 So. Wabash Avenue
CHICAGO, ILL.

You Must Know L. Wolfe Gilbert and Anatol Friedland—

You Must Have Played Their Past Hits—
NOW
GILBERT & FRIEDLAND, INC.
Music Publishers
OFFER

ARE YOU FROM HEAVEN?

A picture song of unusual beauty, whose title and theme will fit any situation of love and romantic interest.

They also offer an ear-tickling, catchy number, full of life, suitable for any light or comedy situation

IT'S A HUNDRED TO ONE You're From Dixie

Either song will be sent any recognized photoplay pianist on receipt of 10c (or both for 15c) to cover cost of mailing. RECOGNIZED ORCHESTRA LEADERS may obtain orchestrations (11 pts. and piano) of either for 15c, or both for 25c, to cover mailing cost.

GILBERT & FRIEDLAND, INC.
Music Publishers
230 West 46th St., New York

L. Wolfe Gilbert, Pres. — Anatol Friedland, Vice-Pres.

THE GREAT PATRIOTIC HOME SONG HIT

Song 15c Orchestra, 11 and Piano 25c Band 25c
Waltz 15c Full Orchestra and Piano 35c

VICTOR RECORD BY PAUL REIMERS

PATRIOTIC VERSION BY ED ROSE

VANDERSLOOT MUSIC PUB. CO.
Williamsport, Pa.

WANTED—PIANISTS

FOR

Lyman H. Howe's Travel Festival

We desire to hear from young, reliable, above-the-average, male pianists for our traveling companies. Large and varied repertoire and ability to play from memory necessary. Long season and pleasant engagement. State age, experience, salary expected and all particulars, first letter.

ADDRESS:

THE LYMAN H. HOWE ATTRACTIONS,
(Incorporated)
175-177 West River Street, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

MOVIE PIANISTS

Join our "Movie Club." $1.00 entitles you to everything we publish for one year (Vocal and Instrumental).
ARTHUR M. SIEBRECHT & CO., LEXINGTON, KENTUCKY

8—IMPORTANT: This must be played on a phonograph, "Nearer My God to Thee," in the direct cue for this scene until—T: Dawn brings Hertzers Yaqui slaves.
9—Theme until—T: "He was a Yaqui Chief."
10—"Indian Love Theme" by Winkler until—T: "Always short in funds, etc."
11—"Intermezzo Pittoresque" by Kocian until—T: New England versus the tropics.
12—"Evening Breeze Idyl" by Langey until—T: True to his New England training, etc.
13—"Lola's Dream" Mexican Song by Tobani until—T: "His spirit unbroken under, etc."
14—Hurry to action, begin pp until—T: "Puritanical ideals suffer, etc."
NOTE—Watch alarm bell—also shots.
15—"Moraima" (Caprice) by Espinosa until—S: Indian fighting near grave.
16—Heavy Agitato—to action until—T: "Some day you'll remember that you refused my hand.'
17—"Prelude (heavy Dramatic) by Rachmaninoff until—T: "Time and environments are, etc."
18—Theme until—T: "And that night's fiesta of the slaves."
19—"Cantar Llorando" (Mexican Dance) by Moreno until—S: Girl standing near door—looking at Davis.
20—"On the Mountain" No. 2 from the Suite "Scenes Poetiques" by Goddard until—T: "Fever, the yellow fever, etc."
21—Second Movement "Pui Vivo" from the "Torch Dance" from the Suite "Three Dances from Henry VIII" by German until—T: With the passing of Guadaloupe.
22—Theme ff until—T: A norther brings the rain storm.
23—"The Tempest" by Lake to action pp or ff until—T: Days and nights of sleepless nursing.
24—"Love and Passion" by Messinah until—T: "Consuela adds the final touch, etc."
25—Theme until—T: "And as David speeds back."
26—Short Rest, Organ improvise until—T: "Lynch them! Lynch them!"
27—Short Hurry to action until—T: Hertzger urges his suit.
28—"Nocturno Op. 15," No. 2 by Chopin until—T: "While David again in the tropics, etc."
29—Open with Ad. Lib. Railroad effects—followed by—30—"Ein Maerchen" Fantasia by Bach until—S: Hertzer sitting on bench (near House).
31—"Heavy Dramatic No. 37" by Ochmler until—S: Hertzer struggling with girl.
32—Heavy Agitato or Hurry to action until—T: "Mercy! Mercy Senor! you can not do this."
33—"Lamento by Gabriel Marie until—S: Yaqui fighting with girl.
34—Heavy Furioso or Hurry until—T: "Take me, Take me! I will go anywhere."
35—Another Hurry for heavy fire scene with Tympany rolls until—S: Girl and David in Woods.
36—Theme ff until * * * * END.

"REACHING FOR THE MOON"
(Artcraft Production)

Comic Maestoso Theme: "Little General" (Caprice Heroique) by Tobani

1—"Blissful Dreams" by Meyer until—T: "Our Hero, Alexis Cesar."
2—Comic Maestoso Theme until—T: Alexis' prison.
3—"Bitter S[illegible]" (Intermezzo) by Engleman) until—T: That Evening Alexis calls.
4—Love The[illegible]il—T: "In the hope of a lookin', etc."
5—Comic Meastos Theme until—T: "At least after many hours."
6—"Comedienne" by Hosmer until—T: Back to the sympathetic listener.
7—Love Theme until—T: "A gloom all silence, etc."
8—Comic Maestoso Theme until—T: At the dock.
9—"Olympia" (Overture) by Ascher until—T: "When Morning Joy cometh."
10—"Creepy Creeps" by Taylor until—T: "After Darkest half hour of liberty."
11—Hurry to action begin pp then ff until—T: "As our old friend said."
12—Short Rest Organ Improvise until—T: "In Vulgaria."
13—Short Heavy Mysterioso until—T: "After a hungry voyage."
14—"Marche Grotesque" by Klugescheid until—T: The Water Fete on the Canal.
NOTE—Tympany Rolls ff during tumultuous scenes.
15—Continue to action until—S: Bomb Explosion.
16—Crash (Effect)—followed by—
17—Hurry to action until—T: "Sire you must hurry and dress."
18—Continue pp until—T: On the way to the ball.
19—Short Rest until—T: The Fete in the palace.
20—"Funeral March of a Marionet" by Gounod until—T: "Beware of Black Boris."
21—Short Dance Waltz until—T: "After the Ball is over."
22—Continue pp until—T: "You have insulted the Princess."
23—Hurry to action until—T: At Dawn.
24—"Presto" by Lake begin pp then ff with ff Tympany Rolls during S—when Alexis rolls down the big mountain until—S: Alexis falls out of his bed."
25—Cymbal Crash ff followed by—
26—Silence until—S: Alexis running out of his house.
27—Galop—Allegro until—T: Alexis in his office.
28—Continue pp until—T: "As the Evening Shadows fall."
29—Love Theme until * * * * END.

THE BARTOLA

Write any Bartola customer in the United States and his answer will convince you that this is the musical instrument you should have in your theatre. The installation of a Bartola solves your music problem. Write for catalogue.

CHAS. C. PYLE, General Sales Agent, 707-712 Mallers Bldg., Chicago, Ill. Factory, Oshkosh, Wis.

Theatres Worth While

Automatic Installs New Theatres

THE Automatic Ticket Selling and Cash Register Company announces that one of its most recent installations is in the new Loew theatre in Toronto, one of the show places of the Dominion.

It has also equipped the Loew theatre in New Orleans and many other amusement enterprises in the South.

Among the installations in the East is included the Rivoli, New York.

Since the war tax went into effect, there has been a particularly acute demand for Automatic Systems, since the government inspectors naturally look with favor upon a device like the Automatic System that records all the ticket sales made.

The Automatic Ticket Selling and Cash Register Company has shown an enterprising, accommodating spirit by compiling a simplified, practical working edition of the government regulations about war taxes. This booklet may be had free by writing to the company.

Directory of New Theatres

ARKANSAS

The new theatre being erected at Russellville is fast approaching completion and when finished will be one of the most up to date and best equipped theatres in the state. J. R. Baker is the owner of the new project.

CALIFORNIA

According to a report from Santa Barbara, the Pantages theatre circuit is planning to launch theatres in Bakersfield and Fresno.

E. V. Cook's new theatre at Exeter is now completed and opened a week or so ago to capacity business.

The new Kinema theatre at Los Angeles was opened a week ago with Geraldine Farrar in "The Woman God Forgot" as the attraction.

The new million dollar theatre being erected at Third street and Broadway, Los Angeles, will be known as "Grauman's" and it is expected to be ready for opening early in January.

Christmas Day saw the opening of Stearn and Crescy's new theatre at Huntington. It has a seating capacity of 500.

The new Chimes theatre, situated at College and Keith avenues, Oakland, was opened two weeks ago under the management of the Beach-Krahn Amusement Company. This is the third theatre under this management in this city, the others being the Strand and the Lorin.

The Strand theatre at Grass Valley was opened December 19 under the management of C. E. Howard and Herman Kersken of Oroville, who leased it from George Trotter immediately on its completion.

The remodeled Fresno theatre, renamed "The Hippodrome," was formally opened December 23, under the personal supervision of Lester J. Fountain. The improvements that have been made on the old theatre building which adjoins the Cory block in Fresno street, give it the resemblance of a new building, both on the exterior and interior. A new lobby on the street level takes the place of the old stairs at the entrance, while on the interior, the loge and box seats on the lower floor have been removed and a number of new chairs installed in their place. In the balcony all new seats have been installed. A restroom for ladies and a nursery for the kiddies are new additions to the second floor. The upper gallery has been closed, leaving the theatre a seating capacity of about 1,500. The larger part of the seats are new and much more comfortable than the old ones.

Ward Morris, a former Fresno boy, will be the resident manager of the local Hippodrome, Mr. Fountain being here only to launch the theatre. Morris has been associated with Hippodrome in San Francisco for a number of years, and comes to Fresno as manager after a successful theatrical career.

Fountain states that he will go to Sacramento from here to assist in launching the theatre there that the Hippodrome is taking over on the first of the year. Fountain is resident manager of the Los Angeles Hippodrome and has charge of the opening of all new holdings on the Pacific Coast Hippodrome circuit.

IDAHO

The American theatre, on East Center street, Pocatello, has been opened to the public, and is presenting a good class of movies for the crowd. It is located in the building that was built for the New York theatre a year ago, has been remodeled on the inside, painted and generally fixed up, and is under the management of N. B. Crossman. Pictures will be changed four times a week.

ILLINOIS

Frank Francis of Charleston announces that he and C. D. Mitchell contemplate erecting a new theatre on Sixth street, Charleston, and ground will be broken as soon as the weather permits.

The new Empress theatre at Taylorville was opened a few days ago under the management of Messrs. McCarthy and Humphreys.

INDIANA

A. F. Brentlinger, general manager of the Bankers and Brokers Co., which is affiliated with the Terre Haute Theatres Co., builders of the new theatre at Eighth and Wabash avenue, is spending a few days in Terre Haute looking over the local theatrical situation.

"We have altered the plans of the new theatre so as to give us more room for the stage," he said.

"The revised plans give us a depth of thirty feet instead of twenty-five feet—ample room for the presentation of almost any sort of a vaudeville act.

"Personally, I think it would be folly to build a theatre for motion picture and curtailed vaudeville acts only. With plenty of stage room we will be able to change the policy of the house from pictures and vaudeville to out-and-out vaudeville or even dramatic stock if it should be deemed advisable to do so at any time in the years to come."

C. J. Wacker, the Indianapolis builder, who has the contract, has agreed to have the theatre finished by May 1.

MARYLAND

Blanke & Zink, architects have the plans ready for a palatial theatre at Baltimore for the Homewood Amusement Co. It will be located on North avenue near Charles street.

The New Guilford, a beautiful theatre, is going to be built by the Parkway Theatre Co., in Baltimore.

MASSACHUSETTS

The Globe theatre at Brockton was reopened recently under the management of Charles A. Gregoire of Newbury street, and he intends making a special feature of children's plays.

The new theatre being erected on Moody street, Waltham, by W. Kingsbury is fast approaching completion, and will be ready for occupancy early in January.

MISSOURI

The South Side playhouse in Jefferson City, recently remodeled and rechristened "The Royal" was formally opened a few days ago, presenting "Within the Law" as the opening feature.

MONTANA

The Marlowe theatre, Helena's newest motion picture house will be ready for opening about the middle of February, according to C. E. Eckhardt of Butte, who will assume active management of same.

NEBRASKA

York's newest motion picture theatre "The Sun" opened its doors a week or so ago and was generally conceded a winner from every point of view.

NEVADA

C. R. Silva, proprietor of the Big Casino, Tonopah, is arranging to open at an early date a theatre in connection with his place of business. Alterations will soon be made for this purpose. B. Steinberger, of San Francisco, who has taken the position as amusement manager, is arranging to put on soon a big musical comedy, with a chorus of twenty girls. In addition, there will be vaudeville acts and motion pictures.

NEW MEXICO

Ground is being broken and excavating for the new theatre building at Tucumcari is in progress. The contractor promises to push this work as fast as possible. The name will be H & H theatre and the plans show it to be one of the very latest as well as largest in the state. It will help make Tucumcari the convention city of New Mexico.

NEW YORK

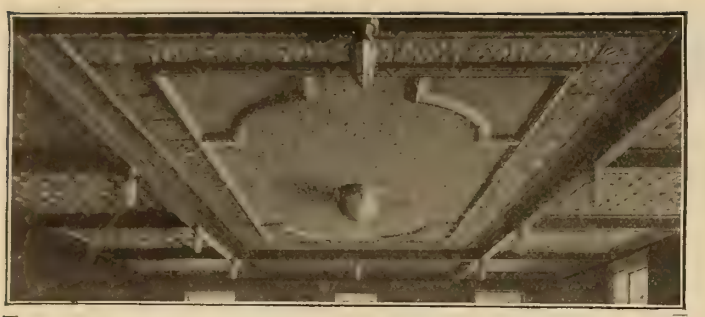
The new Temple theater at No. 132 Water street, Binghampton, was formally opened a few days ago.

Inside this playhouse a transformation has occurred. It has been made new by carpenters, painters, electricians and decorators into one of the cosiest, most inviting playhouses in the city.

Money has been lavishly spent. Its every appointment is new and up to the minute, from the latest models of Powers' projecting machines installed in a fire-proof booth in the balcony to the organ in the orchestra pit.

The entrance is entirely made over, box office rearranged to give a more spacious prepossessing lobby.

The lighting arrangement is especially well planned; attractive fixtures enhancing the beautiful color scheme of light blue and deep cream that is carried out on side walls and ceiling. The corporation owning and operating this newest amusement venture is headed by Lee M. Cafferty as president, F. B. Newell, vice-president, and A. W. Newman, secretary and treasurer. Mr. Newman will act as manager, and announces as the policy of the Temple the best pictures obtainable at an admission of 10 cents.



OREGON

After a half year's darkness following the fire in the Weatherford building last summer, the Rolfe theatre, Albany, was reopened a few days ago under the management of Everett Cummings.

PENNSYLVANIA

A motion picture theatre will be erected at Bethlehem. It will be conducted by E. H. Schwab.

Wilmer & Vincent, owners of the Orpheum theatre at Allentown, will demolish Hotel Hamilton at Harrison street, Wilkes-Barre, and will erect a new theatre on the site.

ABOVE ALL—YOUR CEILING

Can give character, attractiveness, beauty and distinction to your theatre—or it can mark your place as a poor, second-hand make-shift; a place the best people will not patronize.

You can't go wrong if you install

"BERGER'S Classik" STEEL CEILINGS

They supply you with all the beauty of molded plaster, intricate moldings and deep relief, with greater permanence and resistence to fire.

Above all, they are artistically correct, designed in wide variety by skilled artists to blend with and unify any scheme of interior decoration.

Dignify your theatre with Berger Classik Steel Ceilings.

Literature on request. Address Dept. D.M.N.

The Berger Mfg. Co., Canton, Ohio

Branches: Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis, San Francisco.
Export Dept.: Berger Bldg., New York City, U. S. A.

BERGER

Perfect Projection Makes Satisfied Patrons

Do you realize that the MOST PROSPEROUS THEATRES in your vicinity are the ones that are giving the BEST PROJECTION?

The quality of Films you show are a large factor in your success, but PERFECT PROJECTION IS MORE NECESSARY TO MAKE SATISFIED PATRONS.

Can you get PERFECT PROJECTION with your old equipment?

We are able to take back your old machine in part payment on a new one, and sell you a new machine on small monthly payments.

Write today for our catalog and liberal terms.

AMUSEMENT SUPPLY COMPANY.

Largest Exclusive Dealers to the Moving Picture Trade.

Dealers in Motiograph, Simplex, Edison and Standard Machines, Transverters, Motor Generators, Rectifiers and Everything Pertaining to the Moving Picture Theatres.

Third Floor, Mallers Bldg.,
Cor. Madison St. & Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

We sell on the installment plan.

Motor Drive
Size 17" x 17" x 7" over all
Weighs but Twenty Pounds
Takes Standard Size Reels and Film

The De Vry Stood the Acid Test

The Ford Motor Company writes:

"We would be glad to go on record, and have any prospective customer write us at any time, when we would be glad to advise them of the very satisfactory service that the De Vry Portable M. P. Projectors are giving us.

They are successful, and we have had no trouble with them whatever.

Ford Motor Company,
M. P. Department."

Ford Uses Fifty-One De Vry's

THE DE VRY CORPORATION, 117 North Fifth Ave., Chicago, U. S. A.

W. J. Ross & Sons and the Thiel Construction Co. are remodeling the theatre in the Pythian Temple at Johnstown. It will be conducted by Scherer & Kelley under the name of the "Temple Theatre."

William J. Snyder, a manager of the Aurora theatre at Pennsburg, has leased the moving picture there.

The Pittsburgh Opera House Co. of Pittsburgh has given a contract to Henry Busse & Co. for a theatre building to cost $9,000.

The Dunbar Amusement Company, Philadelphia, has decided to go ahead with the moving picture project for Borad and Lombard streets. Plans were prepared for a photoplay house there some time ago, but were laid aside, it was said, because of difficulty in financing the building.

Lachman & Murphy have got out new plans for a one-story structure, 70 by 130 feet, to be built of brick and concrete. The Standard Construction Company and Alexander Chambley, of this city, and F. H. Keyser, of Pottstown, Pa., are estimating.

VIRGINIA

J. C. Johnson & Brother are going to convert a store building at Berkley into a motion picture theatre at a cost of $2,000.

Elmer D. Heins of Roanoke, has leased the Trenton theatre at Lynchburg from the Trent Corporation.

WASHINGTON

C. G. Vaughan has leased the Hancock Building at Kelso and will convert it into a motion picture house.

WISCONSIN

Several weeks ago there were reports current that the Frellsons were contemplating the erection of a new theatre at Waukesha but not until last week did it become generally believed that such an enterprise would materialize. Now, however, since the corner property known as the John Gaparar homestead just west of the Hotel Waukesha has passed into the possession by purchase of the Frellsons and plans are prepared there remains no doubt of the accuracy of the reports.

The real estate for this enterprise was purchased at the price of $7,000. The estimated cost of the new building is from $35,000 to $40,000. It will have a ground dimension of 60 by 128 feet, and besides the theatre portions there will be two store rooms and two upper office rooms.

The theatre will have a seating capacity of 850. It will have all modern conveniences and for safety will have exits on all sides.

"SOCIETY'S DRIFTWOOD"

(Butterfly Production)

Theme: "L'Adieu" (Andante Melody) by Karganoff

Opening—Good Galop to action.
T—"William, the county judge," "At Sunset" (Moderato grazioso) by Brewer.
T—"Mary's career as a fortune teller," "Gipsy Serenade," by Jerwitz.
T—"County fairs are figured, etc.," Continue to action.
T—"I'm going to give your show," "Dramatic Tension," by Funck.
T—"When an arrogant judge," "After Sunset" (4/4 Dramatic Moderato) by Pryor.
T—"In the local jail," Theme.
T—"Two years later," "Dramatic Mysterioso," by Bach.
T—"A Steady Toilsome Climb," "Canzonetta" (Allegretto) by Godard.
T—"Through their walks in life, etc.," "Album Leaf" (4/4 Moderato) by Kretschmer.
T—"The president of the Pacific," Theme.
T—"When the public finds, etc.," "Petals" (Moderato Intermezzo) by Raymond.
T—"In the time that followed," Theme.
T—"Tison's story on the Pacific," "Dramatic Tension," by Winkler.
T—"Mary still gives her time," Continue pp.
T—"You thief," "Dramatic Tension," by Borch.
T—"Hello! little fortune teller," Continue pp.
T—"Several evenings later," "Intermezzo" (Moderato) by Bohm.
T—"The Spell of Romance," Good (6/8 Moderato).
T—"No. 1730 ordered, etc.," Theme.
T—"A Thirst for gain," "Lanette" (Valse Lento) by Henton.
T—"Late the following afternoon," "Sweet Jasmine" (4/4 Allegretto) by Bendix.
T—"I haven't spoken of it," Theme ff.
T—"I'm going to open that safe," "Dramatic Tension," by Ascher.
T—"Get out of town," "Dramatic Mysterioso," by Bach. (Note—Watch shot.)
T—"Get a doctor, etc.," Theme until * * * END.

"THE WOLF AND HIS MATE"

Theme: "To Spring" (Dramatic Melody) by Grieg

Opening—"Dolorosa," Poeme d'Amour (Moderato) by Tobani.
T: "The court gave you the title"—Agitato to action.
T: "I reckon you're a liar"—"Intermezzo" (Allegretto) by Pierne.
T: "You old song of, etc"—"Woodland Whispers" (Characteristic) by Czibulka.
S: "Old man reading letter"—"Love Song" (Moderato) by Puerner.
S: "Girl reading letter"—"Andante" (Mysterioso) by Lake.
S: "Men chasing after thief"—"Hurry, No. 42," by Becker.
T: "We're letting you off"—"Gavotte" by Gossec.
S: "Man robbing child"—Hurry to action.
S: "Child on bed"—Theme.
T: "A harbor of refuge"—"Tulips" (Moderato) by Miles.
T: "Steve Nolan! he's dead"—"Dramatic Tension" by Funck.
S: "Girl with coffee can"—"Erotik" (Dramatic) by Grieg.
T: "I see you ain't moved"—Agitato to action.
S: "Girl packing her things"—Theme ff.
T: "The law also makes it"—"Dramatic Tension, No. 1" (for disputes), by Ascher.
T: "With the passing of the days"—"Ballet Sentimental" (Moderato) by Zamecnik.
T: "Are you afraid of my, etc"—"Blissful Dreams" (Characteristic Intermezzo) by Meyer Helmun.
T: "Want I want I take"—Theme.
T: "I reckon if you want, etc."—"Melody Op. 16, No. 2," by Paderewsky.
S: "Man robbing child"—Hurry to action.
S: "Gian returns with child"—Theme * * * END.

THEATRES

THAT ARE WORTH WHILE

IS YOURS?

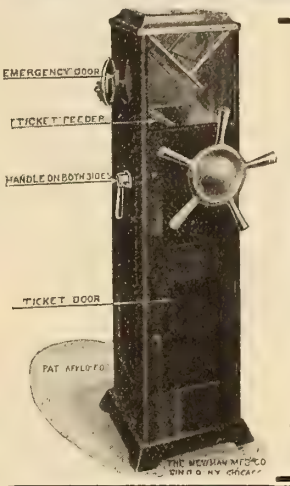
IF it is, send us full details—also photographs, in order that we may run a complete and fully illustrated story of which you will be proud.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS

729 Seventh Avenue New York City

Taking A Chance?

Do you book any picture for your theatre, without knowing what it is about and whether it will appeal to your patrons? It's a pretty big chance to take, especially when you can secure full information on any picture produced by subscribing to



"Screen Opinions"

The Independent, Comprehensive Reviewing Service

"Screen Opinions" comes to you each week and each month. The weekly issue contains reviews, synopses, cast—in fact full information on all pictures released during the week. The monthly issue contains all the information contained in the preceding weekly issues, with additional data. Let "Screen Opinions" acquaint you with the Moving Picture Market.

Write In for Full Information

Cahill-Igoe Co. Chicago
117 W. Harrison St · THE HOME OF "CICO" PRODUCTS

"NEWMAN" Ticket Chopper

Safeguard against having your tickets used over again and resold. Circumstances sometimes cause many men to yield to temptation. Newman's ticket choppers positively chop and positively insure you against any collusion between ticket seller and ticket taker. The most practical and most attractive choppers made. Write in for 1918 Catalog of Ticket Choppers, Brass Frames and Rails.

THE NEWMAN MFG. CO.
717-19 Sycamore Street, Cincinnati, O.
68 W. Washington Street, Chicago, Ill.
Established 1882
Coast Representative — G. A. Metcalfe, 119 Golden Gate Ave., San Francisco, Cal.
Canadian Representative—J. T. Malone Films, Rialto Theatre Bldg., Montreal, Can.
Frames, Easels, Rails, Grilles, Signs, Choppers, Kick Plates, Door Bars

THEATRE AND EXCHANGE MAILING LIST SERVICE

We rent lists of or address contemplated or existing theatres, exchanges, state rights owners, publicity mediums and producers, selected as to territory, class, etc. Twenty thousand changes were recorded in our list last year. Its use means a saving to you of from 30 to 50% in postage, etc.

N 145

MOTION PICTURE DIRECTORY CO.

80 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK Phone, 3227 Chelsea
425 ASHLAND BLOCK. CHICAGO Phone, 2003 Randolph

Addressing Multigraphing Printing Typewriting

For Better Music

The Fotoplayer

62 West 45th Street AMERICAN PHOTO PLAYER CO. New York City

TYPHOON COOLING SYSTEM

TYPHOON FAN COMPANY . 1544 BROADWAY NEW YORK CITY

Better to read fifty advertisements than to miss the one YOU need.

FROM A PROGRESSIVE HOUSE

WALLINGFORD AMUSEMENT CO.
INCORPORATED

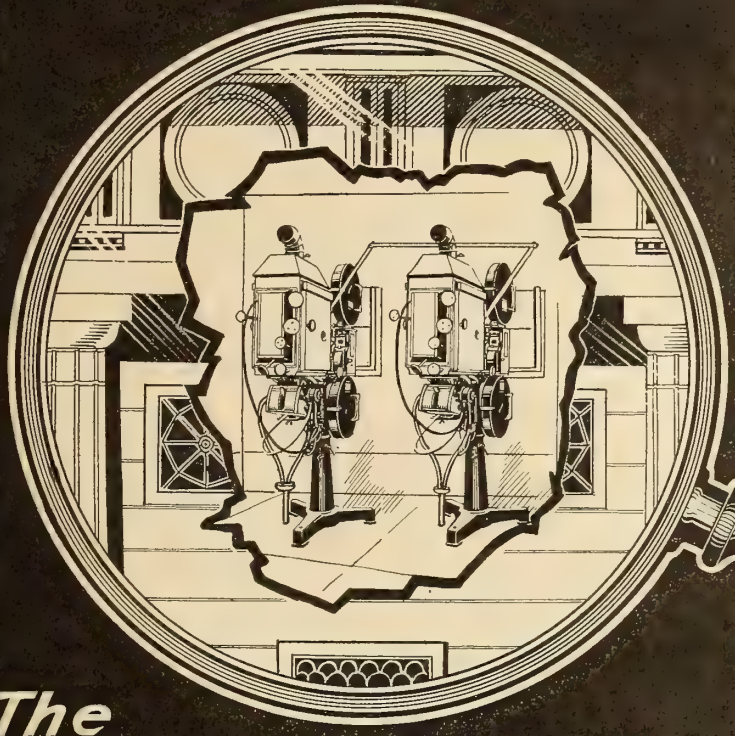
TELEPHONE CONNECTIONS

NEW YORK, Dec. 2. 1917.

Mr. J. H. Hallberg, Vice-Pres.,
United Theatre Equipment Corporation,
1604 Broadway, New York City.

Dear Mr. Hallberg:-

Three years ago you equipped our theatre with a complete outfit - two Powers 6-A projecting machines which I am pleased to state have given us good service and are still in good condition. Nevertheless, I want to be up to date and I herewith place my order for two more Powers machines, latest type, and I am willing to pay the regular price - although I have been offered two complete projection machines from other manufacturers without charge. The reason I prefer the Powers machine is that I have a 165½ foot throw, and the size of my picture is 16½ x 20½', on a plaster wall, and I use only 45 to 50 amperes - and have perfect projection. Please let me know when you will be able to install the new machines.



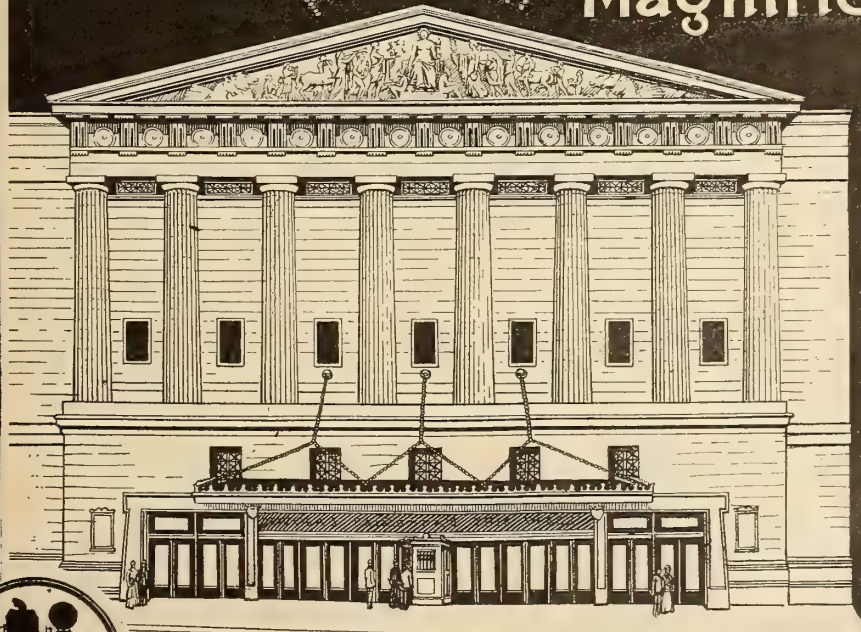
Very truly yours,

CLAREMONT THEATRE,
Fred J. Dollinger
Manager.

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY
INCORPORATED
PIONEERS OF PROJECTION
90 GOLD STREET NEW YORK, N.Y.

THE WILLIAMS PRINTING COMPANY, NEW YORK

Simplex



A Close-up of the Heart of Mr. S.L. ROTHAPFEL'S

RIVOLI

Your Theatre Would Live Better WITH A SIMPLEX HEART

The Grandest, the Most RIVOLI Magnificent

Temple Ever Erected to the Cinema God

THE PRECISION MACHINE CO. INC.
317 East 34th St. New York

"Alimony"

Released December 3rd

Mme. Petrova

in

"Daughter of Destiny"

Released December 24th

Mr. Charles Chaplin

in

His New Million Dollar Comedies

All productions released by the First National Exhibitors Circuit —All prints made at the home of perfect developing and printing.

We will be pleased to figure with you.

Rothacker

FILM MFG. CO. CHICAGO, U.S.A.

There are reasons— Come and see them.

JANUARY 19, 1918

Motion Picture News

Reg. in U. S. Patent Office.

HAS THE QUALITY CIRCULATION OF THE TRADE

Quality plus

the standard of motion picture quality has come to be, "foremost stars superbly directed in clean motion pictures"—but

Paramount and Artcraft Pictures

are quality plus pictures. Plus means they are nationally advertised.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
NEW YORK

485 5th Ave., New York

VOL. XVII-NO. 3 Entered as Second Class Matter, October 15, 1913, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the Act of March 3rd, 1879 PRICE 10 CENTS

FRANKLYN FARNUM

in

"The FIGHTING GRIN"

COMING with a tremendous rush of popularity that is making D. F. look to his laurels as a Box Office star, FRANKLYN FARNUM in "THE FIGHTING GRIN," gets over like a house afire. Farnum turns hold-up man and carries this quick action story along for 5 rapid fire reels of gilt edge Photoplay. Book "THE FIGHTING GRIN" and let FARNUM pack your house. All the usual Farnum dash and speed.

Book thru your local BLUEBIRD Exchange, or communicate with BLUEBIRD Photo Plays (Inc.), 1600 B'way, New York City.

Paramount-Mack Sennett Comedies

"An International Sneak"

—is a queer bird!!! a biped with flop ears.

Generally masculine and the local variety is often discovered in the back room at "Wallicks"

The common or garden name is Automobile Inspector or Shoo Fly Cop—due perhaps to a faculty for disappearing suddenly when the door opens or ability to cop anything.

They can invariably be recognized by the company they keep.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
NEW YORK
Paramount Pictures
ARTCRAFT PICTURES

Paramount-Mack Sennett Comedies

"AN INTERNATIONAL SNEAK"

with

Chester Conklin

Billy Armstrong

and

Ethel Teare

produced under the personal supervision of

MACK SENNETT

admittedly the leading director of comedies and picker of successful ideas of showmanship.

—something new

— that's what every exhibitor should be looking for—something new every minute.

— variety is the spice of life—yes, and it is the whole life of the show business.

— your box office will soon feel the drag of pep, punch and variety in your show.

— make the people talk, and send them out smiling.

— the single reel part of your show is most important.

— it offers the greatest opportunity to get "what you need" into your show.

—Paramount-Bray Pictograph contains all of these elements. Add it to your program and you'll get them coming back.

Put Yourself in his Place

Imagine yourself the Prosecuting Attorney—rich, respected, and influential—prosecuting for murder a beautiful girl of eighteen; you must demand her life's blood in payment for the crime.

At the height of the trial you discover that the girl is—your own daughter. You know that she is innocent—that you are guilty. None but you know your guilt. You can send this girl to her death—and save yourself.

Would you call this thrilling? Isn't this unusual suspense?

Now booking at all Paramount Exchanges

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers

His Broadway Success

Guilty Man"

By Ruth Helen Davis and Charles Klein
Irvin V. Willat, director.
Supervision of—
THOMAS H. INCE, Inc.

An unusual Drawing Card

A. H. Woods is famed for presenting tense drama. Under the supervision of Thomas H. Ince, Inc., a Woods' play means a great photoplay production.

"The Guilty Man" is famous as a successful Broadway play—this means drawing power.

The critics of the New York dailies commented upon this sensational drama when shown at the Astor Theatre on Broadway, as follows—

"The last word in emotional drama."

"Talk about a play with a punch. Here is one with several sledge-hammer blows."

"Full to the brim with thrills and tears."

"The soul of a woman wronged is ruthlessly laid bare."

"Strikes a vital spot."

Reserve dates at once for this vivid picture play—LONG ENOUGH DATES to permit all who will want to see it to do so.

Won't it thrill the photoplay public, as it did blasé Broadway?

Released by Paramount Pictures Corporation

Paramount Pictures Corporation presents

"Benjamin Chapin in The SON OF DEMOCRACY"

A series of dramatic film stories of America in the making—

Written, directed and produced by Benjamin Chapin.

"Not one star shall be lost"

Benjamin Chapin

Benjamin Chapin is a star of sufficient magnitude to pack the Strand Theatre, New York, for a week and then move to the Globe Theatre, adjacent on Broadway, and play 235 performances with a motion picture. This demonstrates his ability to attract capacity audiences.

Benjamin Chapin is one of the best known authorities on Abraham Lincoln. He has written, produced and appeared in Lincoln plays, playlets and vaudeville sketches. The experience of a lifetime has been concentrated in the work of "The Son of Democracy."

Mr. Chapin is a great artist, a finished actor, and an able dramatist.

Remember, "The Son of Democracy" is an unsurpassed emotional drama—

—that it is a 20 reel feature bigger than any ever released—

—that it is backed by a tremendous national advertising campaign and unusual publicity—

—that it carries with it the prestige of Paramount Pictures.

Paramount Pictures

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
NEW YORK

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

A Paramount Series

Paramount Pictures

THE WHARTONS PRESENT

A PATRIOTIC APPEAL

AMERICA'S SERIAL SUPREME

IN 20 EPISODES BASED ON FACTS

"THE EAGLE'S EYE"

THE STORY OF THE IMPERIAL GERMAN GOVERNMENT'S SPIES AND PLOTS IN AMERICA

KING BAGGOT

MARGUERITE SNOW

By WILLIAM J. FLYNN

RECENTLY RETIRED

CHIEF OF U.S. SECRET SERVICE

AN attraction that interests Everybody is certain to be a financial success.

Everybody has heard of the Imperial German Government's Spy Army in America.

Everybody is familiar with what Chief Flynn has accomplished in checking Enemy Spy Plots.

Everybody is interested in the startling revelations of the Secret War Peril existing in our midst.

Everybody will want to see these facts in pictures.

These are sound reasons why Exhibitors should book this production.

U.S.A. WHARTON T.W. L.D. ITHACA, N.Y.

DISTRIBUTED BY

FOURSQUARE EXCHANGES

PRINCIPAL OFFICE - 729 SEVENTH AVENUE - NEW YORK

BOOKING OFFICES IN ALL PRINCIPAL CITIES

4 SQUARE EXCHANGES

Many a packed house is directly traceable to an advertisement in the "News."

ALBERT E. SMITH

presents

VITAGRAPH'S PLAYERS

Whose releases will be the basis of the Vitagraph Program for 1918

Vitagraph has the experience and resources of over twenty years of film leadership at its command. It has the most modern equipment and highly trained and efficient personnel both in its Eastern and Western studios. And the foremost writers of the day are the authors of its scenarios.

With these supreme assets as a foundation, all the beauty, talent and popularity of its players will be offered to Exhibitors in a program remarkable for its consistent excellency.

AN APPRECIATION of
VITAGRAPH

By W. K. Hollander
in "The Chicago Daily News"

"In the field of feature photoplays, Vitagraph has come to the front as a mighty contender. Thus, when the day of reckoning arrives, as is predicted by film men, and the fittest survive the expected deluge which threatens the industry, this brand of photoplays will remain with the comparatively few concerns whose efforts are directed along artistic channels."

ALBERT E. SMITH Presents

"VENGEANCE— AND THE WOMAN"

Featuring

WILLIAM DUNCAN with CAROL HOLLOWAY

In 15 Smashing Episodes

By ALBERT E. SMITH AND CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Directed by WILLIAM DUNCAN

VITAGRAPH

YOUR BOX-OFFICE STATEMENT WILL TELL YOU IN FIGURES WHAT THIS REVIEWER WRITES IN THE CURRENT ISSUE OF THE DRAMATIC MIRROR:

"A serial that gives promise of outclassing that super-serial, The Fighting Trail,' in its exposition of hair-raising episodes and with its rapidity of action and death-defying thrills. The all-star cast, headed by the widely popular William Duncan and Carol Holloway. William Duncan's splendid accomplishment as a director of serials.

"At the close of the 'Fighting Trail' we felt that all in the way of thrills had been accomplished, but it seems we were wrong. 'Vengeance—and the Woman' gives fair promise of outclassing the preceding western melodrama. The story is better, and will appeal to all classes. The action leaves one breathless—so rapidly are the death-defying activities of the players unfolded.

* * * * * * *

"Here is a serial that should prove a veritable gold mine to exhibitors. It has been widely advertised, and the memory of 'The Fighting Trail' is still fresh in the minds of the people. and all those who witnessed that stirring serial will want to see this new achievement of Vitagraph. And it will not disappoint one of its audiences. It is truly a masterpiece in the way of thrilling melodramas of the ever-popular western type."

VITAGRAPH

ALBERT E. SMITH Presents

NELL SHIPMAN

With

ALFRED WHITMAN

In

"The WILD STRAIN"

The Story of a Girl Who Battered Down the Barrier of Family Pride to Win Love and Freedom

By GEORGE RANDOLPH CHESTER and LILLIAN CHESTER

Directed by WILLIAM WOLBERT

Re-introducing to Vitagraph Audiences the Star of "God's Country and the Woman" in a Quick-Action Story That Will Be Awaited with Interest Wherever Its Famous Authors Are Known.

A magazine's success is measured by its advertising. Look at the "News!"

SELECT SP PICTURES

Taunted beyond endurance, Jane turned on her tormentor furiously.

Organized Charity raised its hands in horror: Jane would be suppressed.

Jane Eyre suffered their scrutiny in silence; Rochester could not doubt her.

Distributed by
SELECT PICTURES CORPORATION

SELECT PICTURES

The gendarmes found Marston prone on the rug—La Fleur hovering over him.

"This isn't a very gay party, is it?" asked La Fleur, bored.

La Fleur's heart seemed to stop while she waited, and life itself to hang in the balance.

Distributed by
SELECT PICTURES CORPORATION
729 Seventh Avenue, New York City

Goldwyn Pictures

Mary Garden in "Thais" Draws New Audiences into Theatres

GOLDWYN'S presentation of the famous prima donna for the first time on the screen has proved, as we knew it would, a master-stroke for the box-offices of the nation. We knew that Mary Garden in "Thais" would be the sensation that the newspapers now proclaim her to be, but even we in our enthusiasm had underestimated this wonderful star's drawing power.

Needing patronage, as all amusement enterprises do at this moment, your surest way to increase receipts is by booking Mary Garden in "Thais." Here you find the verification of these statements:

BOSTON: The Globe: Men and women rarely, if ever, seen in motion pictures houses have flocked to the Boston Theatre to see the remarkably notable Goldwyn production, Mary Garden in "Thais." Patrons have swamped this theatre all week. Boston Post: Mary Garden's popularity is drawing capacity audiences. Boston Herald: One look at the long lines waiting outside the Boston Theatre gives you proof of Mary Garden's great success in motion pictures.

NEW YORK: Evening Sun: Mary Garden in "Thais" is the acme of photoplay perfection. Morning Sun: Tremendous assemblages are greeting Mary Garden in "Thais" at the Strand this week. N. Y. Tribune: Goldwyn's presentatation of Mary Garden in "Thais" is magnificent beyond one's fondest dreams. Miss Garden is a beautiful, sensuous priestess of passion. N. Y. Times: "Thais" is one of the greatest and finest films of the year. Evening Mail: Mary Garden in "Thais" is a joy to behold.

BALTIMORE: The American: Mary Garden in "Thais" is the year's most memorable production. Miss Garden is a revolutionary artist in the drama of silence. Goldwyn is to be congratulated for bringing her to the screen.

Goldwyn Pictures

Book This Production Lauded By the Best Brains of the Nation

HERE is one truth that can never be denied: The critics of one or two cities occasionally may be wrong in their judgments but there never has been a time when the critical judgment of the nation was wrong. Goldwyn's presentation of Mary Garden in "Thais" is approved without one dissenting opinion in every section of North America.

These tremendous approvals should cause all exhibitors to book or increase their playing time for the assured attraction that will fill their houses to capacity.

CHICAGO: Evening Post: Mary Garden in "Thais" is an artistic triumph that will thrill the picture audiences of the world. Miss Garden is magnificent. The Examiner: Emphatically a picture that all the world is hungry to see. The Tribune: Permit this critic to assert that Mary Garden's form divine is the sensational hit of Goldwyn's "Thais." The Herald: Mary Garden justifies the Goldwyn faith in her screen art. A picture of gorgeous splendor.

CLEVELAND: The Plain Dealer: At The Standard Mary Garden in "Thais" besides drawing the customary big attendance has broken all house records and also attracted a patronage that usually never sets foot in motion picture theatres. The Leader: Goldwyn's "Thais" is the big sensation of the screen year. Mary Garden is wonderfully alluring.

Mary Garden in "Thais" will receive more newspaper attention in your city or town than was ever bestowed upon a screen or dramatic production in your community.

GOLDWYN PICTURES CORPORATION

SAMUEL GOLDFISH, President — EDGAR SELWYN, Vice President — MARGARET MAYO, Editorial Director

16 East 42d Street New York City

Goldwyn Pictures

Three Powerful Goldwyn Dramas

Mabel Normand — Madge Kennedy

MAE MARSH
in Fields of Honor
By Irvin S. Cobb
Directed by Ralph W. Ince

A tremendous emotional drama. Two beautiful and sympathetic love stories—and a dramatic portrayal of what women are sacrificing to the world war. The strongest Ralph Ince production of the past year. Released: January 14

MABEL NORMAND
in
Dodging A Million
By Edgar Selwyn & A.M Kennedy

A memorable mystery-drama with frocks and thrills for added zest. Directed by George Loane Tucker. Released: January 28

MADGE KENNEDY
in
Our Little Wife
By Avery Hopwood

The daring story of the beauty who wanted her rejected suitors along on her honeymoon. Directed by Edward Dillon. Released: February 10

GOLDWYN PICTURES CORPORATION

SAMUEL GOLDFISH, President — EDGAR SELWYN, Vice President — MARGARET MAYO, Editorial Director

16 East 42d Street — New York City

OUR representative leaves New York within a few days for a tour of the open territory on Pyramid Comedies. He will carry prints of the four completed pictures. His trip is for the purpose of disposing of the remaining franchises and we are going to release Pyramid Comedies throughout the entire world simultaneously.

We have refrained from quoting prices or negotiating with any one who has not seen these four completed pictures. Such is our confidence in our product; it has not been done before in film history.

We have received numberless letters from substantial exchangemen saying they were in need of such comedies as we are making, but that they could not possibly come to New York at present.

We are going to them.

If interested write or wire us and the Four Completed Prints will reach you shortly.

Address

Pyramid Comedies, Inc.

220 West 42nd Street New York City

VARIETY Says:—

"The Cross Bearer"

is a really big photoplay in theme and execution. MONTAGU LOVE'S interpretation is quite the best that he has contributed to the screen.

Pathé

The NAULAHKA

by

RUDYARD KIPLING

and WOLCOT BALESTIER

is now presented as a superlative feature in

EIGHT PARTS

The magic, the witching mystery of the East, is in this superb production.....

ANTONIO MORENO

AND

DORALDINA

with WARNER OLAND, HELENE CHADWICK and MARY ALDEN in the cast .....

Directed by GEORGE FITZMAURICE, the man who has never made an unsuccessful picture.....

Produced by ASTRA

COMING SOON

Pathé

TOTO

IS HERE!

The MOVIE DUMMY

TWO PARTS

RELEASED JANUARY 13th

Produced by ROLIN ... Direction of HAL ROACH

There is no other screen comedian like him.
This quaint little man had all New York laughing;
Now he will cause a roar from Maine to California.

Ask the nearest PATHÉ exchange to show you this funniest of comedies — TOTO'S first

ONE TWO REEL comedy every month

Pathé

IN GOOD COMPANY!

The exhibitor who shows

HAROLD LLOYD

IN THE

"LONESOME LUKE"

(TWO REELS)

AND

ROLIN COMEDIES

(ONE REEL)

is in good company. The best houses everywhere show them and swear by them!

The best in Comedy is not too good for you! .....

Pathé

BOOKED SOLID OVER the LOEW CIRCUIT

The HEROINE OF "WHO PAYS" and "The NEGLECTED WIFE"

RUTH ROLAND
in
"The PRICE OF FOLLY"

The Series that's short in length but long in interest. Each episode is complete in itself. Like "Who Pays" and "The Neglected Wife" it deals with heart interest subjects in every day life.

EIGHT CHAPTERS of TWO REELS EACH

FIRST CHAPTER
RELEASED JAN. 20th

ANN MURDOCK

star in "Outcast," "The Beautiful Adventure," "Please Help Emily," every one a box office success, appears in another of Charles Frohmans plays in pictures

"THE IMPOSTOR"

in which she is supported by the able actor David Powell

Produced by Empire All Star Corporation
Available January 14
at all exchanges of the
Mutual Film Corporation

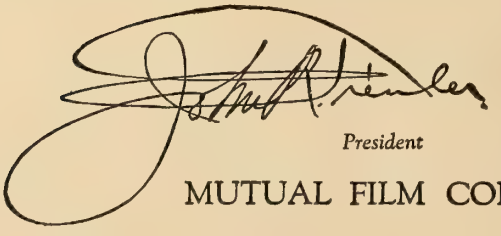
WE CONFESS

That the Mutual is doing a big business.

OUR SECRET

Is merely in serving a lot of theatres at prices which pay a profit to both of us.

OUR PRICES



Are lower, all values considered, than some competitors offer, and are higher than others.

WE ARE FIGHTING

Nobody at all, and we are doing very well thank you.

EVERY EXHIBITOR

Properly presenting Mutual pictures is making money. There is a Mutual proposition for your theatre.

President

MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION

Mutual Pays the War Tax

"CLASS"

is the word for BILLIE RHODES
in Strand-Comedies

She has no competition in the big houses and with the discriminating trade

One reel a week is available at exchanges of
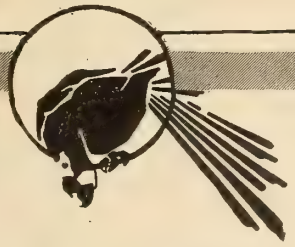
Mutual Film Corporation

MUTUAL PAYS THE WAR TAX

On Metro's recommendation book this picture for long runs

METRO



METRO
starts your new year with the present tremendous stage success

DAYBREAK

starring wonderful

EMILY STEVENS

Directed by Albert Capellani

Adapted by June Mathis and
Mr. Capellani from the play of Jane Cowl and Jane Murfin
5 ACTS

MAXWELL KARGER, Production Manager

METRO

The "NEWS" advertisers believe YOU worth while; justify them.

VIOLA DANA IN BLUE JEANS

is the sensational box office success of the year

Exhibitors are cashing in with MABEL TALIAFERRO IN Draft 258

Yes-they both are Metro successes.

An Advertisement by W. W. Hodkinson

PICTURES

PARALTA PLAYS are being booked with an enthusiasm which justifies all my faith in this great and pleasing product. The three star series are being received in a way that goes down to a BED-ROCK APPRECIATION of the three great artists who head the Paralta Casts:

★ ★ ★ ★ J. WARREN KERRIGAN ★ ★ ★ ★
★ ★ ★ ★ BESSIE BARRISCALE ★ ★ ★ ★
★ ★ ★ ★ HENRY B. WALTHALL ★ ★ ★ ★

The first three PARALTA PLAYS were made known to the industry by months of intensive advertising. Today they are three guideposts which mark the path of appreciation for clean, bright stories, portrayed by talent fitted and worthy of the story and Paralta Production:

A MAN'S MAN with J. Warren Kerrigan	MADAM WHO with Bessie Barriscale	HIS ROBE OF HONOR with Henry B. Walthall

These three plays, the first two of which are now released, and the third, "HIS ROBE OF HONOR," released this month, will be followed by twenty-one others; in all, eight for each star during the year. These three "star series" are worthy of any theater in the world, and an asset to every theater which has contracted for them.

They are availiable for bookings in "star series" contracts through "HODKINSON SERVICE" of the various GENERAL FILM EXCHANGES.

Wm. W. Hodkinson

W. W. HODKINSON CORPORATION
527 FIFTH AVENUE NEW YORK

Telephone, Murray Hill 2123

PARALTA PLAYS

PICK OF THE PICTURES

The Second Paralta Play

Bessie Barriscale in

Directed by
REGINALD BARKER

"Madam Who?"

Written by
HAROLD MacGRATH

ROBERT BRUNTON, Manager of Productions

Now YOU go and see PARALTA Plays.

And remember;

when you book PARALTA PLAYS

YOU get the advantage of six months of the most intensely efficient publicity ever expended on any brand of pictures.

Cash in on it.

Obey that inspiration.

Book PARALTA PLAYS.

The Public is sold.

Now get the money that's coming to YOU !

Coming ! The Motion Picture Plus (?)

PARALTA PLAYS, Inc.

729 SEVENTH AVENUE
NEW YORK CITY

Foreign Distributors: Inter-Ocean Film Corporation

DISTRIBUTED BY
W.W. HODKINSON CORPORATION

PARALTA PLAYS
PICK OF THE PICTURES

The First Paralta Play

J. Warren Kerrigan in "A Man's Man"

Directed by OSCAR APFEL

Written by PETER B. KYNE

ROBERT BRUNTON, Manager of Productions

Six months' Advertising and Publicity by the highest priced staff in the industry
have been telling the Public via Tradepapers, Newspapers, Magazines, Billboard Circulars, in every City, Town, Village and Hamlet throughout the width and breadth of the land about the Sterling Quality of PARALTA PLAYS.
And the Big News is that the Quality of PARALTA PLAYS is now backing up this six months' campaign at the Box Office.

Coming! The Motion Picture Plus (?)

PARALTA PLAYS, Inc.

729 SEVENTH AVENUE
NEW YORK CITY

Foreign Distributors: Inter-Ocean Film Corporation

DISTRIBUTED BY
W.W. HODKINSON CORPORATION

A magazine's success is measured by its advertising. Look at the "News!"

GENERAL FILM COMPANY.

THE THRILL SERIAL FOR PATRIOTIC AUDIENCES

A DAUGHTER of UNCLE SAM

with

JANE VANCE

and

William Sorelle

A Most Dramatic Story of German Spy Plots in America Exposed

The Great War at Home in Its Most Sensational Phases

How a Beautiful, Spirited Heroine "Does Her Bit" in Baffling the Conspiracies against the Nation's Lives, Munition Supply and War Plans.

The Sensible Serial

One Reel Each Week
Twelve Weeks

Produced by the

JAXON FILM CORPORATION

Commercial Trust Co. Bldg. 41st STREET and BROADWAY, NEW YORK

Distributed Exclusively by General Film Company

GENERAL FILM COMPANY does not exact the 15c charge on any of its releases.

MR. FOREIGN BUYER

PARALTA
"THE HIGHEST OF THE HIGH"

PARALTA PLAYS
ARE THE PICK OF THE PICTURES

PARALTA STARS
ARE
J. WARREN KERRIGAN - BESSIE BARRISCALE
HENRY B. WALTHALL

PARALTA PLAYS
ARE NOW BEING SOLD FOR FOREIGN FIELDS

SEE US NOW
THE LARGEST DISTRIBUTORS OF FILMS IN FOREIGN FIELDS
EXCLUSIVE EXPORTERS OF SPEER CARBONS

INTER-OCEAN FILM CORPORATION
PAUL H. CROMELIN
PRES. & GEN'L. MGR.
220 W. 42ND ST.
NEW YORK CITY

WE OPERATE EVERYWHERE

SCHLES

TRIANGLE

"How Does Triangle Pay the War Tax?"

TRIANGLE is paying the war tax. It is not passing it on to the already burdened exhibitor.

The reasons "why" have been clearly stated in the trade papers and in other advertising media. We are not surprised, however, that the question is still asked, "How does Triangle pay the war tax?"

The "why" and the "how" of the matter are different problems.

Triangle believes that the government intended the tax to be paid by film manufacturers, producers and importers, and was not to be transferred to exhibitors. We believe it is "our bit" and we are glad to make any sacrifices to do our part. That is the "WHY."

Exhibitors whose confidence has made Triangle a leading factor in the industry, are entitled to know "HOW" we can afford to pay this tax. It means a large sum of money and it must come from somewhere. Triangle wants every exhibitor to know from what source this money comes.

The answer is simple and is best given by another question, "How can the people of this country afford to buy Liberty Bonds, pay increased prices for necessities, and send their sons to the battlefields?" Economy, which is the answer the American public would make to these questions is also our answer to the tax question.

Ruin faces us if we believe the prophets. The air is full of accusation and insinuation. These clouds of dust may obscure some men's vision, but these men are not exhibitors.

(Continued on opposite page)

TRIANGLE

TRIANGLE

(Continued from preceding page)

Exhibitors know that Triangle prices have not been raised, that Triangle pictures are better than in the old days of individual stars and producers, and that Triangle service has set new standards for the whole industry.

Triangle did not wait for the crisis, to economize. Months ago the eye of scientific management was turned on production. The result is a dollar's worth of picture for every dollar spent, and a better dollar's worth in story, cast, settings and photography. If these things had not been done, who would have paid the bill? First, the producer—and then the exhibitor, who in turn must pass it on to the public. But, these things have been done, with the result that a margin has been left out of which Triangle pays the war tax.

Months ago plans were made for a Traffic Department. Transportation waste, an enormous item in overhead, was cut to a minimum.

Triangle is also serving a large number of new exhibitors—increased business means decreased expenses. The famous Triangle pictures made by Hart and Fairbanks have been reissued. Hundreds of exhibitors are making money on these pictures because of their unusual drawing power and the reasonable prices at which they are sold.

These are only a few of the many reasons why Triangle pays the war tax.

The Triangle exchange nearest you is willing to do business with you in the same frank way.

TRIANGLE DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

1457 Broadway, New York

S. A. LYNCH	R. W. LYNCH	FRED KENT	Y. F. FREEMAN
President	Vice President	Treasurer	General Manager

TRIANGLE

You are wasting your opportunities if YOU ignore advertising.

FOX SPECIAL FEATURES
ONE-A-WEEK—52-A-YEAR

ALMOST READY RELEASED SOON CONTRACT NOW

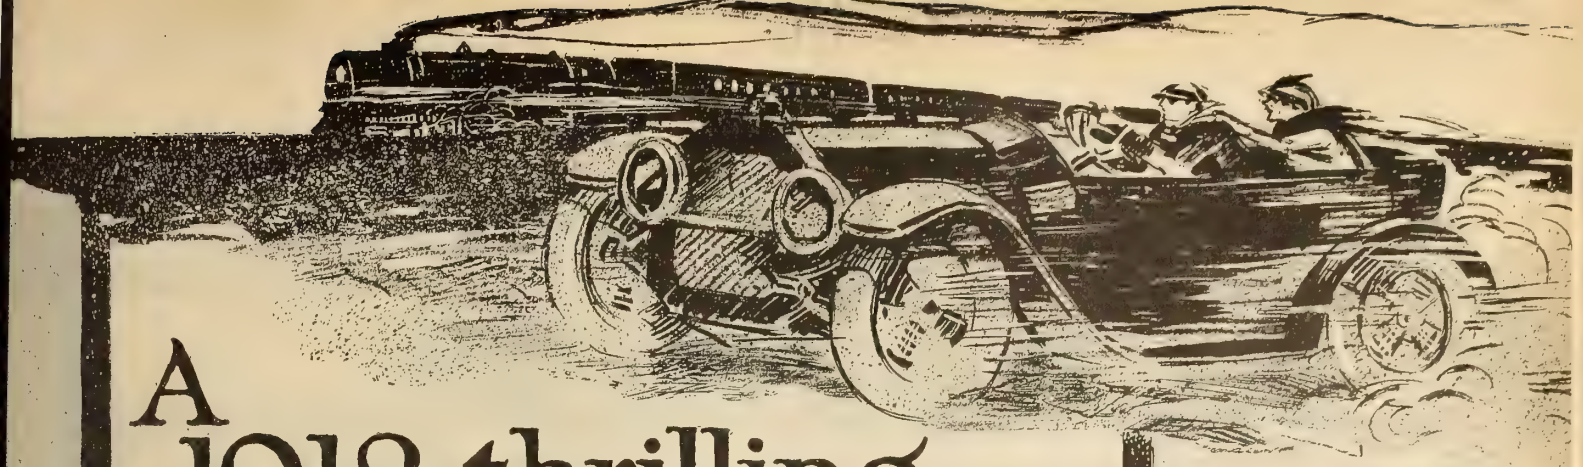
William Fox Presents

GEORGE WALSH



In JACK SPURLOCK-PRODIGAL

by George Horace Lorimer
Adapted from the Saturday Evening Post Story in five acts
Directed by Carl Harbaugh—Read by 5 million people
NO EXTRA CHARGE FOR THIS SENSATIONAL PICTURE
Released only to exhibitors who have contracted for
FOX SPECIAL FEATURES

January Releases

VIRGINIA PEARSON in STOLEN HONOR
TOM MIX in CUPID'S ROUND UP
SONIA MARKOVA in A HEART'S REVENGE
JUNE CAPRICE in THE HEART of ROMANCE

FOX FILM CORPORATION

A 1918 thrilling Cinemelodrama

STANDARD PICTURE

William Fox Presents

CHEATING the PUBLIC

Story by Mary Murillo
Scenario by Richard Stanton and Ed. Sedgwick
Staged by Richard Stanton

The Most Marvelous Miracle of Modern Massiveness depicting the Monster Manacle of Monopoly

THE FIGHT ON THE GOLDEN STAIRS

SEE

THE GREAT FOOD RIOTS
THE 90-MILE-A-MINUTE RACE—TRAIN AND AUTO
THE ELECTRIC CHAIR IN OPERATION
THE FIGHT ON THE GOLDEN STAIRS
THE GREAT SCENES OF HAIR-RAISING SUSPENSE
THE SCENE IN THE JURY ROOM
THE THRILLING COURT ROOM SCENE

Great all star cast

Mr. EXHIBITOR the time has come when the great picture with a big punch every minute has arrived

Book Now! Release Jan. 20.

See your nearest branch manager today

FOX FILM CORPORATION

Lyric Theatre—Two weeks beginning Jan. 13

SIDNEY OLCOTT'S
STUPENDOUS HEART INTEREST SPECTACLE

The BELGIAN

STARRING
WALKER WHITESIDE
and VALENTINE GRANT

BOOK THROUGH THE FOLLOWING EXCHANGES:

FOURSQUARE:
NEW YORK—729 Seventh Ave.
BUFFALO—47 W. Swan St.
DETROIT—304 Jos. Mack Bldg.
CHICAGO—207 S. Wabash Ave.
DENVER—1735 Welton St.
SEATTLE—2014 Third Ave.
PITTSBURGH—127 Fourth Ave.
LOS ANGELES—514 W. 8th St.
PHILADELPHIA—1325 Vine St.
CINCINNATI—301 Strand Theatre Bldg.
ST. LOUIS—301 Empress Theatre Bldg.
CLEVELAND—310 Sloan Bldg.
WASHINGTON—8 E. St., N. W.
KANSAS CITY—1120 Walnut St.
SAN FRANCISCO—191 Golden Gate Ave.
MINNEAPOLIS—206 Film Exchange Bldg.

SOUTHERN STATES FILM CO.:
ATLANTA—114 Walton St.
DALLAS—1900 Commerce St.
GLOBE FEATURE FILM CO.:
NEW ENGLAND—20 Winchester St., Boston, Mass.
FRANK GERSTEN, Inc.:
NEW JERSEY—220 W. 42d St., New York City

FOREIGN RIGHTS: ROBERTSON-COLE CO., 23RD FLOOR, TIMES BLDG., NEW YORK

U.S. EXHIBITOR'S BOOKING CORPORATION
FRANK G. HALL PRES.

MARTYRED BELGIUM

FURNISHES THE OVERWHELMING APPEAL

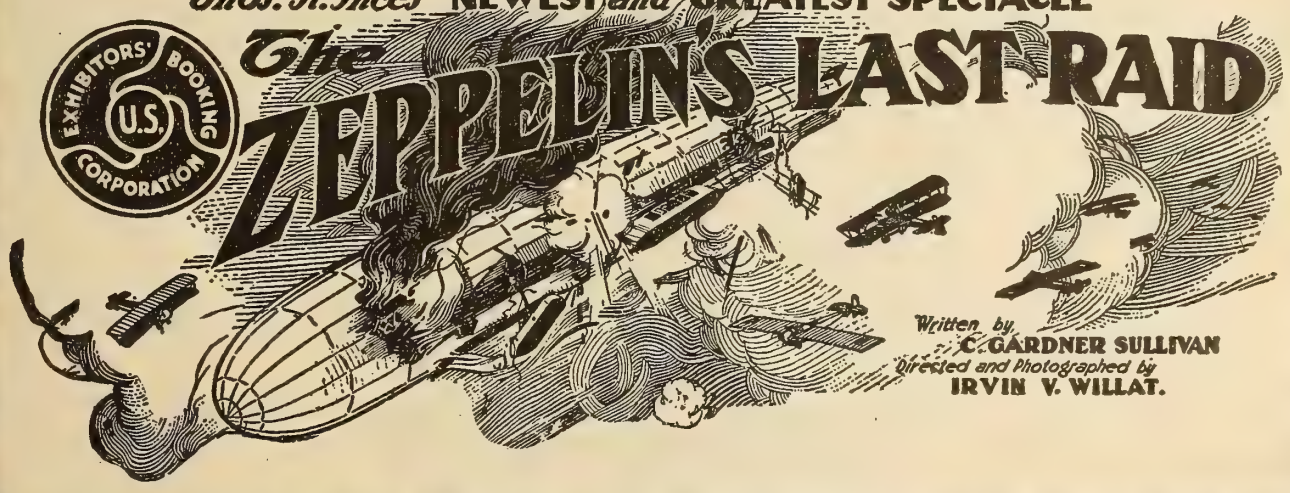
of The Belgian

BY FREDERIC ARNOLD KUMMER

WHILE IN ADDITION TO THE BIG SPECTACULAR FEATURES OF THIS GREAT SPECIAL PRODUCTION, THE TWO EMINENT STARS



MR. WALKER WHITESIDE AND MISS VALENTINE GRANT

MAKE IT AN EXTRA ATTRACTION OF EXCEPTIONAL BOX OFFICE VALUE

Thos. H. Ince's NEWEST and GREATEST SPECTACLE

EXHIBITORS' BOOKING CORPORATION U.S.

The ZEPPELIN'S LAST RAID

Written by
C. GARDNER SULLIVAN
Directed and Photographed by IRVIN V. WILLAT.

THOS. H. INCE SPECIAL PRODUCTION

Bessie Barriscale

in

THOSE WHO PAY

Written by
C. GARDNER SULLIVAN
Directed by
RAYMOND B. WEST"

YOU NEED THESE UNUSUAL SHOWS

To State Rights Buyers—

WE CAN PROVE that OUR

WILLIAM S. HART

SUPERFEATURES

Are the greatest BOX OFFICE
ASSETS in the WORLD

EXCHANGES HAVE PROVEN IT
EXHIBITORS ARE PROVING IT

ONE HART SERIES of FIFTEEN 2 Reelers is already SOLD
for the entire country

Some territory still open on the following—

1 "The TWO-GUN MAN" in "The BARGAIN"
6 reels

2 "The BANDIT and the PREACHER"
5 reels

3 "The HELL HOUND of ALASKA"
5 reels

Communicate NOW for Your Territory

W. H. PRODUCTIONS CO.

71 WEST 23rd ST. Phone: Gram. 3027 NEW YORK

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers

The most APPEALING photo-play ever made

The long waited for
MACK SENNETT
$300,000 Production

MABEL NORMAND

in

"MICKEY"

"THE LITTLE GIRL
YOU WILL NEVER FORGET"

7 reels

REPLETE WITH PATHOS, HUMOR,~LOVE,~INTRIGUE, ACTION AND ADVENTURE.

IT IS PERFECT IN ARRANGEMENT
IT IS PERFECT IN PRESENTATION
IT WILL BE PERFECT IN DISTRIBUTION

WORLD RIGHTS CONTROLLED BY WESTERN
IMPORT CO.
1010 BROKAW BLDG.
NEW YORK CITY.

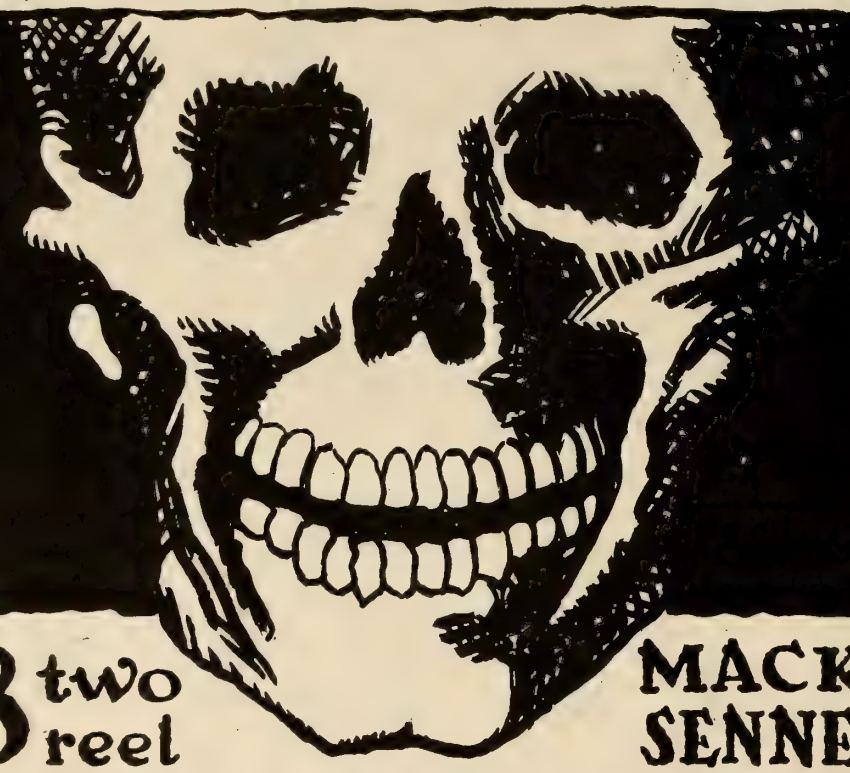
TO STATE RIGHTS BUYERS

D CHAPLIN

CHESTER CONKLIN

FORD STERLING

MABEL NORMAND



CHARLIE CHAPLIN

MACK SENNETT

CHAS MURRAY

MACK SWAIN

FATTY A

28 two reel MACK~SENNETT KEYSTONE COMEDIES

That would make a SKULL grin!

They are the selected best of the entire output, including 3 of the funniest CHARLIE CHAPLINS,
AND THEY ARE COPYRIGHTED!!!

All Prints from ORIGINAL NEGATIVES,
Which we absolutely OWN and CONTROL

Wonderful Lobby Display of Photographs, and ONE~THREE and SIX Sheet POSTERS

Communicate immediatly for your quota

W·H· PRODUCTIONS CO

71 West 23rd St. Phone Gram 3027 NEW YORK CITY

To all Independent Producers:

We are now prepared to profitably exploit good independent productions for the entire world to the mutual advantage of the five component parts of the industry, – viz: – the Producer, – the Distributor, – the Exchangeman, – the Exhibitor and the Foreign Buyer.

In every foreign country we have our own office with a highly efficient organization, who are successfully handling most of the best and biggest productions. These offices with their complete facilities are at your service.

W. H. PRODUCTIONS CO.

71 WEST 23rd ST. Phone: Gram. 3027 NEW YORK

SINS OF

WITH A GALAXY OF

Ivan

MADALINE TRAVERSE

ANDERS RANDOLF

BARBARA CASTLETON

MORE THAN SURPASSING ITS

"A pretentious theme well treated and a mighty good entertainment."
NEW YORK TRIBUNE

"Forges ahead with a strength and purpose that impresses."
MOTION PICTURE NEWS

Iva

CROWNING

RECEIVING THE WELL EARNED LAUDATORY

A CONTRIBUTION O

Ivan FILM

130 WEST 46TH

STATE RIGHTS

AMBITION

POPULAR STARS

Ivan

WILFRED LUCAS

LEAH BAIRD

JAMES MORRISON

UCH HERALDED EXCELLENCY

n's

"A powerful drama in every sense of the word."
EXHIBITOR'S TRADE REVIEW

"Holds the spectator's interest by the force & variety of the vigor of its punch"
MOVING PICTURE WORLD

CREATION

OMMENDATION OF ALL THE PRESS

ERIT TO FILMDOM BY

RODUCTIONS (INC)

TREET, N.Y.

NOW SELLING

Yes! something surely did happen to Bobby at "FIVE TO FIVE"
It's a sparkling
CHRISTIE COMEDY
with
Bobby Vernon
Being booked by
BEST THEATRES EVERYWHERE
Your audiences will like it
directed by
Al E. Christie
CHRISTIE FILM CO
LOS ANGELES

FRANK A. KEENEY

WILL SHORTLY PRESENT

THE LADY BEAUTIFUL OF THE SCREEN

Catherine Calvert

in a series of feature photoplays by the world's best authors

General Offices, 1493 B'way.
Ray C. Owens, Representative

GENERAL ENTERPRISES INCORPORATED

1476 BROADWAY NEW YORK, N.Y.

ANNOUNCE

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR TO
"WARRIOR" AND "MOTHER"
THE TWO BIG BOX OFFICE HITS OF THE YEAR

NOW READY FOR WISE STATE RIGHTS BUYERS

THE

A STIRRING FILM ADAPTATION OF BARTLEY CAMPBELL'S WELL-KNOWN BROADWAY SUCCESS "FAIRFAX"

Crucible of Life

7 REELS
PRODUCED BY AUTHOR'S FILM COMPANY

FEATURING

GRACE DARMOND

(THE DRAMATIC BEAUTY OF THE SCREEN)

SUPPORTED BY

FRANK O'CONNOR JACK SHERRILL
WINNIFRED HARRIS

THE ROBBERY AND THE DISCOVERY

STATE RIGHTS ONLY

GENERAL ENTERPRISES, INC.
1476 B'WAY., N.Y. CITY

"DISTRIBUTORS OF BIG SUCCESSES"

Of Course

on the Opening Program of the New

RIVOLI THEATRE

Mr. S. L. Rothaphel featured

One of Our Pictures (the Only Scenic on the Program) entitled

"A World o' Dreams"

"A picture of which Broadway is still talking"

"Many times during this the audience broke into applause."—from M. P. News, Jan'y 12.

A PICTURE IN EVERY THEATRE ON BROADWAY

During the Opening Week of the RIVOLI we also were showing at the RIALTO THEATRE, B'way, N. Y.

"Beside the Glimmer Glass"

By Robert C. Bruce

STRAND THEATRE, B'way, N. Y.

"Nature's Songsters"

By Raymond L. Ditmars

and also a picture at the following prominent BROADWAY THEATRES:

ACADEMY OF MUSIC
BROADWAY PHOTOPLAY
BUNNY
EIGHTY-FIRST STREET
THE CLAREMONT
LOEW'S GREELEY SQUARE
LOEW'S NEW YORK
PROCTOR'S 5th AVE.
SAVOY
STANLEY

EDUCATIONAL FILMS CORPORATION OF AMERICA

729 7th AVENUE NEW YORK, N.Y.

Which Two?

"The point for you to consider is whether or not your advertising announcements are in this one paper each week—

"If not, then for that week you are not heard by the majority of the members of the trade."

This one paper is MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

We won't waste our space, nor your time, with arguments, Mr. Advertiser.

We have proofs.

—Proofs of other advertisers who have found MOTION PICTURE NEWS indispensable.

—Proofs of complete results had from MOTION PICTURE NEWS alone.

—Proofs interesting, conclusive and worth many dollars to you

—incontestible proofs.

Any week your announcements do not appear in MOTION PICTURE NEWS then for that week you are not heard by the majority of the members of this trade.

The Kind of Pictures That Make Money In War Times

BECAUSE:

They are first class entertainment.
They are fascinating and intensely interesting.
They carry pleasing, cheering comedy action.
They raise the spirits and your patrons go home thoroughly satisfied.

AND BECAUSE the public in these times of depressing war conditions are satiated with the grim and tragic and wish to see pictures with the joy of life.

LOOK THEM OVER

"SADIE GOES TO HEAVEN"
presenting Little Mary McAlister

"THE DREAM DOLL"
written and directed by Howard S. Moss

"THE SMALL TOWN GUY"
presenting Taylor Holmes

"GIFT O' GAB"
presenting Jack Gardner

"TWO BIT SEATS"
presenting Taylor Holmes

"YOUNG MOTHER HUBBARD"
presenting Little Mary McAlister

"THE FIBBERS"
presenting Bryant Washburn

"FOOLS FOR LUCK"
presenting Taylor Holmes

Screen time: 65 minutes

Essanay

Distributed by George Kleine System throughout the United States

Perfection Pictures

"If a picture theatre were our possession we would move heaven and earth to have the privilege of showing 'Uneasy Money.'

"They say that a serious subject is much more welcome but this picture ought to explode that theory."

From Peter Milne's review of "Uneasy Money" in the Motion Picture News.

This picture is backed by a National Billboard Advertising Campaign with 24 sheets like the above.

Distributed by Geo. K. Kleine System Throughout the United States

Perfection Pictures

Motion Picture News

Vol. 17 No. 3. Jan. 19, 1918

The Week in the Film World at a Glance

BUSINESS OR ROULETTE (WM. A. JOHNSTON)....379
SPEAKING EDITORIALLY 380
SERVING IT WITH SPEED AND GINGER....381
WHAT HAPPENED WHEN I RAISED MY PRICES...382
SELZNICK ANSWERS LAEMMLE—LATTER RETORTS 385
WHAT KIND OF A FELLOW IS SHERRILL?....387
THE READER HAS HIS SAY....392
DIARY OF A SUCCESSFUL EXHIBITOR....399
ROTHAPFEL'S ANSWERS TO EXHIBITORS....403
Rolfe Arrives and Departs....408
"Mary 'Gusta" Title Changed....408
Davis Stimulates Triangle....409
Pathe Keeps Eye on World War....409
Goldwyn Films Reach Orient....410
Carey Subjects Are Played Up....411
Truth Again Outdoes Fiction....412
Vitagraph Serial Is Started....413
"Over the Top" Is Under Way....413
Fox Prepares a New Standard....414
Vitagraph Speeds Up a Bit....415
Paralta Plays Start Nicely....415
"The Impostor" Is Completed....417
Bessie Love Finishes Picture....417
World Picture Ready Ahead....418
Triangle Diversity Continues....419
"Innocent" Stars Miss Ward January 27....420
Vic Moore New Satire Is Due January 14....421
Artcraft Begins New Pickford Subject....422
Fox Claims "Les Miserables" Educates....422
Six Standards in Ten Weeks....423
Paramount Sets Chapin Dates....424
Pathe Announces January 20 Program....425
Kaiser Cartoons in New Single Release....428
"Important Things to Happen"....430
New Film Building for Capital....430
Hall Sees Boom in Sight....431
Patriotic Film Shown to Trade....432
Kane Associates Make Advance....439
Box-Office Reports....393
Exhibitor Service Bureau....396
Ready-Made Ad. Talks....406
Live News from the Producers....408
Advance Offerings of the Programs....417
Film Specialties....428
Short Subjects in Review....439
In the Independent Field....430
In and Out of West Coast Studios....436
Among the Exchanges....439
Screen Examinations 441
'Blind Adventure, The" (Vitagraph)....446
"Cross Bearer, The" (World Film)....442
"Devil's Playground, The" (Fraternity Films)....444
"Du Barry" (Fox)....433
"Ghosts of Yesterday" (Select)....446
"I Love You" (Triangle)....443
"Mrs. Dane's Defense" (Famous Players-Paramount)....444
"Strong Way, The" (World Film)....443
"Toto and Luke Comedies" (Rolin-Pathe)....443
Releases 448-49-50-51
Accessory 453

Newsy Announcements of the Week Found in the Ad-Pages

"Fighting Grin" Dramatizes Franklyn Farnum's Smile....324
Mack Sennett's Latest Paramount....325-26
Bray Offers Something New....327
"The Guilty Man," A. H. Woods' Success, Filmed by Ince for Paramount 328-29
Chapin's Lincoln for Paramount Screens....330
"Eagle's Eye" Ready....331
Alice Joyce Stars in Late Vitagraph....332
Earle Williams in Another Success....333
"Vengeance—and the Woman," Vitagraph Serial, Full of Thrills 334
"Wild Strain" an Unusual Picture....335
Alice Brady's Second Select Promises to Duplicate First Success 336
"Ghosts of Yesterday" Surpasses all Former Norma Talmadge Triumphs 337
What They said of "Thais"....338-39
More Goldwyn Comment....340
Pyramid Comedies Have a Message....341
World Film's Current Release....342
Pathe's Announcements in Insert Form....343-44-45-46
Mutual 347-48
Billie Rhodes in Strand-Mutual Comedies....349
Emily Stevens in Metro's "Daybreak," Taken from Jane Cowl's Play 350-51
Two Big Metro Successes—"Blue Jeans" and "Draft 258".352
"His Robe of Honor," with Walthall, Will Be Third Paralta.353
"The Motion Picture Plus" to Come Soon....354
Wide Advertising and Publicity on Paraltas....355
"Daughter of Uncle Sam" is One Reel Serial....356
Inter-Ocean 357
"How Does Triangle Pay the War Tax?"....358-59
"Jack Spurlock" To Be Walsh's Best Fox....360
Cheating the Public as Told by William Fox....361
U. S. Exhibitors' Have Three Winners....362-63
W. H. Productions Now Offer Three Hart Five-Reelers....364
"Mickey" and the Keystone Comedies....365-66
A Message to Independent Producers....367
"Sins of Ambition" Selling....368-69
Best Audiences Show Christies....370
Catherine Calvert Series Coming Shortly....371
General Enterprises Offer "Crucible of Life," with Grace Darmond, for State Rights....372
Educational's Product Supreme in Better Houses....373
War Time Money-Getters from Perfection....375
"Uneasy Money" Receives High Praise....376
Six Good Reasons for Success of "I, Mary MacLane"....378
"Price of a Good Time" Big Box Office Attraction....426-27

WM. A. JOHNSTON, Pres. and Editor. HENRY F. SEWALL, Vice-Pres. E. KENDALL GILLETT, Sec. and Treas.

Published on Tuesday every week by MOTION PICTURE NEWS, Inc., 729 Seventh Ave., New York, N. Y. 'Phone 9360 Bryant. Chicago Offices, Mgr. Wm. J. McGrath, 110 So. Dearborn St.; 'Phone 755 Randolph. Los Angeles Offices, Mgr. J. C. Jessen, 429 South Figueroa St.; 'Phones 7140 Main, F-4661. Subscription $2 a year, postpaid, in United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands. Canada, $3. N. B.—No agent is authorized to take subscriptions for Motion Picture News at less than these rates. Have the agent who takes your subscription show his credentials and coupon book.

Copyright, 1918, by Motion Picture News, Inc.

George K. Spoor presents

I, MARY MacLANE

IN

Men Who Have Made Love To Me

AT ALL FIRST CLASS PICTURE THEATRES—Ask When!

THE REASONS WHY
Your Patrons Will Demand to See This Play

1. The stripping naked of a human soul.
2. The fame of this erratic author.
3. The widespread curiosity aroused by this story from her own pen.
4. The first opportunity to see her in pictures and meet her intimately.
5. Revelations of the unusual love episodes of her own life, as written and enacted by herself.
6. Six leading men, lovers of this unique genius.

BACKED BY THE GREATEST NATIONAL ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN EVER GIVEN AN INDIVIDUAL STAR

Arrange Your Booking Dates NOW

Vitagraph

DISTRIBUTED BY GEORGE KLEINE SYSTEM THROUGHOUT THE UNITED STATES

Perfection Pictures

JAN 10 1918 ©CLB400934

"When you see it in 'The News' It's News"

Motion Picture News

HAS THE QUALITY CIRCULATION OF THE TRADE

"The Exhibitors' Medium of Communication"

Volume 17. No. 3 January 19, 1918 80

Business or Roulette

A PRODUCER'S wife came into his office the other day and listened to a talk involving new productions and plans on the marketing of them.

"Do you really mean to say," she asked, suddenly, "that you expect to get one hundred thousand dollars for a picture that will cost you twenty thousand?"

"Well, you see—"

"Yes or no." She demanded.

"Yes," said her husband.

"Then I want you to get out of this business," she said, promptly. "It isn't business; it's roulette."

We give this story—a true one by the way—as indicating, concretely and simply, a very large, perhaps the largest and most central, trouble spot in this tremendous and tremendously disordered and discontented industry.

Big profits!

We don't suggest a cure-all for the industry simply through the elimination of this fatuous, foolish effort after Captain Kidd's treasure chest.

But we do believe that here lies the starting point of the or any cure-all process.

* * * *

THERE are some new and big shaping policies at work right now. They are very interesting. Some may be just short, though true, sighted efforts; others may see the true light ahead—in a big and broad way. All of them are struggles after co-ordination. Some of them ought to win out and put this industry or a large part of it into a smooth running groove.

But any such policy has first got to be based upon the clear cold principle that underlies any legitimate manufacturing industry today, namely, that the return will be a more or less steady yield upon the capital and ability invested.

Otherwise—if this be not true—then this is not an industry. It is roulette where a franc in a fool's hands has been known to break the bank.

We can hear some manufacturers—a large number perhaps—saying: "Big profits? Good Lord! There are no profits."

Very true. But isn't it also a fact that your business is still geared up to big profits expectations? What salaries are your big executives getting? What is your office organization? How about your manufacturing and selling costs? How, finally, do you check up all along the line with other businesses in other fields having the same capital investments or plants or gross incomes?

Others will say: "Oh well, the big profits era is gone by. This is the era of stable investment and steady return."

It ought to be; but is it?

* * * *

ONLY last Spring we saw a substantial state rights market broken up through a species of roulette playing where prices asked and got varied all the way up to one thousand percent. There wasn't an attempt at even a loose and wide standardization of values and prices. Some producers got less than one-tenth of what they asked. Some buyers paid over ten times what their territories were worth. Roulette, not business!

We once looked with vast respect upon what was conventionally termed: "a ten-thousand-dollar-a-year-man." He was always a man who had gained recognition after many years of specialized work. Such a salary carries no especial distinction in the picture industry. Men jump to it from much less than half that yearly income in other fields.

We still hear the phrase used, "One good picture and your fortune's made!" True of roulette; true of mine prospecting, pearl-fishing. But it isn't business, not even theatrical business. The producer who makes pictures on this basis wastes a dozen or more fortunes—somebody's—while he's after the elusive success. And he's not in a state of mind to make pictures economically. The stakes look too big.

This angle of great expectations is not confined to the producing end of the business. It has been the ruling passion of the exhibitor end. How many theatres have been started by men disqualified not alone by utter inexperience but more particularly by inability ever to make a showman's success; who were attracted by the hope of easy money and nothing else?

* * * *

WE referred just recently to the fact that the time has entirely passed when an average exhibitor could hope for one hundred or fifty percent return upon his investment. And the chances for the lucky exception are growing less and less each day. Larger investments, made with the policy of lower but longer profits have entered the field. And more and greater investments will come.

A big profits aspect is bad for an industry. It attracts the gamblers. And it fools the better and more experienced business element. It establishes false values and encourages waste and inefficiency.

Everyone is agreed that waste—in some form or another—is the besetting sin of this industry to-day. It is

(Continued on next page)

Speaking Editorially:

Where "Letters to the Editor" Help

FRANK A. VANDERLIP is quoted in newspaper dispatches as saying, "If, instead of buying that theatre or movie ticket, you buy a thrift stamp, your money goes direct to the war coffers. You then have the satisfaction of feeling that you have helped win the war."

Walter W. Irwin and Stanley Mastbaum are among the picture men who have taken up the cudgels to combat the short-sighted doctrine that would kill legitimate industry under mistaken ideas of war aid. P. C. Mooney, district manager for Fox at Cleveland, is doing his bit by furthering the distribution of "Are Business Men a War Time Menace?" a booklet by Chas. W. Mears, of the Winton Company.

The National Association, we understand, is planning a broad campaign with the aid of the Hearst publications to show the public the aid they can give in the prosecution of the war by maintaining a healthy support of amusements.

To the individual exhibitor, however, there is given the best opportunity to combat the "kill the goose" doctrine. Don't hesitate to take your pen in hand and write to your local editors whenever their columns show any signs of preaching this scrimping gospel.

Diagnosis Complete; Now for Action

REPORTS are already coming in in response to the request of the General Committee of the industry for information regarding the effects of the war taxes.

Such reports as we have seen would occasion no surprise to readers of Motion Picture News.

They tell the same story that our special correspondents have told in these news columns, the same story that our exhibitor readers have told in the department "The Reader Has His Say"; the same story that prompted our editorials on "the eighty per center."

They bring the tale of an eighty per cent in sore straits; they tell of an eighty per cent whose ills are even deeper than taxes, of an eighty per cent whose cure must be drastic and speedy.

The story had already been told; let's hope that the retelling will bring results.

Meanwhile, have you written the committee?

Ready-Letter-Writer Note

WE often wish that we could give our readers—in addition to Motion Picture News—the pleasure of reading all the mail that comes to our desk.

It would answer many questions for them. It would particularly answer the question, "Why do the Times Square fellows do this, and that, and the other thing? Why, oh why, oh why?"

Some pertinent questions might be answered by the letter from a company publicity representative which declared:

"I don't believe in all that exhibitor service stuff you run. I think most exhibitors know all that anyway, and those who don't know it think they do."

Yes, it's a big industry.

Beware the Calamity Howler!

LISTENING to the chattering of our teeth in our cold, cold office (for last week was celebrated in New York as Heatless and Fuelless week) we began to believe that Sherman's celebrated remark was not without an element of truth.

Then we picked up from our frosty desk a letter from an Illinois exhibitor, who is a cripple. He said:

"I am glad to see that the News has the courage to be optimistic and happy. I feel real chirpy when the mailman brings me that little red bundle of cheer!"

Somehow, even in face of all the calamity howling we heard and read last week the office temperature slid up a degree or two after that!

The Cold Did Tempt Us—

A THOUGHT, not quite so pleasant, came to us last week when the waste basket at our side began to fill up with the neatly typed stories of Tottie Tinseltoe's latest escape from a frightful death, and how many letters Harold Bushwood has received from feminine admirers, according to the latest census.

But the thought died unexecuted. Because——

There is a law in our building against starting bonfires, no matter how much frost collects on the radiator.

Merely in Passing

A WRITER in a dramatic publication asks us if we know of any industry that has raised its prices in a time of depression.

The answer is clear. Its logic may be loose but it rattles no more than the sense of the question.

The writer in question considers the present a time of depression. Does he, then, know of anything he can buy to-day—from butcher, baker or candlestick maker—that does not cost him more than it did a twelve-month ago?

Business or Roulette

(Continued from preceding page)

waste—somewhere along the line—that washes away the profits.

But isn't it true that this waste is fundamentally due to a state of mind—a belief in big profits? Haven't we been led into waste and almost criminal extravagance—led blindly by following the false fetich of—big profits?

And doesn't it follow that no matter what line of business reform we inaugurate—be it producer or exhibitor or distribution amalgamation or all three—we shall first have to get wholly rid of the state of mind that motion pictures mean big profits and permit big waste?

A good question for every concern to ask of itself is this: how would this organization stand up with other concerns in other fields? How would we get along in competition with concerns long used to cutting sharp corners in running expense and speeding efficiency up to a high notch?

Perhaps—right here—is the answer to lost or shrinking profits.

W. A. Johnston.

Serving It with Speed and Ginger

WILLIAM WRIGHT, of Kalem, is among the prominent film men who have written to tell us that this "busy man's department" is a good idea.

We are grateful.

But we have had the opportunity of watching Mr. Wright while engaged in his trade paper reading. And, frankly, we don't believe he needs this page.

For "Bill Kalem" is one of the film men wise in his generation. Busy man as he is, Brother Wright takes his two trade papers (Which Two?) and starting at the one cover goes to the other, page by page, missing nothing.

And as a result "Bill Kalem" knows whereof he speaks whene'er he speaks.

* * * *

BUT, then, healthy men and prudent men seldom fail to take out insurance. And this page is insurance—against accidents.

Against the accident of being unable during a seven-day week to go over your NEWS from cover to cover. Give me the fifteen minutes and the accident won't happen.

After which few inevitable pats on our own back we will go on with the story.

* * * *

THE news of the week holding the biggest promise of future developments is that coming from Fort Lee, where the local fuel administrator shut off the coal supply of the numerous film laboratories.

It resulted in a New York conference and now the industry's fight has been carried to Washington.

Moderating weather may possibly bring a natural solution of the coal problem. But the incident has importance of another kind.

Transportation difficulties are already with us in abundance. An acute crisis is certain even should conditions continue as they are.

But with the railroads in the hands of the Government, what is to be the McAdoo attitude? Are we a luxury or a necessity? Are we to fare better, the same, or worse?

Thus, from the village of Fort Lee develops the fight that sends the industry to Washington for the first time seeking Uncle Sam's answer to the question:

"Are we flesh, fish, or fowl?" Page 389.

* * * *

"SELZNICK Sizzles; Laemmle Lambastes." That is somewhat the sort of head we would have put on one of the stories in this week's NEWS—that is, we would have many, many years ago when we first wielded the heavy black pencil at an editorial desk. Isn't it funny how alliteration is the acme of ambition in the adolescent age?

Then we would have gone on to say:

"Lewis larrups Laemmle lustily for scorching story saying screen is sick. Carl counters quickly with clever cutting quips."

Now that you know how we might have said it you know that it is SOME story. Turn quickly to the page. Page 385.

* * * *

WE have another page in this week's issue that just screeches with ginger and dynamite.

An exhibitor wrote to the Rothapfel "Question and Answer Department" saying, "It's all right for you with all the money back of you, and your big theatres, and big orchestras and New York to draw on to tell us what to do. I could do the same as you if I had your chance."

Quite a peppery question. But, say, you ought to read the answer by "S. L."

That's paprika. Page 403.

* * * *

THERE'S one big story that "almost"—if a miss is as good as a mile—got into this week's book.

Rector's buzzed with it at the lunch hour last Friday. Broadway echoed it later. Then, every half hour during the afternoon, someone opened our editorial door to whisper:

"Got a big tip for you—Brenon's studio and laboratory caught fire this morning and burned to the ground."

Just about the time two well-known theatrical magnates had donated their strings of houses for a series of benefit performances we succeeded in getting the Brenon studio on the phone.

"Fire? Fire, nothing," came the answer in Fort Lee accents. "Why we can't even get coal enough to start a fire in the furnace. We're shivering. Br'r'r. R'ring off."

* * * *

MOTION PICTURE NEWS' force was frozen to a standstill until Friday. We imagine most of the press agents suffered a similar fate, for producer news was slow in coming and scarce when it arrived.

From warmer climes came a batch of rumors linking the names of many Coast stars with J. A. Berst. But the only definite announcement was a burst of enthusiasm on the part of the Pathe head for the new serial, "House of Hate."

The rumors we never give you.

Life is too short. White space too valuable. Your time too important.

* * * *

THAT last section is an indirect answer to the few who say, "Why don't you give us behind the curtain news—the inside stuff?" We notice they always change front quickly when we happen to quiz them on a "strongly confirmed rumor" concerning their own companies.

What Happened

When I Raised My Prices

[ED. NOTE.—Two more cities, Omaha and Newark, are covered in this instalment of "What Happened When I Raised My Prices?" Exhibitors who have written us their high opinion of the initial instalment will find an equally meaty and valuable feature in this week's story. The facts are "on-the-ground" facts, secured by MOTION PICTURE NEWS exclusive correspondents, and told in the words of the exhibitors themselves. Meanwhile—"What Happened When YOU Raised Your Prices?" Why not add your contribution if you have recently passed through the crisis of price raising? What lessons did you learn? How would you go about it the next time? Just scribble off your experience; we'll polish the rough edges,—and you'll be a full-fledged member of MOTION PICTURE NEWS Experience Club.]

IN a New York restaurant—one of Broadway's "gilded palaces"—recently one of the oldest patrons of the place ran his eye down the menu, and frowned.

His waiter—the waiter who had taken his orders for lunches and dinners for the past five years—also—frowned.

The old patron had just discovered that the restaurant had boosted prices twenty per cent.

That was why he frowned.

That was why the old waiter also frowned.

It was very tense.

Then the old patron's expression cleared. His look indicated that he was resigned, meek

"I expected it," he said in a sad, dry voice. "Everything else is up. In fact, I was wondering why you hadn't boosted 'em sooner!"

From Times Square, New York, to Twenty-Fourth and Farnum Streets, Omaha, Nebraska, is about two thousand miles. But when we consider that the whole nation is squirming under the same pains, grinning under the same sacrifices; that one hundred million shoulders are bending under the same burden—we conclude that Times Square is almost brushing shoulders with Twenty-Fourth and Farnum, Omaha.

Two Thousand Miles from Broadway—the Muse Theatre, Omaha.

The business man who did not kick when he found the restaurant prices had ascended is in the same frame of mind as the first man who entered the Muse theatre, Twenty-Fourth and Farnum, Omaha; and found that the admission prices had gone up.

"The war tax, two cents more, sir," said the cashier.

"What's two cents to me!" grinned the patron. "I'm a patriot!"

R. D. Shirley is the proprietor of the Muse theatre. Let's listen to the story in his own words.

"I was going to make a blanket increase in prices at the time the war tax was assessed against the exhibitor, but when the move did not become general, I contented myself with adding the tax to the admission prices. I put up a big sign in the lobby, ran an advertisement in the newspaper, put on my best smile, and waited for the first purchasers under the tax.

"'War tax, two cents more, please,' my cashier had to keep saying, over and over again. But it was a mighty patriotic bunch I had to deal with, only one or two kicking at all. Most of them laughed, a good many said, 'Anything to lick the kaiser,' and the others dug down and added the money needed. Most of them, apparently, had forgotten the tax, but they had heard about it. When asked for the extra money they paid willingly without asking why or wherefore. Quite a few of my patrons spoke to me about it, but very few objected in the slightest, even when mentioning it in a conversation."

Jackson Freeman, Palm theatre, Fourteenth and Douglas streets, Omaha, Neb., said, "My house was one of the oldest 5-cent theatres in the city and it was a decided step when we began to charge 10 cents straight. We had to do it, that was all. We were not making expenses under the tax, the increased overhead and the promises of higher charges to come. It was as I expected, during the first day of the tax. Most of my patrons are transients and they had been used to all sorts of prices, you could see that. I booked a little better picture, put out better paper and went out in front to call them in. Nearby was a house still charging 5 cents. I was afraid my patronage would desert me for the cheaper house, but it didn't. The people paid, and they paid without a murmur, except for a few who had been used to paying 5 cents at my theatre.

"I have been charging 10 cents ever since and my business has grown, instead of falling off. I wouldn't return to a 5-cent house, as you have to buy junk and are never satisfied with the show you can give your patrons. I have just bought a new theatre in Sioux City, Iowa, and you bet the price is 10 cents right off the bat, and one of these days it will be 15 cents or more. I haven't been accused of being unpatriotic, because I wasn't. It was life or death with me; I had to do something or run the danger of a loss every day."

JULES RACHMAN, Grand theatre, 2918 Sherman avenue, Omaha, Neb., said: "I was charging 10 cents and not making enough money to keep myself in the kind of breakfast food I liked, when the war tax lit upon me. I had to do something. I held down a front seat at every meeting called to talk over increase in admission prices and I urged it every time I got a chance.

"I may live to be 100 years old but I never will forget the first night when I raised the admission price to 15 cents. I was there all smiles outside, but shaking like a leaf inside. One minute I hoped they had not seen my advertisements of higher prices, because I was afraid it would make them stay away. The next minute I hoped they had seen the ads, because they wouldn't then be astonished and angry over the increase of 5 cents. I was expecting anything from a fist fight to an empty house. A regular patron was the first. He brought his wife and three children. They had been coming several times every week for months, paying the old price.

"'On account of the war?' he asked, jokingly, as the cashier informed him of the increased price. (He had overlooked the sign, ads and everything, apparently.) I never will lose my admiration for that man. That admiration leaped to its heights in that one instant when he joked instead of frowned. My cashier said something about it being a better picture (I had conscientiously chosen a better and higher-priced picture than usual to give myself an excuse if my heart thought I needed one, for raising the price), but my blessed patron did not pay attention to her. He told me after seeing the picture that it was a good one. He and his family still come.

"I am now charging 15 cents four nights a week and soon will make it unanimous. I am paying my expenses and making a profit that makes my efforts worth while. On these four nights I put on pictures just a little above the ordinary, but I advertise them bigger, and the people think sometimes they are more than they really are. But you know what old man Barnum said? And he was right. The people are paying more for their coal and for their tooth-paste, why shouldn't they pay more for their pictures? I don't pity an exhibitor who doesn't raise his prices; he makes me too mad for pity. Why doesn't he wake up to the fact that the people not only will pay, but they are expecting him to ask it? Here he goes along, trying to argue with himself that it isn't the wolf at the door, when he might as well step to the door and kick the wolf in the ribs."

WILFRED LEDOUX, Empress theatre, Omaha, Neb., Sixteenth and Douglas streets, said: "We increased our admission prices before the war tax made it necessary. Our increased cost was already making it necessary. Within the last year we have increased our higher-priced seats 20 to 35 cents and our lower-priced seats from 10 to 20 cents. Each increase—there were two of them—has been made without the loss of patronage. Instead, our business is better now than at this time last year, and has been consistently better ever since we began raising the prices. The motion picture business is on too permanent a foundation and is climbing upward too steadily for an exhibitor to be afraid to ask more. Personally, I would not charge a price so low I could not show pictures I deemed were worth showing; I would go out of the business first."

E. A. OLSON, of the Olson Opera House at Alliance, Neb.: "When I increased my admission price from 10 to 15 cents, a number of people said they would not pay it. I closed the theatre, put up a sign saying I would not open it to conduct it at a loss. I returned to Omaha, where I have business interests. Within a few days I got a letter from a man there saying the people were ready to pay the increased price of admission. I went back and opened the house for two nights a week. I put on the same class of pictures I had been showing and charged a higher price. I cannot notice a loss of patronage, but I can notice a healthy increase in profits."

MRS. L. WEBBE, proprietor of the Goodwin theatre of Newark, is an optimist. Although she does not underestimate the probable necessity for further and additional increases in the admission prices to local motion picture playhouses, she is a firm believer that these conditions are the results of two causes, first, the public demand for better, more elaborate and more spectacular photoplays, and second, and of least importance, the Government's war tax. Mrs. Webbe is convinced that the day of advanced admission prices has come to stay.

Cashier:
"The War Tax—two cents more, Sir!"

Patron:
"What's two cents to me! I'm a patriot!"

"Patrons ask for a variety of entertainment in distinct contrast to what might be described as popular a year ago," explained Mrs. Webbe.

"Their new demands can only be met by increased expenditures. The Government's war program, the higher cost of labor and other expenses coming at the same time has supplemented the necessity for new admission prices."

"What happened when you raised your prices?" Mrs. Webbe was asked.

"Nothing material from the standpoint of attendance records," answered Mrs. Webbe. "I saw it coming just as I see other advances on the horizon. I prepared for the present condition just as I am preparing for the next. In other words, I waged an educational campaign among my patrons. Every exhibitor should have done, should be doing now, what I have attempted to accomplish.

"The public is not unreasonable. Brought to understand the necessity for the increased prices they have been accepted without complaint. It is not a drain on their resources. I think it safe to say that the majority of motion picture patrons the country over have larger sums of money at their disposal for entertainment than ever before in their lives. They don't like to feel that they are imposed upon or robbed. Hence the necessity for educational work. If this is effectively done the exhibitor will not be the financial loser by the changes that have and will be necessary.

"There are several ways to conduct an educational cam-

(Continued on page 447)

Kleine Answers Economy Speech

In Letter to Stanley V. Mastbaum He Declares Industry Is Doing Its Part, and Infers Vanderlip Should "Begin at Home"

IN a recent letter to Stanley V. Mastbaum, of Philadelphia, which resulted from the effect created by a newspaper clipping Mr. Mastbaum had sent him concerning certain economy preachings of a Mr. Vanderlip, George Kleine abandoned gloves in handling the situation and inferred that Vanderlip should "practise what he preaches" in urging the people to economize. This doctrine of Mr. Vanderlip's is understood to have included the phrase that "picture shows and the like should be abandoned."

Mr. Kleine said in his letter: "I have your circular letter of the 15th inst. enclosing a newspaper clipping which quotes a speech of Mr. Vanderlip, in which he recommends among other things that the public stay away from moving picture theatres.

"He made a speech along similar lines in Chicago beseeching the public to give up everything that is not an absolute necessity, inferentially all forms of amusements; this preachment was made to a group of heavyweight citizens at a banquet that cost more than thirty cents per plate, which I assume might have been adequate for simple food along the lines of Mr. Vanderlip's propaganda.

The evidence covering dramatic theatres as well as moving picture houses shows that the public is economizing to the utmost in its amusements. Whether the principle of economy carried to the point of parsimony is being overdone is an open question. The argument that cites an individual case is not usually powerful, but the question might be asked why Mr. Vanderlip uses a private Pullman in his travels, in view of the enormous stress that is put upon the railroads and the troubles to which the traveling public is patiently submitting.

"I read in a press dispatch yesterday the statement that some twenty-five million train-miles had been saved this year by the taking off of trains, etc. The consequent inconvenience to the public may receive compensation in the fact that Mr. Vanderlip is attaching his private car to trains to spread the preachment of the utmost economy. It might also be asked whether he has given up his automobiles, shut down his beautiful estate near Yonkers, N. Y., discharged his force of helpers and servants; whether his charming family is staying away from theatres and picture houses and all other forms of amusement, and confining itself to a diet less elaborate than the banquets at which Mr. Vanderlip advises people to avoid the seductive five and ten cent moving picture show.

"I think that all of us are in accord with Washington on the broad principle that waste must be avoided and our lives patterned upon economical lines. We know that the entire country is under high tension, both mentally, emotionally and financially. The film industry has proven, not vociferously, but practically, its sympathy with the government in its efforts to win the war. Producers, distributors and moving picture theatres have quietly and without the trumpets of publicity assisted the government effectively.

"When the government publishes the figures showing the amount of tax collections from producers of films and picture theatre admissions, the sum will be found to be enormous. To cut off this income from the government is bad financial policy, and of equal importance is the fact that there is not sufficient compensation for the ruthless ruination of thousands of exhibitors and others in the industry to say nothing of the major point that the interests of the country require that the masses have some form of diversion.

"From time to time I have seen editorials in metropolitan newspapers which do not approve of the wholesale stoppage of cheap entertainment, and I believe that the highest interests of the nation are served by encouraging attendance at motion picture houses. Many of them advertise in the daily press, which is largely in sympathy.

"England has not found it necessary to discourage attendance at amusement places and Washington will probably reach the same conclusion eventually. It remains for the press to teach sane procedure in this matter."

New Corporations

A LIST of new corporations in the State of New York for the week ending January 5, as furnished from the records of The Corporation Trust Company, 15 Exchange Place, Jersey City, N. J., is as follows:

IDEAL SCREEN MAGAZINE, INC.—Deal in motion picture films, capitalized at $1,000 at Manhattan. F. W. Brooker, Albert Teitel and Saul Wilchins, are the incorporators.

MASTERCRAFT PHOTO-PLAY CORPORATION.—Motion pictures, capitalized at $1,000, at Manhattan. Isaac Wolper, 145 West 45th street, New York City; Hannah L. Geller, 850 Kelly street, Bronx, and A. G. Scheer, 149 Broadway, New York City.

MOTION PICTURES LECTURES, INC.—Moving picture educational play and lecture series, capitalized at $1,000, at Manhattan. Dr. Leonard Sugden, Carl P. Winther and Joseph R. Miles are interested.

Reeves on Way to Chaplin Studios

Alfred Reeves, Charlie Chaplin's old vaudeville manager, arrived in New York from London last week on his way to Los Angeles where he will be connected with the comedian in a managerial capacity. To Mr. Reeves belongs the distinction of bringing the laugh maker to America. It was also on Mr. Reeves' advice that Chaplin accepted Mac Sennett's offer to appear in pictures. "I hated to see him leave us," said Mr. Reeves, "but I knew it was a big chance for him."

Mr. Reeves seemed pleased about being in America, and at the prospect of again being associated with Chaplin.

Universal Announces Changes

Joe Brandt Named General Sales Manager and Assistant Treasurer —Carl Laemmle Chosen Director General by Board

ONE of the most important internal changes announced by the Universal Film Manufacturing Company for the new year is President Laemmle's appointment of General Manager Joe Brandt to the position of general sales manager of the Universal's world-wide organization.

Immediately preceding this appointment, the board of directors of the Universal Company named Mr. Laemmle as director general as well as president of the corporation, and elected Mr. Brandt to the post of assistant treasurer.

C. H. MacGowan, for some years auditor of the Universal, was appointed assistant to the director general.

E. H. Goldstein was appointed to take complete charge of merging the various New York City exchanges of the Universal, the Bluebird, the Longacre (Alice Howell comedies) companies into one large unit, occupying the entire seventh floor of the Mecca Building at 1600 Broadway.

"The advancement of Joe Brandt is simply a reward of merit," said Mr. Laemmle after the meeting of the board of directors. "It is the result of long and loyal service. Away back in the days of the old Imp Company, I took Mr. Brandt from the Dramatic Mirror and made him my private secretary. He continued as such after the Universal was formed. In this capacity he had splendid opportunities to learn every branch of the business and he made the most of them. Shortly after the Universal was formed he became advertising manager and from that he has advanced from time to time until he became general manager.

"Now that we are contemplating revolutionary changes and improvements in our sales system, not only in this country but in foreign lands, I have again called on Mr. Brandt to take up a more important work than he has ever had before.

"Mr. Goldstein and Mr. MacGowan are also given recognition for splendid and faithful service. Both have been with the company a number of years, working their way up from minor positions to positions of trust and importance."

Goldburg Not Handling Rapf Productions

Through error, Jesse Goldburg has made an announcement that he is handling exclusively "The Struggle Everlasting" and "The Accidental Honeymoon."

The error was made by Mr. Goldburg's press department. Mr. Goldburg is not the exclusive representative of these pictures. Harry Rapf has not announced how he will dispose of these features.

Selznick Answers—Laemmle Retorts

"To the Sick All Are Sick," Is Selznick's Reply to Universal Head's Interview—Laemmle Counters with Reiteration of His Statements and Some Personal Digs

LEWIS J. SELZNICK stepped to the foreground last week with a sizzling reply to Carl Laemmle's recent interview in MOTION PICTURE NEWS, in which the Universal head told some frank facts regarding conditions in the producing ranks.

Mr. Selznick declared, "To the sick all are sick," and then went on to twist the scalpel just a trifle after inserting it. After reading the Selznick declaration Mr. Laemmle also consented to issue a statement to MOTION PICTURE NEWS before closing the incident. The Laemmle reply also shows an abundant admixture of pepper.

Following is the statement issued by Mr. Selznick:

"You May Be Sick; I'm Not!"

"The calamity howlers are loose again.

"Certain producers who kept telling us not long ago that moving pictures were in their infancy, now say that they are on their deathbed. Is the disease infantile paralysis or old age? Do these gentlemen know that to the sick all men are sick, to the insane all men are crazy, to the dying man the world is coming to an end?

"Carl Laemmle confesses that Universal has 'close to a million dollars' tied up in short pictures that they can sell only at a loss. Therefore, he wails, the picture business faces disaster. Every one, producers, distributors and exhibitors, 'will become ripe for the receiver.' The only salvation he can see is for some one to pay him more for his dead stock pictures than he ever asked for them.

"Mr. Laemmle doesn't seem to figure that brains are of much use in his business. He says that even after they found eighteen months ago that they could not sell his kind of pictures at a profit they went on and made a million dollars' worth more. If he were in the clothing business, and found there was no money in a certain style, would he turn out a million dolalrs' worth more of the same style, and tell the retailer the only thing to do was raise the price on them? Not if he wanted to keep out of Bloomingdale. Yet this is what he did in the picture business!

"Mr. Laemmle's cure for the condition he himself has created, is higher admission prices. But the truth is that Mr. Laemmle has proved that he doesn't mean what he says about admission prices. Together, he and I leased the Broadway theatre, charging 25 cents to $1.00 admission. He insisted upon reducing the price to 15 cents, so I sold my interest and let him do it. Mr. Laemmle, the exhibitor, apparently does not take much stock in the theories of Mr. Laemmle, the producer. I always have to laugh when I see a man quarrelling with himself.

"Samuel Goldfish is also quarrelling with himself. He recently said the film business would go to the dogs if producers didn't stop paying big salaries to stars. And yet he has paid some of the highest salaries in the history of the industry. Is this an admission that he bunkoed himself? If not, what is it?

"I violate no confidence when I tell Mr. Laemmle that there are no Fairbanks, Clara Kimball Young, Pickford or Talmadge pictures stored on shelves waiting for the business to regain its health. And every one who has common business brains knows that the high salaries for stars will cease the minute the public ceases to pay those salaries at the box office. We have stars because the public wants them!

Lewis J. Selznick

"The industry is not in its infancy. Neither is it on its death bed. But it is afflicted with several minor ailments. One of the worst of these is the presence in its midst of men who blame general conditions for their own stupidity. If a soldier deliberately stands in full view of the enemy and is shot, it does not mean the whole army is defeated.

"When the war tax was imposed I said it was a good thing, as it would force out of business the producers of bad pictures. I do not know what corpses we are about to find scattered along the roadside, but I do know that there will be few mourners."

Straight from the Shoulder

After reading the above statement, Mr. Laemmle came to bat with the following:

"So Selznick is clowning it again, is he? He had added to the gaiety of the nations ever since he laughed himself into the moving picture business, but this is no time for his foolery.

"Laughing it off is not the way to meet the conditions that are confronting the whole business to-day. Getting a little publicity for himself on the strength of the fact that my recent expose of true conditions has set the whole industry talking the way to solve the big problems of the hour.

"I suppose I have piqued Looey by daring to call attention to the fact that the ruinous salaries paid to stars are choking the very life out of exhibitors today. This is the leech that is sucking the life blood out of the business and Mr. Selznick has helped, in his own jovial way, to apply the leech. The fact that the exhibitors made the stars and now have to pay a killing price for them, is not serious to him because he considers it a good joke on the exhibitors, which it probably is.

"As for his reference to the Broadway theatre, this is either very serious or very funny. The fact is that I asked Mr. Selznick to get out of the Broadway theatre and he got. The fifteen-cent price had nothing to do with it, as he well knows, but chooses to forget. I admire his nerve in forgetting it. It is well known that when we cut down the length of the show at the Broadway we also cut down the price, but what is more important, we are getting more money in proportion to what we show than we got before. And that is what every exhibitor ought to do—either get more money for his show or else get the same money for a smaller show. Either one means more to the exhibitor, of course. Also Mr. Selznick forgets that at the Broadway theatre we get 15, 25 and 35 cents for Bluebird pictures, while Mr. Selznick's pictures are shown at Loew's New York theatre—his best house—for 10, 20 and 30 cents. The figures speak for themselves. Incidentally it would be interesting to know how many thousands of dollars Mr. Selznick lost on "The Lone Wolf" and "The Eternal Sin" at the Broadway at dollar prices; also how many, if any, houses in the United States are showing his pictures at dollar prices.

"I doubt very much, however, if Mr. Zukor authorized Mr. Selznick to give out such a piece of publicity as this latest Joe Miller of his."

Fenimore Cooper Towne Dies

Fenimore Cooper Towne, the young actor playwright, son of Edward Owings Towne, the dramatic author, and grandnephew of James Fenimore Cooper, the novelist, died at his father's residence, New York, last week.

Exhibitors Adopt Hamlin Plan

Associated Theatres, Inc., Also Elects Officers at Meeting in Minneapolis—Is Six Months Old with 500 Membership

FIFTY exhibitors, representative of every section of Minnesota, Wisconsin, North Dakota and South Dakota, unanimously adopted the Hamlin plan of marketing and distributing film, at the recent annual meeting of Associated Theatres, Inc., in Minneapolis.

This organization is only six months old and has a membership of more than five hundred and fifty theatres. The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows:

President, Charles W. Gates, Aberdeen, S. D.; vice-president, William S. Smith, Menomonie, Wis.; treasurer, Henry P. Greene, Minneapolis; chairman board of directors, H. L. Hartman, Mandan, N. D.; secretary and general manager, Thomas J. Hamlin, Minneapolis, Minn. The above mentioned officers are the board of five directors and the executive board is composed of Messrs. Gates, Greene and Hamlin.

"We are going to open one large central film exchange in Minneapolis, where a master booking sheet will be used in conjunction with seven distributing and inspection stations throughout the four states," declared Manager Hamlin.

"Operations will start about January 28, just one month ahead of our previous schedule. I have noticed with great interest the recently published admissions of the leading national film heads; 'that the present system of marketing and distributing film is all wrong and a tremendous waste.'

"When they study our simplified but efficient plan, I predict that they will give it a thorough trial in this zone. In the meantime we will send our organizers out to organize another zone.

"The good feature pictures only get from seventy to 170 days' run in this territory now and under our plan they can be assured from twice to treble the number of showings at a bigger gross and net to the producer and a lower film rental for the exhibitor," continued Mr. Hamlin.

Shipping Amendment Drafted

Sub-Committee of National Association Works Several Months With Bureau of Explosives and Proposes to Amend Regulations

THE National Association of the Motion Picture Industry after having for the past several months a sub-committee working with representatives of the Bureau of Explosives for the purpose of amending the present regulation concerning shipment of film so as to properly protect pictures in transit, last week announced that the revised draft of the proposed amendment has been compiled.

Owing to the scarcity of tin and sheet-iron occasioned by war requirements, it has been found necessary to make radical changes in the specifications.

The proposed amended paragraph 43 of express regulations, and the specification for film containers, is as follows:

(a) Motion picture films must be packed in sparkproof metal boxes or cans complying with Specification No. 32. Not more than eight reels (approximately 1,000 feet each) may be packed in one such outside container.

(b) Motion picture films may also be packed in outside wooden boxes complying with Specification No. 19, provided each reel is placed in a tightly closed inside metal container. The gross weight of such a package must not exceed 400 pounds.

Shipping Container Specification No. 32.

1. Cans or cases must be made of sheet iron not less than 0.02 inch thick. These cans or cases must be lined throughout with hard fiber board at least ⅛ inch thick, or with some other equivalent insulating material approved for this purpose by the Bureau of Explosives.

2. Covers may be permanently attached to metal boxes, cases or cans by not less than two hinges, which must be securely riveted, or they may be slip covers, closely fitting. The covers must lined with insulating material of the same character and thickness as required for the body of the container.

3. Hinged covers must fit tightly against the shoulder of the body, and lap over or inside the body not less than ⅞ inch on all sides. A strong metal hasp must fit over staple or eye bolt, and must be provided with a permanent non-detachable catch to engage in staple or eye bolt.

4. Telescope or slip covers must fit tightly against the shoulder of the body and lap down over or inside the body not less than 3 inches (except that for a 1-reel box the lap may be 2 inches). Telescope or slip covers must be secured to cans or cases by a strong, positive, mechanical device, made of metal. This device must be approved by the Bureau of Explosives, both as to design and construction.

5. Each outside metal container must be plainly marked "Complies with I. C. C. Specification 32," or if desired this marking may be indicated by a symbol consisting of a rectangle as follows:

I. C. C., No. 32.

The letters and figures in this symbol must be at least ½ inch high.

When offered for shipment the package must also be plainly marked "Motion Picture Films," as required by the I. C. C. Regulations for the particular article contained therein.

Note.—Shipping containers complying with Rule 43 (a) effective October 1, 1914, and purchased prior to February 1, 1918, may be used for the shipment of motion picture films until September 1, 1918, provided they are securely closed and in good condition, and provided further, that if fitted with telescopic covers, the covers fit tightly against the shoulder of the box body. Leather or web straps, if used, must be in good condition and tightly fastened—string or rope must not be used.

The sub-committee of the Transportation Committee of the National Association which has had the matter in charge includes A. E. Siegel, Vitagraph; Herbert S. Clark, Paramount; Allan Rock, Paramount; W. E. Atkinson, Metro; J. C. Clark, Wm. L. Sherry Features; A. E. Rousseau, Pathe; J. H. Stilson, Paramount, and G. J. Schaefer, World Film.

Motography Denies Rumor

Rumors that Motography was about to suspend publication, which apparently have been circulated in some quarters, are denied emphatically in a telegram to Motion Picture News from which the following is quoted: "We learn that malicious report has been circulated that Motography will suspend publication. Nothing could be further from the truth. Motography has been greatly strengthened by new business alliances."——E. R. Mock."

In and Out of Town

Charles Rankin, who is offering "A Modern Lorelei" to the independent buyer, left for Baltimore and points South, last Saturday in the interest of the feature. Mr. Rankin expects to be absent from New York about a week.

M. E. Merhie, official photographer, West Virginia Department of Agriculture, Charleston, W. Va., was in New York last week to make arrangements for the disposition of the pictures, disclosing the work of the Agricultural Department. Mr. Merhie will announce later the method of disposition—independent of program. Mr. Merhie is at the head of his own company, West Virginia Amusement and Film Company.

Joseph F. Lee returned from a trip through the Central West last week. Mr. Lee reports business to be quiet.

William Russell, whose contract has expired with Mutual, arrived in New York during the holidays. Mr. Russell is a free agent now and expects to announce, in the near future, the selection of a director for the production of his own features. He will be in New York for an indefinite period.

Jesse J. Goldburg left New York last week for an extended trip, which will take him to every important city from here to the Coast. Mr. Goldburg has been appointed, recently, sole agent for Ivan productions.

William L. Sherrill, president of Frohman Amusement Company, left New York shortly after the holiday season for Jacksonville, Fla., where he is producing a special feature. Tony Kelly, scenario writer, accompanied him. Mr. Sherrill expects to remain in Florida for some weeks.

Ouida Bergere Increases Agency Scope

Ouida Bergere, following the recent announcement in Motion Picture News that she has established a motion picture agency at 516 Fifth avenue, New York, announced this week that she has perfected all plans for a complete and independent organization to cater to the requirements of the industry. Her organization, it is announced, has an affiliation contract with Hughes Massie, 40 Fleet street, London, and with the Mabel Condon Exchange in Los Angeles. Miss Bergere expects these affiliations to give greater scope to her business operations.

Parsons Opens Office

The National Film Corporation of America, of which William Parsons is president, has taken offices at 1604 Broadway, New York. The National Film Corporation of America controls "Tarzan, of the Apes."

What Kind of a Fellow Is—Sherrill?

MR. SHERRILL was rehearsing a speech as we stepped, unobserved, into his office.

"It is the bone and sinew of the industry," he was saying with considerable vehemence, "as the steam is to the engine and as electricity is to the dynamo, so—"

"Is what?" we responded, by way of introduction.

Mr. Sherrill jumped. "Why—er-er—what's that? Oh! Howdy do, Mr. Johnston. Howdy! Good morning, sir. Come right in, sir. Yesser. Quite well, sir. How are you, sir?"

Mr. Sherrill was looking the pink of perfection—cold bath, shave, manicure, valet service, pear scarf pin, fresh linen; as pink and fresh as a pink carnation. Most men of decided personalities give you a color impression. Mr. Sherrill's is that of pinkness—a color of general warmth and optimism. True his automobile is finished in Alice blue, including even the victoria top; but then, pink and Alice blue go nicely together.

"Mr. Sherrill," we began, "the exhibitors like you."

Mr. Sherrill waved deprecatingly. "They like my pictures," he suggested.

"Yes, but they like you. You made a hit at the recent convention in Washington."

Mr. Sherrill grew a little more pinkish.

"They say you are the first producer who has ever appeared before them with no cards up his sleeve. They like your spirit and intentions."

Mr. Sherrill gestured largely and generously, like a Southern plantation owner indicating his broad acres from off a sunny Colonial porch. Mr. Sherrill, by the way, is a native of Macon, Georgia.

"Thank you, sir," he replied, "that's mighty nice in you, sir; and I think exhibitors are mighty nice folks, sir. And they're not fairly treated, sir." Mr. Sherrill looked serious and earnest. "I could make a speech on the subject," he suggested.

"No doubt," we replied. "But, you see, we are cramped for room here. The exhibitors want to know about you."

Mr. Sherrill was, for the moment, nonplussed. "Well," he said, "I'm an independent—and a pioneer independent."

"Exactly."

"And I always will be independent. I'd rather be William L. Sherrill, independent, than President of the U. S. on a program. Solidly independent—that's Sherrill, yesser, one hundred percent!"

"Exactly."

"But I believe in co-operation—business co-operation—between all branches of the industry. Yesser, we've got to make this a regular business. That's my slate. Yesser. One hundred and fifty per cent!"

"You don't mean profits—by one hundred and fifty per cent."

"God bless you; no, sir," exploded Mr. Sherrill. "Certainly not, sir. I was just being emphatic. That's the trouble with this business—this idea of big profits and quick profit taking. No siree, sir. I stand for legitimate profits and business co-operation, run on business principles."

"Certainly."

"I'm not a producer—"

"Be careful," we continued.

"That's all right," said Mr. Sherrill. "I mean I don't know the technical side of picture-making. I leave that to those who do. I'm a business man. But I do know fine pictures and I make them."

"You certainly do," we acquiesced.

"So long, Bill," we said, as we arose.

"So long, Bill," said Mr. Sherrill.

What Others Say

"He's a sure-fire success. He just naturally and instinctively manipulates things to a successful ending."

"He believes in quality production as a business proposition. Whatever business he was engaged in he would conduct it along high-grade lines—as a business principle.

"He has never made, nor considered making other than clean pictures. He believes in them; he believes the other kind are bad business."

"He's a natural born leader. He wants to be William L. Sherrill—or he won't play ball."

"He's human and likable."

"He's genial—always has a laugh ready."

Next Week: Walter W. Irwin

Spain Wants U. S. Pictures

Frank J. Marion Cables Creel That Time Is Now Ripe for American Films in Theatres of That Country

THAT there is an excellent opportunity for the rental and sale of American motion picture films in Spain is indicated by official information to this effect cabled to George Creel, Chairman of the Committee on Public Information at Washington, by Frank J. Marion, president of the Kalem Company, who is a member of the National Cinema Commission, and was recommended for important service by William A. Brady, president of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry. Chairman Creel has referred the matter to President Brady, who is Chairman of the Motion Picture Industry's War Council.

Commissioner Marion is said to be very enthusiastic over the opportunity which is afforded for the showing of motion pictures in Spain, and states that agencies or branches directly owned and controlled in certain centers would make big returns. The Commissioner recommends that only film men speaking Spanish should be assigned to these branches, and that films should be shipped by Spanish liners sailing from either New York or Havana. Any film companies desiring to open up negotiations should communicate direct with Hon. Frank J. Marion, Commissioner of the National Cinema Commission, care of Captain Decker, U. S. Army Headquarters, Madrid, Spain.

The text of Commissioner Marion's cablegram to Chairman Creel follows: "Progress favorable. Naval Attache, Eastman and Pathe Freres Company operating. Going to Barcelona for today but return here, headquarters with Captain Decker. Splendid opportunity Spain for leading film features, sensational drama, big spectacles and lively comedies, also Western life. Hartwell films now distributed by agents from Barcelona but think directly owned and controlled agencies at Coruna, Madrid, Cadiz, Barcelona, would make big money and stocks could be shipped by Spanish liner from New York or Havana. Exchange should be in charge of film men speaking Spanish. I will gladly assist and personally agree with such campaign. Would greatly enhance my work."

Mastercraft Company Formed

Dr. F. Eugene Farnsworth Is President and Director General—E. R. Sherburne Is Treasurer —Hollywood Studio

ANNOUNCEMENT was made this week that a new motion picture producing company, to be known as the Mastercraft Photo-Play Corporation, has been formed, and that a studio will probably be constructed at Hollywood, Cal.

At the head of the new organization as president and director general is Dr. F. Eugene Farnsworth, and E. R. Sherburne as treasurer.

According to J. H. Walraven, through whom the announcement of the formation of the new company was made, the entrance of this new corporation into the motion picture field promises to be an epoch making event, as it will bring, Walraven declares, additional works of Thomas Dixon, Jr., to the screen. Thus far "The Birth of a Nation" is the only work of Dixon that has been filmed, and it is said the new company believes the public will welcome more stories in screen form by the same author.

In speaking of the new corporation Mr. Farnsworth said, "There was a time in the early beginning when the success in the manufacturing of motion picture depended on their novelty, pure and simple. But that time has passed. Men who succeed in the future must be men who are well qualified and know the business from every angle, the handling of scripts, the technique of the studio, the casting of a production, its staging, as well as the many scientific details of the laboratories and the photography. I believe that we have in this corporation just such an organization. Mr. Dixon who took an active part in the making of "The Birth of a Nation" and who is thoroughly familiar with the workings of that organization which has thus far never been surpassed, agrees with me that in the Mastercraft Photo-Play Corporation we have an organization which will, within a very short time, be one of the potent factors of the film industry."

Mr. Farnsworth left New York last week for California, where he will devote his energies in arranging the details at the California studios of the new company which will be located in Hollywood just outside of Los Angeles. Work on the first production is expected to start within four or five weeks. The name of the production has not been announced as yet further than the fact that it will be a visualization of one of Thomas Dixon's novels. Before leaving Mr. Farnsworth stated that he had about closed negotiations with a director to handle the making of the picture and that he would announce the director's name as soon as the agreement was consummated.

Jack Pickford Visits Effete East

Jack Pickford arrived in New York recently on a short-time vacation between pictures, having completed two pictures ahead of his Paramount schedule.

The young Paramount star, whose most recent picture was "Tom Sawyer," believed he might make a picture in the East before returning to the land of sunshine. Meantime, "The Spirit of '17," starring Jack Pickford, will be released and followed by "Huck and Tom," or "The Further Adventures of Tom Sawyer."

Chicago Gets Industry Mixed with Printers

The Chicago Association of Commerce is all tangled up on the motion picture question. Although this industry is ranked as fifth with the great industries of the world, the Association of Commerce tucked it away among the Printing Industries when they were sorting out committees for the coming year.

They said the motion picture industry could line up with the lithographers, if it preferred, or it could train with the bookbinders and the printers, unless it would rather run with the photographers.

It was a new interpretation for the industry, and Richard R. Nehls, manager of the American Film Company, Inc., of Chicago, protested. Mr. Nehls has been chairman of the photographic committee for the past year. The motion picture industry has been formerly placed under the photographic list; but Mr. Nehls considered it of sufficient importance to have a committee all to itself, or at least to be placed where it rightfully belongs, under theatres.

Greene Predicts Big Year for Pictures

Walter E. Greene, president of Artcraft, who last week assumed supervision as head of the Paramount Pictures Corporation, said on the occasion of the beginning of his new duties: "I believe the year 1918 is going to be the biggest year in the history of motion pictures, and I am glad to be able to link up the possibilities for the future at the head of an organization with such splendid heritage of the past. We are approaching the new duties and problems with a spirit of optimism."

The further changes in the personnel of the departmental activities of Paramount have been announced in Motion Picture News as follows: Al Lichtman, general manager; Louis E. Loeb, comptroller; Frederic Gage, sales manager; C. Lang Cobb, Jr., assistant sales manager and J. K. Burger, manager of department of exchange requisitions. John C. Flinn continues as general director of publicity and advertising.

Bronx Exhibitors Elect New Officers

At a regular meeting of the Cinema Exhibitors' Association, Bronx Local No. 2, Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, held on December 27, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

John J. Wittman, president, this making his sixth term; Nathan Vinegrad, vice-president, second term; Henry Cole, executive secretary, second term; Abe Suchman, treasurer; Sam Spanier, financial secretary; Abraham B. Samuelson, trustee; Herman Bolte, sergeant-at-arms.

The delegates to the Allied Exhibitors Convention in Washington December 11 and 12, 1917, made their report, which was well received and accepted.

Fuel Denied—Appeal to Washington

Fort Lee Producers Denied Coal by Local Authorities—Big Interests Affected—Garfield Appealed to—Plants Compelled to Close—Transportation Also Big Problem

THE coal famine, which has been no respecter of persons or corporations, has probably affected the motion picture industry more keenly than any other branch of business. Although at the present time the shortage is felt acutely only in the Fort Lee district, the conditions, entailing in some instances financial losses in addition to discomfort and inconvenience, were spreading during the past week.

To such an acute stage had the fuel famine advanced in the East that an appeal has been made to Fuel Administrator Garfield at Washington, D. C., and a decision that will affect the entire industry, from Coast to Coast, or wherever studios, laboratories and other factories devoted to the making of motion pictures are located, is expected within a few days.

The matter of transportation is also taking on proportions that threaten an acute crisis unless relief is soon secured. Shipments of negative film from the Eastman plant at Rochester are suffering delays that have forced many of the bigger companies to send their work to outside laboratories that were so forunate as to have a supply of film on hand.

Producers Appeal to Washington

Representative men of the producing companies located at Fort Lee, met Friday afternoon at the Craftsman Laboratories, Nineteenth street, New York, for the purpose of taking immediate steps to counteract the danger anticipated and already visited upon the industry—as localized in Fort Lee, because of the drastic action taken by the local authorities in suspending the sale of coal to the motion picture manufacturers located within their jurisdiction.

At Fort Lee there are located the factories of Universal (Eastern producing companies and laboratories), Fox, Peerless, Goldwyn, Blache, Solax and World. Each of these companies was represented at the meeting held Friday. These factories represent a good percentage of the number operating in the country. The inconvenience caused by the lack of fuel for heating purposes, is not felt so keenly and this can be tolerated without apparent effect on the actual carrying out of the industry's purposes but when fuel is denied for the purposes of generating power—this means that the producing and developing end of the business is paralyzed.

Shortage Localized—May Spread

The situation in New York is apparently normal, the studios and laboratories in this State, entering no complaint. They are on par with the communities in general and although there has been a State-wide coal shortage, the industry has not suffered more than any other industry or business in the State.

The action taken at the meeting Friday was of little importance when considering actual results accomplished for the bettering of conditions. It was found that the matter had to be taken up with the authorities in Washington before an impression could be made on the local authorities in Jersey. The producers present, representing every company with laboratories and studios located at Fort Lee, communicated with George Creel, chairman of the committee on public information, in Washington, and Mr. Creel informed the producers that he would take the matter up with Fuel Administrator Garfield, immediately. Mr. Garfield's action in the matter will be communicated to the New Jersey State authorities, thence to the county authorities and finally to the local town authorities presiding over the municipal affairs of the town of Fort Lee.

Powers Gives Opinion

P. A. Powers, of Universal, in commenting upon conditions and the action taken at the meeting, said:

"In view of the fact that only about three carloads of coal are required to supsuply the needs of the producing companies in Fort Lee, for the period of one week, and considering also the invaluable assistance the industry has been and still is to the Government, it seems strange that the business would be practically crippled for the want of this comparatively small amount of fuel. For two days last week Universal was unable to accomplish any work at its laboratories in Fort Lee, due entirely to lack of fuel. This same inconvenience was experienced by the other producers.

"As far as I can learn, the shortage is confined to the interests located at Fort Lee. The action was taken by the local authorities after the county authorities had advised them to act. The action was taken, no doubt, with good intentions, but the effect it will have unless remedied, will be to practically paralize the industry."

The Fort Lee producing companies represented at last week's meeting are, World, Goldwyn, Fox, Solax, Paragon, Universal Peerless and Blache. P. A. Powers represented Universal; William A. Brady, World; Jules Brualtor, Eastman Kodak Company, and Mr. Loew represented Paragon. It is expected that Mr. Garfield will take action immediately, and that his decision will cover the entire industry as to the question of fuel supply.

LIGHTLESS NIGHTS

You'll Have to Make the Best of Other Exploitation

USE of electric illuminations in front of motion picture houses is important, and it is to be regretted that the government's rule of "lightless nights" has forbidden them. But the nation is at war and we must make the best of it.

That means that you should pay more attention to the other methods of exploitation at your command, and that you ought to use every little thing that will attract more people to your house. Last week we printed a story about the way that the leading theatres of Milwaukee are meeting the problems of "lightless nights" by advertising more liberally. Let us hear what you are doing in this regard.

And remember, if you complain that the war has taken away many of your regular patrons, one of your chief problems is to create new patrons. What are you doing along this line? You'll find many valuable suggestions in studying these pages carefully.

Jacksonville Supplies Weather Reports

The Chamber of Commerce of Jacksonville, Fla., believes in co-operating with the motion picture producers and aiding them in the saving of as much time and money as possible, and as evidence of this effort, the organization is sending a telegram daily to MOTION PICTURE NEWS of the climatic conditions in and near the city, and the weather forecast for the following day, which will be given to prospective visiting producers to Jacksonville.

The motion picture service department of the Jacksonville Chamber of Commerce is rendering great service to the visiting producers, who advise them just what is wanted on the day they leave New York, and upon their arrival have nothing to do but go to work.

W. A. Johnston Upheld by Court

Judges in the Appellate Division, First Department, on December 28 handed down a decision upholding the complaint of W. A. Johnston against the Exhibitors Trade Review in his suit against that publication alleging libel. The defendant is given twenty days in which to answer the complaint.

Chicago Owners Hold Meeting

Officers for Coming Year Are Nominated and Convention Reports Are Received — Exhibitor Amalgamation Holds Floor

THE nomination of officers for the coming year and the report of the committee sent to the Allied Exhibitors' Convention in Washington, Dec. 12-13, were the outstanding features at the last meeting of the Chicago Motion Picture Theatre Owners' Association, held in their headquarters at 19 West Adams street.

Louis Frank, speaking for the committee sent to Washington by the local association, told of the proceedings there and of the favorable impressions he gained of the convention as a whole.

"At no time," he said, "was either the A.E.A. or the M.P.E.L mentioned. It was a case of a united body rather than divided factions and it was a good thing to see."

Mr. Frank said that the amalgamation committee, of which he is a member, had not met yet and that he had no idea when it would. The resolutions passed at the Exhibitors' Convention were read to the meeting and approved. After explaining that one section of the resolution referred to the 15 cents per reel tax and that the legislative committee had been instructed to ask Congress to make a definite decision as to who should pay the tax. Mr. Beatty got to his feet and said that he had heard that one of the members of the local organization had refused to cancel an exchange the rest of the members had cancelled because of the reel-tax troubles.

A committee was appointed to see the backward party and it was intimated that unless he agreed to work in harmony with the organization that he would be dropped from membership.

E. Thomas Beatty, representing the executive committee, told of the results of a visit to the City Fuel Administrator's office. He stated that the worst might be still lurking in the office and that exhibitors might even be requested to add another "lightless" night to the two they already observe. At least, according to Mr. Beatty's version, there is little hope of modifying the present lighting restrictions as they apply to theatres for the authorities' determination to save coal is something the whole nation is asked to bow to.

Following further discussion on the subject nomination of officers was declared in order by President August Krug and the following names were proposed: E. Thomas Beatty for president, George Henry and August Zilligan for vice-president, Louis H. Frank and H. A. Gundling for treasurer, Miss Anna Kesner for financial secretary, Adolph Powell and M. A. Choynski for secretary and August Zilligan for sergeant-at-arms.

On the executive committee for the coming year the following were nominated: Max Jesselson, A. J. Krug, W. J. Mulligan, A. Zilligan, M. A. Choynski, Jacob Cooper and H. A. Gundling.

Paramount-Artcraft Confer

Greene and Lichtman Call Meeting of District Managers of Exchanges —Optimism Keynote of the Conference

UPON assuming supervision of the distribution of both Paramount and Artcraft Pictures for the new year, Walter E. Greene and Al Lichtman, general manager, called a meeting in New York last week of the district managers of the Paramount and Artcraft exchanges. The meeting continued over the week-end.

The keynote of the meeting, it developed, was one of most satisfactory optimism, a feeling that seemed to be shared by all the men present.

Many of the district managers attending are among the best known territorial distributors in the entire film industry and the large proportion of them have been associated with the Famous Players-Lasky organization since the inception of its integrals six years ago. The fact, therefore, that optimism for the future was the prevailing sentiment of the meeting is one of distinct interest to the film world.

The first meetings were concerned with the problems of general distribution and a discussion of problems that affect the exhibitor and how to meet those problems with proper distribution service.

Reports were made in detail, based on complete and accurate information as to the attitude of the public in regard to the Paramount and Artcraft pictures and the reception given them by the picture theatregoers.

At the first meeting discussion was led by Walter E. Greene, with Al Lichtman presiding. Among those present were: Frederic Gage, general sales manager of Paramount; William L. Smith, C. E. Tandy; William L. Sherry, J. V. Chamberlain, James Steele, Max Goldstine, Harry Asher, Herman Wobber, A. D. Flintom, Louis Marcus, Louis E. Loeb, comptroller of Paramount; Carl H. Pierce, general representative, and John C. Flinn, general director of publicity and advertising.

At the conclusion of the discussion led by President Greene, General Manager Lichtman said, "We want to congratulate the district manager and the representatives of the exchanges in placing so successfully the Paramount and Artcraft pictures under the new distributing star series policy. We feel the optimism for the future that the members here are feeling. A work to which we are all giving our most earnest attention now is toward strengthening the bond between the exhibitor and our company and to this end we are inviting expressions of opinion on how to improve our service."

While in New York, the district managers attending the meeting visited singly and in groups many of the picture houses of the city, as guests of S. L. Rothapfel, Harold Edel, Marcus A. Loew and other prominent exhibitors.

Mastbaum Observes Lightless Nights

It was announced last week in Philadelphia by the Stanley Company that Stanley V. Mastbaum, managing director of the organization, has voiced his intention of voluntarily observing at every theatre under the direction of his company, six lightless nights each week in an effort to conserve tons of coal.

"When the war started," said Mr. Mastbaum, "I considered it my duty and the duty of all the interests with which I am connected in the amusement world to give every aid to the Government in any way that we could. That the motion picture industry has responded nobly is now a matter of history and they are still doing their 'bit' every day and giving largely of their time, their money and their talents that democracy may triumph. Now the country, and especially Philadelphia, is threatened with even a more drastic crisis than ever before in the matter of the health and welfare of our people—the stoppage of the natural fuel supply—coal—without which the wheels of industry must stop turning and misery untold be inflicted on everyone—especially the poor.

"I feel that, so far as I can through the many houses that the Stanley Company represents, it is a patriotic duty to do away with as much lighting as can possibly be spared, not only on Sunday and on Thursday nights but six nights each week, leaving only Saturday night when some extra illumination may be made. Therefore I have sent a telegram to National Fuel Administrator Garfield in Washington informing him of the fact that all the large signs and other illuminations in front of the theatres and all other lights except those which are needed to insure safety to patrons and the public, are to be extinguished on six nights each week. The saving in coal this will accomplish will be of the utmost importance in this crisis and it is hoped that material aid will result to the people from this effort on our part as we believe it will."

Maryland Expects Repeal of Censorship

According to developments, active steps toward securing the repeal of the Motion Picture Censorship Act of Maryland may be expected at any minute. The Maryland Legislature held its first session of the 1918 term Tuesday night, January 1, at Annapolis, and it is this term that the motion picture exhibitors of the Terrapin state expected to have the Legislators repeal the Censor bill.

Much work has been done preliminary to having the repeal bill introduced at Annapolis. A group of earnest, energetic men have given nearly all their time to the preliminary work, which is now about completed and the repeal measure is about ready to be drafted.

Maryland exhibitors have a number of pledges from members of both Houses of the Legislature and there is strong hope that this year will see the end of picture censorship.

Hammons Pleased with Bookings

E. W. Hammons, vice-president and general manager of the Educational Films Corporation of America, expressed great satisfaction last week over the bookings their pictures have been getting in up-to-date theatres.

The new Rivoli theatre, which opened December 28, presented on its program a scenic entitled "A World of Dreams." "This was the only straight scenic on the program, although some industrial pictures were shown of an outdoor nature," said Mr. Hammons.

In further commenting on their recent bookings, Mr. Hammons added that the following was particularly significant because of the fact that, while they were showing a picture at the Rivoli theatre, they also were showing another Bruce picture at the Rialto, entitled "Beside the Glimmer Glass," and at the Strand theatre a Raymond L. Ditmars picture, entitled "Nature's Songsters."

Other bookings during the same week at other theatres were as follows: Academy of Music, Broadway, Photoplay, Bunny theatre, Eighty-first, The Claremont, Loew's Greely Square, Loew's New York, Proctor's Fifth Avenue, Savoy and Stanley.

Hal Roach Entertains Navy Men

More than a thousand sailors of the United States Submarine Base at San Pedro, California, were the guests, recently, of Hal Roach, president and general manager of the Rolin Film Company of Los Angeles, at a great vaudeville and entertainment, given at the Base headquarters.

Members of the Submarine Base are, to a great extent, isolated from the other branches of the Naval Service, because of the necessary secrecy of their work, as well as the fact that their training must be carried on at points, as a rule, located some distance from the regular Naval training quarters. For this reason the San Pedro Submarine Base had, to a certain extent, been neglected in the big entertainments which have been given from time to time for the entertainment of the boys in naval training.

Among the Rolin players providing entertainment were the comedian, Toto, the Rolin quartet, Harry Pollard and Paddy McGuire, comedy dancers; Harold Lloyd of "Luke" fame, and Bebe Daniels, in ballroom specialties; Alf. Goulding and wife, Billy Fay, Jimmy Blyler and Fred Brown.

Goldwyn Photographer Joins the Colors

Goldwyn has lost its director of photography. George Hill, now of the United States Army Signal Corps. With a first lieutenant's commission in his inside pocket he made a flying trip to Hollywood, Cal., to spend a day with his parents, following which he reported at Washington for further orders.

WE GIVE IT UP!

MOTION PICTURE NEWS,
729 Seventh Ave.,
New York City,
New York.

Gentlemen:

Enclose please find photograph; for which two persons have a difference of opinion; one believes it is Mary Pickford. We wish for you to decide whether or not it is.

Thanking you for this favor.

Yours truly,

Theo. Desky,
Brush, Colo.

This is the photograph Mr. Desky sent in.

Hodkinson Re-States His Plan

Believes Intermediary Organizations Can Best Serve Exhibitors and Producers and Promote Beneficial Growth

W. W. HODKINSON, in a statement last week to a representative of MOTION PICTURE NEWS, concerning the all-around amalgamation of the motion picture industry as an aid to its growth or as a preservative for its present status, re-asserted his former announced belief that no such amalgamation or affiliation will benefit the industry, at this time.

Instead of an amalgamation of manufacturers, distributors and exhibitors, as suggested by several exhibitors and others, Mr. Hodkinson believes he has a better plan, part of which he has previously set forth in MOTION PICTURE NEWS. For further progress, at least until such time as a better value can be placed on what the exhibitor and the producer have, and until their interest can be merged, Mr. Hodkinson harbors the opinion that an intermediary organization such as he has created can best serve the interests of both parties and create a balance that will help to do justice and establish mutual confidence between the two present conflicting forces of production and exhibition.

Mr. Hodkinson's intentions are, in part, as he states them: "First: To contract with producers on a basis whereby my company or its affiliations will not assume production risks nor be required to continue to utilize any product that will not stand up on its own account. (That this can be done is witnessed by the fact that I have such product as Paralta on this basis and am now negotiating for other equally attractive product.)

"Second: Having secured product from a producer on a basis that would be impossible for an exhibitor, due to the producer's unwillingness to put himself into the hands of the exhibitor, I have geared up my proposition so that at least half and as much as three-quarters of distribution profits can be passed on to my exhibitor associates and yet I have no ties or affiliations with them that would make me deal unjustly with producers under my contracts with them which give me so much latitude for the exhibitor's protection.

"Third: The natural results of what I have in mind as the outcome of such a connection between producer and exhibitor, is to insure the producers dealing with me a market for their product and to the exhibitor desiring to perpetuate a condition under which he is assured justice, the added incentive of some of the profits of distribution. With this support to offer producers, as well as the fact that I shall continue striving to lower distribution costs, the best producers will gravitate toward us. The exhibitor, on the other hand, will not object to his distributing profits being reduced by my arrangement with producers, provided by so doing he secured the best product, as this insures the success of his theatre and this is his first consideration.

"Fourth: And the most important part of my plan is that I am trying to create a constructive circle of activity whereby every incentive is offered Exhibition, Distribution and Production to make better product to be handled economically and to remove from the exhibitor the cares he now has so that he may be free to develop his individual business more efficiently."

The Reader Has His Say

Ready to Do His Bit—But Not the Other Fellow's

Editor Motion Picture News.

Dear Sir: I have been in this business for several years and it is the first time I have ever opened my mouth, and if business don't change soon it will be closed, as I will be among the dead. These heavy war taxes have just about put a finish to me. Like a good many others, I love our flag and we are willing to do our part in this dreadful war, but do not think it fair for a few of us to do it all. I think the film companies and the exchanges should stand their share. The film companies could lessen their expenses by cutting down some of these outrageous salaries they are paying. Just think of it, some of these stars are getting higher salaries than the president. If the greater part of the exhibitors that have thousands of dollars invested would make a profit of one-fifth of their salary we would feel independent and could have a little of the pleasures of life instead of worry and wondering what tonight's business will be.

When the tax went into effect I raised my admission price 5 cents all around, and my books will show that business has dropped two-thirds. I am losing money every day. My patrons say that living and other commodities are so high that they can't afford to go to the show. I know them personally and know they are telling the truth. What will the film companies do if the exhibitor closes his house. I should think they could see far enough ahead to see that by hurting the exhibitor they are hurting themselves. This 15-cent reel tax is a shame, and I for one am cancelling them and taking service from the exchanges that have cut it out. And the exchange that stands by me will get my little business when this war tax is over. Heretofore the exhibitor has stood everything and said nothing, but the time is almost ripe when we will have something to say. It has been only a few years ago when the General Film Company undertook to put a license on the film—$2 per week. It fell flat. And only a short time ago we had to put up a deposit for film. The exhibitor did without his money while the film company used it to produce the picture with. Some business. And it will continue so just as long as the exhibitor stands for it. If we would wake up and put our feet down flat there would be a change very quick. I for one am ready to clear my house in order to get justice.

We are in this war to the finish and are going to win it, and can easily do so if we all do our part. But if some of us stand back it will be harder on the rest of us and take much longer time. So I say whatever war tax is placed on the show business let it be divided equally between us all. Then those that can stand it will have to close up.

Well, so long, I may be looking for a job by the time you get this.

C. F. PERKINS.

Silver Star Theatre, Freewater, Oregon.

Exhibitor Kimball Does Some Figuring on the Reel Tax

Editor, MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Dear Sir: Another angle on the film tax. Many discussions on this matter have been reported in MOTION PICTURE NEWS and the other trade papers, but in not one that I have read has anyone seemed to hit upon the real heart of the matter. That is, the amount of this film tax (15c per reel per day) has been based upon absolutely false premises. The fact that a film may work fifty days or five hundred days is entirely beside the question under present conditions.

Instead of charging a tax of fifteen cents per reel for the first fifty days of use, as worked out by their accountants, the manufacturers added it to every reel they rented.

Consequently, the basis of the matter under the present plan is not the number of days a film will work, but something entirely different; i. e., the proportion of reels of film rented to the number of reels released.

Suppose, for instance, a system of Exchanges rented on an average of 5,000 reels per day. This would give them, at 15 cents per reel, $750 per day or $5,250 per week, and pay the U. S. film tax on 700 new reels each week. If they release more, they lose, if less than 700 they make something regardless of whether the films work fifty days, or more, or less.

Since the ratio of the number of reels rented to the number of reels released would vary widely with each distributor, it would seem that this 15 cents per reel per day might prove a windfall to one while to another it would represent a loss.

Under these circumstances is this charge of 15 cents per reel per day fair to the distributors, to the exhibitors, or to anyone else?

S. F. KIMBALL.

New Alamo Theatre, Alamogordo, New Mexico.

Here's the Man Who Would Confiscate All Film Over a Year Old

Editor, MOTION PICTURE NEWS,
New York City.

Dear Sir: I may be starting a rumpus in the business but it seems to me that just now is a good time for the Federal government to do the motion picture business a good turn by confiscating all films one year of age and older. In the trade papers I have read of a warning from the Eastman Company to the producers to curtail any extravagance in the use of film as the government was in need of the ingredients used in its manufacture for the munition plants.

We all know that one of the banes of the exhibitor is the use by many theatres of old "stuff," especially the Chaplins and other popular star releases. With these off the market, and the only chance of their re-issue being with the owners of the negative the picture business would benefit and the public be less shy of many star films. It would be the means of keeping the projection in better shape and save many booth fires. By the government confiscating the old films it would put all producers and exhibitors on the same footing, and at the same time help the film manufacturers keep the supply of raw film at a normal output.

If there is any logic in my suggestion let it go to the public, otherwise you can consign my letter to the waste basket and not at all hurt the goodwill of the writer for MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

With best wishes of the approaching holiday season,

Very truly yours,
ALLEN JENKINS,
Manager.

Bijou Theatre, Roanoke, Va.

What Can Be Done for the Eighty Per Cent. Man?

Editor, MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Dear Sir: I have read very near every comment passed upon the "REEL TAX" and have carefully noticed what leading exhibitors and film men have had to say about it, but all this talk is not saving the small town exhibitor, yet SOMETHING MUST BE DONE and very, very quickly. There are hundreds and hundreds of these small town men who will close their theatre doors on the account of poor business and the taxes levied on them and a half dozen other reasons why they are going out of business. Some are as follows:

(1) Many young men who were strong patrons of the theatre have gone to give their services to their country, and then the draft has taken a lot more, and these men counted as they were all young fellows who carried the young ladies out to the theatres, not one night a week, but from two to five nights each week, and now they have gone, of course the young ladies continue to go to the theatres, but not as often as before. These men have gone, thousands of them from small towns that depended on them for their patronage at the picture theatre, and none have taken their places, as in a big city where thousands gather every day from all parts of the country.

(2) Then film rental has advanced considerably, and yet business has decreased. The average exhibitor wants the best and is willing to pay for it, but he must make more than the cost of the picture, if not, then his investment is a losing proposition and in some places it is hard to raise prices, and in others it is very, very easy. I myself firmly believe in higher admission prices for I think that it has got to come sooner or later.

(3) The war tax is keeping away a few from the theatres and some say the theatres should pay it, but I am of a different opinion and think it is a tax that the patrons should pay; teach it to them, tell them that it is a tax that must be paid in order that America can support her end of this World War by using slides and other ad. matter.

(4) Then the last, but not the least of the whole thing, THE REEL TAX. The exhibitors should not pay this, it should be paid by the makers or distributors as others, namely The General, W. H. Productions and others. WHY COULDN'T ALL OF THEM PAY IT?

Now, Mr. Editor, why not cheapen rentals, let the distributors book pictures on the strength of the exhibitor's business; if he does business on their pictures he is willing to pay for them at good prices, but HE CAN'T PAY AND STAY IN BUSINESS ON SOME OF THESE SO-CALLED HIGH STAR PRODUCTIONS that the little town theatre manager's patrons never heard of, and have that high salaried star in a picture that the exhibitor had to charge high admission prices on to turn out to be a lemon, and now

WHO IS THE GOAT?

The exhibitor, of course.

Can't something be done to remedy this for the small town man? I read Mr. Mastbaum's letter and think it is great, and it has stirred up a bunch of those high priced film men in New York who set prices from an office there on Broadway, and never once dream of the thousands of small town fellows who keep them there.

Accept my good wishes for a glorious New Year and may the MOTION PICTURE NEWS continue to grow greater every day, and as far as making it better, IT CAN'T BE DID, for I certainly see no room for improvement. It is now THE EXHIBITORS' IDEAL ADVISER OF THE HAPPENINGS OF THE TRADE.

Yours very truly,
ALBERT H. ESTES.

Bluebird Theatre.

Mrs. Blackton Presides at Criterion Luncheon

The fifth annual motion picture luncheon of the Criterion Club of New York was held at the Plaza Hotel in the Grand Ball Room on Friday, December 7. Mrs. J. Stuart Blackton presided for the afternoon, a number of the Country Life series, not exhibited heretofore being shown for the large gathering of New York society women who make up the membership of the club.

Mrs. Blackton, a producer in her own right, believes that these meetings go a long way toward forming an understanding between the manufacturer and the public. As she produces children's features she believes it advisable to get in touch with the mothers once a year in this way and talk over the problems arising from children's matinees and similar performances.

As one of the most distinguished members of the Criterion Club, Mrs. Blackton has presided over this luncheon since its inception five years ago. She furnishes additional entertainment by bringing prominent stars with her to talk of the production of pictures. This year Alice Joyce and Virginia Pearson were the guests of honor.

Vitagraph President Hurt in Accident

Albert E. Smith, president of the Vitagraph Company, had a narrow escape a few days ago when his limousine leaped head-on against a telegraph pole. The crash threw him from his seat and his head struck against the front wall of the tonneau. He was stunned for a few moments and suffered several painful injuries.

Mr. Smith was on his way to the Vitagraph Studio, in Brooklyn, and the car was proceeding down Ocean avenue. It got into a rut of frozen snow and the chauffeur, in trying to turn out, lost control of his wheel temporarily and before he could halt the machine it plunged against the pole. Mr. Smith, who was reading, was hurled against the front of the tonneau, the impact causing a deep cut on his forehead. In addition, his leg was wrenched and his hand badly lacerated.

Exhibitors Box Office Reports

TITLE, STAR, AND BRAND	E.	N.	S.	W.	EXHIBITORS' OWN REPORTS OF BOX-OFFICE VALUE
ADVENTURES OF CAROL (Madge Evans—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Fair show; did not draw." "Star good, everyone liked it" (E.). "Don't care for child stars."
ALIAS MRS. JESSOP (Emily Stevens—Met.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good show, star not popular." "Very good picture."
ALL FOR A HUSBAND (Virginia Pearson—Fox)	Poor	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Big business, but without any exception the biggest piece of cheese I ever ran" (N.). "Worth the money—good comedy" (N.). (For further comment, see issue of Jan. 12.)
ANTICS OF ANN (Ann Pennington—Para.)	Big	Big	Ave.	Ave.	"Very clever picture" (W.). "Fair picture." "Great—a knockout." (For other comments, see issue of December 29.)
ANYTHING ONCE (Franklyn Farnum—Blue.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Full of action" (N.). "Very good, much like Doug. Fairbanks" (W.).
APPLETREE GIRL, THE (Shirley Mason—K.E.S.E.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Photography good, pleasing picture."
AUCTION BLOCK, THE (Rex Beach Production—Gold.)	Big	Big	Big	Extra	"Went big with little advertising" (S.). "Very good." "Great—capacity four days" (W.). "Wonderful business, repeat, total seven days' run." "Great business, many new faces; such a picture helps the industry" (E.). "Very good." "Great, one of the best I ever played" (E.). "Too much action, great finish" (N.). "Fine picture, but too long." "Second day held up fine." "Went big." (For further comment, see issue of Jan. 12.)
AWAKENING, THE (Montagu Love, Dor. Kelly—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"A good interest-sustaining picture." "Better than average."
BABES IN THE WOOD (Fox Kiddies—Fox St.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Fairy tales do not draw." "Good for kids only."
BAB'S MATINEE IDOL (Marguerite Clark—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Big	Big	"Three days' fine business—good picture" (N.). "A few more 'Bab's' and Miss Clark will be through as far as I am concerned; why don't Paramount make something with a little 'jazz'—timely—less 'art'—will get something through the box-office" (E.). "Title too confusing for patrons; am not in favor of any more 'sub-Deb' stories, glad they're over" (E.). (For further comment, see issue of Jan. 12.)
BABBLING TONGUES (Ivan Production—St. R.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"One of best acted dramas ever produced, good surprise finish" (S.). "Fine picture." "A very good picture" (S.). "People seemed to like it" (N.).
BABY MINE (Madge Kennedy—Gold.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Business better after the first day." "Great cast and direction." "Very ordinary production, drawn out and too long." "Rain hurt business, but picture great." "Business fair, production excellent; star unknown, but watch her grow." (For other comments, see issue of Dec. 15, 1917.)
BECAUSE OF THE WOMAN (Belle Bennett—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"A good show."
BLIND MAN'S LUCK (Mollie King—Pathe)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"As good, if not best, 5-reel feature this house has shown" (N.). "Fine production."
BONDAGE (Dorothy Phillips—Blue.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"This star is getting more popular." "Very fine production." "Bluebird improving remarkably."
BOTTOM OF THE WELL, THE (Evart Overton—Vita.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"A good interest holding picture."
BRANDED SOUL, A (Gladys Brockwell—Fox)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Melo—pleased; elaborate production" (S.). "Too much sex; program stuff." "Poor." "Public does not care for Mexican stories" (E.).
BURGLAR, THE (Carlyle Blackwell—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Splendid picture; stars lack draft." "Good picture, very sad, not kind that will draw." "Stars popular, good story" (N.). "Neglected wife, forget-me-not story, big business" (N.). "Great." "Excellent, but bad ending."
CALENDAR GIRL, THE (Juliette Day—Mut.)	Ave.	Poor	Ave.	Ave.	"Not up to Mutual standard." "A pleasing picture."
CALL OF THE EAST, THE (Sessue Hayakawa—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"Good play, well liked by all." "Very slow, but holds the audience." "A fair picture." (For other comments, see issue of Dec. 29.)
CAMILLE (Theda Bara—Fox)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Seven reel production made it difficult to handle crowds." "The story has been done to death." "Bara's followers liked the picture." "Well liked star." "Big—Bara is great, but story has small appeal" (N.). "Not a good picture for Bara, women like it, though" (W.). "An excellent production, got me money two nights" (N.).
CASSIDY (Dick Rosson—Tri.)	Poor	Poor	Poor	Poor	"Good picture—no name—no star—no business." "Most morbid production—a business killer." "Leading role very well done—fine storm scenes—holds interest—title only chance for improvement." "No attraction." "Just plain rot" (S.). "Good picture, but morbid" (W.). "Rosson's acting overdone, good story" (N.).
CINDERELLA MAN, THE (Mae Marsh—Gold.)	Extra	Big	Big	Big	"Very good—great cast." "Entertaining, appealing, elevating" (N.). "This picture I would call 'beautiful'; direction, 'wonderful'; settings, 'magnificent'; cast, 'exceptional'; the kind of picture I like to rave over" (S.). "Deserves a niche among the screen's greatest" (N.).
CLEVER MRS. CARFAX (Julian Eltinge—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Clever female impersonator; not so good in this one, though they seem to like it" (S.). "Deserved better biz" (W.). "Just a picture, that's all" (E.).
COLD DECK, THE (William S. Hart—Lynch)	Big	Extra	Big	Extra	"A picture that pleased." "He is a good drawing card." "Dandy Hart picture." "Best Hart ever made." "Pleased—big business."
COME THROUGH (Herbert Rawlinson—Jewel)	Ave.	Big	Ave.	Big	"Rattling good picture." "Four big days on this." "Did greater business on this than Hart two weeks before" (W.). "Patrons well pleased." "Photography splendid." "Too much footage." "Good picture, pleased all."
CONSCIENCE (Gladys Brockwell—Fox)	Ave.	Big	Ave.	Ave.	"Did not entirely please—too allegorical" (Middle). "Interesting story, and the production end ranks well among the program class—average business" (South). "Fair only." "A very fine picture—only like others before, failed, too allegorical" (W.). "A picture that is hard to take up, unless seen from the beginning." "A good picture of its kind, but allegorical subjects not wanted." "Fine, S. R. O." "Small appeal, but great" (N.). "Excellent picture, poor business."
CORNER GROCER, THE (Madge Evans, Lew Fields—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Star is not a drawing card." "Much too long to please." "A very pleasing picture." "Very good."
CY WHITTAKER'S WARD (Shirley Mason—K.E.S.E.)	Poor	Poor	Poor	Poor	"No drawing power." "Patrons like star, but not story." "Poor—not much to it."
DEAD SHOT BAKER (William Duncan—Vita.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Too much blood and thunder." "We're getting too much Westerns." "Excellent. Western subject." "A good picture, pleased patrons."
DESIRE OF THE MOTH, THE (Ruth Clifford—Blue.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good Western, title misleads fans." "Title not appropriate. Good picture. Monroe Salisbury a comer."
DEVIL DODGER, THE (Roy Stewart—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Type of play that takes well in Arizona." "An extra strong picture. "Not good" (W.). "Good drama, Stewart a second Hart if properly directed."
DORMANT POWER, THE (Ethel Clayton—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good picture" (S.). "Star popular, story fair." "Good subject, and star, Clayton a great favorite" (N.). "Good." (For other comments, see issue of Dec. 29.)
DRAFT 258 (Mabel Talliaferro—Met.)	Extra	Extra	Extra	Big	"Very nice picture for this time" (E.). "A great patriotic picture (N.). "A strong patriotic picture, not quite up to our expectations as a business getter." "Excellent, but public confuses with 'Slacker'; Miss Talliaferro's acting specially commented on as superb" (N.). "We change every day as a rule; ran this three days, to better business third day than first—a winner."
EASY MONEY (Ethel Clayton—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"A pleasing picture; this star is improving" (W.).
ETERNAL MOTHER, THE (Ethel Barrymore—Met.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture, not much drawing power" (N.). "These kind of pictures don't draw." "Good picture, not much drawing power." "Pleasing, good story with moral." "Star not popular."
ETERNAL TEMPTRESS (Lina Cavalieri—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Just a picture—nothing to rave over." "Star does not register, poor picture."
FETTERED WOMAN, THE (Alice Joyce—Vita.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Ordinary picture." "Star not popular." "Program stuff."
FIBBERS, THE (Bryant Washburn—K.E.S.E.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Not up to Skinner." "Star well liked. A few more good pictures will make him a big drawing card." (For other comment, see issue of Dec. 29.)
FIGHTING BACK (William Desmond—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good Western." "Only fair." "Fair picture."
FIREFLY OF TOUGH LUCK (Alma Reubens—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Splendid, will repeat this." "Good Western." "Good Western stuff—what they want." "Routine Western."

TITLE, STAR, AND BRAND	E.	N.	S.	W.	EXHIBITORS' OWN REPORTS OF BOX-OFFICE VALUE
FOOLS FOR LUCK (Taylor Holmes—K.E.S.E.)	Ave.	Ave.	Poor	Ave.	"Fair picture." "Patrons clamor for this type" (S.). "Patrons seemed to enjoy themselves with this" (N.).
FOR THE FREEDOM OF THE WORLD (Special—Gold.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Good picture." "Nice picture." "Two days' capacity and pleased everyone."
FOR VALOR (Winifred Allen—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Poor	Poor	"Good picture, bad display." "A good program offering with poor title." "Average program picture." "Good, but did not draw" (W.).
FRANCE IN ARMS (Pathe)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Great stuff—should go big." "Too monotonous." "Great picture."
FUEL OF LIFE, THE (Belle Bennett—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Pleased average audience." "Poor." "Title Very Bad" (S.). "Does not hold the interest" (N.).
GAME OF WITS, A (Gail Kane—Mutual)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Best Mutual we have ever played" (S.). "Patrons all satisfied" (N.).
GARDEN OF ALLAH, THE (Selig Special Production)	Big	Ave.	...	Big	"Too dry—yet good picture. Not a money getter" (N.). "Great big money getter, fine picture" (N.). "An elaborate picture, but didn't draw."
GIFT O' GAB (Jack Gardner—K.E.S.E.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very pleasing; Gardner a comer." "Good picture, but failed to repeat after first day" (W.). "Light comedy—very entertaining" (W.).
GIRL ANGLE, THE (Anita King—Mut.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very cute picture." "Forced comedy, not liked generally by patrons." "Good Western."
GOOD FOR NOTHING, THE (Blackwell-Greeley—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Average picture" (W.). "Good picture" (S.).
GRELL MYSTERY, THE (Earl Williams—Vita.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Excellent picture." "Best Williams picture in some time—held the interest." "Good picture" (N.). "Rattling good detective story" (E.) "Not up to Williams' standard." "Rotten" (N.).
HEART OF EZRA GREER (Frederick Warde—Pathe)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave	"Good picture and cast." "Good."
HER COUNTRY'S CALL (Mary Miles Minter—Mut.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Fair patriotic feature, nothing out of the ordinary." "Very pretty picture—star becoming a favorite." "Fair picture—she always draws well" (Middle). "Good photography—direction poor in spots, some settings not elaborate enough." "Well liked." "Title killed this one" (West). "Patrons tired of war plots." "Poor story, star not popular here." "An appeal to patriotism."
HER HOUR (Kitty Gordon—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good picture." "Average program."
HUNGRY HEART, THE (Pauline Frederick—Para.)	Big	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good." "Picture did not please—climax melodrama of the 10-20-30 type." "Good picture, appealed mostly to women." "Interesting problem play with weak finish." "Very good, average business." "Good picture" (E.). "Average business" (S.). "Pleased fairly well; picture took an awful slump at finish" (W.).
INDISCREET CORINNE (Olive Thomas—Triangle)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Olive Thomas is a comer." "Fine picture." "Pleased my patrons." "This star getting very popular." "Ordinary." "Fair picture." "A great picture."
JACK AND JILL (Pickford-Huff—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Pickford a young Douglas Fairbanks. Huff also clever. "Only fair." "Very good." "Name hurts this." "Pleased men only." "Play it—a sure-fire hit—I shall repeat it." "Very good picture." Good picture."
JOHN ERMINE OF YELLOWSTONE (Francis Ford—Butterfly)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good Indian picture." "O. K."
JUDGMENT HOUSE (Stuart Blackton Production—Para.)	Ave.	Poor	Ave.	Ave.	"Only a fair production." "Fair picture only." "Will do business if handled well—it pleased all." "Fairly interesting production of a big story."
KILL-JOY, THE (Mary McAlister—K.E.S.E.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Pleasing, no drawing power; McAlister clever, but the story is absolutely unreasonable, and director on location bad" (W.). "Fair picture" (N.).
LAND OF PROMISE (Billie Burke—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Has the merit of being different, only my patrons did not care for the story."
LIFE'S WHIRLPOOL (Ethel Barrymore—Metro.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Best Barrymore ever appeared in, but did not draw." "Very ordinary." "A good picture—star just fair here." "Photography good, settings good, star good." "Too much misery."
LITTLE PRINCESS, THE (Mary Pickford—Art.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Interests children only; will hurt star unless given a play to interest grown-ups; substituted another picture to finish the week" (E.). "A good picture, but did not draw as most Pickfords do" (W.). "Not up to standard of last two pictures—good entertainment, but lacked the drawing and pleasing qualities of Rebecca of Sunnybrook" (S.). "Did not draw like Rebecca of Sunnybrook, or other late Pickford" (N.). "Poorest Pickford business ever in our history." "Too much of a kid picture, does not draw grown people" (N.). "Star had to carry the whole load—less than average business." "Too much fairy tale story, not a comparison with Sunnybrook Farm or Little American."
LONE WOLF, THE (Brenon Production—Sel.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Excellent." "Return business to capacity." "Going big on second week" (W.). "Extra big entire week." "Swell picture" (N.). "A great picture, and a good drawing card, with plenty of exciting situations." "Could recommend this subject for any theatre."
LOVE DOCTOR, THE (Earl Williams, Vita.)	Big	Big	Ave.	Ave.	"A winner." "Story 'impossible'—star going back as drawing card." "Star draws, picture not up to standard." "Good stuff." "Not up to standard but went big."
LUST OF THE AGES (Lillian Walker—Ogden Pict. Co.)	Big	Big	Ave.	Big	"Fine production—good theme." "Fair box-office picture—draggy" (W.). "Fine—artistic, but didn't draw, or please any too well." "Very good feature, story great; big money-getter if handled right." "Pleased."
MAGDA (Clara Kimball Young—Sel.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave	Ave.	"Started good, but did not hold up." "Business poor in comparison to what she has done" (West). "Splendid" (Middle). "Very poor" (West). "Did not please audience" (W.). "American people want to laugh." "Good picture, but did not get the money" (E.). "Didn't draw—picture fair" (N.) "Very pleasing, but did not draw" (E.). "Picture poor, not a proper vehicle for the star" (N.). "Very good picture."
MAID OF BELGIUM (Alice Brady—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good." "This star always does average business." "Good picture and very pleasing." "Fine, good photography."
MAN TRAP, THE (Herbert Rawlinson—Blue.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Not especially well liked, about 50-50." "Interesting, entertaining, big business." "High class picture."
MANX MAN, THE (Geo. Loane Tucker Production—Gold.)	Ave.	Big	Ave.	Big	"Turned hundreds away first night" (N.). "Very good picture, not so much pulling power" (W.). "Wonderful picture—a little too long" (N.). "Fine picture."
MAN WITHOUT A COUNTRY (Jewel Production)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Great, if publicity is properly handled." "Fine patriotic production that any American audience will like." "Extra good attraction." "Great busines second day."
MARKED MAN, A (Harry Carey—Blue.)	Ave.	Big	Ave.	Ave	"Good business, fine, pleased."
MARK OF CAIN (Mrs. Castle-A. Moreno—Pathe)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture, excellent photography, beautiful settings, no pulling power" (W)
MATE OF THE SALLY ANN (Mary Miles Minter—Mut.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good offering" (N.). "Great entertainment." "Not popular kind of picture" (N.).
MEDICINE MAN, THE (Roy Stewart—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good Western." "Average production." "Good business, hardly up to standard of previous Stewart productions."
MISS U. S. A. (June Caprice—Fox)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture" (S.). "Best program picture in long time; second day S. R. O.; should have run at least three days" (N.). "Great matinee picture; held against coldest day this year" (E.).
MOLLY ENTANGLED (Vivian Martin—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very nice picture, star well liked" (E.). "Good picture" (W.).
MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY (Petrova—Met.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Petrova's best picture." "Same old stuff." "Nothing extra." "Best Petrova yet." "Splendid picture, did not draw especially." "Went only fair." "Good photography, good settings, good story. Petrova does not draw here" (W.).
MOTH, THE (Norma Talmadge—Sel.)	Ave.	Big	Ave.	Big	"Only fair—fine photography, but draggy." "Excellent picture." "Extra big business." "Star growing in popularity." "Excellent photoplay—star well liked here." "Don't come up to her previous releases." "People well pleased with star and picture. A coming big favorite."
NAN OF MUSIC MOUNTAIN (Wallace Reid—Para.)	Big	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"Good." "In a dress suit would make a bigger hit." "Very good." "Exciting Western with splendid scenic effects—very pleasing" (E.).
NEARLY MARRIED (Madge Kennedy—Gold.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Splendid picture, star good, but does not draw." "Splendid high class comedy" (N.). "Not a big drawing card" (S.). "Fine picture, fair business, star not known." "Good picture, but very light" (E.). "Best Goldwyn yet." "Will repeat; many favorable comments on work of Barthelmess" (N.). "Fair." "Star fascinating."

TITLE, STAR, AND BRAND	E.	N.	S.	W.	EXHIBITORS' OWN REPORTS OF BOX-OFFICE VALUE
NORTH OF FIFTY THREE (Dustin Farnum—Fox) ...	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Cave man stuff." "This star draws well." "This type of play very popular here" (North). "Great picture." "Well liked." "Good picture, star well liked, and book very popular."
OUTSIDER, THE (Emmy Wehlen—Met.).....	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Beautiful picture." "Poor title—fair picture." "Star always dr ws." "Good picture."
ONE SHOT ROSS (Roy Stewart—Tri.).....	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good; lots of my patrons like him better than Hart." "Routine Western." "Picture fair; photography extra." "Good picture, but star not well enough known to have much pulling power." "Fine Western, good business" (S.). "Drew good crowds." "Fair Western."
OUTWITTED (Emily Stevens—Metro.).....	Big	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"Story unusual—pleased" (E.). "Wonderful picture" (N.). "Exceptionally good feature" (W.). Fine picture, didn't draw" (S.).
OVER THERE (Charles Richman, Alice Q. Nielson—Sel.).	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good war picture—drew good business at advanced prices."
PAINTED MADONNA, THE (Sonia Markova—Fox) .	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave	"Good picture, star not known" (N.). "New star—did not draw" (W.).
PARADISE GARDEN (Harold Lockwood—Met.).....	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Good picture, but long." "Star popular, photography fair, fair business." "Star very popular." "Subject excellent, photography delightful, star always draws." "Good story, but peculiar; beautiful scenery." "Very nice picture, Lockwood pretty good individual card." "Some picture—Lockwood gets me as much as Marguerite Clark." "Very good picture, little slow." "Patrons liked this best of all Lockwoods." (For previous comments, see issue of Dec. 22, 1917.)
PAY ME (Jewel Production).....	Big	Big	Ave.	Big	"Fine Western." "Great production that lives up to its advertising."
PEGGY LEADS THE WAY (Mary Miles Minter— (Mut.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very popular star—appealing" (N.). "Fair picture." "Cute star, cute picture—pleased" (W.).
PLEASE HELP EMILY (Ann Murdock—Mut.).....	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Light entertainment." "Not as good as other Empires." "Pleasing comedy drama."
POPPY (Norma Talmadge—Sel.).....	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Above the average production."
PRICE MARK, THE (Dorothy Dalton—Para.).....	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture" (W.). "Better than average program, did not draw." "Hope to see Miss Dalton get better parts—too much 'horrible' stuff in this to draw" (W.). (For further comment, see issue of Jan. 12.)
PRIDE OF NEW YORK, THE (Geo. Walsh—Fox).....	Big	Big	Big	Big	"This is a dandy." "Great favorite here." "Ran close second to Fairbanks' Reaching for Moon." "Fast gaining in popularity in all our houses."
PRINCESS VIRTUE (Mae Murray—Blue.).....	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very artistic picture." "Liked by some, not by others."
QUEEN X (Edna Goodrich—Mut.).....	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very fair subject, star popular here." "Good picture." "Nothing to waste 5000 feet on" (E.). "Fair picture, star didn't show to advantage."
REACHING FOR THE MOON (Douglas Fairbanks— —(Art.).....	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Good." "Not up to Fairbanks' standard." "Not his best." "Not as good as usual." "Pulled him off fourth day." "Fair—star great card." "Same old smile gets 'em, and they like it." "Just a moving picture, but Fairbanks popular as ever." (For further comment, see issue of Jan. 12.)
REDEMPTION (Evelyn Nesbit Thaw—State R.).....	Big	Extra	Big	Big	"An exceptionally good picture, well acted, good attendance at raised prices." (For other comment, see issue of Dec. 29.)
RISE OF JENNIE CUSHING (Elsie Ferguson—Para.) ..	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very pleasing subject." "Pleased—fair crowds." "Pleasing to look at but did not get over for me." "Too much art—a little more 'hokum,' please." "Very good." (For further comment, see issue of Jan. 12.—)
ROSE OF BLOOD (Theda Bara—Fox St.).....	Big	Big	Big	Big	"'Ideal' picture." "Bara always gets the money here."
SCANDAL (Constance Talmadge—Sel.).....	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Splendid subject, beautiful settings, the kind of story the great majority of the fans want" (S.). "Splendid picture and star" (E.). "Fair picture—star is a real light and a comer" (N.). "Clever picture" (N.).
SEA MASTER, THE (William Russell—Mut.).....	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"He is capable of better work." "Star a general favorite." "Not a children's picture." "Good fight picture." "Good—pleased generally" (W.).
SECRET GAME, THE (Sessue Hayakawa—Para.).....	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Great—one of the Jap's best yet" (W.).
SECRET OF THE STORM COUNTRY (Norma Talmadge—Sel.).....	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Good picture; star always draws; best she has done." "Fairly good picture—star deserves better vehicle than this. In my opinion star in 6 months will be biggest box-office attraction in the business" (S.)
SEVEN SWANS, THE (Marguerite Clark—Para.).....	Big	Big	Big	Big	"An excellent Christmas fairy tale." "Good matinees, poor evenings."
SILENT MAN, THE (Wm. S. Hart—Art.).....	Big	Big	Ave.	Big	"History repeats—they are killing off the Westerns" (W.). "Not up to Hart standard" (N.). "Hart pictures seem to all look alike, guns, cowboys, cards, saloons, gambling." "Give Hart a change, like 'Between Men'—dress him up, if only for a reel or two; my patrons say, 'The same old Hart with the same old gun.'"
SIRENS OF THE SEA (Jewel Production).....	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Patrons liked this" (N.).
SLEEPING MEMORY, A (Emily Stevens—Met.).....	Ave.	Ave.	Poor	Ave.	"Very good picture, though too deep and too long" (W.). "Had some walkouts on this; only a fair play" (N.). (For other comment, see issue of Dec. 29.)
SNAP JUDGMENT (William Russell—Mut.).....	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"One of Russell's best."
SOCIETY'S DRIFTWOOD (Grace Cunard—Butterfly).	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good" (South).
SON OF HIS FATHER, THE (Charles Ray—Para.) ..	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Very good." "Average program picture." "Only average." "Good picture and the kind that pleases." "Kind that pleases all." "Ray more popular each picture" (W.). (For other comment, see issue of Dec. 29.).
SQUARE DECEIVER, THE (Harold Lockwood—Met.).	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Lockwood always draws." "Much better than average." "Good picture."
STAINLESS BARRIER, THE (Triangle Players—Tri.)..	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture without a star." "Ordinary." "N. G." "Good title, poor story." "Not a picture to rave over."
SUNSHINE ALLEY (Mae Marsh—Gold.).....	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Fair picture, business bad." "Star never favorite here, production below Goldwyn standard." "Poor story, photography and star weak." "Patrons seemed pleased with this." "Good picture." "Story light, but entertaining, star is great, well liked." "Nothing to picture." "Just a moving picture, that's all." "Star too good for such a poor story." "Some picture." "Good picture." "Pleased, that's all."
THIS IS THE LIFE (George Walsh—Fox).....	Ave.	Big	Big	Ave.	"Good comedy drama, star great." "Far superior to Fairbanks." "Star great." "Good picture, practically as good as Fairbanks." (For other ocmments, see issue of Dec. 29.)
THOU SHALT NOT STEAL (Virginia Pearson—Fox)...	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Too much of a detective drama." "Average feature—director-actor steals show from star." "Fair picture." "Poor picture." "Pleased nine tenths of patrons." "Pleased my audience, a good many said it was Miss Pearson's best." "Excellent picture, but V. P. does not draw here."
TOM SAWYER (Jack Pickford—Para.).....	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Bully picture, had us guessing to handle the crowds." "Excellent—pleased greatly."
TROUBLE BUSTER, THE (Vivian Martin—Para.).....	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Well liked by patrons." "This picture nothing more than 2-reeler; poorest of hers yet, I think." "Good, clean picture, very entertaining." "Only fair." "Extra good."
UNFORESEEN, THE (Olive Tell—Mut.).....	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Star unknown and a fair release." "Story no good."
UP OR DOWN (Geo. Hernandez—Tri.).....					"Very poor picture" (N.). "Fair, that's all" (N.). "Fair production" (W.) "Rotten" (W.).
VOICE OF CONSCIENCE, THE (Bushman-Bayne— —Met.).....	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"An excellent picture." "This picture is good, I think star is getting better." "Fair picture." "One of the best pictures we have run this season—too much Bushman" (W.).
WAR AND THE WOMAN (Florence Labadie—Pathe)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good photography. Some striking effects." "As a whole too dry for a war picture." "Fair—too imaginary."
WHEN A MAN SEES RED (William Farnum—Fox St.)	Ave.	Big	Ave.	Big	"A very fine picture." "Good picture." "A good picture but it will take a little time to bring back this star." "One great show—star ditto."
WHIP, THE (All star cast—Paragon).....	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Return engagement almost equalled first showing" (E.). "Sort of picture you can count on almost anyone liking" (S.). "Very big on return" (W.). (For other comment, see issue of Dec. 29.).
"WHO GOES THERE? (Harry Morey-Corinne Griffith— Vita.).....	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Not up to standard" (S.). "Star popular, picture fine" (N.). "Stars appear lost—no acting—no punch; always expecting one and don't come" (W.).
WITHIN THE LAW (Joyce-Morey—Vita.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Very big, each day better." "Too long—great show, very interesting." "Picture good, but business slacking." "Alice Joyce is particularly well cast as Mary Turner. The subtitles make a fat part of Aggie Lynch." "A good picture with apparently no drawing power" (local). "Best picture I have seen in a long time." "A box-office record-smasher, everybody highly pleased."

Exhibitor Service Bureau

Getting In Harmony With Pictures

You Have To Carry It Out In All Elements of Presentation, and Especially In Advertising

IT is pretty hard on the exhibitor when he gets in succession several features that some person has spoiled in the course of their creation. And sometimes this happens. You recognize that there was an excellent opportunity to start with and that everything looked right to make this or that particular picture a regular knockout, but someone slipped in the course of the production.

Now after you have seen this picture once and merely have the feeling of being disgusted sit down and look it over again and figure out what was wrong with it. Nine times out of ten you will find that some one was out of harmony with the spirit of the picture during its making. It may have been the man who put the story into scenario form, the director or the interpretation of the star. On mighty few occasions will you find that the producer deliberately put on a poor picture because of cheapness or for any other reason.

This thing is worth thinking hard about. The part that concerns the creation of the pictures you cannot help except by refusing to book pictures from a company that continues to offend, but there is a whole lot for you to do in the way of getting in harmony with the picture after it has been created. It makes for longer runs, it makes for the public appreciation and it makes for greater profits for you and increases the popularity of the screen generally.

There are lots of ways that you can show that you are in harmony with the picture—by your special decorations for the day, by your lobby display, by your stage settings, by the music that you play with the picture and by the other pictures that you use on the same program.

But right here, in this series of articles we are more concerned with advertising than any other point. So let us look for the harmony here. But understand first that there can be no harmony without understanding.

To illustrate the possibility of harmony with pictures and reflected in advertising we have taken a number of newspaper advertisements on two of the big current productions, Mary Garden in "Thais" and Geraldine Farrar in "The Devil Stone." These pictures represent the work of two of the biggest producing organizations, Goldwyn and Artcraft. Both of the stars are from grand opera, both names household words through the land with Mary Garden possibly slightly better known to the country generally and Geraldine Farrar better known to the screen because she has appeared in other pictures.

See how they line side by side. Now what, off hand is the first difference in the pictures that presents itself to your mind? Aside from the question of merit, what is the wide line that separates these two pictures into two different harmonies so far as advertising is concerned?

Mary Garden is appearing in the first screen version of a noted opera in which she scored a wonderful success. What is its story?

Geraldine Farrar is appearing in an original story. What the theme?

Does that seem a little thing to you? If it doesn't you could give neither of these pictures justice in your advertising. Here is a case where the star is already wonderfully advertised. You don't have to tell any one who she is. But don't think that is a case of simply slapping in the type and letting it go at that.

Take the advertisement of the Boston theatre which is reproduced on the opposite page. Of course Boston is supposed to be the city of culture and all that sort of a thing, so the bare announcement of Miss Garden in "Thais" might be considered enough to draw the thousands of opera lovers in that city. But reading the remainder of the advertisement shows that the writer certainly was not in harmony with the production for he turns from heavy Gothic type to unconvincing superlatives with such lines as "stupendous photoplay production" and "the biggest picture sensation of the year." Granted that these things may be true, no one will be convinced with these statements. The reader will be convinced that the man who wrote this advertisement really didn't know anything about the picture itself—that he resorted to mere verbiage and simply hurled adjectives. There isn't the slightest element of appeal in that advertisement—there isn't the harmony to it that carries the convincing.

Let us carry the examination further. Take the display of the New theatre Baltimore. Now remember that this is the first picture appearance of Miss Garden. The announcement that she was to appear on the screen has been discussed for months. Certainly if no other opportunity is offered the exhibitor, he is given the chance to see whether one of the world's greatest opera stars will make a hit in a noted opera. But the writer of the New theatre advertisement has merely regarded this film as "a picture." He has carefully and evenly divided his space with the Earle Williams picture that is to be seen at the latter end of the week—which we have impressed upon you as always a bad practice—that of putting two pictures before the public attention at once. But aside from that there isn't the slightest excuse in the world, even if the Earle Williams picture is one of the greatest ever made, of dividing attention here. If the Mary Garden picture is worth your booking at all it is worth making a special appeal for it. Here, too, is another writer who evidently knew nothing about the picture itself—and we told you at the start of this article that where knowledge is absent harmony cannot exist.

Except for the fact that he has used one of the advertising cuts provided by Artcraft the Salt Lake theatre whose single column display doesn't deserve much more credit, though it must be fairly stated that this part was taken away from the rest of the advertisement.

Both the Standard theatre, Cleveland, showing the Garden picture and Loew's Stillman, in the same city, showing the Farrar production hold to the generally excellent plan of using as little reading matter as possible and making the picture effect dominate. This is used most strikingly in these two displays and the harmony of the productions are followed in the illustrations used. The Standard carries the idea of the opera star by showing her stepping from the parted curtains and the Stillman cut carries out the spirit of mystery which runs all through the Farrar story. As we have said these are both in perfect harmony with the spirit of the stories, yet we would have said a little more about the pictures in the two displays. We would have referred in the Garden picture to the character of the story and in the other case we would have thrown in a line further defining the elements of the picture, something like this—"The story of a gem that brought a curse upon all its owners." That is rather trite, but people like to have an inkling of the nature of the picture, and everyone does not always get the illustration appeal, though we'll admit that they ought to in this case.

Majestic theatre, Columbus, should have used the space giving the supporting cast to something about the picture. It would have made the appeal much stronger. A long string of names means little to the patron.

We have been slow in getting to the point of this story, but we have it in the display of the Strand theatre, Syracuse—a perfect example of the harmonizing of the advertising with the production itself. It bears all the earmarks of the work of a man who was thoroughly familiar with what he was going to write about before he "took his pen in hand." Without knowing anything about the mental processes through which this man went

(Continued on page 404)

Studies in Contrast—the Jarring Types Against Harmonies

Here are some good and bad advertising specimens on two of the big current productions. They tell a lesson in themselves, but on the opposite page you will read of the difference in patronage resulting from such specimens.

Seeing the Rialto with Rothapfel

AT the Rialto this week there is one of the most "versatile" of bills, ranging from grand opera to Mack Sennett comedy. It is an unusually diverting show—it is the sort of a show one wants after the strain of the holidays. Many New Yorkers probably stopped and wondered whether there would be a let down at the Rialto, under the strain of the new Rivoli. And those who have been hearing the cry that "there are not enough good pictures" wondered, too, whether there would be sufficient material for the two houses. The answer is a large YES. And when one considers that there must be two full two-hour shows without duplication of even a piece of the animated weekly one realizes the pace that Mr. Rothapfel is setting and the proof that he is giving that the picture, with the aid of music and the lighting, is still the thing.

Hearing remarks about the excellence of this week's bill at the Rialto as we left the theatre there was mingled with these the statement of one man in reply, "Oh, you never see a poor show at the Rialto." There's a whole lot to this. It is a word of mouth guarantee for your house. It is the sort of a thing that every exhibitor should strive for. Suppose those who left your house said: "You never see a bad show at the ————," how much do you suppose your box office receipts would increase?

And, as a matter of fact, looking back over the more than three months that we have been writing these articles, we can say truthfully that we have never seen a mediocre show at the Rialto. There have been some features that we did not rave over, we have pointed out some little faults from time to time, but it stands strong and bold before us that every time we have left this house we have gone away with the feeling of intense satisfaction. And the thousands with us have come away boosters for the Rialto.

Suppe's "Pique's Dance" got one of the biggest receptions that an overture ever received in any theatre. Dr. Hugo Reisenfeld, musical director of both theatres, conducted the overture at the opening performances, and Erno Rapee thereafter. There is a crashing effect to the ending of this number that literally brought the blood to the hearer's faces. This was followed by another one of the Robert Bruce Educational scenics, "Just for Joy," a series of scenes of out of door life, including some clever pictures of aqua-planing which delighted the audience. This was shown to the music of "Shades of Night," intermezzo, turning into "This is the Life."

Then followed a minuet, "Pavanne," cleverly executed by Misses Reille Doree and Yvonne Robert, which was made all the more beautiful by the clever lighting effects. Panels on the side showing river scenes added to the effect.

Rialto Animated Magazine opened with official war pictures of our aviators being trained by the French "aces" and brought a tumult of applause as it was shown with the "Invincible Eagle" march, the same tune carrying through the cartoon which follow, "A New Bird in the Vulture's Nest" showing America taking the place of Germany. Rushing work on war locomotives was shown to "Hero of the Isthmus" march and then came another one of the blending cartoon effects with the railroads enlisting in the war. Ice boating in New Jersey was shown to the accompaniment of a gavotte, which, dimmed down, was continued through pictures of a "nut" in San Francisco throwing pennies to newsboys. Directly from this picture with a laugh there came in the pictures of fires set by spies, the ones in Norfolk and Hoboken, these being taken from the Universal and Pathe weeklies. They were shown with "Fire agitato" and the full fire effects including the ringing of bells, galloping horses, the water and crashing effects, etc., while just above the screen slow flashes of red, gradually fading away gave a perfect illusion. Now note this point. Here were pictures of enemies' work in this country. They got every one good and stirred up against the Germans. Then came pictures of breaking the ice in Boston harbor, which recalled the sufferings in New York for the past week largely due to war conditions and the cold—and brought the situation home to every individual. Mark you, the avenue for relief. Then came the picture of a scene one year ago to-day when Pershing, little known, came marching with his men out of Mexivo. "When the Boys Come Marching Home" stirred the enthusiasm to a riot. Every one in the audience knew what was coming and when Pershing was shown in command in France and the huge orchestra played "Over There," the walls needed to be strong.

An immense success was scored with Mlle. Madelein D'Espinoy singing "Miserere" from "Il Trovatore," which a male chorus of sixteen voices which could not be seen accompanied her. The stage setting gave the cathedral effect, and the lights of the house were in a deep purple, leaving the figure of the singer in her black robe barely visible on the stage. It was an unusually long musical number, but the audience sat silent through it and burst into an avalanche of applause such as rarely greets a number in any motion picture house.

Mr. Rothapfel did something that every exhibitor can do during the showing of Charles Ray in "His Mother's Boy," an intensely human picture. There is one point where the phonograph in the workers' boarding house plays "Suwanee River," and here orchestra dropped out and the full effect was carried through with the organ. Every one can go this—every one who studies his picture before hand. (Rothapfel changed his feature at the last minute, too.) And this is the sort of a thing that convinces the public that you know your business and are getting the most out of your show. No, you can have every one saying, "We never see a bad show at the ————," if you will keep your eyes open for the many little things like this.

Selections from "Sari" were then played by the orchestra and the performance was rounded out with a Mack Sennett comedy, "Taming Target Center," a burlesque on the Western pictures which delighted the audience.

This Week at the Strand

MANAGER HAROLD EDEL is trying at the Strand theatre this week the experiment of tabloid opera as a considerable portion of the entertainment, taking the place of the usual solo numbers. One at once associates grand opera with all that its name applies, massive scenery, big chorus and wonderful effects. The tabloid version of "Carmen," the first of the series to be produced, was rendered by four singers on a stage constructed in the space usually occupied by the screen. One set, showing a street scene in Spain, was used through the three acts. The version of the audience was that the tabloid opera was a success for there was great applause, and as the writer left the theatre at 9:30 it was necessary to use the side exits, so large was the crowd that packed the immense lobby and reached far into the street.

Retaining the same effects which were described last week, "The Star Spangled Banner" continues to be played just before the overture, which during the present week is "Tales of the Vienna Woods."

Strand Topical opens with pictures of Mayor Hylan arriving at City Hall and includes the Hoboken fire, below zero bathers at Coney Island, New York harbor frozen over with coal barges wedged in and then a very clever Ditmars-Educational, "Nature's Songstress." Pictures of the bullfrogs "singing" got a good laugh. Great applause greeted pictures of allied motor trucks rushing supplies to Italy and then followed some official war pictures of French soldiers teaching Americans bombing. The Topical closed with pictures of a soldiers' rodeo at Fort Riley. Except otherwise noted these were Hearst-Pathe pictures.

Pauline Frederick in "Mrs. Dane's Defense" is the feature and the scenic is "Here and There in Keswick."

There was continuous laughter with James Montgomery Flagg's "Girls You All Know," the subject this week being "The Bride," which was exceptionally well done and helped along with clever titles.

Diary of a Successful Exhibitor

This is the first of a series of articles by a successful exhibitor who will tell week after week what he has done to develop his house, the lessons that he has learned and the errors that he has discovered. It will be a frank discussion of the pleasures and evils of exhibition in a town of 15,000, and the tips contained here will probably be of value to managers in all sections.

STARTING in the motion picture exhibition business without any actual experience, but after making a more or less careful survey of the field, I decided to record the errors that I made week after week and the successes that I gained. I believe that any exhibitor who will go into his business along similar lines will profit by these records that he keeps. There is something convincing about recording your activities. You are made to think that at the time you are writing them down, and you think over these things again when you read over the record at a future date.

The city in which I started this theatre has something over 15,000 people. It is an average community with the greater portion of the prosperity depending upon the factories of the city and the employes of the railroads—it being a junction point. The territory around is an average farming community with many of the farmers owning automobiles and good roads prevailing over half of the section. In the remainder of the territory the roads are passable in good weather, but heavy rains or snows are likely to make them very bad. There had been motion picture houses in this town for nearly ten years when I decided to enter the field. Their existence was more or less uncertain and the ones that remained changed hands very often.

I returned to my native town after six years spent in one of the larger cities because I felt that my aged parents needed my care and companionship and they were unwilling to leave the old homeplace to make a new home in the city. I had several thousand dollars that I had saved and I determined to invest it in my own town, but in some way that it would be a permanent investment. The amount would not have been a large one to put in any established business. In fact there was such a solid prosperity in this town and the people who were in business had been there so long that it would have been impossible to buy an established concern. The only thing apparently left for me to do was to start something of my own, and this I did.

I surveyed the entire business field so far as I could, and at first I did not think of entering the motion picture game, but I simply dropped into each of the three theatres as a matter of recreation. I had been a "movie fan" in the larger city from which I had just come, and I was struck with the crudeness of these exhibitions in my home town. The first impression that I got was that there was not one of these that was making any money; and certainly there was not one that deserved to make any.

The first suggestion that came to me to enter the game was when my father, in talking over conditions, spoke of the small rental that he was getting from a building which he owned on one of the fair corners of the main street. The ground floor was occupied by a small grocery store which paid its rent with irregularity and the second and only other floor was used as a lodge room. It was rented a couple of nights a month for a nominal fee to each of two lodges and in addition picked up a small sum from such dances and entertainments which were given to the public. The building itself was sound, but unattractive for any purpose. It was large and gawky, with a peaked roof and a cupola effect above—the reason for which architecture I never was able to guess. No first class butcher would have ever taken the place on a bet. It looked like a cross between something that tried to grow up as a half brother to a church and a cousin of "the mart of busy trade."

But my father's discussion of the "investment," for it wasn't even paying for the taxes and depreciation, persuaded me that we wouldn't lose anything by charging the rent off and trying an experiment. The more I thought of it was I convinced that there was a possible chance to do something real in my town. There were successful men in all other lines, compared with the limits of the town, but there was not a really successful motion picture house. Finally I determined that this was my opening, and, even with my inexperience, I set out to try to fill this need. I figured the physical side of the remodelling as well as I could. I had $4,000 in ready cash myself, and as I kept talking over the matter my father volunteered to put in $2,000 himself. I determined that I would not call upon him for this unless it was really needed.

I carefully took the dimensions of the house and had a local contractor see just what part of the old building could be utilized. Then I went to a nearby city, put the measurements before him and asked him to draw the plans for remodelling the house so that it would not cost me more than $2,000, exclusive of all equipment. What he did was to tear away rather than add to. The cupola and peaked roof disappeared, the house was moved back from the street twenty feet and a colonial lobby effect was arranged with a false balcony above. A much lower and a flat roof was provided for. The most of the other arrangements consisted of arranging the floor for proper seating and the construction of a stage on which small acts could be displayed and a box effect on either side. In these I arranged to use floral effects, with palms and the like to add attractiveness. I also had space left for a six-piece orchestra, including a piano. While I wasn't a carpenter, I watched myself everything that was done in the way of rearranging the house. The result was that I got at least what I thought I wanted.

Just as I started work on the building I wrote to the Accessory Department of the Motion Picture News and there secured a mass of information about equipment, tips which probably saved me several hundreds of dollars. I regret that in every case I was not able to buy the best, but where I could not I carefully made mental notes that these points would be given my attention when I was able to spend any additional money.

Then I took up the question of film service. Every house in town was changing its bill daily. There was constant trouble about the failure to receive pictures which were announced, and there was constant criticism from the public, which could not understand that this substitution was not basically the fault of the manager. I use the word basically because it was partly my fault. I selected the film services that I thought that I wanted and then went to the nearest exchange city to do my booking. But before I did this I determined that with a local population of 15,000 and probably a possible 5,000 more to draw from it would be foolish for me to expect to get all possible patrons into my theatre in one day's showing. Therefore I went to the city prepared to change my bill three times weekly (Sunday shows not being allowed).

FOR YOUR ADVICE

We Are Very Glad to Give You Private Criticisms of Displays

WE are receiving letters every day from all sections of the country offering advertising for criticism. We are very glad to reproduce specimens from various theatres and comment on them, but we cannot undertake to reproduce a whole group of displays from the same house, especially when many of these refer to pictures that are no longer in circulation.

Remember that we want to make everything we print in this department helpful to all the exhibitors. Send us along your matter and we will select those that we think offer the best topics of discussion, and use those.

If you want criticism on a considerable number of advertisement, we will be glad to give you this by mail without any charge to you.

Pictures of lobby displays, accounts of unusual stunts, and anything of the unusual is always welcome.

Your Idea---and Ours

GENERAL FILM COMPANY has responded to the request of the Government for posters which will aid in the recruiting campaign. It has just issued a clever color poster for "Bud's Recruit," the first of the Judge Brown stories which are now being released. It will be noted that a full copy of a naval recruiting poster which shows a bugler blowing the call to arms has been included and reproduced in colors on the one sheet.

Many other posters and cards issued by the Government were introduced during the filming of "Bud's Recruit," which is a dramatic patriotic story telling how a young boy answered the call to arms by winning a slacker as a recruit for the army. Appeals issued to the public by the navy and army recruiting departments and the food administration were used liberally in the various sets and locations used by the producers and add greatly to the charm and interest of the story.

The public likes to be knocked out with a real punch, but use the sort that doesn't come back and put you down for the count.

RECENTLY we printed some advertising of the Academy of Music, Selma, Ala., as an example of some of the display work in the smaller dailies. With most of it we found considerable fault. However, here is a manager that is evidently studying his problems and he sends us another series of displays that show great improvement.

In this particular advertisement of "Polly of the Circus" the manager shows that he knew what the picture was about and that he tried to tell the public without any exaggeration. The use of the cut improved the display and the whole advertisement is better printed than the others that we reproduced. It's always a good idea in cases where the printing is bad to talk to your editor about it and see if you can not get better results. In cases where the newspapers have stereotyping outfits, it is possible to "underlay" the advertisements and get stronger effects.

Anybody can make hay while the sun shines. It's the wise man that knows how to save it in threatening weather.

LOEW'S Stillman theatre, Cleveland, is another one of the live advertisers. This week a novel effect has been accomplished in the exploitation of "The Manxman."

First a scene picture has been used. Of itself it does not mean much except that it gives a little touch of Manx life, but standing out in front of this is an alipse that tells you in a few words what the production is about.

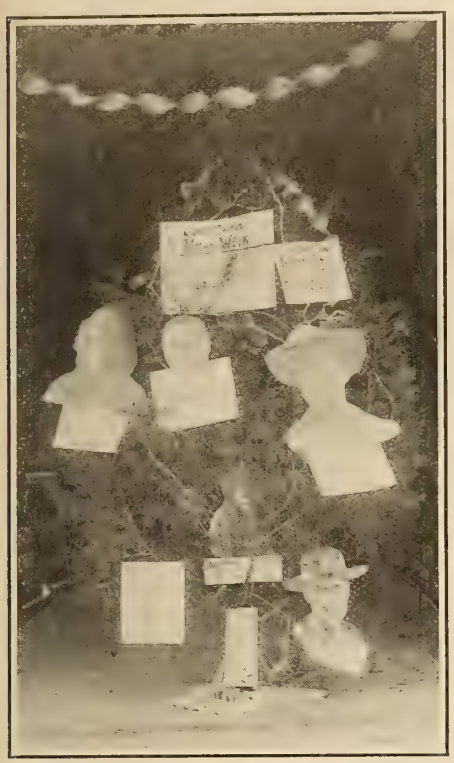
Then in short sentences there are several punches sent home. This is one of the so-called "big" pictures. Most exhibitors in advertising such a production dig up all the adjectives that the good old dictionary holds, adds a few of the "marvelous" and "stupendous" and lets it go at that. Simply as a patron whose cash is sought, which sort of an advertisement appeals to you?

For those who have not forgotten their "make believe" and to revive it for those who have. "Seven Swans" classes with "Snow White" and "The Goose Girl"

"Damaged—No Goods,"
A comedy in two parts.



LAST week we printed an advertisement on Mae Marsh in "Sunshine Alley," as arranged by the Circle theatre, Indianapolis, as the best example of Christmas advertising that we had seen. That was before we had received the copies of the papers from the Northwest Pacific. There we find one that belongs in the best class. It is the product of the Coliseum theatre, Portland, Ore.

Note the perfect holiday effect that is given with the use of the cut of Marguerite Clark. This display is in the usual four full column space used by the Coliseum and as Hundred Per Cent Fullerton does in writing all of his displays there is no waste of words.

Interest is an important part of every business. See that your interest is there—not meaning as part of the proceeds but as a part of the original capital.

HERE is a clever Christmas stunt which was used by Harry M. Bird, manager of the Dreamland Amusement Company, Maryville, Tenn. He decorated the lobby of his house with crepe streamers, holly and fir and then placed a large Christmas tree right in the centre and on this he hung cut outs of the various stars who were to be seen at the theatre during the week. W. S. Hart and "Fatty"

What Live Wires Are Doing

Arbuckle will be quickly recognized from the accompanying photograph. Mr. Bird reports that this Christmas tree was the talk of the town and the display stopped everyone who passed the house, the result being that he had a capacity week during a time which is supposed to be bad for business.

What a lot of "advertising" has been wasted on people who were once fooled by it. Answer: Don't fool them in the first place.

HERE is a clever little idea that is worth filing away for the next New Year. Manager S. Barret McCormick, of the Circle theatre, Indianapolis, who is always using novelties, is responsible for this, which is nothing more than a special midnight matinee on New Year's eve. But it is something more than that when one considers the program, for there were not only the regular features for the week shown but there was a special program of music and special settings.

Here is a mighty good chance to get the community interest. There is no reason why you couldn't center practically the public New Year celebration of your town in your theatre. Take the question up with several of the societies, arrange for community singing and give your house a holiday setting for the occasion. Even if you find it necessary to give the proceeds to charity in order to arouse this community interest, you will find that you have done a mighty good thing, for it is a sure way of getting to your house people who have rarely been there before.

You don't merely want to make people look at the front of your theatre; you want them to look themselves in.

BLUEBIRD makes a specialty of incorporating some specific idea in the poster they furnish exhibitors, departing from the fixed method of confining the design to a still selected as the basis of the drawing. These art designs do not always apply directly to any scene or incident in the story told by the films, but are created to attract attention by the striking nature of the work.

There is shown herewith a reproduction of the original design for a most effective poster that has been created for "My Unmarried Wife," a regular program release in which the Bluebird star, Carmel Myers, is shown in an exceedingly "nifty" pose. The lettering is intended to carry out the intuition of daring that the drawing indicates.

SIDNEY S. HAAS, publicity manager for the Colonial theatre, Columbus, Ohio, has grasped the rule of advertising that we have been preaching here. "Newspaper space is valuable only when copy is carefully prepared, and we have found that a bare statement of fact is accepted more readily by our patrons than the endless chain of superlatives that our competitors use."

This display bears out his statement. Here he has used a portion of a display suggested by Paramount so as to bring the main facts out with striking effect. The references to Mutt and Jeff and to the Topical Review are given the prominence that they deserve in relation to the feature. The Charles Ray picture is made to stand out; the rest is incidental. The Colonial sends us a number of other excellent displays which we haven't room to reproduce here.

Samson wouldn't have been a success in the motion picture business, but Solomon would have had a whole string of money making houses.

DR. H. S. CLEMMER, manager of the Clemmer theatre, Spokane, Wash., has been successful in organizing a chorus of fifty young women who will appear at the theatre from time to time as part of special programs. The chorus will be under the direction of Charles W. Hawley, Jr., organist at the Clemmer.

A peculiar thing about the organization of the chorus is that it was perfected largely through announcements made on the screen.

Here is an attractive lobby display made by the Strand theatre, Montreal, on the Mutual seven-reel special, "The Planter." The tropical setting obtains throughout the setting. Cut-outs and one of the three sheets are used.

Universal Continues its Plans to Aid Thrift Stamp Sales With New Serial

Universal is to use another test, this one entitled "What Eddie Polo Should Have Said" in connection with "The Bull's Eye," the serial in which Polo and Vivian Reed will be starred. Plans for the contest have been passed by the Postoffice department. The awards will total $1,000 and will be paid principally in Liberty Bonds, War Savings and Thrift Stamps. "The Bull's Eye" contest will allow competition by boys and girls of sixteen or under.

There will be a title in each of the first seven episodes, but partially complete, starting with a few words, and finishing off with dashes to indicate an uncompleted sentence. Contestants will be expected to tell, in 25 words, what Eddie Polo should have said in the specific instances, using the words printed in the unfinished title as an integral part of the caption submitted in the contest. Thus "The Bull's Eye" competitions will be unique in that the excitement begins at the very outset of the serial.

The matter of awards will be entirely vested in the judgment of a committee of referees, comprising the editors of trade papers that serve the moving picture industry. The contest begins February 1 and ends June 1, forthcoming and the journalists who have consented to serve as sole judges of the awards include: James L. Hoff, Moving Picture World; William A. Johnston, Motion Picture News; Martin J. Quigley, Exhibitors' Herald; P. L. Woodruff, Motography; Lesley Mason, Exhibitors' Trade Review; Lynde Denig, Dramatic Mirror; Sime Silverman, Variety; William H. Donaldson, The Billboard; Paul Sweinhart, The Clipper.

Exhibitors will be supplied by the Universal, with circulars, explaining the contest in full detail, to be distributed to patrons or to be given upon request to children who express a desire to enter "The Bull's Eye" competitions. There will be no restrictions or entrance fee, apart from the age limit for boys and girls of sixteen years or less. The descriptive circulars will carry the contest title in its incomplete form; but children are not required to use these accompanying blanks.

Public School Aids in Xmas Patronage

Manager Michael Warshower, of the Penn theatre, Brooklyn, used a number of special plans which developed increased business during the Christmas holidays, according to reports received by Triangle Distributing Corporation, whose pictures were used.

Early in December Mr. Warshower got in touch with the Brooklyn Teachers' Association and Mothers' League and selected Public School No. 149, located in the center of his community with which to conduct a motion picture carnival along unusual lines. Numbered tickets, good any time except after six o'clock on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, were sold to the children and alloted to them for sale to their parents and friends, the various teachers acting as agents. Several teachers made speeches from the stage during evening shows, urging people to attend the Penn theatre.

Half of the value of each ticket presented, was given to a fund out of which food and clothing were purchased for the needy people of the neighborhood. When started, the fund had but thirty-three cents and during the month the $500 mark was passed. This money provided necessities for many children who would otherwise have been deprived of all Christmas comforts.

During Christmas week a solid Triangle program was run, the following features being selected because of their general appeal: "The Sawdust Ring," "Slumberland," "Sudden Jim," "Golden Rule Kate," and "The Food Gamblers."

Newspaper Pays Tribute to Woman Exhibitor Who Made Good

AN unusual honor is paid a motion picture exhibitor—and a woman—by the Marion, Ind., Chronicle, which devotes its leading editorial, set in much larger type than usual, to the success of Miss Dolly Spurr, whose activities have been familiar to readers of the Motion Picture News.

Miss Spurr has made a great success with the Royal Grand theatre, so great in fact that she has just taken over the Lyric and the Indiana. In fact she has become the "film trust" as Marion through the attention she pays to details and the excellent service she gives her patrons. This unusual tribute to an exhibitor—a successful exhibitor and a woman—is well worth reading and profiting by:

MISS SPURR'S ENTERPRISE

To Marion belongs the distinction of having produced the most enterprising and successful woman moving picture manager in the country. Miss Dolly Spurr began her career in connection with the movie business in this city about eight years ago. She has applied herself to it with an intelligence and a directness that has enabled her to master its details to the very last item. She goes about the work as one "to the manner born." The fact that she has grown up among us and has under our very eyes made her attainments in the moving picture field has to a great extent prevented us from perceiving the extent of her success. We all know that she puts up a show that is mighty fine, and that she has made a success of the enterprise. We have scarcely realized that her success has put her in the very front rank of the people who are engaged in the business.

Miss Spurr has given Marion a high-class moving picture theatre. She brings to this city from week to week a grade of moving pictures and a class of vaudeville that afford us opportunity for a high form of entertainment. Under her direction we have found entertainment, pleasure, instruction, travel and inspiration. In many ways she has broadened and deepend our lives and enlarged our vision and made the world brighter and more interesting. And she has done it as unostentatiously as she has done it effectively.

Miss Spurr has recently taken over the Lyric and Indiana theatres, which she will operate in addition to the Royal-Grand. With her insight into the business and her extensive experience she will be able to put the Lyric and the Indiana into the same high class of movie theatres that she has put the Royal-Grand. In the management of these theatres she will be able to bring to Marion the quality and quantity of diversion that will give to the people the entertainment and inspiration we need. She has in her power to do more for the happiness and enjoyment of the people of this community than any other person. It is up to us, the people of the city and county, to recognize both her wonderful ability as a theatre manager and to show our appreciation of it. Having done all that she has for the city along these lines, it will be eminently becoming to us, all of us, to turn in and help Miss Spurr make a big success of her theatre enterprise.

Quick Thinking Saves Electric Sign Cost

Here is a case of quick thinking saving the day for a theatre. Elbert and Getschell of Des Moines recently built a large house at the Fort Dodge cantonment and intended naming it the "Liberty." In fact a huge electric sign had been ordered at a cost of $700 and was practically completed when the owners received notification that the word "Liberty" was being used by the government-built theatres and that the name would have to be changed. The management hit upon the word "Trilby," so that it was necessary to buy only one new letter for the sign.

Rothapfel's Answers to Exhibitors

Mr. Rothapfel Will Answer Here any Questions Regarding Problems in Exhibition. The Only Conditions Are That the Questions Must Not Bear on the Merits of Particular Pictures or Services and That They Must Come Through the NEWS. Address Your Inquiries "ROTHAPFEL ADVICE, EXHIBITORS' SERVICE BUREAU, MOTION PICTURE NEWS."

XIII—Through a typographical error in my question—No. 12—I appeared to ask about NEW reels when what I meant was NEWS reels, such as Pathe, Universal and Mutual. I am repeating that question. At present I get these reels about four weeks after their issue, and by that time many of the events pictured have been forgotten. I now have a chance to get one of these brands regularly for a two day run four days after their release. How can I feature these—for I have to run a five reeler in addition—so that I can cover the amount of increased rental.—NORTH CAROLINA.

I WOULD suggest that in the case of news release you co-operate as much as possible with your newspaper. Of course it is hard to get first-run news releases in small towns or even a release close to the date, but they come so rapidly nowadays that news necessarily is not old even after three weeks. I would advertise my news items, taking clippings from some of the leading papers that have articles on what you are showing and paste them on a big board on the outside of your theatre, so as to call attention to them and remind the people of the fact that you are going to show pictures of what is happening. A little ingenuity will bring results. Of course the newer and hotter the news the better, but I would suggest that you try the above first and if you can't do with that get as close to release date as possible and make a feature of it.

XIV—I have been reading the answers to question by you with great interest, as well as "Seeing the Rialto With Rothapfel." It is all right for you with your great theatre, your immense orchestra and all the money that you want to spend to go the limit, but I want to know how a theatre in a town where the patronage is limited can afford to spend any more money. I believe that I am as game as the next one, but certainly it is a physical impossibility for me to spend more than I get in. The Samaritans are all dead these days. I have no opposition, but I must get more people into my theatre if I would have more money to spend. What's the answer?—L. L. L.

MY DEAR BOY: I have been waiting for just such a question as yours to come up and I can hardly blame you for feeling as you do, but I want you to remember that I started in a town much smaller than the one in which you started and under conditions much more adverse than those under which you work. My first show was behind a bar room and I hired 250 undertaker's chairs, a second-hand piano, and a Powers No. 4 Projector. I charged five cents admission and there were 6,000 miners in the town and I operated my machine myself. I went down to the station and got my film and I spent three hours examining it and fixing it up, even as I do to-day. I tried my best to make my show just as good as I could. I did not always have all the money I wanted to spend on my immense orchestra. You write as though you were licked and you are NOT game because the tone of your letter proves you are afraid and, gee, old man, don't say "impossibilities." I hardly ever use that term and it is not necessary for you to spend more than you get in. Take heed of the following words, carefully: IT IS NOT WHAT YOU SPEND, IT IS HOW YOU SPEND IT. Of course, if you think you can't improve your show any more than you have done, then kismet! It is because of your statement that "the Samaritans are all dead these days" that I believe you are one of those fellows that stand outside of your theatre with a plate in your hand waiting for someone to come along and drop something into it. Go out and find Old Man Opportunity and take the geezer by the neck and shake him to death; get a little pep into your system. "No opposition" against you—nothing in the world to oppose you, and yet you are kicking. What's a poor fellow going to do who has two or three theatres all around him each trying to gain a greater patronage and who, because of this opposition, has to pay a higher price for films. I say BUNK, and MORE BUNK. Pardon me for being so perfectly frank with you but you need it. I would like to take hold of you and shake you. Now that I have got it out of my system, take my advice: Take an inventory of yourself. Grit your teeth; get under a shower-bath and get freshened up and go after your show. Get down two or three hours earlier in the morning and go over your film; see if you can't improve it and get a paint brush and some paint and make your house and your show just a little better. Things have been going too easy for you. Don't ever, again, let me hear you say to me that it's "all right for you with your great theatre and immense orchestra and all the money you want to spend," etc. Man: Many a day I have gone to my room and locked the door and cried like a baby. I wouldn't let anyone see me do it, but many a day, even when failure was staring me in the face and I didn't know if I had enough money to pay my help and I had lost $17,000, and everything looked black, I did not give up. I wasn't born with a silver spoon in my mouth. The fact that I have a big theatre and an immense orchestra and all I want to spend is because I have earned every single dollar of it and the reason I can spend it is because I have made it and the reason why the crowds are in front of my theatre is because I have never fooled them and I have always given them their money's worth—every cent of it and just a little more, and the people are my friends, and I am their friend. Forgive me if I have been a little harsh with you.

XV—Some weeks ago I read an editorial in the MOTION PICTURE NEWS called "Mary's Lamb," which referred to the exhibitor who always followed the lead of others and never thought for himself. I'll admit that I have been one of these for a long time, but I've decided to turn over a new leaf with the New Year. But I am greatly handicapped in that I do not get the feature picture more than a couple of hours before the show is to begin. I cannot get it earlier unless I pay an additional day's rental, which is impossible. How am I going to arrange the music or plan any special stunts in connection with the showing of pictures under such conditions?—FACTORY TOWN.

EXCELLENT, good for you, boy. After the foregoing I like to see a fellow turn over a new leaf and say he is going to try and I congratulate you. You have a very hard proposition in front of you. If possible, it would pay you to find out where the pictures are playing before you get them and have reviews sent to you on them, or go and see them yourself and arrange the music and stunts. If you can't do this, try and teach your pianist or the leader of your little orchestra to be good improvisors. I'll tell you what I will do with you: You write me a long letter and explain in detail what your house consists of; tell me about your orchestra; the kind of pictures you show and what kind of opposition you have. I will then take the time to write you a long personal letter and give you the information which space here forbids. I like a fellow who will try. I will do anything in the world for anyone who shows a disposition to be benefitted or will try to be. I am no different from other men—I am just like yourself and it gives me much pleasure to help a brother exhibitor if I think he is taking it in the right spirit—I enjoy it much more than if someone would give me a check for a thousand dollars. Honest, old man, I mean it—I'm not throwing any "bull" either.

XVI—I have a peculiar problem and without entering into the merits of any film service, yet I must come close to the point. Without any controversy as to whose fault it is, I have lost from my program the stars whom I helped to make famous in this town and my competitor has them. I believe that there are other pictures just as good, but it still remains that stars I no longer have are the most popular players here because I worked so hard to make them popular. I don't care to go to such labor again to make another set of players popular and then possibly lose them to a competitor. I am impressed with your idea of building up the theatre itself and making the people come to the theatre and not merely to see a certain picture. I wish that you would outline for me a model program—everything included in a town of 15,000. There is one other house here and this is an average New England small city.—NEW ENGLAND.

WELL, here is the result of one of the things I have been preaching. For three years I have been trying to make the exhibitor realize that if he is going to feature stars he will lose his business just as soon as he loses the stars. Understand me, I am not against the stars. Frankly, if a star is big enough to make himself or herself an institution he or she deserves everything that's to be got. But you should also make your theatre the Star and make your theatre just as important as the pictures you play. While this may be hard in a town of 15,000 it can be done. Don't be discouraged because the other fellow with the

(Continued on page 404)

Here are two of the Christmas stage settings at Shea's Hippodrome, Buffalo. Harold B. Franklin, the manager, has attracted much attention by these settings in which he commemorates the holidays and other important events. They have come to be looked for by the people of Buffalo as an integral part of the production.

Rothapfel's Replies to Exhibitors About Their Problems

(Continued from page 403)

star is doing a little more business than you. Get a good show, some little stunt or novelty. Go after your house a little bit—advertise. The expense won't be much more and you will find that the net result will be greater in the long run. You probably have had a bad day or two and are a little discouraged. Many times I have felt the same way. But remember that the sun hasn't stopped shining. If it isn't shining today it will be tomorrow and if it don't tomorrow, it will the next day. In other words, the sun has not stopped shining, so don't be discouraged. As a model program, I would try a scenic or an educational—very short at first, until they get more accustomed to them. Take the best part of a news or topical picture. Inject a little cartoon with a humerous touch. Get a so-called four- or five-reel feature. Introduce some little stunt or novelty into your program—a quartet or a good voice from the town; get them to sing the old songs that people know—and then have a good one or two-reel comedy—preferably a one-reeler. That will run to about a two-hour performance. If you will run your pictures just a little faster than you usually do you will find they are a little brighter and more full of pep. Some houses get to running their machines in such a doleful, sorrowful way that it takes the heart and snap out of everything. An illustration is easily found in two men. One walks with a sharp, brisk step and another will slouch along in a "don't give a whoop and damn" sort of fashion. You would put your money on the brisk walker anytime. Of course if he ran too fast it would get ludicrous. If you want any more information, write again but don't expect an answer immediately because I am very, very busy, but I will do my best for you.

Exhibitors Must Get Into Harmony With Pictures to Win Their Greatest Success

(Continued from page 402)

we would reason it out something like this. He knew that Mary Garden's name was a household word, but still he knew that a lot of people had never seen a grand opera, in fact, that a lot of people were liable to be "bluffed" by it for the fear that they would get into something too "high-brow." He wanted to get something that would make the appeal general. He reached those who would be interested because of their appreciation of opera by announcing that this was her first appearance on the screen. Then he uses two illustrations. The first carries the appeal of the star's beauty, her physical charms, a touch of the physical. Then the big punch with the name of the star and the production. He doesn't take up space for the author, or even the fact that it is an opera, but he jumps into a punch line with "The Story of the Saint Who Became a Sinner and the Sinner Who Became a Saint." We had seen this picture before we saw this display and these lines struck us as the best lines descriptive of a picture that we had ever seen. The writer was in harmony with the story, and he put before the public the impression that had been stamped upon him.

Then he goes further. In smaller type he adds to the appeal with the fact that Miss Garden does a sensational dance and two other short sentences that are convincing.

Here is a case of harmony plus, and we'll wager that the Strand did a record business.

Now don't sit there and say that the man who wrote this display probably had seen Mary Garden in the opera, or the picture itself. Without knowing, we doubt both suppositions. But we do not doubt what he did do.

First he had followed up the advance advertising and news stories that had appeared in the Motion Picture News. He had watched the reviews, he had read every line of the press matter sent out and he had availed himself of all the publicity helps, although all the physical evidence of this is a picture of the star furnished by the producers. He may have gone to his library and have read the opera for himself, or he may have made it a point to learn in a dozen ways the full story of it in advance. He had brought himself into the spirit of the production before he started out to get results.

You can do this.

Even if you are changing every day, sit down and try this on one production and you will soon find that you are able to run the pictures that last only one day run for two or three or more. You are probably complaining now that there are too few good pictures being made, but if you will get in harmony with the good ones and carry that through all the elements of your presentation you will find that there are good pictures enough for all your needs.

Study everything that you see printed. Go over the catch lines that are sent out by the producers, for you will often find a gem there. Don't merely follow the suggestions of a producer, us, or any one else blindly. Know absolutely what you are about. Get yourself into harmony with the picture and there will be the appeal in your advertising that convinces.

"Star Spangled Banner" Ordered in Baltimore

Playing of "The Star Spangled Banner" at every performance where a regular orchestra is used has been made mandatory by a Baltimore City ordinance which has just been signed by Mayor James H. Preston. Fines up to $100 are provided for violations of the ordinance.

Mob of children storming the doors of the Liberty theatre, Portland, Ore., for the Christmas festival, and the stage setting at the same house during the holiday season.

Kansas City Paper Entertains 500,000 Free at Great Christmas Picture Fete

CARL H. PIERCE, head of the service department of Paramount, has just returned from Kansas City, where he superintended the details of a real Christmas gift to the children by the Kansas City Star. This consisted of a showing of the Marguerite Clark feature, "The Seven Swans," and a special holiday program.

Over a half-million people were accommodated at the five performances which started Saturday morning at 10.30 and ended at 8.15 Sunday evening. The pictures were shown in the immense Convention Hall, which accounts for the large number who could be cared for. It was probably the greatest advertising stunt ever used by a newspaper, and shows what can be done by press co-operation with pictures.

Mr. Pierce, in commenting on the showing said:

"At 8 o'clock Saturday morning, a woman appeared at the hall with her brood. The showing was scheduled for 10.30. From that time—with the thermometer at 9 degrees below zero—children and grown-ups poured from street cars and every conceivable kind of conveyance, filling to the rafters at the roof, the tremendous auditorium, where once Bryan was nominated for the Presidency.

"At 10.30 Leo Forbstein, director of the orchestra, struck up a patriotic march to accompany the Paramount-Bray Patriotic Pictograph, especially compiled for the star's party. You have heard enthusiasm. You may have seen Madison Square Garden packed—but never before in screendom has such a shout gone up as when, after singing "The Star-Spangled Banner," and waving flags at the soldiers going to France, Miss Marguerite Clark's face appeared upon the screen and the children realized that at last they were to have the treat of seeing Princess Tweedledee rescued from the grasp and intrigues of the wicked witch.

"Such a stupendous undertaking can hardly be grasped by the mind. Carpenters and electricians worked on the place as if they were preparing for an encampment. in fact, it was to be an encampment—during those precious hours—for happy children's hearts.

"The Kansas City Star paid over $1,400 for the music; $1,200 for the hall for two days; insisted on paying for the rental of the picture itself; would not permit itself to take one iota of credit or advertising for the affair, and admitted through its officers that it had been well repaid, if only it had made one little child happy at Christmas time.

"The Kansas City Feature Film officials worked ceaselessly on the showing; Manager Frank L. Newman, of the Royal theatre, worked 20 hours a day for a week to bring the showing to perfection; the hotels lent their musicians; the Powers Machine Company donated eight new machines for the occasion; in fact, every one worked as if all the money in the world was in the balance—when in reality, the entire effort might be summed up in two words—Christianity, Service."

Mirrors Used in Clever Lobby Displays

Scenes from photoplays forthcoming hand-painted on mirrors on one side of the theatre lobby and reflected in mirrors on the lobby wall opposite—to be then reflected in countless duplicate scenes progressively diminishing in size with each counter reflection—is the novel lobby display attained by Manager Billy B. Watson of the New Garden theatre here. The scenes, with the titles of the pictures in which they appear, are painted in colors, with particular emphasis placed on "cream"—a color found peculiarly emphatic when painted on mirror glass. The door leading into the parquet, during the Christmas and New Year's holidays, showed a cheery scene of warmth, a crackling fire casting a glow through the window of a farmhouse with a row of pines in the near distance.

4000 Kiddies Guest of Portland House at Xmas Festival

E. J. MYRICK, one of the live wire exhibitors of the country, scored another hit with the public, and incidentally another bull's-eye against his competitors, on the day before Christmas, when he staged the biggest Children's Festival ever held in Oregon. His Liberty theatre, Portland, was host to nearly 5,000 children, seating more than 4,000 kiddies, one, two and three to a seat, and turning away many hundreds.

He provided the youngsters—ranging in age from two and three years to those who question the man from the Far North and the reindeers—with two Christmas trees, a Santa Claus, a special film program of Bill Hart and Fatty Arbuckle, and for each a box of chocolates.

The show was billed for 9:30 in the morning, but at 8 the crowd began gathering. A couple of cops and all of the house attaches, to say nothing of numerous papas and mammas, were required to keep the mass of tender humanity in check.

Mr. Myrick worked indefatigably for weeks and spent many dollars preparing for the holidays. The many compliments he received from patrons delighted with the decorative effect more than compensated, however, for his efforts. The entire lighting system was given a colorful renovation, with red, white and blue predominating. On the stage, below and above the screen, three-foot colored lights flashed the seasonal greetings, "Merry Christmas" and "Happy New Year." Flanking the screen were gayly decorated and illuminated 24-foot Christmas trees, while the opening of the show was preceded by a cartoon hit on the screen, "Uncle Sam's Christmas Gift to the Kaiser."

Lobby and foyer were a mass of greenery, including holly and other evergreens, while a profusion of Japanese fruit plants were everywhere in evidence.

Now's the time to be planning what you are going to do for your next holiday—say Washington's birthday.

Ready Made Ad-Talks

Ethel Barrymore in "An American Widow"—Adventure, Romance of Unusual Interest

(Metro Five Reel Production)

Ethel Barrymore is to appear on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week in "An American Widow," picturized from Kellett Chambers's play of the same name by Frank Reicher. The production is in five reels, made by Metro under the direction of Frank Reicher. Miss Barrymore presents the role of Elizabeth Carter. In her supporting cast are Irving Cummings, who has the principal supporting role; Dudley Hawley, Ernest Stallard, Charles Dickson, Alfred Kappler, Arthur Lewis and Pearl Browne. Elizabeth Carter is a wealthy American widow. The Earl of Dettsmister comes to America in search of a rich wife. He is hounded by his creditors. Elizabeth is one of the many society women who entertain the Earl, and although she does not love him, she consents to marry the title, not the man. A title is the only thing that her money has not been able to buy. A brother of her deceased husband is in love with Elizabeth, and when he learns that she is engaged to the Earl he carries the news to the family lawyer in order that he may use his influence to prevent the marriage. The lawyer shows Elizabeth her deceased husband's will, and points out the clause in said will which states that if she were to marry again, the man must be an American, or the bulk of the estate would go to Pitney, the deceased husband's brother. The will specifically refers to a second husband, not a third. Elizabeth plans to carry out her original plans, but first advertises for the hire of a husband who must be an American. She will give him $50,000 if he will give her grounds for divorce. Bacon, the lawyer, locates a man, Jaspar Mallory (Irving Cummings). She and the stranger are married, after which he leaves her. Mlle. Albani, an actress, agrees to pose as the corespondent. From this marital entanglement Elizabeth is drawn by a series of events which, when presented in logical, dramatic order on the screen, give an exhition of drama on the screen that is seldom equaled.

Ethel Barrymore in "An American Widow" at the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week.

"The High Sign," with Herbert Rawlinson, Strange Adventures of College Student

(Universal Five Reel Production)

"The High Sign," the late Universal feature to be shown at the ——— theatre, has Herbert Rawlinson in the principal role. In the supporting cast are Brownie Vernon, who has been seen in some of the best features in which Franklyn Farnum has appeared; Hayward Mack, Nellie Allen, Ed. Brady, Marc Fenton, Frank McQuarrie and Al. McQuarrie. The story was written by J. Grubb Alexander and Waldemar Young, and produced for Universal under the direction of Herbert Clifton. Mr. Rawlinson has the role of Donald Bruce. Bruce is expelled from college for participating in the activities of a secret society. A fellow student, who initiated Donald into the society, tells Donald that the signs that have been taught to him are the ones employed by the ancient Vogi. Another college friend of Donald's lives in Burgonia. He tells Donald that he has received a letter from his native land, requesting him to return at once to marry the Princess Yvonne of Thespania. The friend tells Donald that he does not wish to go back because he loves Vonia Grayley. He asks Donald to take his place. Donald consents. On the steamer he meets Hulda Maroff. He flirts with her. Posloff, who is traveling with her, sees him. That night Donald is practicing the signs, and Posloff, looking in at the keyhole, sees him. He recognizes the signs are the same as employed by "The Black Seven," a band of anarchists. He then introduces Donald to Hulda. Hulda is a member of the society, and she arranges to meet Donald at a secret address when the steamer arrived. He attends the meeting of "The Black Seven," and is selected as the one to assassinate the Prince Arno, an enemy who is to marry the Princess Yvonne of Thespania. He is given a black box containing the "vapor of death."

"The High Sign," with Herbert Rawlinson and strong cast, will be at the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week.

Douglas Fairbanks in "A Modern Musketeer"—It's a "Corker"—Don't Miss It

(Artcraft Five Reel Production)

Douglas Fairbanks opened the new Rivoli theatre on Broadway, New York, Christmas week with his latest work for the screen, "A Modern Musketeer." S. L. Rothapfel, director general of the Rialto and of the new theatre, the Rivoli, thought well enough of the picture to open what is, without a doubt, the most modern, up-to-date theatre in the world. The management of the ———theatre has secured Mr. Fairbanks's latest work for his theatre during the week of ———, and he now extends to you an invitation to see this picture. "The Modern Musketeer" is pronounced by critics and the press of the country to be the best work of Fairbanks. It was written and produced under the direction of Allan Dwan, who has succeeded John Emerson as Mr. Fairbanks's director. The idea was obtained from Alexandre Dumas's famous novel, "The Three Musketeers." The far-famed "Doug" is the dashing, romantic Musketeer, and is given opportunities to perform the stunts and thrillers for which he has become famous. In his supporting cast is seen Marjorie Daw, Geraldine Farrar's protege. Miss Daw has the principal feminine role. Kathleen Kirkham, Frank Campeau, Eugene Ormonde and Tully Marshall are seen in strong roles. Many of the scenes were taken in the Grand Canyon of Arizona, and the work of the star as he hangs from lofty heights more than 6,000 feet above sea level. Mr. Fairbanks climbs up a rope suspended to the peak of a cliff with Miss Daw hanging to his neck. This feat of the star is alone well worth coming miles to see. A pretty romance runs through the five reels and thrillers are combined with cleverly done drama. It is the best work that Fairbanks has done under the Artcraft banner and will stand as an example of properly done screen work.

Douglas Fairbanks will be seen on the screen of the ——— theatre on the ——— of ——— week in "A Modern Musketeer," written and directed by his new director, Allan Dwan. Marjorie Daw is in the leading feminine role.

Gladys Brockwell in "For Liberty"—Stirring Drama of the War—Adventure

(Fox Five Reel Production)

"For Liberty" is a Fox production featuring Gladys Brockwell, and will be seen on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week. In the supporting cast with Miss Brockwell are seen Charles Clary, Bertram Grassby, Willard Lewis, Colin Chase and Clara Graham. The scenario was done by Bennett Cohen. The production was made under direction of Bertram Bracken. It is in five reels. The story tells of an American woman caught in Berlin during the time that America declared war on Germany. Her fight for her country, herself and for her sweetheart. Marcia Glendon is the role presented by Miss Brockwell. Marcia is caught in the German capital during the time that America is at war with Germany. She is in love with a young American. The affection which she holds for the American causes the jealousy of an influential German who is a general in the army. This leads to the death of Marcia's sweetheart. The brother of the murdered man arrives in Berlin. He is a member of the American Secret Service, disguised as a German officer. He becomes a member of the staff of the General who loves Marcia. Marcia and the American fall in love. She is discovered in aiding the American to get possession of some valuable German papers. She is denounced by the man she loves. The scenes then change to the battlefield. "For Liberty" is a stirring drama bringing nearer home the terrible happenings of the war in Europe. Gladys Brockwell is seen at her best. The picture will interest you from start to finish, and the management of the ——— theatre promises you a picture that you will not regret having seen.

"For Liberty" will be seen on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week. Gladys Brockwell is in the leading role. She is supported by a strong cast of Fox screen artists.

Jewel Carmen in Her First Starring Vehicle, "The Kingdom of Love"

(Fox Five Reel Production)

William Fox presents his new star, Jewel Carmen, in "The Kingdom of Love," written by Doty Hobart, and produced under the direction of Frank Lloyd, who is responsible for Mr. Fox's stupendous production of Victor Hugo's immortal work, "Les Miserables." Miss Carmen is one of the recent additions to stardom, and her work in this picture proves the confidence Mr. Fox placed in her ability as being well founded. She acts with the ability of an old-timer, and presents a picture that will please you all. She has a good story and appreciates its value, with the consequence that "The Kingdom of Love" is one of the best. Miss Carmen is supported in her work by Nancy Taswell, Genevieve Blinn, L. C. Shumway, Fred Milton, Ernest Wade, Joseph Manning, C. Raymond Nye and Murdock MacQuarrie. This is Miss Carmen's first starring vehicle. She has been seen in other productions, but never as star. You will remember her for her fine work in "The Tale of Two Cities," "American Methods," with William Farnum; "The Conqueror," with William Farnum, and "When a Man Sees Red," with the same star. In this, her first starring vehicle, Miss Carmen presents the role of Violet Carson, who when young is taken to the Klondike by her father. She left behind the memory of her mother and brother and sad thoughts of a disrupted home. Surrounded by all the vice and curtness of the mad rush that entered the gold mining region, Violet retained her innocent, modest demeanor and character. Her father is killed in a gambling fight, and she is taken in by the keeper of a dance hall. Soon after, a young man, and a minister arrive in Klondike. Violet is attracted to him. He receives a message that his mother is very ill, and that he must come to her at once with money. Violet learns that he is her brother. She offers herself for sale in order that she may get the money. The minister borrows the amount and saves Violet. The brother, sister and mother are united.

Jewel Carmen in her first starring vehicle will be seen at the ——— theatre ——— week.

Thrill After Thrill in Seventh Episode of "The Hidden Hand"—Doris Kenyon

(Pathe Serial—Two Reels)

The seventh episode of "The Hidden Hand," Pathe serial featuring Doris Kenyon, will be seen at the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week. The chapter is titled "The Fire Trap." The episode opens showing Doris suspended over a bed of boiling lime, and from that time to the end of the second reel there are thrills registered which will keep you gripping to your seats. "The Fire Trap," in keeping with the six preceding chapters of this daring serial, is the essence of actionable drama on the screen. Ramsey arrives while Doris is suspended over the instrument of death and saves her from a horrible death. After a terrific fight with the henchment of The Hidden Hand, Ramsey succeeds in carrying Doris to safety. The detective who has been working on the case secures the locket from The Hidden Hand. He removes the jewel from the locket in order that no one but himself may have admittance to the packet. He is attacked by The Hidden Hand and killed. Ramsey gets possession of the jewel. Verda is kidnapped by The Hidden Hand, and Doris and Ramsey follow to the rescue. They are led to what seems to be a deserted shack. They are caught and thrown into a cellar. A glass trap door in the ceiling offers the only means of escape. Ramsey leaps up, gets a secure hold, reaches down for Doris, and The Hidden Hand appears.

At the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week, the Seventh Episode of Pathe's "The Hidden Hand" serial, with Doris Kenyon in the leading role.

Toto, Ex-Clown of New York Hippodrome, in "The Movie Dummy"—A Scream

(Pathe-Rolin Two Reel Proauction)

Toto, who caused such a sensation at the New York Hippodrome last season, is appearing in pictures under the Pathe banner. "The Movie Clown" is his first comedy. It is in two reels, produced by Rolin releasing on the Pathe program, under the direction of Hal Roach. "The Movie Clown" is a highly amusing type of comedy, and one that will keep you in an uproar from the first flash to the final fadeout. This is the first time that Toto has been seen on the screen, and if his first work can stand as a criterion for the quality of his work in the future, the management of the ——— theatre can assure his patrons that they have some corking good comedy in store for them. In this comedy, Toto, known the world over for his clownish stunts on the vaudeville and speaking stage,

READY-MADE AD-TALKS PUBLISHED IN LAST WEEK'S ISSUE

January 12, 1918.

FEATURES

TITLE OF PLAY	PRODUCERS
"The Man Above the Law"	Triangle	5 reels
"In Bad"	Mutual	5 reels
"Brown of Harvard"	Perfection	5 reels
"The Grand Passion"	Jewel	5 reels
"Uneasy Money"	Perfection	5 reels
"Face Value"	Bluebird	5 reels
"The Devil Stone"	Paramount	5 reels
"His Mother's Boy"	Paramount	5 reels
"The Girl by the Roadside"	Bluebird	5 reels
"The Seven Swans"	Paramount	5 reels
"Molly Go Get 'Em"	Mutual	5 reels
"When Men Are Tempted"	Vitagraph	5 reels

SERIALS

"Vengeance—And the Woman"	Second Episode	2 reels takes the part of a dummy and is shipped into a moving picture studio. In this part Toto would leave the impression that he is minus the semblance of bones. He is as collapsible as a straw dummy, and in assuming this state he registers some of the best comedy seen on the screen of the ——— theatre. In the cast with him are seen Bud Jamieson, Marie Mosquini and Kathlyn O'Connor. Those who saw Toto at the New York Hippodrome, where he played for an entire season, will not need the second invitation to see him at the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week. Those of you who have been as fortunate will be glad that you did not miss the two reels of fun.

Toto, the ex-clown of the New York Hippodrome, will be seen on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week, in "The Movie Clown." Two reels.

"The German Curse in Russia"—Remarkable War Film Taken on Western Front

(Pathe Five Reel Production)

"The German Curse in Russia" is a five reel picture showing the activities of the Germans and Russians on the Eastern Front in Europe. It is the first war film which goes into detail concerning the actual waging of war in Europe. Donald C. Thompson took the pictures, and he has obtained some intimate shots of trench life in the first lines of battle. Some of these scenes were shot at the risk of life. Again and again during the run of this film, Russian soldiers are seen going "over the top." Nor are these scenes rehearsals for the camera. They actually occurred, for Mr. Thompson took his camera into the midst of the fray, and at the risk of losing his life took the chances which are now registered on film, and which you will see on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week. A good part of the run is devoted to the activities of the Russian women's legion, known as the Batallion of Death. Through the columns of the papers we have read much concerning the activities of the Russian women and how they were taking the places of the men in the trenches. But we have not seen these women in actual service. Donald C. Thompson's film, "The German Curse in Russia," carries hundreds of feet of film showing these women in action and the part they are taking in Russia's part of the war. The camera has not missed the fatal side of the war. It sweeps the battle ground and catches scene after scene of battle ground literally strewn with dead and dying. There are many scenes taken in Petrograd, Russia. These show intimate views of the social revolution that has been waging for months. "The German Curse in Russia" is, without a doubt, the most interesting film that has been produced dealing with actual wartime activities in Europe. The management of the ——— theatre urges you all to attend this showing, which will be held at the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week.

The Late Chapter of "Vengeance—and the Woman"—Big Fight Scene—Action

(Vitagraph Serial—Two Reels)

The latest episode of Vitagraph's stirring serial, "Vengeance—And the Woman," featuring Carol Holloway and William Duncan, entitled "The Unscaled Peak," is one thrill after another. Through its two reels there is action every minute and a thrill every minute. Blake and his wife are in danger of being violently dealt with at the hands of the escaped bandits. This episode opens with the outlaws celebrating in a saloon the return of their two comrades who have escaped from prison. When the celebration is at its height, the sheriff and his posse come down upon them, and one of the most realistic fights in the history of the screen is staged. William Duncan, who has the leading male role, directed this serial. Mr. Duncan was responsible for the direction of "The Fighting Trail," the last serial offering by Vitagraph.

"The Unscaled Cliff" is the title of the latest episode of Vitagraph's serial, "Vengeanc—and the Woman." It's a corker for thrills, action and fight scenes. At the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week.

Charles Gunn in "Framing Framers"—Story of Corrupt Politics and Love

(Triangle Five Reel Production)

"Framing Framers" is the title of the Triangle production which will be shown on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week. Charles Gunn, who has been seen in several of Olive Thomas's Triangle features as her leading man, is the featured player. In the supporting cast are seen Edwin Jobson, George Pierce, Laura Sears, Edward Martin, Lee Phelps, Mildred Delphino, Eugene Burr, Anna Dodge, Verne Peterson and Leo Willis. The story deals with corrupt city politics, with Gordon Travis as the principal character. Gordon is an ambitious newspaper reporter and writer. He is ambitious to write a novel exposing the corruptness in the political life of the city, but cannot find time from his reportorial work. An election is pending, and Harrison Westfall, political boss, and Sylvester Brandon, young millionaire newspaper owner with political aspirations, both have weak candidates in the field for mayor. Westfall's daughter Ruth is engaged to marry Lonnie Gormon, who will further Ruth's social ambitions. Brandon arranges with a cabaret singer to keep Lonnie from the wedding. Ruth is left waiting at the altar. Gordon Travis is sent by his paper to cover the wedding. Westfall realizes that Gordon knows the inside of the story, and knows also that if the story is published it will injure his candidate's chance for election. He tries to buy off Travis, but Travis refuses to accept a penny. Westfall gets desperate and sets two gunmen on the trail of Travis. They get him and leave him senseless in the park. Brandon and a millionaire friend make a bet that a tramp could pass as a social climber and go to the park to find a suitable character. They come upon Travis and engage him for the part. He is dressed in the most stylish clothes, given a valet and leaves for the resort where Ruth and her father have gone to forget the scandal of the wedding.

Come to the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week and see how Travis gets back.

KNOW; BE FAIR

Don't "Bunk" Patrons on Pictures

WHENEVER you have an opportunity to inform the public broadly upon the article you are selling, to educate them upon certain interesting points, ripe advertising experience has proved that that is an excellent thing to do.

Reports from all over indicate that the newspapers have got wind of certain exhibitors' activities in, as one paper expressed it, "jipping the public for more money and falsely laying it to the war tax."

We all know that's an unfair statement; we all know that it is simply due to the distorted notion most folks have regarding the picture business. No matter how unfair it is, the public will believe that statement, will look upon you as a cross between a highway robber and a pal of the Kaiser.

Tell the public the truth! They'll be tickled to death to hear your side of the argument. Instructive advertising talks, all ready for you to hand over to your printer for your program and the dailies, are being published in this part of the magazine every week.

Follow them. Clip them. And use them.

Ann Murdock in "The Impostor"—Singer's Adventures in New York

(Mutual Five Reel Production)

Ann Murdock, now playing in the "The Three Bears," one of the Broadway successes of the season, will be seen on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week in "The Impostor," produced for the Mutual program by the Empire All Star Corporation, under the direction of Dell Henderson. The story was written by Leonard Merrick. In the supporting cast are seen David Powell, Lionel Adams, Richie Ling, Charlotte Granville, Eleanor Seybolt, Edyth Latimer, Charles Mussett, Charles MacDonald, Enita Rothe, George Abbott, Louise Hamilton, Herbert Dansey and Carew Grant. From the flash of the title to the finale there is interest aroused. The suspense element is well sustained, the action is convincing, and the star is given every opportunity to appear at her best. She presents the role of Mary Fenton, a girl of refinement and a cultured voice. She has lived, always, in a small town, and when she arrives in New York, where she had gone to pursue her musical studies, she finds that not all one's life is sunshine. Through a combination of circumstances, she finds herself alone in New York without the necessaries of life. She is unsuccessful in obtaining employment and grows desperate. Charles Owen, a young married man, finds her wandering the streets, and appreciating her circumstances, offers her the comforts of his apartment. He introduces her to his friends at the apartment hotel as a friend of his wife's sister. She leaves the hotel and discovers that she has left her gloves behind. She returns for them and finds Owen out. His friends invite her to accompany them home as their guest and she accepts to avert suspicion. Later Owen and his wife visit the house at which Mary is stopping and Owen is placed in an embarrassing situation. Mary clears the way by a frank confession and all is forgiven. Blake Walford decides that he likes Mary and insists that she remain after the minister has been called.

Ann Murdock in "The Impostor" will be seen on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week.

An O. Henry Subject, "The Fourth at Salvador"—Typical Henry Story

"The Fourth at Salvador" is an O. Henry story, adapted to the screen and presented by General Film. It is in two reels David Smith directed. The principal characters are presented by Chet Ryan, W. L. Rodgers, Jack Wetherby, Charles Wheelock and Fred Behrle. "The Fourth at Salvador" is a typical O. Henry story, and presented with the same human touch that this popular author always injected in his writings. Billy Casparis is granted the ice-making concessions in Salvador, first having to post one thousand dollars, to be forfeited if he does not make ice continuously for a period of six months. The time has nearly elapsed when Billy finds that he is unable to make more ice. Three weeks elapse without the fact being discovered by the inspector. He learns that Billy is attempting to substitute glass to make it look like ice. Casparis and others in the American colony plan to celebrate the Fourth in true American fashion. General Dingo, leader of the revolutionary party, promises them aid. A real revolution is scheduled to take place on the Fourth. The day is started by the Americans in true fashion, and General Dingo puts in appearance with several hundred natives. They attack the garrison, but are forced to retreat. The Americans, thinking that the natives are attempting to stop their patriotic endeavors, commence a counter-attack and win. The newly-elected president comes to thank Billy for his bravery, and tell him that his glass is "ice," and that his thousand will be returned.

At the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week, "The Fourth at Salvador."

June Caprice in "Unknown 274"—Strange Adventures of an Orphan

Unusual heart interest attaches to the latest work of June Caprice for the screen. William Fox's little star appears in "Unknown 274," and the management of the ——— theatre does not hesitate to assure you that in "Unknown 274" Miss Caprice does the best work of her career before the camera. Supporting her in her latest work are: Kittens Reichert, Florence Ashbrook, Inez Marcel, Dan Mason, Richard Neill, Tom Burroughs, Jean Armour, Williams Burns, Alex Shannon. The production was made under the direction of Harry Millarde. George Scarborough wrote the story. The story opens with a prologue, showing a happily married young couple. The young husband, who is the son of an influential foreign official, is hounded by his father. The couple flee to the United States, where the young husband earns a living by playing a violin. He is kidnaped and taken to his native country on a strange vessel. The story proper opens in New York, sixteen years later. Madame Gordon is a popular Broadway modiste. She visits an orphanage near the city, and takes little Dola Belton back with her. Dola is dressed in fine clothes, educated, and then Madame Gordon believes that she is ready to be turned over to some millionaire. Madame Gordon believes that some millionaire will pay high for her. Dola meets "The Golden Kid," a "bright light" favorite and spendthrift. He is amazed to learn that she is the daughter of Madame Gordon, and assuming a drunken condition, promises Madame Gordon a large sum of money for Dola. Dola refuses to talk with "The Golden Kid," because she thinks he is under the influence of drink. She leaves him and he is impressed. He learns that Dola is his long, lost daughter.

Cincinnati Theatres Aid Thrift Stamps

More than a hundred moton picture theatres in Cincinnati and vicinity have agreed to open their houses to four-minute speakers who will educate the public on the purchase of war savings certificates and thrift stamps.

These same houses did excellent work in raising the Red Cross fund and they have won the commendation of the public and the officials for their patriotic spirit.

Live News from the Producers

Rolfe Arrives and Departs

Attends New York Conference of Metro Officials in Connection with West Coast Improvements—Losing no Time

B. A. ROLFE, western representative of the Metro Pictures Corporation, made a hurried trip to New York a few days ago to attend a production conference of Metro officials anent Metro's plans to expand its present work on the coast. Metro, as previously announced, has decided to enlarge its plant on a scale that will not only accommodate its present stars and their companies at the same time, but others that are expected to begin work there soon.

Plans for the numerous improvements and alterations were decided upon before Mr. Rolfe's departure in order to enable him to put them into effect immediately upon his return to Los Angeles. That no time might be lost on the work, Mr. Rolfe left for the West two days after his arrival in New York.

The confidence of Metro's other heads in their new undertaking was greatly strengthened by Mr. Rolfe's report of his production work the last two months. He expressed the conviction that Los Angeles and its surroundings surpasses all other places as a production field, and that Metro pictures would in no way suffer from production in such ideal environs. He exemplified this by a showing of Viola Dana's "The Winding Trail" and Edith Storey's "The Legion of Death," which is to be a Metro production de luxe, which he brought with him from the coast.

"Those productions," said Mr. Rolfe, "will rank among the most finished Metro has ever made. Full advantage was taken of our surroundings. In fact, nowhere else could they have been staged so advantageously. Both call for a great number of outdoor scenes. This was particularly true of "The Legion of Death," as a great majority of the scenes we use were transplanted bodily from Russia and the far Eastern battle front. The picture will go a long way to bring home to Americans the realization that this is a war of extermination in which the women of Russia are doing their part to overcome the autocratic aims of Germany. In order that the picture might be life-like in every detail only Russian women were employed in the big scenes.

"Miss Storey's next picture will also be an adaptation from a novel, which is in keeping with our new policy to bring as many plays and novels to the screen as is commensurate with our production of original stories. The novel is Edward Moffat's 'Hearts' Steadfast.' Its screen version will be known as 'Revenge.'"

"Mary 'Gusta" Title Changed

Paramount Renames Vivian Martin Subject "A Petticoat Pilot"—Story Laid in New England—Sturgeon Directs

FOLLOWING her appearance in "The Fair Barbarian," which was recently released by Paramount, Vivian Martin will be seen in "A Petticoat Pilot," a picturization of Joseph Lincoln's story, "Mary 'Gusta," by Gardner Hunting, it was announced this week, by Paramount.

The title first chosen was "Mary 'Gusta," and was announced under that name last week.

The story itself, is said by Paramount, to be particularly delightful and is laid in the Cape Cod section of New England, a district abounding in interesting characters and traditions. As "that queer Lathrop young-un," as Mary 'Gusta is called, Vivian Martin has a characterization that is claimed to be well suited to her qualities as an actress.

Paramount insists that scenically the production, which was directed by Rollin S. Sturgeon, should prove one of the most attractive offerings in which Miss Martin has as yet been seen, and claims the supporting cast has been chosen with great care. Among those who appear are Theodore Roberts, James Neill, Harrison Ford, who has played opposite the star in several productions; Helen Gillmore, Richard Cummings, Jane Wolff, Bert Hadley, John Burton, Antrim Short and Tom Bates.

Real Life Supplies Some Reel Life

A high order of juvenile comedy from real life is claimed by General Film for "The Chocolate of the Gang," the second of the series of "Judge Brown Stories" being distributed by General Film Company. The story deals with the attempts of a small colored boy to win admission into a gang composed of white boys, and the great variety of juvenile "nishiashun" ceremonies through which he passes is said to provide some most laughable scenes. One of these scenes shows a juvenile court in session.

Fox Completes Lorimer Feature

It was announced this week by William Fox that "Jack Spurlock—Prodigal," written by George Horace Lorimer, editor of the Saturday Evening Post, has been completed.

George Walsh is star of the picture, which was directed by Carl Harbaugh.

"Jack Spurlock—Prodigal," is to be given, without extra charge to William Fox patrons listed January 30, 1918, as having contracted for the Fox Special Features, and nobody else will get it. It is going out as a regular weekly special feature, not as an "extra," although General Manager W. F. Sheehan declares "it has the punch entitling it to rank as a de luxe production and is really worthy of being distributed on the basis of an 'extra' at an advanced price."

Her Support Is Good

In the cast supporting Vivian Martin in "A Petticoat Pilot," the Paramount film adaptation by Gardner Hunting, from the book "Mary 'Gusta," by Joseph C. Lincoln, produced under the direction of Roland Sturgeon, are the following: Theodore Roberts, James Neill, Harrison Ford, Helen Gilmore, Richard Cummings, Jane Wolff, Bert Hadley and John Burton.

Keystoner Writes Dramatic Scenarios

Jay Dwiggins, of the Triangle-Keystone scenario staff, has turned his activities to the dramatic end of scenario writing, and in the future will write five-reel dramatic stories with a light comedy vein. It has been said that some of Dwiggins' comedy scripts were so sad that his work attracted the attention of Frank Beresford, scenario editor of the Triangle Culver City studios. Dwiggins is an actor as well as an author, and recently gave up his screen career to devote his entire time to thinking up comedy situations for the Keystone comedians.

MacLane Picture Receives Spoor Stamp

"Men Who Have Made Love to Me," George K. Spoor's presentation of Mary MacLane, the authoress, received its final endorsement last week when run for a final showing in the studio projection rooms.

Twenty-four sheet billboard posters are about to be placed throughout the country advertising this presentation.

Mr. Spoor believes that his national advertising plan has resulted in a far greater popularity than would otherwise have been gained, using his twenty-four sheet campaign on Taylor Holmes' "Uneasy Money" as a criterion.

Metro Names Cast in "Broadway Bill"

What Metro characterizes as an exceptional cast has been engaged to support Harold Lockwood in "Broadway Bill," a Metro wonder play written by Fred J. Balshofer, now in course of production.

Mr. Lockwood's leading woman in this picture is Martha Mansfield, who, under the name of Martha Early, formerly played in Max Linder productions.

The heavy character is enacted by Stanton Heck who, besides having extensive stage experience including seven successive seasons with Klaw and Erlanger shows, has appeared in many film productions, among them "The Man from Mexico," "The Renegade" and "Barbara Fritchie." Another important role is played by Bert Starkey.

William Clifford and W. W. Black, who appeared with Mabel Taliaferro in "Magdalen of the Hills" and with Ethel Barrymore in "The Greatest Power" are also members of the cast. Cornish Beck, a boy actor, plays a juvenile part.

Exhibitors Like Triangle Re-issues

The Triangle re-issues of Hart and Fairbanks' features are said to be constantly bringing comments from exhibitors that indicate the drawing power of these productions.

Exhibitors express, it is claimed, great confidence in the box-office value of these re-issues by re-booking them, after having shown them for a full run when originally released. In referring to the Fairbanks' reissue, "The Lamb," released September 30, the manager of The Colonial theatre, at Sioux Falls, S. D., said: "This was the fifth repeat on this picture and it played to more business than the first time." With reference to "The Disciple," featuring Hart, re-issued September 16, the same exhibitor said: "This feature played to 60 per cent more business than when first shown."

Triangle has announced that some very clever and valuable ideas in advertising in connection with the re-issues are being carried out by progressive exhibitors.

Petrova Uses "Personal Letter" Idea

In order to emphasize the "personal touch" which Madame Olga Petrova has striven to establish between herself and screen patrons she has, through the medium of her own company, decided to use the "letter" idea. To mark the inauguration of her first production, "Daughter of Destiny," produced and released under the banner of the Petrova Picture Company, Madame Petrova has written a personal letter to picture patrons who may witness this picture. In order to remove all thought of conventionality and as a token of her appreciation to her screen patrons, the actress caused "her letter" to be issued in what is said to be a novel form. One side contains a picture in colors of the star, personally autographed.

Davis Stimulates Triangle

Laura Sears and Charles Gunn Furnish Smiles for Triangle's "Framing Framers"

Opens New Year with Resolution to Make Production Record—Four Stories Begun and Others Are Ready

STIMULATED by the production schedule set by General Manager H. O. Davis, the Triangle studios at Culver City opened the New Year with a burst of speed.

The first week of 1918 saw four new stories started and four pictures completed. Four directors are waiting for stories and one director, Cliff Smith, maker of Western thrillers, is putting the finishing touches to his latest Roy Stewart vehicle.

E. Mason Hopper, whose last feature was "Her American Husband," a romance of the Orient, has begun shooting on a seven-reel feature by E. Magnus Ingleton, the title of which has not been announced.

Director Frank Borzage, with two eastern actors in his cast, has begun work on "The Shoes That Danced," a screen adaptation of John Moroso's Metropolitan Magazine story of the same name. Jack Cunningham did the continuity. This is a story in which the leading characters are gangsters and it touches on life in the underworld. An unusual feature is claimed in that the villain attends a masquerade ball disguised as Charlie Chaplin.

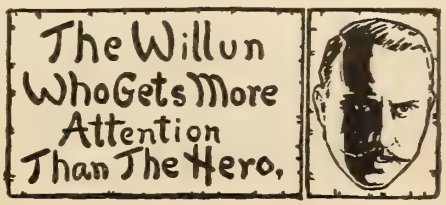
Thomas N. Heffron is now working on a water subject called "The Sea Panther." It is a tale of pirates of the Caribbean Sea written by Kenneth B. Clarke. In this picture William Desmond will be seen as "The Panther."

Director Cliff Smith, Triangle western expert, is putting the finishing touches to the latest vehicle of the cowboy star, Roy Stewart, and in "Keith of the Border" Smith believes he has a feature that will score a new success. Experts who have seen the "rushes" on this picture declare that the fight between Roy Stewart and Pete Morrison is the best that has been staged since "The Flame of the Yukon."

The four Triangle pictures which have been completed in the past week include "Real Folks," directed by Walter Edwards; "Captain of His Soul," a screen adaptation of Eleanor Kinkade's magazine story, "Shackles," directed by Gilbert P. Hamilton; the magazine story, "Little Red Decides," in which Director Jack Conway is said to have obtained some wonderful scenes between the child actress Barbara Connolly, and the Chinese cook; and "The Hopper," from Meredith Nicholson's story of the same name, on which Thomas N. Heffron handled the megaphone.

The Triangle directors who are waiting to begin work on new subjects are Jack Dillon, Raymond Wells, Jack Conway and Walter Edwards.

Pathe Keeps Eye on World War



Proves Its Claim to Timely Dominance with Russian Films Uncovering German Plots—Filmed by Donald C. Thompson

HARDLY a week passes without some new evidence that Pathe is one of the few companies really keeping a close eye to world activities in connection with the war. The first and second weeks in the new year are no exceptions.

As official distributor of French and British war pictures, the Pathe Company has added to its record in getting the animated documents of the conflict before the American public by arranging to present throughout the country the films of Russia in revolt, taken by Donald C. Thompson, the young Kansan who spent three years in the trenches "cranking" actual battle scenes amid a rain of German bullets and shells.

This picture, which was given its premiere in America at the Strand theatre, New York, will be shown under the title, "The German Curse in Russia," and has many scenes which show the workings and results of the German propaganda of lies which Mr. Thompson's camera demonstrates was responsible for what happened in Russia.

Mr. Thompson risked death, it is said, repeatedly, to get a real record of the struggle in Russia. The result is a picture with "over the top" charges, an actual bombardment of Turkish boats by the Russian Black Sea Fleet, the women's Battalion of Death in action, scenes incidental to the visit of Mrs. Emmaline Pankhurst, the English suffragette who delivers a message to Mme. Botchkarwa, organizer and leader of these modern Amazons, and many other remarkable scenes.

Goldwyn's Three Feminine Aces, Mae Marsh, Madge Kennedy and Mabel Normand, Have New Features for Release Shortly, Titled "Fields of Honor," "Our Little Wife" and "Dodging a Million" Respectively

Goldwyn Films Reach Orient

Announcement Also Indicates They Have Been Shown in Antipodes to Success—Bolster Handles All the Details

ACCORDING to reports this week through Goldwyn's publicity department, pictures made by that company have at last made the long trip to Australia and the Orient, now made more slow and difficult by the War, and have been privately shown to two groups of exhibitors in the Antipodes. Both showings were arranged by Goldwyn's special representative, Harold Bolster, now touring the world in the interest of the new corporation. A letter, just received at the home office after a delay, is said to record special trade showings at the Theatre Royal, Sydney, New South Wales, on Nov. 18, and at Melbourne on Nov. 25.

Both gatherings brought forth, it is said, the leaders in the film industry of Australia and New Zealand, Harry Hayward of Auckland, who is chairman of the New Zealand Motion Pictures Supplies Co., controlling over fifty theatres on the island, making a special trip to Sydney to be present at the showing. On both occasions, the first two Goldwyn releases, "Polly of the Circus," starring Mae Marsh, and "Baby Mine," starring Madge Kennedy, were shown.

The Australian Variety and Show World, a trade journal, wrote of the Sydney showing: "The first of the new Goldwyn Pictures were unfurled on the screen to a massed audience who all expressed admiration for the new feature films. 'Baby Mine,' by Margaret Mayo, is a production of the highest art and stars Madge Kennedy, who has a charming personality. 'Polly of the Circus,' by the same author, is a gem of motion picture art, and features the dainty and fascinating star, Mae Marsh, who is more fascinating than ever before. Goldwyn Pictures reach the highest point of cinema art, and all of us have a lot that is worth while to look forward to. Goldwyn Pictures will make a name for themselves in Australia and in fact through Australasia."

"Our Little Wife" Is Nearly Completed

Madge Kennedy's latest vehicle, "Our Little Wife," the Goldwyn picturization of Avery Hopwood's stage piece, is said to be rapidly nearing completion at the Goldwyn Fort Lee studios.

Miss Kennedy, whose most recent work was in "Baby Mine" and "Nearly Married," is surrounded by a notable cast in "Our Little Wife," according to announcements. Her leading man is George Forth, and others in the cast are William Davidson, Wray Page, Kempton Greene, Walter Hiers and Marguerite Marsh.

Goldwyn Sends "Thais" Print to Author

Following the receipt of a letter from Anatole France, author of "Thais," expressing the writer's compliments and appreciation upon the completion of the screen version of the story, with Mary Garden in the star role, Goldwyn is preparing to send a special print of the picture to Paris so that the author may see the film shortly after its release in America.

"Thais" was presented at the Strand in New York the week of January 1, and drew big houses.

Universal Films "The Flash of Fate"

BECAUSE one of the staff of the production department at Universal City has a good memory for stories and a poor one for the names of authors, Herbert Rawlinson will soon appear in a five-reel story, "The Flash of Fate," that has been created on a chance of its original writer turning up at some subsequent date to claim his recompense. The announcement is made by Universal's publicity department that the amount to be paid, when the real author of the story shall bring proof of his work, will be decided by a committee of play-brokers; one to be chosen by each of the principals to the decision and a third to be nominated by the two referees thus selected.

"The Flash of Fate" will reach the screen under unusual circumstances. While Col. Jasper E. Brady, of Universal's scenario department, was in conversation with one of the members of the staff, the plot of the story was revealed. Production Director Henry McRae, when the "buck" was passed to him, remembered the story, having read it several years ago, but he failed to recall the author's name or whether he had read it in a book or magazine. Diligent inquiry failed to shed further light upon the authorship or source of the plot. Finally Mr. McRae told Mr. Brady to start the wheels in motion. Mr. Brady accordingly commissioned James W. Atkinson to prepare the story, and Waldemar Young was then assigned to the scenario work, the result being passed along to Elmer Clifton, who consulted with Herbert Rawlinson—and so "The Flash of Fate" was screened.

The completed offering arrived in New York January 2 and was shown to the executives of Universal.

Zoe Rae Has New Director

Rhea Berger has been engaged to direct a special Universal company headed by Zoe Rae, the child actress. At present he is preparing to screen a story entitled "Little Miss Sherlock," by Norris Shannon, which has been put into screen form by Frank Howard Clark.

Mr. Berger is well known as a director of cinema features and not so long ago his name was familiar in the theatrical world as among the foremost stage directors. The ground-work of his success as a photoplay producer was laid at the Western Essanay studios. Later, during an engagement of more than two years with the American company, he staged a number of Mutual's successes, including several of Kolb and Dill's feature comedies.

Spoor Begins Taylor Holmes Subject

George K. Spoor has begun production of Taylor Holmes' next picture, "A Pair of Sixes," by Edward Peple.

"A Pair of Sixes" is often called Mr. Peple's most successful stage play, although he is well remembered for his "The College Widow," "The Prince Chap" and others.

The production is in the hands of L. C. Windom, who produced "Ruggles of Red Gap," "Uneasy Money" and all other Taylor Holmes pictures. Following "A Pair of Sixes," Taylor Holmes will start work on "The Rainbow Chaser," an adaptation of the Saturday Evening Post story, "Mr. Williams Takes a Chance," by Freeman Tilden.

Tourneur Covers Nudity with Artistry

Maurice Tourneur, the director who is producing for Artcraft Maeterlinck's "The Blue Bird," is said to be using his artistic technique to the fullest in order to satisfy the most critical in the scenes calling for nude figures. That Director Tourneur will make these scenes acceptable to all photoplay patrons is claimed by Artcraft.

"Nudity in itself is not objectionable," said Mr. Tourneur, "unless it is used as a means to attract an unhealthy mind. Nude figures are shown in 'The Blue Bird,' but the circumstances are such that they will be viewed with reverence rather than excite thoughts of immodesty."

Polo and Reed Head Serial Company

Carl Laemmle recently stated, in a forecast of Universal's activities for the forthcoming year, that his organization would go into the work of producing serials more extensively than ever. For six years the Universal forces have been making and distributing serials and had five chapter-stories either released, in the making or arranged for when the year 1918 began.

Ben Wilson and Neva Gerber are now appearing in "The Mystery Ship" and before that serial shall pass the tenth episode of its sixteen-chapter career Eddie Polo and Vivian Reed will start "The Bull's Eye" on its way. Supporting these stars will be an unusually numerous cavalcade of riders, for the plot of the piece deals exclusively with events upon the sheep and cattle ranges of the Southwest.

Two Artcraft Pictures Run on Broadway

Artcraft Pictures entertained the patrons of two New York motion picture palaces on Broadway the past week. At the Rivoli theatre, S. L. Rothapfel's latest achievement, Douglas Fairbanks in "A Modern Musketeer" was the initial feature attraction of the new theatre.

After several months' delay, owing to court procedures, New Yorkers were finally able to see the initial William S. Hart-Ince picture released by Artcraft, "The Narrow Trail," at the Rialto.

Carey Subjects Are Played Up

Universal Intends to Specialize in Them, and Scripts and Cast Are Carefully Chosen — Molly Malone Leading Woman

UNIVERSAL intends to specialize in Harry Carey features, directed by Jack Ford, as one of the production plans announced for the forthcoming year. Universal contends that Carey has been created as a star during the time he has been engaged at Universal City and it is the managerial purpose to realize to the fullest extent on his popularity by giving him better opportunities than he has ever had before. To that end Director Jack Ford has made careful selections not alone of manuscripts but of players who will support Carey in acting the parts and following his lead in the saddle.

Molly Malone has been definitely assigned as Carey's featured leading lady and the first of the Carey specials will be seen January 28, when "The Phantom Riders" will be released. This is particularly an adventure in which wild riding is featured, but his next offering, "Wild Women," on February 25, will be a comedy that takes the cowboys on to the ocean to finish off their escapade.

Director Ford has now in preparing two more productions that will serve Carey with special fitness, besides providing Molly Malone with agreeable roles. They are "Back to the Right Trail," made from Frederick R. Becholdt's story, and "Lin McLean," founded on Owen Wister's novel of the same title. Betty Schade, Vesta Pegg, Edward Jones, M. K. Wilson, William Carroll, Helen Wright, Martha Mattox, Roy Clark and L. M. Wells will be active in Carey's support.

These Carey features, to be offered at regular intervals during the coming year, will carry a special equipment of advertising and publicity. It is the declared purpose of Universal to give its exhibitors every possible facility for realizing to the last possible sale of an admission ticket for these attractions.

Vitagraph Begins Production for State

Albert E. Smith, President of Vitagraph, Helps Gladys Leslie Raise a Service Flag With Seventy-seven Stars

WORK was started January 2 on the patriotic picture which Vitagraph is going to make for State Defense Council of New York. This is a picture in which Governor Whitman, of the Empire State, will appear.

Corinne Griffith and Webster Campbell, the Vitagraphers who will be featured in the picture, were taken to the Erie Canal, to the State Capitol at Albany, and to the Hudson, making scenes at each place under the direction of John Robertson, who was chosen by Albert E. Smith, president of Vitagraph, to direct the production.

This picture which is to show the people how New York State had handled problems of the espionage, sedition and intrigue, is promised as one of the big offerings of the year in the motion picture industry. The story was written by Robert W. Chambers, and is said to be one of the very finest pieces of literature that this writer has produced. The picture will be an official document, inasmuch as the plans for it were drafted in conference between Governor Whitman's advisors, Albert E. Smith, Walter W. Irwin, general manager of the Vitagraph distributing organization, and leading military and civil officials of New York State. Also, archives of the state were thrown open to Mr. Chambers for the writing of his story.

Paralta Affords Study of Paris Life

In the next Paralta Play whose star is Bessie Barriscale, and the title of which is "Within the Cup," an opportunity is said to be afforded photoplay patrons to study and compare the artistic Bohemian life of Paris and that of New York.

The story begins in the famous Quartier Latin of Paris and ends in Greenwich Village, which is Manhattan equivalent for the Parisian locale of writers, artists and models. The sets for the Parisian beginning of the photoplay were made from drawings and photographs made under the direction of the author, Monte Katterjohn, and supplemented by instructions personally given at the Paralta Studios by Mr. Katterjohn.

For the purpose of having the Greenwich Village sets as atmospheric as possible, Mr. Kattehjohn made a special trip from the Paralta Studios to New York. In Greenwich Village photographs and drawings were made under his direction.

Lovely Winter Surroundings and Unusual Situations are Said to Abound in "A Daughter of Uncle Sam," a Jaxon-General Production With Jane Vance and William Sorelle

Truth Again Outdoes Fiction

General Film Claims Thrilling Scenes in Jaxon New Serial are Founded on Real Spy Incidents in Army Circles

ACCORDING to a new announcement by General Film Corporation, the old adage to the effect that truth is stranger than fiction has been vindicated again in the filming of "A Daughter of Uncle Sam," the Jaxon serial to be released through General Film Company. Many, if not all, of the most thrilling scenes in the twelve episodes which form this patriotic serial, are said to be founded upon true incidents which have taken place since Germany began her spy and intrigue propaganda in this country. Such events as the Black Tom disaster, which cost many lives and did damage amounting to $25,000,000, the attempt to blow up the Welland Canal, the destruction of scores of munitions and manufacturing plants engaged in war work, and the systematic manner in which the German liners interned in America were damaged and wrecked on orders from Berlin are all said to be reflected in the rapid succession of scenes filmed for this martial kaleidoscope.

The ramifications of German spies and agents of destruction have long since been confirmed by a series of exposures which have brought the war very close home to Americans. These exposures have provided a wealth of material for a serial of this sort, and the difficulty has been to choose a limited number of incidents out of the hundreds available which could be utilized in the filming of "A Daughter of Uncle Sam."

Jane Vance as the heroine takes the part of the main ferreter out of enemy spies, seconded by William Sorelle as an American Army officer.

Two things have been accomplished in limiting each episode to one reel. Dramatic quality has been obtained, it is said, by crowding a sufficient number of incidents to make two reels into the one-reel episode. The elimination of draggy scenes is said to have speeded up the action sufficiently to guarantee that there will be no dull moments.

The first episode of "A Daughter of Uncle Sam" is expected to be ready Jan. 19. Advance inquiries indicate an unusually attractive list of bookings.

June Elvidge Mends "Broken Ties"

"Broken Ties" is announced as the title of the World-Picture Brady-Made in which June Elvidge will next appear as the star player. Arthur Ashley is to be featured with Miss Elvidge in this photoplay, in which the heroine, finding herself in a harrowing situation, hemmed in from every side, takes the crisis into her own hands and works out her destiny unaided.

New Producing Company Gets Started

A new producing company has begun operations in New York, its object being to provide a series of single-reel comedies.

The Sargent Film Corporation, under which name it is organized, has taken lease of a studio on the Fort Lee side of the Hudson river and has begun filming its subjects, which will feature as comedienne Edith Sargent, formerly a Universal player. The productions are under the personal supervision of George Orth, who has had experience with the Biograph, Eclair, Gaumont, Yankee, Republic and Victor companies. An excellent supporting company for Miss Sargent has been engaged.

The cinematographer for the new organization is Otto Schaefer, well known among the Jacksonville studios and more recently chief cameraman for the Tisdale Films of New York.

Negotiations are said to be on for the release of the Sargent product through one of the large distributing companies.

Melford Builds Town in Hawaii

Director George H. Melford, who recently took his Lasky Players, headed by Sessue Hayakawa and Margaret Loomis, to Hawaii for scenes in Paramount's "Hidden Pearls," built a native city in one day, it is said on the beach at Kalapana.

The company at the islands consisted of George H. Melford, the director; Claude H. Mitchell, assistant; Paul Perry, Henry Kotani and Edward Rice, cameraman, while the players included the star, Sessue Hayakawa, Margaret Loomis, Noah Beery, Clarence Geldart. Others in the cast who did not go to the islands are Theodore Roberts, Florence Vidor, Jack Holt, John Burton and Henry Woodward.

Reid Starts Detective Picture

Wallace Reid, Paramount star, who recently came to New York from California, will begin activities at the Famous Players studio shortly on a new type of story in which he will play a detective hero. The picture has been adapted from the book, "Marcell Levignet," by Elwyn Barron, the scenario for which has been made by Margaret Turnbull.

Paramount has announced that "The Thing We Love," a Paramount picture starring Wallace Reid and Kathlyn Williams is to be released February 18, following the appearance of Mr. Reid as a star in "Rimrock Jones," on January 21.

Petrova Engages Lucille Laverne

It was announced last week that Lucille Laverne, of the legitimate stage, has been engaged by Madame Petrova for a role in the star's third picture, called "The Life Mask."

Miss Laverne began her screen career with Paula Blacton, and since then has played with Maxine Elliott in "The Eternal Magdalene" and with Mary Garden in the Goldwyn production of "Thais."

D'Orsay Completes Work in Spoor Film

Lawrence D'Orsay has returned to New York, having completed his work in George K. Spoor's picture, "Ruggles of Red Gap." Mr. D'Orsay assumed the role of "The Honorable George" in this Taylor Holmes production.

"Ruggles of Red Gap" was completed on the last day of the old year. Director L. C. Windom was compelled to work his company overtime during the last few days, as the scene-taking in Arizona ate up more time than had been anticipated.

Paramount Changes Name of Ray Film

Charles Ray's newest picture for Paramount, work on which has been started and which was announced under the title of "Let's Go!" has shed the latter name, and is now known as "The Family Skeleton."

Sylvia Bremer is Ray's chief feminine support.

Ann Pennington Spreads Sunshine

Alice Hegan Rice's novel, "Calvary Alley," which as "Sunshine Nan" is Ann Pennington's next vehicle on the Paramount program, is said to be full of human interest. Miss Pennington plays the part of Nance Molloy, of the slums, who evolves gradually into a position of respect in the world without imposing upon credulity. The story is said to be replete with action and radiates with comedy situations particularly adapted to the star.

Ann Pennington, Star of "Sunshine Nan," for Paramount

Vitagraph Serial Is Started

West Coast Studios Are Scene of Action, with Hedda Nova and Frank Glendon Starred—In Fifteen Episodes

ON Wednesday, January 2, Vitagraph formally inaugurated production at its West Coast studios of "The Woman in the Web," the fifteen-episode serial starring Hedda Nova and Frank Glendon, which will be released immediately upon the conclusion of the first run of "Vengeance —and the Woman."

Like its predecessors, "The Fighting Trail" and "Vengeance—and the Woman," this serial is said to be punctuated with incidents that require unusual outdoor locations such as furnished by the vast tracts of mountain land surrounding the California studios of Vitagraph. The story, which is the joint work of Albert E. Smith, president of Vitagraph and Cyrus Townsend Brady, is claimed to be of an entirely different nature, however, than that of the other serials and deals with international episodes that require a variety of exterior and interior setting.

The plot carries the players over three-quarters of the globe, from Petrograd, through Russia and many of the warring countries of Europe. Since it is manifestly impossible to film episodes in the actual locale of the story, Director David Smith, brother of the Vitagraph president, has thoroughly mapped out a tour of the west coast states, covering those locations necessary for the action of the story.

Hedda Nova is considered by Albert E. Smith to be the ideal actress for the leading role.

With the addition of a new stage 300 by 150 feet, two new concrete buildings for dressing rooms and storage of sets, and improved photographic facilities of the latest type, the Western Vitagraph studio is perfectly equipped for the production requirements of this serial, which will be more elaborate in scenic investiture than any previous Vitagraph production.

"The time is past when a serial may be ground out as so many disjointed reels of incidents," stated Mr. Smith in reviewing plans for launching the new production. We must give to them an entirely different type of story than we employ for five-reel subjects, just as the novelist treats his fiction material quite differently than does a short story writer. There must be a vital theme, carrying a big train of thought in a simple, direct way, and this is what Mr. Brady and I have endeavored to do in 'The Woman in the Web.' The success of 'The Fighting Trail' and 'Vengeance—and the Woman' has exceeded my most optimistic hopes, and this new serial will surely go them one better.

"Over the Top" Is Under Way

Vitagraph Shoots First Scenes with Sergeant Empey on January 2—President Smith Supervises Production Work

SERGEANT ARTHUR GUY EMPEY, Lois Meredith and a company of Vitagraph artists, started work on Wednesday, January 2, on "Over the Top." As announced last week, this melodrama has for its basis Empey's war book, "Over the Top," which has been read by over two and a half million people.

Albert E. Smith, president of the Vitagraph Company, is himself supervising the production of this feature with the assistance of Wilfrid North, production manager of the Eastern studios, and Sergeant Empey, whose intimate knowledge of trench life should assure the accuracy of the settings.

Coincident with the Vitagraph production of "Over the Top," it is said, there will be four distinct nation wide advertising and publicity drives. First, there will be the advertising and publicity campaign made by Vitagraph on behalf of its production. Second, there will be the Empey lecture tour, which will carry him over the entire country. Third, there will be the simultaneous publication in newspapers all over the country of his syndicated articles. Fourth, there will be the continued drive by G. P. Putnam & Sons, his book publishers, on "Over the Top," and on Empey's new book, "First Call; or, Guide Posts to Berlin," which was published on January 5.

Vitagraph claims that never before in the history of the industry has any production been released that has had so many parallel publicity and advertising drives made, each in independent channels, but all combining to a single smash to put over a personality. Walter W. Irwin, general manager of Vitagraph distributing organization, calls particular attention to the fact that this is not a promise of what is to be done, but points out that these drives are being made now. He says that a glance at the records of Empey's accomplishments, the sale of his book, the sums raised by him for the Liberty Loan, the smoke funds, and the Red Cross, and the ovations that he has been accorded at all of his public appearances, bear witness of the appeal that Sergeant Empey makes to the American public. This appeal, Mr. Irwin says, is the guarantee to exhibitors of months of capacity business on the big picture.

Essanay Selects Girls for Comedies

Essanay has selected several dozen girls from a group of nearly two hundred to appear in its General Film one-a-week comedies, it was announced last week.

The release for January 12 is "One Night," depicting the wholesale complications arising from the innocent efforts of a "gentleman drunk" to regain his hat, fallen to the sidewalk from his hotel room window. In it figure many girls alarmed in the middle of the night by the cry of "burglar" and a number of characters that are said to afford many laughs.

Annette Kellermann, She of the Form Divine, Has Completed for William Fox What Is Said to Be a Marvelous Sub-Sea Photofantasy, Called "Queen of the Sea"

Fox Prepares a New Standard

"Cheating the Public" Is Second of Producer's Cinemelodramas That Claim Drury Lane Thrills—Released January 20

"STRONGER, bigger, more gripping than 'The Honor System'" is William Fox's description of the second in his series of one-a-year, all star productions which he calls "cinemelodramas" and which he promised at the time of their inauguration would surpass even the stirring spectacles of the Drury Lane theatre.

"The Honor System," which, according to the Fox management is one of the biggest money makers it has ever put on the market, was the first of this series and the prediction is made that the new production, "Cheating the Public," will far surpass its predecessor from a box office standpoint. Exhibitors who have been invited to see prerelease showings are quoted, by the Fox publicity department, not only as being enthusiastic over the picture, but as attributing to it melodramatic qualities of an unprecedented sort.

"'Cheating the Public,'" said Mr. Fox, "not only has a great deal in common with 'The Honor System,' but decidedly surpasses it in quality and quantity of high grade thrills and in strong, compelling, vital heart interest. It is melodrama of the highest order. It expresses exactly what I meant when I coined the word 'cinemelodrama.' Food profiteering and child labor conditions in factories are phases of the story, and furnish the underlying theme of the plot, but it is by no means dependent on these factors either for its remarkable appeal or for success."

The production, it is announced, is to be released January 20, as a Standard Picture and will be the first release of the year in that series. The cast includes Enid Markey, Wanda Petit, Frankie Lee, Ralph Lewis, Bertram Grassby, Tom Wilson and several others. It was directed by Richard Stanton, who made "The Spy," and the story is by Mary Murillo. Mr. Stanton and Edward Sedgwick wrote the scenario.

It is declared that a record-breaking price was paid for the story and that the cost of the production was in excess of $350,000.

Dalton Company Works on New Feature

DOROTHY DALTON and company have returned to Los Angeles from Chatsworth Park, where exteriors were photographed for a Paramount picture starring Thomas H. Ince star, to be released February 4. The company has recently been "on location" at an immense stone quarry, belonging to Los Angeles County, in order to get the proper atmosphere for some mining-construction scenes.

Miss Dalton, in the role of a resourceful Western girl, is called upon to settle a strike of workmen at this place. In her new picture, Miss Dalton will have the support of what Paramount claims to be the best company that she has ever had. Jack Holt will play the leading role, opposite Miss Dalton, while William Conklin, Melbourne MacDowell, Robert McKim and Dorcas Matthews will appear in parts in which they are expected to have splendid chances for actual individual achievement.

Mr. McKim, in particular, after playing almost every sort of a screen villain that the Ince staff of scenario experts could devise, will offer in this new Dorothy Dalton picture a characterization that is said to be entirely different from anything he has yet made known, and at the same time he will be as polished and as suave in his villainies as ever.

Metro Adds Reed to Scenario Staff

Luther Reed has been added to Metro's staff of scenario writers, it was announced last week. Mr. Reed is a well-known newspaper man and scenario writer who has been identified with Paramount, Universal and other motion picture companies.

Jewel Gets Rights to a Painting

Jewel Productions, Inc., announced last week that it has secured, through its publicity department, the rights to publication of the "Chase portrait" of Edward Everett Hale, author of "The Man Without a Country."

The picture, which is the property of Thomas P. August, of New York, has been loaned to the Boston Museum of Fine Arts and is the work of the late William Merritt Chase. At the time of the sitting Dr. Hale was seventy-five years old. The picture will be used in the publicity campaign for "The Man Without a Country," by both Jewel and the American Defense Society.

Letters Ask About New Brenon Film

Since the announcement was made that Bert Lytell was to appear in a sequel to "The Lone Wolf," the Herbert Brenon Film Corporation—which controls the rights of distribution, claims that it has been besieged with letters from all sections of the country, asking for option on the rights, and information concerning the probable release date of the picture.

Margarita Fischer Suits the Action to the Word in "Molly Go Get 'Em," an American-Mutual Production

Motherhood Theme for Kitty Gordon

Kitty Gordon's next World-Picture Brady-Made is called "The Divine Sacrifice," and centres about motherhood, it is said. A man, whose marriage has been childless through the refusal of his wife, seeks parenthood elsewhere and finds happiness with it. But when the daughter of this informal union grows up and is sought in wedlock a difficult and poignant problem is presented, calling for an exhibition of truly Spartan courage.

Kane Tries for an Army Commission

Robert T. Kane, vice-president of the Paralta Studios in Los Angeles, who was recently made sergeant-major of trains at Camp Lewis, in the state of Washington, as announced in MOTION PICTURE NEWS, is now as high as the non-commissioned ranks extend, and is studying for a commission as second lieutenant.

Hulette and Hale Start New Comedy

Under the direction of Albert Parker, a new Pathe comedy called "Annexing Bill," starring Gladys Hulette and Creighton Hale, has been started, it was announced last week.

The story has been adapted for the screen from Edgar Franklyn's story which was published in a magazine.

In the cast supporting the stars will be seen Marguerite Greene, Marc Smith, Helen Tracey, Saxon King and Frank Nelson.

Santa Claus Remembers Film Chiefs

War, the coal and sugar shortage and other attendant current difficulties failed to put a damper on the spirits of Santa Claus when he started to make his Christmas rounds of the motion picture companies. Everybody was remembered, but some more so than others.

Walter W. Irwin, general manager of Vitagraph's distributing organization, found a magnificent library desk set in his stocking, figuratively speaking, as a Yuletide token from members of the home office staff. The set consists of eight pieces, made of bronze and inlaid with silver.

Thomas H. Ince, on the West Coast, was given a mink-lined auto coat, robe and full equipment, by Artcraft employees, and William S. Hart was master of ceremonies. E. H. Allen received a golf set.

Colored Players Appear in Storey Film

Two well-known colored players are members of the cast that supports Edith Storey in her initial Metro picture, "The Eyes of Mystery," directed by Tod Browning from the scenario of June Mathis, which was based on the novel, "The House in the Mist," by Octavius Roi Cohen and J. U. Giesy.

Vitagraph Speeds Up a Bit

Greets 1918 by Launching Production Drive—Puts Seven Companies in Action on Features—Empey Picture Included

ONE of the most noticeable production drives in the company's history was begun by Vitagraph on Jan. 2, when seven companies started to work on as many features. Two of these will be extra-reel productions, four will be regular Blue Ribbon features and one a fifteen-episode serial. New Year activities began simultaneously in the eastern and western studios of the company.

One of the more important projects undertaken is the eight-reel feature, "Over the Top," with Sergeant Arthur Guy Empey, soldier-author, and Lois Meredith working under the direction of Albert E. Smith, president of Vitagraph, and Wilfrid North, supervising director of the company.

Of equal importance to Vitagraph is the patriotic feature which is to be produced for the State of New York by the State Defense Council and which will show how New York State is dealing with the spy problem. Governor Whitman of New York will appear in the picture, together with Corinne Griffith and Webster Campbell, and the production will be under the direction of John Robertson, with President Smith acting in an advisory capacity.

Earle Williams and Grace Darmond, who arrived on the Pacific Coast Christmas Day, rested over the holidays and last Wednesday morning started work under the direction of Tom Mills in an O. Henry subject which will be released as a five-reel Blue Ribbon Feature.

Alice Joyce, with an all-star company, is working in "The Song of the Soul," a Blue Ribbon feature, under the direction of Tom Terriss. She has in her support a cast including Walter McGrail, Barney Randall, Percy Standing, young Stephen Carr and Edith Reeves.

In addition to the seven productions started on the first working day of the New Year, the Vitagraph company has under production "The Wooing of Princess Pat," in which Gladys Leslie is to be featured with Frank Glendon.

President Smith announced a few weeks ago that this would be one of the biggest years, from a production standpoint, in the history of his company. He said that the company's program of feature releases this year would be made from the works of recognized authors, for the most part. In order to get one hundred per cent production for the twelve months of the year, President Smith has had the Vitagraph Western studio greatly enlarged, so that it will now accommodate almost as many companies as will the studio in Brooklyn.

Paralta Plays Start Nicely

San Antonio Theatre Signs to Run Them Nine Consecutive Days, Chalking Up a Record for the Live Texas Town

PARALTA PLAYS, the first of which presented J. Warren Kerrigan in "A Man's Man," in addition to sweeping the industry with unusual interest on the occasion of their birth, are likewise sweeping the country with genuine contracts that augur well for Paralta and its distributing system, through W. W. Hodkinson.

The following telegram, which greatly pleased President Carl Anderson last week, is indicative of the strides being made by Paralta. "Just closed contract with Lytle and Epstein, Empire theatre, San Antonio, for nine consecutive days on all Paralta productions. This gives Paralta a longer run than any other productions played in San Antonio."

It was the belief of Mr. Anderson and the Paralta officials that the exhibitors of the country were not getting the full return from feature photoplays that was possible and that the theatre of the silent drama should be developed in the matter of runs until it stood on a par with the theatre of articulate drama in this respect. That the Paralta productions are bringing about this condition of longer runs in screen theatres is evident.

"We are quite convinced that the day of longer runs in the motion picture theatres is at hand," said President Anderson, "and we believe that the motion picture industry has entered upon a new era of prosperity. If a picture is good it is a waste of many elements to allow it only a short run.

"Every good picture will do a certain amount of self advertising, that is word of mouth advertising, and this is the most valuable kind of advertising—the kind, without which no theatre could long exist, but where a theatre runs a picture only a day, this kind of advertising is practically lost.

"There is always plenty of potential patronage for a good picture in a city of any size and a longer run gives a theatre manager a chance to develop it through vigorous advertising campaigns."

"Kid McCoy" Cast in Select Picture

Norman Selby, known in the roped arena as "Kid McCoy," has been engaged by Clara Kimball Young for a part in "The House of Glass," which Miss Young and her own company are producing at the New Rochelle studio. Selby, it is said, will have the role of a detective, in which his pugilistic art will assume dramatic aspects for the benefit of the camera.

The casting for "The House of Glass" is practically completed. The vacancy made by Nigel Barrie's enlistment in the Royal Flying Corps has been filled by Pell Trenton, and Miss Young's leading man will be Corliss Giles, who supported her in "Shirley Kaye."

Metro Acquires "Lest We Forget" Story

METRO Pictures Corporation announced this week its acquisition of "Lest We Forget," the war spectacle in which Rita Jolivet is starred. The deal, which was consummated some weeks ago between the original producers, Count de Cippico and J. L. Kempner, and Richard A. Rowland and W. E. Atkinson, of Metro, gives Metro the entire rights to big photo-drama.

Metro regards the picture, according to announcements, as the most powerful and significant that has yet been made by it around the world war, and intends to present it shortly at one of the Broadway theatres as a Metro special production de luxe. Before this presentation, however, the picture will be completely re-arranged and many new scenes taken of important events that had not come to light at the time of the original filming. This work will be in the hands of Charles A. Taylor.

Metro declares that "Lest We Forget" has already received the indorsement of many Government officials as a good medium to bring home to thinking and patriotic Americans the tremendous issues at stake in the war and the righteousness of its cause. It is wholly American in theme and treatment, and its presentation of the incidents which finally plunged the United States into the war is said to be a masterly defense of this country's course and a stirring reminder of the grievous wrongs suffered at the hands of autocratic Germany.

The story is founded on the series of historical events which led up to the declaration of war on Germany and her allies, and includes in many scenes a reproduction of the sinking of the Lusitania. Miss Jolivet herself was a passenger on this illfated leviathan.

Helen Gardner Airs Her Picture Views

HELEN GARDNER, star of a re-issue of the motion picture, "Cleopatra," which is being distributed by the Cleopatra Film Company, last week in an announcement had the following to say: "Whoever sees several of the best class of picture dramas that are made today—those that are written by very thoughtful writers, directed by men of dramatic instinct and good taste, and played by actors and actresses of dominating personalities—whoever sees several of these productions and then loftily scouts the suggestion that the picture drama is an art of subliminal importance is more to be pitied than despised. Such a person, if he pretends himself to be an artist—and I have heard of such persons—is either an extremely narrow-visioned creature who himself will never produce a work of art, or else a mere jealous cat.

"Only last week I read a statement written by Tom Moore, a big exhibitor, that made me thrill with pleasure, and convinced me that the old days of the knock-down-and-drag-'em-out kind were gone. Mr. Moore's letter is a clarion note—the sound of the gun that ushers in the sunrise of new and better days. More strength to Mr. Moore and his kind! Such exhibitors mean the ultimate freedom of all artists who today are clutched by the throat by penny-changers who call themselves 'producers.' They mean the disenslavement of the picture patrons to this hoard of cheap 'programme' productions, occasionally camouflaged with a worthwhile one."

Second Petrova Picture Takes Shape

THE ever dominant appeal of "mother-love" is said to be strongly typified in the role essayed by Madame Olga Petrova in the production following "Daughter of Destiny," the first Petrova picture. This picture is now being prepared for a release date, shortly to be announced simultaneously with the title which has been withheld up to the present time.

The part in question is said to give the star a chance to display the full scope of the emotional qualities of her art, and it is claimed she has taken full advantage of this opportunity.

The part of Laurel Carlisle, woman surgeon and mother of four-year-old Donald, her idolized little son, brings out sharply, it is said, the individual characteristics of the professional woman and the mother. In the sharp conflict precipitated between these two factors by the urge of duty against that of mother-love, Madame Petrova is expected to contribute a realistic bit of acting. The scenes setting forth this particular situation are said by her press agent to abound in human interest and poignant heart appeal, and that the emotional heights attained by the star should silence forever those who have taken exception to her "repression."

The writer responsible for the story of the latest Petrova play is Mrs. L. Case Russell, who scenarioized the play from her original novel, "Laurel Carlisle, M. D." It has been directed by Larry Trimble, responsible for the Goldwyn production, "The Auction Block," and is enacted by a cast including Thomas Holding, Lumsden Hare, Freddie Verdi and the Vitagraph collie, Jean.

Edna Goodrich Completes Sixth Film

Edna Goodrich, star in a series of photoplays for the Mutual Film Corporation, has completed at the studios of the Empire All-Star Corporation, Glendale, L. I., the sixth of her productions.

The play has not yet been titled, but has been produced under the working title of "Art and the Girl." It casts Miss Goodrich as an artist's model.

The release date of the picture has not been set. It will follow in the Goodrich series, "Her Second Husband," which was released December 31. Miss Goodrich's plays for Mutual have included "Reputation," "Queen X," "A Daughter of Maryland" and "Her Second Husband."

Hazel Daly Leads in Selig Picture

Hazel Daly, who created the role of "Honey" in "Skinner's Dress Suit" and other pictures of that series, is co-starred with Tom Moore, whose most recent appearance was in Goldwyn's "The Cinderella Man," in Selig's production of "Brown of Harvard," which has been completed and has been given a trade showing. Sydney Ainsworth is chief in support of the stars in the six-part picture.

Harry Beaumont, director of the Skinner and many Walthall pictures, adapted the screen version and directed its production.

Universal House Organ Changes Style

Universal has put into effect its one New Year's resolution—to instil a definite purpose into its house organ, called Moving Picture Weekly. Heretofore the publication has been conducted with a view to interesting "fans" in the Universal product and its circulation has been largely gained through sales, in bulk, to various exhibitors throughout the country. These copies were, in turn, distributed by showmen to patrons of their theatre to awaken interest in the Universal product as shown at the specific house thus advertised. Under the new purpose the Moving Picture Weekly will be conducted exclusively to serve exhibitors themselves in advertising and promoting Universal's product.

Joe Maxwell Enters Producing Field

Joe Maxwell, for twenty-five years an actor, and who has for the past fifteen years conducted a vaudeville producing agency in New York, has decided to enter the producing end of the picture industry, and is now making his first subject in Hollywood.

Maxwell has secured what he declares is an unusual story for his first subject. The title is "The Married Virgin," by Hayden Talbot, who wrote "Alimony." The same director who made "Alimony," Emmett J. Flynn, is also directing "The Married Virgin," although the picture is being "shot" under Maxwell's personal supervision.

Acrobatics Are Included in Vic Moore's Latest Klever Komedy, "Oh U Boat"

Advance Offerings of the Programs

"Clarion Call" Promises Big Climaxes

General Film Company, in an announcement this week concerning "The Clarion Call," claims that O. Henry's penchant for providing last-minute climaxes of an unusual nature has never been illustrated to better advantage than in this film story, which is a current release in the General series of Broadway features.

The plot is said to be a swiftly moving romance in which a battle of wits between two friends is featured. Walter McGrail and Alice Terry, who have won distinction in the O. Henry stories, are featured in this production.

Following "The Clarion Call" will come "The Hiding of Black Bill," a dramatic western story. Chet Ryan and W. L. Rodgers are featured.

First Tom Mix Drama Is Ready

It was announced this week by the Fox Film Corporation that Tom Mix will make his debut as a star of Western dramas in a production entitled "Cupid's Round Up," which will be released Jan. 13 as a Fox Special feature. The former comedian is cast this time as a rich man's son, temporarily turned cowboy, who is betrothed in youth to a daughter of his father's best friend—a young woman whom he has not seen since childhood and regarding whose subsequent development he knows nothing. The young woman is Wanda Petit.

Tom Mix, Cowboy Star, Has Completed for William Fox His First Drama as a Star, Called "Cupid's Roundup"

Others in the cast, besides the star and Miss Petit, are E. B. Tilton, Roy Watson, Verne Mesereau, Al Padgett, Fred Clark, Eugenie Ford and Barney Furey. The story was written by George Scarborough and the scenario is by Charles Kenyon. Edward J. Le Saint did his first work as a member of the Fox forces in directing this picture.

"The Impostor" Is Completed

Ann Murdock Is the Star of Newest Five-Reel Mutual Subject, Scheduled for Release on January 14

IT was announced last week that Ann Murdock, at the head of her own company, has completed "The Impostor," a five-reel comedy-drama, and the picture has been scheduled for release January 14.

This production, made by the Empire All Star Corporation under the direction of Dell Henderson, is a screen adaptation of the play of the same name first produced at the Garrick theatre, New York, by Charles Frohman. After an extended run there it was produced at the Duke of York's theatre, London. The play is based on a story by Leonard Merrick and dramatized by Michael Morton, an American dramatist, whose writings are already well known.

The action is built around the vicissitudes of Mary Fenton, a young lady of refinement who, through unfortunate circumstances, finds herself penniless and without friends in New York. Meeting Charles Owen, a chivalrous but indiscreet young married man, she accepts the hospitality of his hotel apartments, where embarrassing complications ensue, from which she is finally extricated and placed on the road to happiness by Owen.

"Burglars" is the title of the Strand comedy, starring Billie Rhodes, released January 15. They aren't real burglars, however; only Billie and her cousin, an adventurous young chap, mistake each other for burglars when they both try to break into their uncle's house at night. They're both arrested, but uncle arrives in time to prevent their spending the night in a dark cell.

The Mutual Weekly, released January 14, is said to contain the usual quota of subjects.

Bessie Love Finishes Picture

Frank Keenan Also Completes His First Pathe Subject and Both Stars Begin Their Second Features in East

FROM the Pathe publicity offices it was announced this week that Frank Keenan and Bessie Love have completed their first Pathe Plays, and have already started work on their second features under their new banner.

Mr. Keenan's finished picture is "Loaded Dice," scenarioized by Gilson Willetts from the novel by Hillary A. Clark, and directed by Herbert Blache. This is said by Pathe to be a powerful drama affording the star probably the strongest role he has ever had. He is supported by a big cast, including Florence Billings. The timeliness of the story is expected to be shown by the fact that it deals with food profiteering.

The one to follow it, according to reports from the studio, is even stronger. This is called "Simeon's Shadow," and is directed by Ernest Warde, more than half of the scenes having been completed in record time. It deals with a great railroad man, who lives for and by his road, giving it his supreme efforts.

Miss Love's initial Pathe picture is "Spring of the Year," from Henry Kitchell Webster's "The Painted Scene," produced under the direction of Mme. Alice Blache, formerly director-general of the Gaumont Company in Paris, with the following cast: Chester Barnett, Donald Hall, Flora Finch, Florence Short, Walter Craven and Jack Dunn. The story is of a little country girl, who comes to the city, and through sheer charm of youth and innocence makes good on the stage.

Her new Pathe Play is "How Could You, Carolyn?" by Zola Forrester, which is being directed by Frederick Thomson, the company having already gone to Lakewood, N. J., for snow scenes.

"Romanoffs" Claims Good Patronage

Following the announcement of the launching of Herbert Brenon's "Fall of the Romanoffs" at the new Forest Hill theatre, in Newark, comes the news of the interest with which the feature was received at the Loew theatres in Greater New York. All the Marcus Loew theatres in Greater New York exhibited the film beginning January 2. The bookings were made for several consecutive days at a time. A widespread advertising campaign preceded the showing of the picture on the circuit.

Hodkinson Sets Paralta Release Dates

Following the announcement that no definite release date could be set on the first two Paralta Plays released by W. W. Hodkinson, starring J. Warren Kerrigan and Bessie Barriscale, it was reported from the Paralta offices last week that the third Paralta Play, presenting Henry Walthall, will be released January 15, and in the future one picture will be released each week.

Madge Evans and George MacQuarrie Are Featured in "Gates of Gladness," a World-Brady Picture

World Pictures Ready Ahead

Company Plans to Release One Each Week, With Schedule Set to March 18—Many Stars Included

THE World Film Corporation's new release sheet is said to announce the release of World-Pictures Brady-Made at the regular rate of one each week up to and including March 18.

The list begins with "The Beautiful Mrs. Reynolds," the story of Alexander Hamilton and Aaron Burr, written by Samuel M. Weller, with many historical scenes in old New York and Washington, D. C., and a cast including Carlyle Blackwell, June Elvidge, Evelyn Greeley and Arthur Ashley.

On January 28, Madge Evans, in "Gates of Gladness" will be the attraction, and George MacQuarrie will be featured with her. Parts of this picture play are laid in the art colony around Washington Square, and other parts in Georgian Court, the estate of George Gould at Lakewood.

On February 4, Kitty Gordon, in "The Divine Sacrifice," will make her newest appearance upon the World program. The psychology of this photoplay concerns the measure of justification falling to a husband who seeks the human privilege of fatherhood elsewhere when his wife refuses to assume the responsibility of bearing children. Miss Gordon plays the self-sacrificing mother, and her daughter, Vera Beresford, appears as the child. In the company are: Jean Angelo, formerly leading man with Sarah Bernhardt; Selene Johnson, Charles Dungan, and others. George Archainbaud directed "The Divine Sacrifice," and Philip Hatkin operated the camera.

"Whims of Society," with Ethel Clayton as its star, will be released February 11—a play in which the stern old factory owner is about to disinherit his son for perfectly honorable attentions to a girl in the factory, but before he can sign the document a disgruntled employee blows up the structure, owner and all. In this picture play, besides Miss Clayton, are Pinna Nesbit, Katherine Johnston, Frank Mayo, Jack Drumier, and others. The director is Travers Vale; cameraman, Max Schneider.

June Elvidge and Arthur Ashley in "Broken Ties" will be seen February 18; Carlyle Blackwell and Evelyn Greeley in "A Leap to Fame," February 25; Alice Brady in a new comedy-drama, "The Spurs of Sybil," March 4; Kitty Gordon in "The Wasp," March 11; and Madge Evans in "Wanted, a Mother," March 18.

Pathe Promises Novelty in Feature

A distinct novelty in story and in dramatic construction is promised in the Pathe feature, completed under the working title of "The Mysterious Client."

This picture, the first made under the direction of Fred Wright since his return to the Pathe Company, has Irene Castle in the star part, supported by Milton Sills, Warner Oland and Caesare Gravin. It was produced from a script prepared by Roy Somerville from a story by an anonymous author.

Early West Figures in Dana Feature

"The Winding Trail," a forthcoming Metro Star Series production starring Viola Dana, is said by Metro to be replete with interesting detail and incident of the days of the early West. Katharine Kavanaugh and June Mathis, the authors, have laid their story in the 1870's, and Director John H. Collins has reproduced the life of the times with great fidelity, it is claimed.

Scenes picturing the progress of a caravan of prairie schooners across the Mojave desert are shown. One scene showing a fifty-mile sweep of the desert was obtained by John Arnold, who has photographed most of Miss Dana's Metro pictures. The struggles of the pioneers who heeded the call of the West were relieved by the Metro players, who made their headquarters at the town of Mojave. In order to secure exactness of detail and atmosphere, the Metro technical staff built an adobe house with a large patio, some miles out on the desert, for the staging of both exterior and interior scenes.

"Madame Jealousy" Scheduled for Release

The date of release of Pauline Frederick's next picture for Paramount, following "Mrs. Dane's Defence," has been announced by that organization. The picture is George V. Hobart's allegorical morality play entitled "Madame Jealousy," and will be released Feb. 4.

The subject matter is said to be entirely new to the films and is said to make a most unusual and interesting production.

Monroe Salisbury, with Ruth Clifford in a New Bluebird Feature

Vitagraph Releases Story by Chesters

George Randolph and Lillian Chester will be represented on the Vitagraph program by "The Wild Strain," the Blue Ribbon Feature announced for release the week of January 14 by Albert E. Smith, president of the company. Nell Shipman, with Alfred Whitman playing opposite her, is featured in this five-reel production, which was directed at the western Vitagraph studio by William Wolbert.

"The Wild Strain" is said to be one of the very best stories the Chesters have ever written, combining a delicate satire, wit and sharply drawn dramatic incidents. The screen version is declared to be fully in keeping with the original story.

Spanuth Closes His New Distribution Deal

H. A. Spanuth, president of Commonwealth Pictures Corporation, announced in Chicago last week that he has closed a deal with the Central Film Company whereby the latter is to handle "The Frozen Warning," featuring Charlotte, for Illinois, Indiana and the southern half of Wisconsin. This places the distribution of the picture in the hands of the well known exhibiting firms of Ascher Brothers and Jones, Linick & Schaefer, who immediately booked the film for their respective chains of theatres.

The Central Film Company will give a trade showing early in January, and Mr. Spanuth declared that Charlotte, herself, will appear at all the Chicago houses where her picture is being shown.

Four Stars Appear in "Hidden Hand"

The reason "The Hidden Hand" is called the "big four-star serial," according to Pathe, is because it stars Doris Kenyon and features Sheldon Lewis, Arline Pretty and Mahlon Hamilton, four well-known favorites of filmdom.

Madge Kennedy, a Goldwyn Trademark of Excellence

Triangle Diversity Continues

Two Features for Week of January 13 Star Alma Rubens and Roy Stewart—New Style of Thriller

TRIANGLE has announced for release the week of January 13, two features that should, according to Triangle traditions and claims, come up in every way to the diversified program policy of the company. One is a love story of foreign color, and the other a western story said to give an entirely new angle from which to construct a thriller.

The second seven-part feature to be produced under the new Triangle plan of a seven-reel picture every month will be released the first part of the week, under the title, "I Love You," with Alma Rubens as the star. The story centers around Felice, an Italian girl of exceptional beauty, who sits for a painting by a French artist, Jules Marton (Francis McDonald). He makes love to her and after she learns to love him, he leaves her

The scenes for the production are laid in France and Italy and the scenic displays are said to be of particular attractiveness. In one case the manuscript called for a Venetian scene and Director Edwards had two palaces and the Grand Canal of Venice reproduced, from which especially brilliant night effects were made. A street carnival was also taken.

For the second part of the week's program, "Law's Outlaw," featuring Roy Stewart, delineator of western characters, will be released. The story was written by Ethel and James Dorrance, and deals with Charles Easton (Roy Stewart), who is defeated for the office of sheriff in a far western town. In spite of the fact that he is urged to contest the election, he refuses. Easton has planned to marry Rose Davidson (Fritzi Ridgeway), and with a sheriff's salary he would have been able to do so. But under the circumstances the union is impossible.

"Dimples and Dangers," featuring Harry Gribbon, will be the Keystone Comedy for the week of January 13. Gribbon appears as a dancing master with a class composed of Keystone beauties. In spite of the fact that he is married to Claire Anderson, Gribbon indulges in many flirtations and the picture is said to be replete with action throughout. One funny scene is shown when Gribbon mistakes his mother-in-law for the new maid and welcomes the real maid as if she were a queen. Gribbon's mixing of personalities has him in hot water for a long while.

"A Straight Cook" and "A Marriage Not," one-reel Triangle Komedies, are included in the week's program.

Paralta Plays Orders Additional Prints

ONE of the first announcements from the offices of Paralta Plays since the launching of the new year carries the news that the demand for the first Paralta Plays to be distributed through the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation, J. Warren Kerrigan in Peter B. Kyne's "A Man's Man," and Bessie Barriscale in Harold MacGrath's "Madam Who?" has been very heavy and is continuing to such an extent that Paralta has ordered a large increase in the number of positive prints.

Paralta is said to be congratulating itself that the capacity of the studios is now being doubled in order to enable the organization to meet the demands.

It is said that many exhibitors went to the exchanges after they had booked "A Man's Man" and stated that they wished to book at once "Madam Who?" as well as that they did not wish to take a chance of being deprived, owing to heavy demand, of an early chance to show the Barriscale release as well as the Kerrigan to their patrons.

Among the houses which have already booked the first two Paralta plays, "A Man's Man" and "Madam Who?" are a hundred houses of the class which maintain large orchestras and present photoplays for runs. These houses were said to be satisfied with the music scores which are a feature of Paralta Plays. They declared that the music was not only appropriate and atmospheric but that it seemed especially suited to their orchestra.

Mutual May Give Russell Own Company

WILLIAM RUSSELL, Mutual star, stopped off in Chicago last week long enough to confer with Dennis Sullivan and Terry Ramsaye, vice-president and advertising manager, respectively, of Mutual Film Corporation, concerning a new contract for the coming year.

Mr. Russell was on his way to New York to see some producers there who have been offering him very tempting terms for 1918. Before going further East, however, he wanted to stop off and see whether his present employers would give him a studio of his own on the West Coast with his own company if he agreed to affix his signature to another contract with them. And when "big Bill" climbed aboard the Twentieth Century the matter of his future affiliations still hung in the balance.

"I must have my own studio and own company," he said. "That is the only basis on which I will agree to sign up with any company. I haven't been satisfied with my last pictures. I didn't feel that they were as good as I am capable of making. I had to hurry so to get them out on time that lots of things were slighted which I could attend to if I had my own company."

Fannie Ward is Starred in "Innocent," Announced as the First of the Big-Star Pathe Plays. The Feature is from an A. H. Woods' Legitimate Production

"Innocent" Stars Miss Ward January 27

IN "Innocent," the first of the Big Star Pathe Plays, which will be released on January 27, Fannie Ward is expected to be seen in a Chinese setting that will, no doubt, recall "The Cheat," but in theme "Innocent" is said to be entirely different from the tragic story.

For her debut as a Pathe star that company has selected a subject that promises abundant food for thought. From the psychological angle it asks the grave question, Should a woman be judged guilty who is engrained with the sins of her father? The film version of George Broadhurst's play leaves this vital question unanswered, but withal it has a pleasant ending. As the last scene of "Innocent" fades out, the spectator will be left undecided.

"Innocent," as a stage play produced by A. H. Woods, ran for a full season in New York City at the Eltinge theatre, and served as a starring vehicle for Pauline Frederick. In the screen version, Miss Ward, in the title-role, is supported by John Miltern, who played opposite Miss Frederick during the New York engagement of the piece, and the debonair Parisian is interpreted by Armand Kalitz, the well-known musical comedy star, formerly associated with Amelia Bingham.

Goldwyn Presents Film Play Within Play

THE combined endeavors of Edgar Selwyn and Aubrey M. Kennedy, the authors, and George Loane Tucker, the director, of Mabel Normand's newest Goldwyn production, "Dodging a Million," promises to make this mystery play of love and thrills one of the novel screen offerings of recent weeks. Together these three have hit upon an artifice that Goldwyn claims stamps the new picture as photographically and structurally something entirely out of the ordinary.

In the course of the action of "Dodging a Million," at a time when the hero, heroine and villain are well tied up in a knot of mysterious adventures, they seek the distraction of the theatre. The hero (Tom Moore) is unable to shake the villain (Armand Cortes), so that he can make love to the heroine (Mabel Normand), and accordingly the three are seated together watching the performance on the stage. It so happens that the play in progress is one of those exotic tales of love and murder against a background of Arabian Nights scenery and costumes; so the hero has every opportunity for the exercise of his imagination. As he looks over the footlights, the face of the villain there, who is about to stab the hero there, gradually metamorphoses into that of the dark Spaniard who sits beside him, the face of the hero into his own, and that of the heroine into Miss Normand's.

Paramount Plans to Release Woods Play

It was announced last week that Paramount is to release soon a photoplay version of A. H. Woods's presentation of his Broadway success, "The Guilty Man," which was presented at the Astor theatre in 1916.

This is the first A. H. Woods motion picture to be released by Paramount. Mr. Woods has for years been known as a producer of sure-fire dramatic successes.

A notable cast has been chosen for "The Guilty Man." Every character is portrayed by an artist. Gloria Hope is Claudine, the daughter. Vivian Reed plays the mother. William Garwood has the difficult part of Claude, and Charles French is Flambon.

Enid Bennett Feature Comes Soon

Announcement was made last week that the first Paramount picture, which will star Enid Bennett, under the personal supervision of Thomas H. Ince, will be released Feb. 11. The play, entitled, "The Keys of the Righteous," is now being filmed at the Ince studios.

Miss Bennett plays the part of Mary Manning, born in the big North forest, a peculiar little girl of striking contrast. She lives in the Wisconsin woods with her mother, grandfather and Uncle John. A love tradegy in her mother's life is the driving spirit behind the action of the young girl.

Unique Device Increases Dramatic Effect

In "Fields of Honor," the Goldwyn drama starring Mae Marsh, to be released January 14, an experiment in novel stage setting has been successfully carried out, it is claimed. Hugo Ballin, who now designs all details of Goldwyn productions, determined to do something which never before had been accomplished in motion pictures.

It is his contention that the effect of richness and harmony can be achieved without a superfluity of embellishment, and whereas the average art director, to register this, believes that the setting must be elaborate, Hugo Ballin expects to prove that elimination is the surest way to arrive at the same point.

Neighborhood Houses Report on Serial

Among the neighborhood houses which Mutual claims have reported favorably on the serial "The Lost Express" are: Fine Arts, Detroit; Opera House, Hartford, Wis.; Lane Court, Chicago; Lyric, Fort Dodge, Iowa; Opera House, Niles, Ohio; Palace, Lincoln, Nebr.; New Brand, Whitehall, N. Y.; Dunbar, Winston, N. C.; Park, South Manchester, Conn.; New Liberty, Cincinnati, Ohio; Texahoma, Fort Worth, Tex.; Paris, Santa Fe, N. M.; Orpheum, Anderson, Ind.; Bijou, Hibbing, Minn.; Pekin, Montgomery, Ala.; Judith, Lewiston, Mont.; Lyric, Annapolis, Md.; Garden, Philadelphia, Pa.; Empire, Pittsburgh, and Crescent, Little Rock, Ark.

Clayton Picture Gets Another Name

Leander Richardson announced last week that the title of Ethel Clayton's next World-Picture Brady-Made has been changed from "Two Women," which was rather vague, to "Whims of Society," which has the advantage of carrying a distinct suggestion.

The rich young man in this photoplay sets the beautiful but misused factory girl up in a fine apartment without any evil motive whatsoever, but gets himself disowned just the same—which makes it look for a time as if the "virtue is its own reward" adage worked backward. In the end, however, the young couple are literally bombed into happiness and plenty, according to Richardson.

"Parentage" Showing to Packed Houses in Mass.

"Parentage," Frank J. Seng's production, opened Keith's Boston theatre on Monday, December 24 and during that week played to 51,808 paid admissions. The following Monday, December 31, it opened a week's run in both the Central Square theatre, of Lynn, Mass., and Fox's theatre, in Springfield, Mass. On the opening day, in bitter cold weather, people stood in line for two hours. The house record was broken. Fred B. Murphy, whose United Film Service Exchange served Fox's theatre of Springfield, received the following wire on the last day of the old year from Fox's manager, Harry McDonald: "'Parentage' holding them out Monday afternoon with thermometer 12 below zero. It's a polar bear!"

Mary Garden Draws Singers to Strand

Mary Garden's debut as a motion picture star, in Goldwyn's production of "Thais" last week at the Strand theatre in New York, accomplished more than a mere triumph for the star and financial success for the theatre, apparently. Stars of the grand opera stage, who until now have carefully avoided the motion picture theatre, visited the Strand in large numbers, and were doubtless converted to the "movie" faith.

Julian Eltinge Takes His Prize Pups for a Plunge

Sullivan's Rise as Scenarioist Rapid

C. Gardner Sullivan, Ince-Triangle Scenario Department

C. GARDNER SULLIVAN, the screen writer, who, as announced previously in Motion Picture News, has signed a long-term contract with Thomas H. Ince to write exclusively for Ince productions in addition to serving as head of the Ince scenario department, began his career as a scenario writer about four years ago when he submitted sixty different stories to Ince, and all of them were accepted and produced. This followed a career as newspaper writer which began in Minneapolis, Minnesota. Following his work there he worked on newspapers in Chicago, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, and at the time of engagement by Ince in May, 1914, was employed on the New York Journal. It was while working on the Journal that Sullivan first wrote for the screen. He contributed a one-reel scenario to Edison which was accepted. This encouraged him, and he submitted stories written later to Edison, Lubin and Kalem. After this he submitted his first photoplay—one or two reels—to Thomas H. Ince, and it was purchased by the New York Motion Picture Corporation. Following this at intervals Sullivan continued to send to Ince one- and two-reel stories until a total of sixty had been purchased by the head of production of the New York Corporation. It was then that Mr. Ince made a salary proposition to Sullivan and induced him to come to the Inceville studios to serve as writer. From that time until Mr. Ince left the New York Company, he and Sullivan worked together on all stories that went into production for the various brands made by the New York Company.

Vic Moore New Satire Is Due January 14

ACCORDING to an announcement last week, Paramount aims to release on January 14, the newest Klever Komedy, called "Meatless Days and Sleepless Nights," a satire on the present day condition of food economy, with Victor Moore.

Vic is running a "lunch-urant" according to the Food Administration idea, by having a meatless day on Tuesday and a wheatless day on Wednesday. A janitor longing for a real taste of meat on pay day gets out and makes straight for Vic's, who is advertising a meal ticket for $5.00. The janitor buys one, figuring that every Tuesday he is off he will get a real feed of meat, but Vic informs him that it is Tuesday and a meatless day in all restaurants. The janitor departs swearing revenge for the mealless meal ticket he purchased.

In the meantime, Vic's wife gets the "saving idea," and digs up all the old family clothes out of the attic to be worn out before purchasing any new ones.

The janitor goes back to Vic's the next day which is Wednesday, and orders a "herd" of wheat cakes. Vic informs him that it is a wheatless day. A "free for all" follows, in which Vic is badly handled, and the janitor goes back to the asylum threatening to do all sorts of things. Vic rushes home to get some other clothing to replace his torn ones. His wife makes him put on a suit which she has found in the attic. He goes back to the restaurant in what looks like a disguise. The janitor is back with all the "Weed-etarians." They demand the janitor's money back, but Vic compromises by offering to give them all a banquet for it. Everything is all right until Vic served meat to the "Weed-etarians," and then the trouble starts. Vic is given some handling, and a tremendous "wallop" at the finish.

Hart Scheduled in New Melodrama

The third Ince-Artcraft production, starring William S. Hart, is "Wolves of the Rail," and is said to be a melodrama of the West.

Hart has the role of "Puck" Andrade, the leader of a gang of outlaws who terrorize the country through which the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad runs. Hart's mother, on her dying bed, prays for her son to reform. He assures her that he has done his last "job" and from that moment will go "straight." And then he starts in to live a new sort of life, commencing with the defeat of his own gang of outlaws as they try to hold up the train on which are "Buck" and a detective sent from the eastern offices of the railroad, a famous tracker of criminals known as "The Bloodhound." This detective is shot in the fray. Hart procures his papers and credentials and introduces himself to the local railroad officials as the man who has been sent to clear the line of banditry.

Artcraft Begins New Pickford Subject

ARTCRAFT PICTURES CORPORATION announced last week that activities on Mary Pickford's next picture to be released by Artcraft have finally been commenced in San Francisco.

The title of the new picture is "Amarilly of Clothes Line Alley" by Frances Marion, based on the novel by Belle K. Maniates. It was for this production that the Mary Pickford players recently journeyed to Frisco, and on which they were unable to begin work because of the crowds that gathered in the streets. After several unsuccessful attempts the company returned to Los Angeles, and, upon assurances from the San Francisco authorities that special arrangements would be made, the company again made the trip to that city.

"Amarilly of Clothes Line Alley," it is announced, is probably the most humorous subject in which Miss Pickford has ever appeared. While the story consists principally of amusing business, at the same time it endeavors to show that people from the environment of such a place as Clothes Line Alley can never mix happily with the upper strata of society. The story of the photoplay, full of simple and homely philosophy is based on the idea of Belle K. Maniates' novel and written for the screen by Frances Marion, who has been responsible for the scripts of all of Miss Pickford's recent Artcraft pictures. Miss Pickford's newest character discloses her as a little scrub girl of a theatre, and a resident of Clothes Line Alley, in which role she is said to acquit herself admirably.

Pathe Changes Toto Initial Release

FOLLOWING the announcement that Pathe would release the first Toto two-reel comedy on January 13, a statement this week contains the news that the picture in which the funmaker will make his initial bow will be "The Movie Dummy," instead of "A One-Night Stand." The second Toto comedy will be "The Junkman," the third, "Fare, Please," and the fourth, "A One Night Stand," and others are to be announced later.

In "The Movie Dummy" Toto plays the dummy, "all wool and a yard wide." Kathleen O'Connor, an attractive little blonde, is Imogene, the ingenue, the "three-sheet favorite," and Marie Mosquini is "Vera, the Vamp—not so bad as she paints herself."

This comedy is said to give Toto an unusual opportunity to display his ability in a type of funmaking that is claimed to be entirely new to the screen. He appears in very large baggy trousers and coat as a worker in a factory where dummies are manufactured to be used in making motion pictures. Life is so hard for him that he resolves to become a regular dummy for a day at least and thus he is transported to the Rolin Studio in answer to a hurry call and the rest of the time he has to act just as a dummy would, apparently having no bones in his body.

Fox Claims "Les Miserables" Educates

ACCORDING to an announcement made this week by William Fox, among the results that have attended the presentation of the William Farnum de luxe production, "Les Miserables," at the Lyric theatre in New York City is the attracting of further attention to the possibilities of motion pictures and the arousing of the interest of persons who seldom express themselves publicly, except perhaps in criticism, on the subject of cinema achievements.

Among a number of such comments which William Fox reports having received recently is one from William Lyon Phelps, Lampson professor of English Literature at Yale University.

"I was deeply affected by 'Les Miserables,'" Mr. Phelps wrote to William Fox. "The artistic and spiritual values of the great novel are both preserved to a remarkable degree in the adaptation, and the acting is excellent. I wish every one in America could see this picture."

Professor Phelps, according to Fox, pronounced "Les Miserables" one of the greatest photodramas he had ever seen and said it was to be regretted that other producers did not devote themselves to picturizing works of similar merit.

"The educational value of such pictures as 'Les Miserables' is inestimable," he wrote.

The Fox management announces that the production has been playing to good houses ever since it was put on at the Lyric theatre. Mr. Fox has decided to put it out as a road attraction, as was done in the case of "Cleopatra." It will be shown throughout the country during the next year. The length of the run at the Lyric is still indefinite.

Paralta Christens New Outdoor Stages

The new open-air stages that are part of the extensive enlargements which are being built at the Paralta studios in Los Angeles, are now completed and were put into practical use last week when Bessie Barriscale and her company made a number of interior sets on them for her forthcoming Paralta play, which is now in the course of construction.

About two months ago the Paralta organization purchased a large tract of land adjoining the studios for the purpose of enlarging facilities. Besides the open-air stages, which are now being used, are a number of glass-inclosed stages, which will be used during the rainy season, buildings containing tiers of dressing-rooms, together with additional buildings to house the various departments.

Metro Furnishes Favorites in Dana Film

ACCORDING to a Metro announcement last week, Viola Dana is supported by a cast of favorite players in "The Winding Trail," a Metro picture written by Katharine Kavanaugh and June Mathis, and directed by Tod Browning at the Metro West Coast Studios in Hollywood.

Miss Dana's leading man is Clifford Bruce, who played the prominent role of Ben Boone in "Blue Jeans," with the star. He was leading man with Mabel Taliaferro in "The Barricade," and has been a star in his own right in "The Devil at His Elbow," and other pictures, including "Passion," an episode of the "Seven Deadly Sins" series for McClure, in which he played with Viola Dana's sister, Shirley Mason.

Hayward Mack, who plays the role of Alvin Steel, has played with most of the leading motion picture companies, including Biograph, Imp, Majestic, Universal and Triangle. He began his picture career in 1910.

Mabel Van Buren is seen in the part of Lou, the sin woman. She has had an extensive motion picture career, with Kinemacolor, Biograph, Vitagraph, Fox, Clune, Selig and Lasky.

Many Western and Mexican characters are seen in this picture, which reflects the life of the '70's. All the players were selected to fit the exact type ,and many of the rugged characters seen in the picture faced the camera for the first time. The entire production is said to be full of local color. It will be released by Metro on January 14.

Illness Causes Delay in "Knife"

Work on Alice Brady's new Select production, "The Knife," which is now being filmed under the direction of Robert G. Vignola at the Fifty-sixth street studio, has been held up by the illness of W. J. Kane, a member of the cast.

Kane, who was playing the part of Detective Ellis in the story, was taken seriously ill about a week ago and under doctor's orders was unable to resume his duties at the studio.

Alec B. Francis, of Goldwyn

Universal Sets "Hungry Eyes" Release

"THE HIGHEST CARD" and "Hungry Eyes," the last of Rupert Julian's productions for the Bluebird series, with Ruth Clifford the star and Monroe Salisbury her featured leading man, have been completed, and Wilfred Lucas has undertaken the screen management of Miss Clifford and Mr. Salisbury. "The Highest Card" has not been definitely dated up for release, but "Hungry Eyes" has been set for distribution February 18.

Elliott J. Clawson's story, "His Wife in Arizona," formed the basis of the Julian production, "Hungry Eyes." The picture was filmed at Seven Oaks, Cal., where the company remained to create "The Highest Card" amid the picturesque surroundings that nature has furnished in the foothills of the Sierra Nevadas. Mr. Julian, besides directing, played an important role in support of Miss Clifford. Others in the company included W. H. Bainbridge, H. W. Barrows, Arthur Travers, Gretchen Lederer and Reta Pickering.

Wilfred Lucas is now engaged in filming "The Heart of the Desert" with Miss Clifford and Mr. Salisbury leading the cast. Bess Meredyth furnished the scenario, basing her work on Honore Willsie's book of the same title depicting a romance of Indian life, when a girl is taken into the wilds to recover her health through living like the Indians do, close to nature. Val Paul, Gretchen Lederer, Monte Blue, Al Sears, Princess Neola and Dark Cloud (the last mentioned being full-blooded Indians) will comprise the supporting cast.

Constance Talmadge Cast Is Selected

THE cast of "The Shuttle," Constance Talmadge's new production in which she will be presented by Lewis J. Selznick, has been selected, and work on the play is now well under way in the Morosco studios in Los Angeles.

Miss Talmadge's new leading man is Albert Roscoe, who plays the part of Lord Mount-Dunstan, and other members of the cast are Edith Johnson, E. B. Tilton, Helen Dunbar, George McDaniel, Thomas Persse, Edward Peil and Casson Ferguson.

Miss Talmadge, in the role of Betty Vanderpoel, unspoiled daughter of New York's greatest money king, has a characterization said to be supremely suited to her personality. Betty possesses charm, an engaging directness and a penchant for getting her own way.

The picture is being directed by Rollin Sturgeon.

"The Shuttle," which has been adapted for the screen by Harvey Thew and Margaret Turnbull from the novel of the same name by Frances Hodgson Burnett, is a tale of international love and marriage and deals directly with the lives of Rosalie Vanderpoel, who marries for an English title, and Betty, her younger sister, who comes to the rescue. It will be distributed by Select.

George Walsh, Star; Carl Harbaugh, Director, and William Fox, Producer, Have Completed "Jack Spurlock—Prodigal," Written by George Horace Lorimer, Editor

Six Standards in Ten Weeks

William Fox Completes Schedule to March 15, with Some of Subjects Now in Production—First January 20

SIX new Standard Pictures, some of which are now in process of production, have been announced by William Fox for release during the first two and one-half months of 1918.

Two pictures will be available in each January and February and the same number in March, the schedule, however, being completed at present only to March 15. The January 20 picture will be "Cheating the Public." The production is being advertised as of the same class of melodramatic pictures as "The Honor System."

"From the Depths," temporary title of a picture which was recently completed, will be released January 27. This is the story of a young woman who becomes an outcast in consequence of having put too much trust in a man, but who rises again after she has revenged herself. Part of the scenes were taken in the Bohemian quarter of Greenwich Village.

Jane and Katherine Lee's third picture is scheduled for release February 15. It is declared to be a legitimate successor to "Two Little Imps" and "Troublemakers," productions in which they appeared in 1917. Like the others, it is styled a comedy-drama.

William Farnum's next production will probably be titled "Rough and Ready" and the present intention is to release it February. This will be followed by a propaganda production under the direction of Frank Lloyd and to be entitled "The Divorce System." No star, it is announced, will be featured, but the company now at work in Hollywood includes Rhea Mitchell, Bertram Grassby, Marc Robbins, Willard Lewis, Charles Clary and a number of other equally well known motion picture actors. March 3 is the date when it is expected that "The Divorce System" will be available to exhibitors.

Work is in progress in one of the William Fox New Jersey studios on a picture temporarily titled "The Soul of Buddha."

Osborne Picture Claims Sympathy Trend

The latest picture to arrive at Pathe's executive offices from the Pathe Pacific coast studios, featuring Baby Marie Osborne, shows the clever child artist in what is claimed to be one of the strongest sympathy compelling features in which she has yet appeared.

This new subject written by John W. Grey and M. Ramirez Torres, has the allegoric title "Any Home." In substance the story shows how the average home is held together by a baby's influence.

Paramount Sets Chapin Dates

First of Ten Two-Reel Features Called "Son of Democracy" Scheduled for February 11—Life of Lincoln

PARAMOUNT, it was announced last week, has set February 11 as the release date for the first of Benjamin Chapin's series, "The Son of Democracy." This series of ten two-reel features, each said to be a complete story, deals with America and Americanism in the making, and Abraham Lincoln, the boy and the man, is the leading character.

"My Mother," the first of the series, deals, it is said, with the log cabin birth of Abraham Lincoln, and with the humorous and pathetic events in his early boyhood. This release is for the week of Lincoln's birthday.

Speaking of the series Paramount said: "'My Mother' and 'My Father,' the first two releases, might well be described as comedy-dramas. Mr. Chapin brings forward the humor of Lincoln as well as the heart interest and his photoplays of Lincoln's childhood are so filled with genuine boy life that F. K. Mathews, Director, Library Department, The Boy Scouts of America, has pronounced them 'as thrilling and as humorous as Tom Sawyer or Huck Finn.'

"The second is especially full of action and fun, containing a rough and tumble fight in which Abe's father gives a terrific beating to a neighbor who tried to cheat him. In the first Abe himself gets into a rousing scrap, bringing sorrow to his mother. On her dying bed he promises her that he never will fight again, a promise that returns to him and holds him back when men are clamoring for him to declare war.

"'The Son of Democracy' is particularly inspiring in its patriotic scenes, so much so that Major George P. Ahern, acting secretary, the Army War College, Washington, D. C., after seeing the picture at a special showing in Washington wrote, 'This film will fill the people of this country with hope for the future and will make them more determined than ever to remain in this war until military autocracy is swept aside and the world ruled by the mass of the people and not by a small class, as at present is the case.'"

Pathe Names Four Toto Comedy Films

The first four comedies presenting Toto, ex-clown of the New York Hippodrome, will be "The Movie Dummy," "A One-night Stand," "The Junk Man" and "Fare Please," according to an announcement last week from Pathe, which company distributes the pictures dealing with the inimitable Toto.

Goldwyn Declares "Thais" Is Success

Goldwyn this week, after compiling reports on "Thais" from all parts of the country, declared in an announcement that the Mary Garden feature has been well received everywhere, and that the critics have all been pleased with it. In the larger cities this is especially true, according to Goldwyn.

Realism Is Said to be a Chief Point in the Judge Brown Series for General Film Release

Big Plans Call Pathe Chief to Coast

It has been announced by Pathe, following the recent leave-taking of Vice-President J. A. Berst, who has gone to the studios on the West Coast, that the executive's trip is in connection with Pathe plans of releasing in 1918.

It is stated that the greater program of Pathe Plays will occupy Mr. Berst's principal attention. Stars and studios, it is reported, are both scheduled for consideration and many important developments are expected as a result of Mr. Berst's visit.

Mr. Berst is planning the addition of several new names to the list of Pathe Play stars and also a new serial producing company and a new comedy producing company, it is said.

Petrova Player Returns to the Stage

Lumsden Hare, who will soon be seen in his characterization of Clinton Durand in the second subject starring Madame Olga Petrova, has returned to the spoken drama. The English artist who will support the Polish screen star in her production following "Daughter of Destiny" is now appearing in "Lord and Lady Algy" at the new Broadhurst theatre.

Moreno and White to Star in New Serial

"THE HOUSE OF HATE" is announced as the next serial released by Pathe, which claims to have outdone itself in this serial in which Pearl White plays the lead.

"The House of Hate" is called by Pathe an all-star serial. The leads will be played by Pearl White and Antonio Moreno; in the cast will be John Gilmour, Peggy Shaner, Paul Clerget and J. W. Dillon.

The story was written by Arthur B. Reeve and Chas. A. Logue, well-known story and photoplay writers. The latter is co-author with Mr. Reeve in "The Hidden Hand," the Pathe serial in which the four film stars, Doris Kenyon, Sheldon Lewis, Arline Pretty and Mahlon Hamilton were presented.

The release date of "The House of Hate" has been set for the early spring, and plans are now being made, it is said, for one of the biggest advertising and publicity campaigns that Pathe has conducted on any of its serials.

The mystery feature, production, thrills, efficient actors, and a dramatic story, which will bring motion picture audiences back for every one of the fifteen episodes, have all been provided for in "The House of Hate," said a Pathe official in giving adding advance information on this serial.

George B. Seitz, the serial author who left the writing end of motion pictures to direct "The Fatal Ring," is directing "The House of Hate." The scenarios are being written by Bertram Millhauser, the scenario writer of "Mystery of the Double Cross" and "The Fatal Ring."

Pathe's Exhibitor Heavens are Illuminated Brilliantly by Such Stars as Mrs. Vernon Castle, Baby Marie Osborne, Toto, the Clown; Harold Lloyd and Bryant Washburn, with Comedy and Farce Predominating

Universal Clips News Stories

PRESIDENT CARL LAEMMLE, of Universal Film Company, has introduced the "beat" book to his organization, and intends in the future to keep a true record of all Universal stories carried in the various papers.

It is said this special book will not contain the routine notices of releases published in the motion picture departments of the papers in which exhibitors advertise, but only the big news feature stories.

Within the last few months Universal claims to have led the field in national newspaper publicity, and the "beat" book is expected to present the evidence. For instance, on three successive days during the past week, four New York morning newspapers carried a news story in which Universal was given full credit.

The stories dealt with the New Year messages received by the Universal from world famous men, the new policy adopted by Mr. Laemmle of giving soldiers' wives and sisters the preference in hiring employes, and his vigorous statement showing to the public that the exhibitors are fully justified in raising admission prices. These stories also appeared in newspapers in other cities.

Among other "stunts" that Universal claims have challenged the attention of the motion picture fraternity which are conspicuous in "beat" book, are the news stories on the Pershing album, the accounts published by fifty newspapers of their cooperation with the Universal in screening cartoons and the three and four column halftones showing Universal employes knitting at luncheon.

Pathe Continues Gold Rooster Plays

Pathe announced last week that its Gold Rooster plays, starring Baby Marie Osborne, Gladys Hulette and Creighton Hale, will continue to be released at intervals, in addition to the new star series of Pathe plays, with Bessie Love, Fannie Warde, Frank Keenan and Bryant Washburn.

The Gold Rooster plays have proved very popular and it is expected that the Pathe plays will be even bigger in every way.

Pathe Announces January 20 Program

A RUSSIAN Art Film and a Lloyd Comedy stand out in Pathe's program for the week of January 20, according to a new announcement from Pathe.

"The Cloven Tongue" is announced as a feature in five reels, produced by the Russian Art Film Corporation. It is a picture of country life in "the land of snows." The cast is composed of actors of the Moscow Art theatre, prominent among whom is Natalia Lesienko. "The Cloven Tongue" is a story of a nobleman who falls in love with his housekeeper, a Circassian peasant.

Harold Lloyd's comedy is "The Big Idea," in one reel, produced by the Rolin Film Corporation. Business is bad for the antique dealer. Harold has the big idea. He starts a rumor that an article marked XX at O. U. Phaker's antique shop has $10,000 concealed in it. Then he proceeds to mark every article in the place XX and the result can be imagined.

"Bruges (Belgium) Before the War" is a Pathe colored travel, split reel. It shows the city of Bruges, which owes its name to the number of bridges which cross its canal and which was from the 12th to the 16th Century the largest commercial city in the North of Europe.

"In Blossom Time," Pathe colored educational, which forms the other half of this reel, shows some close-ups of various flowers and plants and is said to be one of the prettiest things of its kind ever made.

An International Cartoon and Educational split reel and Hearst-Pathe News Nos. 8 and 9 complete this program.

Crane Speaks on Screen Personalities

SPEAKING to a gathering of New Rochelle young people interested in the motion picture, under the auspices of Mrs. Earl Braddon, a local social worker, Frank Crane, director of Mary Garden in "Thais," last week gave his impressions of Miss Garden and other stage stars whom he had been called on to produce in their first motion picture plays. His "star stories" were voted novel by his movie-interested auditors.

Concerning Mary Garden, Mr. Crane said: "This was a revelation in my life. She was frightened by the camera—she was in dread of everything—showed lack of confidence in me—when she saw the first 2,000 feet on the screen and realized that I was giving my heart and soul to the work, and that I got the results in unexpected ways, then she turned right around and was willing to do anything I suggested at any time, in any way. Her ideas of dramatic values were wonderful. A mere suggestion of the situation and she would grasp it in its entirety and build up a wonderful climax. Getting her confidence was the hardest thing of all. An extremely generous woman. When the extra people were used the second day, when she came on the set in the morning, she would speak to each individual, some kind remark—interest in their personal affairs—appreciation of the beautiful sex. When the camera started she seemed to live the character and when I would say 'That's all,' she would keep on in the part for a few seconds."

Neva Gerber Is the Attractive Star of "The Mystery Ship," a Universal Serial

No Matter If You're Booked Solid Read—Ponder—ACT!

IN one of William Fox's Theatres on December 9th, the crowd broke down the doors in their haste to get in and see

"THE PRICE of a GOOD TIME"

THE Title lured them—the Posters pulled them—the fame of the Producer drew them on. And they crowded and pushed and shoved in front of the doors till the doors smashed in and the management had to call out the reserves.

IN all earnestness—in all sincerity we say to you—here is one of those amazing, astounding, country-sweeping successes which come only once in a blue moon which no one, not even the Producer, can predict—which simply take the business into their own hands and walk away with it.

How Do We Know That "The Price of a Good Time" Will Sweep the Country?

WE know it just as every merchant knows when an article suddenly takes the country by storm—by the unanimously favorable criticisms in the papers—by the enthusiastic word-of-mouth advertising of the audiences—by the rush on the box-offices—by the jumping figures on the sales sheet.

Who Made This Commercial Marvel?

LOIS Weber made it! Lois Weber, the Belasco of the Screen—who made "Scandal" and "Hypocrites" and "Shoes." Lois Weber—who came to the rescue of the Exhibitors of the country in the infantile-paralysis-year with that wonderful winner, "Where Are My Children?"—the Title and the Play that made a fortune for Exhibitors.

"The Price of a Good Time"

has the same kind of Box-office Title as "Where Are My Children?"—is the same wondrously beautiful kind of Play—has the same Master-hand behind it all.

AND "THE PRICE OF A GOOD TIME" is already rushing at tremendous speed towards the same record mark in what is, admittedly, a bad year for us all.

NO matter if you're booked solid with all kinds of wonderful pictures—no matter if it seems impossible to postpone even a single Feature to make room for a bigger money-getter—

WE ask you—advise you—urge you with all the force we can put behind printed words to show just as quickly as you can this whirlwind Jewel Success.

JUST as sure as sunrise this marvelous picture is the one really great money-getter of the year 1918.

—a Title so enormously alluring
—a Story so tremendously affecting —a Star so heart-touching
—a Producer so widely known
—a Play so perfect in detail that you will be the short-sighted loser of your biggest profit of the year if you don't—

—book this picture at once by wire
—advertise it to your limit and beyond
—show it at your first opportunity
—run it twice as long as you ever ran a picture before

DON'T let anything take your big, sure profit on "The Price of a Good Time" away from you. Don't hesitate to postpone your very biggest Feature for this wonderful money-maker.

Be First to Show "The Price of a Good Time" in Your Section. You'll do your Biggest Business—So get it All. Act now. Wire for Reservation. Most important of All—reserve for at least Twice Your Ordinary Run.

JEWEL
PRODUCTIONS
INC.
1600 Broadway, New York

Film Specialties

Kaiser Cartooned in New Single Release

IT was announced last week that beginning February 2 General Film will have a new product to offer in semi-monthly single reel subjects called Novelty Films, the product of the Merkel Film Company, of Cincinnati.

Each release will be composed of a variety of subjects making up a full reel and described best under its title of Novelty Films. The featured part of each release will be a comic animated cartoon on war subjects. The remainder of the reel will be devoted to educational, scenic or scientific subjects.

Officials of General Film Company have already viewed the first three releases and regard them as subjects desirable for any program. The headliner for each release is the animated cartoon. In several of them Kaiser William II. of the Hohenzollern tribe and the Crown Prince are the leading characters and they are put through some stunts that are expected to strike a popular chord with patriotic American audiences. Other patriotic matter is also included in the releases, such as an animated gallery of American military heroes, and British and other allied generals. One of the subjects of Novelty Film will be "The Birth of a Nation," showing America's vast war-making resources in animated form both amusingly and educationally presented.

Arno Merkel, a young man of Cincinnati, is the author of the various stunts in Novelty Films. He is the author of "What Will America Do?" an animated film that scored quite a success several months ago just before the declaration of war by the United States. Associated with him is artist Ran M. Anderson as the animal expert.

Modes Figure in New Pictographs

The one hundred and first release of Paramount-Bray Pictograph, "the-magazine-on-the-screen," carries, it is said, an animated message of good cheer to husbands and good sense to wives in the subject, "The New Art of Dress," in which Bertha Holley, an artist, depicts the method of making not one, but numberless attractive gowns from the same material.

The basic principle of "The New Art of Dress" is a simple "slip" requiring only four yards of material. An undertunic for this slip is made of a square of material with sleeves long or short, as desired. With this combination is worn one of another over-tunic suited for the occasion so that with two or three overtunics, any woman can be well dressed, have a variety of costumes and at an expense comparatively trifling. Since the same idea can be applied to children's dresses, this economy can become one that will do much toward conserving not only the family funds, but, because of the saving in materials, will release, if adopted widely, an appreciable yardage for more serious purposes.

Burton Holmes Shows Sydney Scenes

Sydney, the port of entry into Australia, the only country in the world that covers an entire continent, is the subject of No. 100 of the Paramount Holmes Travelogues. The picture shows the entrance of the harbor, the suburban villas on the shores, the docks, warehouses, piers and skyscrapers, which make the noble city of Sydney a metropolis of 800,000. The trip goes all over the city from the top of skyscrapers to the Post Office, Martin Place, Botanical Garden and Circular Quay and a number of other interesting sights.

Mutual Shows Sailor in the Making

The Gaumont-Mutual Weekly, released January 6, shows the making of a jack-tar at the Mare Island Navy Yard, California. Coupled with time for the right kind of sport, the intensive training is making happy and efficient fighters for our navy. A review of the tars, a physical drill, and a number of different athletic stunts are pictured.

This issue of the Gaumont-Mutual Weekly contains some pictures from the European battle-fields. The steps undertaken by French engineers to restore the territory reconquered in the battle of the Aisne are portrayed.

Specialty Men Named for Government

The Association of News Weeklies, of which Jack Cohn of the Universal Animated Weekly is president, and which takes in the other two weeklies, the Mutual and the Hearst-Pathe, received on December 3 an official communication from George Creel, chairman of the Committee on Public Information at Washington, appointing Jack Cohn, E. P. Hatrick and Pell Mitchell as employes, assigned to the Division of Pictures, at the nominal salary of one dollar a year. All three men took the oath of office, swearing allegiance to Uncle Sam.

Mr. Creel wrote: "I have taken this unusual step because the so-called news weeklies are becoming so much a part of governmental work—in that they bring to the people pictures of the war, our preparations here, our work, etc.—that I want the co-operation to be the closest possible, and I feel that this will firmly cement your work with ours."

Pathe Cameraman Arrives in Frisco

After a motor car trip of many thousands of miles, Ralph Radnor Earle, who is engaged in filming America's scenic wonders for Pathe, arrived recently in San Francisco without a single mishap to mar his record of having covered eleven of America's national parks without a breakdown or a single day lost from work. The eleven parks were Mount Lassen, Crater Lake, Rainier, Glacier Park, Rocky Mountain, Grand Canyon, Mesa Verde, Casa Grande, General Grant, Sequoia and Yosemite.

Mr. Earle is spoken of as the originator of the "See American First" motion pictures. He has been with Pathe for five years, during which time he has taken many pictures of more than ordinary interest and beauty. One of his most recent films is "Yellowstone Park," which is on the Pathe program for January 13. Another is "Rainier Park" in combitone, which will be released January 27. Mr. Earle is not only an expert cameraman but he is also an adept at picking out the best locations for his "shots."

Culture Film Teaches Better Health

The third issue of the Physical Culture Screen Magazine, which has just been released by General Film Company, contains material for picture fans who are anxious to build stronger bodies and insure better health for themselves. Editor Bernarr Macfadden is shown performing a feat of strength which is guaranteed to improve the health of any business man. Vera Roehm illustrates a number of methods which women can utilize to good advantage in protecting themselves from mashers, and also displays a number of beneficial exercises for the hips, legs and abdominal walls of the body. Another feature is contributed by Henry Elionakey, a champion swimmer, who demonstrates the use of various swimming strokes. Proper exercises for the baby, bayonet exercises by Prof. William Grupp, a well known boxer, and Prof. Allan Smith's exhibition of jiu jitsu holds complete the unusual attractive number of this unique screen magazine.

Canada Scenes in Scenic of Essanay

"Agricultural Opportunities in Western Canada," the current Essanay scenic, a General Film release, is said to uphold the fast pace set by these de luxe scenics as friend makers for the boxoffice, and is claimed to be one of the most entertaining numbers of the series.

There is an unusual demand for these short length subjects, according to advices received from General Film.

You are not going to war. The men who are need all the comforts you can give them. Help them get cigarettes. That is your patriotic duty. If you aren't helping in the "smokes" campaign, get busy—now. Don't be a slacker!

Speaking of Children's Matinees—

During the holiday week the Strand theatre of New York gave a daily morning entertainment for children which could be duplicated in many features by any exhibitor planning such matinees. While he might not be able to engage a charming lady to tell fairy stories, as did Mr. Edel, nor to have the elaborate backdrop over whose night sky bands of angels in colored robes floated, he would be sure to please his young patrons with the pictures which formed the chief part of the program. The feature was Marguerite Clark in "The Seven Swans," the most beautifully executed fairy play we have ever had the good fortune to see. It is worthy of every bit of commendation and advertising bestowed on it.

Preceding the feature was the Topical Review, which children invariably enjoy, if the reel contains scenes of action and interest, and following it was a delightful picture made especially for the holiday week by Mr. Ditmars. Children love animal pictures, especially do they welcome monkeys with shouts of joy. This reel is devoted to unusual pets of this type, and their behaviour when given a chance at the Christmas stockings and goodies.

Twenty-four thousand children, during the week, were lucky enough to pass the portal of the Strand, and except when stilled in breathless expectation by the fairy tale lady on the screen or stage, were in gales of enjoyment.

Don't you want to try it in your theatre?

C. DEL. B.

"SOLDIERS AND SAILORS TOO!"

The first issue in the new series of Mutual Weekly, numbered 1W1, makes a fine appeal to America's pride in a number of striking pictures taken at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station. Led by Sousa's marine band of 300 pieces, the jackies march across the great parade ground, and then take part in a mimic charge and skirmish. More intimate views show the men bringing in the Christmas trees through the heavy snow, receiving their Christmas kits, and enjoying what seem to be real Christmas "eats" in happy boy fashion. A striking picture of the great flag, its curving stripes and clustered stars formed by thousands of men, is a fitting climax to this very interesting and stirring subject.

"The steel wall of France" never fails of enthusiastic applause. Here is a fine body of sturdy French soldiers, reviewed at a recent ceremony marking the triumph at Aisne. And the ever-cheerful Tommy is seen riding back to the rear for a well-earned rest on the top of a big camouflaged London bus.

A particularly picturesque shot of the launching of the fine schooner "Luther Little," at Fall River, pontoon builders at work in a mass of ice floes on a river Somewhere in America, the pulling down of the huge wireless tower at Brant Rock, and Little Mary Pickford leading a band out for recruits and other subjects in this excellent Mutual number.

FROM COAST TO COAST WITH THE CAMERA

In Hearst-Pathe News No. 1, issued December 29, the camera presents noteworthy events as they have occurred from shore to shore in our broad land. Here are scenes at Tacoma, recently flooded and badly damaged by the rising of the Puyallup River. Trolley cars stand half submerged in the rushing waters.

From Detroit east the camera man has followed the new army trucks which were given a try-out run to the coast. The big cars come along in fine shape, easily taking the slopes of the Appalachian Mountains, and each bearing a sign announcing as its final destination a certain city in the heart of Europe.

New Orleans suffers from a $200,000 fire, but New York City is seen celebrating Christmas by entertaining hundreds of the poor at one of its armories.

Short Subjects in Review

By Clara DeLissa Burg

DEFEATING WINTER IN THE ALPS

While every foot of Universal Animated Weekly No. 5 that is crowded with action and interest, its most notable feature is a remarkably fine set of pictures taken in the Alps, where the Italian armies are equipped against the Winter foe with snow shoes and skiis. Whole regiments manoeuvre easily in open formation on the swift light runners or come charging quickly in massed array. In heavy snows the broad American snowshoe makes travelling easy. Down the slopes the skiis carry the men in hurtling flight. The interest of the subject is equalled by the beauty of the scenes and the grace of the runners.

Mexico, for all her new constitution and army, is far from being at peace, as a watchful reader of the newspapers discovers. Here is testimony in pictures of our troops on the border, with American surgeons binding up the wounds of Carranza's soldiers who were wounded in an encounter with that still very much alive bandit Villa.

Spain may yet be in the fight, and under the eyes of her king is training her soldiers in the latest phases of offensive warfare. Even Alfonso tries his hand at grenade throwing.

Meantime, under the kindly hospitality of Uncle Sam, interned German sailors are practising a craft in which none will begrude them supremacy —the making of toys.

Lively pictures of street urchins finding unexpected treasure on pavement and in the air, an unusual "shot" of smoke and flame at a recent big fire, and cartoons by Hy Meyer complete a particularly interesting reel.

SEASONABLE—IN A SENSE

Do you know Don Marquis of the New York Evening Sun? He is a most delightful "columnist." A few days ago, when the local mercury was hovering around minus fourteen, Mr. Marquis, in a number of pointed paragraphs, advised on the best ways of avoiding heat prostration.

In much the same way Mr. Dittmars presents "The Animals in Midsummer," the current release of the Educational Films Corporation in the Living Book of Nature. The rhinoceros and bears delight in a shower bath—that is, we suppose the rhino does; his countenance is not very expressive. The deer, plagued by the wicked cattle fly, whom Mr. Dittmars displays in all the evil of his cruel pointed beak, seek shelter from the sultry heat under the shade trees or in the pond. The Shetland ponies, using their long tails as fly swatters, suffer little, but the poor camel, with his apology for a tail, can only wiggle-waggle ineffectually as the flies add to his discomfort. The buffalo fare pretty well by rolling in the dust, but perhaps the smartest of all is the big ourang utang, who, taking a tip from his human relative, stuffs his hat with green leaves, camouflages himself with a branch, and pretends he is asleep and doesn't mind the old sun anyway!

DRAMA IN THE SCENICS

Presented at the Rialto to the crashing, elemental accompaniment of the "Orgy of Spirits," Essanay's "Water Powers of Eastern Canada" (General Film Company) was a vivid demonstration of the dramatic possibilities of a properly selected, thoughtfully edited scenic. Superficially an "educational" in that it conveyed interesting information relative to the vast "white coal" resources of the Dominion, this film was essentially and immediately an appeal to the emotions aroused by Nature's tremendous spectacles of majesty and power.

Any exhibitor planning a program which from first to last shall grip his audience by reason of its dramatic quality would do well to include this reel. And once chosen, it should be accorded the prominence and the musical setting worthy of its beauty and strength.

AS DREAMS ARE MADE OF

If from a score of scenic reels you could choose those parts you thought most spectacular, wonderful, and beautiful, and if you had the gift of weaving about them the suggestion of a dream story, you would have, we fancy, just the sort of picture that Robert Bruce offers in "A World o' Dreams" (Educational Film Corporation) and which Mr. Rothapfel, at the opening of the Rivoli, presented with a soft musical accompaniment bearing out the feeling that here was a world of beauty seen in vision only. Majestic snowclad peaks fade out, to give place to dreaming lakes or torrential waterfalls. The lodge in a vast wilderness, for which we all at times sigh, merges itself into a fabled isle whose uncanny spectacular beauty proclaims that after all, for the seeing eye, Nature is the supreme artist.

THIS BUSY WORLD

Just to remind us wage-slaves that "everybody's doing it," Universal Screen Magazine No. 54 starts off with some excellent studies of working bees. While the life story of the bee is made clear by the subtitles, the pictures themselves present only the high lights, as it were, of this insect world. The most interesting are those taken as the bees swarm. Their peculiar harmlessness on this occasion, their one day of relaxation, is shown in startling fashion.

In past days the word "dictaphone" called up visions of the Master Detective, the murderer at bay, and other unpleasant but necessary factors of a thriller in real life. Now that the arch murderer lies without our gates, this highly useful instrument is being given a new importance in the war against him. Here we see our boys in the army learning how to creep within dictaphone shot of the enemy's lines, how to place the little talebearer, and how to receive its messages. There is a real thrill as the prostrate signalman creeps and wriggles forward behind a camouflage of smoke to the appointed place.

The newly exploited Date Industry of California gives opportunity for a number of pleasing pictures of pretty girls and luscious fruit. The subject, which has been touched on in the News Weeklies, is here given the space its importance and picturesque quality merit.

An interesting film on the laying of a macadam road is contributed to this issue of the Magazine by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

BEAUTY

Did you, Mr. Exhibitor, read a little panegyric we wrote some few weeks ago on a Pathe release entitled, "The Waterways of Bruges?" We hope you did, and that you asked your local Pathe Exchange for a copy of it, for though not a recent release it was worthy of renewed and prolonged life.

Here now is its companion picture, also issued by Pathe, "Bruges Before the War." That dear, quaint little town is again brought before us from other angles of the camera's vision. It is not the canals now, but the "Gran' Place," where stands the famous Belfry of Longfellow's poem, the mediaeval gates, whose portals now, alas, open to the most ruthless foe in all Bruges's turbulent history. And here are pictures, with excellent close-ups, of the lace-makers, young women and old, whose fingers fly with incredible rapidity among the multitude of bobbins necessary to each intricate pattern.

On the reel, and also hand colored, are charming views of opening fruit blossoms—a welcome reminder of a Spring that now seems as remote as the equator.

William Nigh, Director of "My Four Years In Germany"

In the Independent Field

"Important Things to Happen"

This Is the Prophecy Made By M. H. Hoffman, of Hoffman-Foursquare Pictures—"Muggy Condition to Be Clarified"

"IMPORTANT things are sure to happen during this new year," said M. H. Hoffman, Hoffman-Foursquare Pictures, in commenting upon the prospects for the motion picture industry. "The present muggy condition which prevails, generally, will be clarified and I hope I am right when I say that a great deal of the overproduction, extravagance and unbusiness-like methods will vanish during the year to come. I hope, too, that I am right in expressing the belief that there will be fewer pictures made during Nineteen-Eighteen, and the percentage of quality must be higher, for such has been the trend of late.

"For some time no heed has been given to warning signs that producers and distributors dealing in large quantities of film merchandise have been going to too fast a pace. It is only within the past few weeks that this fact seems to have been driven home, and that the apprehensiveness caused has been transmitted through the 'nervous system' of the trade to the industry.

"As a matter of fact there is nothing to worry over. The chances which are inevitably in order will only serve as a purge; to rid the trade of elements that are harming it. By the time the new year has gotten well under way the readjustment will have begun. In a few months, the motion picture public will have its patronage to normal proportions. In a few months the other changes of reduced production, and increased quality of pictures, will begin to be felt.

"Then business will have gained a respite; and renewed in the changes, with greater opportunities offered because of those benefits, there should be a steady march onward which will manifest itself as the year advances."

New Film Building for Capital

Washington, D. C., to Have Modern Film Building—Sawyer, General Enterprise and A. C. Mathers, Chicago, Promoters

ARTHUR H. SAWYER, of General Enterprises, Inc., who returned from Washington, D. C., this week, announces that a new film structure to be known as the Mather Building in that city is to be erected. Mr. Sawyer promoted and successfully closed the deal whereby Washington will have a special building exclusively devoted to the needs of the many exchanges now located in various parts of the city. Mr. Sawyer said:

"The uncertainties regarding the housing of film exchanges under one roof in Washington were removed this week, and despite numerous rumors and newspaper articles the work will be carried on uninterruptedly. It has been stated that the United States Government intended taking over the new Mather Building to be located on G street, near Ninth, in Washington, for war offices. This matter was definitely settled at a meeting attended by the prominent exchange managers of Washington, A. C. Mather of Chicago, Ill., and myself representing General Enterprises, Inc., which organization promoted the scheme. The terms of the new building regulations in Washington state that practically every film exchange in the city will have to move out of its present quarters on or before January 1, 1918—although this order was informally suspended two weeks ago to read 'April 1, 1918,' instead of 'January 1, 1918.' At a conference between the city authorities, Mr. Mather and myself, arrangements were made whereby the exchanges may remain in their present quarters until the new Mather Building is completed."

The new Mather Building is being built on the site of the old Washington Rifles.

The building will cost upward of $400,000. Several of the exchanges have already signed leases for offices, and it is expected that nearly every exchange in the city will take space to protect themselves against being forced out of their present quarters in April.

Usoskin Added to W. H. Editorial Staff

Moe Usoskin is the latest addition to the editorial staff of the W. H. Productions. Mr. Usoskin will assist the productions editor. Mr. Usoskin came to New York from Russia in 1913 and since then has been engaged in various branches of the picture industry. He was connected with the Inter-Continent Film Company as assistant editor. He helped establish the New England exchange for the Sawyer products, in 1914. He was later connected with the National Film Corporation and the Mammoth Film Corporation.

Print of "Belgian" Devoted to Special Showings

The number of requests which Frank Hall, president of the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation, has received from heads of patriotic societies and charity bazaars has been so great that Mr. Hall has set aside one print to be devoted exclusively to this work.

The most recent presentation of "The Belgian" was given under the joint auspices of Mr. Hall and Sydney Olcott, who produced "The Belgian" at Hotel Astor before the Theatre Club on December 26. More than five hundred women viewed the production.

At the conclusion of the exhibition Mrs. John H. Parker, president, expressed, on behalf of the organization, her deep appreciation of the photo production and paid a tribute to the art of Mr. Whiteside and Miss Grant, the featured players. She introduced Miss Grant as the principal speaker of the occasion. Miss Grant spoke on the Silent Drama.

"The Belgian" was shown also at Hero Land on Belgium Day at the Grand Central Palace. Miss Grant and Mr. Whiteside addressed gatherings both afternoon and evening following the presentation of the play. The production also was shown before the members of the Fine Arts Club recently and dates have also been set for its presentation in Camps Upton, Mills, Dix and Devons.

Sherman Gets Rights to Grey's Works

Harry A. Sherman announces that he has purchased the rights to Zane Grey's most popular novels, "Riders of the Purple Sage," "The U. P. Trail," "Wildfire," and "Heritage of the Desert," as vehicles for Dustin Farnum, who will start the production of "The U. P. Trail," or "The Riders of the Purple Sage," at once, at Los Angeles, California. Mr. Sherman left New York City on January 2, for Los Angeles. He will make his headquarters at the Alexandria Hotel, Los Angeles, until about February 18, at which time he will return to New York and open permanent headquarters.

Bories and Beier Added to Sales Force

Leon Bories and Murray Beier are recent additions to the sales forces of the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation. Mr. Bories who has had experience on the Pacific coast, will represent the company in the Seattle district while Mr. Beier will supervise the company's distribution in the Buffalo territory. Both men will work under the supervision of Lynn S. Card, general sales manager.

Middle West Likes Hart Two Reelers

F. J. Fegan, general manager, Standard Film Corporation, Chicago, writes that business in the western half of Missouri and southern Illinois with the William S. Hart two-reel features, released by the W. H. Productions, is booming. Mr. Fegan said that the Standard originally ordered two prints of these features but because of the heavy demand, extra prints were necessary.

Mr. Fegan said:

"St. Louis and the territory adjacent to it is strong for William S. Hart. The Park theatre, managed by David Russell, and one of a chain of houses belonging to Cella & Tate Enterprises, broke all records for house attendance when William S. Hart was on his famous tour. In fact, a parade of the United States Army through the downtown streets and residence sections, with the pick of the United States troops headed by William S. Hart on his famous Pinto Pony caused the people to go wild over their Western hero. Hart did some very excellent work in the downtown centers getting recruits for the Government.

"We anticipate doing a land office business on the six-reel production featuring William S. Hart as the two gun men in 'The Bargain.' Since the death of Buffalo Bill, the Western ideal of the youngster seems to be Hart."

Cabanne Starts Producing on the Coast

William Christy Cabanne left for Los Angeles, last week, where he will commence his first work under his own organization, which will be known as the William Christy Cabanne Producing Company. Mr. Cabanne severed connections with Metro a few months ago and since then has been making careful study of the producing field. His last picture was "Draft 258" which followed "The Slacker," both productions produced for Metro under Mr. Cabanne's direction.

Mr. Cabanne has been identified with the industry for about ten years. He was connected with Triangle and directed Douglas Fairbanks in some of his first releases. Mr. Cabanne will announce his plans in detail in the near future. J. L. Barnard who launched the publicity campaign in New York for "Civilization" and who is familiar with the selling end of the business, will represent Mr. Cabanne's interest in the East.

Donald Crisp Marries Marie Stark

Donald Crisp, the director, a few days ago slipped away from the Lasky West Coast Studios in company with George Beban and Marie Stark and a few invited guests, ostensibly for a vacation in the Yosemite, and when the party returned to Los Angeles, Crisp and Miss Stark came back as one. They had been married beneath the mission bells of old Capistrano.

THE INDEPENDENT FIELD TICKER

Territorial Sales Reported During the Past Week

Productions	Buyer	Territory
"Persuasive Peggy"	H. D. Marson Attractions, Boston	New England Territory.
"The Garden of Allah"	H. D. Marson Attractions, Boston	New England Territory.
"City of Purple Dreams"	H. D. Marson Attractions, Boston	New England Territory.
"The Warrior"	Midwest Civilization Company, Denver	Colorado, Utah, New Mexico, Wyoming.
"The Warrior"	Eltabran Film Company	North and South Carolina.
Twenty-eight Sennett Produced Comedies (W. H. Productions)	R. D. Lewis Film Co., Oklahoma City	Oklahoma.
"A Modern Lorelei"	Theis Productions, Philadelphia	Eastern Pennsylvania.
"A Modern Lorelei"	M. Philip Hansen, Los Angeles	California, Arizona, Nevada, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana.
"A Modern Lorelei"	Merit Film Corporation, New York	Greater New York City.
"A Modern Lorelei"	Civilization Film Corporation, Newark	New Jersey.

Hall Sees Boom in Spring

Frank Hall, President, U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation, Says Present Slump Is Temporary

FRANK HALL, president U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation, returned, recently, from a trip through the Middle West and has the following to say on conditions, generally, in that section:

"Conditions are not of the best but the consensus of exhibitor opinion, so far as I have been able to ascertain, is that the existing slump in certain quarters is but temporary and that the early spring will see a general boom.

"A majority of the exhibitors with whom I talked have little complaint to make concerning present conditions. A few have found that the raise in prices occasioned by the war tax had affected their patronage but none was so pessimistic as to believe that the spring would not see a big improvement in conditions everywhere. The demand for big pictures, however, appears to be more insistent than ever before. Exhibitors desire productions that lend themselves to exceptional exploitation, pictures they can 'bill like a circus' for in these times the amusement going public ever is seeking the unusual. Commonplace productions that might have filled a theatre several months ago are of little value now.

"In view of the calamity howling to which certain individuals in the East have lately given way, I undertook to sound the exhibitor's opinion myself and the result has been most gratifying. District representatives of the Booking Corporation have submitted reports to me during the last few days in which they set forth their belief that next spring will witness a boom in the theatrical and moving picture fields that will carry business back to flood tide.

"Joseph Partridge, who has been assembling the U. S. sales forces beyond the Rockies, has forwarded an especially optimistic report in which he declares that exhibitors on the coast have not felt any depression thus far and that none with whom he has come in contact expect any."

"If there is any depression in the East," wrote Mr. Partridge, "it has not yet been felt out here. I find few exhibitors who are not making money. Competition is keen and the demand for big productions is strong. Exhibitors want extraordinary productions to keep interest stimulated.

"There has been a heavy demand for the U. S. subjects, 'The Zeppelin's Last Raid,' 'Those Who Pay' and 'The Belgian' and the engagement of the first named production at the Sennett theatre in San Francisco was a big success."

"The Belgian" to Show in New England

"The Belgian," Sidney Olcott's production being distributed by the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation, will have its initial public presentation on January 10 at the Poli Strand and Palace theatres, in Waterbury and New Haven, Conn. respectively. The New England territory is handled jointly by the New York and Boston offices of the distributing company.

Reports have been submitted to Frank Hall, president of the U. S. Booking Corporation by A. L. Ehrgott, the company's New England manager, in which the latter asserts that bookings on the "The Zeppelin's Last Raid" have surpassed those obtained on any other production of similar length in that territory in several months. "Those Who Pay," while only on the market a few weeks, also is reported to have touched a high water mark in bookings.

King-Bee Gets Good Reports

Billy West's Latest, "The Slave," Scream in New England, Writes N. H. Gordon—Heavy Booking in New York

N. H. GORDON, head of the Olympia Circuit of theatres operating in Boston, Mass., writes N. H. Spitzer of King-Bee Film Corporation, that the latest Billy West comedy entitled "The Slave," has created much favorable comment on the entire circuit. It was advertised, Mr. Gordon said, as the only comedy ever made without sub-titles and the public were curious at first, but after seeing the comedy they were lavish in their praises for the enterprise of the King-Bee Films Corporation, in producing a comedy that was so ingenious, and interesting that the story needed no explanations in the screen version.

The Bee-Hive Exchange handling Billy West, King-Bee Comedies in New York and New Jersey, started the new year with eighty new accounts, it is anounced. Over four hundred exhibitors in New York City and State have booked this brand of comedies. Julius Singer, manager of the Bee-Hive Exchange, says he will have five hundred exhibitors on his books before the new year is a month old, and his prospects are said to look rosy.

Billy West, who composed a set of waltzes which he dedicated to his admirers, and presented to the King-Bee Company, with the understanding that the waltzes were to be given away as an advertising feature, announces that he will compose a fox trot which the King-Bee Corporation will publish on or about March 1, to be released free of charge to the newspapers and exhibitors.

Patriotic Film Shown to Trade

Dr. O. I. Lamberger Handling Exploitation and Sales of "The Birth of Democracy"—Trade Showing Tuesday—

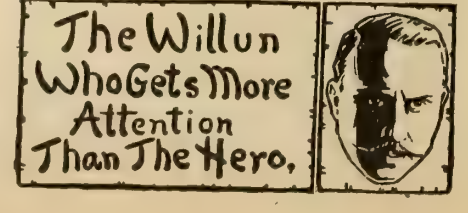
DR. O. I. LAMBERGER, who is handling the exploitation and sales of "The Birth of Democracy," announces that the feature will be given a trade-showing Tuesday, January 8, at 11:30 o'clock, at the New York Roof. It is announced that Mayor John F. Hylan will be present and give the opening address. A representative of the French Ambassador, M. Jusserand, and other prominent personages will be present.

"The Birth of Democracy" is a patriotic picture said to possess a powerful theme. It tells of the upheavals that accompany the struggles of man in his advancement toward a higher plane. The picture is said to make a strong appeal to the masses. Lyda Borelli presents the leading feminine role and is supported by a cast of well-known screen artists. Miss Borelli, it is reported by those who have seen the production, does the best work of her career in this picture.

The feature is offered on the independent market. Dr. Lamberger announces that the New York and Northern New Jersey territory has been purchased by the Merit Film Corporation, New York, and that the M. and R. Feature Film Exchange has bought the rights for California, Arizona and Nevada.

Sales are pending for other territories, an announcement of which will be made later. More than 500 people, it is reported, took part in the production. Dr. Lamberger says that he expects a record business with this picture.

Detail, as Evidenced by the "Stills," Are a Very Important Part of "His Own People," a Vitagraph Feature, Starring Harry Morey and Gladys Leslie, and Released as a Blue Ribbon



Anna Q. Nilsson Is Co-Star in "Over There," a Select Picture

Epoch to Re-Issue "Birth of a Nation"

ANNOUNCEMENT is made that "The Birth of a Nation" will be presented in the representative motion picture houses of the country by the Epoch Company. Responses to the announcement of the Epoch Company show a widespread interest and are rather startling in their demonstration of the mediums that reach the exhibitors. The change of policy for the big Griffith spectacle was only decided upon a few days before the announcements appeared. Those were confined to the three leading weeklies that make a specialty of supplying information to the exhibitors direct. Within twenty-four hours of their appearance in the first paper to come out many applications were received asking for time and further particulars. The delayed appearance of the other two weeklies brought out even heavier applications. The average shows that if the same ration was kept up for a week practically the entire field would be covered by the one announcement. There was no thought of keying the advertisements at the time they were published but returns are rather interesting and illustrate the surest and quickest method of reaching those most vitally interested.

Representatives of the Epoch Company are being placed in different localities to assume personal charge of the bookings and to map out the local distribution of the big spectacle. Communications can be directed for the quickest response, to the Epoch offices, 807 Longacre Building, New York.

Brenon Gives Views on Amalgamation

IN the third issue of Brenon's Exhibitor, a publication which is issued weekly from the Brenon Distribution Headquarters on 509 Fifth avenue, and in which Herbert Brenon gives direct to the exhibitor his plans, his aims, and his policy in the making of moving pictures, appears a statement which deals with Stanley Mastbaum's telegram to the manufacturers some time ago.

In pursuance to his "director to exhibitor policy," Mr. Brenon writes as follows: "I read with great interest Stanley Mastbaum's telegraph to the manufacturers, which, I believe, was written with the best interests of the motion picture industry in mind. Every answer I read, however, bar none, was written from the selfish standpoint of the man who wrote it. There is overproduction. There is waste. There is extravagance, but the greatest danger of all to my mind is amalgamation, which Mr. Mastbaum suggests. When every production stands on its own merits, and is sold on those merits and paid for according to its box-office value, from that day forward can the exhibitor exist and make his fair profit.

"An amalgamation, or, in other words, a trust, such as Mr. Mastbaum suggest, would, I feel certain, mean for you—the exhibitor—the feel of the heel crushing you out of existence, and when you go out of existence, I go, and with us, the industry with the greatest possibilities that have ever been offered to science."

Shallenberger and Priest Handling Clune Features

Shallenberger and Priest announce that they have taken over Clune's two productions, "The Eyes of the World" and "Ramona," for exploitation on the independent market. Messrs. Shallenberger and Priest report that they have received communications from buyers and exhibitors throughout the country, requesting details concerning these productions and the method of release. They will institute an extensive advertising and publicity campaign in conjunction with the exploitation of these two releases, it is announced.

Chicago Board Passes "Those Who Pay," "Belgian"

Lynn S. Card, general sales manager of the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation, announces that the censor board of Chicago has passed without change, the company's second special release, "Those Who Pay," in which Bessie Barriscale is starred. Representatives of the concern in the Ohio territory report heavy bookings for the Ince production. Mr. Card announces, also, that the concern's third release, Sidney Olcott's production, "The Belgian," starring Walker Whiteside and Valentine Grant, has been approved by the censor board for the eastern district of Pennsylvania.

Goldburg Starts Cross-Country

Jesse J. Goldburg Leaves on Trip to Coast—Will Visit All Important Cities—To Close Important Contracts

JESSE J. GOLDBURG, special representative for independent productions, left New York last Thursday for Philadelphia from which point he will proceed to the Coast, visiting every city of importance en route. Among the cities he will visit are: Washington, D. C., Atlanta, New Orleans, Dallas, Fort Worth, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, Salt Lake, Denver, Des Moines, Chicago, Detroit and Pittsburgh.

Mr. Goldburg has been appointed, recently, special representative and sales and exploitation manager for Ivan Film Productions, Inc. On his trip he will not alone exploit the attractions of the Ivan Film Productions, Inc., but will also contract with one state right buyer in each territory to act as the sole and exclusive buying representative on all productions to be handled by such exchange in its respective territories.

As a further part of Mr. Goldburg's plan of service and co-operation to and with the exchange, he has arranged a campaign of exploitation for all of the attractions controlled by the exchange, which campaign of exploitation will be operated through Mr. Goldburg's New York organization, and will embrace newspaper publicity and advertising in the various state right territories as well as issuing on each production purchased through his organization, a circular setting forth a comprehensive scheme of exploiting each attraction by the theatres booking them.

Mr. Goldburg has also closed a contract with Harry Rapf whereby he will handle the sale of the production, "The Struggle Everlasting," in which Florence Reed is starred, supported by Milton Sills and Irving Cummings, and "An Accidental Honeymoon," in which Robert Warwick is starred supported by Elaine Hammerstein.

Mr. Goldburg has signed a contract with the Consolidated Film Corporation of San Francisco whereby he acts as the sole buying representative for all productions to be purchased by that concern for the states of California, Arizona and Nevada; Washington, Oregon, Montana and Idaho. Marion H. Kohn, president of the Consolidated Film Corporation has entered into an agreement with Ackerman and Harris, operating the Hippodrome Circuit theatres which represent the Western States Vaudeville Managers' Association, and controlling theatres in the western and northwestern states, and which will give a film production more than one hundred days' solid booking.

Mr. Goldburg's organization centers under one roof, the exploitation and selling end of state right productions.

He said: "My plans of operation are fully formulated and when I return to New York, which I expect will be about the middle of February, I hope to have a solid representation in every state right territory in the United States with the purchasing end centered in my office, so that not alone will a large part of the exploitation expense of state right productions be eliminated, but the time within which the entire territory is closed be materially shortened. As it is now, but 60 per cent of the country is closed out on a state right production within a month, and the balance of the territory hangs fire for, from three months to a year. I intend opening an office in San Francisco which will be operated along the lines of my New York office with certain added businesslike innovations."

Edith Storey Is Starred in Metro's Production, "Eyes of Mystery," and Is Said to be At Her Best

"Unsettled Condition A Fancy"

So Says I. E. Chadwick, of Ivan Film Productions — Ivan Production, "Sins of Ambition," Reported Booked Heavy

BASING his opinion upon the reception "Sins of Ambition" has received in the territories where it has been released, I. E. Chadwick, president of Ivan Film Productions, Inc., says that the much-talked-of unsettled conditions which are said to prevail today in the picture industry, is more fancy than fact.

"The bookings on 'Sins of Ambition,'" said Mr. Chadwick, "are unprecedented in number in the annals of the Merit Film Exchange, through which company 'Sins of Ambition' is being distributed in the New York territory. The same news comes from V. H. Hodupp, Inc., which company is handling the distribution of this feature in the Indiana territory. The picture was released in both territories on December 19, and more than 103 bookings are noted by V. H. Hodupp, Inc.

"This merely shows that the much talked about unsettled condition of the trade does not apply to Ivan Film Productions. It shows that when proper co-operation holds sway, all concerned—be it producer, distributor or exhibitor—get their chance of earning their due.

"As an official of the Ivan Film Productions on a previous occasion said, 'If expense, no matter how unsparing, is concentrated upon the actual production, without waste of funds on extravagant overhead, the exhibitor will soon note where value for him can be found. They do not object to paying a fair and reasonable rental when one will present them pictures like "Sins of Ambition."'"

Wilfred Lucas, Barbara Castleton, Leah Baird, Anders Randolf, Madeline Travers, James Morrison—each and every one of them popular stars of filmdom—have their drawing power; but when gathered together, presented in one release, it indeed makes men sit up and take notice.

"It shall be the aim of the Ivan Film Productions to always present productions for distribution which will at a glance convince the exhibitor that he is getting fullest value for his money. The glamor of great money as regards to overcharge must not apply to any of the outlet of the Ivan people. The moving picture industry should not be conducted as a sort of bonanza for any individual or number of individuals, but will succeed only if it is conducted on an efficient, energetic, economic business basis.

"Jesse Goldburg, known through the trade, who has been engaged, recently, to handle the exploitation of all Ivan Productions is more than satisfied with the figures at which he can close for the sale of Ivan Productions. Any deals with the distributors will be fair to the state rights' buyers and the producer."

Harold Lockwood, Metro Star, in "The Avenging Trail"

"Eagle's Eye" to Expose Menace

Chief William J. Flynn, United States Secret Service, Says Propaganda Is Necessary Too—Picture Powerful Medium

CHIEF WILLIAM J. FLYNN, of the United States Secret Service, who wrote "The Eagle's Eye," now under production by the Whartons at their studio in Ithaca, states that his object is to inspire patriotism and foster loyalty to the United States government; to impress on citizens of every race and creed the importance of standing by the President; to encourage enlistment in the United States army and navy and establish the fact that conscription is absolutely necessary to the safety of the country; to encourage purchases of Liberty Bonds and financial aid to the Red Cross; and, finally, to do all possible to convince doubtful ones that universal democracy is essential to the peace and prosperity of the entire world.

"Propaganda in behalf of these objects," said Chief Flynn, "has been shown to be necessary. The people are entitled to a full knowledge of the Imperial German government's crime against America. Motion pictures present a most powerful and novel medium to this end. The events depicted in my story deal with closed and concluded cases and treat of facts not hitherto made known, which are interwoven with a romantic fictional story to present them in an entertaining and interesting manner."

Impersonations of official representatives of the German Imperial government who were the guiding spirits of desperate plots and sinister propaganda in this country until they were expelled, and who left behind them an organized syp-army of far-reaching influence and power, will be one of the conspicuous features of this serial photodrama, "The Eagle's Eye." It is said the characterization of Ambassador von Bernstorff and his official colleagues in "The Eagle's Eye" will be the truest-to-life characterization yet seen in any photoplay.

Photographs of the originals were used in selecting actors to impersonate von Bernstorff and his naval and military aids, Captains Karl Boy-Ed and Franz von Papen, Franz von Rintelen, personal emissary of Kaiser Wilhelm, and Dr. Heinrich Albert, the fiscal agent of the German government.

The actors engaged to play these parts bear remarkable personal resemblance to the men whom they impersonate. Several people who have seen some of the scenes and who had seen von Bernstorff and his aids, express their admiration of the fidelity with which the personalities of Imperial Germany's chief plotters are pictured on the screen.

Bertram Marburgh impersonates Count von Bernstorff. Several scenes in which Captains Boy-Ed and von Papen appear show their connection with spy plots, and reveal what they did.

Librarian Writes Praises for "Mother"

THE librarian of Great Meadow Prison has written McClure Pictures in which he expresses his opinion concerning the relation of the motion picture to the world war. The idea, he says, was inspired by the presentation of George Loane Tucker's production, "Mother." The writer says:

"The great picture of the war, definitely marks the beginning of a new epoch in the development of the photoplay. "Mother," is the answer of the industry to the call of President Wilson for help in making clear the aims of the Allied nations and the awakening of national consciousness throughout America.

"The idea of embattled Democracy is that the citizen is first and the state but an instrument to serve him. We hold the greatness of the state to be but the reflection of the character of the citizen, whose manhood and womanhood find expression in governmental institutions. The will to honor is Democracy's answer to the will to power.

"'Mother' is the story of the will to honor. It is the supreme visualization of the fundamental idea of Allied effort. Whoever sees this picture will have written on the imperishable tablets of memory the reason why America fights. The creation of a collective personality among Americans is the great duty of the American motion picture industry. Now collective personality is built up of ideals. Ideals are best expressed in images and symbols. 'Mother' is such a symbol.

"Through the medium of the images cast upon the screen it addresses the mind in terms of ideals. The old, old, tried and proven true ideals which have been passed on from mother to son, for so many generations that they have become the heritage of the race. A process of unfoldment is set in motion in the mind of each spectator that ultimates in each case in a full revelation of the inner, better self. Not about war or soldiers, only a simple story of home and Mother, it has the deep, deep, metaphysical timber of the psalms coupled with the magic beauty of a fairy tale.

"'Mother' is the literary and dramatic production of the war."

"Tarzan" May Get Premiere in New York

ACCORDING to latest developments following the completion of "Tarzan of the Apes," the eight-reel screen version of the novel of the same name by Edgar Rice Burroughs, it is very likely the production, controlled by the National Film Corporation of America, of which William Parsons is president, will be given its premiere in New York.

For the purpose of looking after the various interests of his company, and the picture in particular, President Parsons came to New York several days ago.

After six months of production Scott Sidney, who directed its picturization, has succeeded, according to those who have attended pre-views of the photodrama, in bringing out all the novelty which sold hundreds of thousands of the book, and has elaborated the human interest of the story into a romance.

Isidore Bernstein, formerly studio manager at Universal City and widely known in all branches of the industry, has been engaged as assistant to President Parsons of the National Film Corporation of America. Mr. Bernstein will have general charge of the business details connected with the marketing of "Tarzan of the Apes."

Balsly Quits Industry in West

Lee D. Balsly, who for the past nine months or more has been manager of the Standard Film Corporation exchange at Kansas City, Mo., this week announced his intention to resign his position with that organization in order to accept the situation of Director of Creative Advertising for the Union Bank Note Company of Kansas City.

Six years ago Mr. Balsly was manager of the Aladdin and the Landers theatres of Springfield, Mo.

Mabel Normand, Star of "Mickey," Controlled by the Western Import Company

"Sub-Titles Important Essential"

W. H. Productions Says This Phase of a Feature Is Most Important—Will Handle Independent Productions of Merit

W. H. PRODUCTIONS COMPANY announces that it is now prepared to handle the exploitation of any independent production of merit produced for the market. A statement made by an official says: "We are prepared now to handle world rights either on percentage or on an advance with a minimum guarantee. We will only consider the highest class of productions and will give every production we handle an individual and complete campaign that will do justice to it. The W. H. Productions has proved that it can handle a picture to the best advantage and this is due to an efficient organization.

"Adaptability is a great virtue. It is the slogan adopted by the company in the administration of its various departments. The title department has succeeded in making an exemplary application of it in the new and unique method of titling all of their productions.

"In titling photoplays, it is necessary to know the functions and purposes of the titles. The composition of an audience is rarely of a particular class. In fact it is generally composed of many different classes. The treatment of language, understandable and clear to the college bred mind, means absolutely nothing to others who do not possess the advantages of the higher education. The latter, or the masses, compose at least seventy-five per cent. of the motion picture theatre going public. They are, therefore, entitled to consideration. They pay for it, and, in fairness, they should receive it. There are also the children, citizens of foreign birth, and many others who should be considered. There must be one set of titles that will please them all. Since it is physically impossible to make them interchangeable, W. H. Productions Company has adapted itself to meet these needs. They have overcome these difficulties and have attained a happy medium understandable to all.

"W. H. Productions Company is not only progressive in the above respect, but in its sales and advertising methods for the exchange and the exhibitor. The W. H. Productions has deviated from the regular channel in the make-up of its heralds. One of the most illogical things in heralds that are gotten up today by the various organizations is a synopsis of the picture. The purpose of a herald primarily is to help sell seats for the exhibitor. It is one of the exhibitor's salesmen. Now, then, there isn't any particular type of story that will appeal to every movie fan, and, again, in most cases the interest of the reader wanes by telling the story of a production beforehand, so we are therefore eliminating the synopsis or story from each of our heralds and are preparing our copy and lay-out to conform to the idea of creating interest in the picture and a desire to see it."

Keeney Engages James Kirkwood

Frank A. Keeney Pictures Corporation Engage James Kirkwood to Direct Catherine Calvert in Special Productions

FRANK A. KEENEY, president of Frank A. Keeney Pictures Corporation, announces that he has engaged James Kirkwood to direct Catherine Calvert in a series of special productions to be produced by this company. Mr. Kirkwood and Benjamin S. Kutler, screen editor for Keeney pictures, are now at work on the first photoplay in which Miss Calvert will appear under the Keeney banner. Work on the production will be commenecd next month.

Mr. Kirkwood is prominent in the field of motion picture directors. He has directed some of the biggest stars and has appeared as leading man for Mary Pickford and other leading screen lights. "Given a photoplay with possibilities and Kirkwood will never fail to put it over," was the comment of an official of the Keeney company in making the announcement.

The announcement is made, also, that Mr. Keeney has purchased a large track of ground in Williamsport, Pa., and will erect a new theatre to add to his present chain of amusement houses. It will occupy the site of the old Lycoming Opera House, on Third street. It is estimated that the structure will cost approximately $200,000 and will have a seating capacity of 1,800. It will be ready in the spring.

The Frank A. Keeney Pictures Corporation has been recently organized. Mr. Keeney has engaged Miss Calvert who is well known to the motion picture public to appear in a series of special productions. Miss Calvert is the widow of the late Paul Armstrong, playwright.

Metropolitan Taken Over in Cleveland

The U. S. Business Association of Pennsylvania has bought out the Metropolitan Film Company of Cleveland, and will maintain an office in 224 Columbia building. The Metropolitan Film Company originally started out as a producing company under the name of the Private Feature Film Company. They made the picture "Ignorance" in which Leanore Black and Earl Metcalf were starred. Most of the scenes were made in Cleveland, only a few being reserved for New York. This picture had a large sale all through the state.

In and Out of West Coast Studios

By J. C. Jessen

PRODUCTION forces of the Vitagraph Company at its Hollywood studio were increased last week by the arrival of Earle Williams and his director, Thomas Mills, together with Grace Darmond, who will be leading woman of the company. Mr. Williams arrived in Los Angeles on Christmas Day, and plans provided that first production would be commenced at the studios about January 1. Others in the party who arrived from the East were Cameraman Fred Held and Technical Director Frank Heath. The studio is now a busy place, the technical staff being engaged in preparing settings and other properties necessary for the coming Williams production.

Big Serial Started

In addition to increasing the producing staff by the Williams Company, additional work was taken on last week in preparation for the filming of what is termed an international serial which will be done under the direction of David Smith. Hedda Nova and J. Franklyn Glendon arrived in Los Angeles to play the leads in this serial. The entire south stage at the studio will be devoted to the serial company and the first filming was that done last week of an ambassador's ball, the settings for which required the full stage. Following this, the company will work at a private estate near Los Angeles where gardens representing the Imperial Palace at Petrograd will be used. This serial will consist of fifteen episodes or releases, each of two reels, and the different releases will be laid in different countries of Europe and the Orient, as well as in America. The filming of this serial has been taken up at this time so that it will be ready for release immediately following the showing of the last episode of "Vengeance—and the Woman."

William Duncan and company, which includes Carol Halloway as his leading woman, are now working on the eleventh episode during the day, and Mr. Duncan is editing the tenth, which has exteriors made at Santa Cruz Islands, in the evening. The company experienced some difficulty last week while at Santa Cruz Island, off the coast of Southern California, near Santa Barbara. After going to the island, high seas made it impossible for the company to go back to land in the small boats used. For a time it looked as though the entire troop would be stranded on the desert island, inhabited only by sheep herders, over Christmas, but by wireless they told their troubles to the studio management in Los Angeles and it was possible to induce a Pacific Coast liner to stop and pick up the players.

Ritchey Completes "Extra"

Will M. Ritchey, who two weeks ago took up the work of scenario editor at the American studios at Santa Barbara, has completed his first play, which is at present known as "Extra! Extra!" As the title indicates, this is a newspaper story, many of the scenes taking place in and about a newspaper office. Mr. Ritchey is a former newspaper man who prior to taking up the avocation of writing for the screen served a number of years as writer on leading newspapers of American cities. Mary Miles Minter is to be the featured player of this newspaper drama and her usual supporting cast will appear. Announcement is made that the script provides for fifteen complete changes of costume for Miss Minter.

On the Brink of a Hawaiian Volcano Crater for Scenes in "Hidden Pearls," Starring Sessue Hayakawa for Paramount

"High Heels" is being given the finishing touches in the cutting room of the American studio this week by Director Lloyd Ingraham, and the scenario department is busy in the preparation of a new photoplay for this company. "High Heels" will introduce a number of new faces for this American play including David Howard, Edward Peil, Golda Madden and Fred Smith.

Another photoplay in the cutting process is "Detective Dan Cupid," which stars William Russell, and which will in all probability be the last American subject in which Russell appears. Director Edward Sloman is editing this film. Mr. Sloman's contract with the American has been renewed for a long term. For almost two years this star and director have worked together. Francelia Billington, who has been leading woman in the past twelve subjects made by this company, has completed her engagement with the American and is now at her home in Los Angeles for a short stay before making a trip East, where she will complete negotiations.

New Ince Subjects

Two Thomas H. Ince companies began work last week on new subjects, and the third new production for the Paramount will be commenced within the next few days.

Jerome Storm, who was selected to direct the Enid Bennett company following a tutorship as assistant director for a number of months at the Ince plant, is to continue as director for Bennett subjects and is now at work on his second film with this star, which will be made from an original scenario and continuity prepared by C. Gardner Sullivan. Earl Rodney, who appeared opposite Miss Bennett in the first subject, has been engaged for a similar role in the one being made at present. Jack Nelson has been engaged as assistant to Director Storm. The coming Bennett production will have many of the scenes laid in a small Kansas town, which gives opportunity for many types to be found only in a village.

A modern story has been written for Charles Ray, and a few scenes of this have been made, notwithstanding that the cast has not been selected. Victor Schertzinger continues as director of this company. R. Cecil Smith, of the Ince scenario department, was taken ill while preparing the continuity for this Ray subject, but by the aid of Mrs. Smith the subject was completed while he was propped up in bed. Mrs. Smith is known professionally as Ella Stuart Carson and has a number of Ince productions to her credit as author.

Story is now being written for the Dorothy Dalton company, and Director R. William Neill will begin work on this shortly. Carmen Phillips, who has appeared in heavy roles in a number of Fox Lasky and Bluebird productions, has been engaged to play an important part in the coming Dalton production. Melbourne MacDowell has been selected to appear in this subject.

Lloyd Starts One

Frank Lloyd, director of several of the latest William Farnum productions for Fox, has given much of his time in the past three weeks to the preparation of a scenario which he now has in production. No title is given this story, which is said to deal with the divorce evil in American life. While this is the first original story by Mr. Lloyd to be produced for Fox, it will serve to introduce a new leading woman in the person of Bertha Mann, who in Los Angeles is popular with theatre-goers, having played for the past two years as leading woman in stock at Oliver Morosco's Broadway theatre in this city. Miss Mann is an actress of ten years' experience, who began in one of the original Peter Pan companies in the East. Charles Clary will play the male lead in this subject, this being his first appearance before the camera for more than three months, owing to illness with bronchial pneumonia. Rhea Mitchell has been engaged to take an important part following her engagement at Paralta, and others selected for this cast are Mark Robbins, Bertram Grassby and Willard Louis.

John Bowers, World-Brady Leading Man

The production now being made by Bertram Bracken gives Gladys Brockwell another opportunity to show the screen fans that she is successful with dual roles. The company is now working at the studio and expects to complete the production within the next week.

Tom Mix and company, under the direction of S. A. Franklin, are working on the desert on a Western subject which has Enid Markey as leading woman and an important part for several of the kiddies, including Georgie Stone, Virginia Corbin and Violet Radcliffe.

Director C. A. Franklin, who has Jewel Carmen as his featured player, is again working at the studio after spending two weeks at Truckee in an effort to secure snow scenes, when the "beautiful" would not fall at the command of the director.

Vacation at Universal

All Universal employes, on instructions from President Carl Laemmle, were given two days' vacation—Monday and Tuesday—of Christmas and New Year weeks, the several producing organizations working on Sundays of each week in order to keep up the production schedule necessary at this season of the year. All heads of departments received congratulatory telegrams from President Laemmle on New Year's Day. In these he thanked them for the enthusiastic manner in which they had looked after production interests of the Universal during the past year, spoke of the continued improvement in quality of subjects at U City, and urged upon them the appreciation by the executives of the Universal.

Several new subjects were started this week at U City, one being a Butterfly picture titled "The Other Thing," adapted from a magazine story of the same title by Harvey Gates. Kenneth Harlan, Carmel Meyers and Harry Carter will take the principal parts in this political story being directed by Stuart Paton.

The first subject to be made by the new Universal director, Rae Berger, is titled "Little Miss Sherlock," and features Zoe Rae, together with Claire DuBray and William Stowell. Berger is a former West

Alice Brady, Popular Star in Select Pictures, Star Series

Coast director who was affiliated with the American, and since that time has been in vaudeville. His first story was adapted for the screen by F. H. Clark, a new member of the Universal scenario department.

Herbert Rawlinson, under the direction of Elmer Clifton, has completed the filming of "Mr. Cinderella," and as the Rawlinson contract with the Universal expires about January 1, and no renewal has been made, it is understood he has left, after almost four years of continuous service as leading man for Universal. In this period he has been starred in several of their most productive and successful subjects, including "Come Through," "Damon and Pythias" and others.

"Shoes That Dance"

Work has been started by Triangle on the adaptation from the John Moroso story, "The Shoes That Dance." This is an underworld tale, and Wallace McDonald, late of Eastern Vitagraph forces, will make his debut on the Triangle program as the leading man. Another new Triangle player in the cast is Dick Rossen, who has played in several subjects at the Yonkers Triangle studio following a screen career of several years. Pauline Starke will be the featured player of this subject.

After completing "A Soul in Trust," Director Gilbert P. Hamilton has been handed the script for a story titled "The Captain of His Soul," and he is now at work on this subject, which is from an original story by Cathrine Carr. The atmosphere is that of Virginia and Washington, D. C., and Belle Bennett is to be featured, with a supporting cast that includes Lillian West, Darrell Foss, Barney Sherry, Wilbur Higby and others.

William Desmond, who in almost all past subjects has been given parts of the matinee idol type, is now to come forth before the camera as a full fledged swashbuckling pirate in a story titled "The Sea Panther." This is laid in the Carribean Sea and is from an original story by Kenneth B. Clark. The good ship "Fremont," which has had a very unique existence serving as blockade runner during the Civil War and in the past five years camouflaged to appear as various kinds of crafts, will now serve as the pirate ship. Thomas N. Heffron will be the director of this subject.

The Western Triangle company, headed by Roy Stewart and directed by Cliff Smith, celebrated the completion of their latest subject, "Keith of the Border," by a big Christmas tree at the studio on the coast. Stewart and Smith made all arrangements for the celebration and gave the cowboys and other members of the cast a complete surprise on Christmas morning.

Fairbanks to Arizona

After two days' work at the studio on a new Western story written by Alan

Albert Capellani Directs Metro Wonder Plays

Dwan, the Douglas Fairbanks company left for Arizona, where they are making their headquarters at Tucson. The producing organization consisted of about one hundred and seventy-five people. The subject will be made under the supervision of Alan Dwan, with Arthur Rossen as director.

Kathrine MacDonald, who has just completed the leading feminine role in an Ince production for Paramount, has been selected to play the leading feminine role opposite Fairbanks in this coming Artcraft subject. An important character part will be played by Frank Campeau. Approximately one hundred and fifty of the party who went to Tucson are cowboys of actual experience, and they will take part in many of the Western scenes made. Fairbanks appears in the role of a cowboy, and in his usual active manner performs many rescues. The scenes made at the studio before the company departed for Arizona and the borderland included a Mexican raid in which more than two hundred took part.

Fairbanks early last week spent a day at San Diego, where he was in charge of a Red Cross drive which resulted in more than a thousand members. The actor purchased one hundred memberships which he gave to newsboys. The first man he solicited was Mayor Lewis J. Wilde. Following this, he made a personal canvass of the business houses in the down town district.

Paralta Reduces

In the past four or five weeks production activities at the Paralta studios have been materially reduced, and at the present time there are but two companies working there. One is headed by Bessie Barriscale, who has just completed an underworld story directed by Raymond B. West, and "The Hoops of Steel" company, which is working under the direction of Eliot Howe. The new subject for Miss Barriscale is of a patriotic nature, and she takes the role of a Scottish lassie. Scenes are laid in Scotland, England and France. The original story and scenario are by R. B. Kidd and Jane Holly.

The Louise Glaum company, which was recently organized, will begin work on a story by Monte M. Katterjohn about January 12. The director for this company and the supporting cast have not been named.

The Alaskan subject, "Carmen of the Klondike," filmed by Reginald Barker, with Clara Williams as star, was taken East this week by Ferdinand Guinsberg, financial representative of Paralta, who has been at the studios for the past three weeks. At the studio it is stated a bona fide offer has been made for this subject by the First National Exhibitors' Association prior to a showing of the film. It is said to be one of the best subjects Mr. Barker has directed, and those who have been so fortunate as to see the studio runs claim it will be one of the most successful pictures of recent years.

"Mystery Ship" Progresses

Douglas Gerrard is now filming for Universal "Lady Eldone's Daughter," adapted from a magazine story by Doris Schroeder. Mr. Gerrard will have Ella Hall and her husband, Emory Johnson, as the principal players.

Last week saw the fifteenth episode of "The Mystery Ship" completed by Harry Harvey, the director, and Ben Wilson and Neva Gerber, the leads. This serial is to consist of eighteen episodes.

The Horne company making "The Bull's Eye" is now working on the ninth episode.

Louise Lovely, star of a number of successful Bluebird productions, began work Christmas week under the direction of Edgar Jones in "New Clothes," a society story written by Harvey Gates and adapted for the screen by E. B. Lewis.

Wilfred Lucas, who is directing Monroe Salisbury and Ruth Clifford in "The Heart of the Desert," has returned with the company from Banning, Cal., where many of the exterior scenes were made, and the next two weeks will be spent at the studio completing this subject.

Dorothy Phillips is now being starred in an adaptation from a magazine story entitled "Her Fling." William Stowell is playing the leading man role and Juanita Hansen is the other principal player under the direction of Ida May Park.

The Lyons and Moran company have just filmed a Nestor comedy known as "Home Talent," and with their special scenario writer, "Pop" Hoadley, are now busy preparing story for their next subject.

Rolfe Home Again

Western Representative B. A. Rolfe, of Metro, returned to Los Angeles Christmas Day, after a ten days' trip to New York, where he delivered cutting prints and negatives of first two Western-made subjects, and has again assumed active management of the Hollywood producing plant. The first photoplays made in the West, Mr. Rolfe stated, were satisfactory to the Metro heads, and he was advised "the pictures surely show where the money went to."

Charles J. Bralin, who is to direct the Viola Dana company half the time, will during the coming week commence the production of "Breakers Ahead," an original photoplay by Bralin and H. P. Keeler. This is laid in the Cape Cod country and is spoken of as a powerful drama of life among the fisher folk. Clifford Bruce will, as he has in the past four Dana pictures, play the leading male role. Russell Simpson, who formerly played in Metro subjects in the East, will appear in the leading character part.

Director Tod Browning was absent from his studio last week with a company of forty filming exteriors for "Revenge" in the vicinity of Pleasanton, Cal.

Hollywood Hookum

Jan. 19, 1918 NEWS MORE NEWS

CLOSE-UPS

BY CON TRIB

Speaking of stars' salaries, Lee Moran said the other day the famous Brothers Haig & Haig are destined to make Chaplin look like a pauper.

When Paddy Maguire moved to Culver City with the Keystoners he took his wardrobe in his vest pocket—mustache and two sticks of number three. Bag.

Being informed by Harvey Thew, Los Angeles goes dry on April 1st, enlightens our vision as to the real cause for the dizziness of all members of the film colony.

Cheatless Sunday, Treatless Monday, Meatless Tuesday, Wheatless Wednesday, Sweetless Thursday, Eatless Friday, Eatless Saturday, is Mark Larkin's war time schedule. Mark is Balboa's publicity chief.

An applicant, aged sixteen, male, for work at Triangle gives as his chief qualification for work in comedy, a hearty appetite, and Studio Manager E. G. Patterson is trying to discover a niche for this brave youth.

Since the Keystone comedians have been transferred to the Culver City studios of Triangle, it has been necessary to replace "Keep off the Grass' signs with white fences, built close to the concrete walks.

John Blackwood comes through with a lot of copy about Ince studio activities with a claim that it is "unduplicated stuff," and will not appear in any other publication, for none but HOOKUM would dare to print it. (Editor Note: It's too hot for HOOKUM.)

Harvey Thew, a resident of Brain Alley, Lasky studio, discovered that he has a distinctive office—it does not contain a picture of D. Fairbanks. Thew is indeed a brave man, for he is the only one who dares to oppose that little Napoleon of press-agentry, named Bennie.

Anita King and an army officer were issued a marriage license Christmas Eve, and disappeared in an auto. No further word has been received by HOOKUM, so the entire editorial staff concludes Anita must have eloped, or started on another transcontinental automobile tour.

Monte Katterjohn's movable scenario office has been duplicated in miniature. The new edifice serves as a home for "Jim," the famous Paralta bull dog. The large building has been named Squirrel Inn, and the small one "The Annex," the namers claiming both are the homes of nuts.

Jerry Storm became a director on Saturday. Monday and Tuesday he was modest. By Wednesday he was making himself heard in all parts of the studio aided by the megaphone. On Thursday he did not wear puttees, but on Friday you should have seen him—he had puttees and everything. When he finished his first picture, he proved to all that he was a regular director.

Fair all week.
Holly is numerous.
No white Christmas.
Rumors are numerous.
Harry Aitken's in town.
Roy Aiten's in Culver City.
H. O. Davis is back at the Triangle studios.
Richard Rowland, Metro magnate, threatens L. A. with a visit in February.
Edna Purviance spent Christmas at the home town, Lovelock, Nevada.
Bill Mong's educated goose died the day before Christmas—au natural.

Al Garcia, the Satan in "By Super Strategy," went to Hell this week.

Jackie Saunders gave a horseflesh Christmas dinner at the Astor, it is said.

And now our fair city has been honored by the presence of Earle Wiliams.

And now Bill Desmond, that heart-breaking matinee idol, is going to appear as a pirate.

Prosperity Note: Frank Beresford, Triangle scenario editor, is flitting about in a Winton.

Charles Gunn is vacationing from Triangle. No. he's a regular member of the star stock company.

Our own George du Bois Proctor, the best known man in the business, is reported to be westward-hoing.

Harl McInroy writes that he has resigned as scenario editor-in-chief of Balboa and is again a free-lancer.

K. McGaffey is back west from the east with many lurid tales of wild nights and days—some are really thrilling.

Belle Bennett gave a party on Christmas, and entertained a lot of visiting Thespians from the legit. stage.

All the weekly boys were out on New Year's day to film the Rose Tournament at our neighboring hamlet—Pasadena.

Walter MacNamara wished Merry Christmas to everyone of the Triangle lot including the cutters, which he claims is free democracy.

Now that Roy Stewart is the star of the Triangle eighteen thousand acre wild west studio, it has been suggested that the place be renamed. How does Stewarton sound?

Bill Hart spent his Christmas Holiday with "Fritz' his Pinto Pony, and on this occasion they rehearsed a sketch for "Fritz's" final public appearance. Bill claims "Fritz" is going to give them all the equestrian laugh.

Among the Exchanges

General Film Calls Three Meetings

As the first act of a new year, General Film has called three sectional conventions of its various branches for discussion among the managers of new activities already under way or planned.

The first of these conventions was set for New York on Saturday, January 5, with executives from the home office and the various branches of the eastern district in attendance. The second of these conventions was dated for Monday, January 7, at Chicago, for the benefit of the exchangemen in the central section of the country, and the third arranged for San Francisco on Friday, January 11.

These sectional conventions mark the first step in an aggressive campaign outlined for the year 1918, each of the thirty-two General Film offices being represented in the deliberations. The various opportunities presented by the enlargement of General Film's usefulness, following its working alliance with the W. W. Hodkinson corporation for the distribution of Paralta Plays through General Film exchanges, provided the most important topic for these conventions, which were held under the personal direction of General Sales Manager S. R. Kent.

George F. Law Is Film Pioneer

George F. Law, manager of the Minneapolis Foursquare Exchange, began his film career with the old Dominion Film Exchange in Toronto, Can., which company later became the Kinetograph Company and eventually merged into the General Film Co. Being with this company at the time of the merger, Mr. Law took charge of the joint office in Toronto and later in Winnipeg. His next move was with Mutual in their Minneapolis office, where after acting as assistant manager and head of the sales department he was promoted to the position of manager, which position he held for over a year.

When M. H. Hoffman decided to open an exchange in Minneapolis, Mr. Law left the General to become manager of the Foursquare Exchange.

Fire Covers Attempted Theatre Robbery

Following the recent fire at the Crystal theatre on North Gay street, Baltimore, it was discovered that the conflagration was started to hide an attempted burglary.

The attempt to rob the theatre was discovered by Manager Harry Cluster, who, while directing the work of men employed to clear away the debris, noticed that the combination and handle of the safe had been broken off.

Kane Associates Make Advance

General Manager of Select Finds That Seven in Eight of Seattle General Staff Have Risen to Place of Manager

ARTHUR S. KANE, general manager of Select Pictures Corporation, while running over lists of his old friends during the season of New Year's greetings, made the discovery that of his old associates in the Seattle office of the General Film Company seven out of eight had risen to prominence in the picture business. These men have all become managers.

This ability of Mr. Kane to surround himself with men of ambition is exemplified by the case of the eight men referred to. These men worked under Arthur Kane, when back in the old days the present general manager of Select Pictures went to the Pacific Northwest to take over and organize the General Film Company's business in Seattle, Portland, Spokane and Butte.

"I had eight men in the Seattle office which I managed personally, in addition to supervising Portland, Spokane and Butte," said Mr. Kane in accounting his experience. "Of these eight men seven became managers. Furthermore, they secured management positions in quick order and all of them have been managers for five or six years. This force was able to increase the business of Seattle Branch fifty per cent, and holds records in that office for business and profit. Do you wonder that I am so strong for employes capable of advancement? That is the real way to build."

The film exchange managers who were assembled under one roof in Seattle in Mr. Kane's day, handling various departments of the General Film Company's Exchange, are: C. M. Simmons, Oren F. Woody, C. P. Merwin, John S. Woody, Sam Bernfield, Grant A. Reed and A. T. Lambson, the latter of whom is now deceased.

This same talent of Mr. Kane for surrounding himself with men of high ability is now bringing to Select Pictures Corporation one of the most remarkable sales organizations in the history of the industry, which is why Select's general manager pins his faith in that famous declaration, "The greatest study of mankind is man."

Foursquare Exchanges in Twenty-one Cities

Foursquare Exchanges throughout the United States and Canada greeted the New Year in twenty-one different cities; for now this independent distributing organization covers this country. The latest exchanges opened are San Francisco, at 191 Golden Gate avenue; Los Angeles at 514 West Eighth street; Dallas, at 1911½ Commerce street, and Minneapolis, at 206 Film Exchange Building.

Edouardo Gainborg takes charge of the San Francisco Foursquare Exchange. W. W. Drum will direct the business of the Los Angeles exchanges. For years he was with the World Film.

John C. Ezell, the Dallas Foursquare manager, is well known to southern exhibitors. The new St. Louis manager, C. A. Maberry (who succeeds Sidney J. Baker, who moved on up to the Kansas City post), is a former exhibitor; and in appointing him, M. H. Hoffman states that he felt Mr. Maberry to be specially fitted for his duties.

Williams Manages House in Poughkeepsie

T. W. Williams, of New York, has been appointed manager of the new Stratford theatre in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., which was opened recently by the Poughkeepsie Theatre Company, of which Ely Elting is the head.

"Polly of the Circus," Goldwyn's initial picture, starring Mae Marsh, was the opening attraction.

Paralta Representatives Send Greetings

At a meeting of the executives and department heads of Paralta Plays and the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation, which took place last week at the offices of the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation, telegrams were read from the various exchanges handling Paralta Plays throughout the country, all of which pointed to a brilliant outlook for the placing of these productions in the theatres of the country.

In every case the exchange managers were said to be enthusiastic in telling of the reception the productions had received when screened for the exhibitors in their territory, and stated that in most cases contracts have already been signed in the principal cities for the exhibition of Paralta Plays.

The contract department of the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation, in New York City, passes on all contracts before they are definitely signed.

Buffalo Manageress Loses Through Tax

That the war tax is a serious proposition for the small exhibitor is indicated by the statement of Frances Aichinger, manager of the Cozy Corner theatre, Buffalo, N. Y., declaring that patrons will not pay the tax and where evening receipts before the tax were from $200 to $300 a night, they have now dropped to $100.

Miss Aichinger sees in the tax ruin for the house, if present conditions continue.

Canada May Be Taxed on All Tickets

In all probability the coming session of the Manitoba legislature, which convenes in January, will see the passage of a ticket tax law, imposing for war purposes, taxes on all admission tickets ranging from one cent to fifty cents. The Manitoba Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association is actively preparing to combat the passage of this bill if at all possible. It is claimed by the government that $300,000 must be raised by this means. Exhibitors and managers of legitimate houses assert that this amount does not necessitate anything like fifty cent taxes on $2 tickets. The tax on a ten cent ticket would be one cent; on a fifteen cent admission two cents; on a twenty cent ticket three cents, and so on.

It is understood that A. Hedley Garland, Manitoba's amusement commissioner, has already ordered from the East several million of these tax tickets, in anticipation of their being in use immediatcly the new law is passed

Baltimore Manager Changes Positions

Charles Thropp, who for the past two years has been manager of Nixon's Victoria, in Baltimore, has resigned, it was announced last week, to become booking manager of the vaudeville department of the Parkway Company. The latter uses vaudeville in some of the larger houses controlled by it.

Manager Thropp entered upon his new duties January 7.

Pittsburgh Exhibitor Helps Red Cross

The manager of the Lyceum theatre, in Pittsburgh, according to an announcement this week by Jewel Productions, Inc., secured much good news space in the local newspapers the week of December 24 by offering a certain per cent of his receipts to the Red Cross campaign. The picture during the week was Jewel's "The Man Without a Country," and the share turned over to the Red Cross was said to have been $2,000.

Lee L. Goldberg

EXHIBITORS' PERSONALS

CALIFORNIA.—T. C. Reavis has assumed the management of the Cline theatre at Santa Rosa.

E. W. Stauffner of Santa Monica has bought from H. W. Riddle the Ivy theatre at Pica Heights.

The Strand theatre at Los Gatos, after being closed for several weeks, was recently reopened under the management of William Wolff and J. J. Thompson of San Francisco.

IDAHO.—E. W. Waddell has bought the Unique theatre at Nampa from Mrs. J. W. Howell.

ILLINOIS.—Roy and Harry Gilbert of Kankakee have leased from Herman Sprimont the show department of the opera house. They expect to put on a moving picture show every Tuesday and Wednesday evening, besides such vaudeville and operatic attractions as can be arranged for.

G. W. Hill, formerly of Armington has bought the Court theatre, Pekin, and recently assumed active management.

INDIANA.—Leslie Clark and Louis Hamilton, editors of the Rensselaer Republican, have bought the Strand theatre, Franklin, from R. C. Milliron.

IOWA.—A community theatre is about to be opened at Mount Vernon in the near future.

E. J. Brown has leased the Casino theatre at Mason City.

Frank King has rented the Princess theatre at Storm Lake.

George Moulds of Dayton has purchased from H. G. Nichols the opera house at Waverly.

T. H. Connell and D. F. Doty have taken over the Lyric theatre at Deep River.

W. H. Englert has opened the Garden theatre at Iowa City.

E. A. Barr is the new manager of the Isis theatre at Lake City.

MONTANA.—H. Beverley has assumed the management of the Lyric theatre, Glasgow, taking charge about ten days ago.

The Marlow theatre at Helena is fast approaching completion and it is expected will be ready for opening by the first of February.

Erwin and Myers are opening the new motion picture theatre at Harlowtown.

E. F. Cartwright will be the manager of the new picture theatre at Roy.

J. F. Buchanan opened a new motion picture house at Hedgesville a few days ago.

NEBRASKA.—R. E. Ream has bought the Alamo theatre, Omaha, has renamed it the Liberty, and opened on Christmas day.

The Lyric theatre at Ong was recently bought by L. G. Wilcox.

Sam Miller is the new manager of the Opera House at Tekamah.

H. E. Wait has bought the Comet theatre at Kearney from A. F. Bells.

Earl Blacketer has sold the Crystal theatre at Ulysses to G. M. Hogan.

George C. Allgaire has bought the motion picture theatre at Nelson from L. G. Voix.

Hortense Porter has sold the Grand theatre at Eldora to Max Tschauder of Marshaltown.

OHIO.—The New Rialto theatre in Elyria opened December 20, with a big banquet at the Elks' Club, to which all the staff members of the local Famous Players Organization were invited. Following the banquet, the guests participated in a private theatre party. The opening program for the Rialto consisted of a William S. Hart feature and a "Fatty" Arbuckle comedy.

J. V. Wolcott, owner of the Princess theatre, 229 Euclid avenue, Cleveland, has purchased from L. L. Schmucker, the Iris theatre, 1885 W. 25th street, for a consideration reported to be about $4,000. Mr. Wolcott plans to remodel the theatre soon for feature photoplays.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Francis J. Loughram has sold the Franklin theatre, a two-story motion picture auditorium located at 1205-1209 N. 52d street, through Mohr and Kelley. The name of the new purchaser was not given out.

H. R. Weber has sold the Star theatre, Chambersburg, to Norland H. Martin.

WISCONSIN.—W. G. Beecroft opened his new theatre at Madison a few days ago.

Nichols Plans Grand Rapids House

It has been announced from Grand Rapids, Mich., that George Nichols is planning a new motion picture theatre on Division Street South, near Franklin, with a seating capacity of 850.

C. S. Karland and Daniel H. Collins will supervise the construction of the house, and will manage it after it is placed in operation, it is said.

Omaha House Uses Triangle Re-Issue

Exhibitor Larry Longnecker of the Sun, Sioux City, Iowa, declares the Triangle reissue of "The Lamb" went good at his theatre, breaking all house records, the highest of which was set recently by the picture, "When a Man Sees Red."

"The Lamb" was shown in Sioux City eight times before it was shown at the Sun. Manager F. W. Thiele of the Triangle exchange in Omaha says the re-issues are going as good as the original releases ever did.

Aelick Succeeds Saether in Wisconsin Town

E. R. Saether, who has been manager of the three houses, Bijou, Strand and Marinette, which the McElroy Fitzpatrick Company operates in Marinette, Wis., has been promoted to the place of attraction booker of the company, and has gone to Chicago. He has been succeeded in Marinette by T. J. Aelick.

The McElroy Fitzpatrick Company controls nineteen theatres, and uses many of the William Fox attractions.

Christie Company Passes Second Year

On New Year's day, 1918, the Christie Film Company celebrated its second anniversary.

Al E. Christie, director of Christie Comedies, entered the producing field under his own name on January 1, 1915. Four years before he had established the Nestor Company, which later merged with Universal.

In discussing the two years of developmetn at his studio, Al E. Christie said, "On New Year's Day we shot the first scenes in a new covered stage just completed and equipped with a modern $25,000 lighting system. We christened this new stage on our second anniversary for the sake of the sentiment there was in it and with the hope that a year from now we will have two more stages of even greater dimensions."

Norma Talmadge Stars in "Ghosts of Yesterday," a Select Picture

Screen Examinations

Bringing Them Into a Close-Up

By Longacre

"THE CROSS BEARER," one of Mr. Brady's current contributions to the screen, shows a series of scenes wherein an actor impersonates the Pope. Not so long ago a Pathe release produced by Thanhouser introduced an actor doing his best to play President Wilson. Two years ago a Fine Arts picture intruded a subtitle "Hail the Chief!" and then the actor made his way across the ball room floor. He was also acting President Wilson! The Kaiser of course has been impersonated too but a bad extra is not good enough to do even that part full justice.

Leave the celebrities alone until they are dead. Leaving aside a certain rightful prejudice of a religion against having its potentates presented by an actor, the effect produced is never worth the trouble. Ninety-nine times out of a hundred the audience will either laugh or be disgusted. Possibly it objects as a matter of principle but probably the objection is more or less subconscious. The all-important illusion which the author has labored to build up, he quite totally destroys for the moment anyway, when the living great are impersonated. Simply because the audience's interest will be detracted from the story by conjectures of how bad or how good the actor.

And while the man who played the Pope in "The Cross Bearer" was imbued with a sense of the dignity of his role, it must be confessed that most such parts do not receive really good acting. With the case of a prominent figure long since dead, the opposite effect results. Generally the part is played well, generally it is the center of the action and not dragged in by the heels. But it is because of the fact that, with a few exceptions such as Lincoln and Washington, we have no definite conception of our olden celebrities and so a performer can impersonate any one of them without jarring us out of the spirit of the picture.

Paralta has ready for release, "Carmen of the Klondike," a corking Alaskan picture which it has been our privilege to see but not review. However, it is violating no secret confidence to express the opinion that it will be a big money-getter. Its title and locale are practically a guarantee of that without the perfection of production and virility of plot that it possesses.

The popularity of Alaskan pictures is something amazing. "The Spoilers" paved the way for others. Witness "The Flame of the Yukon" and "The Barrier" as more recent examples of the success this type of production has attained. Probably the reason is because the life of the north is always pictured in the rough, elemental passions unveneered sway the characters, Alaska had no room for weaklings at the period of which the authors write, it was live or die, and the devil take the hindermost. These elements when brought into story form exercise an unbounded fascination over the observer. And there is the added attraction that few people in the States have any extensive knowledge of the country of the far north.

In this respect does the Alaskan picture resemble the Western as presented by William S. Hart and others. That type of entertainment which is well summed up by the descriptive couplet "rough stuff" meaning all the fights of the bar room and the dance hall, all the struggle in the open and the love which excludes all else, is presented in both this variety of picture and when an author who knows the screen knits the ingredients together and presents them in forcible style the result soars to the heights of success.

The heritage of the successful in any field is to be imitated, usually with disastrous results to the imitator and to the further glory of the imitated. Those in the business of producing comedy pictures have the most extensive trail of ambitious imitators who are positively aware of the fact that they are "just as good." Charlie Chaplin has the largest number. Douglas Fairbanks has one or two. Mary Pickford has had many but they all fall by the wayside. Mack Sennett's style of comedy is often vainly attempted but seldom if ever achieved.

But just a word to the imitators. Where you fail, dear people, is when you think the celebrities have it as easy as it looks. You take your work easily as a consequence, while the one you aim to emulate is sitting up nights trying to think how he can improve himself and his work.

As witness the producer who goes after the Mack Sennett type of comedy. He hits upon a certain gag that promises worlds of fun and of course he uses it, but to excess. If he had only studied his Sennett a little more thoroughly he would speedily realize that when the incomparable Mack concocts an original gag he uses it and then forgets it, for the time being anyway. The imitator will employ it over and over again and perhaps he will get a laugh for it every time but this is one form of successful comedy producing, Sennett's is another.

Evidently a keen student of psychology, Sennett realizes that the public expects him to repeat the trick that got such a big laugh. He knows they are waiting for it and would welcome it a second time in the same picture. But, probably thinks Sennett, "I'll fool 'em" and instead of repeating he gives them a trick of a totally different variety but just as funny! We may be all wrong in this deduction but certainly that is the way it all appears to us. Now let his imitators do their durndest!

Those who attempt to out-Chaplin Chaplin, steal glory from Fairbanks, or rob Mary Pickford of first place in the hearts of the fans usually fail to possess the necessary personality and usually are not clever enough and are without the clever help furnished these stars. But the same principle applies to them as to those who strive for Sennett's glory. They overdo it and the public soon gets tired of watching their efforts and returns to its original idol.

At the outset of the present war an author of national reputation was quoted as saying that the ideal war story, play or picture would never be written until the Allies encroached on enemy territory, that the popular situation of the victorious hero and the heroine of the losing side might be made the basis of the work. The author evidently drew this opinion from the success of the majority of Civil War pictures which proved his words beyond the shadow of a doubt. If this is the case the ideal play of the present war should shortly make its appearance, for the Allies have invaded enough enemy territory to furnish ground for such a situation.

But to our notion the present war, so strikingly different from all others, does not call for such a situation. While it would be well stocked with possibilities and make a successful story handled intelligently, the national prejudice of the present time would make it rather impossible to accept a heroine from the ranks of the enemy. Fifty or a hundred years hence, maybe, when the war is a memory, such a form of procedure will be all well and good. But today such pictures as deal only with lovers from one side of the fray and which introduce the enemy merely as villains are naturally the only sort to produce.

If 1917 produced no other innovations in the film business the animated clay modelling, first introduced by Willie Hopkins in the Animated Weekly, and now perfected to a remarkable degree is worthy of note. The opening of the Rivoli disclosed some truly wonderful work in this line. The humorous possibilities in the idea are unbounded. A complete face in clay suddenly taking a different shape is responsible for gales and gales of laughter. For short subjects these pictures make ideal additions to any theatre program.

The fact that the models in mind, seemingly molded before the eyes of the audiences, yet retaining all the mysterious atmosphere which creates a train of thought summed up in "I wonder how it is done," move rapidly but give perfect outline to each change, makes the subject novel enough to be classed among the best in its line.

"The Narrow Trail"
(Artcraft—Five Reels)
Reviewed by Peter Milne

WITH such definite reports of the success of "The Narrow Trail" coming in from all sections of the country, a review of it at this late date is something rather superfluous. But it was only shown in New York for the first time last week owing to certain court difficulties. So it merely becomes our duty to echo the many sentiments of praise voiced by exhibitors who have shown "The Narrow Trail" and profitted thereby.

Consequently: Echo! Echo! Echo! And then some more.

Taken from an original story by William S. Hart, picturized by Harvey F. Thew and starred in by the author, the outstanding feature of "The Narrow Trail" aside from the usual sterling work of Hart is the wonderfully intelligent performance rendered by his pinto, Fritz, the mottled pony who in the past has shared many a scene with his owner. Fritz is introduced surveying the valley from a lofty crag, shaking his head as a king in defiance of all mankind. Mastered by Ice Harding, king of the outlaws, Fritz's second big appearance is put in when a race of the cowboys is introduced. With "Ice up," Fritz leaves the field behind him, wins the thousand for his master, and then with the girl also safely on his back leaps a fence and carries both to safety.

The story tells simply how Ice Harding and Betty, a dance hall girl, were led to reform because of their belief in one another. It has the right spirit of romance, the contrasting touches of melodrama, and under this heading is included a terrific fight in which Ice cleans up a score of opponents, and in fact it possesses all the embellishments without which no Hart picture would be deserving such a qualifying description. Mr. Thew's scenario is smooth running and the crises are always approached effectively. The picture is exceedingly well directed, the fight and the race being handled particularly well. Lambert Hillyer directed in collaboration with Mr. Hart.

Sylvia Bremer, who has appeared in other Ince pictures, registers the appeal due the heroine nicely and the supporting cast is of even merit.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Forced to leave the band of outlaws of which he was the leader because he refuses to part with his horse, so prominently marked that it is easy for a sheriff's posse to recognize, Ice Harding (William S. Hart) descends into the valley to search for new fields to conquer. He meets Betty Werdin (Sylvia Bremer), niece of "Admiral" Bates (Milton Ross) of San Francisco, a dance hall proprietor who is resting in the country. He poses before Ice as a banker and Ice in turn takes the cloak of respectability provided by the cattle business. Betty and Ice are attracted but each fears that the other will some day learn the truth. And Ice is the first to do so. On a visit to San Francisco he sees Betty in her dancing costume and is completely disillusioned. Disturbed by hangers-on who have a hankering for his money Ice proceeds to clean the hall up. Later back inland he meets Betty again who has left her uncle. A reconciliation takes place. At a cowboys' meet Ice enters the horse race with his same horse of former days. The sheriff recognizes the horse and plans to take Ice into custody after the race. Ice wins easily, but acquainted with the sheriff's plan, rides up to the grandstand snatches the prize, pulls Betty on the saddle behind him and is off to his old retreats before the sheriff or the startled judges can so much as protest. And for a finale Ice sets out to begin a new life.

"The Law's Outlaw"
(Triangle—Five Reels)
Reviewed by Peter Milne

DOUBTLESS the success of Roy Stewart in "One Shot Ross," a Western in which he feigned being mad in order to bring his enemies into camp, led the Triangle management to star him in "The Law's Outlaw," a picture in which the same trick is worked with the same successful results. And this latter effort should give Mr. Stewart added prestige. For it makes one of the most thoroughly satisfying Westerns that the writer has seen of recent date and there have been many of them. Not the least of its many merits is the excellent mystery touch that is introduced with the disappearance of the sheriff. By the process of elemination the observer might be able to guess the line of action planned by the authors but it is quite safe to say that the finale of "The Law's Outlaw" is considerably without the pale of the faculties of anticipation possessed by the many who compose the average audience.

As a consequence the story holds the interest suspended right up to the last. Its body is an extremely well developed engrossing series of scenes in which Mr. Stewart, the center of the action by right of his featured position on the program, always maintains by his fine ability as an actor and his engaging screen presence. Cliff Smith in charge of the direction has surrounded the picture with a Western atmosphere as typical as could be desired and has by no means neglected his comedy relief, an element which is handled as meritoriously as is the serious motif of the plot. Ethel and James Dorrence are the authors while Alvin J. Beitz prepared the scenario.

Fritzi Ridgeway, Harry Rattenberry, Norbert Cills and William Ellingford give valuable assistance to the star.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Charles Easton (Roy Stewart) the cattlemen's nominee for sheriff is defeated by Ransford (Norbert Cills), the choice of the farmers. Easton, who had proven invaluable as a deputy to the former sheriff, refuses the offer of Ransford to continue in this capacity and retires to his ranch. Davison (Harry Rattenberry), a farmer is found severely wounded in his home and his money stolen from the safe. Ransford is unable to locate the thieves. At the request of the farmer's daughter, Rose (Fritzi Ridgeway), Easton gets to work on the case. Scouring the country for trace of the culprits with Ransford and the district attorney, Easton suddenly picks a quarrel over Ransford's inability to locate his prey and fires two shots on him leaving him for dead. The district attorney, in terror, dashes back to the town to spread the news. Easton then appears in a neighboring town, a refuge for lawless characters and pretends being crazy. Because of the price on his head he easily gets on the track of the criminals and before long brings them to jail. He himself is arrested for the murder of Ransford but this gentleman astonishes all by suddenly turning up and acknowledging his "death" as mere bait to catch the robbers.

Pete Morrison, Bob Thompson, Lou Durham, Alfred Hollingsworth and Percy Challenger complete the cast.

"The Cross Bearer"
(World Film—Five Reels)
Reviewed by Peter Milne

KNOWN in course of production as "Cardinal Mercier," "The Cross Bearer" presents Montagu Love in the role of the Belgian Cardinal, the time being at the outbreak of the war when Belgium was invaded and devastated by the German hordes. Mr. Love's characterization of the title role is impressive. He thus brings out the spirit of the churchman who, with his native land, rose to protest against the destruction of his country by the invaders. In fact, "The Cross Bearer" as a picture is impressive. It is entertaining, too, and often sustaining with its several dramatic situations, given rise to by the natural consequences of such warfare as conducted by both sides in Belgium. But its impressiveness is the dominating note.

For the greater part of its length the picture is quite as evenly accumulated in interest as could be desired. The romance of the Cardinal's ward and the Belgian soldier, so often menaced by one German or another attracts much attention. With the final reel, however, and the escape of the couple from the clutches of the enemy the author seems to have lost his sense of dramatic balance. The escape, aided by the Cardinal, and about which the superior force of Germans seems to be utterly helpless, is not to be taken in all seriousness. The German captain is such a dunce that he will get the laugh. Not that such an effect is not all well and good, but there are places for all effects and unfortunately the denouement of "The Cross Bearer" does not demand one.

However, though manifestly important, this point must not be allowed to eclipse the abundant essentials of commercial success contained in the picture. With its realistic incidents of the invasion, not to forget one or two of the horrors of it, its high portion of suspense brought about by the conflict of war and its generally tasteful production including a patriotic finale, it should prove a good box office attraction. Even the scene in which the author has introduced the Pope holding audience with the Cardinal is done with the right quality of solemnity and impressiveness. How a Catholic will take this presentation can best be judged by recalling the manner in which those of that faith received a like scene in "The Eternal City."

Jeanne Eagles makes a heroine of rare charm. Anthony Merlo plays the Belgian officer with conviction and is the correct type for the part. Alec Francis and Hubert Wilke lead the supporting cast.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Cardinal Mercier (Montagu Love) holds the confidence of all in the little Belgian village. His love is centered on his ward (Jeanne Eagles) who is courted by a Belgian officer (Anthony Merlo). When the Germans invade the land the girl only barely escapes a frightful fate when drunken soldiers break into the convent and attack the girls. She makes her way home. With the town in the hands of the Germans, the commander fastens lustful eyes on the girl. The Belgian officer manages to visit the Cardinal's home by stealth. On this trip he marries the girl. Using a disappointed lover with pro-German sympathies as a tool, the German commander lures her to his quarters. Her husband is captured. At headquarters each is made to think the other faithless. The Belgian swears to kill the Cardinal when so tricked and returns to do so, but explanations follow and husband and wife are pacified. When the Germans change their mind and decide to arrest the Belgian, the Cardinal assists in his escape by throwing himself on the alter and playing dead. This so disconcerts the enemy that the couple escape.

"I Love You"
(Triangle—Seven Reels)
Reviewed by Peter Milne

"I LOVE YOU" is the second of Triangle's seven reel features offered at the regular rental price of a five-reeler and as such is an investment which the exhibitor should seriously consider. For while its story is nothing pretentious, it has been produced on a lavish scale and offers a plot that interests to the average degree, which when attained makes a picture acceptable to say the very least. An Italian peasant girl is the principal character. She is betrayed by an artist who uses her as his model and shortly afterwards married by an idealist. The results of such a situation particularly when the woman and the artist meet again can be gleaned from the synopsis below. Suffice it to say that while they are by no means unconventional, they serve to bring a good climax to the picture. The plight of the women casts her in the usual appealing light and the retribution meted out to the villain and the ultimate happiness of husband and wife are cogs without which such a story would not be complete.

Alma Reubens, a distinct type of beauty, adds considerable charm to the role of the peasant girl and Wheeler Oakman as the idealist and Francis McDonald as the artist create strong characters from the conventional parts awarded them. Walter Edwards directed. There are a number of exterior settings of an Italian village and a Venice water way that are staged with a fine sense of artistry. Catherine Carr wrote the story and prepared the scenario.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Her love and trust betrayed by Mardon (Francis McDonald) an artist, Felice (Alma Reubens), an Italian peasant finds her world unbearable. Mardon sells his picture of Felice to Armande (Wheeler Oakman), an idealist, who enraptured with her beauty seeks her out and marries her. Felice learns true happiness as the wife of Armande and when a child is born to them her cup is filled to overflowing. After a few years, Armande commissions Mardon to again paint a portrait of his wife and boy (Peaches Jackson). Mardon, his desire for Felice rekindled, makes advances toward her which she always repulses. When Armande absents himself from his home intending to go to the city, Mardon attacks Felice and, mad at her resistance, carries her off to a cabin on the edge of the estate. A rumor that the Black Plague has stricken the town, forces Armande to return. At home he finds his boy sick with fever and his wife gone. On her return he refuses to listen to her explanations. The boy is thought dead. Driven from the house, Felice finds protection from a kindly old priest. Mardon, believing he is inflicted with the plague himself goes crazy and in his wanderings falls and kills himself. The priest goes to Armande and explains his wife's innocence with the result that a reconciliation takes place and Felice to her unbounded joy discovers that her son still lives.

John Lince, Frederick Vroom and Lillian Langdon complete the cast.

"Du Barry"
(Fox—Seven Reels)
Reviewed by Peter Milne

IT is Theda Bara's own Du Barry just as it was her own Cleopatra, just as any role she essays is her own. Her interpretation of the woman who, because of the infatuation of Louis XV, King of France for her, presided over the destinies of the nation is a creation of decided originality. She makes Madame Du Barry a flirtatious and light-headed, ambitious and kind Madame Du Barry, a woman whose sense of love and honor is not aroused until it is all too late. As such she is the center of a certain amount of appeal from the very start of her notorious career and in the end when she is committed to the guillotine, the tragedy of her life is all the more apparent. Miss Bara displays a remarkable degree of versatility in this, her latest effort. Being superficial and flirtatious is quite different from being a serious Cleopatra, but the character of the present picture suffers not from the great transition the actress must needs have undergone since her former role.

As a picture "Du Barry" is second to "Cleopatra" only in length. J. Gordon Edwards has staged it with the same degree of lavishness apparent in the picturization of the tragedy of the Egyptian queen. The settings are rich, the costumes gorgeous in every respect, and the entire exterior streets with the surging revolutionary mobs present a spectacle of the type that deserves only the highest amount of praise.

The career of "the greatest adventuress in the history of France" is vastly entertaining as set down in this adaptation of the play by Adrian Johnson. Her first meeting with Louis XV, his capitulation, her secret affair with the officer of the King's Guard which she manages to conceal from her master despite the interference of Jean Du Barry who seeks to advance in the esteem of his king by betraying her, are episodes which furnish a lively interest. The comedy touch of her marriage to Guillaume Du Barry, which confers upon her the title necessary for her introduction at court, and in which Willard Louis, fat and puffy, is the chief figure of relief is an excellent interpolation.

Charles Clary as the king and Herschel Mayall as Du Barry's self-appointed guardian contribute to the general good of the picture in no small measure and Fred Church as Cosse-Brissac, the officer of the Guard, is the other main supporting player. "Du Barry" is a costume picture but there is no confusion, no laborious introduction, things which sometimes attend pieces of a similar character. And on the contrary it has many if not all of those elements which go to make the Theda Bara picture laid in the present time the popular thing it is. This fact together with the magnificent production given the story should establish the picture's success beyond the shadow of a doubt.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Jeanette (Theda Bara), unknown in Paris but of great beauty and wit, attracts the attention of Louis XV (Charles Clary) who expresses a desire to meet her to Jean Du Barry (Herschel Mayall). This gentleman takes her in hand, marries her to one of his fat and ungainly cousins merely to gain her the power of a Madame and presents her at court. She at once is the King's favorite. Her love for wealth and her easily satisfied vanity bring her into high favor with the court. Her meeting with Cosse-Brissac (Fred Church) of the King's Guard brings something new into her life—love. So secretly she carries on an affair with him, hoodwinking the king despite Jean Du Barry's efforts to have her hypocrisy brought to his lord's attention. On the contrary due to his constant interference he is banished from court. With Louis' death, Madame Du Barry and Brissac are unmolested until the outbreak of the French Revolution. Du Barry joins them and incites the mob to arrest Madame Du Barry. In the mock court of those unsettled days she is convicted along with every other person who was in Louis' favor. An attempt to escape in which Brissac partakes only results in recapture with Brissac mortally wounded. And so Madame Du Barry ends her life on the guillotine—a life in which she, though sinful, was more sinned against than sinning.

Genevieve Blinn, Hector Sarno, Joe King, Dorothy Drake, Rosita Marstini, James Conley and A. Fremont are others in the cast.

Toto and Luke Comedies
(Rolin—Pathe)
Reviewed by Peter Milne

THE second Toto comedy, entitled "A One Night Stand," shows this new comedian as the property-man-of-all-work in a tank town theatre. The fun is fast and furious and as usual in comedies Props spoils the whole show. The incident of the mystic act with the man circulating in the audience and asking questions which he telephones back to Toto, who relays them to the mystic on the stage to answer is hilariously funny and the manner in which Toto gives the game away puts a fine comedy touch on the end of it. Then there is the scene in which he emerges from the trap door on the stage, completely spoiling the marvelous stunt of the magician who waves a cloth and makes a girl appear.

The stunts are all funny and Toto meanders about nonchalantly and with an absolutely vacant smile that adds much to the humorous value of the picture. Clarine Seymour and Bud Jamieson are those named in his support.

Harold Lloyd's latest one-reel effort is "The Big Idea," old but still useful and very well put on here. By marking all the antiques in his employer's shop with a double X and then circulating the report about the town that the furniture so marked contains a thousand dollars, he boosts the sales. A good touch showing Luke's rival buying the last piece which really contains a thousand and so winning the girl brings the reel to a fine close. Bebe Daniels and Snubs Pollard lend their usual capable assistance.

"The Strong Way"
(World Film—Five Reels)
Reviewed by Peter Milne

SAVE in details of treatment "The Strong Way," starring June Elvidge, is the conventional picture of the woman forced into a loveless marriage for the sake of money and who, after reels of mental torture, finds herself free to wed the man she loved all the time. The response which such a story finds in an audience is divided between sympathy for the woman and whole-hearted loathing for the rich roue of a husband in proportions which, it must be confessed, this reviewer is at a loss to state, for its basic elements have done such yeoman service that with many they are taken for granted like war and the subway. The details referred to concern the elaboration of certain situations which are generally spoken of in a whisper. Much is made of the woman's utterly despondent attitude on the inspection of her bridal chamber. And in the denouement when she declares Chadwick her lover to save him from the police there is a chord of certain delicacy touched upon. Just why Chadwick, after he takes refuge in the

Eugene O'Brien and Herbert Evans, Leading Men Whose Artistry and Popularity Goes Unquestioned

Gladys Varden—L KO Comedies

closet became so hot that he was obliged to remove his dress coat and collar and so be ready to back up with appearance Eunice's accusation of herself is not altogether clear when mere logic is considered. A more convincing and not so obvious road to the same situation might have been found.

Miss Elvidge, as usual, plays her part with all the sincerity at her command, which results in a deeply appealing character. John Bowers is hero and Joe Herbert and Hubert Wilke, a thoroughly melodramatic pair of villains. George Kelson directed. The continuity includes a number of rich exteriors taken on a large estate, and interesting scenes at Healy's Golden-Glades with its ice-skating cabaret.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Married to Geoffrey Farrow (Joe Herbert) to satisfy the desire of her mother (Isabel Berwin) for wealth, Eunice (June Elvidge) soon regrets the impulse which led her to bind herself to such a despicable man. Farrow is in the power of Carter (Hubert Wilke), because of his crooked business dealings, and as a consequence Eunice is forced to bear Carter's continual insulting insinuations. At an entertainment the two men attempt to rope Chadwick (John Bowers), the man who Eunice really loves, into a bit of bad business, but he refuses. Later that night Carter insults Eunice, and Chadwick interferes. Afterward Farrow finds Carter dead on the lawn. Chadwick, seen by the police after the shot was fired, flees to the house to take refuge in Eunice's room. Here he is found. Eunice, to save him, declares that he has been there for the greater part of the evening—that he is her lover. Farrow, tired of Eunice, takes steps for a divorce. Both Chadwick and Eunice suspect one another of the murder, and the clouds are only rolled away by the confession of Eunice's maid (Rosina Henley), who committed the deed when Carter betrayed her confidence in him.

"Mrs. Dane's Defense"

(Famous Players-Paramount—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

HENRY ARTHUR JONES' play "Mrs. Dane's Defense" adapted for the screen by Margaret Turnbull and presenting Pauline Frederick in the principal role makes entertainment of an unusually strong quality. The career of the unfortunate Felicia Hindemarsh who assumes the cloak of respectability provided by the name and position of her dead cousin, Mrs. Dane, and who strives to bury her past forever that she may marry the man she loves makes as dramatically strong progress on the celluloid as it did on the stage. The episode in which she is finally forced to a confession by the cross questioning of Sir Daniel has been handled most effectively by both adaptor, director and star with the result that it stands out as a series of scenes of great power.

Miss Frederick, it is hardly necessary to state, rises to the emotional requirements of the role gloriously. Frank Losee makes the part of Sir Daniel stand out as next to the star's in effectiveness. Leslie Austen as his son is of pleasing presence and sincere in his rendition of the character. The remainder of the cast including Ormi Hawley and Cyril Chadwick plays with a thorough appreciation of the assistance it is called upon to render.

That "Mrs. Dane's Defense" was staged by Hugh Ford, director-in-chief of the Famous Players studio, should be further guarantee of its worth. The handling of the many dramatic scenes bespeak of his skillful direction. England is the locale and a convincing atmosphere has been injected by the selection of a number of exceptionally pretty exteriors with imposing architectural piles in the background. In fact everything that could be done to make "Mrs. Dane's Defense" a successful picture has been done and the results should add still further to the popularity of Miss Frederick and the prestige of the producing company.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Felicia Hindemarsh (Pauline Frederick), companion to Mrs. Trent (Grace Reals), is the unfortunate victim of the attentions of Mr. Trent (Howard Hall). When Mrs. Trent discovers their relationship she commits suicide and Felicia, with her baby, takes refuge with her cousin, Mrs. Dane (Mary Navarro) in Canada. With the death of her cousin she assumes her wealth and name and journeys to England where she is introduced to society by Lady Eastney (Maud Turner Gordon). James Risbee (Cyril Chadwick) an old friend of the Trents recognizes her and before long the scandal of her past is passed about in society. Lionel (Leslie Austen) refuses to believe any of the rumors connected with her name, this despite the caution of his father, Sir Daniel Carteret (Frank Losee), a famous cross-examiner of London. Mrs. Dane appeals to Risbee to deny the statement he made regarding her past and he agrees to do so. The Bulsom-Porters (John L. Shine and Ida Darling), society leaders who have been harsh in their denunciations of Mrs. Dane are induced to sign an apology. But just as Mrs. Dane believes herself safe, free to marry Lionel, Sir Daniel calls for an interview and when it is over he has the complete confession of the woman. At his suggestion she goes to her child leaving behind her a heartbroken Lionel.

"The Devil's Playground"

(Fraternity Films—Seven Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

WERNER AND ABRAMS are offering "The Devil's Playground" to state rights buyers. Where the Devil plays is at the cabaret and afternoon and evening life in these establishments present a startling picture which will no doubt furnish added conversation to the chats of the small town folk who like to call New York wicked and Broadway a den of iniquity. The wickedness and iniquity is set forth boldly. Both the boy and the girl of the story taste of the life of Broadway and sicken of it finally setting forth to follow the straight and narrow path for the rest of their lives. The girl has an escapade with a middle-aged fellow which nearly ends disastrously for her. The boy becomes infatuated with a woman who has paintings of naked men and women hanging on the walls of her apartment and who believes in the saving idea as applied to the volume of each of her separate gowns.

The afternoon dansant is held up as vile. Men and women wrestle with one another to fancy steps and considerable jazz music. Flashes of old women paying the checks for young men flit across the screen and of old men flourishing currency before the eyes of young women. There are passionate scenes between the boy and the siren and scenes which either amuse or disgust between the siren and the fat and wealthy gentleman in the habit of paying her bills.

(Continued on page 446)

JACKSONVILLE -:- FLORIDA

MAKES BID FOR THE MOVIE FOLKS

IT ASKS THEM TO GET OUT OF SLUSH, ICE AND PNEUMONIA AND TO FILM UNDER THE NATURAL RAYS OF THE SUN.

THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE OF JACKSONVILLE, REALIZING THE IMPORTANCE OF THE MOTION PICTURE INDUSTRY, HAS APPOINTED A SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE WHOSE DUTY IS TO LOOK AFTER THE INTEREST OF THE MOVING PICTURE PEOPLE—HELP THEM FIND LOCATIONS, HOTEL ACCOMMODATIONS, PROPS, AND OTHERWISE LEND A HELPING HAND AND SO MAKE THEIR STAY HERE A PLEASANT ONE. HE WILL MEET YOU AT THE STATION AND HENCEFORTH YOU WILL NOT FEEL LIKE " A STRANGER IN A STRANGE LAND."

WE ALSO HAVE STUDIOS—SO WRITE DIRECT TO THE JACKSONVILLE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE FOR FURTHER INFORMATION

Studio For Rent

Most conveniently located Studio in New York City—

318-320-322 East 48th Street.
Floor space—80 x 100.

Room for six good sized sets.

Carpenter shops equipped with latest machinery.

2000 Amperes gives any kind of light effects.

Will contract to furnish you your sets on a 10% basis, saving you your rent in lumber alone.

People can reach your Studio in four or five minutes. Props, on a minute's notice. No waits on account of location of Studio. A big money saver.

Rent by the week or month, but you must engage ahead, as we are well booked.

Address ROLAND WEST
318 East 48th Street New York City

STANDARDS

of the

Motion Picture Industry

Recommended by the Society

of

Motion Picture Engineers

is now ready for distribution.

—o—

This pamphlet should be in the hands of every film man, operator and those in all allied arts.

—o—

10 CENTS PER COPY

Write

C. F. JENKINS
712 Eleventh Street, Washington, D. C.

Better to read fifty advertisements than to miss the one YOU need.

(Continued from page 444)

The manner in which it has been held up by Dallas Tyler, who wrote the story, is franker than it is technically correct. First is told the story of the girl, then the story of the boy, whereas the two lines of action should have been welded together. But those who look for the sort of entertainment which "The Devil's Playground" offers will hardly bother over good construction. The numerous scenes of cabaret life in all its seaminess predominate.

Vera Michelena as the siren acts a daring role convincingly from every standpoint. Lillian Cook contributes some of the best work of her career as the girl and Harry Spingler is a realistic unsophisticated youth. George Trumbull as a man of wealth introduces whatever comedy there is in the seven reels and Dallas Tyler, the author gives a good picture of a mother. Robert Cummings, William H. Tooker, Mrs. Mansfield and Mrs. Adams complete the cast.

"The Blind Adventure"

(Vitagraph—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Joseph L. Kelley

EDWARD EARLE makes his first appearance as the featured player in a Vitagraph production, in one of Earle Derr Biggers' Saturday Evening Post's stories, "The Blind Adventure." The production was made for Vitagraph under the direction of Wesley Ruggles. Betty Howe presents the principal feminine role.

For sheer suspense and gripping mystery, this production has been equalled by only a few screen productions. It presents the sort of screen drama that all enjoy. There is mystery upon mystery in the latter reels and running through the initial reels there are some fine bits of original comedy. The suspense element, considering the work as a story, is the predominating quality. Until the anti-climax you are wondering with as much uncertainty, concerning the identity of the murderers, as you are when the murder is first made known. The manner in which the mystery is unfolded, although not original, presents an original quality in the manner in which the episode is introduced. In place of taking the serious vein from the start, the author has seen fit to introduce his subject with a laugh rather than the serious mood.

With his two principal characters once planted, the author has made it imperative that the director resort to the flashback and this method of exposure is carried through the greater part of the reelage. As a usual thing this method detracts from the compelling force of a story as presented on the screen, but in this particular instance it adds to the strength of the drama.

Mr. Earle proves in this production that he is entitled to more featured parts in five-reel productions. He possesses a strong personality, has a fine sense of humor and can bring out the comedy situations with a punch and a laugh for all. In this production Mr. Earle is not casted as prominently as he should be. The nature of the story, although keeping Mr. Earle in the thoughts of his audiences in every scene, does not permit of his being in actual evidence throughout the run. Opposite him in the principal feminine role, Betty Howe shows to fine advantage. She wears a smile that never comes off and is good to look upon. She possesses a natural grace that stands out whether she wills or not. George Wright is fine in the role of the inspector. He screens good and presents a strength of character that convinces. Frank Norcross, William Bailey, Gilbert Rooney, C. A. Stevenson, P. D. Standing, Eulalia Jansen and John Sturgeon are seen in supporting roles. All do good work.

Director Ruggles has given "The Blind Adventure," a good production, and has been careful as to detail. He had difficult script to work from, and was called upon to watch his step. This he did, with the result that he has turned out a program feature that no exhibitor can overlook when doing a headliner.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Godfrey West (Edward Earle) is taking breakfast at the Carlton in London. He is attracted by Marion Larned, who is at the next table with her father (Frank Norcross), an American congressman. He inserts a personal in the columns of the daily paper asking if he may meet her. She reads the personal and becomes interested. A correspondence is started and West, whose fondness for romance asserts itself, decides to "keep his fair friend guessing." He tells in his letters to her of a faked murder, making himself the accused person. His sixth letter brings to Marion his confession of the murder. It also finds England on the eve of the declaration of war with Germany. Marion's father insists that they leave for America. She does not want to leave without seeing her admirer. Her maid gets his address from the waiter. She writes him and West packs and barely catches the same boat that Marion and her father has taken. He tells her that the murder is only a fake.

"Ghosts of Yesterday"

(Select—Six Reels)

Reviewed by Joseph L. Kelley

NORMA TALMADGE introduces one of Rupert Hughes' works to the list of screen dramas with such force of dramatic presentment that it will stand as the "daddy of them all." Under the title of "Ghosts of Yesterday," the author's work, "Two Women," was given to Director Charles Miller by Mildred Considine, who did the continuity, and from the script Mr. Miller has fashioned a drama for screen presentation that will stand as the best work of Miss Talmadge, without exception. There is not a man, woman or child who can leave a theatre where "Ghosts of Yesterday" has been shown, who can point to Miss Talmadge's work, to the story, to the direction, to the work of the supporting cast headed by Eugene O'Brien, to the production, to the photography, or to any part or parcel of this Select offering and refer to one shortcoming.

From the first, the story holds, Miss Talmadge demands attention and the directorial work of Mr. Miller stands out with the prominence of a lofty peak against a clear horizon. Mr. Miller has seen that every necessary detail has been supplied. This is particularly noticeable in the cabaret scene which is the most pretentious and true-to-the-actuality type that has come under the observation of the writer. And added credit is due Mr. Miller for this particular piece of work because he did not go out of the studio to get the shots, but supplied the proper atmosphere with the most capable aid of his property men, to whom due credit is given.

The admirers of Miss Talmadge will pronounce this the crowning achievement of her career and the few who have yet to be convinced of her highly capable work before the camera, will be won over never to deny again ability of this little artist.

Mr. Hughes' character of Howard Marston is exemplified by Eugene O'Brien who works opposite Miss Talmadge with a force of dramatic ability and with an ease of manner that stamps him an artist. Unlike some who have been drawn from the speaking stage by the magic of the camera's lens, Mr. O'Brien does not carry with him the idea that force in action can be best impressed by eloquent gestures. His work is this production is to be highly commended. Many of the scenes call for strong, emotional acting and in these scenes, he registers a maximum percentage. His facial expressions are never exaggerated nor are they underestimated but speak of the inner emotions, in a language as intelligible as that conveyed by the spoken word. Stuart Holmes, seen for the first time in many months, has the heavy, character role. He villainizes the character of the Count with marked ability. Mr. Holmes has few equals in interpreting villain roles. John Daly Murphy, Henry J. Herbert, Ida Darling and Blanche Douglas all do their share with the highest appreciation.

Director Miller has given "Ghosts of Yesterday," a production that will stand the acid test for quality. Less than five hundred feet of the six thousand that makes for the picture, is devoted to exteriors. The initial scenes are models of home-like simplicity. The cabaret scene is a masterpiece. The interiors of the artist's home in Paris are lavish and complete to the finest detail. The photography is entitled to especial mention for its clearness. The lighting effects have registered. A noticeable fact about the picture and one very much to its credit, is the limited number of sub-titles. This speaks well for the story. The subtitles used are snappy, to the point, and the diction conspicuous because of the absence of flowery language. The exhibitor who fails to book "Ghosts of Yesterday" misses a golden opportunity to present to his patrons the crowning achievement of Norma Talmadge's career before the camera.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Howard Marston (Eugene O'Brien), a young artist, is a waster. He lives a life of dissipation. He sees the folly of it all, takes one last fling, and the following morning goes to the park to end it all. He is in the act of killing himself when Ruth Grahame, of humble parentage, sees him and prevents the act. Ruth invites Howard to make his home with herself and father. He accepts the invitation and shortly after Ruth and he are married. Howard obtains a position in an engraving plant and invents a process of colormaking for which he receives a large sum. He takes up painting and Ruth poses for her picture. When nearly finished, Ruth is taken sick and dies.

Marston, broken in spirit, leaves for Paris and becomes the most popular member of the artist colony. At the Bal Tabarin, cabaret and restaurant, he meets Jeanne La Fleur (Norma Talmadge), the queen of the dancers. Count Pascal de Fondras (Stuart Holmes) is in love with her. Marston sees in her the picture of Ruth. He asks her to come to his studio and she

(Continued on page 452)

"West Coast Best," Says Abels

Representative of Select Pictures Declares Western Exhibitor Is Ahead of His Brethren—Says Advertising Pays

AFTER a tour of three-quarters of the United States, Sydney E. Abels, representative of Select Pictures Corporation, reached Los Angeles last week on a tour of the country which will put him in touch with exchange conditions of the Select organization, and to a MOTION PICTURE NEWS representative gave a very interesting summary of conditions as he found them.

"Exhibitors of the West Coast and mountain states," Mr. Abels said, "have progressed far in advance of the Central and Eastern states exhibitors in the matter of interesting the general public in motion pictures. They have done this by their consistent use of all forms of advertising, and particularly the manner in which they have used newspaper space, along with the careful selection of pictures and make-up of their programs. The Eastern exhibitor, if he uses a small card, thinks he is a regular advertising cut-up."

The war tax has not affected the motion picture exhibiting business in any particular, unless it is to induce the people to attend theatres in order that they may contribute war tax and thus do their bit in the present conflict of our Government, according to Mr. Abels. "In cities where the war tax was not added to the admission fees," Mr. Abels said, "I found that the people thought the theatre manager was contributing to political negligence by not adding the war tax to his admission fees. In some instances I learned that failure of managers to add the war tax caused a falling off in their business.

"Where there has been a falling off of the patronage of a theatre in any given locality," Mr. Abels continued, "I have found that it was due to natural conditions and in no instance chargeable to the additional fee caused by the war tax."

Mr. Abels told of the very enthusiastic reception being tendered Select Pictures in all sections of the country, and added that he felt certain that both exhibitors and picture patrons would applaud the new policy of the company which provides for big stars and well known plays, such as "The House of Glass" and "Shirley Kaye," produced by Clara Kimball Young; Eugene Walter's "The Knife" for Alice Brady, "The Studio Girl" for Constance Talmadge and "Ghosts of Yesterday" with Norma Talmadge.

After spending two weeks in Los Angeles with Branch Manager B. E. Loper, Mr. Abels plans to return East by the southern route, stopping off at the principal cities where Select Pictures has exchanges.

What Happened When I Raised My Prices

(Continued from page 383)

paign among motion picture patrons. One can do it through the newspapers. They can do it through the little house organ that many of us publish. Little bulletins briefly descriptive of conditions may be flashed from time to time between reels of the entertainment. Then I frequently resort to verbal announcements delivered from the stage. In this way I strive to prepare the minds of my patrons for any changes that may be essential. I guard against surprises for them, and I generally find that they are ready for any change of policy that I am compelled to make.

"Exhibitors should not have the slightest fear of their abilities to explain the justification to the public for this increase in the price of admission. They have been the very last to make such an advance. Clothiers, manufacturers, publishers and food distributors already have obtained their increases from the public. Certainly at a time like this every effort should likewise be directed toward convincing the public that the theatre wished to meet its patrons half way."

An indication of the optimism of local exhibitors is expressed in the announcement of Alfred L. Rider, recently, to reopen a motion picture theatre at No. 352 Broad street, in the heart of the business section. The theatre has been dark for more than a year. Mr. Rider declares the playhouse will be reopened in January after a large sum has been expended in renovating and improving the property.

Goldwyn Cannot Engage Walsh

Finds that Director Is Tied up Under Fox Option and Services Are Not Available—Error Causes Tangle

R. A. WALSH, the director, who recently signed a long-term contract with Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, will be unable to join Goldwyn because of the announced discovery in his contract with the William Fox organization that he had given that company a further option on his services when signing up with them last.

This discovery, it is said, was made by Mr. Walsh upon the arrival in New York of papers and other effects from his Los Angeles home, and it is said to have caused him quite as much surprise as it did Goldwyn. Goldwyn, upon the signing of Mr. Walsh's contract, made all arrangements for his first Goldwyn production, which was in readiness for him to start work on in Fort Lee. Walsh, immediately upon the discovery of his dilemma, laid the matter before Samuel Goldfish, president of Goldwyn, and the latter gave Mr. Walsh his written release from his Goldwyn contract.

"It is a matter of natural regret that Goldwyn should lose the services of a successful and able director like Mr. Walsh," said Mr. Goldfish, "but at no time has Goldwyn wished to have men break their contracts with any other organization. The mistake in this case, as Mr. Walsh himself frankly says, is of his own making. He felt when he came to us that he was free to dispose of his services in any manner he desired, but upon a re-reading of his contract when received from Los Angeles, both he and his representatives reached the conclusion that the Fox organization had a valid claim and right to his services upon the exercise of the option in the previously made contract."

Riverside at Evansville to Reopen Soon

The Riverside theatre at Evansville, Ind., which has been shut down for the last year, will be re-opened in the near future after remodeling and revamping throughout. The house is near the water front.

Pathe Gives U.S. Sixty Men

More Are Expected to Join Colors at Any Time, and Foreign Offices Also Contribute to Army Ranks—War Films Also

SIXTY-ONE employes of Pathe Exchange are now in uniform and actively fighting for world democracy, while the whole organization has been congratulated on its work as a distributor of official war films.

An additional number is likely to be added to the present list, it is said, and the House of Pathe in foreign countries has many more swelling the total of Pathe fighters for freedom to a very large one.

The sixty-one Americans are: Walter Drake, J. Cunningham, Michael Carroll, Andrew Golitko, Jack Schaeffer, Arthur Hile, Frederik Hansen, Ralph Wade, Fr. H. Christoph, Oscar Helwig, J. C. Reynolds, Jacques Meyer, Felix Slatosky, Edward R. Paul, Fred Ford, Ray Libby, W. S. Morse, C. D. Foster, C. H. Wortman, Geo. W. Chappel, James M. Curran, Howard Wilson, William Sullivan, Walter F. Peacock, Geo. L. Hanes, Irving Rauchwerk, R. E. Walker, C. M. Seipel, Lee Wentz, Cicero Alexander, B. E. Loper, Jr., Geo. Carney, Albert Friedland, Arthur Gray, James H. Cuniff, Manferd Wiman, Harold Goodemote, J. S. Cowan, George Farrow, Fritz Bierman, Frank Olsen, H. Adamson, Clinton Taafe, D. Bokee, Sidney Lencher, D. E. Carroll, Karl A. Suelke, A. Fasano, O. J. Robichek, A. Gini, A. L. Jonas, T. P. Langdon, A. C. Gottschalk, O. J. Pean, J. C. Donahue, J. Rothman, James Keating, J. R. Sloan, William Bevan, L. C. Varela, E. I. Sweigert, A. E. L. Martzolf.

Features---Current and Coming

Art Dramas, Inc.

Oct. 1. (Undecided) Erbograph..... 5
Oct. 8. Unto the End (Crane Wilbur) Horsley 5

Bluebird Photoplays

Dec. 3. The Raggedy Queen (Violet Mersereau) 5
Dec. 10. The Door Between (Ruth Clifford). 5
Dec. 17. My Little Boy (Ella Hall)..... 5
Dec. 24. The Scarlet Car (Franklyn Farnum) —
Dec. 31. The Girl by the Roadside (Violet Mersereau) ..... —
Jan. 7. My Unmarried Wife (Carmel Myers) 5
Jan. 14. Face Value (Mae Murray)..... 5
Jan. 21. Broadway Love (Dorothy Philips). 5
Jan. 28. The Fighting Grin (Franklyn Farnum) 5
Feb. 4. The Wife He Bought (Carmel Myers) 5

Universal Productions

Dec. 3. Fighting Mad (Wm. Stowell, Helen Gibson, Betty Schade)..... 5
Dec. 10. The Silent Lady (Little Zoe Rae, Gretchen Lederer) 5
Dec. 15. Beloved Jim (Priscilla Dean, Harry Carter)..... 5
Dec. 24. Bucking Broadway (Harry Carey, Molly Malone) 5
Dec. 31. The High Sign (H. Rawlinson, Brownie Vernon). 5
Jan. 7. The Wolf and His Mate (Louise Lovely). 5
Jan. 14. Hell's Crater (Grace Cunard)..... 5
Jan. 21. Madame Spy (Jack Mulhall)..... 5
Jan. 28. The Phantom Riders (Harry Carey, Molly Malone)..... 5

Fox Film Corporation

(Special Features)

Dec. 2. The Babes in the Wood (Carpenter-Corbin) 5
Dec. 9. The Pride of New York (George Walsh) 5
Dec. 16. Unknown 274 (June Caprice)..... 5
Dec. 23. The Kingdom of Love (Jewel Carmen) 5
Dec. 30. For Liberty (Gladys Brockwell).... 5
Jan. 6. Stolen Honor (Virginia Pearson)... 5
Jan. 13. Cupid's Roundup (Tom Mix)..... 5
Jan. 20. A Heart's Revenge (Sonia Markova). 5
Jan. 27. The Heart of Romance (June Caprice) 5

Fox Standard Pictures

Nov. 4. The Rose of Blood (Theda Bara)... 6
Nov. 18. Treasure Island 6
Dec. 2. A Daughter of the Gods (Annette Kellermann) ..... —
Dec. 9. Troublemakers (Jane and Katherine Lee). 7
Dec. 16. The Heart of a Lion (William Farnum). 6
Dec. 30. Du Barry (Theda Bara)..... 7
Jan. 20. Cheating the Public..... 8

Goldwyn Features Corp.

Nov. 4. Sunshine Alley (Mae Marsh)..... 6
Nov. 18. Nearly Married (Madge Kennedy).. 6
Dec. 2. The Auction Block..... 6
Dec. 16. The Cinderella Man (Mae Marsh).. 6
Dec. 30. Thais (Mary Garden)..... 7
Jan. 14. Fields of Honor (Mae Marsh)..... 5
Jan. 28. Dodging a Million (Mabel Normand) 5

GOLDWYN SPECIALS

The Manx-Man..... 7
For the Freedom of the World..... 7

W. W. HODKINSON CORPORATION

(Paralta Plays)

Dec. 15. A Man's Man (J. Warren Kerrigan) 7
Jan. 1. Madam Who (Bessie Barriscale).... 7
Jan. 15. His Robe of Honor (Henry B. Walthall 7

Ivan Feature Productions

Mar. 18. Two Men and a Woman (James Morrison, Christine Mayo, Ruybe De Remer, Guy Coombs, John Reinhardt and Helen Arnold)..... 5
June — One Law for Both..... 9

Jewel Productions, Inc.

Sept. — Come Through (Drama)..... —
Sept. — Pay Me (Drama)..... —
Sept. — Sirens of the Sea (Drama)..... —
Oct. — Man Without a Country (Patriotic). —
Oct. — The Corespondent (Drama)..... —
Nov. — The Price of a Good Time (Drama).. —
Dec. — The Grand Passion (Drama)..... —
Dec. — K (Drama). ..... —

George Kleine System

(PERFECTION PICTURES)

Nov. 5. Two Bit Seats (Taylor Holmes) (Essanay). ..... —
Nov. 19. Kill Joy (Essanay)..... 5
Nov. 26. Gift o' Gab (Essanay)..... 5
Dec. 3. Small Town Guy (Essanay)..... 5
Dec. 10. The Dream Doll (Essanay)..... 5
Dec. 17. Salt of the Earth (Edison)..... 5
Dec. 24. Sadie Goes to Heaven (Essanay)... 5

Metro Pictures Corporation

Dec. 3. The Square Deceiver (Harold Lockwood), Yorke Film..... 5
Dec. 10. Alias Mrs. Jessop (Emily Stevens), Metro. 5
Dec. 10. (Special) Blue Jeans (Viola Dana). 7
Dec. 17. God's Outlaw (Francis Bushman, Beverly Bayne), Metro..... 5
Dec. 24. An American Widow (Ethel Barrymore), Metro. 5
Dec. 31. The Avenging Trail (Harold Lockwood), Yorke Film..... 5
Jan. 7. Daybreak (Emily Stevens) Metro... 5
Jan. 14. The Winding Trail (Viola Dana) Rolfe-Metro 5
Jan. 21. The Eyes of Mystery (Edith Storey) Rolfe-Metro 5
Jan. 28. Under Suspicion (Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne) Metro... 5

Mutual Film Corporation

Nov. 5. A Game of Wits (Gail Kane)..... 5
Nov. 12. (Special) The Planter (Tyrone Power). 7
Nov. 12. Betty and the Buccaneers (American). 5
Nov. 19. Snap Judgment (William Russell), American. 5
Nov. 19. Please Help Emily (Ann Murdock), Frohman. 5
Nov. 26. The Mate of the Sally Ann (Mary Miles Minter). 5
Dec. 3. American Maid (Edna Goodrich)... 5
Dec. 10. Miss Jackie of the Army (Margarita Fischer). 5
Dec. 17. New York Luck (Wm. Russell), American. 5
Dec. 24. Her Sister (Olive Tell) Frohman.. 5
Dec. 31. Her Second Husband (Edna Goodrich). 5
Jan. 7. Molly Go Get 'Em (Margarita Fischer) 5
Jan. 14. The Imposter (Ann Murdock) Frohman 5

Paramount Picture Corp.

Dec. 3. The Eternal Temptress (Lina Cavalieri). 5
Dec. 3. The Secret Game (Sessue Hayakawa) 5
Dec. 10. The Land of Promise (Billie Burke) 5
Dec. 10. Tom Sawyer (Jack Pickford)..... 5
Dec. 17. Nan of Music Mountain (Wallace Reid). 5
Dec. 17. The Fair Barbarian (Vivian Martin) 5
Dec. 24. Love Letters (Dorothy Dalton).... 5
Dec. 24. His Mother's Boy (Charles Ray)... 5
Dec. 31. The Seven Swans (Marguerite Clark) 5
Jan. 7. Mrs. Dane's Defense (Pauline Frederick) 5
Jan. 14. Jules of the Strong Heart (George Beban) 5
Jan. 14. The Spirit of '17 (Jack Pickford).. 5
Jan. 21. Rimrock Jones (Wallace Reid)..... 5
Jan. 21. Blackton's The World for Sale..... 5
Jan. 28. The Widow's Might (Julian Eltinge) 5
Jan. 28. The Hired Man (Charles Ray)..... 5

Artcraft Releases

(PARAMOUNT)

Dec. 17. The Devil Stone (Geraldine Farrar). 5
Dec. 31. A Modern Musketeer (Douglas Fairbanks). 5
Jan. 7. Rose of the World (Elsie Ferguson). 5
Jan. 14. Dead or Alive (Wm. S. Hart)..... 5
Jan. 21. Stella Maris (Mary Pickford)..... 5

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

Dec. 2. The Little Patriot (Baby Marie Osborne, Marion Warner, Herbert Standing). 5
Dec. 9. Her Sister's Rival (Vera Colodonaya, L. M. Coronova, V. A. Polonsky) Russian 5
Dec. 16. Vengeance Is Mine (Irene Castle, Elliott Dexter, Edwin Hoyt, Frank Sheridan, Reginald Mason, Ethel Grey Terry) Astra..... 5
Dec. 23. Runaway Romany (Marion Davies, Joseph Kilgour, Matt Moore, Ormi Hawley, Gladden James), Ardsley. 5
Dec. 30. Over the Hill (Gladys Hulette, J. H. Gilmour, Daniel Mason, Wm. Parke, Jr.), Astra... 5
Jan. 6. Convict 993 (Irene Castle, Warner Oland, Paul Everton, Etheyle Cooke, Bert Starkey)..... 5
Jan. 13. The German Curse in Russia (Wat Film), Donald C. Thompson..... 5

Select Pictures

— The Barrier. 7
— The Lone Wolf (Hazel Dawn and Bert Lytell). 6
Oct. — Public Be Damned (Charles Richman). 6
Oct. — The Wild Girl (Eva Tanguay)..... 5
Oct. — Over There (Anna Q. Nilsson and Charles Richman). 6
Oct. — The Moth (Norma Talmadge)..... 6
Oct. — Magda (Clara Kimball Young),..... 5
Oct. — Scandal (Constance Talmadge)..... 5
Nov. — Her Silent Sacrifice (Alice Brady).. 5
Nov. — Secret of the Storm Country (Norma Talmadge) 5
Dec. — Shirley Kake (Clara Kimball Young). 5
Dec. — The Honeymoon (Constance Talmadge). 5
Jan. — Woman and Wife (Alice Brady..... —
Jan. — Ghosts of Yesterday (Norma Talmadge). ..... —
Jan. — The Marionettes (Clara Kimball Young). ..... —
Jan. — The Studio Girl (Constance Talmadge). ..... —

Triangle Distributing Corporation

Dec. 9. Fanatics (J. Barney Sherry)..... 5
Dec. 9. The Learnin' of Jim Benton (Roy Stewart) 5
Dec. 16. Because of the Woman (Billie Bennett) 5
Dec. 16. The Maternal Spark (Irene Hunt).. 5
Dec. 23. Without Honor (Margery Wilson. 5
Dec. 23. Until They Get Me (Pauline Hart). 5
Dec. 30. The Gown of Destiny (Alma Ruebens) 5
Dec. 30. Framing Framers (Charles Gunn).. 5
Jan. 6. Betty Takes a Hand (Olive Thomas) 5
Jan. 6. Man Above the Law (Jack Richardson) 5
Jan. 13. I Love You (Alma Ruebens)..... 7
Jan. 13. Law's Outlaw (Roy Stewart)..... 5
Jan. 20. Evidence (J. Barney Sherry)..... 5
Jan. 20. Flames of Chance (Margery Wilson) 5
Jan. 27. The Gun Woman (Texas Guinan).. 5
Jan. 27. Her American Husband (Darrell Foss) 5

Vitagraph V-L-S-E.

Dec. 10. The Marriage Speculation (Mildred Manning, Wallace MacDonald)... 5
Dec. 17. In the Balance (Earle Williams)... 5
Dec. 24. When Men Are Tempted (Mary Anderson, Alfred Whitman)..... 5
Dec. 31. His Own People (Harry Morey, Gladys Leslie) 5
Jan. 7. The Blind Adventure (Edward Earle, Betty Howe) 5
Jan. 14. The Wild Strain (Nell Shipman, Alfred Whitman) 5
Jan. 21. The Menace (Corinne Griffith, Evart Overton) 5
Jan. 28. A Mother's Sin (Earle Williams).... 5
Feb. 4. The Other Man (Harry Morey, Grace Darmond, Florence Deshon)..... 5

Wholesome Films Corporation

The Penny Philanthropist (Peggy O'Neil and Ralph Morgan), D..... 5
Cinderella and the Magic Slipper (Special Children's Cast), Juv..... 4
His Awful Downfall (Rex Adams), 1,000 feet, C.
Little Red Riding Hood (Juvenile), 4,000 feet.

World Pictures

Dec. 10. The Good for Nothing (Carlyle Blackwell and Evelyn Greeley)... 5
Dec. 17. The Tenth Case (June Elvidge).... 5
Dec. 24. The Volunteer (Madge Evans and Henry Hull) 5
Dec. 31. The Wasp (Kitty Gordon)..... 5
Jan. 7. Stolen Hours (Ethel Clayton)..... 5
Jan. 14. The Strong Way (June Elvidge).... 5
Jan. 21. The Beautiful Mrs. Reynolds (Carlyle Blackwell, June Elvidge)..... 5
Jan. 28. Gates of Gladness (Madge Evans).. 5

Releases in the Independent Field

For Manufacturers' Addresses, Names and Addresses of Buyers handling films in any territory, or any other additional information write—State Rights Department, Motion Picture News

American News Weekly
One reel each week exclusively on Army and Navy activities.

American Standard M. P. Corp.
May 5. Jones' Jonah Day (Sunshine), C..1 reel
May 7. When Justice Errs, D.....5 reels
May 12. (Educational Subject) .....1 reel
May 14. The Daughter of Darkness, Episode No. 1, D.....2 reels
May 19. Ghosts (Sunshine), C.....1 reel
Sept. 17. My Country First.....6 parts
Oct. 7. The Mystery of the Boule.....5 parts
Oct. 15. Blackmailer .....5 parts

Anti-Vice Film Company
Is Any Girl Safe?.....5 reels

Argosy Films, Inc.
The Celebrated Stielow Case.....6 reels
Where D'ye Get That Stuff.....5 reels
Absinthe (King Baggott), Universal Reissue .....5 reels

Arizona Film Company
Should She Obey.....— reels

Arrow Film Corporation
The Deemster (Derwent Hall Caine).....7 reels

Rex Beach Pictures Co.
The Barrier .....9 reels

Bernstein Film Production
June —. Who Knows?.....6 reels

Bluebird Extraordinary
Sept. 3. Mother o' Mine (Rupert Julian and Ruth Clifford) .....5 reels
The Eagle's Wings (Herbert Rawlinson).
Hell Morgan's Girl (Dorothy Phillips).
Mother o' Mine (Rupert Julian, Ruth Clifford, Ruby La Fayette).

Brenon Productions
Lone Wolf .....7 parts
Fall of the Romanoffs .....8 parts
Empty Pockets .....7 parts

JULES BURNSTEIN
Shame .....7 parts

Cardinal Film Corporation
Joan the Woman (Geraldine Farrar).....11 reels

Century Comedies
(FEATURING ALICE HOWELL)
Balloonatics .....2 reels
Automaniacs .....2 reels
Neptune's Naughty Daughter.....2 reels

Benjamin Cahpin Productions
(CHAPTER FEATURES CORP.)
My Mother .....2 reels
My Father .....2 reels
Myself .....2 reels
The Call to Arms.....2 reels

Christie Film Company
Father's Bright Idea.....1 reel
With the Mummies' Help.....1 reel
The Magic Maid.....1 reel
The Milky Way.....1 reel
His Last Pill.....1 reel
The Fourteenth Man.....1 reel
Down by the Sea.....1 reel
Skirts .....1 reel
Won in a Cabaret.....1 reel
His Merry Mix-Up.....1 reel
A Smoky Love Affair.....1 reel

Cinema Distributing Corp.
The 13th Labor of Hercules.

Claridge Films, Inc.
The Birth of Character.....5 reels
The Heart of New York.....5 reels

Clune Productions
Ramona .....8 reels
Eyes of the World.....9 reels

Commonwealth Pictures Corp.
Charlotte.
The Frozen Warning.

Corona Cinema Company
The Curse of Eve (Enid Markey).....7 reels

Coronet Film Corporation
LIVING STUDIES IN NATURAL HISTORY
Animal World, No. 1 Issue.
Animal World, No. 2 Issue.
Birdland Studies.
Horticultural Phenomena.

Cosmofotofilm Company
Incomparable Mistress Bellairs.....4 reels
Liberty Hall .....4 reels
The Black Spot.....4 reels
Victoria Cross .....4 reels
On 18 .....4 reels
His Vindication .....5 reels
I Believe .....7 reels

Creative Film Corporation
The Girl Who Didn't Think (Jane Gail)..6 reels

Dixie Films
Tempest and Sunshine (Evelyn Greely)..5 reels
Just a Song at Twilight.....5 reels

Frank P. Donovan Productions
July—Billy, the Governess (Billy Quirk)..1 reel
Aug.—Butting in Society (Lou Marks)...1 reel
Aug.—After Her Dough (Lou Marks)....1 reel
Aug.—Bunked in Bunkville (Geo. Ross)..1 reel
Aug.—His Dirty Career (Lou Marks).....1 reel
Aug.—Trying it Twice (Mabel Trinneer)..1 reel
Aug.—Helen of Troy (All-Star Cast).....5 reels
Sept.—His Foolish Way (Geo. Thelian)...1 reel
Sept.—At the Barber's Ball (Lou Marks).2 reels
Sept.—Was She to Blame? (in prep.).
Sept.—In and Out (Tammany Young).....1 reel
Sept.—His Flying Flivver (C. J. Van Duesen and Pearl Shepard).....2 reels

Ebony Film Corporation
A Natural Born Shooter.....1 reel
Dat Blackhand Waitah Man.....1 reel
Shine Johnson and the Rabbit's Foot.....1 reel

E. I. S. Motion Picture Corp.
Trooper 44 .....5 reels

Elmont Feature Film Co.
People vs. John Doe.....6 reels
God's Law .....6 reels

Enlightment Corporation
Enlighten Thy Daughter.....7 reels

Eugenic Film Company
Birth .....6 reels

European Film Company
Fighting for Verdun.....5 reels

Exclusive Features, Inc.
Where Is My Father?.....7 reels

Export and Import Film Co.
Robespierre .....— reels
Ivan the Terrible.....— reels

Fairmount Film Corporation
Hate .....7 reels

Flora Finch Film Co.
War Prides .....2 reels

First National Exhibitors' Circuit, Inc.
On Trial.
Charles Chaplin.

Bud Fisher Film Corporation
July 9. Cows and Caws.
July 16. Submarine Chasers.
July 23. Cheese Tamers.
July 30. Janitors.
Aug. 6. A Chemical Calamity.
Aug. 13. As Prospectors.

Fort Pitt Corporation
The Italian Battlefront.

Fox Film Corp.
(Standard Pictures)
The Spy.
The Honor System.
Jack and the Beanstalk.
The Conqueror.
Camille.
Oct. 18. Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp.
Nov. 18. The Babes in the Wood.

Fraternity Films, Inc.
The Devil's Playground (Vera Michelena)— reels

Frieder Film Corporation
The Birds' Christmas Carol (Mary Louise).5 reels
A Bit O' Heaven (Mary Louise).....5 reels

Friedman Enterprises
A Mormon Maid (Mae Murray).....6 reels

Frohman Amusement Corp.
The Witching Hour (C. Aubrey Smith, Jack Sherrill, Helen Arnold, Marie Shotwell and Robert Conness.....6 reels
Conquest of Canaan.....5 reels
God's Man .....9 reels

Joseph M. Gaites
The Italian Battlefront.

General Enterprises, Inc.
Mother (Elizabeth Risdon, McClure)....6 parts
The Warrior (Maciste) (McClure).....7 parts
The Liar (Jane Gail, Stanley Walpole)...6 parts

Gold Medal Photoplays
The Web of Life (Hilda Nord, James Cruze, George Spencer).....5 reels

Golden Features
A Bit of Life.....1 reel

Grand Feature Film Company
Rex Beach on the Spanish Main.....5 reels
Rex Beach in Pirate Haunts.....5 reels
Rex Beach in Footsteps of Capt. Kidd....5 reels

Graphic Features
The Woman and the Beast.....5 reels

D. W. Griffith
Intolerance .....9 reels

Frank Hall Productions, Inc.
(A. H. Jacobs, Prod.)
Her Fighting Chance (Jane Grey).....— reels
The Bar Sinister.....— reels

Hanover Film Company
Maciste .....— reels
How Uncle Sam Prepares.....4 reels

William S. Hart
The Cold Deck .....5 D
The Two Gun Man.....5 D

Hawk Film Corporation
Monster of Fate.....— reels

Herald Film Corporation
Around the World in 80 Days.....6 reels

Hiller & Wilk, Inc.
The Battle of Gettysburg.....— reels
The Wrath of the Gods (Sessue Hayakawa).5 reels

Hippodrome Film Co.
At the Front with the Allies.

Historic Features
Christus .....8 reels

M. H. Hoffman, Inc.
The Fringe of Society (Ruth Roland and Milton Sills) .....7 reels
One Hour (Zeena Keefe and Alan Hale).6 reels
The Silent Witness (Gertrude McCoy)...6 reels
A Trip Through China (Brodsky's Art Pictures) .....8 reels
Her Fighting Chance (Jane Grey).....6 reels
Should She Obey? (Alice Wilson, Gene Genung and Norbert Myles).....6 reels
Whither Thou Goest (Rhea Mitchell and Orrin Johnson) .....5 reels
The Great White Trail (Doris Kenyon)..6 reels

Iliodor Picture Corporation
The Fall of the Romanoffs (Iliodor, Nance O'Neil, Ekaterina Galanta, Alfred Hickman and Conway Tearle).....— reels

Inter Ocean Film Corp.
Enlighten Thy Daughter.....— reels

Ivan Film Productions
One Law for Both.....8 reels
Babbling Tongues .....6 reels
Married in Name Only.....7 reels
Sins of Ambition.....6 reels

Juvenile Film Corporation
World War in Kidland.....1 reel
A Chip Off the Old Block.....1 reel
Chip's Elopement .....1 reel

(Continued on page 451)

Short Subjects Current and Coming

Educational Film Corp. of Amer.

SCENICS—EDUCATIONAL

Oct. 24. From Studio to Screen.
Oct. 31. A Trip Through Japan, No. 1.
Nov. 7. A Flying Trip Through the Hawaiian Islands, No. 1.
Nov. 14. A Flying Trip Through the Hawaian Islands, No. 2.
Nov. 21. Me and My Dog.
Nov. 28. The Chain Gang.
Dec. 5. The Land of Enchantment (Yosemite Valley).
Dec. 12. Fishing for Fish.
Dec. 19. A Trip Through Japan, No. 2.
Dec. 26. Beside the Glimmer Glass.

DITMARS "LIVING BOOK OF NATURE"

Nov. 19. The Animals of Australia.
Nov. 26. The Smaller Monkeys.
Dec. 3. Enemies of the Garden.
Dec. 10. Our Vanishing Game.
Dec. 17. Nature's Weavers.
Dec. 24. Nature's Songsters.
Dec. 31. The Animals in Midsummer.

Fox Sunshine Comedies

Nov. 11. Roaring Lions and Wedding Bells..2 C
Nov. 18. A Milk-Fed Vamp.....2 C
Dec. 9. His Smashing Career.....2 C
Dec. 23. Damaged—No Goods .....2 C
Jan. 6. Shadows of Her Pest.....2 C
Jan. 13. Are Married Policemen Safe?.....2 C
Feb. 3. Son of a Gun.....2 C

General Film Company

BROADWAY STAR FEATURES
(O. HENRY STORIES)

Whistling Dick's Christmas Stocking (George Cooper, Adele De Garde)...2 C-D
The Fourth in Salvador (Chet Ryan, W. L. Rodgers).....2 C-D
The Clarion Call (Walter McGrail, Alice Terry) .....2 D
The Hiding of Black Bill (W. L. Rodgers, Chet Ryan) .....2 D
The Thing's the Play (Mildred Manning, Jack Crosby) .....2 C-D

ESSANAY
("THE BLACK CAT STORIES")

The Long Green Trail (Virginia Valli, Rodney La Rock).....2 D
Don't Lose Your Coat.....2 C
Star Dust (Margaret Clayton).....C-D

GEORGE ADE FABLES

The Fable of All That Triangle Stuff as Sized Up by the Meal Ticket.....2 C
The Fable of the Film-Fed Family.....2 C
The Fable of the Uplifter and His Dandy Little Opus .....2 C
The Fable of the Girl Who Took Notes and Got Wise and Then Fell Down.....2 C
The Fable of the Toilsome Ascent and the Shining Table Land.....2 C
The Fable of the Back Trackers from the Hot Sidewalks.....2 C

ESSANAY COMEDIES (1 reel)

A Depot Romeo.....1 C
Make Your Eyes Behave.....1 C
Lunch .....1 C
Nut Stuff .....1 C
He Loved Her So.....1 C
One Night .....1 C

ESSANAY SCENICS

Salmon Fishing in New Brunswick.....1 Sc.
Lake Louise .....1 Sc.
Banff National Park.....1 Sc.
The Great National Industries of Canada..1 Sc.
Water Powers of Western Canada.....1 Sc.
Through Canada from Coast to Coast.....1 Sc.
How Canada and the Farmer Co-operate in Grain Raising .....1 Sc.
Agricultural Opportunities in Western Canada .....1 Sc.

CHAPLIN COMEDIES

The Champion .....2 C
A Jitney Elopement.....2 C
By the Sea.....1 C
In the Park.....1 C
Work .....2 C

FALCON FEATURES

Feet of Clay (Margaret Landis, R. Henry Grey) .....4 D
Brand's Daughter (Kathleen Kirkham, R. Henry Grey) .....4 D
His Old-Fashioned Dad (Daniel Gilfether, Mollie McConnell) .....4 D
Zollenstein (Vola Vale, Monroe Salisbury)..4 D

KALEM
(AMERICAN GIRL SERIES WITH MARIN SAIS)

The Man Hunt at San Remo.....2 D
The Door in the Mountain.....2 D
Sagebrush Law .....2 D

("THE FURTHER ADVENTURES OF STINGAREE" WITH TRUE BOARDMAN)

Through Fire and Water.....2 D
A Bushranger's Strategy.....2 D
The Stranger at Dumcrieff.....2 D
A Champion of the Law.....2 D

(HAM AND BUD COMEDIES)

The Boot and the Loot.....1 C
A Whirlwind of Whiskers.....1 C
The Onion Magnate's Revenge.....1 C
The Bath Tub Bandit.....1 C

GRANT, POLICE REPORTER SERIES

The Mystery of Room 422.....1 D
A Deal in Bonds.....1 D
The Sign of the Scarf.....1 D
The Man with the Limp.....1 D

A DAUGHTER OF DARING SERIES

A Race to the Drawbridge.....1 D
The Munitions Plot.....1 D
The Detective's Danger.....1 D
The Railroad Smugglers.....1 D
The Deserted Engine.....1 D

JAXON COMEDIES

Too Much Alike.....1 C
Barnyard Frolics .....1 C
Breaking In .....1 C
Blundering Boobs .....1 C
Disappointed Love .....1 C
He's In Again.....1 C
How It Worked.....1 C
Their Model Careers.....1 C
His Fishy Footsteps.....1 C
Out and In (Finn & Haddie).....1 C
The Inspector's Wife.....1 C
Close Shaves (Finn & Haddie).....1 C
Anybody's Money .....1 C
In Wrong (Finn & Haddie).....1 C
Marooned .....1 C
Sherman Was Right.....1 C
Her Fatal Shot (Finn & Haddie).....1 C
What Will Happen Next?.....1 C
Which Was Lucky?.....1 C
Hash and Horrors.....1 C

JUDGE BROWN STORIES

Bud's Recruit .....2 C-D
The Chocolate of the Gang.....2 C-D
The Preacher's Son.....2 D
The Accusing Toe.....2 C-D
Two Boys and Two Lies.....2 D

SPARKLE COMEDIES

Week End Shopping (Kate Price, Billy Ruge) 1 C
Pals .....1 C
Ambition .....1 C
In High Speed.....1 C
A Bargain, $37.50.....1 C
Monkey-Maid-Man .....1 C
On the Love Line.....1 C
The Detective .....1 C
Smashing the Plot.....1 C
After the Matinee.....1 C
Double Cross .....1 C
The Best of a Bad Bargain.....1 C

JOHNNY AND EMMA RAY COMEDIES

A Laundry Mix-Up.....1 C
A Peaceful Flat.....1 C
Cheating His Wife.....1 C
A Bathtub Marriage.....1 C

KLEINE
(GEORGE BICKEL COMEDIES

A Suit and a Suitor.....1 C
Nearly a Husband.....1 C
Some Statue .....1 C
Nearly a Husband.....1 C
Some Statue.....1 C
A King of Cooks.....1 C
Love, Luck and Loot.....1 C

SELIG

Training Our Khaki-Clad Heroes.....2 Military
The Angel of Poverty Row.....1 D
The Rustler's Vindication.....2 D
The Witness for the State.....1 D

THREE C COMEDIES

His Winning Ways (Lou Marks, Pearl Shepard, Oom Paul).....1 C
A Boarding House Battle (Lou Marks, Pearl Shepard) .....1 C
Stealing a Sweetheart (Lou Marks, Pearl Shepard, Oom Paul).....1 C
A Hash House Romance (Lou Marks, Pearl Shepard, Oom Paul).....1 C
The Hod Carrier's Million (Claude Cooper, Virginia Tracy Clark, Kenneth Clarendon) .....1 C

HANOVER FILM COMPANY

Camille (Helen Hesperia).....6 D
The Marvelous Maciste.....6 D

PHYSICAL CULTURE PHOTO PLAYS CO.

Physical Culture Magazine (Issued Monthly) .....1 Edc.

PIEDMONT PICTURES CORPORATION
(SELBURN COMEDIES)

Hubby's Holiday.....2 C
Too Much Elephant.....1 C
His College Proxy.....1 C
Wedding Bells and Lunatics.....1 C

Inter-Allied Films

July 14. Cine Topics.....1 Ed.

King Bee Comedies

Nov. 1. The Hobo .....2 reels
Nov. 15. The Pest .....2 reels
Dec. 1. The Bandmaster .....2 reels
Dec. 15. The Slave.....2 reels
Jan. 1. The Stranger.....2 reels

Kleine Exchanges

ESSANAY SERIES—DO CHILDREN COUNT?
(Featuring Little Mary McAlister)

Aug. 1. The Season of Childhood.....2 D
Aug. 8. The Little White Girl.....2 D
Aug. 15. The Bridge of Fancy.....2 D
Aug. 22. The Kingdom of Hope.....2 D

SELIG-HOYT COMEDIES

Aug. 6. A Dog in the Manger.....2 C
Aug. 20. A Trip to Chinatown.....2 C
Sept. 3. A Midnight Bell.....2 C
Sept. 17. A Contented Woman.....2 C

Metro Pictures Corporation

METRO-DREW COMEDIES

Jan. 7. Their Mutual Motor.....1 C
Jan. 14. Why Henry Left Home.....1 C
Jan. 21. Their First Love.....1 C
Jan. 28. Under the Influence.....1 C

Mutual Film Corporation

Monday, December 24, 1917
MUTUAL—Mutual Weekly, No. 156.....1 Top
Thursday, December 27, 1917
CUB—Jerry's Best Friend (George Ovey)....1 C

STRAND (BILLIE RHODES)

Dec. 18. Little Miss Fixer.....1 reel
Dec. 25. Mary's Boomerang.....1 reel
Jan. 1. Her Awful Fix.....1 reel
Jan. 8. A Peach and a Pill.....1 reel
Jan. 15. Burglars .....1 reel
Jan. 22. Their Little Kid.....1 reel

Monday, December 31, 1917
Mutual Weekly Issued Every Monday

Serials

Dec. 3. The Lost Express, No. 12 (Daring Death) .....
Dec. 10. The Lost Express, No. 13 (The Escape) .....2 D
Dec. 17. The Lost Express, No. 14 (Unmasked) .....2 D
Dec. 24. The Lost Express, No. 15 (The Return of the Lost Express).....2 D

MUTUAL-CHAPLINS

Oct. 29. The Adventurer.....2 C

Paramount Pictures Corporation

KLEVER KOMEDIES (Victor Moore).

Dec. 3. Toothaches nad Heartaches.....1 C
Dec. 19. The Instalment Plan.....1 C
Dec. 31. O. U. Boat.....1 C
Jan. 14. Meatless Days and Sleepless Nights.1 C
Jan. 28. He Got His.....1 C

BLACK DIAMOND COMEDIES

Oct. 7. Susie Slips One Over.....1 C
Oct. 15. Nearly a Baker.....1 C
Nov. 12. A Society Scrimmage.....1 C

ARBUCKLE COMEDIES

Oct. 29. Fatty at Coney Island.....1 C
Dec. 10. A Country Hero.....1 C
Dec. 20. Out West .....2 C

BURTON HOLMES TRAVEL PICTURES

Dec. 3. Osaka to Nagasaki.....1 Trav.
Dec. 10. Canning Time in California.....1 Trav.
Dec. 17. In Glacier Park.....1 Trav.
Dec. 24. Going to the Sun.....1 Trav.
Dec. 31. On the Farm Where the Food Comes From.....1 Trav.
Jan. 7. Sydney, the Antipodean Metropolis.1 reel
Jan. 14. A Trip to the Jenolan Caves of Australia .....1 reel
Jan. 21. Melbourne, the Magnificent.....1 reel
Jan. 28. 'Round About Melbourne.....1 reel

WHO IS NUMBER ONE? (Serial)

Dec. 3. Episode 6. The Flight of the Fury.2 D
Dec. 10. Episode 7. Hearts in Torment....2 D
Dec. 17. Episode 8. Walls of Gas.....2 D
Dec. 24. Episode 9. Struck Down.....2 D
Dec. 31. Episode 10. Wires of Wrath.....2 D
Jan. 7. Episode 11. The Rail Raiders.....2 D
Jan. 14. Episode 12. The Show Down.....2 D
Jan. 21. Episode 13. Cornered .....2 D
Jan. 28. Episode 14. No Surrender .....2 D
Feb. 4. Episode 15. The Round-Up.....2 D

(Continued on page 451)

(Continued from page 449)

Chip's Backyard Barn-Stormers.....2 reels
Chip's Rivals .....1 reel
For Sale, a Daddy.....1 reel
Chip's Carmen .....2 reels

A. Kay Co.

Twenty Thousand Feats Under the Sea....
Golden Spoon Mary.....1 C
Some Barrier .....1 C
His Trial .....1 C
(Terry Human Interest Reels)
No. 1. Character as Revealed in the Face...Ed.
No. 2. Character as Revealed in the Eyes...1d.

Klotz and Streimer

Whither Thou Goest.....5 reels
The Secret Treaty.....5 reels

Lincoln Motion Picture Company

The Realization of a Negro's Ambitions...2 reels
Trooper of Troop K.....3 reels

Marine Film Co.

Lorelei of the Sea.....— reels

C. Post Marion Enterprises

The Wonder City of the World (Greater N. Y. by Day and Night).....4 reels

Masterpiece Drama Productions

Who's Your Neighbor?..... —

Masterpictures

LION COMEDIES
Oct. 29. Nathan Busts Into the Movies....1 C
Nov. 5. A Village Villain.....1 C
Nov. 12. Her Fatal Resemblance.....1 C
Nov. 19. An Account of a No-Account Count.1 C
Nov. 26. Hicks and Hornets.....1 C
Dec. 3. Waves and Wimmen.....1 C
Dec. 10. Fizzled Finance .....1 C

Mayfair Film Corp.

Persuasive Peggy.....— reels

Moral Uplifht Society of America

It May Be Your Daughter..... —

Mo-Toy Comedies

Midnight Frolic.
Jimmy Gets the Pennant.
Out in the Rain.
In Jungle Land.
A Kitchen Romance.
Mary and Gretel.
Dinkling of the Circus.
A Trip to the Moon.
Goldie Locks and the Three Bears.
Dolly Doings.
School Days.

B. S. Moss M. P. Corporation

Birth Control .....6 reels
The Power of Evil.....5 reels
Boots and Saddles.....5 reels
The Girl Who Doesn't Know.....5 reels
In the Hands of the Law.....5 reels
One Hour (Sequel to "Three Weeks").. ....

Nevada Motion Picture Corp.

The Planter .....— reels

Newfields Producing Co.

Alma, Where Do You Live?.....6 reels

Ogden Pictures Corp.

The Lust of the Ages.....— reels

Paragon Films

The Whip .....8 reels

Peter Pan Film Corporation

(Mo-toy Troupe)
July 19. Little Red Riding Hood.....1 reel
July 26. Puss in Boots.....1 reel
Aug. 2. Jimmy the Soldier Boy.....1 reel
Aug. 9. Jimmie and Jam.....1 reel
Aug. 16. In Japoland .....1 reel
Photoplay Magazine—Screen Supplement—One-reel releases, giving intimate interviews of all the stars. (Through independent exchanges.)

Popular Picture Corporation

Corruption .....6 reels

Private Feature Film

Ignorance (Earle Metcalfe).....6 reels

Public Rights Film Corporation

The Public Be Damned (Charles Richman and Mary Fuller).....5 reels

Purkall Film Co.

The Liar .....6 reels

Radio Film Company

Satan the Destroyer of Humanity.....7 reels
The Spirit of 1917 (James J. Harkness and Carl Sturmer).....— reels

Renowned Pictures Corporation

In Treason's Grasp (Grace Cunard and Francis Ford) .....5 reels
Weavers of Life.....5 reels

Select Photoplay Co.

Humanity .....6 reels

Selig Special

Bewar of Strangers.....7 reels
The Ne'er-Do-Well.....8 reels
The Garden of Allah (Selig).....10 reels
Who Shall Take My Life?.....— reels

Frank J. Seng

Parentage .....7 reels

Sherman Eliot, Inc.

The Crisis .....10 reels

Sherman Pictures Corporation

I Believe .....7 reels
The Land of the Rising Sun

Signet Film Corporation

The Masque of Life.....7 reels

Standard Newsfilm, Inc.

Demons of the Air.....2 reels

Julius Steger

Redemption .....6 reels

Moe Streimer

A Daughter of the Don.....10 reels

Submarine Film Corporation

The Submarine Eye.....7 reels

Ultra Film Co.

A Day at West Point.....
West Is West.....
The Rustler's Frame-up at Big Horn.....

Unity Sales Corporation

The Bishop's Secret.....4 reels
The Lottery Man.....5 reels
The Marriage Bond.....5 reels

Universal Film Mfg. Company

Robinson Crusoe (Robert Leonard and Margarita Fischer).....4 reels
Hell Morgan's Girl.....5 reels
Come Through .....7 reels

Variety Films Corporation

My Country First.....6 reels
The Pursuing Vengeance.....5 reels
The Price of Her Soul.....7 reels

Victoria Feature Films

The Fated Hour.....6 reels
The Slave Mart.....5 reels

World Pictures

Over Here .....5 reels

RELEASES IN SHORT SUBJECTS

(Continued from page 450)

MACK SENNETT COMEDIES
Dec. 2. An International Sneak.....1 C
Dec. 16. That Night .....1 C
Dec. 30. Taming Target Center.....1 C
Jan. 13. The Kitchen Lady.....2 C
Jan. 27. His Hidden Purpose.....2 C

PARAMOUNT-BRAY PICTOGRAPHS
Jan. 5. The New Art of Dress; Destructive Power of T-N-T; Goodrich Dirt and Duke de Whatanob.
Jan. 12. The Panama Canal; Evolution of the Dance; Flour from Potatoes.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

Sunday, December 30, 1917
Sunday, January 6, 1918
The Hidden Hand, No. 7 (The Fibre Trap).2 D
The Tip (Harold Lloyd, Bebe Daniels, Harry Pollard), Rolin .....2 C
Picturesque Rivers of France; Here and There in Keswick, Cumberland, Eng....
Katzenjammer Kids, "Der Captain's Birthday" (Cart.); War Bibles (Ed.)...Split reel
Wednesday, January 9, 1918
Hearst-Pathe News, No. 4.....1 top
Saturday, January 12, 1918
Hearst-Pathe News, No. 5.....1 top

Triangle Distributing Corp.

TRIANGLE COMEDIES
Jan. 6. Matrimonial Breaker.....1 C
Jan. 6. His Day of Doom.....1 C
Jan. 13. A Straight Crook.....1 C
Jan. 13. A Marriage Not.....1 C
Jan. 20. Their Indian Uncle.....1 C
Jan. 20. The Price of His Head.....1 C
Jan. 27. A Butler Bust-Up.....1 C
Jan. 27. Too Many Husbands.....1 C

KEYSTONE RELEASES
Jan. 6. His Hidden Shame (Max Asher, Dora Rogers, Alice Davenport, Alatia Morton, Marianne Delatorre).....2 C
Jan. 13. His Punctured Reputation (Wm. Franey, Dale Fuller, Maude Wayne, Milt Sims) .....2 C
Jan. 20. Dimples and Dangers (Harry Gribbon, Dora Rogers, Frank Bond, Claire Anderson) .....2 C
Jan. 27. Courts and Cab Ants (Peggy Pearce, Baldy Belmont, Marianne Delatorre, Max Asher) .....2 C

Universal Film Company

Monday, January 7, 1918
NESTOR—Cave Man Stuff (Gale Henry, William Franey) .....1 C
Wednesday, January 9, 1918
L-KO—Torpedo Pirates (Hughie Mack).....2 C
UNIVERSAL ANIMATED WEEKLY—Weekly No. 6.
Saturday, January 12, 1918
UNIVERSAL SCREEN MAGAZINE—Issue No. 53.
UNIVERSAL CURRENT EVENTS—Issue No. 35 (Shipping date, January 5).
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL — New Enemies (Thirteenth Episode of "The Red Ace" Serial) .....2 D
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL—One Minute to Live (Seventh Episode of "The Mystery Ship" Serial) .....2 D
Monday, January 14, 1918
NESTOR—Maimed in a Hospital (Dave Morris, Max Asher, Gladys Tennyson)...1 C
Wednesday, January 16, 1918
L-KO—Home Run Ambrose (Mack Swain)..2 C
UNIVERSAL ANIMATED WEEKLY—Weekly No. 7.
Saturday, January 19, 1918
UNIVERSAL SCREEN MAGAZINE—Issue No. 54.
UNIVERSAL CURRENT EVENTS—Issue No. 36 (Shipping date, January 12).
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL—The Fugitives (Fourteenth Episode of "The Red Ace" Serial) .....2 D
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL—Hidden Hands (Eighth Episode of "The Mystery Ship" Serial) .....2 D
Monday, January 21, 1918
NESTOR—Who's to Blame.....2 C
Wednesday, January 23, 1918
L-KO—Ashcan Alley .....2 C
UNIVERSAL ANIMATED WEEKLY, No. 8.
Saturday, January 26, 1918
UNIVERSAL SCREEN MAGAZINE, Issue No. 5.
UNIVERSAL CURRENT EVENTS—Issue No. 27.
(Shipping date January 19)
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL — Hell's Riders (Thiteenth Episode of "The Red Ace" Serial) .....2 D
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL—The Black Masks (Ninth Episode of "The Mystery Shop" Serial) .....2 D

Vitagraph

BOBBY CONNELLY SERIES
Nov. 5. Bobby to the Rescue.
Nov. 12. Bobby's Country Adventure.
Nov. 19. Bobby Takes a Wife.
Nov. 26. Bobby the Magician.

THE FIGHTING TRAIL SERIES
Dec. 3. Epi. 13. The Water Trap.....2 parts
Dec. 10. Epi. 14. The Trestle of Hororrs.2 parts
Dec. 17. Epi. 15. Out of the Flame.....2 parts

BIG V COMEDIES
Dec. 24. Dummies and Deceptions.
Dec. 31. Stowaways and Strategy.
Jan. 7. Sleuths and Surprises.
Jan. 14. Peanuts and Politics.

VITAGRAPH COMEDIES
Dec. 17. He Had to Camouflage.
Dec. 24. His Wife Got All the Credit.
Dec. 31. His Wife's Hero.
Jan. 7. A Little Quija Work.
Jan. 14. Seeking An Oversoul.

VENGEANCE AND THE WOMAN (Serial)
Dec. 24. The Oath (First Episode) (Wm. Wuncan, Carol Holloway).
Dec. 31. Loaded Dice (Second Episode).
Jan. 7. The Unscaled Peak (Third Episode).
Jan. 14. The Signaling Cipher (Fourth Episode).
Jan. 21. The Plunge of Destruction (Fifth Episode).
Jan. 28. The Lure of Hate (Sixth Episode).

Favorite Film Features

Dec. 10. Mrs. Bingle's Melodrama (Flora Finch, Kate Price, James Lackaye, Hughie Mack, William Shea, William Humphrey) .....2 C
Dec. 10. Tim Grogan's Foundling (Norma Talmadge, Kate Price, Helen Costello, Van Dyke Brooke, Courtnay Foote) .....1 D
Dec. 17. The Call (Edith Storey, E. K. Lincoln, Gladden James, Ralph Ince).2 D
Dec. 17. No Sweets (Flora Finch, Kate Price, Hughie Mack, Charles Eldridge) .....1 C
Dec. 24. The Masked Dancer.....2 D
Dec. 24. The Wonderful Statue.....1 C
Dec. 31. The One Good Turn.....1 D
Dec. 31. Pickles, Art and Sauerkraut.....2 C
Jan. 7. The Trap .....2 D
Jan. 7. A Change in Baggage Checks.....1 C
Jan. 14. Under the Daisies.....2 D
Jan. 14. A Model Young Man.....1 C
Jan. 21. The Next Generation.....2 D
Jan. 21. And His Wife Came Back.....1 C

TransVerteR
Automatically supplies only such voltage as are requires. No waste of current in ballast.
HERTNER ELECTRIC & MFG. CO.
W. 114th St., Cleveland, Ohio, U.S.A.

EXHIBITORS! HERE'S A NEW RESOLUTION FOR 1918
Save yourselves money on MOTION PICTURE SUPPLIES AND ACCESSORIES
by Patronizing
THE INDEPENDENT MOVIE SUPPLY CO.
Room 603
729 Seventh Avenue, New York
Ask for Prices N—Courtesy with Service

THE WEST COAST
Service Plus—to Readers
Circulation Plus—to Advertisers
TAKE ADVANTAGE OF IT

Unless You Have The
Automaticket System
You Are Losing Money
1733 Broadway, New York

Capacity and Art Laboratories
Capacity is closely related to Quality.
Our Capacity is small,—this means that every job gets full attention and that every foot of work is personally inspected by our Superintendent.
This insures Quality. Therefore, we guarantee satisfaction.
ART LABORATORIES
316 East 48th Street
Murray Hill 6973 Edmond Kuhn, Supt.
Office:
Bryant 8324 1476 Broadway
NEW YORK

"Ghosts of Yesterday"

(Continued from page 446)

accepts the invitation. He has her pose for the unfinished picture of Ruth. She remains at his chateau and she falls in love with Marston, bue he at first shows only a passing interest in her. Convinced that he cares nothing for her, Jeanne resolves to return to the old life. Marston permits her to go.

Jeanne returns to the Count and he gives a party in honor of her return. All leave the Count's house but Jeanne. The Count attempts to force his affections. Marston, regretting that he has permitted Jeanne to leave, calls at her home and learns that she is at the Count's home. He hurries there and arrives in time to save her from the Count. A fight follows and Marston's eyes are blinded. After an operation it is discovered that Marston will be unable to see. Jeanne, realizing that she loves him, remains with him.

"The Slave" and "The Candy Kid"

(King-Bee—Two Reels Each)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

BILLY WEST'S latest efforts along the lines of comedy prescribed by small moustache, small derby, light cane and large trousers result in "The Slave" and "The Candy Kid," pictures depending in a large measure on his personality and tricks. "The Slave" is a picture without subtitles wherein West is seen as janitor of a harem. It contains a considerable number of laughs, resulting from the trouble that the slave brings upon himself because of his foolery. The comedy of the foot tub is a rather unfortunate touch inasmuch as West is almost overcome by the odor of the Sultan's sock. But in general "The Slave" is good comedy, modelled after a well-known pattern, resembling it somewhat but not as polished. It is the first picture made by the King-Bees since their arrival in Los Angeles. Beatrice Joy is a pretty ingenue and Babe Hardy, Leo White, Budd Rose and Gladys Varden comprise the supporting company.

"The Candy Kid" takes one back a couple of years. Ice cream, eggs, fruit, candy, etc., are used by the players as missiles. The Keystoners in their palmiest days never used as many pies as West and his associates use eggs or candy. The film winds up in a battle royal and the set looks like Monday's hash when at last it's over. The first part of the picture introduces much horse-play in which West is the central figure, often to most amusing effect. The same cast with the exception of Miss Joy appears.

Latest Christie Comedies

(One Reel Each)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

"CUPID'S CAMOUFLAGE," produced by Al Christie with Betty Compson and Smiling Billy Mason taking the leading roles is a familiar type of comedy well presented. The daughter of the house acting as maid and the son of the milk dealer acting as deliverer are the principal characters and though this situation is well worn it is developed with good taste and the comedy resulting from it makes good seeing.

"One Good Turn," though it falls something below the Christie standard of story, has certain amusing situations also familiar to the majority of picture goers. On his wedding anniversary hubby stays out for a game of poker. His wife, having prepared a big dinner, invites one of her old suitors in to help consume it. When her aunt and uncle arrive she introduces him as her husband and naturally at bed time the complications come thick and fast. Betty Browne, pretty but rather conscious of herself, takes the lead opposite Mason in this while Harry Edwards appears as the husband.

SUPERIOR TITLES
Clear, Clean and Brilliant.
Fastman stock
Wording Perfectly Balanced. With or Without Borders.
ROTHACKER FILM MFG. CO.
1339-51 Diversey Parkway Chicago, U. S. A.

$7,000 Meisel Press, $3,500
A fast specialty press capable of turning out 2,000,000 "movie" tickets per day. A fine opportunity to engage in a profitable line at a great saving in initial investment. Demonstration by appointment.
Keller Printing Company, 297-309 Lafayette St. New York City

MUSIC for the EXHIBITOR
The
MOST COMPREHENSIVE DEPARTMENT
on
THIS SUBJECT CONDUCTED
in
ANY MOTION PICTURE TRADE JOURNAL
Keep Right on Going!
Some of the most helpful departments in MOTION PICTURE NEWS are found in the Accessory News.
There's "Music for the Picture"—with aids that your orchestra leader will warm right up to and thank you for calling to his attention.
There's "Projection"—a department of sound, hard, common sense and real aid.
There's "Worth While Theatres" — the department that keeps you up to date in knowledge of all the newest things in theatre necessities.
Yes!
Keep Right on Going!
—Or you will lose half your money's worth.

Accessory News

— SECTION OF MOTION PICTURE NEWS —

Motiograph De Luxe Model

Now ready for shipment

Call on your DEALER and inspect the machine. If he hasn't a MOTIOGRAPH DE LUXE MODEL on his floor, write us the name of your dealer.

Motiograph De Luxe Machines are used in the

New California Theatre, San Francisco, Cal., a $2,000,000 theatre
Howard Theatre, Chicago, Ill., a $500,00 theatre
Dayton Theatre, Dayton, Ohio, a $500,000 theatre

AT THE TIME THE FIRST DE LUXE MODEL MOTIOGRAPHS WERE SHIPPED ONE HUNDRED SIGNED RUSH ORDERS WERE ON FILE FOR THIS EQUIPMENT.

A POPULAR PRICED PROJECTOR FOR MODERN THEATRES.

Write for literature

THE ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MANUFACTURING COMPANY
564-572 West Randolph Street, Chicago, Ill.
WESTERN OFFICE: 833 Market Street, San Francisco, California

Alternating Current Projection Revolutionized

It is absolutely unnecessary for you to invest a single cent in extra equipment to obtain excellent, low cost projection on alternating current.

Simply trim your lamp with

WHITE A. C. SPECIAL CARBONS

THIS EASY, INEXPENSIVE OPERATION GIVES YOU

A penetrating, quiet, white light and even screen illumination.
A flexible light source adapted to thick and thin films.
A rugged light that will stand voltage variations.
A much lower operating cost than with the old cored carbons.

It costs but little to try these carbons and be convinced

FOR DIRECT CURRENT

Use the Silvertip combinations.

A tested product that is giving satisfaction everywhere.
Built for any strength of current used in projection.
Write now for our booklets on the operation of these carbons

NATIONAL CARBON COMPANY, INC.
Cleveland, Ohio

BETTER SATISFACTION

This notice is addressed to the minority of our subscribers who do not regularly answer advertisements. The service described is, however, open and free to all who wish our help.

We do not wish to discourage you from writing direct to our advertisers; in fact, you do not do enough of it for your own good, but we do want you to get the proper goods to fit your needs.

There are many, perhaps you, who are too busy to write each company separately; therefore we are offering our co-operation, which means that you will receive full information on any subject which you may designate by merely filling out the coupon, designating by numbers the goods in which you are interested.

Your inquiries thus received will be forwarded to reputable manufacturers, even though the goods on which you wish information are not advertised in the "News."

1. Advertising Novelties
2. Architectural Suggestions
3. Arc Controllers
4. Brass Rails
5. Building Material
6. Cameras—Camera Attachments —Camera Lenses
7. Carbons
8. Chairs
19. Chair Upholstery
10. Change Making Machines
11. Condensers
12. Converters and Transformers
13. Developing Material
14. Developing and Printing
15. Developing Tanks
16. Disinfectants and Perfumes
17. Economizers
18. Electric Signs
29. Elevators and Escalators
20. Exterior Lighting
21. Film Cabinets
22. Film Carriers
23. Film Cement
24. Film Cleaners
25. Film Dyes
26. Film Stock
27. Fire Extinguishers
28. Floral Decorations
29. Gas Engines
30. Generators (See Gas Engine Card)
31. Heralds
32. Interior Lighting
33. Interior Telephones
34. Laboratory Apparatus
35. Lenses
36. Lighting Sets
37. Lithographers
38. Lobby Display
39. Lobby Novelties
40. Metal Ceilings
41. Motors
42. Mural Paintings
43. Musical Instruments
44. Paints
45. Perforating Machines
46. Printing Machines
47. Programs
48. Projection Booths
49. Projection Lenses
50. Projection Machines
51. Projection Machines (Homes)
52. Rectifiers
53. Reels
54. Rewinders
55. Rheostats
56. Safety Exit Locks
57. Screens
58. Slide Ink
59. Slides
60. Slip Covers
61. Stage Setting
62. Studio Lights
63. Tickets
64. Ticket Selling Machine
65. Ticket Taking Machine
66. Tripods
67. Uniforms
68. Vacuum Cleaners
69. Ventilating and Fans

Gentlemen: Please send me descriptive matter on the subjects marked in the above lists.

Name.....

Theatre.....

City.....

State.....

Accessory News

SECTION OF MOTION PICTURE NEWS

Devoted to the technical branches of the motion picture industry, containing records of the latest accomplishments in the mechanical and scientific field; projection helps, inventions and suggestions; camera devices analyzed and commented upon; musical cue sheets for important feature pictures; improvements and innovations in the building and furnishing field.

No charge is made in these departments for answering questions of any nature. Correspondence is invited.

E. Kendall Gillett.....Editor

Alfred S. Cory.....Technical Editor

Advertising Value to the Theatre

THE fact that one exhibitor shows film in better physical condition than his competitor is an advertising point worthy of considerable thought.

The building up of patronage is something which must be gone after and any opportunity to shout or talk about it must be taken advantage of.

The most essential requisite before reaching this condition is a head operator in the projection room who realizes that his whole-hearted co-operation is absolutely essential to the success of the house.

This should be the state of mind of every operator but unfortunately it is not. We still have a great many vandals and those who hold their jobs from day to day in spite of themselves rather than because of any special qualifications.

This was the reason for the formation of the National Anti-Misframe League. In order that the industry might have within itself an organization, the members of which can be recommended as competent to fill positions in projection rooms.

These members are now active in their labors for an improved exhibiting condition. They realize the responsibility which is theirs and are trying to do all in their power to give their branch of picture exhibition its full share of publicity.

The following letter shows the extent to which some of the members are going:

Motion Picture News, Inc.,
729 Seventh Ave.,
New York City, N. Y.

Gentlemen:

Your letter of the twenty-second at hand and contents carefully noted. Cards, buttons and labels also arrived O. K. Both the operators and managers appreciate the fair system on which your projection department is conducted, in the past we have been referred to a certain book, compiled by the "ALL-MIGHTY," so many times, that we had just about lost all faith in trade journals.

I am enclosing a news item clipped from an issue of the Kalamazoo Gazette. The Gazette is the oldest paper in the State and has a circulation of fifty thousand throughout the State together with a like number in the city. By this notice I feel certain that the message of the league will reach other operators in the neighboring communities and will boost its membership therefrom. I would also at this time like to call your attention to the fact, that I would like very much to have my subscription to the News start from December 22d, and would appreciate a copy of that issue at your earliest convenience. Trusting that you will grant me this favor, I beg to remain,

Yours For Co-Operation,

(Signed) Geo. A. Knowles,
Secy. Local 188, M.P.M.O.'s.,
Kalamazoo, Mich.

KALAMAZOO GAZETTE, DECEMBER 22, 1917.

MOVIE OPERATORS TO CONSERVE FILM.

Kalamazoo motion picture operators have identified themselves with the National Anti-Misframe League which has for its purpose the conservation of motion picture film. Every operator becoming a member of the League binds himself to send the film out of his booth in better condition than he found it. All imperfect splices, that cause "misframes" of pictures are to be repaired by the operator.

By enlisting the co-operation of operators the country over, it will be possible for exhibitors and distributors to save thousands of dollars annually in films.

There is absolutely no doubt of the saving to the entire industry when the ideals of the members of the N. A. M. L. become universally adopted and even with its present membership this saving is large.

From the personal and entirely selfish standpoint publicity of this kind is of the utmost value to the theatres in which league members are active. The exhibitors can boast of having films shown in the finest possible physical condition and the operator may be sure that his co-operation will mean an ever increasing patronage and a continuous job in a prosperous house.

The nation-wide attainment of the League's ideals requires also the co-operation of the film exchanges and the heads of some of the largest chains of exchanges have already expressed their approval and endorsement of the N. A. M. L. on this page.

We hope that League members in other sections will put out publicity similar to that appearing in the Kalamazoo Gazette. It will work to their decided advantage.

E. K. Gillett.

Equipment Operating — Projection — Questions Answered

Optic Projection

By J. A. Orange,

(Concluded from last week)

AFTER this preliminary account of motion picture projection, simplified by omission of all reference to moving parts, one is in a better position to review the actual requirements.

Standard practice involves the showing of sixteen pictures per second, each picture being held stationary in the proper position for about 5/6 of the working period of 1/16 second.

It is necessary to interrupt the projection during the short intervals in which the film is moving, and further, since flicker is intolerable at 16 alternations per second, it is customary to interrupt the projection 32 or 48 times per second. (Thus for the latter case a cycle would be:

$\frac{1}{16} \times \frac{1}{16}$ sec., film moving, projection interrupted.
$\frac{1}{16} \times \frac{1}{16}$ sec., film stationary, projection proceeding.
$\frac{1}{16} \times \frac{1}{16}$ sec., film stationary, projection interrupted.
$\frac{1}{16} \times \frac{1}{16}$ sec., film stationary, projection proceeding.
$\frac{1}{16} \times \frac{1}{16}$ sec., film stationary, projection interrupted.
$\frac{1}{16} \times \frac{1}{16}$ sec., film stationary, projection proceeding.)

The necessary interruptions are effected by the rotation of a shutter, a circular disc with sector openings, at a suitable position in the path of the light. A 2-wing shutter revolving 16 times per second gives 32 interruptions and a 3-wing 48.

The only reason for using the 2-wing shutter is found where 60-cycle alternating current is used with an arc-source; were the 3-wing used, its frequency of 48 would give stroboscopic "beating" with the 60-cycle pulsations of the light intensity. Flicker is known to depend on intensity of illumination (or more strictly on surface brightness) as well as frequency. Now, while the intensity used is unlikely to produce appreciable flicker at a frequency of 48, it should be remembered that there is the inherent 16 per second jumpiness of the picture details which are in motion.

This is an argument for restricting the brightness of the projected picture; it would seem that eye-strain may occur with two very different outfits, the alternating current arc giving relatively low illumination and a frequency of 32, and the very high power direct-current arc giving high illumination, an unobjectionable 48 frequency and a 16 per second jumpiness which is prominent by virtue of the degree of illumination.

The best form of shutter device is a matter of considerable importance. The requirement is that the shutter be closed entirely throughout each interval of motion of the film and yet at the same time that the time-integral of the opening be as large as possible. It follows geometrically that it is desirable to have a shutter which is large compared with the section of the beam in which it operates. A number of alternatives are available:

1. The so-called inside shutter, operating near the film. Since this operates in a very constricted part of the beam, it may be made small and yet reasonably efficient. Apart from the general inconvenience of the position, there is the slight disadvantage that the different parts of the picture are not quite synchronous as regards the pulses of illumination.

2. The standard shutter used with the system which employs a 4-in. condenser opening at long range from the film. This system is characterized by a small image of the condenser opening a short distance ahead of the objective. The shutter is placed in this image-position, and may then be made small. There is some slight advantage in the fact that the whole picture waxes and wanes in brightness together with this method. The one objection is the stopping [diaphragming] effect of the condenser-image (so to speak), that is, there is a restriction of illumination which is more serious than the gain in shutter design.

3. The remaining case is that in which large condenser aperture is used and limiting illumination attained. The inside shutter may be used if one cares to tolerate the inconvenience. Alternatively one would select as shutter position a plane immediately in front of the objective, such being the smallest section of the emergent beam.

The beam section is considerably larger than that utilized in the usual arrangement (2, above) and consequently the shutter should be scaled up in proportion, if efficiency is to be maintained.

Some interesting variations are:

(a) A pair of shutters working in opposite directions through the beam; these can be made smaller than a single shutter for any given efficiency.

(b) A small one-wing shutter working at treble normal speed.

Finally, there is a question of choice of light source for moving picture projection. Theatre work has depended almost entirely upon the carbon arc. It might be thought that the superior brilliancy of the arc would constitute an invincible advantage, but when one examines the optical train used in this work it does seem that a source of lower brilliancy could be utilized, given appropriate arrangements. It is a fact that the majority of objectives in use have a much smaller aperture than might be provided, and moreover, the stop constituted by the condenser-image is a needless obstacle. Thus in any particular case the illumination at a screen point, $\frac{A\,B}{x^2}\,k$ may be obtained just as readily by increasing A and decreasing B, that is, by increasing the effective aperture of the objective and decreasing the source-brilliancy.

(The contention that large aperture may be coupled with arc-brilliancy and thus still higher screen illumination obtained is of no consequence. The main interest centers in such intensities as are giving commercial satisfaction today. The connection between intensity and flicker has also a bearing on this question.)

The extent to which objectives may be improved as regards aperture cannot well be discussed here. Suffice it to say that a certain well known moving picture camera lens has 3-in. (7.5 cm.) focal length and f/1.9 aperture, which gives some indication of the possibilities.

Fig. 6.—Aspect of magic lantern objective from center and side of screen showing variation in available aperture.

The largest aperture projection objectives in regular use are about f/2.2. Such an aperture when used in conjunction with a special tungsten lamp and roughly limiting illumination conditions will give screen intensities of the order of those found in present commercial practice. It should be pointed out that the cost of the objective in most existing installations is relatively insignificant. An increased allowance in this respect is very desirable, in view of the importance of its function.

APPENDIX—MAGIC LANTERN AND MOVING PICTURE CALCULATIONS.

The limiting illumination at any screen point is

$$I = \frac{B \times A}{x^2} \times k \qquad (1)$$ where B is the source brilliancy, A is the apparent opening of the objective relative to the point in question, x is the throw and k is the coefficient of transmission of the system. The apparent opening of the objective often varies in magnitude for different screen points, particularly in the case of the magic lantern. This is analogous to the variation obtained with a window in a thick-walled building, as one travels past, and is known as the vignetting action of the objective. (See Fig. 6). In general, limiting illumination is not attained, that is, the effective aperture of the objective for any particular screen-point (and in strictness, for any one spectral color) is less than the whole apparent opening or gross aperture, and $I = \frac{a \times B}{x^2} \times k$ where a is the effective objective aperture.

From the further relations:

$$\frac{x}{f} = m \qquad \text{and}$$

$$\frac{f}{a} = n$$

where f is the focal length of the objective, m is the linear magnification, and n is the effective numerical aperture* of objective we obtain:

$$I = \frac{B\,a}{x^2}\,k = \frac{B}{m^2\,n^2}\,k \qquad \ldots\ldots\ldots\ldots\ldots\ldots (2)$$

This implies that, other things being equal, magnification and effective numerical aperture* should keep step if constant illumination is required. Hence the amateur's outfit giving a 3 to 6 ft. (1-2 meter) picture is well enough served by an objective working at small aperture while a theatre outfit giving a 12 to 20 ft. picture calls for proportionately extreme numerical aperture*. This comparison is on a basis of equal film size; if the amateur's outfit uses miniature film then the magnification is necessarily higher, and with it, the lens aperture requirement.

With regard to the common inquiry as to the projection of a fixed size of screen picture at a short throw and at a long, the answer is that different focal lengths of objective will be required, and if these are of the same numerical aperture* the illumination will be the same in the two cases. Since commercial objectives are of fixed diameter, in focal lengths, exceeding a certain moderate value, it will be seen that with relatively long throws the possible illumination at constant picture size varies inversely as the square of the throw.

A third relation which is of interest in testing projectors may be derived as follows:

$$I = \frac{B\,k}{m^2\,n^2}$$

$$\therefore IS = \frac{B\,s\,k}{n^2} \qquad \ldots\ldots\ldots\ldots\ldots\ldots (3)$$ where S is the area of screen picture, and s is the area of film or slide. But $I \times S$ is the number of lumens in the projection beam

$$\therefore L = \frac{B\,s\,k}{n^2}$$

N. B.—In equation (1), I and x should involve the same unit of length—foot or meter, as the case may be—and B and A should involve the same unit of area, square inch, square centimeter, or square foot. In equation (2) if I is stated in foot-candles B should be stated in candles per square foot. In equation (3), B and s should involve the same unit of area.

Rough values of the factors which together make up the constant k are as follows:

Coefficient of transmission of objectives 0.65
Coefficient of transmission of two-lens condenser ...0.75
Coefficient of transmission of projector shutter.....0.50

ADDITIONAL REFERENCES.

Eppenstein (1), "Die Vergrössernden Projektionssysten" (2), "Die Beleuchtungssysteme," Handbuch der Physik, Winkelmann, 1906 ed., pp. 373-75.

Kruss, H., "Uber die Konstruktion von Kondensoren für Vergrösserungs and Projektions Apparate," Eder's Jahrbuch, 1899.

* The term "numerical aperture" is misapplied here. It is customarily applied to miscroscope objectives and takes into consideration the refractive index of the media with which the first lens surface is in contact—a factor which is not considered in optical projection calculations.—Ed.

The J. K. & E. Film Indicator

WE recently received a leaflet illustrating a device termed "the greatest worry saver ever put into an operating room," the device in question being a projector attachment which apprises the operator at any instant just what fraction of the length of a reel has been run off, and also how many feet remain to be run. The accompanying cut shows the appearance of the indicator.

The device in question is known as the J. K. & E. Film Indicator and is manufactured by the J. K. & E. Co., 2044 Market street, Seattle, Wash. Appreciating the usefulness of such a device, we wrote to the manufacturers, requesting fuller par ticulars, as follows:

"The description supplied of your film indicator is altogether too brief, but it certainly looks as if the device would prove of value as a signal to apprise the operator when a reel is just run off, so that he will know when to change over to the next machine.

"We would like information on the following points connected with the operation of the J. K. and E. indicator.

"(1) Are special footage dials, or other parts needed to adapt the device to reels having hubs of different diameters?

"(2) Is it correct to assume, as the drawing seems to indicate, that the bell rings when the end of the film is reached?

"(3) Can the bell ringing attachment be so adjusted as to ring the bell after any desired length of film has been run, and can the bell be caused to ring before the very last foot of film is reached? (For a good change-over signal it is advisable that the signal device should operate a few feet before the extreme end of the reel.)

"All of these questions, you will note, are practical questions, and if, in addition to answering them, you would be pleased to supply a full description of the device, we will be pleased to print the same."

We have just received additional information concerning this film indicator from J. A. Jonson of the J. K. & E. Co., whose letter follows:

"In reply to your questions I have the following to say:

"1st. The dials will be stamped [or calibrated] for 1¾" [reel] hubs, because nearly all films are sent out from Exchanges on that size hub. But if the operator wishes to use large hubs all he has to do is to reset the hand or pointer at zero when the arm [shown in the cut] is resting on the hub and make an individual mark at whatever point he wants to start the machine. A different set of graduations could be supplied [on the dial], but operators think it superfluous.

"2nd. The bell can be set to ring anywhere desired. Our operators have set the bells to ring 10 feet [from the end of the reel], with three foot trailers on the hub, thus when the bell rings he strikes his arc [on the second machine], and when the pointer is at five feet from the end of the reel he starts the other machine and makes perfect "change-overs" without the aid of perforations in the film. Of course to do that it is necessary to use standard [or similar sized] hubs and all trailers of the same length. Our operators keep a set of extra reels, rewind the films onto them and trim all trailers to the specified length. We have used these instruments now for two months with perfect results.

A Poor Lens Can Spoil the Best Film

The better the film, the greater is the need for a high-grade projection lens. Give your audience the full benefit of fine films, by employing

Bausch and Lomb Projection Lenses

A single good house will pay the cost, several times over—and you'll reap rich dividends of clearer pictures and increased patronage.

Write and tell us of your conditions, and let us quote on your requirements. Free booklet on request.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co.
569 ST. PAUL STREET ROCHESTER, N.Y.
New York Washington Chicago San Francisco
Leading American Makers of Photographic and Ophthalmic Lenses, Microscopes, Projection Lanterns (Balopticons), and Other High-Grade Optical Products.

SERVICE

Are you getting service where you are purchasing your supplies for your Theatre?

DO YOU GET PROMPT SHIPMENTS?
DO YOU GET SATISFACTORY GOODS?
EVERY CUSTOMER SATISFIED IS OUR AIM.

We have an efficient organization and we specialize in GOOD GOODS and PROMPT SHIPMENTS. We guarantee satisfaction or money cheerfully refunded.

A TRIAL ORDER WILL CONVINCE YOU.

AMUSEMENT SUPPLY COMPANY

Largest Exclusive Dealers to the Moving Picture Trade
Dealers in Motiograph, Simplex, Edison and Standard Machines, Transverters, Motor Generators, Rectifiers, and everything pertaining to the Moving Picture Theatres.

Third Floor, Mallers Bldg., Cor. Madison St. and Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

WE SELL ON THE INSTALMENT PLAN

SIMPLEX

SIMPLEX

Motion Picture Machines, not merely as good but far superior to any other. We are exclusive agents for Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland.

Motor Generators and General Supplies

MINUSA Gold Fibre Screens

SPEER CARBONS for Perfect Projection

We are equipped to give you expert service. We repair machines with tools made by the factories. No other concern can offer better service than we. Try us.

Lewis M. Swaab 1327 VINE STREET PHILADELPHIA, PA.
DISTRIBUTOR

"I believe the above also answers your question (3).

"The above, together with cut, explains fairly well what the device will do; the cut [as reproduced] shows the indicator attached to a round magazine, but special brackets will be made for square magazines. When attached no holes whatever are left in the magazine that would expose the film. If desired a working model will be sent you on request.

"We are just in receipt of a letter from the ——— ——— Co., who seem to think that a similar device has been patented, therefore we shall not attempt to put our device on the market until we get a reply from the Patent Office. If the road is clear, we are ready to make a contract for manufacturing and marketing the indicator. An article in the NEWS may hasten to locate the prior patentee, if there is such."

[EDITOR'S NOTE. While we cannot speak with authority in the mater, not having looked up the patents, we are at present of the opinion that the patent surmised by the ——— ——— Co. related to a takeup tension equalizer, which was operated by an arm bearing on the film reel in a manner similar to that illustrated by the cut of the J. K. & E. Indicator.]

Rewinding a Generator

J. B. TROY, N. Y., writes: "Would like to see instructions on the rewinding of generators published in the Projection Department."

IN REPLY: The complete fulfillment of our correspondent's request would be quite an extensive task, and as motor and generator construction is a special subject, not directly within the scope of knowledge required by a motion picture operator, the subject cannot be treated at length in these columns. Inasmuch as the subject had best be left alone unless gone into in extenso, we shall, in lieu of the information requested, refer the correspondent to some standard reference works, the perusal of which will furnish complete theoretical and practical data concerning this class of work.

It ought to be here pointed out that the average operator who uses a generator set of any kind would be ill-advised to undertake the rewinding of any of the coils of the same unless he has had extensive experience along this line—both on the theoretical and practical side. By this we mean that it is best, in most cases, to submit a generator set to the maker for any rewindings which may become necessary.

In submitting a list of reference works on generator rewinding we have assumed that the practical interest in the subject is, centered in the subject of armature winding, and it is this phase of work to which the following references apply. We recommend that the following bibliography be preserved by operators for future reference. The rewinding of field coils is best considered in the works on the theory and design of motors and generators.

WORKS ON ARMATURE WINDING

(1) "Practical Armature and Magnet Winding."
By C. H. Horstmann and V. H. Tousley
Publisher—F. J. Drake & Co., Chicago
Price $1.50

(2) "Armature Windings of Direct Current Dynamos."
By E. Arnold
Translated from the German by F. B. DeGress
Publisher—D. Van Nostrand, N. Y.
Price $2.00

(3) "Armature Windings of Electric Machines."
By H. T. Parshall & H. M. Hobart
Publisher—D. Van Nostrand, N. Y.
Price $10.00

(4) "Armature Construction."
By H. M. Hobart & A. G. Ellis
Publisher—Whittaker & Co., London
Consult at Public Libraries.

National Anti-Misframe League
Pledge

AS a motion picture operator who has the interest of his profession at heart and is willing to assist in eliminating some of the evils practised in the operating-room, I promise that I will to the best of my ability return films to the exchange in first-class condition. Furthermore, I will when it becomes necessary remedy all misframes, bad patches, etc., that may be in the film which I receive and in this way co-operate with my brother operators and give greater pleasure to those who make up the motion picture audience by showing films that are free from such defects. I also promise that I will not make punch marks in film, and when film is received by me, with punch holes, I will notify the exchange to that effect so that they may use their efforts to correct this evil.

Roll of Honor

Ellsworth S. Nelson	Gridley, Calif.
Edward F. Castha	N. Y. C., N. Y.
Clifford Rumley	Opelika, Ala.
Ulla S. Johnson	Greenfield, Mass.
Dewey Hardin	Ada, Okla.
Fred C. Wilson	Nanaimo, B. C.
E. M. Harrell	Spartanburg, S. C.
W. H. Whitman	Spartanburg, S. C.
J. T. Hannon	Spartanburg, S. C.
L. W. Surface	Gallatin, Mo.
Frank Clements	Tuscaloosa, Ala.
Fant E. Farmer	Tuscaloosa, Ala.

Members Previously Recorded	668
Members Recorded This Week	12
Total Membership to Date	680

Notice! Anti-Misframe League Members

Membership cards are now ready and are being sent out as fast as possible. There are a number of operators, however, who have neglected to send in the desired information. If you will fill out the blank and mail to this office, button and membership card will be forwarded.

Member's name .....

Home address .....

Name of theatre where employed.....

Address of theatre and name of manager.....

This notice does not apply to those who have already sent in this information, but it is for those who have neglected doing so, many having merely given their names and name of city, without any street address, making it impossible for the post office to deliver the letters addressed to them.

Interesting Simplex Notes

SAM BERRY, connected with the Lucas Theatre Supply Company, the well known Southern distributors of Simplex Projectors, has become a benedict, according to the latest reports from Dixieland. Miss Lillian Hightower was the lucky girl.

The Wurlitzer Hall, New York, N. Y., have lately installed two type B. Simplex Projectors.

One more star has been added to the Service Flag of the Precision Machine Company by the call to arms of Wm. Eggerman. This makes the twelfth Simplex employee to answer his country's call. Five selected the Navy and seven the Army.

Verdicts are Formed

after

Evidence and Convincing Facts

Have Been Submitted

SPEER ALTERNO CARBONS

FOR A.C. WORK

AND

SPEER HOLD-ARK CARBONS

FOR D.C. WORK

Produce Incomparable Results—results mould operators' opinions—opinions determine the verdicts—verdicts establish the reputation. The operators' "stamp of approval" places Speer Projector Carbons in that exclusive class of motion picture supplies most essential to improved projection.

PARAMOUNT FEATURES

ALTERNO CARBONS

Perfect Projection—Wanderless Arc.
Noiseless Operation—Brilliant Illumination.
Bright, Flickerless, Eye-Resting Light.
No Change Required in Booth Equipment.

ESSENTIAL ADVANTAGES

HOLD-ARK CARBONS

Permanent Arc — Longer Life
Perfect Crater — Minimum Adjustment
Hard Core and Metal Coating
Elimination of Projection Difficulties

When ordering specify whether for alternating or direct current. Each style has a special duty to perform. Substitutions or attempted alterations are costly.

Write today for descriptive literature

"THE CARBONS WITH A GUARANTEE"

SPEER CARBON COMPANY

ST. MARYS, PA.

The Camera

Chapters on Photographic Optics—I

AS a leading subject for treatment in the Camera Department in the course of the present year we have elected the optics of photography and projection, and it will be apparent at once that this is a happy choice, because the art of cinematography is founded upon the cognate sciences, photography and optics. The importance of a thorough exposition of the subject of photographic optics is two-fold insofar as concerns all who have to do with the production or projection of motion pictures, because the photographic objective is known in technical optics as a projection system, in common with the lenses of the eye and, any other positive lens system which can project a real image. By real image is meant an image which can be received, for instance, upon the projection screen or upon the ground-glass focussing screen of a camera.

A great deal has been written upon the subject of photographic optics, but insofar as the text books in English on this subject are concerned, it must be said that they have, with one or two exceptions, been prepared for the edification of the amateur or non-scientific devotees of photography. The professional cinematographer requires optical knowledge of a more advanced nature than is to be found in the available treatises on photographic optics, while the enormous advances in the art of presenting motion pictures in the theatres renders an increased knowledge of optics imperative on the part of the projection machine operator. Most of the optical data on motion picture projection that has appeared to date has been founded upon positive misconceptions, and its publication has done more harm than good to the professional motion picture operator.

It is not to be inferred from our remarks concerning the inefficiency of the text books that the subject of photographic optics is in an immature state, for, as a matter of fact, it has received a most complete development in Germany and in England. The important literature on the subject is, however, buried in photographic periodicals, and in the journals of photographic and scientific societies, while the most efficient text-books on the subject are printed in German. In the course of our articles we shall, however, draw attention to important items amongst the literature of the subject, and in this way attempt to provide interested readers with the material for a thorough grounding in the theory of photographic objectives and the intelligent use of projection systems.

What is without doubt a serious limitation to the acquisition of an accurate knowledge of lens action is the conventional method of the text books known as Geometrical Optics. It is true that lens systems are designed and computed by geometrical (or trigonometrical) means, and that the performance of optical systems is forecasted or estimated by similar mathematical processes, but the fact remains that the limits of performance of optical systems depends upon their influence upon the light waves traversing them, and that all of the laws of optical imagery may be explained on the basis of the WAVE THEORY OF LIGHT.

